

MICHIGAN CONGRESSMEN WILL BE BUSY WITH VERY IMPORTANT LEGISLATION

Washington, Dec. 7.—Michigan congressmen will be engaged on committee on a vast number of important duties during the present session of congress.

Senator William Alden Smith, as chairman of the senate committee on territories, will be in charge of the great amount of legislation required for Alaska.

Senator Townsend, chairman of the committee on coast and insular survey, will find still heavier work for him on the interstate commerce committee which is holding daily hearings on the trust questions, seeking to create a body of laws that will regulate industrial corporations.

Representative Doremus of Detroit member of the interstate and foreign commerce committee, it going to Panama to secure data on which to base rules for the conduct of the canal.

Representative Wedemeyer of Ann Arbor, a member of the territories committee, will be in the thick of the Alaskan work.

Representative J. M. C. Smith of Charlotte, on the labor committee will have to help decide whether or not labor shall dominate the war and navy departments, or whether labor reform may be inaugurated despite the protests of labor.

Representative Hamilton of Niles on the interstate and foreign commerce committee is going to Panama with Representative Doremus.

Sweet Busy With Army. Representative Sweet, Grand Rapids, on the military committee, is busy with army changes and in improvement of the National guard.

Representative Samuel W. Smith on postoffice and post roads, is seeking to set a record by making his own Sixth district the best equipped postal delivery section of the country.

Representative McMorrin of Port Huron, banking and currency committee, will find his hands full when the report of the monetary commission comes up for legislative enactment.

Fordney on Sugar Probe. Representative Fordney, Saginaw, on the ways and means committee, will spend considerable time under the Democratic tariff steam roller, but as a member of the special committee on investigation of the sugar trust, he is likely to be very busy. Talk of free sugar is uppermost now and the Saginaw Republican is to be heard from soon.

Representative McLaughlin is second ranking Republican on the committees on agriculture and busied with Secretary Wilson's numerous plans for farm improvement.

Representative Dodds, Mt. Pleasant on the judiciary committee, will be especially busy during so varied a session, serving as counsel to all committees on the constitutionality of bills before them.

U. S. HAS BIG SECRET FUND

CONGRESSMAN HAMLIN OF MISSOURI IN A SPEECH WANTS TO KNOW HOW THIS CASH IS SPENT.

ASKS WHERE THIS MONEY GOES.

Asserts That in Six Years, Department Officials Have Expended Secretly $732,581, Averaging $122,000 a year—Points Out That There is Mystery About Secret Fund.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Criticism of the president and secretary of state for their interpretation of the statute governing the secret fund for the state department was made by Representative Hamlin, of Missouri, in a speech in the house today. Mr. Hamlin is chairman of the committee on state department expenditures, which has been making an investigation of this matter.

In six years, said Mr. Hamlin, department officials have expended secretly $732,581, averaging $122,000 a year, when the secret fund appropriated for such a purpose was only $90,000 a year. He called upon the house to amend the statute to prevent the fund becoming "the very haven of official piracy."

"I have found enough out of this secret fund," declared Mr. Hamlin, "to make me anxious to know how many thousand dollars have been expended each year on portraits, pleasure trips, Continued on page six.)"

INSANE MAN IS DEAD AT NEWBERRY

Judge Yelland this morning received a telegram from E. H. Campbell, superintendent of the hospital for the insane at Newberry, stating that Cony Marcell, who was taken to the institution from Escanaba a short time ago, died yesterday. The telegram inquires as to the man's relations here and intimated that should no one appear to claim the body, that it would be sent to Ann Arbor.

MESSANGER BOYS IN NEW UNIFORMS

The messengers for the Western Union Telegraph company have blossomed out in new uniforms in the last two days and present a nifty appearance as they "run" about delivering and calling for messages.

The boys have to pay for their own suits, which are really not sold to them by the company at all, but only leased. Messenger boys are charged 40 cents a week for their uniforms and for this sum the company will keep the suits pressed and in repair and will furnish a new suit as soon as the one of the messenger has shown signs of wear.

Therefore it costs the messengers $20.80 each year to always be dressed up in a nice clean, freshly pressed suit. This uniform is dark blue trimmed with red.

The members of the Catholic Women's club were entertained last night at the home of Mrs. John Trotter, South Georgia street.

ORDER YOUR GAS RANGE NOW.

For several years the people of this city have cried for gas, begged for gas and later voted for gas. NOW WE HAVE GAS. DID YOU WANT IT? DO YOU WANT IT? The gas plant is now a reality and the gas is of good quality and fairly reasonable. There are stoves of all sizes and all prices on exhibition for you to select from. The city is ready and waiting to make the proper connections for you so that you can do your cooking with gas. Some say that it is not as cheap as wood. Others say that there is a very little difference, but the fact remains that if gas costs 25 per cent more than wood or coal it would be well worth it for the convenience. Every hard working housewife will tell you that a half an hour extra sleep in the morning is a great help on the days work. This is possible with gas, but is impossible with any other kind of fuel. The Board of Public Works have given us a good gas plant. Let us get our order in soon for a gas range on even a small gas stove and show them that we really wanted gas to cook with. YOU CAN BUY ANY MAKE OF RANGE AND GET FREE CONNECTION.

LADY HIBERNIANS ELECT OFFICERS

MEETING WAS HELD AT LODGE ROOMS IN ST. PATRICK'S HALL LAST NIGHT—LOGGERS IN FINE CONDITION.

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Ancient Order of Hibernians met at St. Patrick's hall last night and elected officers for the following year. The past year has been a prosperous one for the order and many new members have been added to the list. It is planned to give something in a social way after the holidays, but complete plans have not been made yet. The officers elected last night are as follows: Mrs. Catherine Harvey president; Mrs. Anna Gallagher, vice president; Miss Bridget Martin, recording secretary; Mrs. Kate Dumas, financial secretary; Mrs. Nellie Snow, mistress at arms; Mrs. Fannie McCauley, sentinel; Dr. M. P. Fenelon, physician; Rev. Father Barth, Chaplain.

MISSION CIRCLE TO HOLD MEETING

The members of the Mission circle of the First Presbyterian church, and their friends who have assisted them during the past year, will meet at the home of Mrs. Ed. Erickson, 201 South Harrison avenue next Tuesday afternoon, December 12 at 2:30 o'clock. Each of the women who attend will bring a small gift, not exceeding ten cents in value, and these will be all collected into a barrel, mixed up and re-distributed so that every woman attending will have the pleasure of both giving and receiving a gift. The Christmas barrel will be in charge of Mrs. G. A. Wescott and in addition to this feature of the entertainment, there will be a vocal solo by Miss Mildred Hewes; a talk on "What Christmas Might Be," by Mrs. Ed. Voght; a poem reading by Miss Ephraim and some instrumental music by Mrs. W. A. Hewes.

Associated Press SENSATION IN LORIMER CASE.

Discovery is Made That There Was Plot to Blackmail Lorimer.

Washington, Dec. 7.—Charles Gloss caused a mild sensation today when he testified that Frank Seema, a friend of Charles White, told him that he and White were preparing a "story to blackmail Lorimer for $150,000 or at least $75,000." White eventually sold the story to the Chicago Tribune.

FARMERS ON PACKERS' JURY. More Than Half the Men in the Box in Packers' Trial are Farmers.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—When court convened this morning in the trial of the packers charged with violation of the Sherman act, it was found that six of the 11 jurors that had been drawn, were farmers. It is believed that the peremptory challenges on the part of the defense would remove as many farmers as possible from the completed jury.

TO RUN TRAINS BY WIRELESS.

Pennsylvania Road Will Install Powerful Plant For Dispatching.

