

THE DUBAR CEREMONY

CITY OF DELHI, WAS SCENE OF MAGNIFICENT SPLENDOR TO DAY WHEN CERIMONIES TOOK PLACE.

GEORGE V PROCLAIMED EMPEROR.

Spectacle was More Georgeous than the Last in 1903 When Edward VII Was Crowned - Cerimonies were Performed in an Immence Canvas City in the Presence of Many Thousands.

(By Associated Press.) Delhi, India, Dec. 12.—The great Durbar today, to celebrate the accession of King George as emperor of India, far outshone the coronation Durbar in 1903, when King Edward was proclaimed. There will be a public holiday throughout India and the royal proclamation will be read in every town and village.

The Durbar camp is a vast canvas city, covering about twenty-five square miles. It is lighted by electricity, served by a perfect water supply and provided with excellent roads and a special railway system. Chief of all stands out the emperor's central camp. The huge tent in which both the investiture and the reception was held is on Grand avenue. This tent is capable of seating three thousand persons and is decorated in blue, white and gold.

Behind this huge canvas is the king's state dining tent, hung with blue, where 160 guests will attend the state banquet tonight. Their majesties' private tent is to the right, and the victory has a somewhat similar arrangement of temporary and permanent chairman.

The Taft forces had won the first serious fight attending the committee meeting when that body went into session today. After a series of conferences the administration was conceded the right to name Harry S. New, of Indiana, chairman of the sub-committee to take charge of the convention arrangements, including the naming of temporary and permanent chairman.

LINDQUIST TAKEN OUT FOR A SHAVE

PRISONER ESCORTED TO LOCAL BARBER SHOP BY SHERIFF—LINDQUIST IS MAKING A BOAT FOR CURRAN.

Arthur Lindquist, held for the murder of Alvin Fogarty, was taken out of the jail this morning and treated to the luxury of a shave at a local barber shop. The prisoner has not had a chance to eliminate his chin stubble since his incarceration. Lindquist is not idling away his time at Sheriff Curran's bastle. No, not in the least. He is busily engaged upon the construction of a miniature boat which he will present to his host—the Sheriff. Lindquist is a very contented guest at the county's domicile. He considers that the Sheriff has accorded him gentlemanly treatment, and that as a token of personal esteem for Mr. Curran, he decided to make him a Christmas present in the shape of a miniature craft. Whether the Sheriff will do any sailing or not on the bay next summer in this noble boat he failed to mention.

ISABELLA MAN DIES IN CITY

Nezale Vinette, 54 years of age, a farmer of Isabella who came to the city last Friday to receive medical treatment, died Monday evening at the Lumberman's home at 1213 Ludington street. Bright's disease was given as the cause of his death. His wife and son were with him when the end came. The deceased will be buried at Garden Wednesday morning.

SEEKS DIVORCE IN A NOVEL WAY

Milwaukee Woman Offers to Give Up Her Marriage Certificate—Wants It Scratched Off Books Of County Clerk.

Many strange ideas as to Wisconsin marriage and divorce laws have come to light at the Milwaukee courthouse, but employees were treated to a genuine surprise Friday morning when a woman giving her name as Mrs. Mary Schultz entered the office of County Clerk Plehn and, throwing down a marriage license certificate, issued a year ago, exclaimed: "Scratch it off the books, I don't want anything more to do with him." When the clerks had recovered from the surprise they hastened to explain that while divorce sometimes may be easy, it has not reduced the

NATIONAL COMMITTEE

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL COMMITTEE HELD MEETING AND CARRIED OUT A PROGRAM THAT HAD BEEN PREPARED.

TO MEET IN CHICAGO JUNE 18.

Former Governor Hill, of Maine, is Appointed Chairman of National Committee—Taft Program, as Agreed Upon Yesterday, Went Through Without Change—More Roosevelt Talk.

The Republican National committee met today with the program for the days proceedings agreed upon in advance. The executive committee started their session at 10 o'clock and although it had been previously conceded to name Chicago as the convention city, the committee gave their rivals an hour and a half in which to present their claims.

The Taft forces had won the first serious fight attending the committee meeting when that body went into session today. After a series of conferences the administration was conceded the right to name Harry S. New, of Indiana, chairman of the sub-committee to take charge of the convention arrangements, including the naming of temporary and permanent chairman.

In the sub-committee, Borah led a hopeless fight to open the primary door to every state. The call for delegates requires that they be selected not earlier than thirty days after the call, nor later than thirty days prior to the date set for the convention. This nullifies the selections. The form of the call for delegates to the National commission includes the disposal of the troublesome presidential primary (Continued on page six.)

WORKING TO AID CHRISTMAS POOR

LOCAL BRANCH OF GENERAL BOOTH'S ORGANIZATION PLAN TO PROVIDE FOR THE NEEDY CHRISTMAS POOR.

It was announced today at the headquarters of the local branch of the Salvation Army that this annual investigation into the condition of the poor in this city is nearing completion. The commanding officer said that she would be pleased to have the public notify her of any needy families in want, so that the army may render them aid.

The Salvationists have begun collecting money for the local Christmas poor and all sympathizers with the charitable work of this organization are appealed to by the army to help them in their endeavor to make this year's Christmas dinner for the poor a complete success.

DARROW IN BRIBE CASE

WITNESS IN TRIAL OF BERT H. FRANKLIN OF McNAMARA DEFENSE SAYS ATTORNEY FIGURED IN ALLEGED BRIBE.

CAUSES SENSATION IN COURT.

District Attorney Fredericks Says There is, However, Not Sufficient Evidence to Warrant Any Prosecution of Darrow for Bribery—Further Investigation to be Made.

