

FOWLER HAS FALL; CONTINUES TRIP

FIRST MAN TO ATTEMPT TRANS-CONTINENTAL FLIGHT IN AEROPLANE HAS MISHAP.

MAKES 45 MILES PER HOUR.

Thousands Laud Man Who Promises to Eclipse Harry Atwood's Famous Performance of a Few Weeks Ago—Fowler Kisses Mother at San Francisco Before Leaving.

(By Associated Press.)

Alta, Calif., Sept. 12.—Aviator Fowler who is flying to New York fell here today, but was not injured. He says that he will stick to it and continue on his way. It was later said that Fowler is seriously injured. With the steady trade winds of the Pacific at his back, Robert F. Fowler, the first aviator to attempt a trans-continental flight, sped yesterday up the Sacramento valley and alighted at Auburn, Cal., 126 miles away, at 6:30 o'clock last evening. The landing was made at the foot of the Sierras, the conquest of whose summit may prove the ultimate test of success or failure of the attempt to fly from ocean to ocean. It was after a brief halt at Sacramento for oil and gasoline that the aviator drove his bi-plane high over the rolling foothills and landed without a single untoward accident at Auburn.

Kisses Mother. Sped by his mother's kiss and "God bless you," Fowler rose from the stadium in Golden Gate Park at 1:37 o'clock p. m. Sweeping in a circle over the surf of the Pacific, his aircraft swung like a compass needle until his forward planes were notched in the gap in the snow line of the Sierras through which he hopes to pass. Then with the cheer of thousands billowing up to him, he sped over the city and, with a handwave of greeting, he hummed steadily over the trail first won by the argonauts of '49.

Makes 45 Miles an Hour.

Over Berkeley, Cannons and Elmira, Fowler sped, flying with the same steadiness that marked his start. The watches that checked the progress showed he was making forty-five miles an hour, a pace from which he never varied. As he sped high over the dome of the state capitol at Sacramento a roar from the thousands massed in the agricultural park directed him to his landing place. After a daring spiral, he settled easily to the ground and asked for the clock. Fowler was told it was 3:47 o'clock. He had covered the ninety miles of the first leg of his journey in exactly two hours.

GLADSTONE ROADS IN GOOD CONDITION

The city of Gladstone is doing fine this year when it comes to the street proposition, which goes to show that it probably is a wise idea to elect a mayor that drives an automobile. Mayor Hammel "is there" when it comes to making good roads and if Escanaba will do something now to improve the condition of the bad street through North Escanaba, the road all the way to Gladstone will be in fine condition. All of the Gladstone end will be finished in a few days probably by tomorrow evening and then the going will be good from the St. Paul dock to the upper bay city. The road through North Escanaba is awful bad and steps should be taken at once to put it in shape.

WIFE WANTS TO JOY RIDE; DIVORCE IS THE ANSWER

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 19.—At last the fleet auto is seen in a new light. Having long been considered the special plaything of the rich, it is listed as the bone of contention in a suit for a divorce, the defendant being a man whose income is limited to $75 a month. Mrs. Florence Bahr, 24 years of age, is complainant. Arthur L. Bahr, a bridegroom, employed on Kinnickinnic avenue by the Northwestern Railway company, is defendant. The case rests entirely on the trouble which resulted after Bahr had purchased an auto for $700 and began to take his recreation on country roads at night. Mrs. Bahr alleges that the car was purchased with money advanced by her mother, Mrs. Cleanta D. Connors, Chicago. She also says that the loan was made with the distinct understanding that she was to do part of the joy-riding—the debt to be paid off in installments of $10 a month. Now comes the most grievous part

GREEN GOODS' GAME NOT DEAD YET; MAN ARRESTED IN CHICAGO.

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, Sept. 12.—S. A. Potter was arrested here today by secret service men for working the old "green goods" game. It is alleged that he and his confederates have collected about $1,500,000 from this vicinity and that Wisconsin was also a large contributor to the fraudulent operations of the gang.

MANY GOVERNORS IN ANNUAL MEET

EXECUTIVES OF THIRTY-FIVE STATES ARE EXPECTED AT NEW JERSEY MEETING.

New Laws of Forty-Six Legislatures Will Be Discussed by State Executives—Gov. and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson Entertain Guests.

(By Associated Press.)

Spring Lake, N. J., Sept. 12.—The vanguard of the thirty-five governors who are expected to participate here this week in the third annual conference of state executives reached Spring Lake today. Fifteen executives are already here while others are expected during the night. The convention opened this morning. A special car brought eight governors from the West. Governor John F. Shafroth of Colorado, and Mrs. Shafroth were not aboard. Governor McGovern of Wisconsin and the others said they left Chicago Thursday, but were stopping on the way and would arrive today.

While the committee was welcoming the Western governors, Governor Judson Harmon of Ohio, accompanied by Mrs. Harmon, drove to the hotel in a hired hack. Governor Harmon soon was the center of a welcoming group.

South Carolina will be represented. Illness will detain Governor T. L. Oddie of that state, as well as Governor Charles S. Deneen of Illinois. Other states whose chairs are expected to be vacant are Arkansas, California and Tennessee. Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey delivered the welcoming address and Governor Joseph M. Carey of Wyoming responded. The first formal address tomorrow will be delivered by Governor Augustus E. Wilson of Kentucky. Organization will follow, and then addresses by Governor Norris of Montana and Governor O'Neal of Alabama.

PORT WASHINGTON MAY ACCEPT TERMS

LAKE SHORE LEAGUE TEAM MAY PLAY HERE—GREEN BAY COMES TOMORROW.

An attempt will be made to bring Port Washington to this city to play the Escanaba team before the close of the season. The Lakeshore League desire a large guarantee, but a satisfactory agreement is expected to be attained before long.

Green Bay will arrive here tomorrow prepared to play two games with the local team. "Dutch" Perch, the sensational fielder and premier comedian of the Wisconsin-Illinois league will be seen in action with the visitors. Perch has had more feature catches this year than any other outfielder in that league and is scheduled to put over some thrillers up here. The line-up of the visitors will be the same as was announced a short time ago.

TAKE STUPID CHILD TO A PHYSICIAN

SO RULES MICHIGAN BOARD OF HEALTH IN BULLETIN ISSUED TODAY.

FORCED BACK BY AILMENTS.

Often-times Pupils Who Are Delinquent Are Merely Sufferers From Minor Complaints, Which Should Be Attended to, the Board Says—Correction of These is Necessary.

The bulletin of the Michigan Board of Health issued from Lansing today, is unusually timely and contains many suggestions for parents. It is as follows:

"The school year has just begun, and fond parents are carefully selecting new outfits of clothes so that their children may compare favorably in appearance with their neighbor's children.

"But why only see that their stock of clothes is complete? Clothes do not make the man. It is far more important to see that both mind and body are in the best condition possible for development.

"Many a child is forced backward toward the foot of the class because of some minor ailment which might easily be corrected by proper treatment.

"Do not neglect a child because he seems stupid. This is the time that he needs attention. Any child who is weak or does not learn easily should be taken to a competent physician who can often find defects in the child, the correction of which will make the child strong and robust both mentally and physically.

"Our cities are fast coming to a realization of the fact that many of the children are backward, not because of lack of brains, but because their defective bodies do not supply the brain with enough good, rich blood to develop properly. They hire reputable physicians whose duty it is to examine these children carefully, and, if any defect is found, to take steps to have it removed.

"If a child is unable to see properly it cannot be expected to learn its lessons. The concentration and application necessary to accomplish this is impossible. And yet one-third of the school children are found to suffer from defective vision in various degrees. This is a condition which is easily remedied in the majority of cases by proper treatment.

"One of the common causes of backward children are adenoids and tonsils. These are lymphatic growths in the throat which fill up the upper part of the throat and render breathing through the nose difficult or impossible. Such a child has a characteristic facial expression and is known as a mouth breather. Not only is the face affected, but backwardness in the development of the entire system is also caused. These are readily removed by a slight surgical operation.

"See that the child receives plenty of fresh air and exercise. The body needs plenty of systematic exercise in the open air. A healthy body and a healthy brain go hand in hand and one seldom finds one without the other. See that the child's study and sleeping rooms are well ventilated so that it will not be poisoned by foul air.

"A healthy start in life means health, wealth and happiness in later years. See that the child lacks none of the opportunities for this development.

"If the child is frail or does not learn readily, look for a cause. There are many minor ailments and defects the correction of which may be the turning point in the life of your child. "The best is none too good for him. See that no stone is left unturned in bringing the child to a healthy maturity and you will be astonished at the results."

JOHN KLINGER DIES AT 8 O'CLOCK TODAY

John Klinger, for many years a resident of Escanaba, died this morning at his home 423 Georgia street. His demise was brought on by paralysis. For some years past he has been employed as a car repairman with the Northwestern road in the local shops, and it was but recently that he was attacked by the illness. His son, a Franciscan priest, is expected here to attend the funeral. Numerous other relatives will be here. The funeral will take place Thursday morning with a requiem mass at St. Joseph's church. Interment will be made St. Joseph's cemetery. J. R. Andrews is in Menominee today on business.

MICHIGAN MAN ESCAPES INJURY ON AVIATION FIELD

(By Associated Press.)

New York, Sept. 12.—Captain George W. Mackay of the signal corps of the Michigan National Guard escaped serious injury at the aviation field on Long Island yesterday when the monoplane in which he had made several circuits of the field fell on a fence and the machine was wrecked. Captain Mackay was designated by Governor Osborn of Michigan to study aviation, so that he might instruct other members of his corps.

INSPECTION OF BUILDINGS ENDS

FIRE CHIEF FINDS BUT FEW CASES OF NEGLIGENCE IN ESCANABA STRUCTURES.

Urges Cleansing of Chimneys at This Time, to Prevent House Fires, Which Cause Majority of Residence Blazes—Goes to Convention.

Fire Chief Kamrath has almost completed the inspection of buildings about the city, and said today that he found most of them in admirable shape. Nevertheless, he urges owners of all buildings, including homes, to see that their chimneys are cleaned at the present time, as there is little likelihood of such being attempted later in the year when cold weather arrives.

Most of the fires in any residence district are caused by defective chimneys and the fire chief admonishes property holders to remedy any deficiency in this respect.

A few cases of flagrant neglect were found by the chief in his round of inspection but a warning to the owners was, in most instances, sufficient.

Ladder and apparatus practice is being kept up by the department at regular periods, and since its establishment as a part of the work last summer has not been discontinued.

The chief will accept the $50 appropriation by the city council to attend the national convention of fire chiefs, that will be held in Milwaukee soon.

WEDDING HELD AT ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH

MISS TILLIE SERVIS BECOMES BRIDE OF WALTER MENARD WITH NUPTIAL MASS.

This morning at St. Joseph's Catholic church Miss Tillie Servis was united in marriage to Walter Menard, with a nuptial mass, in the presence of many friends and relatives. Rev. Father Julius performed the ceremony.

The bride was attended by Miss Eva Sturgeon. Geoffrey Menard, a brother of the groom acted as best man.

The bride was attired in a gown of white lace and carried white roses. The maid of honor was dressed in cream silk and carried pink roses.

Following the wedding ceremony the bridal party went to the Servis home on South Jennie street where a breakfast was served. The couple departed on the 11 o'clock train for Chicago and Milwaukee. They will return to take up their residence in this city.

BOURDEAU PAYS UP AND IS RELEASED

Apparently dreading confinement, Frank Bourdeau, the drayman, who was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail, upon being guilty of stealing wood, from the yard of a local home, paid his fine this morning and was released.

He paid $25 and costs, amounting to $31 to gain his freedom. When the fine was imposed a few days ago, he paid no attention to it and was remanded to jail to serve out the sentence.

LEAVES FOR CHICAGO.

John Reidy, For the Past Few Weeks Catcher, Has Been Released.

A release was given "Jack" Reidy, for some time past catcher on the Escanaba team, last evening. As Cole was out for the game for some time with a broken rib, Reidy was secured.

He refused to work Sunday, because he caught the two preceding games. The shift in the line-up and the condition in which Cole was at the time, although he went in to catch, made the release forthcoming.

PRESENT LEADERS MOST LOGICAL CHOICE FOR THE MARQUETTE-DELTA HONORS.

PROTESTS MAY BE AN AID

Escanaba Has a Slight Chance to Nose Out Negaunee Before the End of the Season, Although But Few Games Remain to Be Played—Marquette is Hopeful of Better Place.

With the close of the season of the Marquette-Delta league but two weeks away, there is a slight chance of Escanaba grabbing the bunting, although it is likely that Negaunee will again end the season at the top of the percentage column. Marquette has a margin of a few possible points for the league leadership.

Negaunee now has a lead of three full games over Escanaba and three and a half over Marquette, with six games yet to play. Two of these six games are with Escanaba on Negaunee's grounds, three with Ishpeming and one with Marquette, all to be played at Union park. Escanaba has four more games to play, two at home with Marquette and two away from home with Negaunee. Marquette has five more games to play, two at home with Ishpeming, two at Escanaba and one at Negaunee. Ishpeming also has five more games to play, two at Marquette and three with Negaunee.

Negaunee must lose four of its six games in order for either Marquette or Escanaba to have even a fighting chance for the pennant. In case Negaunee should lose four games and Escanaba should win all four it has to play the two teams would be tied at .555. The same situation would prevail in case Marquette should win all five of the games it has to play. Negaunee has the advantage of all its games being on its home grounds, but that team also has more games to play than any other, which is probably a disadvantage for a team in the lead.

The race for second place between Marquette and Escanaba is likely to be decided on Sept. 23-24, when Marquette closes the season here. Escanaba is now half a game ahead of Marquette, but with two games to play with Ishpeming (on paper at least, the weakest team of the league) on the home grounds, while Escanaba must tackle Negaunee at their home grounds Saturday and Sunday.

Escanaba has protested two games it has lost, one to Negaunee and one to Marquette, and in case the protests are allowed, they may have a bearing on the pennant situation. The issues involved in these two protests are now formally before the league officers, who have written to officers of the big leagues for an opinion as to the validity of the grounds for the protests.

THEATRICAL MEN HERE FOR A VISIT

MESSRS. BARRETT AND WALKER OF SOO SPEND SHORT TIME IN THIS CITY.

Fred G. Barrett and A. W. Walker of Sault Ste. Marie are in the city today as guests of George Malone, manager of the Grand theater, which they control, together with several other play houses in this part of the country. Mr. Barrett said today that the local theater will be the scene of some of the best acts in vaudeville this winter. He has signed up many excellent variety numbers.

The two men returned today from Sheboygan, Wis., where yesterday they consummated a deal whereby they take over the principal vaudeville house in that city and add it to the present complete circuit under their control.

"RESUMPTION" IS ON ISLAND ROCKS

A number of the members of the Plum Island life saving station, came to Escanaba today to bring over the captain of the schooner Resumption, which is on the rocks at the island. Last night while the schooner was endeavoring to make a tack she failed to get away with it and the rocks was the result. The life saving crew went to the assistance of the crew and stood by until this morning. It was found necessary to get aid from this city and the captain was brought over for that purpose.

ROBINSON GRANTED NEW TRIAL BY COURT

NORTHLAND MAN ACCUSED OF MURDERING CLEMENT SMITH WILL GET REHEARING.

Session of Marquette Circuit Court Opens in That City Yesterday With Murder Case First on Calendar—Robinson Now in Prison There.

At the opening of circuit court yesterday Judge Flannigan handed down several decisions on cases or motions heard during the last term, two of which were appeals in criminal cases. Samuel Robinson of Northland, who was convicted of manslaughter in December, 1910, and is now serving a sentence in the Marquette prison, was granted a new trial, and the petition of Gust Ekola, of Negaunee, who is alleged to have induced Oscar Norlund to run across the main street naked, for a new trial was denied.

Robinson was accused of having killed Clement Smith in a drunken brawl at Robinson's homestead, near Northland. Robinson admitted having killed Smith but pleaded that he did it in defense of his own life, as Smith was about to attack him. In the charge of the jury, Judge Flannigan laid down the principle that to constitute self-defense an armed man must not shoot an unarmed man until the latter was within striking distance of the former. Judge Flannigan believes that he erred in including that principle in his charge to the jury and on that ground grants the defendant's motion for a new trial.

It is expected that Robinson will be removed from the Marquette prison to the county jail within a few days, where he will remain until his second trial, unless he should be able to secure $1,000 bail. Robinson's attorneys sought to have their client retried at the present term of court, but Prosecuting Attorney Bell stated that it would be impossible for the People to get ready for trial at this term, and the case has been continued until December.

BALDWIN CASE AT MARQUETTE COURT

ON CALENDAR THERE, BUT IMPRESSION IS THAT IT WILL BE SETTLED SOON.

On the calendar of the Marquette circuit court which opened yesterday is the case of F. L. Baldwin of this city, charged with criminal libel, because of his attack upon the character of Chase S. Osborn, governor of Michigan, while the later was running for that office. When the case will come up is not yet known, but an impression has arisen that it will be disposed of before it is brought to trial.

In his publication, The Escanaba Journal, Mr. Baldwin printed articles that were construed as libel, and for which he was sentenced to pay a fine and serve a jail term in justice court here. He appealed and the case now pending is the resultant action, a change of venue being made.

A meeting of the Boy Scouts will occur this evening at the First M. E. church. Rev. Frederick Spence will address the gathering. It will be the past meeting of the 1911 season.

HAS $10 ONE DAY; HEIR TO THOUSANDS THE NEXT

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 12.—To find one's bank roll increased $100,000 overnight is an agreeable surprise, especially when it totaled something less than $10 the night before. Such is the good fortune awaiting George McKenzie, once an Australian prize fighter, when he stepped off the gangplank of the Graham & Morton freighter, on which he is a deckhand, this morning. The money is being held for McKenzie by an attorney in New South Wales, with whom it was left four years ago by his grandfather.

GOODLAND TALKS ON COMMISSION

APPLETON COUNCILMAN INTERVIEWED ON NEW FORM DURING VISIT IN ESCANABA.

MEANS SAVING TO ANY CITY.

New Form Not in Operation There Long Enough to secure all Benefits, He Says—Considerable Sum Saved in Purchases and Labor Cost With Better Services Rendered.

In a visit to Escanaba over the past week end, Councilman John Goodland, Jr. of Appleton, the man who was instrumental in establishing the commission form of a government in that city, discussed the plan of handling municipal affairs, and pronounced himself a thorough optimist regarding it.