Philadelphia, Dec. 7.—The Pennsylvania Railroad today was granted a building permit to erect a powerful wireless telegraph plant a few hundred feet west of Broad street station. Officials of the road admit the purpose is to experiment with the dispatching of trains by that method. The company has maintained wireless stations near Altoona, where successful work has been done over the heights of the Allegheny Mountains.

DYNAMITE INVESTIGATION.

McNamara Brothers Say They Will Refuse to Give Out Information.

Los Angeles, Dec. 7.—The federal grand jury here is taking up evidence on the giant dynamiting conspiracy which existed through the United States and through which, millions of dollars of damage was done to property. Ortle McNamigale, confessed dynamiter, was the first witness examined today. John J. McNamara told his jailer that he would not give the grand jury any information of any kind. It is understood that James B. McNamara will also refuse to testify.

MISS JEWEL BOOTH DIES IN GEORGIA

ACCORDING TO ADVICES, DAUGHTER OF DR. AND MRS. C. E. BOOTH, FORMERLY OF THIS CITY, DIES IN SOUTH.

According to a telegram received by Dr. A. P. Snyder this afternoon, Miss Jewel Booth, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Booth formerly residents of this city, died Wednesday at Jansenville, Georgia, where she was attending a seminary. Her mother who became a widow several years ago is postmistress at Panama City, Florida. The Booths lived in Escanaba about six years ago, and had a large circle of friends here. The telegram gave no particulars concerning the death of Miss Booth. She was about 17 years of age.

LOCAL PYTHIANS ELECT OFFICERS

The Escanaba lodge of the Knights of Pythias held a meeting last night at which the following officers were elected to serve during the coming year.

V. C. O. O. Rollins; Prelate, Chas. Folio; Master of Work, Joseph Compher; M. of F. & K. of R. & S., Wm. Kennedy; Master of Ex. J. J. Sourwine; Master at Arms, S. R. Wickman; Inner Guard, Oscar Gidlund; Trustee 3 year, Michael Green.

The newly elected officers are to be installed at an open meeting to be held at the Pythian hall on the evening of December 27.

SCORES CITY COUNCIL FOR NOT RESTRICTING THE NUMBER OF SALOONS

The Mining Journal today has the following to say regarding the recent action of the city fathers in not curtailing the number of saloon in Escanaba:

"A majority of the Escanaba common council Tuesday night showed that they are opposed to any improvement in the conditions surrounding the liquor traffic in that city by defeating an ordinance proposing the reduction of the number of saloons to sixty-five after April 1 next year.

"Sixty-five saloons would be an unusually liberal provision of drinking places for a city the size of Escanaba, and it certainly reflects little credit on the men who compose the majority of the Escanaba council that they should refuse to lend their approval to the small measure of reform that would be attained in the reduction proposed by the defeated ordinance. There are many undesirable saloons in Escanaba, and the proposed ordinance would have been an instrument that would have made possible the wiping out of a number of these, while it would not have meant any interference with the men in the traffic who could by any manner of means be said to be deserving of consideration. The failure of a restriction ordinance that made such modest demands is a sad blot on the record of the Escanaba council, and indicates clearly that a majority of that body is under the domination of the saloon and liquor interests.

Has Admired This City.

"The Mining Journal has frequently expressed its admiration for the civic spirit actuating the people of Escanaba, and for the excellent things they have been able to accomplish in advancing the commercial importance of their town, and it is a matter of regret to have to note that it is, to all appearances, so thoroughly "saloon governed" a city that an ordinance proposing a reduction even to sixty-five saloons could have no standing with its council.

The Escanaba saloon men are overplaying their hands. They will continue to resist even the modest demands of the people who believe conditions there are now too lax until they develop a public sentiment that will demand that they be vigorously repressed. Escanaba will not forever be content to remain one of the few "saloon governed" towns left in the upper peninsula.

PATROL WAGON IS NEEDED BY POLICE

WELL KNOWN CITIZENS OF CITY THINK THAT POLICE SHOULD HAVE VEHICLE FOR EMERGENCY CALLS.

The city of Escanaba is in dire need of a patrol wagon for its police department. In many other cities of far less population than this city, there exists at least one police vehicle that can be used for "hurry up calls into the country. Street cars may be late very often and an officer who is in haste to reach a certain part of the city, may have to wait 15 or 20 minutes for a car. This waste of time may mean the escape of a person that the police desire to arrest.

Various well known citizens of the city have frequently commented on the absence of a police vehicle here. "It's a great shame that a city of over 14,000 inhabitants cannot manage to keep a patrol wagon," said one prominent resident. "Why we are the laughing stock of other smaller cities in the state, that have patrol wagons and even police automobiles. It would be a great benefit to our police department to have a wagon or auto to be used for emergency calls that come from the outskirts of the town. At the present time it takes an officer nearly an hour to get to the outlying districts. I think the city council should take immediate action on this question of supplying the local police with some sort of a vehicle for emergency calls."

Various police officers said today that they thought there was urgent need for a patrol wagon, and that the sooner the department received it the better it would be for the police.

E. C. NORTON IS SLIGHTLY BETTER

The condition of E. C. Norton, who is reported to be very ill at his home, is somewhat improved today. Mr. Norton was in a very critical condition last night and was attended by several local doctors who met in consultation on the case. There is no foundation to the rumor that a specialist has been brought in from Chicago.

NEW CLUB HAS BEEN ORGANIZED

Last evening a new club, to be known as the Jewel club was organized at the home of Mrs. LeClair at 1406 Ludington street and the following officers were elected: President Mrs. Chas. SKATERS DELIGHTED

MANY PEOPLE ARE DELIGHTED WITH PROSPECT OF HAVING AN OPPORTUNITY TO SKATE ON THE BAY.

MANY SUGGESTIONS ARE MADE.

Much Interest is Aroused Among Local Lovers of Outdoor Sports—Large Circle Could Be Cleared on the Bay With Snow Plow and Excellent Skating Condition Thus Secured.

The article which appeared in the "Mirror" last night with reference to the maintenance of a skating place on the south shore during the winter months, has led to considerable discussion and a number of different suggestions have been handed in at the office of The Mirror today. There seem to be a great many people in the city who enjoy out of door sports in the winter and there is little doubt that if the city council or park board or somebody in authority, would take it upon himself to establish a skating place on the south shore, it would prove to be immensely popular with a great many people in the city.

Practically all the suggestions received, include the use of the bath house for the convenience of those who wish to skate and desire an opportunity to change their skates in a comfortable place and to check shoes and extra wraps. So far as keeping a place clean on the ice, for use of skaters, there are several different plans that are all practical. The snow plow could be used in clearing a sort of circular path at least a half mile round and several yards wide that would afford a splendid chance for people to skate around and around over a long stretch of ice and the greatest good could be achieved with the least effort. When fresh snow comes or the wind drifts old snow across the course, it could easily and quickly be cleared away again with the snow plow. A rectangle, within the circle could also be cleared and used for playing hockey, a sport that belongs to this north country and one that would quickly spring into popularity here and add much to the winter pleasures of the people.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

PLENTY OF BEER BUT NO TOBACCO.

By A. W. MACY.

Bear and tobacco are supposed by some people to be on about the same footing, but a certain company in London 200 years ago did not seem to think so. It was the business of this company to look after the welfare of the emigrants who had gone out from the mother country to seek homes in the New World. In 1629 it sent over the good ship Talbot, loaded with provisions, clothing, etc., to the Massachusetts bay colony by the same ship the company sent a long list of instructions in regard to their conduct, telling them what they should and should not do. One of the things they were forbidden to do was to cultivate and use tobacco, "unless it be some small quantity for mere necessity, and for physic for the preservation of their health, and that the same be taken privately by aient men and none other."