(By Associated Press.) Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 12.—A sensation was created on Monday in the trial of Bert H. Franklin, chief detective for the McNamara defense on charge of trying to bribe a prospective juror in the McNamara case, when the name of Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel for the McNamaras, was dragged into the case, when the name of Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel for the McNamaras, was dragged into the case. G. N. Lockwood, the man whom Franklin is alleged to have bribed, testified that before the alleged bribe was paid to him, Franklin said he would have to consult with Darrow before paying over the bribe money.

Lockwood testified that, after Franklin had made one bribery proposal to him he went to District Attorney Fredericks and advised him of the proposition. Fredericks advised him "to go through with it," if the bribery proposition were renewed. Lockwood continued: "Franklin came to me on Nov. 26 and told me my name had been drawn as a juror, adding, 'George, there is $4,000 in this for you.' I told him when a man goes into a thing like that he must be sure of his price. 'Later I called upon Franklin and asked him to come to my house that night. He came, we talked it all over, and arranged for me to meet him the next day. He told me he would have to see Darrow and arrange a safe way for the money to be paid.' District Attorney Fredericks said that no evidence had been produced sufficient to warrant any prosecution of Darrow for bribery.

One of them, convict No. 25,315, was John Joseph McNamara, convicted dynamiter and former secretary-treasurer of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' association. The other, 25,314 a pale, sullen prisoner, was James B. McNamara, a printer, dynamiter and convicted murderer.

RAISES FIRE ALARM WITHOUT REAL CAUSE

THOUGHTLESS PERSON IN GARRICK AUDIENCE ON HEARING CLANG OF FIRE DEPT. ON STREET YELLS "FIRE."

An alarm of fire, the noise of the fire engines passing the Garrick theater last night while the performance was in progress caused much excitement and a dangerous panic was narrowly averted. Somebody on the street was heard shouting fire and some of the people in the crowded theater became frightened and jumped to their feet in readiness to leave the building.

Mr. Barrett and his assistants immediately got busy and in a moment or so were able to quiet the audience and assure them that they were in no danger. The orchestra played through the excitement without a break.

Manager Barrett said today that the Garrick was absolutely safe from fire dangers in view of the fact that the theater is exceptionally well provided with fire escapes and exits. The show house he declared was inspected by the state inspector and Mayor Lindsay in 1910 and both at that time said nobody need have any fear of attending shows in this theater.

FUNERAL OF MRS. KEATING HELD TODAY

THE DECEASED WAS FORMER RESIDENT OF THIS CITY AND MOTHER OF W. J. KEATING OF NORTHWESTERN ROAD.

W. J. Keating received word yesterday telling him of the death of his mother which occurred at Minneapolis yesterday morning. The remains arrived in this city this morning and the funeral was held from St. Patrick's church at nine o'clock.

Mrs. Nora Keating was 70 years of age and has not been well for several years and for the last six months has been in a hospital at Minneapolis in which city she has made her home with her daughters up to the time she was taken to the hospital.

Several years ago the deceased made her home in Escanaba and will probably be remembered by old residents. In addition to W. J. Keating of this city Mrs. Keating is survived by two daughters, Mrs. J. M. Banane and Mrs. C. D. Wright of Minneapolis, both of whom accompanied the remains of their mother to this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Papineau of Crystal Falls are also in the city and attended the funeral. Mr. Papineau is a grandson of the deceased.

RADER STORY FOUND TRUE

MOTHER OF MISSING MAN WRITES CHIEF OF POLICE IVERSON THAT SHE HAS NOT HEARD FROM SON SINCE NOV. 22.

(By Associated Press.)

Edward Thompson of General Office of I. Stephenson Company Says Rader has Failed to Call for his Wages for Work in Lumber Camp Number 5 at Cornell last November.

A letter was received from Mrs. Phil Rader of Milwaukee, mother of John Rader, missing relative of Arthur Lindquist, this morning by Chief of Police Iverson.

Mrs. Rader writes that she last heard from her son on the 22nd day of November when she says he was employed in lumber camp 5 of the I. Stephenson company at Cornell. She states that she is anxious to ascertain his whereabouts and does not believe that he was drowned as has been suggested.

Today word was received from Edward Thompson of the General office of the Stephenson company at Wells. He said that until recently his office had no record of Rader having been employed by the concern, and it was not until Foreman Glavin of camp 5 at Cornell communicated with him, that he learned that Rader had worked for the company. Mr. Thompson now verifies the report received by The Mirror recently that Rader had wages awaiting him, and that he disappeared from the camp immediately following the confession of Arthur Lindquist.

Up-to-date no information bearing on the present whereabouts of Rader has been received by the local authorities. The question still remains unanswered—"Why did John Rader disappear without taking time to get his wages, following his cousin's confession of guilt in the Fogarty murder case?"

NAVAL RESERVES HELD FINE DRILL

A VISIT TO ANY OF THE REGULAR DRILLS OF THIS POPULAR PATRIOTIC ORGANIZATION IS VERY PLEASING.

The Escanaba division of the State Naval Reserves held a regular meeting and drill at their armory last night. Considerable time was spent in drilling, marching, wheeling and all the maneuvers that sailors and marines can make on land. The manual of arms was also given attention and it is indeed a beautiful sight to see these local sailor boys handle their guns. If the local corps keeps on at the rate it has been going, it will soon be one of the best drilled military companies in the state. Several new members were admitted and put into the awkward squad last night and there is still room for many more in the division and young men in the city and surrounding country will do well to join this patriotic organization. The next meeting will be held at the armory next Monday night and all young men who are in the least interested in the naval reserves and their work, are invited to attend the meeting and see the drills and learn something of the big plans that are being talked of for next summer.