The Appleton man is now the only one of his family to attain political distinction in Wisconsin. His father, John Goodland Sr., is over eighty years of age, the oldest circuit judge in the state. His brother, Walter S. Goodland, is editor of the Racine Times and mayor of that city.

In speaking of the working of the commission plan he said here:

"Because of the short length of time we have been under this form of government it is difficult to state whether or not it is entirely successful. For the most part we have merely carried out the work which was decided upon by the old council. We have kept up repairs and inaugurated some new systems in different departments, but have undertaken little in the way of permanent work that had not been decided upon before we took office.

"For my part, however," continued the speaker, "I feel certain that this form will be an improvement over the old system. For one thing we can dispatch business much quicker. We had a regular meeting the first day of each month when we pay off the police, fire and other departments; the second day of each month we pay all other laborers, and the tenth of each month we pay all other bills. The mayor and both councilmen have offices in the city hall and we meet every morning at 9 o'clock. If there is anything for the council to consider we take it up and dispose of it. If not, we adjourn to our several offices and devote the day to city work. It stands to reason that a person devoting his time entirely to city business, if he is the right sort of a man, is better qualified to attend to the city's business than a man who merely gives but a small portion of his time to the city.

All Depends Upon Officers.

"But like the old form of government, it will not be a success unless the right men are elected. If you elect 'lemons' you will get a 'lemon' government. It's all in the men you elect. But cities are not apt to elect as inefficient men for this system as they do under the old system, for the salaries paid are higher under the

JURY AWARDS HESS $19.95 OF CLAIM

A jury in Judge O. V. Linden's court this morning returned a verdict allowing Joseph Hess $19.95 of the $22.50 asked in his suit against Magnus Matson.

The suit attracted some attention when it was called for a hearing a few days ago, because both plaintiff and defendant refused to obtain attorneys. This morning Hess appeared with an attorney. Matson conducted his case alone.

The suit arose over some work done by Mr. Hess on property owned by Mr. Matson. The $22.50 was the balance due on the job. It was claimed,

Civilizing the Indian.
The following is from "The Soul of the Indian," a book by Dr. Charles Alexander Eastman, himself an Indian: "Long before I ever heard of Christ or saw a white man I had learned from an untutored woman the essence of morality. With the help of dear nature herself she taught me things simple but of mighty import. I knew God. I perceived what goodness is. I saw and loved what is really beautiful. Civilization has not taught me anything better. As a child I understood how to give. I have forgotten that grace since I became civilized. I lived the natural life, whereas I now live the artificial. Any pretty pebble was valuable to me then, every growing thing an object of reverence. Now I worship with the white man before a painted landscape whose value is palmed in dollars. Thus the Indian is reconstructed, as the natural rocks are ground to powder and made into artificial blocks which may be built into the walls of modern society."

My Dear Eliza—Dick was perfectly furious the other evening when he came home. You know we have left town and are living in a convenient suburb away from the bustle and heat of New York city. I was calmly sitting on the porch reading one of the best sellers when the gentleman indignantly burst in upon my enjoyment with the remark, uttered in no gentle tone, "I missed my train by relying on a time table you handed me last night."

Now it seems that Dick received an important business telegram night before last which required his presence in town early the next morning, and his first thought was to look up the trains. Naturally he asked me for a time table, and I cheerfully gave him the old one, which lost him his appointment and incidentally a contract that would have netted him $11, simply by missing a train. It was the old story of the other man getting there first.

In your orderly household such a collection of time tables probably never would have been allowed to accumulate. Ours are, or rather were, kept

Brief Notes From Neighboring Cities

Captain H. J. Cleary of the life saving crew at Marquette, has gone to Knoxville, Tenn., to take charge of an exhibition of life-saving methods to be given by the government in connection with the exhibition there. He will be absent from the city a number of weeks. This is the fifty first time that Captain Cleary has been assigned to similar special duty. He was in charge of the exhibition crews at the Chicago, Buffalo, St. Louis and Portland expositions.

The salesmen of the Lloyd company of Menominee will be entertained at a banquet in the Hotel Menominee this evening. M. B. Lloyd, the manager will be the host of the occasion. There are twelve traveling salesmen. The company's business has grown from $125,000 its first year in Menominee to over $500,000 during the year just passed.

Marinette will play with the West Parks of Milwaukee Saturday and Sunday. This is one of the strongest teams in the state. Lefty Lewis, the star pitcher of the Lake Shore league will twirl one of the games for Milwaukee and Noel, will be in the box for Marinette. Two southpaws will thus be seen in action.

The old Swedish Lutheran church building on Carpenter street at Menominee is now for sale. The congregation will soon have a fine new church to use and the old building will be disposed of as soon as possible. It is not in bad condition and will make an admirable room for some one who is in need of such a place.

A Herculean Katydid. Experiments conducted by a naturalist attached to one of the government's scientific bureaus at Washington adoped an interesting example of the strength of the katydid. He harnessed a katydid to a kind of sled made by folding a piece of ordinary note-paper, and then loaded the sled with various articles. The insect proved able to draw, in addition to the original paper, twelve paper sheets each 8 by 4 1/2 inches, a large screw, two ounces and three and a half lead pencils. When the weight became too heavy to draw otherwise, the katydid got its fore feet over the edge of the table for a better hold, and on the addition of another weight it increased the adhering power of its feet by moistening them in its mouth.—New York Tribune.

Not a Parallel Case. A writer in the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post tells of a big overgrown, bashful booby of a farmer's boy who was afraid even to speak to a girl, and whose father one day finally lost patience and scolded him roundly for not looking about and finding some girl to marry. "Why," he said, "at your age I had been married three years and had a house and farm of my own!" "Well, but dad," complained the boy, "that ain't the same thing at all. You only had to marry mother, while I've got to go and hunt up some strange girl and ask her to marry me!"

Conferring a Title. While he was governor of Kentucky Proctor Knott sent to the Hon. Bigness of Big Ben. Big Ben, which marks the hours for parliament at the top of the clock tower at Westminster, is bigger than it appears from below. Looking at the dial of Big Ben from the northern footway of Great George street or from the Thames embankment, it appears as if its diameter might be equal to the space that a man of medium size could cover with outstretched arms. As a matter of fact, however, the diameter of the dial is twenty-three feet. From the ground the minute marks on the dial look like ordinary minute marks and as if they were close together. Really they are a foot apart. The numerals are two feet long. The minute hand, with its counter balance—the heavy piece of metal that projects beyond the center of the dial—is fifteen feet in length. This hand is so massive that during a snowstorm the clock is sometimes retarded by the weight of the flakes that alight on it.—London Mail.

"No, sir," answered the attendant. "They call me 'Billiard cue.'" "Billiard cue!" repeated the visitor, frowning. Then an inspiration dawned. "Ah! Because you're such a stick, I suppose?" he asked. "Wrong again, sir," returned the attendant. "It's because I work better with a good tip."—London Answers.

In a writing table drawer, not arranged in order, but thrown in any old way, old and new together. In this instance I had happened not to get a very old time table, but one about middle aged, old enough to be wrong but still young enough to make me trust it, which is plainly where I slipped a cog. Now I have inaugurated a great domestic reform which I would like to pass on to all careless persons guilty to hoarding time tables.

In this reform movement I was very generously aided by the victim of the lost train, for Dick brought home a complete set of current time tables, and then I emptied the drawer of all the old ones and put the new ones in arranged in order, and afterward issued a general household order on the subject of time tables to the effect that they must be kept—those of each road in a pile by themselves—al J. further, that whenever a new time table on any road was brought in the corresponding old one must be testotally and unhesitatingly thrown away.

This scheme, I am sure, is going to work beautifully, but I fear that every time for the next year I will be reminded of the lost $11 whenever the fancy seizes me to plunge sartorially. Dick is not close fitted; still he's very human, and such an opportunity to bring a sinner to a second repentance will hardly be thrown away.

Erosion of the Drainage Basins of the United States. Investigations by the United States geological survey of the erosion of numerous drainage basins of the United States show that the surface of the country is being removed at the average rate of about an inch in 700 years. Through this amount seems trivial when spread over the surface of the country, it becomes stupendous when considered as a total or even in separate drainage basins.

The rivers of the United States carry to tide-water every year 270,000,000 tons of dissolved matter and 513,000,000 tons of suspended matter. This total of 783,000,000 tons represents more than 300,000,000 cubic yards of rock or 610,000,000 cubic yards of surface soil. If this erosive action had been concentrated on the isthmus of Panama at the time of American occupation it would have excavated the prism for an eighty-five foot level canal in about seventy-three days.

Major League Notes

Twenty-four innings of fast baseball was not enough to decide the game between the Portland and Sacramento team of the Pacific Coast League yesterday, and when darkness ended the contest, the score was 1 to 1. The time was 3 hours and 45 minutes.

The Tigers won't go for the same reason that the Reds won't—their bosses won't let them.

Summer Exercise. Success in most outdoor sports depends upon how well one can breathe. Breathing exercises are the most valuable. A reason for acquiring this habit in the summer is that away on the mountains or by the sea one can avail oneself of the purest, most highly "oxygenated" air obtainable.

Practice the following Yoga breathing: Close the left nostril and breathe through the right during eight seconds; close the right and exhale forcibly during two seconds through the left; inhale through the left during eight seconds; exhale through the right in two seconds.

It is highly important that the lungs should be filled with air in these breathing exercises and that the breath should be renewed during the period in which we can count slowly from six to twelve. Then the exhalation should be gradual, say exhale, pause, count two, exhale a little more, count two, and so on. The muscles of the lungs will be strengthened and their capacity greatly increased in proportion as the air is first retained and then completely exhaled.

Breathe deeply at all times, but especially upon rising in the morning, and have the clothes loose enough to allow the ribs plenty of expansion. Pressure on the diaphragm makes violent exercise almost impossible.

With The Fighters

Rev. F. B. Menter started a campaign against the Johnson-Wells fight yesterday in a sermon preached in London, England. He said that there ought to be enough Christianity in England to make the fight impossible. American opinion, he said, had banished the sickening exhibition of 1910 to the outskirts of its civilization and it was too bad to have the fight planted in London.

Joe Mandot, the southern lightweight champion pugilist, competed in the ten mile river "Marathon swim" in the Mississippi at Memphis yesterday; gamely finishing the entire course, but was unplaced for a prize. Mandot will continue this system of training for his fight with Tommy Kilbane here on September 18.

Kid McCoy has just been matched up for two battles by his manager, Danny Morgan. His first will be with Elmer McCloskey for ten rounds at New York in two weeks, while his second will be with Sailor Burke, the conquerer of Billy Papke, at a show to be brought off in Brooklyn on September 25.

Leo Houck of Lancaster, Pa., who is regarded now as one of the top-notchers in the middle weight division, will make his first appearance in a bout in New York on September 21. He will have for an opponent Frank Mantell, the game fighter of Pawtucket, R. I.

Knock-Out Brown has been signed up for two more fights. On September 21 he will meet Young Hickett in a 10-round bout at Elmford, N. Y., while on September 26 he will go against Jim Bonner, the Pennsylvania lightweight, for ten rounds at Tamaqua, Pa.

Tom McCarey of Los Angeles says he will stage the Wolgast-McFarland fight if it is called off in Milwaukee, but not until after the Wolgast-Weish go. If Freddie wins over Ad the promoter will offer him a fight with Packey.

Bob Moha has been matched to meet Johnny Thompson September 26 in a twelve-round battle at New Orleans on that date.

Morav and the Telegraph Operator. Immediately after the successful completion of the first transatlantic cable and the consequent celebrations, in which, of course, Cyrus W. Field bore a prominent part, Professor Morse had occasion to send a telegram from a small town in Ohio to his home in New York. He wrote out his message and presented it to the operator, who rapidly checked it off with his pencil and curtly demanded a dollar.

"But," said the venerable inventor, "I never pay for messages," and, seeing an inquiring look in the operator's eyes, added, "I am, in fact, the father of the telegraph."

"Then," said the operator, firmly convinced that he was being imposed upon, "why don't you sign your own name, Cyrus W. Field?"

Professor Morse when telling the story used to say that he was too humiliated to answer.

The SKY PIRATE

by GARRETT P. SERVISS.

RIGHT BY FRANK A. MURPHY COMPANY.

PROLOGUE.

The sea pirate has long been a dominating figure of romance, the march of progress has been him into well deserved re-ment, and he has now been faced, in fiction at least, by sky pirate, who is even more meritorious, more daring and more audacious than his predecessor. And there will unfold before the extraordinary story of Captain Alfonso Payton and his ship, the Chameleon; of William Grayman, the richest man in the world; of his beautiful daughter for whose ransom $10,000,000 was demanded; of Lieutenant Allen of the revenue service, who ponders by wireless and of his battles above the clouds.

CHAPTER VI.

THE FINISH WITH THE POLICE.

MR. GRAYMAN and the commissioner were impatient because their train was a quarter of an hour late in leaving. Mr. Grayman's faith in his ally had been growing, and he looked upon him as an able devotee and a man of resources. His anxiety was lest Payton, feeling that he had told the police, would have fled in driving from the billiard room. The commissioner had been in the case Payton suspected they always make such threats, but they never execute them, use why-it wouldn't pay. They try their chances for a ransom would be as often as you like, but he never resent it until every possi- bility has been played. Payton has a hundred cards up his sleeve. He was at the station for Tribes Hill, had a long uphill walk to the rendezvous. The commissioner's sharpshooters in all sorts of guises popped up here and there were sent to hiding places in the neighborhood. As they approached the commissioner parried from his eyes.

"I leave you here," he said, "and my station over yonder, from which, as I told you, I will make the L. We may have to wait some time, but I reckon that he'll be along, and won't be surprised, but occupy his attention as long as possible. Promise him anything you can afford it, know."

The commissioner laughed heartily at the pleasure, and the two stepped for their respective stations. When Mr. Grayman was alone he began to assume a different aspect. Once more his shrewd doubts returned, and he said to himself that he had become an infernal idiot to let his life and liberty in this man, William Grayman, with his money, to walk into the jaws of a man with eyes open to the danger! A voice sounded over his shoulder. Glancing upward, Mr. Grayman almost started out of his senses, being right above him an aeroplane was swiftly descending. In a minute it swept gracefully to ground, and an elegantly attired man calmly stepped down from the deck and, politely removing his advanced with outstretched hand, smiling smile toward the billion-

Good morning, Mr. Grayman," he said in a voice of wonderful sweetness, delighted to see you here. I am Alfonso Payton, with whom I had a distant conversation the day yesterday. I am happy to see how rigidly you keep your appointments, although that does not sur- prise me, for, of course, like all the rest of you, your business repairs. But you do me great honor, sir. Grayman, like every person who ever comes into contact with me, is instantly struck by the magnetism of my presence and manner. Mr. Grayman unconsciously took the offered hand and Payton gave him a cordial shake of the fingers and smiled with a gleam of affability, showing his teeth.

That a delightful morning we are remarked, with the easy smile of a man used to the world's things and glancing around him with looks of admiration. "So cool, so agreeable with the breath of the sea! But I think it will turn out a day."

"I think so," Mr. Grayman replied, so completely surprised that he scarcely knew what he was saying.

Without doubtless you would wish to see from your daughter?" Payton smiled, still smiling. "I am happy to say that she is enjoying excellent health and spirits in a most charming locality. I left her only yesterday, and knowing that I was to see her, she sent her love to her mother, whom she hopes to see soon, and will be home in a few days."

"What are you going to do with all this personal truck that is cluttering up your room? It will cost you any- thing a dollar a month for storage."

"Not that way I am working things," said the man who was going away. "I have purposely refrained from paying board for four weeks, and the land- lady will hold my stuff. Of course I shall square up when I come back and get it again, and in the meantime she will give it free storage."—New York Times.

Mr. Grayman between surprise, anger and anxiety lost his self command. Then the thought of the commissioner and the aeroplane dashed across his mind and restored his confidence. He must carry out the plan now. He was in for it.

"I did not," he began, but Payton interrupted him, thundering: "Who is your friend under the tree there? What is he waving his hand-kerchief for?"

Mr. Grayman glanced toward the place where the commissioner stood and saw a flash of white. Ah, the signal at last! All his habitual coolness came back. The aeroplane would be here in a minute! He must simply detain Payton a little longer.

Without replying, Grayman turned round on his heel, expecting to see the police aeroplane swiftly approaching. But he saw nothing except the commissioner frantically waving his handkerchief.

"They're not coming," said Payton derisively. "The commissioner may have his arms out, but you'll never see his aeroplane. I fixed them all four this morning, and now I guess I shall have to fix you!"

As he spoke he lifted his hand. Immediately the chameleon was round and swept down toward them in a beautiful curve. As she grazed the ground, two men sprang off, and, before he could have offered a show of resistance, Mr. Grayman was seized, lifted from his feet and carried aboard. Payton followed at his heels, and a moment later they were circling upward.

That which Mr. Grayman's good sense had all the while been telling him would happen had happened. It may or may not appear strange that his first impression was not of fear, but of shame because he had made an ass of himself.

When the unhappy commissioner from his post of observation saw this maneuver, which belied all his predictions and promises to Mr. Grayman, he nearly went crazy. It was utterly beyond his comprehension why the aeroplane did not move. Then he cursed the marksmen, who also had done nothing.

"Shoot, curse you, shoot! Pepper that aeroplane!" he yelled. "Come out of cover and shoot!"

The men came running from various directions and began to fire wildly. If they had been specially trained to shoot birds on the wing with rifle bullets they might have stood a chance of hitting the Chameleon. Payton laughed loudly at them, and, to show his contempt, circled around without trying to get away.

"Take your time, boys!" he shouted. "You'll improve with practice. Meanwhile I'll show you how."

As he spoke a thin blue flame leaped from the Chameleon and one of the men dropped in his tracks. Another flash with the same result. The sharpshooters ran for cover. Then the aeroplane swooped down toward the commissioner. Suddenly pausing a few yards above his head, Payton leaned over the side and said: "My best respects to you, Mr. Commissioner. When you lay another trap for Alfonso Payton just fetch the rest of your metropolitan police to see the fun. Goodbye!"

The enraged commissioner drew his pistol and fired point blank at Payton. The bullet whistled close by the latter's head, but he only laughed and shouted back, "A pretty good shot, commissioner!" Then he added more severely, "I could lay you in your tracks, but you are a brave man, though no fox hunter, and I'll let you off this time."

The chief's reply was two more shots, which also missed their mark. Payton laughed again, and the Chameleon, making a sudden turn, soared high aloft and then darted off westward with her billouante prisoner.