ATTACK OFFICIALS WITH STEEL BARS

MICHIGAN MINE OFFICERS ARE VICTIMS OF MURDEROUS ASSAULT—SUPT BRADY CONFINED TO HIS BED.

Samuel Brady, superintendent of the Michigan mine at Rock, and Henry R. Stubensky, cashier of the mine, narrowly escaped death through a murderous assault made upon them at the mine office last Saturday afternoon. Mr. Brady is confined to his bed under the care of Dr. Cornell of Victoria, and Mr. Stubensky, although able to be around, bears a badly bruised and blackened face, besides many severely painful injuries inflicted upon his body.

ugly looking bar of steel. The fellow's face bespoke the passion that impelled him and as he neared the office he was heard to be uttering violent oaths and threats to kill. The door of the office was locked at once and Mr. Brady hurriedly telephoned for an officer.

Two panels of the door were battered in and the assailant entered the room. The fellow at once struck out for Mr. Brady's head, and it was only by an alert movement which deflected the blow from the skull but did not prevent it from crashing down across the side and back, felling Mr. Brady to the floor, unconscious, that the superintendent saved himself, from probable death. Mr. Stubensky grappled with the man and fought desperately for the possession of the deadly weapon. It was while the two were thus engaged in a life struggle, in which endurance alone threatened to decide the fate of either that officers arrived and, after overpowering the would-be murderer took the fellow in custody. Mr. Stubensky is a powerful man and it is largely due to this fact that his life and that of Mr. Brady were saved.

Attractive Hats

THE two hats pictured here are of that useful variety known as semi-dress or tailored hats and are designed for general wear. They are of substantial materials well put together. They are quite elaborate enough to harmonize with a dressy costume and not too much trimmed to be worn with the plainest of tailored gowns. Where women do not have occasion to go out a great deal, such hats are the best choice. ("Going out" in this connection signifies filling social engagements.)

It goes without saying, almost, that every woman should walk in the open air for a time, every day of her life. Most of them do, going about the business of life—marketing, shopping or getting out to other lines of endeavor. Very plain hats will answer for wear in the morning, but every woman needs a tailored hat for church—and other occasions demanding the proper attention to her personal appearance. Women going to and from business choose the plainer types of tailored millinery, or rather those made of the most durable millinery materials, such as beavers, felts and cloth covered shapes, with trimming of silk velvet or fancy feathers.

Fig. 1 is a shape which may be had in felt or velvet, with a fancy braid crown. Velvet loops and chenille rosettes and tassels with a narrow crushed band of velvet makes up its trimming. The color combinations possible in this model are very fine. The bonnet-like shape adapts the hat to the faces of older as well as young women.

The moderately large hat of felt, shown in Fig. 2 is faced with velvet and has a velvet collar about the crown. A large handsome pompon of short ostrich tips forms all the trimming it needs. This hat may be made in any good color or combination of colors. It protects the head and eyes and is very generally becoming—a hat to be worn with almost any costume.

We should beware of the "bare-headed" fad that possesses some communities, as it is very bad for the hair. Just now more caps for morning and evening wear are made than for many years. Nevertheless girls and women ride about the city and country roads with the hair unprotected and blowing about to become loaded with filthy dust. The hair is naturally oily and dirt sticks to it. Too frequent washing makes it brittle and injures its texture and color, yet there is no other way of keeping it clean except to protect it from the dust laden air. In the country one may wear sunbonnets; those cut gracefully are as pretty as any head covering ever made. In the city there are well fitting soft street hats that protect the hair and eyes. Mothers should insist on their daughters wearing hats, or caps, to and from school, as a matter of cleanliness. If this precaution is taken, the hair may be kept clean without literally wearing it out with washing. Once a month will be often enough for the shampoo. JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

While Turkey's navy is very much smaller than that of her antagonist, Italy, the gunners are well trained and capable of being "awkward hands in a row," to quote the late John Hay, and by the word "awkward" he meant dangerous. MISTAKEN IDEA IN SUGAR PRICES

ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORT SHOW DECREASE IN PRICE SUGAR—MANY THINK IT FERS TO BEET SUGAR.

The Associated Press reports in daily papers concerning the reduction of sugar from time to time have caused much misunderstanding among grocers in Michigan and several Escanaba have been unable to understand why their wholesale houses for sugar were not reduced according to the reduction noted in the paper press reports.

The Associated Press reports reduction of ten cents per hundred pounds but it refers to cane sugar and not beet sugar as has been generally supposed here. The reductions were taken to mean beet sugar several local grocers and naturally expected their bills to be reduced at the wholesale houses. Yet this failed to occur they wanted to know why and sighted the Associated Press reports.

Prices on beet sugar are all from 40 to 50 cents under the sugar mark and it is well that retailers all know this. It is possible that many citizens have also misled by those reports every day or so because everybody looking for a reduction in the price of sugar. The grocer can not reduce his price until the wholesalers reduce the general reduction.

DON'T PULL OUT THE GREY HAIRS

A Few Applications of a Simple Remedy Will Bring Back the Natural Color.

"Pull out one gray hair and a dozen will take its place" is an old saying, which is, to a great extent, true, if not steps are taken to stop the cause. When gray hairs appear it is a sign that Nature needs assistance. It is Nature's call for help. Gray hair, dull, lifeless hair, or hair that is falling out, is not necessarily a sign of advancing age, for there are thousands of elderly people with perfect heads of hair without a single streak of gray.

When gray hairs come, or when the hair seems to be lifeless or dead, some good, reliable hair-restoring treatment should be resorted to at once. Specialists say that one of the best preparations to use is the old-fashioned "sage tea" which our grandparents used. The best preparation of this kind is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation of domestic sage and sulphur, scientifically compounded with later discovered hair tonics and stimulants, the whole mixture being carefully balanced and tested by experts.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is clean and wholesome and perfectly harmless. It refreshes dry, parched hair, removes dandruff and gradually restores faded or gray hair to its natural color.

Don't delay another minute. Start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur at once and see what a difference a few days' treatment will make in your hair.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

SCARCITY OF FISH IN BAY THIS YEAR

LOCAL FISH DEALERS ASSERT THAT STORMY WEATHER ON LAKES AND WASTE FROM FACTORIES IS CAUSE.

Less fish have been caught in the bay this year than has been the case in past seasons. According to Hansen & Jensen, local fish dealers, the scarcity of fish is in a large measure due to the stormy weather on the lakes during the last year, but this is said is not altogether the cause. It is asserted that the waste drained into the bay from large manufacturing concerns has a strong tendency to poison fish and to kill thousands of them every year.

The fish season opens this year on the 15th of December and does not close until the 29th of November, 1912.

The local fish business has not been so brisk this season owing to the aforesaid reasons.

CHAPTER XIX.

The wanderer had come upon Mrs. Pryne but once since he had boarded the Panjab. That morning, himself early astir because of his vague misgivings, he had discovered her on the hurricane deck of the liner; an inconspicuous, slight figure in the shadow of a life-boat, leaning upon the rail and gazing with (he fancied) troubled eyes, out and across the waste below lamalla.

Though she must have been conscious of nearing footsteps, she had not stirred, and he had passed on, gaining but a fugitive glimpse of a profile sweetly serious; nor had she appeared either at breakfast or luncheon. A circumstance which led him to surmise that she did not court observation: an idiosyncrasy which seemed passing strange in a woman so fair.

He told himself that she wore an air of watchfulness, of vague expectancy, as though she, like himself, feasted some untoward mishap; that she had the manner of one definitely apprehensive, constantly on guard against some unforeseen peril.

Now, he asked himself, what could it be? What threatened her? And why? He dimly promised himself the pleasure of her acquaintance, relying in the rapid intimacy that springs up between strangers on a long voyage, with a still more indefinite intention of putting himself at her service in any cause that she might be pleased to name, provisionally: she must not interfere with his plans for reaching Rangoon "in ninety days."