FIVE MEN ESCAPE ALIVE FROM MINE

TOTAL OF THIRTY CORPSES HAVE NOW BEEN RECOVERED FROM THE WRECKAGE OF THE TENNESSEE COAL MINE.

(By Associated Press.)

Briceville, Tenn., Dec. 12.—Five men had been brought alive from the Cross Mountain mine at 11 o'clock tonight, and the rescuers at that time were making almost frantic efforts to reach at least three more whom they believe still alive.

Though prisoners in what had been expected to be the tomb of more than a hundred men, since Saturday morning, the five men rescued seemed little the worse for their experience. They are all married and their wives had almost given up hope of ever seeing any of them again.

Immediately after the explosion, the five men rushed to cross entry No. 19, where they quickly threw up a brattice that kept out the black damp that killed many of their fellow workmen. They took their lunch pails with them and the five subsisted for three days and two nights on what they expected to make their Saturday noon meal.

Excitement became intense this morning when additional signs of life were discovered in the shape of some writing on the wall of one of the entries, saying merely, "We gone to 23." The writing did not state how many men had gone to room 23 for safety and the efforts of the rescue parties were redoubled in an effort to reach this distant room. The rescue workers are becoming discouraged in their task and fear that even should there be men in the remote parts of the mine that had not been killed in the first explosion they will starve before the barriers can all be broken down and the entries opened up into the mine.

Arriving finally in room 23, the rescue party found further directions scrawled in the walls and set out to follow. Two miners who are believed to have gone violently insane, are dashing wildly about the interior of the mine and have so far been successful in eluding capture.

A total of thirty corpses have now been recovered from the ruins of the wrecked mine.

FIRST CLAIM UNDER COMPENSATION LAW

WISCONSIN STATE INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION AWARDS MONEY TO WIDOW AND FAMILY OF MAN KILLED AT WORK.

(By Associated Press.)

Madison, Wis., Dec. 12.—The new workman's compensation law has had its first real application today, when the state industrial commission fixed the amount of 14.42 per week to be paid to the widow and family of Edward Thrall, of Mosinee, Wisconsin, until a total of $3,000 has been paid. Thrall was killed by falling from a ladder while in the employ of the Wausau Sulphit Fibre company. This is the first death claim paid under the new law.

GAMBLING CAUSED DOWNFALL.

Accounts are Found to be Short about $1200 and Father of Defaulter Makes Good for Shortage with the Savings of Years. Officials say that Gambling is Responsible for the Trouble...

Said to have lost in the neighborhood of $1,200 of the funds of the Western Union Telegraph & Telephone Co. through gambling, Nicholas H. Meyer, until Saturday afternoon local manager for the company, has resigned and left the city.

For the last week, W. J. Kniffen and O. H. Sombke, auditors for the company have had headquarters in Minneapolis, with been in the city checking up the accounts of Meyer. Saturday they were joined by W. J. Durand, special agent of the company. It was then that Meyer learned of the true object of the visitors. According to Durand, who is now in charge of the office, Meyer confessed juggling the accounts of the office and later explained that his father would repay the shortage with his savings of a lifetime.

According to those now in charge of the office, Meyer has been forwarding suspicious monthly accounts to the Minneapolis headquarters of this district of the company. Finally, when (Continued on Page Two.)

H. S. TEAM TO PLAY WITH THE ALUMNI

BASKETBALL GAME HAS BEEN ARRANGED BETWEEN PRESENT TEAM AND THE STARS OF OTHER DAYS GONE BY.

The Escanaba High School Alumni Basketball team has been organized and will play with the intention of capturing the Upper-peninsula Championship. Games have already been booked with several teams in the city and negotiations have been opened with the managers of the Marquette Normal Team, the Guild Hall team of Marquette, and the Jephsum Y. M. C. A. team. Rintoul Whitney of the class of '08 will captain the team, and Alfred Corcoran of the class of '11 will act as manager. The team is composed of old High School stars and if they show up in old old-time form, will be strong contenders for the championship. It is desired to have other teams organized in the city so as to afford competition and it may be, if enough interest is shown, that a basketball league will be started here. Arrangements are being made to have the first game Friday night with the local High School team.

STORES OPEN EVENINGS NOW

The various large stores of the city will be open evenings beginning tonight until the day before Christmas. Already a great number of people have taken the "Shopping Early" hint, and are thus avoiding much needless worry and rushing about at 11th hour before Christmas. Large crowds of patrons have been shopping at the local stores within the last few days. The patronizing of home trade has also struck many persons as an excellent and economical policy during the holiday season.

WANTS CHINAMEN FOR DOMESTICS

Roman Catholic Priest Thinks the Wholesale Importation of Chinese Would Solve Servant Girl Problem

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 12.—Working women all over the northwest are figuratively up in arms today over an editorial in the current issue of Cathedral Chimes, edited by the Very Rev. William C. Hicks, dean of All Saints' cathedral of Spokane, who advocates the repeal of the Chinese exclusion act or its modification to permit the importation of several hundred thousand orientals for domestic service. Members of the congregation also are divided over what the editor-pastor terms a possible solution of the servant girl problem. Dean Hicks says: "Servant girls, of course, are human like the rest of us, and one must not blame them for seeking the minimum of work at the maximum wage, but when by their talk they make you feel that before accepting a position as helper in your home you ought to take your children out in the back yard and chop their little heads off, such scorn and indignation ought to be meted out to them that they would not care to ask such questions at the next place to which they apply. The admission of Chinese would solve one of the greatest problems."