You Will Be Proud of the appearance of your stove

IF YOU USE

Black Silk Stove Polish

It makes old stoves look like new and lasts four times as long as any other shine. Don't imagine all brands of stove polish are alike. Black Silk is different. It's so much better than other stove polishes that there is absolutely no comparison. It's in a class all by itself.

It makes a brilliant, glossy shine that anneals to the iron—don't rub or dust off. Give it a trial. Try it on your parlor stove—your cook stove or your gas range. If you do not find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money.

Here is what some of the ladies write us:

"I like Black Silk Stove Polish better than any I have ever used. People say, 'where did you get your new stove,' and I tell them it's Black Silk Stove Polish that makes it look like new."

"I will not use any other kind when I can get Black Silk Stove Polish. It makes stoves look nice and stay nice longer than any other polish."

"Black Silk Stove Polish is by far the best I ever used. I have tried many different kinds but find none as good."

"I like Black Silk Stove Polish better than any I ever used. Several parties in this neighborhood are anxious to get some of your polish since they saw my stove after using it."

Ask your hardware and stove dealer for Black Silk Stove Polish and refuse a counterfeit brand. Costs you no more than the ordinary kind so why not have the best?

Single Barbed Wire Fences. They may be seen along the road in Central America a brown wren about the size of a canary which builds a nest out of all proportion to its apparent needs. It selects a small tree with horizontal branches growing close together. Across two of the branches it lays sticks fastened together with tough fibers until a platform about six feet long by two feet wide has been constructed. On the end of this platform nearest the tree trunk it then builds a huge dome shaped nest a foot or so high with thick sides of interwoven thorns. A covered passage-way is then made from the nest to the end of the platform in as crooked a manner as possible. Across the outer end as well as at short intervals along the inside of this tunnel are placed cunning little fences of thorns with just space enough for the owners to pass through. On going out this opening is closed by the owner by placing thorns across the gateway, and thus the safety of the eggs or young is assured.

Protecting the Volunteers. In the course of an after dinner speech not long ago Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research recalled a once familiar story of the younger Pitt, which may bear retelling for the present generation. The solemn and stiff necked statesman had his moments of ironic humor.

When England was threatened by a French invasion in 1802 there were a great many volunteer soldiers enlisted. But the articles of enlistment guaranteed these volunteers very carefully against too much fighting.

They were not to take the field "except in case of actual invasion." They were not to be put on war patrols "except in case of actual invasion." They were not to be drilled hard "except in case of actual invasion."

When Pitt read these articles he frowned. Finally, on toward the end of the document, he came to a provision that under no circumstances were the volunteers to leave the country. Here he lost patience, and, seizing a pen, he added to that provision the clause:

"Except in case of actual invasion."

MANY GOVERNORS WILL ATTEND THE CONFERENCE AT SPRING LAKE, N. J.

Secretary Jordan Has a Plan For Permanent Organization.

Program of Subjects to Be Discussed During the Five Days.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

THE house of governors, or governors' conference, as it is officially called, has now been in existence two years. It is no longer an experiment. Of concrete results there are perhaps not many to show, at least on the surface, but the one big concrete result is the body itself. That is permanent. In it are bound up all sorts of possibilities. It has already given direction and expression to what the Outlook calls "the new statelism," as the complement and accompaniment of the "new nationalism."

This year the governors' conference meets at Spring Lake, N. J. The sessions extend from Sept. 12 to 16, inclusive. Spring Lake is the home of former Governor John Franklin Fort of New Jersey and is near the summer home of Governor Woodrow Wilson at Sea Girt. Governor Wilson, by the way, is chairman of the executive committee and therefore the presiding officer of the conference.

The meeting of last year at Frankfort and Louisville, Ky., was not as productive as it otherwise would have been for the reason that a large number of governors were going out of office and others were coming in. This year the new men are firmly in the saddle and have a prospect of continuing for a year or two at least. They are not distracted by the prospect of private life immediately before them and by the presence of their soon to be successors sitting in the same body with themselves. Thus the Spring Lake conference should have more tranquillity and peace of mind than did the one in Kentucky. Possibly also the form of hospitality may not offer so many distractions.

Some idea of the scope of the conference may be had from the official program, which is as follows:

Tuesday.—Address of welcome by Governor Woodrow Wilson, New Jersey; response to address of welcome by Governor Joseph M. Carey, Wyoming; appointment of temporary chairman; address on "Possibilities of the Governors' Conference," by Governor Augustus E. Wilson, Kentucky; organization; discussion and appointment of committee on organization;

"Strengthening the Power of the Executive," address by Governor Edwin L. Norris, Montana; address by Governor Emmet O'Neal, Alabama; discussion.

Wednesday.—"Employers' Liability and Workmen's Compensation," address by Governor Charles G. Deneen, Illinois; address by Governor Eugene N. Foss, Massachusetts; discussion. Evening session—report of committee on organization; discussion; appointment of executive committee for 1912; discussion of plans, details and suggestions; arranging budget for 1912; miscellaneous business.

Thursday.—"The Inheritance Tax and State Comity," address by Governor John A. Dix, New York; address by Governor Edmond F. Noel, Mississippi; discussion; "The Right of the State to Fix Intra-state Traffic Rates," address by Governor Herbert B. Hadley, Missouri; address by Governor Chester H. Aldrich, Nebraska.

Friday.—"State Control of Public Utilities," address by Governor Francis E. McGovern, Wisconsin; address by Governor Beryl F. Carroll, Iowa; discussion.

Saturday.—"Problems of Prison Labor," address by Governor Oswald West, Oregon; address by Governor Chase S. Osborn, Michigan; discussion; adjournment.

Plan for Permanent Body. One of the most important subjects of discussion will be the permanent organization of the conference. If this follows the plan worked out by the secretary, William George Jordan of New York, it will result in making his office a clearing house of ideas and information relating to the states. In a sense Mr. Jordan's library has already become that, since he is in constant touch with the members of the conference and is gathering and supplying information. What he now proposes is an enlargement of his present activities so that through the conference may be in a sense in continuous session. To this end he needs an enlarged office force, in order that he may get out bulletins on the multitude of subjects engaging a governor's attention. For example, Secretary Jordan recently learned that Pennsylvania intended to appoint a commission to investigate a certain subject. He immediately forwarded to Governor Tener the results of similar investigations in other states. He has also been collecting and tabulating all the party platforms, the governors' messages and the session laws. From these he is arranging side by side under various heads what each state is discussing and what it is actually accomplishing. The party platform represents "promise" and the governor's message "performance." Rather neat, don't you think? Also alliterative. To the mind of a rank outsider like myself this job laid out by Mr. Jordan of tabulating all the party platforms, governors' messages and session laws constitutes a task not for one man, but for a regiment.

The cheerful way in which Jordan outlined the work he has already done along this line and others almost paralyzed me. As a newspaper man I always imagined that I knew how to eat up a small amount of work; but, believe me, the chore laid out for himself by the secretary of the governors' conference would make any mere newspaper man dizzy. Jordan himself is a sort of newspaper man, or, rather, a magazine man, having been editor of Book Chat, Current Literature, the Ladies' Home Journal, the Saturday Evening Post and other publications. He has also had time to write various books on the way married folks may be happy (he is a bachelor himself), on the development of individuality, on mental training and generally on how to live and be good. From all of the above it may be gleaned that Mr. Jordan is a thinker

Plan for Permanent Body. One of the most important subjects of discussion will be the permanent organization of the conference. If this follows the plan worked out by the secretary, William George Jordan of New York, it will result in making his office a clearing house of ideas and information relating to the states. In a sense Mr. Jordan's library has already become that, since he is in constant touch with the members of the conference and is gathering and supplying information. What he now proposes is an enlargement of his present activities so that through the conference may be in a sense in continuous session. To this end he needs an enlarged office force, in order that he may get out bulletins on the multitude of subjects engaging a governor's attention. For example, Secretary Jordan recently learned that Pennsylvania intended to appoint a commission to investigate a certain subject. He immediately forwarded to Governor Tener the results of similar investigations in other states. He has also been collecting and tabulating all the party platforms, the governors' messages and the session laws. From these he is arranging side by side under various heads what each state is discussing and what it is actually accomplishing. The party platform represents "promise" and the governor's message "performance." Rather neat, don't you think? Also alliterative. To the mind of a rank outsider like myself this job laid out by Mr. Jordan of tabulating all the party platforms, governors' messages and session laws constitutes a task not for one man, but for a regiment.

The cheerful way in which Jordan outlined the work he has already done along this line and others almost paralyzed me. As a newspaper man I always imagined that I knew how to eat up a small amount of work; but, believe me, the chore laid out for himself by the secretary of the governors' conference would make any mere newspaper man dizzy. Jordan himself is a sort of newspaper man, or, rather, a magazine man, having been editor of Book Chat, Current Literature, the Ladies' Home Journal, the Saturday Evening Post and other publications. He has also had time to write various books on the way married folks may be happy (he is a bachelor himself), on the development of individuality, on mental training and generally on how to live and be good. From all of the above it may be gleaned that Mr. Jordan is a thinker

What It Would Do. If the plan is ever fully under way it will prove of incalculable help not only to the legislatures, but to lawyers and judges. A tabulated compendium of the laws of all the states, such as Secretary Jordan contemplates, would furnish a handy reference book of untold value. The bulletins got out by the office would be convenient not only for governors and lawmakers, but for newspapers. The office of the secretary would become a sort of central information bureau for the states in their relations to each other.

Very many of our state laws are now copied from the statutes of other states. Suppose there were some central office that could supply at a moment's notice all the laws passed by other states on a given subject. How much the legislator would be helped in his work! He could then choose the form of statute best fitted to the needs of his own state and make that his model. These are only suggestions of a few of the many benefits that would flow from the plan if it were carried out. The beauty of it is that the machinery is already constructed and put together. All it needs is a little oil—get that, oil—and motor power. The governors are now ready to furnish the motor power. Now let the legislatures come across with the oil and all and that he is not afraid of work. He has been laboring five years or more on this house of governors plan and is just now beholding it take form. If his program is followed the body will soon have a building of its own, with a fine library and a force of men sufficient to gather, tabulate and send out information telling each state just what all the other states are doing. Thus if any governor contemplates prying loose the crafters he will have at his elbow the methods used by other governors in grafting party and the success or lack of success attending the same.

Mr. Jordan has already got out bulletins on party platforms in the various states and on popular elections of United States senators. He has the material almost ready for bulletins on the messages of the governors, on conservation in the states, on the session laws of the various legislatures, on prison labor, pardons, paroles, extradition and various other subjects. The matter of a uniform divorce law is not scheduled to come up at this session, but Secretary Jordan contemplates collecting information as to the divorce laws of the states and issuing them in bulletin form. Then the subject will be properly before the body and can be discussed intelligently.

Substantial Progress Made. Secretary Jordan's original plan was to create a permanent chamber, a sort of third house in American legislative affairs, but one relating to state and not to national affairs. This was to be called the house of governors. Like all things human, there have been obstacles in the way of realizing his ideal. The deed has lagged behind the dream. Yet substantial progress has been made. Recently he was gratified by the action of the legislature in progressive Wisconsin. The state has come up to the mark in a practical manner by passing the following law:

The governor of the state of Wisconsin is hereby authorized to attend and represent the state of Wisconsin at any and all conferences of governors and to make such arrangements as he may deem necessary for the state of Wisconsin to bear its share of the expenses of such conferences.

Designating the governor the official representative of the state at the conference is more significant than it at first seems. It may be argued that the very fact of his being governor constitutes him the state's representative. Morally this is true, but officially it is not. So far as the law goes the governors' conference has no more official standing than any other meeting of gentlemen. It is recognized neither in the statutes of the nation nor the states. But if each state would take the action of Wisconsin the conference would at once become an official body.

There is another feature of the Wisconsin act that is gratifying. That is the empowering of the governor to make arrangements for his state's share of the expenses. Just the vulgar subject of money! To carry out its legitimate work the governors' conference should have at least $50,000 per year. That would average only a trifle more than $1,000 to each state, which is a pitifully small sum, considering the importance of the work. Yet, through oversight or for some other reason, little or no money has been appropriated thus far. As a consequence most of the governors have had to pay their own expenses in attending the conferences, and the secretary's office has been hampered for funds. We are a rich people, with a congress appropriating billions and state legislatures spending millions. Yet we have not seen fit to lay aside a few paltry thousands for a body as important as the house of governors.

NOT A GOOD INVESTMENT. Would Not Sue For Damages For Child Hurt by Car.

A SMALL girl from the far west who is visiting in Cleveland attempted the other day the difficult problem of dodging two automobiles and a street car while crossing the street. It was too much for her. The street car fender bowled her over.

She was hurried back to the home of her friends, which was close by, where a hastily summoned doctor declared she wasn't hurt in any way. With this assurance the child's mother resumed her journey downtown.

Shortly after the mother's departure the street railway's medical man appeared to see the little girl. He was told that a doctor had already attended her, but he was anxious to see her himself. And just then she appeared in the hall.

"And so you were not hurt?" he said in his friendliest way.

"No," replied the ten-year-old. "I wasn't really hurt. It was mostly the shock. Mamma says I have a nervous temperament."

"I see," said the smiling doctor. "And so you don't think your mamma has any intention of suing the railway company?"

"No," the child gravely replied. "I don't think she has. I heard her say she didn't believe in throwing her children under street cars for an investment."

And the smiling doctor had nothing more to say.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

Not many moons ago Joseph Weldon Bailey of Texas retained his seat in the United States senate by repeating a single speech from one end of the Lone Star state to the other.

Some political opponent had pictured the Texas oratorical giant as attending a dinner of New York society pigmies attired in a full dress suit while the orchestra played "Marching Through Georgia."

Back to the confines of his constituency went the indignant Texan, and let loose a flow of oratory that bore him upon its crest once more to a safe port in the big capitol at Washington.

Here it is in all its fiery intensity: "When the honest yeomanry of Texas are sitting down to supper these parasites of New York and Washington are just beginning their dinners. While you sit at the table in your shirt sleeves, with your collars opened to let the sun-kissed evening breezes of the gulf cool your manly bosoms, these dukes encase themselves in stiff white shirts buttoned to the neck which are encircled in stiff linen collars and chokers, the shirt topped with a low-cut vest, and this with a coat cut away in the tail until it makes the man inside it look like a monkey dressed up. That coat, and the pants that go with it, must always be black, but as for me, thank God, I belong to a white man's party in a white man's state."

And now Joseph Weldon announces that he will break the old home ties and enter upon the practice of law in New York. Has he lost his ideals or is the odor of Standard Oil and other combinations so strongly attached to his senatorial toga that he is no longer acceptable to a "white man's party in a white man's state"?

GOT QUICK REPLY.

Oshkosh skippers, who only a few days ago, started a movement for the purpose of securing better shipping facilities along the Fox river valley were successful in "starting something." Telegraphic dispatches yesterday told of a meeting of railway officials with representatives of Oshkosh business interests at which time the railroad men offered to get busy in facilitating the movement of freight to and from Oshkosh, says the Green Bay Gazette.

There certainly should be no lack of facilities for transporting freight between the cities along the Fox river both expeditiously and at a reasonable cost. The means of transportation offered by boats through the Fox river should serve as an incentive to the railroads traversing that territory to give good service and also to keep rates down. The fact that Oshkosh business men got' such a quick response to their threat to establish a boat line from their city to Green Bay for the handling of freight indicates knowledge on the part of railway officials that they have something to fear from this means of transportation.

THE BEATTIE INCIDENT.

Generally speaking, one's mental vision of the law is a figure having two arms.

One arm today is thrown about the neck of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., whose moral character a jury of thinking men has judged to be so infectious that nothing less than death will remove the danger of his contaminating others.

The other arm of the law ought to be thrown about the necks of two more whose evil influence is likewise injurious.

It would be shooting paper wads at the statute of justice to take the life of Henry Beattie and allow Paul Beattie and Beulah Binford to flaunt their own badness in the face of a morbidly curious public under the guise of "needing the money" and "teaching a moral lesson."

If this country ever needed the grip of a strong hand in the enforcement of decency to protect the home, it is right now.

Labor day was fittingly observed by everyone working harder than usual to have a good time.

President Taft is to be hauled by mules at Missouri's state fair, but if he wants Missouri's vote he must be on top of the mules, not behind them.

In Toledo, Mass., they spell "K-nival" with a "K". Some one present the mayor with a blue backed speller quick.

There is complaint about inaccurate crop reports, but if they were accurate Wall street would not have much left to gamble about.

"Do you believe in fairies?" asks Maude Adams in Peter Pan. The news we are now getting from the fishing camps compel us to admit that we do.

Honored the Old Men. A unique festival occurred in Paris in 1797 in honor of the old men. The idea was the encouragement of the family circle, and the old man who was a happy grandfather was held up to the younger generations to follow in his footsteps. "A gracious Helix crowned their white locks with garlands of roses, while the soldiers of France presented arms in their honor."

Secret Baseball Signals.

"Perhaps you never realized that there is an exact science in coaching and signaling," says Hugh S. Fullerton, writing on the secret tricks of baseball coaching in the American Magazine; "that the two men out there near first and third bases, who seem to be making fools of themselves or trying to annoy the majestic man in blue serge, are the wigwag men signaling to runners or batters just what the general sitting on the bench wants them to try to do. Sometimes the general is on the lines himself, looking just as foolish as the wigwag men or more so, but somewhere, hidden in his meaningless or hackneyed phrases or his wild gestures, there is a meaning. He is telling the batter not to hit the next ball or to bunt it or informing him that the next will be a straight fast ball and at the same time informing the base runner that the batter intends to hit and that he must start at top speed when the pitcher starts to wind up."

Salt Water Bathing.

Dr. Copeman of Brighton, England, writing in the Practitioner, London, gives some advice on sea bathing. "The best time to bathe is about two hours after breakfast, the period of greatest vital activity," says Dr. Copeman. "The one time which must be avoided is after a full meal. During the process of digestion the vessels of the internal organs are already engorged with blood, and the shock of the cold water is apt to produce a very dangerous condition of congestion, the least of many penalties that may accrue being an acute attack of indigestion. With many keen bathers it is an article of faith to bathe before breakfast. But business men, after months of unremitting toil, those who are below par or who are getting on in years, should avoid taxing their system by bathing at such a time. Even the most robust would be wise to partake of a cup of hot milk before leaving the house."

Salt.