That night he was hoping to find the lady at dinner; but though the ship's company was small, he failed to see her in the saloon, at either the captain's, the chief officer's or the doctor's table; nor, so far as he could determine, was she taking the air on deck. Was it possible, then, that he had been right, that she had a reason equally as compelling as his own for secluding herself? Or, was it simply (and infinitely more probably) that Mrs. Pryne was indisposed, an enervated victim of excessive heat?

The latter conjecture proved apparently the right one. Mrs. Pryne failing to appear during the two following days, while the Panjab was rocking down the Red Sea channel; and O'Rourke grew interested enough (he had little else to occupy his mind, for a duller voyage he had never known) to give Danny permission to pursue his inquiries: with an injunction, however, prohibiting too lavish an expenditure of the boy's wealth of affection. Whereupon Danny returned with the information that the mistress of Cecile, the maid, was suffering from heat exhaustion.

This was entirely reasonable. O'Rourke accepted the demolition of his airy castles of Romance, laughed at himself, in part was successful in putting the woman out of mind; doubtless, in time, he would have done so altogether, had not the lady chosen to take the air the night that the Panjab negotiated the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb. For on that same night, O'Rourke, himself wakeful, was minded to sit up and watch the lights of Perim Island heave into view.

O'Rourke, in a deck-chair on the starboard side, well cloaked in the shadow of the deck above, watched the other passengers, one by one, quiet their chatter, yawn, stretch and slip below to stuffy staterooms.

He suffered a dreamy eye to rove where it would, greedy of the night's superb illusion.

Four bells—two o'clock—chimed upon his consciousness like a physical shock. He verified the hour by his watch and, reluctantly enough, agreed that it was time he got himself to bed. He half rose from his chair, then sank back with an inaudible catch of his breath. Without warning the apparition of a white-clad woman had invaded the promenade deck. For an instant he hardly credited his eyes, then, with a nod of recognition, he identified Mrs. Pryne.

Unquestionably unconscious of his presence in the shadow, she fell to pacing to and fro. Now and again, she stopped, and with chin cradled in her small hands, elbows on the rail, watched the approaching cliffs of Arabia; then, with perhaps a sigh, returned to her untimely constitutional.

Partly because he had no wish to startle her, partly because he was glad to watch unobserved (he had a rare eye for beauty, the O'Rourke), the wanderer sat on without moving, stirred only by active curiosity. The strangeness of her appearance upon deck at such an hour fascinated his imagination no less than her person held his eye. He gave himself over to vain and profitless speculation.

Why, he wondered, should she keep to her cabin the greater part of the evening, only to take the air when none might be supposed to observe her?

Why, if not to escape such observation? Then, he told himself, he must be right in his supposition that she had something to fear, someone to avoid. What or whom? What was it all, what the mystery that, as he watched her, seemed to grow, to cling about her like some formless, impalpable garment?

Events conspired to weave the man into the warp and woof of her affairs; more quickly than he could grasp the reason for his sudden action, he found himself a-foot and dashing aft at top speed. But an instant gone Mrs. Pryne had passed him, unmolested and wrapped in her splendid isolation; and then from the after part of the deck he had heard a slight and guarded cry of distress, and a small scuffling sound.

In two breaths he was by her side and found her struggling desperately in the arms of a lascar—a deck-hand on the steamer.

At first the strangeness of the business so amazed O'Rourke that he paused and held his hand, briefly rooted in action. For although it was apparent that she had been caught off her guard, wholly unprepared against assault, and while she struggled fiercely to break the lascar's hold, the woman still uttered no cry. A single scream would have brought her aid; yet she held her tongue.

The two, the woman's slight, white figure and the lascar's gaunt and sinewy one, strained and fought, swaying silently in the shadows, tensely, with the effect of a fragment of some disordered nightmare. But then, as the lascar seemed about to overpower his victim, O'Rourke, electrified, sprang upon the man's back. With one strong arm deftly he embraced the fellow, an elbow beneath his chin forcing his head up and back. With the other hand O'Rourke none too gently tore away an arm encircling the woman. Then wrenching the two apart, he sent a knee crashing into the small of the lascar's back, all but breaking him in two, and so flung him sprawling into the scupper.

Without a word the man slid upon his shoulders a full half-dozen feet, while O'Rourke had a momentary glimpse of his face in the moonlight—dark-skinned and sinister of expression with his white, glaring eyeballs. Then, in one bound, he was on his feet again and springing lithely back to the attack; and as he came on a jagged gleam of moonlight ran like lightning down the sinuous and formidable length of a kris, most deadly of knives.

O'Rourke fell back a pace or two. His own hands were empty; he had nothing but naked fists and high courage to pit against the lascar and his kris. Keenly alert, he threw himself into a pose of defence.

But O'Rourke had forgotten the woman; it was enough that he had made possible her escape, and he had no thought other than she had fled. It was, therefore, with as much surprise as relief that he caught the glimmer of her white figure as she thrust herself before him and saw the lascar bring up in the middle of a leap, his nose not an inch from the muzzle of an army Webley of respect-compelling caliber.

Simultaneously, he heard her voice, clear and inclusive if low of tone: "Drop that knife!"

The kris shivered upon the deck. "Faith!" murmured the Irishman, "and what manner of woman is this, now?"

The lascar stood as rigid as though carved out of stone, long, gaunt legs shining softly brown beneath his cool,

O'Rourke stepped forward, with a quick movement kicking the kris overboard, and would have seized the fellow but that the woman intervened. She said decisively: "If you please—no."

Bewildered, O'Rourke hesitated. "I beg your pardon—" he said in confusion.

She did not reply directly; her attention was all for the lascar, whom her revolver still covered. To him, "Go!" she said sharply, with a significant motion of the weapon.

The lascar stepped back, with a single wriggle losing himself in the dense shadows.

O'Rourke fairly gasped amazement at the woman, who, on her part, retreated slowly until her back touched the railing. She remained very quiet and thoroughly mistress of herself, betraying agitation only by slightly quickened breathing and cold pallor. Her eyes raked the deck on either hand: it was plain that she had no faith in the lascar, perhaps apprehending his return; yet her splendid control of her nerves evoked the Irishman open admiration.

"Faith!" he cried, breaking the tense silence, "tis yourself shames me, madam, with the courage of ye!" She flashed him a glance, and laughed slightly. "Thank you," she returned. "I'm sure I don't know where I should be now but for you."

"Twas nothing at all. But ye'll pardon me for suggesting that ye have made a mistake, madam."

"A mistake?" she echoed; and then, thoughtfully: "No, I shouldn't call it that."

"Letting him go, I mean. Neither of us, I believe, could well identify him. When ye report this outrage to the captain, whom will ye accuse?"

"I shall accuse no one," she said quietly, "for I shan't report the affair."

"Ye will not—" he cried, astounded. "Indeed, I am quite sincere: I shall do nothing whatever about it. It is, moreover, a favor which I shall ask of you, to say nothing of the matter to anyone."

O'Rourke hesitated, unwilling to believe that he had heard aright.

"Believe me," she was saying earnestly, "I have good reason for making a request so unaccountable to you."

"But—but—Mrs. Pryne—!" "Oh, you know me then?" she interrupted sharply. And her look was curious and intent.

"Tis—'tis—faith!" O'Rourke stammered. He felt his face burn. "Me valet told me," he confessed miserably. "Tis a bit of flirtation he's been having with your maid, Cecile, I believe, madam."

"Ah, yes." She seemed unaccountably relieved. "Ye, then, are Colonel O'Rourke?"