At Peterson's

When James Forbes, the author of "The Traveling Salesman" and "The Commuters" built the fabric of "The Chorus Lady," which comes to the Peterson tonight out of a short story he contributed to "Ainslie's Magazine," he succeeded beyond his fondest hopes and dreams. As a play, it will live long in the annals of stage history. As an entertainment, it has been seldom, if ever, equalled.

The story concerns the homely characters one meets every day. The central figure, of course, is Patricia O'Brien, a chorus girl, who is in love with Dan Mallory, owner of a racing stable, of which her father is the trainer. Through a series of reverse

Mallory has been compelled to seek a partner to keep his stable going and Patricia, arriving home as the play opens, finds this partner, a rich young man about town, is trying evilly to ingratiate himself into the affections of Nora, a pretty younger sister, who is living at home. Discerning his purpose at once, Patricia determined to remove Nora from his influence. The second act reveals the chorus dressing room of the Longacre Theatre, New York City, where a number of the members of a musical comedy chorus are making-up for the evening performance. Nora has again become involved with Crawford, as her betting propensities have compelled her to seek aid. At the same time she has incurred the enmity of Sylvia Simpson, a scheming show girl, who to vent her spleen, is doing all she can to injure the reputation of the little country girl. Just at this particular time, the parents of the O'Brien girls appear on the scene to make them a visit and, as might be expected, complications pile upon each other rapidly. The third act shifts the action to Crawford's rooms and makes matters still worse, but in the fourth and concluding act, occurring at the Harlem flat of the two sisters, matters are satisfactorily adjusted, and a happy ending preceded the final curtain.

Scene from the Chorus Lady at Peterson's, Opera House, Nov. 12.

SALE OF WATER WORKS DELAYED

WATER WORKS WAS TO HAVE BEEN SOLD TODAY BUT DELAY IN FILING DECREE HAS POSTPONED SALE FOR A WEEK.

The public sale of the property of the Escanaba Water company which was to have taken place today, has been delayed and will not take place until next week. The decree authorizing the sale was not entered immediately in the United States court at Grand Rapids, but was for some reason delayed and the sale will now be held about December 21st.

A great deal of the money that has been owed to the company for local water service has been paid in and the company will be able to meet the greater part of their obligations to local banks. The probabilities are now strong that the holders of second and third mortgage bonds on the water works equipment will buy in the first mortgage bonds and thus secure full possession of the plant. Should they fail to do this, the water works will go under the hammer and be sold for about $70,000 to anybody who wants it and is willing to tie up the money in a company that has but a few years to run under its present franchise.

MONEY IS MISSING

The November report was received, nearly twenty days overdue, and carrying the same apparently juggling statistics, an investigation was ordered without the knowledge of Meyer. The two auditors were sent here, arriving last Saturday and soon discovered the shortage and the manner in which it had been concealed.

By the details of their report on the matter it is gathered that in addition to holding up in the neighborhood of $300 that is said to have been collected by Meyer in outstanding bills, the figures on his report were so twisted that an additional $141 was also missing. In addition to this he is alleged to have drawn on the company for $500 by means of a New York draft, apparently to pay money orders, and to have issued checks for between $300 and $400 on a bank where no funds were available.

As soon as the trouble became apparent, Mrs. Meyer left her comfortable little home at 916 Bingham avenue and accompanied her father back to her former home in Oshkosh, Wis. Meyer sent word of the affair to his father, Joseph Meyer, a hard-working machinist also of Oshkosh, and after some little delay the elder Meyer sent on the money to repay the shortage of his son, under strict promise that the money was to be returned at the first opportunity.

Meyer came here from Oshkosh three years ago and has a wide circle of friends in the Soo. A new manager from LaCrosse, Wis., will arrive in the city next week to take charge of the local office.

MANAGER SULLIVAN FOUND NOT GUILTY

SHOWMAN WELL KNOWN IN THIS CITY IS ACQUITTED OF CHARGE OF VIOLATION OF SUNDAY LAW AT HANCOCK.

Manager Cornelius S. Sullivan who controls the Royal Theater of Escanaba, and also various other show houses in different parts of the country, including one at Hancock operated under the same name, was declared not guilty of violating the Sunday law in keeping open his moving picture house on November 26 as alleged by the prosecution at Hancock, Monday.

Rev. W. E. Marvin and Rev. Mandus Barrett were the witnesses and the defendant was represented by W. A. Burritt as attorney, while Prosecuting Attorney McDonald handled the case for the people. The greater part of the day was taken up with the drawing of a jury. Over twenty men being examined before six were selected satisfactory to both sides. Those finally left to sit in the case were Cornelius Bedell, August Pelt, Richard Wivell, Edward Roaler, C. O. Berglund and Ed. J. Rentenbach.

Most of those called to the stand stated that they had formed opinions and were more or less biased towards one side or the other and were excused, while others were excused because they were members of the naval reserve honorary organization, militiamen of ten years service, or non-citizens. The defense did not attempt to deny that the Royal Theater was open as alleged, but the argument advanced was that the pictures shown were not such that their exhibition would constitute a desecration of the Sabbath.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

A HUNGARIAN HERO.

By A. W. MACY.

Hungary boasts of several national heroes, but none of them has a finer record for bravery than Miklos Zrinyi. He fought many a battle in behalf of his country, but the supreme hour of his life came at the close. On August 5, 1566, with 3,000 gallant followers, he took refuge in the little fortress of Sziget, and defended it against a great Turkish host, led by Suleiman, the Magnificent in person. For four weeks the siege went on, the Turks furiously assaulting the little fortress again and again. Finally, on September 7, the little Hungarian band, or what was left of it, led by Zrinyi, rushed out upon the Turkish host, determined to cut their way through or die in the attempt. They died, every man of them, Zrinyi the first of all. But it was an expensive victory to the Turks, for it cost them twenty thousand lives.