Salt production is about the oldest industry in the world. In Italy, the cradle of the salt industry, it has been manufactured commercially for 2,500 years. Salt is so necessary to existence that in some parts of the world tribes will sell the members of their families in exchange for salt. Salt has been the cause of wars, and so important has it always been considered that in some places the passing of salt is established as a token of friendship, and women throw salt on a visitor as a friendly greeting. In some countries salt is so scarce that it is obtained through the ashes of grasses and a species of palm and other plants. While salt is produced in almost every country in the world, it is stated that nowhere can salt of such purity be obtained as in Louisiana.—Manufacturers' Record.

A Real Gas Plant.

There are two varieties of gas plant. One is a manufacturing establishment where coal is converted into gas for illuminating and heating purposes. The other variety is a real growing plant called the fraxinella. Few know why the fraxinella is called the "gas plant." This is because at certain times it releases a volatile oil that actually ignites if allowed to come in contact with a lighted match. The fraxinella is also noted for its fragrance and longevity if not disturbed. One plant in a New England garden is doing its best to outlive a third generation, and elsewhere a clump is still flourishing after no less than thirty-seven years on a grave—one of the most difficult of places for a perennial to keep up a long struggle for existence, let alone a normal life.—New York World.

A Great Advantage to Working Men

J. A. Maple, 125 S. 7th St., Steubenville, O., says: "For years I suffered from weak kidneys and a severe bladder trouble. I learned of Foley Kidney Pills and their wonderful cures so I began taking them and sure enough I had as good results as any I heard about. My backache left me and to one of my business, expressman, that alone is a great advantage. My kidney acted free and normal, and that saved me a lot of misery. It is now a pleasure to work where it used to be a misery. Foley Kidney Pills have cured me and have my highest praise." For sale by all druggists.

A Prophecy

By CAROL H. PIERCE Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When the civil war was coming on Enoch Arnsby, a Connecticut Yankee, who had taken it into his head to run a plantation on the Mississippi river some twenty miles south of Vicksburg, found himself a northern man with southern interests. Despite the differences between him and his neighbors they didn't drive him out. His son, Zeke, who had lived in the south longer than in the north, enlisted in the Confederate army, and this disposed the southerners more than ever to let the father alone.

Enoch Arnsby told his southern friends that there were reasons why the north would prevail. "I guess," he said, "nothin' can stand against the south for fightin', but it isn't fightin' that's goin' to win. The northern people are full of resources. When they come down here you'll find that they will convert a ferryboat into a man-of-war, build bridges with cotton bales, and when they capture one o' your railroads they'll git out a time table and run it nearer the schedule than you fellows can do it in time of peace."

"I reckon one southerner can whip five Yankees," would be the reply. "S'posin' they do. S'posin' they kill three out o' the five Yankees and make prisoners of the other two. The two they don't kill will invent some way o' gittin' out o' jail and go on fightin'. They will be joined by three more Yankees and be as strong as ever. That'll go right on." The Federal forces slowly made their way down the river and in time the great event of the war in that region, the siege of Vicksburg, began. Zeke Arnsby participated in the fighting that took place in the rear of that city, was captured and confined with a lot of Confederate prisoners of war in a manufactory of undertakers' supplies. When the news reached his father the neighbors said:

"Mr. Arnsby, reckon yer son 'll have a chance to show that Yankee ingenuity yo' been braggin' about now. Reckon he'll find a way fo' gettin' out."

"I guess Zeke 'll git out if any one can." "How's he goin' to do it? That factory is on a point o' land stickin' out into the river. There's a high wall on one side and water on the other. The Yanks ain't such fools as to give their prisoners boats, are they?" "Well, we'll see what Yankee ingenuity 'll do. There's several hundred southerners in that building, and if one northerner invents a way to git out we'll give up the point about the superiority o' yo' people."

One morning one of Mr. Arnsby's neighbors stood on the bank looking up the river, shading his eyes with his hands. Another person saw him, and, having nothing to do, walked slowly out to see what the first was looking at. Another and another joined the party, and finally Arnsby himself appeared.

"Some'n quar?" asked one of the party. "Powerful quar. I'd reckon it was driftwood, only fo' some'n shinin' on it. That—did yo' see the flash?"

Every one saw it and wondered. The driftwood or whatever it was came rapidly nearer, for the current of the Mississippi is by no means slow, and as the thing approached many were the comments made upon it. Some said it was a log that had been squared, some that it was an oblong box, while others noticed that it was smaller at each end than in the middle. As it rolled something, either glass or metal, occasionally caught the rays of the sun and sent out a flash.

"By gum, it's a coffin!" exclaimed one of the watchers. "A coffin?" exclaimed the others. "What can a coffin be doin' sailin' down the river?"

"It is a coffin, sho'." While these remarks were being made the coffin—for such it was—was approaching the bank on which the party was standing.

"There must be a co'pse in it," remarked one, "or it would roll over." "That thing that reflects the light is the plate." The coffin floated by, and as it did so the upper part of the lid was lifted off by the said corpse, and a pale face rose and looked at the party with frightening effect.

"By jing," exclaimed Arnsby, "it's my boy Zeke!" "Reckon," said several others. "Dad," cried the young man, "come out in a boat and git me. I haven't got no cars."

Arnsby ran downstream to where a boat was tied, rowed out to the coffin and towed it ashore. Then Zeke told them that in the undertaker's supply manufactory (his prison) he had discovered a pile of coffins. He had launched himself in one of them before daylight.

"Feller citizens," spoke up one of the party, "we'll neve' conquer sich people as that as long as God Almighty lives." A conference was held, and it was decided that the people of the county be recommended to have nothing to do with the war. They felt assured that a people who would use coffins for boats instead of burying corpses would be found invincible. Enoch Arnsby simply said, "I told you so," and when the Confederacy collapsed became the most influential planter in those parts.

I first my books to learn the way That I may make my whole; My second is a lovely thing And oft will cheer the soul. I'm often by ambition led, My whole has helped some that have wed.

In spring the boys my first display In games that come from March to May; My next when said of books is glad, But on some days may make us sad, My whole's a word grown from a fair And showy things that were sold there.

My first a fruit of luscious kind; Of water the next you always find; My third a medicine or drink; A poison to mankind, I think; In every line my fourth is seen— A useful vowel do I mean; My last includes both you and me, Speak them together, then you'll see, My whole an order of herbs will be. It's long enough to serve for a tree.

A merry party started out one day, My last among them, clad in line array, And all the courtiers in their hunting gear, Ready to shoot my first should they appear. The vivid lightning flashed, the thunder pealed, The rain in torrents came—their doom was sealed. With eager haste each one to shelter fled, The game forgot; they had my whole instead. —Youth's Companion.

The Old Bird. One of the animal curiosities of South America is the "old bird," or guncbird. It breeds in rocky caves, and one of its favorite haunts is the island of Trinidad. It lays its eggs in a nest made of mud, and the young birds are prodigiously fat. The natives melt the fat down in clay pots and produce from it a kind of butter. The caves inhabited by the birds are usually accessible only from the sea, and the hunting of them is sometimes an exciting sport.

A VACATION IN BED.

Twenty-four Hours' Sleep Versus a Week's Holiday.

If you want to obtain complete rest and recuperation equal to a week's vacation in minimum time sleep the clock around twice is the advice of a physician who holds a high place in medical circles in England.

"To spend twenty-four hours in bed," he said to a friend, "instead of rushing away for a few hours' change of scene when you are run down physically and mentally, is worth a week's holiday. The night before, having gone to a theater to take the mind off worries and having supped wisely and well, instructions should be given that the morning calling shall be omitted.

"Then sleep. On waking turn over and sleep again. On waking again ring for some hot milk. Drink it and sleep again and keep on sleeping. Have nothing in the intervals more substantial than soup. Do not read. Keep the eyes shut constantly. Have a warm bath in the evening and sleep again. "When you are tired of sleeping sleep again for the night. Nothing calms the nerves more than resting the eyes."—New York Herald.

Remember the Baker. At the court of assizes in Venice when sentence of death is about to be passed a man clothed in a long black robe enters the court, and advancing to the bench, bows profoundly to the judges, saying, "Remember the baker!" Then he bows again and retires. Here is the explanation of the custom: Three centuries ago a baker was executed at Venice for a crime of which he was not guilty. When his innocence was fully proved the judges who condemned him invested a sum of money, the interest on which serves to keep a lamp perpetually lighted in the palace of the doges, this being called the "lamp of explanation." In addition, their fatal mistake has for 300 years been held up as a warning to their successors on the bench when they are about to inflict the extreme penalty of the law.

"CHICK" FRASER IS ALL IN

Former National Leaguer is Released Unconditionally by New Orleans Club of Southern.

The New Orleans Southern league club today announced the sale of Outfielder Barr to the Cleveland club. Barr will not report to Cleveland until at the end of the season. The New Orleans manager also gave Pitcher "Chick" Fraser, the former National leaguer, his unconditional release.

Dolly Gray's Three-Bagger. Some of the pinch hitters are like Dolly Gray of Washington. The first year Gray was in fast company, Cantillon sent the tall pitcher up as a pinch hitter every time one was needed and Gray religiously fanned, accumulating a batting average of something like .607 in April, May and June. When a scribe asked Cantillon one afternoon why he persistently sent up Gray, Jew indignantly responded: "Great guns, man, you ought to have seen the three-bagger that fellow hit when we were playing Galveston March 22."

Some Odd Names. Vereshchagin, painter of the celebrated picture "The Russian Feast," had a puzzling mononym. His own pronunciation of his name is Ver-shah-gin, second syllable accented. Munkacsy, the Hungarian painter of the well known picture "Christ Before Pilate," pronounces his name Moon-kotch-eh, second syllable accented. Mr. Gladstone, who was prime minister of England, pronounced his name Glad-stun, first syllable accented. Mr. Carnegie pronounces his name Car-nag-y, second syllable accented.

A Queer Little Animal. In Chile there lives underground like the mole a queer little animal with a long name, chlamyphorus, which really means armor bearing. Its fore feet are adapted for digging. The whole upper and hinder parts of the body are covered with a coat of mail made up of a series of square plates. The peculiar tail is protected by small scales, but the under parts of the body and legs are covered with soft hair.

Origin of an Old Rhyme. "Humpty Dumpty" was a bold, bad baron who lived in the days of King John, committing many cruel deeds in his strong stone castle, but at last, was tumbled from power. His history was put into a riddle the meaning of which was an egg. The rhyme is more than 400 years old.

The Gift. Fate gave a child these letters four With which his lot to spell: O-H-E-R, no less, no more. The mystic letters fell.

The boy received them with a frown. "Give me that hoe," he said. "Fate doomed me for a drudging clown!" For H-O-E-R he read.

"Fate's fault!" they cried. Fate smiled serene. "Why blame me for his hoe? With wiser eyes he might have seen And spelled H-E-R-O!" —Youth's Companion.

ONE FLASH OF FORM

Brilliant Achievements Often Followed by Oblivion.

Case of Neal Ball, Who Performed Remarkable Feat of Triple Play Unassisted, is Cited as One Instance.

There is a risk about doing the sensational in baseball.

Though it is the proper aim of every player in the game to do the unusual and remarkable, enough deadly instances could be furnished of notable achievement followed by oblivion to make the diamond workmen strive to keep out of the limelight all the time.

A case is furnished in Neal Ball. Ball was idolized, but he did not last. It is only a couple of years ago since Ball was the principal figure in a remarkable celebration on the Cleveland grounds.

He had performed the remarkable feat of making a triple play unassisted. The town turned out to do him honor. A medal was presented to the shortstop on a day set apart as "Neal Ball day."

In the world's series of 1906 the White Sox won because at timely stages Third Baseman Robe, playing as a substitute for Tannehill, let loose two triples. Chicago hailed Robe as one of the great men of baseball, but a year later found him playing third base on the New Orleans team in the Southern league.

Bill Harris of Boston had the honor of pitching twenty-four innings, the longest contest in the history of baseball, in the memorable game in which Jack Coombs beat Boston in 1908. Bill looked like another phenom to take the place of Dineen, whom he somewhat resembled in appearance and movements. But the twenty-four-inning game was the last important piece of work to the credit of Harris, and he shot back to the minors the next year.

Babe Adams climbed the very summit of baseball fame when he took three games from Detroit in 1909 and won the world's championship for the Pirates. But Babe was far from being a notable performer last season.

Covaleskie was another man who had a great fall. The big Pole, who had been signed by the Phillies in 1907, only pitched a game or two and was sent back to Lancaster to get a little more experience. He came to the Phillies at the end of the year while New York was making its terrific battle for the National league pennant. The large number of games the Phillies had to play the Giants in the closing days of the season put them in a position to decide whether or not the pennant should go to New York. After Corridon and McQuillan had mysteriously failed to show their usual effectiveness against New York, Covaleskie was tried on a chance. He pitched amazing ball and beat the Giants three times in a series, thereby putting them out of the race.

ODDITY IN BASEBALL SHIFTS

Germany Schaefer and Jim Delehanty Traded Jobs as Second Basemen Now Play First.

Crack first basemen are mighty scarce, so scarce in fact that two clubs sacked during the greater part of the season. Peculiarly, the two second basemen thus transferred figured in a deal two years ago, Jim Delehanty being traded by Washington to Detroit for Germany Schaefer and Red Killifer. Now Germany is playing the first cushion for the Nationals, while

Germany Schaefer.

Del took Galner's place for the Tigers. Other men in the big leagues playing first that started elsewhere are George Stovall of the Naps, Frank Chance of the Cubs, Fred Tenney of the Boston Rustlers, and Jake Daubert of the Brooklynns. Chance and Tenney were catchers, Stovall and Daubert pitchers.

Won a Double-Header. Rube Waddell pitched a double-header for Minneapolis at Louisville and won both games.

If there is any good reason why you should visit a store, the store-attendance will tell you why it is.

AROUND THE BASES

Tigers so far show no signs of slowing up in their pace.

Too many managers seem to cause dissatisfaction in Beantown. The fighting spirit of the White Sox is always present this season.

The expected slump of the "Tigers" seems indefinitely postponed. Vic Saler has improved a hundred per cent under Chance's tutelage. Egan shows them that the old man has not gone back so far as they thought.

In the days of the slugging baseball teams five hits make it look like an air tight game.

Millan, the Washington outfielder, is considered Cobb's only rival in hitting this year by some critics.

The best way to become a great ball player seems to lie in avoiding all the advice of "inside ball" experts.

The Highlanders are to get Third Baseman Dolan from the Jersey City club at the end of the Eastern league season.

Tony Smith, who was called in by Brooklyn when Dolly Stark was crippled, and Bert Tooley went wrong, has been released to Toledo.

Jakey Alt's success with Providence was a flash only. "There does not seem to be any hope for the Grays," mourns a Providence writer.

Fred Clarke of the Pirates has decided that kicking on the declensions of umpires does not pay, and has ordered his players to stop it also.

President Murphy admits he made a bad play when he let Luderus slip away. He has one consolation—there are many others in the same boat.

Roy Thomas, the veteran outfielder, is trying hard for a base on balls every time he comes up to bat. He is making the pitchers put them over to him.

Ted Sullivan is making a tour of the east. He has been after John I. Taylor to take the Red Sox to Tioiga, Texas, to train next spring. Ted is a good booster for the Lone Star state.

The combination of Irish and Germans on a ball team seems to be the right one for a winner. The Cubs have the mixture and the Phillies are also made up of the Celtic and Teuton races.

Owner Grayson of Louisville protested, it is said, because St. Paul gave Catcher Spencer his unconditional release without first asking him if he wanted to buy the player. That's a new one.

The National league is staging the banner show this year. The American league has had the call on the close races for several seasons, and it is no more than right that it should be passed around.

Connie Mack is anxious to secure Jack Knight again. The Highlander shortstop started his career with the Philadelphia team, but he was a raw youth then and had not developed into the star that he is now.

Walking For Beauty.

Systematic exercise is an unknown quantity to many, yet it is as necessary to the development of a healthy body as is judicious eating. A brisk tramp taken in the right way will disperse depression and show one the joyousness of existence.

You can walk away from most ill of the flesh—bad digestion, bad circulation, liver troubles, anemia and colds. Moreover, it is the finest thing in the world for the complexion, works many virtues to the beauty doctor.

At the end of an hour's vigorous tramp the skin fairly blooms with an exquisite ruddy glow that no cosmetics will produce. For the average person a daily walk of several miles, taken for the distinct purpose of exercising the muscles, with deep breathing to develop the chest, aerate the lungs and fill the blood with oxygen, is the best possible means of securing desirable results.

Take any form of exercise in the open air, especially the fresh morning air, for this acts as a tonic. Judicious exercise will improve the tissues, strengthen the constitution and add years to one's life.

OSLER RIGHT: YOUTH SUCCEEDS AGE

Gray Hair is First Sign of Age. Harmless Remedy Restores to Natural Color.

Osler isn't the only man who turns down old age. In the business world the "young man" is always the one who picks the plums. It is an age of "new thought," "new talent," etc., and the old man is passed by in the race.

One of the first signs of coming age is the appearance of gray hairs. When you see them, act promptly. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will correct this sign, which so often deceives people into thinking that age is really upon them. It is a well-known fact that Sage and Sulphur will darken the hair. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur combines these old-time remedies with other agents, which remove dandruff and promote the growth of the hair.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize the druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

Don't look old before your time. Get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur today, and see what an improvement it will make in the appearance of your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

SUGAR REACHES A RECORD PRICE

Sugar is now reported to be higher than at any time since the civil war. The steady rise since April, when it was five cents a pound, has been a record breaker. In some instances the retail price has reached eight cents.

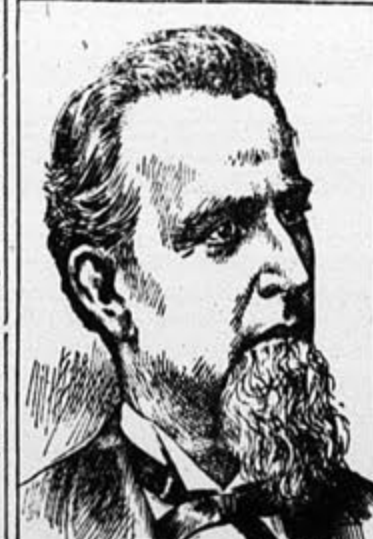

One wholesaler said today, "I predict as soon as the demand lowers there will be a corresponding decrease in price. We are now at the height of the sugar consuming season."

The price has been rising on every day of the past week. Three ten cent rises, one fifteen cent increase was reported yesterday, making a total of 50 cents per hundred pounds.