He bowed. "Terence O'Rourke, madam, and at your service, believe me."

"I am very glad," she said slowly, eyeing him deliberately, "that, since I had to be aided, it came through one of whom I have heard so much—"

"Faith, Mrs. Pryne—" "And I thank you a second time, very heartily!" She offered him her hand, and smiled bewitchingly.

"Tis embarrassing me ye are," he protested. "Faith, to be thanked twice for so slight a service! I can only wish that I might do more—"

"It is possible," she said, apparently not in the least displeased by his presumption—"It is possible that I may take ye at your word, Colonel O'Rourke."

In her eyes, intent upon his, he fancied that he recognized an amused flicker, with, perhaps, a trace of deeper emotion: the kindling interest of a woman in a strong man, with whose signals he was not unfamiliar. Pride and his conceit stirred in his breast.

"'Twould be the delight of me life," he told her in an ecstasy.

"Don't be too sure, I warn you, colonel." Her manner was now arch, her smile entirely charming. "It might be no light service I should require of you."

"Ye couldn't ask one too heavy. . . . But 'tis weary ye are, Mrs. Pryne?" he inquired, solicitous.

"Very." There was in fact an indefinite modulation of weariness in her voice. "I'm only a woman," she said faintly, with a little gesture of deprecation; "and my ways are hedged about with grave perils—"

"Tis the O'Rourke would gladly brave them all for ye, madam," he declared gallantly. "Command me—what ye will."

She lifted her gaze to his, coloring divinely there in the moon-glamor. He looked into her curiously bewitching eyes and saw there an appeal and a strange little tender smile. Her head was so near his shoulder that he was aware of the vague, alluring perfume of her hair. Her scarlet lips parted. . . . And he became suddenly aware that it behooved him to hold himself well in hand. It were an easy matter to imagine himself swept off his feet, into a whirl of infatuation, with a little encouragement. And he was not unsophisticated enough to fall to see that encouragement would not be lacking if he chose to recognize it.

"Faith," he told himself, "I'm thinking 'twould be wiser for me to take to me heels and run before . . ."

He was spared the ignominious necessity of flight. In two breaths they showed two very different pictures. Now they stood alone on the dead white deck, alone with the night, the sea, the stars, the silence and the moonlight: O'Rourke a bit dismayed and wary, but as curious as any man in such a case; the woman apparently yielding to a sudden fascination for him, swaying a little toward him as if inviting the refuge of his arms.

And now she started away, clutching at her heart, with a little choking cry of alarm; while beneath them the vessel was still quivering with a harsh yet deadened detonation like an explosion, together with a grinding crash and shriek of riven steel somewhere deep in the hold.

Inexpressibly dismayed, they stared with wide and questioning eyes at one another, through a long minute filled with an indescribable uproar: a succession of shocks and thumps in the interior of the vessel gradually dimming in severity while, in a pande-

DULL SEASON FOR HOTELS COMING

HOTEL BUSINESS IN THE CITY HAS BEEN THRIVING THIS FALL—CONDITIONS WILL CHANGE SOON.

The hotel business in Ecanaba has been very good this fall and the owners have been wearing broad smiles. But conditions will soon change and the hotels will present a deserted appearance.

The "drummers" are making their last trip of 1911 now and only a few who make short jumps will be here after their present visit until after the first of the new year. Christmas is little less than three weeks off and that is barely more than sufficient time to complete the circuit and reach home a few days before the evening when children hang their stockings near the chimney to await the arrival of good old Santa.

It is seldom that one finds a drummer about a hotel lobby on Christmas day, because should he find himself in such straits he is about the most lonesome man in the world. While the merchants will do a thriving business during the season and the first of the year, as much can't be said for the salesman who is on the road. A BUTTON OF SAFETY.

Four years ago the Portland (Ore.) Street Railway company began the compulsory instruction of its motormen and conductors in the prevention of accidents. No new man was allowed to run a car till he had received such instruction. The road now carries about twice as many passengers as it carried four years ago, but an officer of the company informs us that the number of accidents has not increased. The ratio of accidents to the number of passengers, therefore, is only half as great. A layman would suppose that every street car company would give its men such instruction, and surely all well-managed companies do. But in Portland another step was taken. A lecturer was employed by the company to address the children in every public school. He distributed buttons with P. S. L. on them, and a Public Safety league soon found itself organized. There was for several months thereafter only one street car accident to a child. The car lines in other cities have followed this example—Seattle, Tacoma, Spokane, Los Angeles among them, and some of the western railroad companies have adopted the button. This is very simple, as most helpful and practical ideas are. It's a pity that it isn't applicable to the drivers of automobiles!

Hooking up the gown of modern fashion requires so much skill and technical knowledge that Chicago has opened a school of instruction. Men are taking most of the lessons because men are most in need of them. The average man is a pretty helpless being around the house anyway, and if he cannot hook up his wife's gown—if that is what the process is called—he isn't any sort of use. Much instruction is necessary to make him handy and competent for the task and a part of that instruction, if it is thorough, will concern the language it is proper he should not use when he is unable to find the invisible loops which belong to the invisible books. As long as fashion makes it necessary that gowns should button up and down the back with occasional variations crosswise and on the bias, with no free transfers at any intersection, men who are married are bound to have plenty to do and should be well instructed in the ways of doing it.

According to a Turkish diplomat now in this country, the Turkish women no longer keep their faces covered in public. They go about as they please, and make goo-goo eyes and flirt just as women do elsewhere. This is a great reform which is said to be pleasing to both sexes, but it is not likely to create a rush to Turkey for a beauty exhibition. The most beautiful women in the world are not to be found in Turkey—not in extravagant numbers. Now that they can show themselves, however, it may be expected they will take more pains to enhance their charms.

From the effete east comes word of the intuitive kiss. The intuitive kiss is one which you are sure you are about to get, but you never get it. You feel intuitively that you are to become a kisser. Happy, Happy, Use TIZ When Angeline Came Home

A MARVEL FOR SORE FEET, ACTS RIGHT OFF.

Sore Feet? Never After Using TIZ—Good-bye sore feet, aching feet, swollen feet, sweaty-feet, smelling feet, tired feet.

You've never tried anything like TIZ before for your feet. It is different from anything ever before sold. It acts at once and makes the feet feel remarkably fresh and sore-proof. TIZ is not a powder. Powders and other foot remedies clog up the pores. TIZ draws out all poisonous exudations which bring on soreness of the feet, and is the only remedy that does. TIZ cleans out every pore and glorifies the feet—your feet. You'll never limp or draw up your face in pain, and you'll forget about your corns, bunions and callouses. You'll feel like a new person. If you don't find all this true after trying a box of TIZ, you can get your money right back. TIZ is for sale at all druggists at 25 cents per box, or it will be sent

TEA ROOM WAS GREAT SUCCESS

The tea room which opened yesterday by the Women's Guild of St. Stephens church has been one of the most successful affairs of this kind that has ever been attempted in the city. The room was crowded all day and especially at noon when the resources of both dining room and kitchen were worked to their limit to accommodate the great number of people who patronized the amateur restaurant and partook of the many good things that the church women had prepared. During the afternoon, the room was well filled by the women who dropped in while on their shopping trips, to enjoy a sandwich and a cup of coffee and perhaps to purchase some of the many beautiful little fancy articles and home made candies that are being displayed for sale on the two big booths. Another delicious hot lunch was served, again at noon today and proved as popular as on the first day. The affair has been a most brilliant social and financial success.

"Yes, we're awful glad to get back to town," confided the twelve-year-old sister of the young woman whose special young man was calling for the first time since the family returned from the lake.