The Pool of Flame

"To have, then, the leather bag?" he demanded, exultation in his voice.

"Aye, sah!; or, if not that, I have that which was therein."

"The stone?"

"Aye, sah!."

"Then give it me."

"I am the sah!b's slave." The serang flashed a strange smile at the revolver in O'Rourke's hand.

His attitude puzzled O'Rourke; he would hardly have believed this of the man; rather he could have conceived of him as denying the theft to the last and fighting like an unchained fiend to retain his booty.

His present pose was out of character, or the Irishman mis-judged him.

Out of character or no, it was comfortable. The serang, with head bent, was fumbling in the folds of his sash; O'Rourke thought him over long about it, yet was inclined to give him time in view of his abrupt surrender.

At length, still smiling oddly, the man lifted his eyes and stretched forth a hand tight closed. "The sah!b," he said gently, "shall see that his servant spoke truth. Let this weigh with the sah!b for mercy. Behold!"

The brown fingers unclosed and in the hollow of his palm trembled that which seemed a ball of crystallized rose fire, the stone that man has named the Pool of Flame.

O'Rourke uttered a low cry of satisfaction, stepping forward to snatch up the jewel. Simultaneously he was aware of a quick gasp from the direction of the woman, followed, ere he could account for them, by two pistol shots.

The adventurer groaned, pitching forward blindly, one side of his head, from the ear to the temple, a quiver with an agony as if a white-hot iron had seared him there.

He stretched forth an arm aimlessly and gripped an iron stanchion, stopping his fall, and hung there for what seemed an eon, sea and skies swimming blood-red before his eyes, in his ears a thunderous rushing as of mighty waters.

By a supreme effort of will he kept himself half-erect, clinging to the rail, and opened his eyes. So briefly had pain blinded him that it was patent barely a second had elapsed since the firing of the shots.

To his left a stricken lascar was still in the act of falling; before him Mrs. Pryne stood motionless, her face a mask of horror, revolver still poised; to the right the serang, drawing a kris, was smiling sardonically, his eyes fixed upon the woman who had set at naught his plans.

O'Rourke tried to call a warning to her, for it was plain that she was appalled by what she had done, heedless of all but the man she had killed; but it was as if a bullet that creased his temple and temporarily paralyzed her, his tongue clave to the roof of his mouth and he could neither move nor speak.

Powerless (he believed), he watched the serang gather himself together, like some gaunt cat, and spring; in two strides he would have been upon the woman and the night had been crowned with its most pitiful crime.

Yet in midair, O'Rourke saw the man falter and fall back, dropping the kris and clutching frantically at nothing.

Stupidly the adventurer saw the smoke trickling from the muzzle of his own revolver and knew that, somehow, he had managed to pull the trigger. His heart leapt in his breast, so keen was his gratitude.

Trembling in every limb, he essayed a second time to fire and put a final period to the serang's career. But his shot went wide and the cylinder jammed so that the hammer would not rise a second time.

With an oath he let go the rail and attempted to bridge the distance between himself and the lascar, who was now at a considerable distance reeling away toward the rail.

But his overtaxed strength, sapped by loss of blood, failed him; and malice infused new vigor into the serang, new power to accomplish his final fiendish act.

Grimacing with anguish, the man leapt away from O'Rourke, staggered and, jerking back his arm, flung the Pool of Flame from him with all his might.

O'Rourke paused, petrified with despair. The great stone, glinting in the moonlight like the very heart of fire, described a long and flaming arc and . . . the sea leapt up with a hiss to welcome it and it was gone.

A bitter cry broke from the Irishman's lips; he made for the man, flung the Pool of Flame with all his might.

It was night when O'Rourke awoke; he found himself staring wide-eyed at the ceiling of the stateroom, upon which rippled wavering lines of light reflected through the porthole by the waters without. His mind for the time was a blank; he was merely conscious that he was rested and very thirsty, and that the ship was motionless.

Then in a blinding flash memory returned to him. He rose, curiously light-headed and strangely weak, pushed open the door and stepped into the saloon.

It was lighted, if poorly, by a smoky kerosene lamp dependent from a beam above the center-table, and wore a hollow, dingy air of desolation for all that Danny slept there, his vivid head pillowed on arms crossed before him on the table. The ship was utterly silent, and the O'Rourke's sensitive instinct told him that it was tenanted only by himself and the servant.

He clapped a hand on Danny's shoulder and shook him into wakefulness. The boy leapt to his feet with a cry and, seizing O'Rourke's hand, began to sob upon it—a touching but disconcerting performance, to the last degree exasperating to a man thirsting and famished.

O'Rourke, as gently as he could, disengaged his hand and thrust Danny away, at the same time indicating in no uncertain tones that he preferred meat and drink to emotional crisis. Provided with a duty, Danny's sentimental nature was diverted; he bustled, with a "sandwiches, a salad, cheese, and other edibles upon a tray graced likewise by a bottle of champagne. And you are to believe that the master fell to and wolfed it all, to the last crumb and the last drop.

A new man, refreshed, he demanded a pipe, and, with his head cocked on one side and something of his old humor twinkling in his eye, what time it was not clouded with bewilderment and concern at the answers he received, cross-examined his valet.

"How long," was his first question, "will I have slept now, Danny ye divvie?"

"Wan complete round av the clock, yer honor."

"Where are we?"

"At anchor, sor, off the Fort in Bombay harbor."

"Umm-hm. I'm by way of remembering something of that. What of the captain?"