MARINETTE WANTS TO ENTER M-D GROUP

Marinette, Sept. 12.—The baseball promoters of the twin cities are considering the call of a meeting to take steps toward acquiring a league franchise for next year. No date has been set for such a meeting as yet but it will likely be called this week if there is sentiment enough in the two cities for a league team.

If Marinette and Menominee hopes to have a league team next season ball men say the present time is the time to act. Several of the W. I. league team probably will be for sale and if Marinette and Menominee get together on a plan to have half of a season's games played in each city, it is likely a franchise would be offered to the twin cities from the league mentioned.

It will require from $2,500 to $3,000 to back a team for the W. I. league and insure a successful season, in case the attendance is fair. Baseball men believe if the twin cities can agree on a plan that that sum will be guaranteed for a league team. In case the two cities do not enter the W. I. league as one, a league will in all probability be formed for next year with Marinette, Menominee, Marquette, Negaunee and possibly other cities. In that case Marinette and Menominee would undoubtedly each have separate teams.

singer and harpist at the Grand last evening, and it was only through the delay that was being caused, that they were required to final refuse to appear. The soprano voice possessed by Prince is so out of the ordinary that it pleases.

Eddie Cox, whose feet "just won't keep still," proves it with clever dancing numbers on this week's bill. Gibson and Brown in "The Dutchman and the Show Girl," put on a neat little skit, that has its full complement of laughs and amuses the audience.

LOCAL CONCERN IN REORGANIZATION

The Escanaba Tanning Company is now a part of the Michigan Tanning and Extract Company, the combination of several plants having been effected. Those factories that are taken in the new organization are the Boyne City Tanning Co. of Boyne City; W. W. Rice Leather Co. of Petoskey; Fremont Leather Co. of Fremont; Escanaba Tanning Co. of Wells.

The headquarters of the new concern will be at Petoskey. The officers elected are as follows: President, W. S. Shaw, Boyne City; vice-president, George S. Rice, Petoskey; secretary and treasurer, Morgan Curtis, Petoskey.

F. H. Shaw will continue as manager of the local plant. As all stockholders were almost identically the same in each concern, the combination was effected, to allow of better organization and greater saving in cost of production.

FOWLER HAS FALL; CONTINUES TRIP

FIRST MAN TO ATTEMPT TRANS-CONTINENTAL FLIGHT IN AEROPLANE HAS MISHAP.

MAKES 45 MILES PER HOUR.

Thousands Laud Man Who Promises to Eclipse Harry Atwood's Famous Performance of a Few Weeks Ago—Fowler Kisses Mother at San Francisco Before Leaving.

(By Associated Press.)

Alta, Calif., Sept. 12.—Aviator Fowler who is flying to New York fell here today, but was not injured. He says that he will stick to it and continue on his way. It was later said that Fowler is seriously injured. With the steady trade winds of the Pacific at his back, Robert F. Fowler, the first aviator to attempt a trans-continental flight, sped yesterday up the Sacramento valley and alighted at Auburn, Cal., 126 miles away, at 6:30 o'clock last evening. The landing was made at the foot of the Sierras, the conquest of whose summit may prove the ultimate test of success or failure of the attempt to fly from ocean to ocean. It was after a brief halt at Sacramento for oil and gasoline that the aviator drove his bi-plane high over the rolling foothills and landed without a single untoward accident at Auburn.

Kisses Mother. Sped by his mother's kiss and "God bless you," Fowler rose from the stadium in Golden Gate Park at 1:37 o'clock p. m. Sweeping in a circle over the surf of the Pacific, his aircraft swung like a compass needle until his forward planes were notched in the gap in the snow line of the Sierras through which he hopes to pass. Then with the cheer of thousands billowing up to him, he sped over the city and, with a handwave of greeting, he hummed steadily over the trail first won by the argonauts of '49.

Makes 45 Miles an Hour. Over Berkeley, Cannons and Elmira, Fowler sped, flying with the same steadiness that marked his start. The watches that checked the progress showed he was making forty-five miles an hour, a pace from which he never varied. As he sped high over the dome of the state capitol at Sacramento a roar from the thousands massed in the agricultural park directed him to his landing place. After a daring spiral, he settled easily to the ground and asked for the time. Fowler was told it was 3:47 o'clock. He had covered the ninety miles of the first leg of his journey in exactly two hours.

GLADSTONE ROADS IN GOOD CONDITION

The city of Gladstone is doing fine this year when it comes to the street proposition, which goes to show that it probably is a wise idea to elect a mayor that drives an automobile. Mayor Hammel "is there" when it comes to making good roads and if Escanaba will do something now to improve the condition of the bad street through North Escanaba, the road all the way to Gladstone will be in fine condition. All of the Gladstone end will be finished in a few days probably by tomorrow evening and then the going will be good from the St. Paul dock to the upper bay city. The road through North Escanaba is awful bad and steps should be taken at once to put it in shape.

WIFE WANTS TO JOY RIDE; DIVORCE IS THE ANSWER

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 19.—At last the fleet auto is seen in a new light. Having long been considered the special plaything of the rich, it is listed as the bone of contention in a suit for a divorce, the defendant being a man whose income is limited to $75 a month. Mrs. Florence Bahr, 24 years of age, is complainant. Arthur L. Bahr, a bridgetender, employed on Kinzie-Clinton avenue by the Northwestern Railway company, is defendant. The case rests entirely on the trouble which resulted after Bahr had purchased an auto for $700 and began to take his recreation on country roads at night. Mrs. Bahr alleges that the car was purchased with money advanced by her mother, Mrs. Cleanta D. Connors, Chicago. She also says that the loan was made with the distinct understanding that she was to do part of the joy-riding—the debt to be paid off in installments of $10 a month. Now comes the most grievous part

"GREEN GOODS" GAME NOT DEAD YET; MAN ARRESTED IN CHICAGO.

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, Sept. 12.—S. A. Pötter was arrested here today by secret service men for working the old "green goods" game. It is alleged that he and his confederates have collected about $1,500,000 from this vicinity and that Wisconsin was also a large contributor to the fraudulent operations of the gang.

MANY GOVERNORS IN ANNUAL MEET IN ANNUAL MEET

EXECUTIVES OF THIRTY-FIVE STATES ARE EXPECTED AT NEW JERSEY MEETING.

New Laws of Forty-Six Legislatures Will Be Discussed by State Executives—Gov. and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson Entertain Guests.

(By Associated Press.)

Spring Lake, N. J., Sept. 12.—The vanguard of the thirty-five governors who are expected to participate here this week in the third annual conference of state executives reached Spring Lake today. Fifteen executives are already here while others are expected during the night. The convention opened this morning. A special car brought eight governors from the West. Governor John F. Shafroth of Colorado and Mrs. Shafroth were not aboard. Governor McGovern of Wisconsin and the others said they left Chicago Thursday, but were stopping on the way and would arrive today. While the committee was welcoming the Western governors, Governor Judson Harmon of Ohio, accompanied by Mrs. Harmon, drove to the hotel in a hired hack. Governor Harmon soon was the center of a welcoming group.

South Carolina will be represented. Illness will detain Governor T. L. Oddie of that state, as well as Governor Charles S. Deneen of Illinois. Other states whose chairs are expected to be vacant are Arkansas, California and Tennessee. Governor Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey delivered the welcoming address and Governor Joseph M. Carey of Wyoming responded. The first formal address tomorrow will be delivered by Governor Augustus E. Wilson of Kentucky. Organization will follow, and then addresses by Governor Norris of Montana and Governor O'Neal of Alabama.

PORT WASHINGTON MAY ACCEPT TERMS

LAKE SHORE LEAGUE TEAM MAY PLAY HERE—GREEN BAY COMES TOMORROW.

An attempt will be made to bring Port Washington to this city to play the Escanaba team before the close of the season. The Lakeshore league desire a large guarantee, but a satisfactory agreement is expected to be attained before long. Green Bay will arrive here tomorrow prepared to play two games with the local team. "Dutch" Perch, the sensational fielder and premier comedian of the Wisconsin-Illinois league will be seen in action with the visitors. Perch has had more feature catches this year than any other outfielder in that league and is scheduled to put over some thrillers up here. The line-up of the visitors will be the same as was announced a short time ago.

TAKE STUPID CHILD TO A PHYSICIAN

SO RULES MICHIGAN BOARD OF HEALTH IN BULLETIN ISSUED TODAY.

FORCED BACK BY AILMENTS.

Oftentimes Pupils Who Are Delinquent Are Merely Sufferers From Minor Complaints, Which Should Be Attended to, the Board Says—Correction of These is Necessary.

The bulletin of the Michigan Board of Health issued from Lansing today, is unusually timely and contains many suggestions for parents. It is as follows:

"The school year has just begun, and fond parents are carefully selecting new outfits of clothes so that their children may compare favorably in appearance with their neighbor's children.

"But why only see that their stock of clothes is complete? Clothes do not make the man. It is far more important to see that both mind and body are in the best condition possible for development.

"Many a child is forced backward toward the foot of the class because of some minor ailment which might easily be corrected by proper treatment.

"Do not neglect a child because he seems stupid. Then is the time that he needs attention. Any child who is weak or does not learn easily should be taken to a competent physician who can often find defects in the child, the correction of which will make the child strong and robust both mentally and physically.

"Our cities are fast coming to a realization of the fact that many of the children are backward, not because of lack of brains, but because their defective bodies do not supply the brain with enough good, rich blood to develop properly. They hire reputable physicians whose duty it is to examine these children carefully, and, if any defect is found, to take steps to have it removed.

"If a child is unable to see properly it cannot be expected to learn its lessons. The concentration and application necessary to accomplish this is impossible. And yet one-third of the school children are found to suffer from defective vision in various degrees. This is a condition which is easily remedied in the majority of cases by proper treatment.

"One of the common causes of backward children are adenoids and tonsils. These are lymphatic growths in the throat which fill up the upper part of the throat and render breathing through the nose difficult or impossible. Such a child has a characteristic facial expression and is known as a mouth breather. Not only is the face affected, but backwardness in the development of the entire system is also caused. These are readily removed by a slight surgical operation.

"See that the child receives plenty of fresh air and exercise. The body needs plenty of systematic exercise in the open air. A healthy body and a healthy brain go hand in hand and one seldom finds one without the other. See that the child's study and sleeping rooms are well ventilated so that it will not be poisoned by foul air.

"A healthy start in life means health, wealth and happiness in later years. See that the child lacks none of the opportunities for this development.

"If the child is frail or does not learn readily, look for a cause. There are many minor ailments and defects the correction of which may be the turning point in the life of your child. The best is none too good for him. See that no stone is left unturned in bringing the child to a healthy maturity and you will be astonished at the results."

JOHN KLINGER DIES AT 8 O'CLOCK TODAY

John Klinger, for many years a resident of Escanaba, died this morning at his home 423 Georgia street. His demise was brought on by paralysis. For some years past he has been employed as a car repairman with the Northwestern road in the local shops, and it was but recently that he was attacked by the illness. His son, a Franciscan priest is expected here to attend the funeral. Numerous other relatives will be here. The funeral will take place Thursday morning, with a requiem mass at St. Joseph's church. Interment will be made St. Joseph's cemetery. J. R. Andrews is in Menominee today on business.

MICHIGAN MAN ESCAPES INJURY ON AVIATION FIELD

(By Associated Press.)

New York, Sept. 12.—Captain George W. Mackay of the signal corps of the Michigan National Guard escaped serious injury at the aviation field on Long Island yesterday when the monoplane in which he had made several circuits of the field fell on a fence and the machine was wrecked. Captain Mackay was designated by Governor Osborn of Michigan to study aviation, so that he might instruct other members of his corps.

INSPECTION OF BUILDINGS ENDS

FIRE CHIEF FINDS BUT FEW CASES OF NEGLIGENCE IN ESCANABA STRUCTURES.

Urges Cleansing of Chimneys at This Time, to Prevent House Fires, Which Cause Majority of Residence Blazes—Goes to Convention.

Fire Chief Kamrath has almost completed the inspection of buildings about the city and said today that he found most of them in admirable shape. Nevertheless, he urges owners of all buildings, including homes, to see that their chimneys are cleaned at the present time, as there is little likelihood of such being attempted later in the year when cold weather arrives.

Most of the fires in any residence district are caused by defective chimneys and the fire chief admonishes property holders to remedy any deficiency in this respect.

A few cases of flagrant neglect were found by the chief in his round of inspection but a warning to the owners was, in most instances, sufficient.

Ladder and apparatus practice is being kept up by the department at regular periods, and since its establishment as a part of the work last summer has not been discontinued.

The chief will accept the $50 appropriation by the city council to attend the national convention of fire chiefs, that will be held in Milwaukee soon.

WEDDING HELD AT ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH

MISS TILLIE SERVIS BECOMES BRIDE OF WALTER MENARD WITH NUPTIAL MASS.

This morning at St. Joseph's Catholic church Miss Tillie Servis was united in marriage to Walter Menard, with a nuptial mass, in the presence of many friends and relatives. Rev. Father Julius performed the ceremony.

The bride was attended by Miss Eva Sturgeon. Geoffrey Menard, a brother of the groom acted as best man.

The bride was attired in a gown of white lace and carried white roses. The maid of honor was dressed in cream silk and carried pink roses.

Following the wedding ceremony the bridal party went to the Servis home on South Jennie street where a breakfast was served. The couple departed on the 11 o'clock train for Chicago and Milwaukee. They will return to take up their residence in this city.

BOURDEAU PAYS UP AND IS RELEASED

Apparently disliking confinement, Frank Bourdeau, the drayman, who was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail, upon being guilty of stealing wood, from the yard of a local home, paid his fine this morning and was released.

He paid $25 and costs, amounting to $31 to gain his freedom. When the fine was imposed a few days ago, he paid no attention to it and was remanded to jail to serve out the sentence.

Leaves for Chicago. John Reidy, For the Past Few Weeks Catcher, Has Been Released.

A release was given "Jack" Reidy, for some time past catcher on the Escanaba team, last evening. As Cole was out for the game for some time with a broken rib, Reidy was secured. He refused to work Sunday, because he caught the two preceding games. The shift in the line-up and the condition in which Cole was at the time, although he went in to catch, made the release forthcoming.

NEGAUNEE LOOKS LIKE 1911 WINNER

PRESENT LEADERS MOST LOGICAL CHOICE FOR THE MARQUETTE-DELTA HONORS.

PROTESTS MAY BE AN AID

Escanaba Has a Slight Chance to Nose Out Negaunee Before the End of the Season, Although But Few Games Remain to Be Played—Marquette is Hopeful of Better Place.

With the close of the season of the Marquette-Delta league but two weeks away, there is a slight chance of Escanaba grabbing the bunting, although it is likely that Negaunee will again end the season at the top of the percentage column. Marquette has a margin of a few possible points for the league leadership.

Negaunee now has a lead of three full games over Escanaba and three and a half over Marquette, with six games yet to play. Two of these six games are with Escanaba on Negaunee's grounds, three with Ishpeming and one with Marquette, all to be played at Union park. Escanaba has four more games to play, two at home with Marquette and two away from home with Negaunee. Marquette has five more games to play, two at home with Ishpeming, two at Escanaba and one at Negaunee. Ishpeming also has five more games to play, two at Marquette and three with Negaunee.

Negaunee must lose four of its six games in order for either Marquette or Escanaba to have even a fighting chance for the pennant. In case Negaunee should lose four games and Escanaba should win all four it has to play the two teams would be tied at 55. The same situation would prevail in case Marquette should win all five of the games it has to play. Negaunee has the advantage of all its games being on its home grounds, but that team also has more games to play than any other, which is probably a disadvantage for a team in the lead.

The race for second place between Marquette and Escanaba is likely to be decided on Sept. 23-24, when Marquette closes the season here. Escanaba is now half a game ahead of Marquette, but with two games to play with Ishpeming (on paper at least, the weakest team of the league) on the home grounds, while Escanaba must tackle Negaunee at their home grounds Saturday and Sunday.

Escanaba has protested two games it has lost, one to Negaunee and one to Marquette, and in case the protests are allowed, they may have a bearing on the pennant situation. The issues involved in these two protests are now formally before the league officers, who have written to officers of the big leagues for an opinion as to the validity of the grounds for the protests.

THEATRICAL MEN HERE FOR A VISIT

MESSRS. BARRETT AND WALKER OF SOO SPEND SHORT TIME IN THIS CITY.

Fred G. Barrett and A. W. Walker of Sault Ste. Marie are in the city today as guests of George Malone, manager of the Grand theater, which they control, together with several other playhouses in this part of the country. Mr. Barrett said today that the local theater will be the scene of some of the best acts in vaudeville this winter. He has signed up many excellent variety numbers.

The two men returned today from Sheboygan, Wis., where yesterday they consummated a deal whereby they take over the principal vaudeville house in that city and add it to the present complete circuit under their control.

"RESUMPTION" IS ON ISLAND ROCKS

A number of the members of the Plum Island life saving station, came to Escanaba today to bring over to the captain of the schooner Resumption, which is on the rocks at the island. Last night while the schooner was endeavoring to make a tack she failed to get away with it and the rocks was the result. The life saving crew went to the assistance of the crew and stood by until this morning. It was found necessary to get aid from this city and the captain was brought over for that purpose.

WETS WIN OUT BY NARROW MARGIN IN MAINE'S FIGHT. TO REPEAL PROHIBITION.

ROBINSON GRANTED NEW TRIAL BY COURT

NORTHLAND MAN ACCUSED OF MURDERING CLEMENT SMITH WILL GET REHEARING.

Session of Marquette Circuit Court Opens in That City Yesterday With Murder Case First on Calendar—Robinson Now in Prison There.

At the opening of circuit court yesterday Judge Flannigan handed down several decisions on cases or motions heard during the last term, two of which were appeals in criminal cases. Samuel Robinson, of Northland, who was convicted of manslaughter in December, 1910, and is now serving a sentence in the Marquette prison, was granted a new trial, and the petition of Gust Ekola, of Negaunee, who is alleged to have induced Oscar Nordlund to run across the main street naked, for a new trial was denied.

Robinson was accused of having killed Clement Smith in a drunken brawl at Robinson's home, near Northland. Robinson admitted having killed Smith but pleaded that he did it in defense of his own life, as Smith was about to attack him. In the charge of the jury, Judge Flannigan laid down the principle that to constitute self-defense an armed man must not shoot an unarmed man until the latter was within striking distance of the former. Judge Flannigan believes that he erred in including that principle in his charge to the jury and on that ground grants the defendant's motion for a new trial.