"Er—Miss Angeline—your sister—is she glad, too?" inquired the young man craftily. "My goodness, yes!" said the small girl in surprise. "She's the gladdest of us all. Angeline didn't seem to care for any of the things that were real fun, like Ted and I did—she was always afraid of getting sunburned or something. I don't think when you grow up there is much left in life to enjoy. All Angeline wanted to do was to put on another dress and do up her hair and moon around with the count."

The young man sat up straight. "The count?" he repeated inquiringly, with a hasty glance at the stairs. "Who was he?" "Why, didn't you know there was a real count at the lake?" asked the small girl in surprise. "I should have thought Angeline would have written you about him, because that was all she could talk or think about."

"When she found his name on the register," went on the small girl, "I thought she'd have a fit or something, for she came rushing upstairs and dragged out her best white embroidered linen suit."

"Why," she said to mother, "did I put on this horrid, cheap blueingham for breakfast this morning? Do you suppose he was the one who sat at the next table?" "I was excited, too, but when I asked her if he would walk on a tight rope, or something, she pushed me out of the room."

"All the grown up women were just as excited as Angeline and rushed around whispering together. Ted and I decided that he must have two heads, or something, so we started out to find him. There was a strange man reading a magazine in the arbor and when we walked in and asked, 'Are you a count?' he stared and then he laughed. After that he said he wasn't, but he'd be pleased to direct us to the end of the pier, where we could pursue our inquiries."

"There was another strange man there and I didn't like him half so well as the first one. He kept jumping around and his eyes snapped and we stared at him a long time, till he almost jumped at us. Then I asked him, 'Are you a count? And please tell us what you count?'" "I don't think he liked us, because he threw up his hands and dashed away."

"He acted different with Angeline. He was always leaning over her chair and smiling and his voice sounded like the inside of marshmallows. There wasn't any other girl there as pretty as Angeline, so, of course, she cut out all the others."

"She did, did she?" remarked the young man in tense tones, with another glance at the stairs. "Go on!" "Oh, my, yes!" said the small girl. "She told mother she guessed if any of those washed out, uninteresting girls there thought they were going to get ahead of her they were mistaken. Mother got real patronizing to the other women and was always talking about estates and family trees and how Angeline was such a sweet and lovely and brilliant girl that she had always known her fate would be different from the common run of young women. 'No honors,' she said once, 'no honors ever heaped on Angeline's head would ever make her forget to be nice to those beneath her.'"

"The other women just sniffed and left Angeline alone, but she had the count, so she didn't care. She used to talk about it to mother and say, 'Won't the other girls back home be simply crazy jealous when they hear about it, though? And mother would say, 'If only father doesn't say up!'" "It was real fun to see Angeline sweep through the hotel lobby like a queen and smile sweetly at the other women and see how cross they'd look and how they'd rock fast and talk after she'd gone."

"One afternoon the count was going to take Angeline riding and she came downstairs all rigged out, and he wasn't there. Finally she asked the man behind the desk, 'Have you seen the count? I am waiting for him.' "There were a lot of people around and they kind of laughed. Then the man behind the desk coughed and said: 'Well, there were two men waiting for him, too, while he was in at lunch and they took him away. They—er—had a warrant. He's been jumping board bills all summer and the detectives just ran him down here. They said something about a forged check, too.'"

"So Angeline was just as glad to come home as the rest of us," said the small girl. "She got terrible homesick after that. Ted and I were glad to come, because father wrote that there were some new puppies in the barn."

"Oh, here's Angeline! Say, Angie, why didn't you write to Mr. Hopington about the count when you wrote to him all those times from the lake? He didn't know a thing about him."

Up to Date. "I had a nightmare last night." "You mean a night airship."

End of the Honeymoon.

It was along toward the waning of the honeymoon that this dialogue took place:

"Are you sure that you love me as much as ever?" "Perfectly sure."

"And you will never, never love anybody else?" "Never, never."

"Is there anything you wouldn't do to make me happy?" "Nothing within the bounds of reason."

"Aha! I thought so! You have begun to reason. The honeymoon is over!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

When Beecher "Hollered." Coming home from the morning service one Sunday Dr. Beecher threw himself on a lounge and said in a tone of deep dejection, "I believe that was the worst sermon I ever preached." One of his daughters protested that she had seldom heard him when he was more energetic. "Oh, yes," was the impatient reply, "when I haven't anything to say I always holler."—Outlook.

Their Use. "Why do you have those glass cases with the ax, hammer, crowbar and so forth on these cars?" asked a traveler on the railroad going to New York. "Oh, those are put there in case any one wants a window open," replied the facetious man.—Youth's Companion.

Theatrical

THE PETERSON—Patricia O'Brien, Queen of the Chorus, rolled through a dramatic refinery in James Forbes' international comedy, "The Chorus Lady" will make her appearance at the Peterson on Tuesday, Dec. 12. "The Chorus Lady" has scored one of the greatest hits of the American stage in recent years and she comes to this city with the endorsement of a year's run in New York, nine months in Boston, six months in Chicago, and six months in London, England.

The play is a four act comedy and contrary to the title, is not a musical show, though a dozen girls are carried for the famous dressing room scene in the second act. It is a story of stage life, with a fetching theme and a serious lesson. It pictures certain phases of life in that mysterious land, "behind the scenes," dealing with the rank and file, rather than upper stardom, which field has been frequently invaded by American authors.

Patricia O'Brien is the commonly accepted type of the chorus girl, so far as her vernacular and her general bearing are concerned, but her honesty of purpose and her wholesome humanity stamp her as a most unusual young person and help make the character one of the most original and at the same time most convincing and appealing that has been brought forward on the stage in many a day.

Scene from the Chorus Lady at Peterson's, Opera House, Nov. 12.

At the Grand

GRAND—Amick's Pennant Winners will complete their repertoire of musical comedies at the Grand theater this week, the new play for this evening being the last that will be seen here of this stock company that has proved so popular among Escanaba theatergoers during the past three weeks.

Miss Gandon.

The program for this evening and the remainder of the week is built on much the same lines as those that preceded it, the entertainment being an alternation of good ridiculous comedy intermixed with chorus and song numbers. The scenery and costumes as well as the lines of the play will

At the Garrick

GARRICK—One of the strongest bills in the vaudeville world will be presented at the Garrick theatre the last half of this week, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Anthony & Bender, the German comedians are a big hit and in a class by themselves. "Mardie Raymond" the clever singing and dancing soubrette is another added attraction to the last half of this week. The people's favorite, "Frank Kirk," the musical tramp, has just returned from London Music halls and this attraction we guarantee to be a sure cure for the blues. Don't fail to see "Kirk" the assassin of sorrow. The big feature act is "the German Models". This act is one of the highest priced acts of its kind in vaudeville today. They make an entire change in their act at every performance. This act alone is worth the price of admission. Entire change of the latest pictures on the Barrettopograph today.

At Peterson's

THE PETERSON—A four-act comedy success, "The Girl and the Tramp" comes to the Peterson on Sunday, December 10. A notable cast, elegant scenery and the explosion of a real automobile in full view of the audience are some of the features which make "The Girl and the Tramp" such an interesting and enjoyable performance. The highest of dramatic art is displayed in scenes that are embowered in elegant scenery and realistic stage settings. Do not confer the idea that this play is a cheap melodrama or Wild West shooting affair, for it tells the story of how a banker who has a loving wife and a happy home is brought to ruin through the manipulation of the stock market by a man who is in love with his wife. The wife and husband separate, and she is forced to move to cheaper quarters. A wagon is waiting to move Mrs. Merton's household goods into the street, because she can't pay her rent, when Frank Randall, a girl Mrs. Merton befriended and afterwards adopted, rushes in with money to pay the rent. It is an intense dramatic scene and you feel just like kissing the little street urchin for her timely assistance.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF

Which is Better—Try an Experiment or Profit by an Escanaba Citizen's Experience.