"Raymond, yer honor, to a horse-pittle ashore, sor, to con-valessce. At last, I'm thinking tho'ts the word the doctor used, sor."

O'Rourke pulled at his cigar, regarded regretfully the empty glass before him, and with some visible reluctance put the question that, more than aught else, he had wished to put ever since he had eaten.

"And Mrs. Pryne?"

"Aw, yer honor!"

"What's the matter, Danny?"

"Sure, sor, and axin' yer pardon for spakin' so, and man'n' no manner of disrayapict whatsoever—"

"What the divvie, Danny!"

Danny drew himself up with an air, bristling indignation. "Sure, and 'tis myself never seen the loike av thim wimmin for rank Ingratchbude, sor. And after all that meself had said to thot black-eyed Frinch vixen—"

CHAPTER XXV.

Mrs. Pryne, roused out of her semistupor by O'Rourke's cry, with some return of her habitual clearness of thought, stepped to the companionway and called for her maid.

O'Rourke passed a hand over his eyes, and brought it away black with blood, but was no more than half aware of this. Dazed and heart-broken, he stared blankly round the shambles that was the deck, then, recovering slightly, saw Oedle join her mistress, and realized that, whatever his personal grief, pain and despair, he must play the part of the O'Rourke.

He turned and staggered down into the saloon.

Danny was in his berth, sleeping the childlike and loglike sleep that was ever his. Dravos, below, his ears deafened by the mighty chant of his engines, had been no more conscious of the drama on deck than had Danny. O'Rourke caught the boy with hands that gripped his shoulders cruelly, and shook him awake, then methodically booted him up the steps to the deck.

Once there, Danny came to his proper senses and fell with a will to the tasks O'Rourke set for him. With Oedle he lifted the unconscious captain and bore him down to his berth, then left him to the ministrations of mistress and maid and returned to throw overboard the last corpse, that of the lascar whom the serang had set to slay the adventurer from behind.

O'Rourke himself proceeded to the bridge, where he found the helmsman still at the wheel, soberly keeping the vessel on her course. The circumstance at the time surprised him; but it afterwards was developed by dint of cross-examination of the remainder of the crew that the serang had specially exempted Quick and Dravos from the general massacre, they being held necessary to the navigation of the ship. He had likewise put strict

City Council Proceedings

Escanaba, Mich., Dec. 5, 1911.

A regular meeting of the Common Council of the City of Escanaba was held in the Council Chambers on the above named date.

Present: Mayor Lindsay, Ald. Shipman, Powers, Priestler, McColl, Jaeger, Schmit, Swan, Long, Folio, Kirkpatrick, Garrity, Wood, Johnson and Buchholz—14.

Ald. Johnson, seconded by Ald. Powers, moved that the minutes of the preceding meeting be approved without reading.

Ayes unanimous.

The following invitation was read: Escanaba, Mich., Dec. 4, 1911.

To the Mayor, the Honorable and Common Council, City, Gentlemen:

As the trustees of the Carnegie Library Board are giving an Art Exhibit in the Lecture Room, that your Honorable Body grant us an increase in our appropriation to remodel; and in behalf of the said Board of Library Trustees, I extend you an invitation to visit the Library Wednesday evening, December 6, 1911, at 7:30 p. m., to see the work that has been done, and also to see the Art Exhibit.

Trusting you will kindly accept this invitation, I remain, Respectfully yours, J. J. Cox, President of Board of Library Trustees.

Ald. Folio, seconded by Ald. Powers, moved that the invitation be accepted. Motion prevailed.

The following communication was read: Escanaba, Mich., Dec. 5, 1911.

To the Honorable, the Mayor and Common Council, City, Gentlemen:

I wish to call your attention to a matter which may be of little importance but if neglected may prove to be very serious.

I call your attention to the Section 13, page 94, City Ordinance, and request that so much of said ordinance as refers to the flushing of sewers be complied with especially during the winter months. In other words, we ask that whoever is permitted by the City or Fire Department to use the fire hydrant for the flushing of sewers that the said party first inform the Superintendent of the Water Company so an inspection of same can be made so as to know positively that the hydrant is properly drained, otherwise there is great danger of frozen hydrants which may prove serious in case of fire.

Yours respectfully, Escanaba Water Co., Wm. J. Hatton, Supt.

Ald. Priestler, seconded by Ald. Long moved that the communication be referred to the Sewer Committee. Motion carried.

The following resolution was read: RESOLVED, that the Board of Public Works be directed to prepare specifications, plates, diagrams and estimates of cost, for grading, paving and draining Hartnett Avenue, from its intersection with the East Line of Stephenson Avenue to the North Line of the I. Stephenson Company's Second Addition to North Escanaba;

BAY STREET from its intersection with Delta Avenue and Second Street to the South line of First Street; the paving to be of stone macadam.

Sinclair Street, from its intersection with the West line of Stephenson Ave. to Rose Street; the paving on said Sinclair Street to be of concrete; and deposit the same with the City Clerk for public examination.

Ald. Priestler, supported by Ald. McColl, moved that the resolution be adopted. Motion prevailed by the following vote:

Ayes, Ald. Shipman, Powers, Priestler, McColl, Jaeger, Schmit, Swan, Long, Folio, Kirkpatrick, Garrity, Wood, Johnson and Buchholz—14.

AN ORDINANCE, to protect the public health, and provide for the construction and maintenance of private sewers and regulation thereof, and to provide penalties for the violation hereof, was read.

Ald. Powers, seconded by Ald. Garrity, moved that the Ordinance be laid on the table.

Motion prevailed by the following vote:

Ayes, Ald. Powers, Priestler, McColl, Jaeger, Schmit, Folio, Kirkpatrick, Garrity, Wood, Johnson and Buchholz—11.