It is expected that Robinson will be removed from the Marquette prison to the county jail within a few days, where he will remain until his second trial, unless he should be able to secure $1,000 bail. Robinson's attorneys sought to have their client retried at the present term of court, but Prosecuting Attorney Bell stated that it would be impossible for the people to get ready for trial at this term, and the case has been continued until December.

BALDWIN CASE AT MARQUETTE COURT

ON CALENDAR THERE, BUT IMPRESSION IS THAT IT WILL BE SETTLED SOON.

On the calendar of the Marquette circuit court which opened yesterday is the case of F. L. Baldwin, of this city, charged with criminal libel, because of his attack upon the character of Chase S. Osborn, governor of Michigan, while the latter was running for that office. When the case will come up is not yet known, but an impression has arisen that it will be disposed of before it is brought to trial. In his publication, The Escanaba Journal, Mr. Baldwin printed articles that were construed as libel, and for which he was sentenced to pay a fine and serve a jail term in justice court here. He appealed and the case now pending is the resultant action, a change of venue being made.

A meeting of the Boy Scouts will occur this evening at the First M. E. church. Rev. Frederick Spence will address the gathering. It will be the past meeting of the 1911 season.

HAS $10 ONE DAY; HEIR TO THOUSANDS THE NEXT

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 12.—To find one's bank roll increased $100,000 overnight is an agreeable surprise, especially when it totaled something less than $10 the night before. Such is the good fortune awaiting George McKenzie, once an Australian prize fighter, when he stepped off the gangplank of the Graham & Morton freighter, on which he is a deckhand, this morning. The money is being held for McKenzie by an attorney in New South Wales, with whom it was left four years ago by his grandfather.

Could Not Be Found. McKenzie tired of Australia before his grandfather died, and when the executor of the old man tried to locate the missing heir their search was in vain, every clue to his whereabouts ending with the information that he "had just left."

The wandering pugilist drifted into Chicago about three years ago. At that time he was a frequent visitor at the home of E. J. Flynn, 1909 Humboldt boulevard, but, of a roving disposition, he had the habit of leaving without notice and Flynn would receive a wire that he was in New York, San Francisco, or some other city.

Became Deck Hand. McKenzie always worked his way through the world and when, about six months ago, he was offered a place on a Graham & Morton freighter he accepted it. Flynn, his former manager in the prize ring, will again be McKenzie's angel, providing him with money for the long journey to Australia, where he must go to claim the fortune.

GOODLAND TALKS ON COMMISSION

APPLETON COUNCILMAN INTERVIEWED ON NEW FORM DURING VISIT IN ESCANABA.

MEANS SAVING TO ANY CITY.

New Form Not in Operation: There Long Enough to secure all Benefits, He Says—Considerable Sum Saved in Purchases and Labor Cost With Better Services Rendered.

In a visit to Escanaba over the past week end, Councilman John Goodland, Jr., of Appleton, the man who was instrumental in establishing the commission form of a government in that city, discussed the plan of handling municipal affairs, and pronounced himself a thorough optimist regarding it.

The Appleton man is now the only one of his family to attain political distinction in Wisconsin. His father, John Goodland Sr., is over eighty years of age, the oldest circuit judge in the state. His brother, Walter S. Goodland, is editor of the Racine Times and mayor of that city.

In speaking of the working of the commission plan he said here: "Because of the short length of time we have been under this form of government it is difficult to state whether or not it is entirely successful. For the most part we have merely carried out the work which was decided upon by the old council. We have kept up repairs and inaugurated some new systems in different departments, but have undertaken little in the way of permanent work that had not been decided upon before we took office.

"For my part, however," continued the speaker, "I feel certain that this form will be an improvement over the old system. For one thing we can dispatch business much quicker. We hold a regular meeting the first day of each month when we pay off the police, fire and other departments; the second day of each month we pay all other laborers, and the tenth of each month we pay all other bills. The mayor and both councilmen have offices in the city hall and we meet every morning at 9 o'clock. If there is anything for the council to consider we take it up and dispose of it. If not, we adjourn to our several offices and devote the day to city work. It stands to reason that a person devoting his time entirely to city business, if he is the right sort of a man, is better qualified to attend to the city's business than a man who merely gives but a small portion of his time to the city.

All Depends Upon Officers. "But like the old form of government, it will not be a success unless the right men are elected. If you elect 'lemons' you will get a 'lemon' government. It's all in the men you elect. But cities are not apt to elect as inefficient men for this system as they do under the old system, for the salaries paid are higher under the

A jury in Judge O. V. Linden's court this morning returned a verdict allowing Joseph Hess $19.95 of the $22.50 asked in his suit against Magnus Matson.

The suit attracted some attention when it was called for a hearing a few days ago, because both plaintiff and defendant refused to obtain attorneys. This morning Hess appeared with an attorney. Matson conducted his case alone. The suit arose over some work done by Mr. Hess on property owned by Mr. Matson. The $22.50 was the balance due on the job. It was claimed.

Civilizing the Indian.

The following is from "The Soul of the Indian," a book by Dr. Charles Alexander Eastman, himself an Indian: "Long before I ever heard of Christ or saw a white man I had learned from an untutored woman the essence of morality. With the help of dear nature herself she taught me things simply but of mighty import. I knew God. I perceived what goodness is. I saw and loved what is really beautiful. Civilization has not taught me anything better. As a child I understood how to give. I have forgotten that grace since I became civilized. I lived the natural life, whereas I now live the artificial. Any pretty pebble was valuable to me then, every growing thing an object of reverence. Now I worship with the white man before a painted landscape whose value is painted in dollars. Thus the Indian is reconstructed, as the natural rocks are ground to powder and made into artificial blocks which may be built into the walls of modern society."

Bigness of Big Ben.

Big Ben, which marks the hours for parliament at the top of the clock tower at Westminster, is bigger than it appears from below. Looking at the dial of Big Ben from the northern footway of Great George street or from the Thames embankment, it appears as if its diameter might be equal to the space that a man of medium size could cover with outstretched arms. As a matter of fact, however, the diameter of the dial is twenty-three feet. From the ground the minute marks on the dial look like ordinary minute marks and as if they were close together. Really they are a foot apart. The numerals are two feet long. The minute hand, with its counter balance—the heavy piece of metal that projects beyond the center of the dial—is fifteen feet in length. This hand is so massive that during a snowstorm the clock is sometimes retarded by the weight of the flakes that alight on it.—London Mail.

He Took the Cue.

He was a man who gave little and got much. Today, for instance, he had got a clothes brush, a basin of water, a towel and a shine, and he had given nothing at all.

Tr-r-r-ring! went his bedroom bell. The hotel attendant smiled sourly. This was the fourth time he had been summoned, and he did not hurry. "I thought you were never coming," exclaimed the visitor when the attendant appeared at last. "Are you nicknamed 'Slowcoach'?"

"No, sir," answered the attendant. "They call me 'Billiard cue.'"

"Billiard cue!" repeated the visitor, frowning. Then an inspiration dawned. "Ah! Because you're such a stick, I suppose?" he asked.

"Wrong again, sir!" returned the attendant. "It's because I work better with a good tip."—London Answers.

THE TIME TABLE.

A Happening That Led to a Great Family Reform.

TRY A STUFFED PINEAPPLE.

An Easy Treatment for the Ubiquitous Gump of Lingerie or Lace. The Season's Fichus Especially Dainty on Foulard Frocks.

My Dear Elsa—Dick was perfectly furious the other evening when he came home. You know we have left town and are living in a convenient suburb away from the bustle and heat of New York city. I was calmly sitting on the porch reading one of the best sellers when the gentleman indignantly burst in upon my enjoyment with the remark, uttered in no gentle tone, "I missed my train by relying on a time table you handed me last night."

Now it seems that Dick received an important business telegram night before last which required his presence in town early the next morning, and his first thought was to look up the train. Naturally he asked me for a time table, and I cheerfully gave him the old one, which lost him his appointment and incidentally a contract that would have netted him $11, simply by missing a train. It was the old story of the other man getting there first.

In your orderly household such a collection of time tables probably never would have been allowed to accumulate. Ours are, or rather were, kept

A CRIPPLE SET.

In a writing table drawer, not arranged in order, but thrown in any old way, old and new together.

In this instance I had happened not to get a very old time table, but one about middle aged, old enough to be wrong but still young enough to make me trust it, which is plainly where I slipped a cog. Now I have inaugurated a great domestic reform which I would like to pass on to all careless persons given to hoarding time tables.

In this reform movement I was very generously aided by the victim of the lost train, for Dick brought home a complete set of current time tables, and then I emptied the drawer of all the old ones and put the new ones in arranged in order, and afterward issued a general household order on the subject of time tables to the effect that they must be kept—those of each road in a pile by themselves—and, further, that whenever a new time table on any road was brought in the corresponding old one must be tearfully and unhesitatingly thrown away.

This scheme, I am sure, is going to work beautifully, but I fear that every time for the next year I will be reminded of the lost-$11 whenever the fancy seizes me to plunge sartorially. Dick is not close fitted; still he's very human, and such an opportunity to bring a sinner to a second repentance will hardly be thrown away.

A Herculean Katydid. Experiments conducted by a naturalist attached to one of the government's scientific bureaus at Washington advanced an interesting example of the strength of the katydid. He harnessed a katydid to a kind of sled made by folding a piece of ordinary newspaper, and then loaded the sled with various articles. The insect proved able to draw, in addition to the original paper, twelve paper sheets each 8 by 4 1/2 inches, a large screw, two steel pens, a stone weighing two ounces and three and a half lead pencils. When the weight became too heavy to draw otherwise, the katydid got its fore feet over the edge of the table for a better hold, and on the addition of another weight it increased the adhering power of its feet by moistening them in its mouth.—New York Tribune.

Not a Parallel Case.

A writer in the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post tells of a big overgrown, bashful booby of a farmer's boy who was afraid even to speak to a girl, and whose father one day finally lost patience and scolded him roundly for not looking about and finding some girl to marry. "Why," he said, "at your age I had been married three years and had a house and farm of my own!"

"Well, but dad," complained the boy, "that ain't the same thing at all. You only had to marry mother, while I've got to go and hunt up some strange girl and ask her to marry me!"

The SKY PIRATE

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

RIGHT BY FRANK A. MURPHY COMPANY.

PROLOGUE.

The sea pirate has long been a painting figure of romance, the march of progress has led him into well deserved retirement, and he has now been placed, in fiction at least, by a sky pirate, who is even more serious, more daring and more daring than his predecessor, and there will unfold before the extraordinary story of an Alfonso Payton and his ship, the Chameleon; of William Grayman, the richest man in the world; of his beautiful daughter whose ransom $10,000,000 was demanded; of Lieutenant Allen of the revenue service, who wonders by wireless and of the battles above the clouds.

CHAPTER VI.

THE FINISH WITH THE POLICE.

R. GRAYMAN and the commissioner were impatient because their train was a quarter of an hour late in leaving. Mr. Grayman's faith in his ally had been growing, and he looked upon him as an able device and a man of resources. His anxiety was less Payton, feeling that he had told the police, would away. The commissioner had needed in driving from the billion-dollar mind the fear of injury to his later in case Payton suspected her.

"You always make such threats," he said, "but they never execute them, why—? It wouldn't pay. They their chances for a ransom would be then. You may try to trap paper as often as you like, but he never resent it until every possiblity has been played. Payton has hundred cards up his sleeve." "I lived at the station for Tribes Hill, had a long uphill walk to the rendezvous. The commissioner's sharpshooters in all sorts of guises popped up here and there were sent to hiding places in the neighborhood. As they approached the commissioner parted from his boy.

"Leave you here," he said, "and my station over yonder, from as I told you, I will make the. We may have to wait some but I reckon that he'll be along and won't be surprised. He'll occupy his attention as long as possible. Promise him anything everything. You can afford it, now."

The commissioner laughed heartily at his own pleasantry, and the two stepped for their respective stations. Mr. Grayman was alone he began to assume a different aspect. Once more his shrewd doubts returned, and he said to himself that he have become an infernal idiot to be his life and liberty in this man, William Grayman, with his his, to walk into the jaws of a with his eyes open to the danger; a voice sounded over his.

Glancing upward, Mr. Grayman almost started out of his senses being right above him an aero, was swiftly descending. In an minute it swept gracefully to ground, and an elegantly attired man calmly stepped down from deck and, politely removing his advanced with outstretched hand winning smile toward the billion-dollar morning, Mr. Grayman, he a voice of wonderful sweetness, delighted to see you here. I am in Alfonso Payton, with whom a distant conversation the day yesterday. I am happy to ob how rigidly you keep your appointments, although that does not sur me, for, of course, like all the I know your business reputation. But you do me great honor, sir. Grayman, like every person who ever come into contact with Payton instantly the magnetism of presence and manner. Mr. Gray unconsciously took the offered and Payton gave him a cordial of the fingers and smiled with ease of affability, showing his full teeth.

Mr. Grayman lost his self command. Then the thought of the commissioner and the aero at hand flashed across his mind and restored his confidence. He must carry out the plan now. He was in for it. "I did not," he began, but Payton interrupted him, thundering: "Who is your friend under the tree there? What is he waving his handkerchief for?"

Mr. Grayman glanced toward the place where the commissioner stood and saw a flash of white. Ah, the signal at last! All his habitual coolness came back. The aero would be here in a minute! He must simply detain Payton a little longer. "Well, out with it, Mr. Grayman—who is your friend?" sneered the pirate.

Without replying, Grayman turned round on his heel, expecting to see the police aero swiftly approaching. But he saw nothing except the commissioner frantically waving his handkerchief. "They're not coming," said Payton derisively. "The commissioner may have his arms out, but you'll never see him. I fixed them all four this morning, and now I guess I shall have to fix you!"

As he spoke he lifted his hand. Immediately the Chameleon rose and round and swept down toward them in a beautiful curve. As she grazed the ground, two men sprang off, and, before he could have offered a show of resistance, Mr. Grayman was seized, lifted from his feet and carried aboard. Payton followed at his heels, and a moment later they were circling upward.

That which Mr. Grayman's good sense had all the while been telling him would happen had happened. It may or may not appear strange that his first impression was not of fear, but of shame because he had made an ass of himself.

When the unhappy commissioner from his post of observation saw this maneuver, which belied all his predictions and promises to Mr. Grayman, he nearly went crazy. It was utterly beyond his comprehension why the aero did not move. Then he cursed the marksmen, who also had done nothing.

"Shoot, curse you, shoot! Pepper that aero!" he now yelled. "Come out of cover and shoot!"

The men came running from various directions and began to fire wildly. If they had been specially trained to shoot birds on the wing with rifle bullets they might have stood a chance of hitting the Chameleon. Payton laughed loudly at them, and, to show his contempt, circled around without trying to get away.

"Take your time, boys!" he shouted. "You'll improve with practice. Meanwhile I'll show you how."

As he spoke a thin blue flame leaped from the Chameleon and one of the men dropped in his tracks. Another flash with the same result. The sharpshooters ran for cover. Then the aero turned and swooped down toward the commissioner. Suddenly pausing a few yards above his head, Payton leaned over the side and said: "My best respects to you, Mr. Commissioner. When you just another trip for Alfonso Payton just fetch the rest of your metropolitan police to see the fun. Goodbye!"

The enraged commissioner drew his pistol and fired point blank at Payton. The bullet whistled close by the latter's head, but he only laughed and shouted back, "A pretty good shot, commissioner?" Then he added more severely, "I could lay you in your tracks, but you are a brave man, though no fox hunter, and I'll let you off this time."

The chief's reply was two more shots, which also missed their mark. Payton laughed again, and the Chameleon, making a sudden turn, soared high aloft and then darted off westward with her billouante prisoner.

Don't Dangle Wire Fences.

They are being seen along the roads in Central America a brown wire about the size of a canary which builds a nest out of all proportion to its apparent needs. It selects a small tree with horizontal branches growing close together. Across two of the branches it lays sticks fastened together with tough fiber until a platform about six feet long by two feet wide has been constructed. On the end of this platform nearest the tree trunk it then builds a huge dome shaped nest a foot or so high with thick sides of interwoven thorns. A covered passage-way is then made from the nest to the end of the platform in as crooked a manner as possible. Across the outer end as well as at short intervals along the inside of this tunnel are placed cunning little fences of thorns with just space enough for the owners to pass through. On going out this opening is closed by the owner by placing thorns across the gateway, and thus the safety of the eggs or young is assured.

Protecting the Volunteers.

In the course of an after dinner speech not long ago Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research recalled a once familiar story of the younger Pitt, which may be retelling for the present generation. The solemn and stiff necked statesman had his moments of ironic humor.

When England was threatened by a French invasion in 1802 there were a great many volunteer soldiers enlisted. But the articles of enlistment guarded these volunteers very carefully against too much fighting.

They were not to take the field "except in case of actual invasion." They were not to be put on war railroads "except in case of actual invasion." They were not to be drilled hard "except in case of actual invasion."

When Pitt read these articles he frowned. Finally, on toward the end of the document, he came to a provision that under no circumstances were the volunteers to leave the country. Here he lost patience, and, seizing a pen, he added to that provision the clause:

"Except in case of actual invasion—Youth's Companion"

MANY GOVERNORS WILL ATTEND THE CONFERENCE AT SPRING LAKE, N. J.

Program of Subjects to Be Discussed During the Five Days.

BY JAMES A. EDGERTON.

THE house of governors, or governors' conference, as it is officially called, has now been in existence two years. It is no longer an experiment. Of concrete results there are perhaps not many to show, at least on the surface, but the one big concrete result is the body itself. That is permanent. In it are bound up all sorts of possibilities. It has already given direction and expression to what the Outlook calls "the new statism," as the complement and accompaniment of the "new nationalism."

This year the governors' conference meets at Spring Lake, N. J. The sessions extend from Sept. 12 to 18, inclusive. Spring Lake is the home of former Governor John Franklin Fort of New Jersey and is near the summer home of Governor Woodrow Wilson at Sea Girt. Governor Wilson, by the way, is chairman of the executive committee and therefore the presiding officer of the conference.

The meeting of last year at Frankfort and Louisville, Ky., was not as productive as it otherwise would have been for the reason that a large number of governors were going out of office and others were coming in. This year the new men are firmly in the saddle and have a prospect of continuing for a year or two at least. They are not distracted by the prospect of private life immediately before them and by the presence of their soon to be successors sitting in the same body with themselves. Thus the Spring Lake conference should have more tranquillity and peace of mind than did the one in Kentucky. Possibly also the form of hospitality may not offer so many distractions.