Something new is an experiment. Must be proved to be as represented.

The statement of a manufacturer is not convincing proof of merit. But the endorsement of friends is. Now supposing you had a bad back, A Lame, Weak or Aching one. Would you experiment on it? You will read of many so-called cures.

Endorsed by strangers from far away places.

It's different when the endorsement comes from home.

Easy to prove local testimony. Home endorsement is the proof that backs every box of Doan's Kidney Pills.

Read this case:

Mrs. William Craig, 313 N. Mary street, Escanaba, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills at different times for kidney complaint and lame and weak back and have been greatly benefited. I was annoyed by a kidney weakness and suffered from distressing backaches. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from the Mead Drug Co., brought me good results. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills highly for the purposes for which their use is intended."

asking questions till the clerk told her if she did not want to buy anything she would wait on another customer. Well she finally got started buying and bought so much she couldn't have carried half of it home. She asked what time the goods could be delivered and the clerk answered, "Not before eleven o'clock." She decided to carry as much as she could, home with her, and have the rest sent up. When home was reached some of the packages were broken and she was all tired out. Then she had to stay up and wait till the order came, which was about twelve o'clock. Her neighbor had done her shopping early in the week and said she had a splendid Christmas. The lady who had let her shopping go till late said it was the worst Christmas she ever had. This shows the advantage of doing our Christmas shopping early.

BLINDED IN HOCKEY GAME.

Looses Sight and Hearing When Hit on Side of Head With Stick.

Menominee, Mich., Dec. 7.—Blind and deaf as the result of a hockey game is the fate of Henry Filbert, age 14, Menominee. As the result of being struck on the head with a hockey stick young Filbert is now totally blind and deaf, and the left side of his body is partially paralyzed. In the hope of restoring the boy's sight and hearing an operation will be performed at St. Joseph's hospital to remove a piece of bone which it is thought is pressing on his brain.

WHY SHOPPING SHOULD BE DONE EARLY

What the Escanaba High School Students Say About it—Many Good Reasons.

We should do our Christmas shopping early so as to avoid the rush.

It is the best for the buyers because those who come early have a better line of articles to select from. The clerks are not so busy and have more time to wait on the customers. When they come late the store is crowded and it is hard to get a clerk to wait on them, and when they do it is hard to get what they want.

It is the best for the storekeepers because they have more time to show the people their goods. The clerks are not so tired and confused. When the people come late, they crowd and push, and in that way many things are destroyed.

This makes the clerks nervous and then they make many mistakes.

It makes it hard for the postoffice and express offices when there are so many parcels coming in on the last day. They have so many parcels to handle that they are apt to overlook some. Then there will be trouble. So do your Christmas shopping early to prevent all this trouble.

Harry Halgren.

A woman comes walking into a department store and looks over all sorts of things, but nothing seems to suit her. A clerk seeing her goes over to her and says: "Is there anything I can do for you?" The woman answers: "I really don't know what I want. What do you suppose would be nice for me to get for a young girl?" The clerk brings her over to several counters, shows her handbags, handkerchiefs, ribbons, etc. She looks them all over, filling the counters with things taken from boxes, but nothing satisfies her and she walks out saying, "I don't think you have anything today that I really care for. Then this tired clerk picks everything from the counters and puts all the things back into boxes, goes over to wait on another customer. This woman walks into another store and looks over everything she sees. All the clerks seem very busy, and she walks up to one who is waiting on another woman and says: "Will you kindly wait on me?" The clerk answers, "I am very busy now, but will be through in a few minutes, if you will please wait I will do so with pleasure." The woman didn't like this very much, but she decided to wait as she really wanted something. In a few minutes the clerk returned and showed her all sorts of articles and the woman finally spied a beautiful comb set in brilliants that she fancied very much which she purchased and then walked out. Leaving a great deal of work for the clerk to do later.

Elveda Beck.

In most cities bills are sent out by the stores requesting the people to do their Christmas shopping early. It helps the people themselves, the clerks and the delivery men. Sometimes near Christmas the clerks are so busy they cannot go home for supper. They have to keep running around getting up small orders for people. The order boys are sometimes out delivering orders up to twelve o'clock on Christmas night. When they come late with an order people kick. The order boy can't deliver all the orders at once, and almost everyone wants them early. This is the disadvantage to the delivery-man.

The people go to the stores and they are crowded and you have to wait for a couple of hours before you are waited upon. There was a lady buying goods while I was there. This lady had to wait about an hour before she was waited upon. When she was waited on she did not know what she wanted. She kept picking up articles and asking the clerk if she thought they were nice, and would do as Christmas gifts. She went on

An Innovation in Oil Heaters

The Perfection Smokeless Oil Heater, with its drums enameled in turquoise, is an ornament to any room, whether in the country or city home.

No home is quite complete without a Perfection Oil Heater. It is a necessity in the fall and spring, when it is too warm to start the regular heating apparatus, and too cool to be without heat. In the midst of winter it is often convenient as an auxiliary heater, as there are always some cold corners in a house.

The enameled heater always presents a nice appearance, as the enamel will not tarnish or burn off. It is not an "enamel paint," but it is the same as the enamel of your cooking utensils.

The Perfection is the most reliable and convenient portable heating device you can find. An automatically-locking flame spreader prevents turning the wick high enough to smoke.

Dealers everywhere. Ask yours to show you the Perfection Heater enameled; or write for descriptive circular to any agency of Standard Oil Company (Incorporated)

INDOOR BASEBALL IS VERY POPULAR

The indoor game between the Big 5 & 10 team of this city and the crack Gladstone city team, that is booked for the Peterson hall for Friday night, is being looked forward to with a vast amount of interest by the hundreds of baseball fans in the city who take to the indoor pastime in the winter when they cannot go out to the park and yell their throats sore over their favorite game. The "dope" on the coming game is not very definite, but is of a character to stir the interest of all the lovers of the game. Gladstone has twice defeated the local organization when it was first organized, but the local lads have been putting in all their spare time in practicing and have secured the best indoor-battery in the north country. The team work gained by all this practice and the certainty that the pitching and catching departments will be handled by experts has led the supporters of the local team to predict that Gladstone will have a neat little defeat to take home with them on Friday night. A monster crowd is expected to turn out to see the struggle and preparations have been made to handle them at the hall.

The Big 5 & 10 team played a practice game this afternoon with a picked team composed of members of the high school faculty. The game was a spirited one and ended with a decisive victory in favor of the city team. The game was of much value as it showed the fast improvement that has been made in the playing of the Big 5 & 10 team in a very short while.

We Are Ready For CHRISTMAS--- ARE YOU ?

The experience of previous years endorses the advisability of early preparations and early buying—especially if the gift is to be garments to measure, etc. We are splendidly prepared. Our wonderful toyland is boundless in the assortment of Christmas presents for children of all ages, temperament and preference. It is as though a fairy story had come true—no description could correctly picture the astonishing variety and immensity of this great wonderland of toys, dolls, books and games. Mechanical inventions most extraordinary are here. The doll display is the largest and finest we have ever shown—a magnificent carnival of dolls of many nationalities, sizes and kinds that's making the eyes of hundreds of little girls stand wide open. There are books and games for old and young, old favorites and those that make their bow this year. Every department in this big Christmas mart is in holiday array and filled with useful, appropriate gifts for every member of the family. For several weeks already we are very busy filling and reserving orders for throngs of merry holiday shoppers.

BRITISH ROYAL PAIR WELCOMED IN INDIA

KING GEORGE AND QUEEN MARY REVIEW GORGEOUSLY UNIFORMED PROCESSION AT THE OPENING OF THE DURBAR.