Nays, Ald. Shipman, Swan and Long—3.

The following Ordinance was read: AN ORDINANCE limiting the number of saloons in the City of Escanaba, from and after the thirtieth day of April, A. D. 1912.

THE CITY OF ESCANABA ORDAINS: Section 1. That from and after April 30th, A. D. 1912, the number of saloons in the City of Escanaba is hereby limited to, and shall not exceed sixty-five.

Section 2. The Common Council of the City of Escanaba, on the second Monday of April, 1912, and at such other times as they shall meet for the purpose of approving the application and bond of persons desirous of engaging in the sale of spirituous and intoxicating liquors, malt, brewed or fermented liquors, and vinous liquors, at retail, shall not pass upon or approve any application or bond after sixty-five applications and bonds have been approved. Provided, that if the applicant in any application for license shall fail to pay to the County Treasurer the license fee required within two weeks from the date of approval of the application, then said Common Council may approve another application in its stead, until sixty-five licenses shall have been issued.

Ald. Shipman, seconded by Ald. Priestler, moved that the Ordinance be adopted. Motion lost by the following vote:

Ayes, Shipman, Priestler, McColl, Swan, Wood and Buchholz—6.

Nays, Ald. Powers, Jaeger, Schmit, Long, Folio, Kirkpatrick, Garrity, Wood, Johnson and Buchholz—14.

Changes in the Palisades. The Palisades on the Hudson are slowly changing. To the traveler of a hundred years ago they were a sheer cliff of clean rock rising in a perpendicular line from the water's edge nearly a thousand feet. Now they are buttressed at the foot by immense deposits of broken rock which frosts have peeled from the cliff.

Souvenir Thieves. Hotels of Philadelphia have been forced to post notices that hereafter "souvenir hunters" would be prosecuted for either petty or grand larceny according to the value of the hotel belongings they manage to carry from the dining and bedrooms.

Two Educations. We all have two educations, one most valuable, which we give ourselves. It is the last which fixes our grade in society and eventually our actual conditions in this life, and the color of our fate hereafter.

Why Goethe Can't Be Translated. The reason why Goethe cannot be translated is that no equal of Goethe stands on the English side of the line to link the equivalent words with equivalent music.

His Three Secret Societies. The attorney demanded to know how many secret societies the witness belonged to, whereupon the witness objected and appealed to the court.

Cattle in the Low Countries. The raising of cattle forms one of the most important agricultural industries in the Netherlands, and the Holland herds, some of which can trace their pedigree back for centuries, are justly famous.

The English People. English people are thin and not fat. In London the men average very small. The rubicund Britisher we read about is not in evidence.

No Sale. Mrs. Irving—"You didn't buy that Oriental rug after all, did you?" Mrs. Clint—"No, we took a friend of George's to see it and he said that while it was a genuine Bokhara, beautifully woven and all that, it wouldn't last more than a hundred years, so we decided to look farther."

Saving Postage Stamps. When postage stamps stick together, never soak them in hot water. Instead, lay a piece of paper on top and pass over them with a hot iron. This will loosen the stamps and yet not remove the gum on the back.

Must Push to Reach Success. When you are inclined to criticize any man for being too aggressive, remember that no one ever worked his way along the path to success, at a

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

CRAZY EUROPEAN RULERS.

By A. W. MACY. During the time Napoleon was turning Europe topsy-turvy with his splendid military genius more than half the European lunatics or half-witted personae, Emperor Paul of Russia had a feeble intellect, a scanty education and an absurd and well-nigh insane self-conceit.

DRIVE OUT CATARRH A FILTHY DISEASE

Ely's Cream Balm a Simple Remedy Relieves Instantly All Distressing Symptoms.

If you are subject to frequent colds, or if you have any of the distressing symptoms of catarrh, such as stuffed up feeling in the head, profuse discharge from the nose, sores in the nose, phlegm in the throat causing hawking and spitting, dull pain in the head or ringing in the ears, just anoint the nostrils or rub the throat or chest with a little Ely's Cream Balm, and see how quickly you will get relief.

In a few minutes you will feel your head clearing, and after using the Balm for a day or so the nasty discharge will be checked, the pain, soreness and fever gone, and you will no longer be offensive to yourself and your friends on account of the constant hawking, spitting and blowing.

Shake off the grip of catarrh before it destroys your sense of taste, smell and hearing and pollutes your whole system. In a short time you can be completely cured of this distressing disease by using Ely's Cream Balm. This healing, antiseptic Balm does not fool you by short, deceptive relief, but completely overcomes the disease. It clears the nose, head and throat of all the rank pollution, soothes, heals and strengthens the raw, sore membranes, making you proof against colds and catarrh.

One application will convince you, and a 50 cent bottle will cure you. It is guaranteed. Get it from your druggist today. If you are spraying the nose, throat or ears, ask for Ely's (Liquid) Cream Balm.

YOUNG WOMEN TO DISTRIBUTE ALMS

MEMBERS OF THE WESTMINSTER GUILD OF THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH WILL DISTRIBUTE DONATIONS.

At a meeting of the Westminster Guild of the First Presbyterian Church held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Harris of Wells, last Friday evening, one of the members reported an interview with the County Poor Commissioner in which he declared there were many poor families in this community who were in dire need of clothing and who did not have sufficient means to purchase it, their children, especially, are insufficiently clothed for winter.

Many articles of wearing apparel discarded by people of better circumstances would be a welcome gift to these women and children. If anyone desirous of contributing to this worthy cause will speak to a member of the Guild, the contributions will be called for and properly distributed.