Scope of the Conference.

Some idea of the scope of the conference may be had from the official program, which is as follows:

Tuesday.—Address of welcome by Governor Woodrow Wilson, New Jersey; response to address of welcome by Governor Joseph M. Carey, Wyoming; appointment of temporary chairman; address on "Possibilities of the Governors' Conference," by Governor Augustus E. Wilson, Kentucky; organization; discussion and appointment of committee on organization; "Strengthening the Power of the Executive," address by Governor Edwin L. Norris, Montana; address by Governor Emmet O'Neal, Alabama; discussion.

Wednesday.—"Employers' Liability and Workmen's Compensation," address by Governor Charles B. Deneen, Illinois; address by Governor Eugene N. Fox, Massachusetts; discussion. Evening session—report of committee on organization; discussion; appointment of executive committee for 1912; discussion of plans, details and suggestions; arranging budget for 1912; miscellaneous business.

Thursday.—"The Inheritance Tax and State Comity," address by Governor John A. Dix, New York; address by Governor Edmond F. Noel, Mississippi; discussion; "The Right of the State to Fix Intra-state Traffic Rates," address by Governor Herbert B. Hadley, Missouri; address by Governor Chester H. Aldrich, Nebraska.

Friday.—"State Control of Public Utilities," address by Governor Francis E. McGovern, Wisconsin; address by Governor Beryl F. Carroll, Iowa; discussion. "Subsides of Prison Labor," address by Governor Oswald West, Oregon; address by Governor Chase B. Osborn, Michigan; discussion; adjournment.

Plan for Permanent Body.

One of the most important subjects of discussion will be the permanent organization of the conference. If this follows the plan worked out by the secretary, William George Jordan of New York, it will result in making his office a clearing house of ideas and information relating to the states. In a sense Mr. Jordan's library has already become that, since he is in constant touch with the members of the conference and is gathering and supplying information. What he now proposes is an enlargement of his present activities so that through them, the conference may be in a sense in continuous session. To this end he needs an enlarged office force, in order that he may get out bulletins on the multitude of subjects engaging a governor's attention. For example, Secretary Jordan recently learned that Pennsylvania intended to appoint a commission to investigate a certain subject. He immediately forwarded to Governor Tener the results of similar investigations in other states. He has also been collecting and tabulating all the party platforms, the governors' messages and the session laws. From these he is arranging side by side under various heads what each state is discussing and what it is actually accomplishing. The party platform represents "promise," the governor's message "promotion," and the laws passed "performance." Rather neat, don't you think? Also alliterative. To the mind of a rank outsider like myself this job laid out by Mr. Jordan of tabulating all the party platforms, governors' messages and session laws constitutes a task not for the man, but for a regiment.

The cheerful way in which Jordan outlined the work he has already done along this line and others almost paralyzed me. As a newspaper man I always imagined that I knew how to "cut up a small amount of work; but, believe me, the chore laid out for himself by the secretary of the governors' conference would make any mere newspaper man dizzy. Jordan himself is a sort of newspaper man, or, rather, a magazine man, having been editor of Book Chat, Current Literature, the Ladies' Home Journal, the Saturday Evening Post and other publications. He has also had time to write various books on the way married folks may be happy (he is a bachelor himself), on the development of individuality, on mental training and generally on how to live and be good. From all of the above it may be gleaned that Mr. Jordan is a thinker

What It Would Do.

If the plan is ever fully under way it will prove of inestimable help not only to the legislatures, but to lawyers and judges. A tabulated compendium of the laws of all the states, such as Secretary Jordan contemplates, would furnish a handy reference book of untold value. The bulletins got out by the office would be convenient not only for governors and lawmakers, but for newspapers. The office of the secretary would become a sort of central information bureau for the states in their relations to each other.

Very many of our state laws are now copied from the statutes of other states. Suppose there were some central office that could supply at a moment's notice all the laws passed by other states on a given subject. How much the legislator would be helped in his work! He could then choose the form of statute best fitted to the needs of his own state and make that his model. These are only suggestions of a few of the many benefits that would flow from the plan if it were carried out. The beauty of it is that the machinery is already constructed and put together. All it needs is a little oil—get that, oil and motor power. The governors are now let furnish the motor power. Now let the legislatures come across with the oil and all and that he is not afraid of work. He has been laboring five years or more on this house of governors plan and is just now beholding it take form. If his program is followed the body will soon have a building of its own, with a fine library and a force of men sufficient to gather, tabulate and send out information telling each state just what all the other states are doing. Thus if any governor contemplates prying loose the grafters he will have at his elbow, the methods used by other governors in graft prying and the success or lack of success attending the same.

Mr. Jordan has already got out bulletins on party platforms in the various states and on popular elections of United States senators. He has the material almost ready for bulletins on the messages of the governors, on conservation in the states, on the session laws of the various legislatures, on prison labor, pardons, paroles, extradition and various other subjects. The matter of a uniform divorce law is not scheduled to come up at this session, but Secretary Jordan contemplates collecting information as to the divorce laws of the states and issuing them in bulletin form. Then the subject will be properly before the body and can be discussed intelligently.

Substantial Progress Made.

Secretary Jordan's original plan was to create a permanent chamber, a sort of third house in American legislative affairs, but one relating to state and not to national affairs. This was to be called the house of governors. Like all things human, there have been obstacles in the way of realizing his ideal. The deed has lagged behind the dream. Yet substantial progress has been made. Recently he was gratified by the action of the legislature in progressive Wisconsin. The state has come up to the mark in a practical manner by passing the following law:

The governor of the state of Wisconsin is hereby authorized to attend and represent the state of Wisconsin at any and all conferences of governors and to make such arrangements as he may deem necessary for the state of Wisconsin to bear its share of the expenses of such conferences.

Designating the governor the official representative of the state at the conference is more significant than it at first seems. It may be argued that the very fact of his being governor constitutes him the state's representative. Morally this is true, but officially it is not. So far as the law goes the governors' conference has no more official standing than any other meeting of gentlemen. It is recognized neither in the statutes of the nation nor the states. But if each state would take the action of Wisconsin the conference would at once become an official body.

There is another feature of the Wisconsin act that is gratifying. That is the empowering of the governor to make arrangements for his state's share of the expenses. Just the vulgar subject of money! To carry out its legitimate work the governors' conference should have at least $50,000 per year. That would average only a trifle more than $1,000 to each state, which is a pitifully small sum, considering the importance of the work. Yet, through oversight or for some other reason, little or no money has been appropriated thus far. As a consequence most of the governors have had to pay their own expenses in attending the conferences, and the secretary's office has been hampered for funds. We are a rich people, with a congress appropriating billions and state legislatures spending millions. Yet we have not seen fit to lay aside a few paltry thousands for a body as important as the house of governors.

Extremes of Temperature.

Science reasons that the lowest temperatures at the earth's surface are not found directly at the poles, but at some distance to the south of the north pole and to the north of the south pole. Likewise the greatest degree of heat is not, as might be supposed, to be found at the equator, but prevails at some distance to the north and to the south of that imaginary line. The coldest place on the earth's surface of which there is authentic record is in Siberia. The lowest temperature ever recorded in the open air was 90 degrees below zero F. at Werchajansk, central Siberia, on Jan. 15, 1885. The highest temperature of which there is an authentic record is 124 degrees above zero F. in Algeria, northern Africa; on July 17, 1879. These places of extreme heat and extreme cold give a range of temperature covering the whole inhabited world of 214 degrees, or two degrees more than from zero to the boiling point.

Don't Breathe Lazily.

"If you are consumptive, if you think you are drifting into consumption," said a medical man.

"Of course singing alone will not save you from consumption or cure you. Besides singing you must have plenty of fresh air and good food. And speaking of fresh air, I must say that not one person in a hundred knows how to inhale it. People seldom breathe deeply enough. They seldom properly ventilate their lung cavities which resemble stuffy, insanitary apartments, where all germs thrive undisturbed. Acquire the habit of taking the big, deep breath which is a primary requisite for any kind of singing, bad or good, and the physical joy derived from it will never allow you to relapse into lazy breathing. Further more, the mere effort of singing compels the singer to stand straight and to throw out the chest, a good corrective for the bad physical habits of weak chested people."

Killed by a Shout.

A joyful shout thoughtlessly given by an Italian smuggler on having eluded the customs guards on the Swiss frontier was the cause of his six companions being killed by an avalanche. The party, coming from the Grisons, had, with a thousand precautions, successfully negotiated the Forcola pass on the Swiss-Italian border. Five of the men were loaded with valuable contraband goods, and two acted as guides and scouts. When they were all safely on Italian soil one of the guides named Marcellio gave vent to a joyful yell. In the still air the least sound causes a vibration which may set enormous masses of snow moving. This is what occurred here. A quarter of a million tons of snow detached itself from the mountain side and came thundering down upon the party, who were swept in an instant into an abyss. Marcellio alone was able to extricate himself.

Checkmate.

In these days, when various schemes are being suggested by which the loser of personal property may recover it without offering an extreme reward, it is interesting to note two advertisements which appeared last summer in a German paper. In these advertisements nothing so bold as a suggestion of reward appeared. They seem merely to present two wits fencing, and the reader forgets the matter at stake.

Berlin, Aug. 5.—The gentleman who found a purse, valuable beyond explanation, in the Blumenstraasse, is requested graciously to forward it to the address of the loser, as he is recognized.

Berlin, Aug. 6.—The recognized gentleman who found a purse, valuable beyond explanation, begs that the loser will call at his house at the earliest convenient hour.

The Green Kind.

A naval officer who has seen considerable service in South American waters once brought home two parrots, one of which he gave to the house maid and the other to the cook.

For a long time there ensued animated discussions as to the merits of their respective birds. Finally the housemaid said:

"Your parrot may be a better talker than mine, though I don't believe it. Then, with an air of presenting the final clinching argument in her favor, she added, 'Besides, you'll have to admit that mine has the most beautiful foliage.'—Littell's."

Don't think that pills can't be cured. Thousands of obstinate cases have been cured by Doan's Ointment, 50 cents at any drug store.

NOT A GOOD INVESTMENT.

Would Not Buy For Damages For Child Hurt by Car.

A SMALL girl from the far west who is visiting in Cleveland interrupted the other day the difficult problem of dodging two automobiles and a street car while crossing the street. It was too much for her. The street car fender bowled her over. She was hurled back to the home of her friends, which was close by, where a hastily summoned doctor declared she wasn't hurt in any way. With this assurance the child's mother resumed her journey downtown.

Shortly after the mother's departure the street railway's medical man appeared to see the little girl. He was told that a doctor had already attended her, but he was anxious to see her himself. And just then she appeared in the hall.

"And so you were not hurt?" he said in his friendliest way.

"No," replied the ten-year-old, "I wasn't really hurt. It was mostly the shock. Mamma says I have a nervous temperament."

"I see," said the smiling doctor. "And so you don't think your mamma has any intention of suing the railway company?"

"No," the child gravely replied. "I don't think she has. I heard her say she didn't believe in throwing her children under street cars for an investment."

And the smiling doctor had nothing more to say.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Daily Helps to Health and Happiness

By GEORGE F. BUTLER, A. M., M. D.

Many people could be rendered perfectly happy with the happiness which is lost in the world. We lose happiness because we often despise calm, quiet pleasures, and take interest and delight in nothing but that which excites, or we make the fatal mistake of thinking that happiness lies only in sensational events, instead of in the small, trifling incidents of daily life. There is nothing which we waste more than happiness, and even those who are prudent and economical in other directions are prodigal in this respect. They pinch and stint to save a penny, but are often indifferent about the loss of days of happiness. We frequently fail to appreciate our friends until they die, or we lose them in some other way. We rush through a holiday trip and miss half the beauty of the scenery because we are in a hurry or anxious or troubled by worthless trifles. Nearly every old or middle-aged man who looks back honestly on his life will admit that, however wretched he may be now, opportunities for happiness were given to him which in some way or other he has neglected.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

Not many moons ago Joseph Weldon Bailey of Texas retained his seat in the United States senate by repeating a single speech from one end of the Lone Star state to the other.

Some political opponent had pictured the Texas oratorical giant as attending a dinner of New York society pigmies attired in a full dress suit while the orchestra played "Marching Through Georgia."

Back to the confines of his constituency went the indignant Texan, and let loose a flow of oratory that bore him upon its crest once more to a safe port in the big capitol at Washington.

Here it is in all its fiery intensity:

"When the honest yeomanry of Texas are sitting down to supper these parasites of New York and Washington are just beginning their dinners. While you sit at the table in your shirt sleeves, with your collars opened to let the sun-kissed evening breezes of the gulf cool your manly bosoms, these dudes encase themselves in stiff white shirts, buttoned to the neck which are encircled in stiff linen collars and chokers, the shirt topped with a low-cut vest, and this with a coat cut away in the tail until it makes the man inside it look like a monkey dressed up. That coat, and the pants that go with it, must always be black, but as for me, thank God, I belong to a white man's party in a white man's state."

And now Joseph Weldon announces that he will break the old home ties and enter upon the practice of law in New York. Has he lost his ideals or is the odor of Standard Oil and other combinations so strongly attached to his senatorial toga that he is no longer acceptable to a "white man's party in a white man's state?"

GOT QUICK REPLY.

Oshkosh skippers, who only a few days ago, started a movement for the purpose of securing better shipping facilities along the Fox river valley were successful in "starting something." Telegraphic dispatches yesterday told of a meeting of railway officials with representatives of Oshkosh business interests at which time the railroad men offered to get busy in facilitating the movement of freight to and from Oshkosh, says the Green Bay Gazette.

There certainly should be no lack of facilities for transporting freight between the cities along the Fox river both expeditiously and at a reasonable cost. The means of transportation offered by boats through the Fox river should serve as an incentive to the railroads traversing that territory to give good service and also to keep rates down. The fact that Oshkosh business men got such a quick response to their threat to establish a boat line from their city to Green Bay for the handling of freight indicates knowledge on the part of railway officials that they have something to fear from this means of transportation.

THE BEATTIE INCIDENT.

Generally speaking, one's mental vision of the law is a figure having two arms.

One arm today is thrown about the neck of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., whose moral character a jury of thinking men has judged to be so infectious that nothing less than death will remove the danger of his contaminating others.

The other arm of the law ought to be thrown about the necks of two more whose evil influence is likewise injurious.

It would be shooting paper wads at the statue of justice to take the life of Henry Beattie and allow Paul Beattie and Beulah Binford to flaunt their own badness in the face of a morbidly curious public under the guise of "needing the money" and "teaching a moral lesson."

If this country ever needed the grip of a strong hand in the enforcement of decency to protect the home, it is right now.

Labor day was fittingly observed by everyone working harder than usual to have a good time.

President Taft is to be hauled by mules at Missouri's state fair, but if he wants Missouri's vote he must be on top of the mules, not behind them.

In Topeka, Kan., they spell "Carnival" with a "K." Some one present the mayor with a blue backed spell-book.

There is complaint about inaccurate crop reports, but if they were accurate Wall street would not have much left to gamble about.

"Do you believe in fairies?" asks Maude Adams in Peter Pan. The news we are now getting from the fishing camps compel us to admit that we do.

Honored the Old Men. A unique festival occurred in Paris in 1707 in honor of the old men. The idea was the encouragement of the family circle, and the old man who was a happy grandfather was held up to the younger generations to follow in his footsteps. "A gracious Hebe crowned their white locks with garlands of roses, while the soldiers of France presented arms in their honor."

If there is any good reason why you should visit a store, the store advertisements will tell you what it is.

Secret Baseball Signals. "Perhaps you never realized that there is an exact science in coaching and signaling," says Hugh S. Fullerton, writing on the secret tricks of baseball coaching in the American Magazine; "that the two men out there near first and third bases, who seem to be making fools of themselves or trying to annoy the majestic man in blue serge, are the wigwag men signaling to runners or batters just what the general sitting on the bench wants them to do. Sometimes the general is on the lines himself, looking just as foolish as the wigwag men or more so, but somewhere, hidden in his meaningless or hackneyed phrases or his wild gestures, there is a meaning. He is telling the batter not to hit the next ball or to bunt it or informing him that the next will be a straight fast ball and at the same time informing the base runner that the batter intends to hit and that he must start at top speed when the pitcher starts to wind up."

Salt Water Bathing.

Dr. Copeman of Brighton, England, writing in the Practitioner, London, gives some advice on sea bathing. "The best time to bathe is about two hours after breakfast, the period of greatest vital activity," says Dr. Copeman. "The one time which must be avoided by all is after a full meal. During the process of digestion the vessels of the internal organs are already engorged with blood, and the shock of the cold water is apt to produce a very dangerous condition of congestion, the least of many penalties that may accrue being an acute attack of indigestion. With many kept bathers it is an article of faith to bathe before breakfast. But business men, after months of unremitting toil, those who are below par or who are getting on in years, should avoid taxing their system by bathing at such a time. Even the most robust would be wise to partake of a cup of hot milk before leaving the house."

Salt.

Salt production is about the oldest industry in the world. In Italy, the cradle of the salt industry, it has been manufactured commercially for 2,500 years. Salt is so necessary to existence that in some parts of the world tribes will sell the members of their families in exchange for salt. Salt has been the cause of wars, and so important has it always been considered that in some places the passing of salt is established as a token of friendship, and women throw salt on a visitor as a friendly greeting. In some countries salt is so scarce that it is obtained through the ashes of grasses and a species of palm and other plants. While salt is produced in almost every country in the world, it is stated that nowhere can salt of such purity be obtained at anything like the cost for mining as in Louisiana.—Manufacturers' Record.

A Real Gas Plant.

There are two varieties of gas plant. One is a manufacturing establishment where coal is converted into gas for illuminating and heating purposes. The other variety is a real growing plant called the fraxinella. Few know why the fraxinella is called the "gas plant." This is because at certain times it releases a volatile oil that actually ignites if allowed to come in contact with a lighted match. The fraxinella is also noted for its fragrance and longevity if not disturbed. One plant in a New England garden is doing its best to outlive a third generation, and elsewhere, a clump is still flourishing after no less than thirty-seven years on a grave—one of the most difficult of places for a perennial to keep up a long struggle for existence, let alone a normal life.—New York World.