Delhi, India, Dec. 7.—The roar of the imperial salute welcomed the King Emperor and Queen Empress of India today. At the station outside the fort, government officials, Indian princes, military officers, and thousands of natives assembled to greet the royal pair. After a series of presentations their majesties proceeded to the pavilion within the fort, where they were introduced to 150 ruling chiefs attired richly in colored garments, bedecked with jewels. Then followed a procession from the durbar camp, four miles in length. Great numbers of natives gathered along the route, forming a striking background to the gorgeously uniformed procession. A body guard of Indian princes who followed immediately after, outshone all that passed: In strict order of precedence came 150 maharajahs, rajahs, nawabs, and other chieftains. The column was closed by a band of savage looking Afghans and Pathan chiefs on wild ponies and a detachment of British troops. Their majesties entered the city through the King's gate now open for the first time since 1857 when King Delhi went to public worship.

LOCAL RAILROAD MAN PASSES AWAY

SECTION FOREMAN FOR CHICAGO & NORTHWESTERN DIES AFTER TWO MONTHS OF SERIOUS ILLNESS.

Louis Miller, 60 years of age and a resident of this city for several years died last evening at his home, 520 South Fannie street. He had been seriously ill for the past two months with diabetes. For several days before his death he had been sinking slowly.

He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Miss Emily Miller. The deceased was employed for several years as a section foreman for the Chicago & Northwestern railroad, and was known and respected by many of the employees of the company, who will receive the news of his death with deep regret.

The funeral services will be held from St. Anne's church at 9 o'clock Saturday morning. Interment will be at St. Anne's cemetery.

LARGER ENGINES ON THE SOO LINE

STEEL MONSTERS REPLACING THE OLD TYPE ON THE DIVISION—EXPENSES CUT DOWN BY USING BIGGER ENGINES.

The Soo line is rapidly doing away with the small freight engines which have been used by the road since its purchase of the Wisconsin Central a few years ago. During the past few months several large eight wheel drive engines have been added to the Wisconsin division to replace a greater number of smaller locomotives. By using the larger engine the company is able to cut down materially the running and operating expense of the division owing to the fact that the larger engines are able to haul nearly double the load pulled by the old ones.

MINSTREL STARS WILL DINE TONIGHT

All arrangements have been completed for the elaborate banquet to be given by the directors of the Escanaba Baseball club to all the members of the cast in the big minstrel show that was given Thanksgiving evening. The banquet will be served at the Elks' club rooms at 9 o'clock this evening, and all the minstrel "boys" will undoubtedly be there to enjoy the good things to eat and participate in the other festivities of the occasion.

lately been added to the collection already on the shelves. The books are arranged in a beautiful display in the room that has been used during the past week for the art exhibit and are being shown in this way with the object of giving the people of the city an opportunity to inspect many of the latest books that have been published and assist them in choosing new books to be used as holiday gifts. After being held on special exhibition in this way for two days, they will all be placed on the shelves and put into general circulation.

There are several hundred volumes, embracing a great variety of subjects and everybody who anticipates the use of books as Christmas presents, will be sure to find something that will appeal to them. There are comparatively few fiction works in the display, greater attention having been given to books of travel, biography, history, and essays. Children's books make up a very considerable portion of the collection and among the numbers are to be found every kind of book of interest to young people from picture books and fairy stories for the little tots, up to essays, histories and many works that will be of great educational value to the more advanced students in the schools.

The last session of the art exhibition was held last night and the city council attended in a body to admire the pictures and inspect the late permanent improvements to the library building.

BILLIARD EXPERT ASTONISHES CROWD

AMATEUR BILLIARD CHAMPION OF WISCONSIN GIVES BRILLIANT EXHIBITION AT HARRY PAUL'S PARLORS.

Alexander Elmalle, amateur billiard champion of Wisconsin was in the city last night, and visited Harry Paul's billiard parlor. The champion played a few games with friends, and then gave a brilliant exhibition of a variety of fancy shots in which he handled his cue with rare skill and precision. He also executed some very difficult calculation shots which drew murmurs of astonishment from a large crowd of local devotees of the game as they stood grouped about the table. Elmalle has been playing billiards since early boyhood.

FARMERS FOR ROOSEVELT

lieve, from what I hear, that Roosevelt could poll 100,000 more votes in Michigan than Taft; or even La Follette, or any other Republican. There is a widespread dissatisfaction among Republican farmers with Taft. As for La Follette they don't seem to warm up to him. They seem quite generally to regard him as a Republican Bryan. Perhaps if they knew his public career better they would think more favorably of him. But mention Roosevelt to a dissatisfied Republican farmer and almost invariably he will say: 'He's my first choice for President! I meet these kind almost every day. Coming into Detroit a few mornings since on an interurban car I met a West Bloomfield (Oakland county) farmer who is one of the dissatisfied Republicans. He declared that himself and his two voting sons would not again vote for a Democrat if Taft was renominated. He said no, he wouldn't vote at all. Then he said: 'Nominate Roosevelt and there won't be any stay-at-home Republicans election day. He's my candidate.' I meet plenty who talk just like him.'

Sheriff Tim Curran left this morning for Cheboygan to bring back Joe Burnell, who is wanted here.
 E. P. Gilligan, who pitched for the Escanaba Baseball club last season, arrived in the city this morning from Minneapolis. Mr. Gilligan finished the season with the Minneapolis team, joining the club immediately after leaving here.

U. S. HAS BIG SECRET FUND

dollar diplomacy, increased salaries and other things that congress never contemplated should be paid from this secret fund.
 "Last year we spent nearly $200,000 when there were no war clouds on the horizon. The president, while bearing the olive branch in one hand, with the other was pulling the money from the treasury at the rate of $493 a day, including Sundays. We are told the money went for secret purposes, but where it went only God and the little crowd at the White House and state department know.
 "Every questionable or suspicious transaction investigated by our committee has led directly into the mystery of this so-called secret fund.

SHRINERS RETURN FROM MARQUETTE

washed, hailed to the presence, stamped with the magic word "gathered in" and made ready to be slaves to the children of the prophet in the caravan formed to proceed on the pilgrimage to Mecca." This was done, and yesterday the pariahs were duly guided across the fiery-hot and shifty sands, afterward to be admitted to the ranks of the faithful.

Three Escanaba Masons, James Blake, A. H. Ryall and E. C. Wicking, were admitted to the order along with a list of 31 who took the shrine. A party of about a dozen Shriners from Escanaba attended the meetings and all have returned to the city this morning.

The reports to the imperial council for the year ending June 1, 1911, show a total Shrine membership of 159,782, a net gain during the year of 10,625. During the year four new temples were constituted under dispensation and eight were granted charters, making a total of 125 temples. The imperial council for 1912 will be held in Los Angeles, Cal., the first Tuesday and Wednesday in May.

DETECTIVE BURNS TALKS.

Issues Statements Relative to the Leaders of Labor Unions.

(By Associated Press.)
 New York, Dec. 7.—Detective Burns issued a statement here today in which he disavowed any enmity toward the labor unions and said: "Conservative leaders such as John Mitchell and others stood behind me and my work. If unionism is to prevail, the dishonest leaders must be kicked out. The Iron Workers' union is not the only one that is guilty of dynamiting."

E. H. GARY ON COMBINATION.

Head of Steel Corporation Gives Opinion to Senate Committee.

(By Associated Press.)
 Washington, Dec. 7.—E. H. Gary, head of the steel corporation today appeared before the senate committee on interstate commerce and said that he had always believed that it was legal for competitors to come together and mutually disclose the condition of their business, to steady and balance trade, without making any agreement on prices. He further urged that a federal commission be authorized to the management, character, condition and extent of corporations and to permit certain pooling arrangements when conditions warranted.