A Great Advantage to Working Men

J. A. Maple, 125 S. 7th St., Steubenville, O., says: "For years I suffered from weak kidneys and a severe bladder trouble. I learned of Foley Kidney Pills and their wonderful cures so I began taking them and sure enough I had as good results as any I heard about. My backache left me and to one of my business, expression, that alone is a great advantage. My kidney acted free and normal, and that saved me a lot of misery. It is now a pleasure to work where it used to be a misery. Foley Kidney Pills have cured me and have my highest praise." For sale by all druggists.

If a good job is hard to find, that is all the more reason for advertising for it persistently. For what is here to do with the help of advertising is

A Prophecy By CAROL H. PIERCE Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

When the civil war was coming on Enoch Armsby, a Connecticut Yankee, who had taken it into his head to run a plantation on the Mississippi river some twenty miles south of Vicksburg, found himself a northern man with southern interests. Despite the differences between him and his neighbors they didn't drive him out. His son, Zeke, who had lived in the south longer than in the north, enlisted in the Confederate army, and this disposed the southerners more than ever to let the father alone.

Enoch Armsby told his southern friends that there were reasons why the north would prevail. "I guess," he said, "nothin' can stand against the south for fightin', but it isn't fightin' that's goin' to win. The northern people are full of resources. When they come down here you'll find that they will convert a ferryboat into a man-of-war, build bridges with cotton bales, and when they capture one o' your railroads they'll git out a time table and run it nearer the schedule than you fellers can do it in time of peace."

"I reckon one southerner can whip five Yankees," would be the reply. "S'posin' they do. S'posin' they kill three out o' the five Yankees and make prisoners of the other two. The two they don't kill will invent some way o' gettin' out o' jail and go on fightin'." They will be joined by three more Yankees and be as strong as ever. That'll go right on."

The Federal forces slowly made their way down the river and in time the great event of the war in that region, the siege of Vicksburg, began. Zeke Armsby participated in the fighting that took place in the rear of that city, was captured and confined with a lot of Confederate prisoners of war in a manufactory of undertakers' supplies. When the news reached his father the neighbors said:

"Mr. Armsby, reckon yer son 'll have a chance to show that Yankee ingenuity yo' been braggin' about now. Reckon he'll find a way fo' gettin' out."

"I guess Zeke 'll git out if any one can." "How's he goin' to do it? That factory is on a point o' land stickin' out into the river. There's a high wall on one side and water on the other. The Yanks bain't such fools as to give their prisoners boats, are they?" "I guess not," the father admitted.

"Well, we'll see what Yankee ingenuity 'll do. There's several hundred southerners in that building, and if one northerner invents a way to git out we'll give up the point about the superiority of yo' people."

One morning one of Mr. Armsby's neighbors stood on the bank looking up the river, shading his eyes with his hands. Another person saw him, and, having nothing to do, walked slowly out to see what the first was looking at. Another and another joined the party, and finally Armsby himself appeared.

"Some'n quar?" asked one of the party. "Powerful quar. I'd reckon it is driftwood, only fo' some'n shinin' on it. Thar—did yo' see the flash?"

Every one saw it and wondered. The driftwood or whatever it was came rapidly nearer, for the current of the Mississippi is by no means slow, and as the thing approached many were the comments made upon it. Some said it was a log that had been squared, some that it was an oblong box, while others noticed that it was smaller at each end than in the middle. As it rolled something, either glass or metal, occasionally caught the rays of the sun and sent out a flash.

"By gum, it's a coffin!" exclaimed one of the watchers. "A coffin?" exclaimed the others. "What can a coffin be doin' afloat down the river?"

"It is a coffin, sho'." While these remarks were being made the coffin—for such it was—was approaching the bank on which the party was standing.

"There must be a co'pse in it," remarked one, "or it would roll over." "That thing that reflects the light is the plate."

The coffin floated by, and as it did so the upper part of the lid was lifted off by the said corpse, and a pale face rose and looked at the party with frightening effect.

"By jing," exclaimed Armsby, "it's my boy Zeke!" "Reckon," said several others. "Dad," cried the young man, "come out in a boat and git me. I haven't got no cars."

Armsby ran downstream to where a boat was tied, rowed out to the coffin and towed it ashore. Then Zeke told them that in the undertaker's supply manufactory (his prison) he had discovered a pile of coffins. He had launched himself in one of them before daylight.

"Feller citizens," spoke up one of the party, "we'll never conquer sich people as that as long as God Almighty lives." A conference was held, and it was decided that the people of the county be recommended to have nothing to do with the war. They felt assured that a people who would use coffins for boats instead of burying corpses would be found invincible. Kinch Armsby simply said: "I told yo' so," and when the Confederacy collapsed became the most influential planter in those parts.

The Old Bird.

One of the animal curiosities of South America is the "old bird," or scacharo. It breeds in rocky caves, and one of its favorite haunts is the island of Trinidad. It lays its eggs in a nest made of mud, and the young birds are prodigiously fat. The adults melt the fat down in clay pots and produce from it a kind of butter. The caves inhabited by the birds are usually accessible only from the sea, and the hunting of them is sometimes an exciting sport.

A VACATION IN BED.

Twenty-four Hours' Sleep Versus a Week's Holiday.

If you want to obtain complete rest and recuperation equal to a week's vacation in minimum time sleep the clock around twice is the advice of a physician who holds a high place in medical circles in England.

"To spend twenty-four hours in bed," he said to a friend, "instead of rushing away for a few hours' change of scene when you are run down physically and mentally, is worth a week's holiday. The night before, having gone to a theater to take the mind off worries and having supped wisely and well, instructions should be given that the morning calling shall be omitted.

"Then sleep. On waking turn over and sleep again. On waking again ring for some hot milk. Drink it and sleep again and keep on sleeping. Have nothing in the intervals more substantial than soup. Do not read. Keep the eyes shut constantly. Have a warm bath in the evening and sleep again.

"When you are tired of sleeping sleep again for the night. Nothing calms the nerves more than resting the eyes."—New York Herald.

Remember the Baker.

At the court of assizes in Venice when sentence of death is about to be passed a man clothed in a long black robe enters the court and, advancing to the bench, bows profoundly to the judges, saying, "Remember the baker!" Then he bows again and retires. Here is the explanation of the custom: Three centuries ago a baker was executed at Venice for a crime of which he was not guilty. When his innocence was fully proved the judges who condemned him invested a sum of money, the interest on which served to keep a lamp perpetually lighted in the palace of the doges, this being called the "lamp of expiation." In addition, their fatal mistake has for 300 years been held up as a warning to their successors on the bench when they are about to inflict the extreme penalty of the law.

Dolly Gray's Three-Bagger.

Some of the pinch hitters are like Dolly Gray of Washington. The first year Gray was in fast company, Cantillon sent the tall pitcher up as a pinch hitter every time one was needed and Gray religiously fanned, accumulating a batting average of something like .007 in April, May and June. When a scribe asked Cantillon one afternoon why he persistently sent up Gray, Joe indignantly responded: "Great guns, man, you ought to have seen the three-bagger that fellow hit when we were playing Galveston March 22."

Some Odd Names.

Vereshchagin, painter of the celebrated picture "The Russian Feast," had a puzzling surname. His own pronunciation of his name is Ver-shah-gin, second syllable accented. Munkacsy, the Hungarian painter of the well known picture "Christ Before Pilate," pronounces his name Moon-kotchey, second syllable accented. Mr. Gladstone, who was prime minister of England, pronounced his name Glad-stun, first syllable accented. Mr. Carnegie pronounces his name Car-na-gy, second syllable accented.

A Queer Little Animal.

In Chile there lives underground like the mole a queer little animal with a long name, chlamyphorus, which really means armor bearing. Its fore feet are adapted for digging. The whole upper and hinder parts of the body are covered with a coat of mail made up of a series of square plates. The peculiar tail is protected by small scales, but the under parts of the body and legs are covered with soft hair.

Origin of an Old Rhyme.

"Humpty Dumpty" was a bold, bad baron who lived in the days of King John, committing many cruel deeds in his strong stone castle, but at last was tumbled from power. His history was put into a riddle the meaning of which was an egg. The rhyme is more than 400 years old.

The Gift.

Fate gave a chill these letters four With which his lot to spell: O-H-E-R, no less, no more, The mystic letters fell.

The boy received them with a frown. "Give me that hoe," he said, "Fate dooms me for a drudging clown" For H-O-E-R he read.

"Fate's fault," they cried, Fate smiled serene. "Why blame me for his hoe? With wear eyes he might have seen And spelled H-E-R-O!" —Youth's Companion.

ONE FLASH OF FORM

Brilliant Achievements Often Followed by Oblivion.

Case of Neal Ball, Who Performed Remarkable feat of Triple Play Unassisted, is Cited as One Instance.

There is a risk about doing the sensational in baseball. Though it is the proper aim of every player in the game to do the unusual and remarkable, enough deadly instances could be furnished of notable achievement followed by oblivion to make the diamond workmen strive to keep out of the limelight all the time.

A case is furnished in Neal Ball. Ball was idolized, but he did not last. It is only a couple of years ago since Ball was the principal figure in a remarkable celebration on the Cleveland grounds.

He had performed the remarkable feat of making a triple play unassisted. The town turned out to do him honor. A medal was presented to the shortstop on a day set apart as "Neal Ball day."

In the world's series of 1906 the White Sox won because at timely stages Third Baseman Robe, playing as a substitute for Tannehill, let loose two triples. Chicago halted Robe as one of the great men of baseball, but a year later found him playing third base on the New Orleans team in the Southern league.

Bill Harris of Boston had the honor of pitching twenty-four innings, the longest contest in the history of baseball, in the memorable game in which Jack Coombs beat Boston in 1906. Bill looked like another phenom to take the place of Dineen, whom he somewhat resembled in appearance and movements. But the twenty-four-inning game was the last important piece of work to the credit of Harris, and he shot back to the minors the next year.

Babe Adams climbed the very summit of baseball fame when he took three games from Detroit in 1909 and won the world's championship for the Pirates. But Babe was far from being a notable performer last season.

Covaleskie was another man who had a great fall. The big Pole, who had been signed by the Phillies in 1907, only pitched a game or two and was sent back to Lancaster to get a little more experience. He came to the Phillies at the end of the year while New York was making its terrific battle for the National league pennant. The large number of games the Phillies had to play the Giants in the closing days of the season put them in a position to decide whether or not the pennant should go to New York. After Corridon and McQuillan had mysteriously failed to show their usual effectiveness against New York, Covaleskie was tried on a chance. He pitched amazing ball and beat the Giants three times in a series, thereby putting them out of the race.

ODDITY IN BASEBALL SHIFTS

Germany Schaefer and Jim Delehanty Traded Jobs as Second Basemen Now Play First.

Crack first basemen are mighty scarce, so scarce in fact that two clubs played second basemen on the initial sacks during the greater part of the season. Peculiarly, the two second basemen thus transferred figured in a deal two years ago, Jim Delehanty being traded by Washington to Detroit for Germany Schaefer and Red Killifer. Now Germany is playing the first cushion for the Nationals, while

Germany Schaefer.

Del took Gainer's place for the Tigers. Other men in the big leagues playing first that started elsewhere are George Stovall of the Naps, Frank Chance of the Cubs, Fred Tenney of the Boston Rustlers, and Jake Daubert of the Brooklyn. Chance and Tenney were catchers, Stovall and Daubert pitchers.

Won a Double-Header.

Rube Waddell pitched a double-header for Minneapolis at Louisville and won both games.

AROUND THE BASES

Tigers so far show no signs of slowing up in their pace.

Too many managers seem to cause dissatisfaction in Beantown.

The fighting spirit of the White Sox is always present this season.

The expected slump of the "Tygers" seems indefinitely postponed.

Vic Safer has improved a hundred per cent under Chance's tutelage.

Egan shows them that the old man has not gone back so far as they thought.

In the days of the slugging baseball teams five hits make it look like an air flight game.

Milan, the Washington outfielder, is considered Cobb's only rival in hitting this year by some critics.

The best way to become a great ball player seems to lie in avoiding all the advice of "inside ball" experts.

The Highlanders are to get Third Baseman Dolan from the Jersey City club at the end of the Eastern league season.

Tony Smith, who was called in by Brooklyn when Dolly Stark was crippled, and Bert Tooley went wrong, has been released to Toledo.

Jackey Atz's success with Providence was a flash only. "There does not seem to be any hope for the Grays," mourns a Providence writer.

Fred Clarke of the Pirates has decided that kicking on the decisions of umpires does not pay, and has ordered his players to stop it also.

President Murphy admits he made a bad play when he let Luderus slip away. He has one consolation—there are many others in the same boat.

Roy Thomas, the veteran outfielder, is trying hard for a base on balls every time he comes up to bat. He is making the pitchers put them over to him.

Ted Sullivan is making a tour of the east. He has been after John I. Taylor to take the Red Sox to Tlaga, Texas, to train next spring. Ted is a good booster for the Lone Star state.

The combination of Irish and Germans on a ball team seems to be the right one for a winner. The Cubs have the mixture and the Phillies are also made up of the Celtic and Teutou races.

Owner Grayson of Louisville protested, it is said, because St. Paul gave Catcher Spencer his unconditional release without first asking him if he wanted to buy the player. That's a new one.

The National league is staging the banner show this year. The American league has had the call on the close races for several seasons, and it is no more than right that it should be passed around.

Connie Mack is anxious to secure Jack Knick again. The Highlander shortstop started his career with the Philadelphia team, but he was a raw youth then and had not developed into the star that he is now.

Walking For Beauty.

Systematic exercise is an unknown quantity to many, yet it is as necessary to the development of a healthy body as is judicious eating. A brisk tramp taken is the right way will disperse depression and show one the joyousness of existence.

You can walk away from most ill of the flesh—bad digestion, bad circulation, liver troubles, anemia and colds. Moreover, it is the finest thing in the world for the complexion, worth many visits to the beauty doctor.

At the end of an hour's vigorous tramp the skin fairly blooms with an exquisite ruddy glow that no cosmetics will produce. For the average person a daily walk of several miles, taken for the distinct purpose of exercising the muscles, with deep breathing to develop the chest, aerate the lungs and fill the blood with oxygen, is the best possible means of securing desirable results.

Take any form of exercise in the open air, especially the fresh morning air, for this acts as a tonic. Judicious exercise will improve the tissues, strengthen the constitution and add years to one's life.

OSLER RIGHT: YOUTH SUCCEEDS AGE

Gray Hair is First Sign of Age. Harmless Remedy Restores to Natural Color.

Osler isn't the only man who turns down old age. In the business world the "young man" is always the one who picks the plums. It is an age of "new thought," "new talent," etc., and the old man is passed by in the race.

One of the first signs of coming age is the appearance of gray hairs. When you see them, act promptly. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will correct this sign, which so often deceives people into thinking that age is really upon them. It is a well-known fact that Sage and Sulphur will darken the hair. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur combines these old-time remedies with other agents, which remove dandruff and promote the growth of the hair.

The manufacturers of this remedy authorize the druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

Don't look old before your time. Get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur today, and see what an improvement it will make in the appearance of your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

SUGAR REACHES A RECORD PRICE

Sugar is now reported to be higher than at any time since the civil war. The steady rise since April, when it was five cents a pound, has been a record breaker. In some instances the retail price has reached eight cents.

One wholesaler said today, "I predict as soon as the demand lowers there will be a corresponding decrease in price. We are now at the height of the sugar consuming season."

The price has been rising on every day of the past week. Three ten cent rises, one fifteen cent increase was reported yesterday, making a total of 50 cents per hundred pounds.

MARINETTE WANTS TO ENTER M-D GROUP

Marinette, Sept. 19.—The baseball promoters of the twin cities are considering the call of a meeting to take steps toward acquiring a league franchise for next year. No date has been set for such a meeting as yet but it will likely be called this week if there is sentiment enough in the two cities for a league team.

If Marinette and Menominee hopes to have a league team next season ball men say the present time is the time to act. Several of the W. I. league team probably will be for sale and if Marinette and Menominee get together on a plan to have half of a season's games played in each city, it is likely a franchise would be offered to the twin cities from the league mentioned.

It will require from $2,500 to $3,000 to back a team for the W. I. league and insure a successful season, in case the attendance is fair. Baseball men believe if the twin cities can agree on a plan that that sum will be guaranteed for a league team. In case the two cities do not enter the W. I. league as one, a league will in all probability be formed for next year with Marinette, Menominee, Marquette, Negaunee and possibly other cities. In that case Marinette and Menominee would undoubtedly each have separate teams.

THEATRICAL

AT THE GRAND—Five curtain calls were given Prince and Galgano, singer and harpist at the Grand last evening, and it was only through the delay that was being caused, that they were required to finally refuse to appear. The soprano voice possessed by Prince is so out of the ordinary that it pleases. Eddie Cox, whose feet "just won't keep still," proves it with clever dancing numbers on this week's bill. Gibson and Brown in "The Dutchman and the Show Girl," put on a neat little skit, that has its full complement of laughs and amuses the audience.

APPLETON MAN HEARD

The Street Department. "I have charge of the street department and consequently am better posted on that work than on other activities. Instead of the street commissioner system I divided the city into four districts and we put a working foreman over each district. He draws $2.50 every day of the year except Sundays and he is obliged to work with his men and is also held responsible for the work in his district. We pay the street men from $1.10 to $1.75 per day. Under this system we have been getting much better service for less money. Formerly men would work their teams for some private interest until the nags were about whipped. Then they would get a street job for the city and fatten their horses. The street department used to be a great place to 'soldier' in Appleton, but it isn't any more.

Profitable to the City. "I think any city will profit by adopting the new form," concluded Mr. Goodland. "It will take several years to show the benefit to the people, but we can see it in little things every day. We buy street crossing brick now at less than half what it used to cost us. Men who used to have things pretty much their own way so far as soft snaps with the city are concerned, have been ushered out of the city service. The saving in little things even for this first year will be very large."

LOCAL CONCERN IN REORGANIZATION

The Escanaba Tanning Company is now a part of the Michigan Tanning and Extract Company, the combination of several plants having been effected. Those factories that are taken in the new organization are the Boyne City Tanning Co. of Boyne City; W. W. Rice Leather Co., of Potoskey; Fremont Leather Co., of Fremont; Escanaba Tanning Co., of Wells. The headquarters of the new concern will be at Potoskey. The officers elected are as follows: President, W. S. Shaw, Boyne City; vice-president, George S. Rice, Potoskey; secretary and treasurer, Morgan Curtis, Potoskey.

F. H. Shaw will continue as manager of the local plant. As all stockholders were almost identically the same in each concern, the combination was effected, to allow of better organization and greater saving in cost of production.