The members of the Guild who may be consulted are as follows:

- Elsie Atkins, Ruth Cates, Anna Christie, Isabel Craig, Gladys Crobo, Mabel Fallman, Mae Harris, Agnes Leiper, Iris Long, Rose Miller, Irene Nelson, Gladys Palm, Anna Peterson, Laure Schaffer, Mildred Stonehouse, June Traude.

Wells Sunday School Has Planned a Great Musical Performance.

The members of the Sunday School at Wells have been practicing for the past week in preparation for the presentation of a delightful little musical performance entitled "Santa's Prescription" which will be given a few days before Christmas. C. U. Woodpert has the production in his charge and reports that the members of the cast are very clever little people and that the work is exceptionally good.

THE JEWELS A Story of 1930 By MARCO L. BRAYTON Copyright by American Press Association, WIL.

"Dad," said a boy to his father one day when they were riding through their vast estates, "how did you get all this? Mother has often said that before you and she were married you were a tutor in a college."

"Yes, my boy, I was an instructor in analytical chemistry. The students who studied under me worked in the college laboratory. From my early youth I had shown a fondness for chemical processes and before I was eighteen had made several discoveries, though none of them so important as one I made several years later."

"Your mother was in the woman's college attached to the university, and she and I became acquainted. "Your mother's parents being poor, as soon as she was graduated she accepted a position as governess with a very rich lady, whose children she taught. A year after she left the university she came into the laboratory one day to see me, and by her appearance I knew at once that she was in great trouble."

"I have come to you," she said, "there being no one else in whom I dare confide. I wish you to advise me. The lady by whom I am employed took a great fancy to me as soon as I entered her service and last week, when she went away to be one of a house party consisting of very rich people like herself, left her most valuable jewels in my care. They have been kept in a safe in her bedroom, and she entrusted the key with me. The day after her departure she directed me by letter to send her a certain brooch she wished to wear with a costume it especially fitted. I unlocked the safe, took out the brooch and while packing it left the safe door open. When I returned to the room before locking the safe it occurred to me to see if the jewels were there. A box containing the most valuable ones had disappeared. What shall I do?"

"In tracking the thief I could be of no assistance to the poor girl, but I had been making some experiments with results that suggested to me a possible temporary solution of the difficulty. There had then recently been discovered the substance called radium, which you will soon learn something about at school. Its influence on other substances is remarkable. I had used it in the laboratory in the little glass receptacles called test tubes and had found that it had turned them a beautiful blue color. It occurred to me that the shade was similar to that of sapphires. This thought resulted in these riches we now possess."

"How? Go on with the story." "It led me to a series of experiments. I exposed crystals of different colors to the influence of radium, putting the crystals and the radium away in glass vessels. The blue crystals had become topazes, the blue crystals emeralds, and violet crystals were turned to sapphires. I had learned the secret of the construction of gems. They were simply crystals that had been acted upon by radium. "I told your mother that I might duplicate the lost gems if I only knew their shapes, colors and sizes, whereupon she told me that the owner kept photographs of them to be used to identify them in case of their loss at their exact size. She brought me the photographs, and without losing a moment I had crystals cut to match them and exposed the crystals to radium."

"The danger was that the owner of the jewels would call for them before they had been exposed long enough to change their color. Besides, those I was making might not come out the right shade. I resolved on an expedient. As soon as any of the crystals became gems I took them to a jeweler and exchanged them for those whose color matched the originals and had those I rejected cut the exact shape. Fortunately the lady remained away a sufficient time to meet these requirements, and she never knew that her gems had been stolen."

"But was that honest, dad?" "The gems being so spurious it would not have been honest, but they were real. The originals had been made in nature's laboratory, just as I made these in mine." "How did you make so much out of it?" "I simply manufactured gems and sold them without imparting my secret. But in time a chemist in Germany made the same discovery as I, and those scientists over there used to give all their discoveries to the world. He published the secret, and henceforth all gems became of little value. Consequently they are no longer prized by the rich. They are as beautiful, now that they are manufactured by man, as they were when nature was their only maker, but value depends on rarity, and since gems are no longer rare they are no longer valuable."

"What has taken the place of these old fashioned ornaments?" "Those substances which nature used to manufacture them. Recently there has been a craze for radium and certain like substances discovered since radium became known. The richest people now think nothing of spending a million or so on a bit of radium so arranged as to be worn as an ornament. Fortunes have kept pace with the change in decorations, and the very wealthy are now able to pay for these newly discovered properties, some of which cost millions for a single grain."

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

ORIGIN OF THE SLEEPING CAR.

By A. W. MACY.

Just who first conceived the idea of a sleeping car for railway passengers is not clear. One "standard" encyclopedia claims the honor for Philip H. Lauffman; but as it also makes him a railway manager at the age of sixteen its statements must be accepted with caution. The first sleeping cars ever designed were used on the Cumberland Valley railroad, in Pennsylvania, in 1838. In these the sleeping arrangements consisted of three tiers of shelves, two feet wide, on each side of the car, made to fold up against the sides during the day. About 1858 or '59 Webster Wagner built some sleepers for the New York Central; but they were little more than "enlarged" copies of the night-bunks in the passenger boats of the Erie canal." Wagner built fine cars afterward, but to George M. Pullman belongs the chief credit for perfecting the modern sleeping car. From 1859 to 1863 he experimented, transforming some old passenger cars into fairly comfortable sleepers. They were upholstered in plush, lighted with coal oil lamps and heated with box stoves. In 1864 he perfected the "Pioneer," which was really the first sleeper of the modern type, at a cost of $18,000. This car was one of the ten which formed Lincoln's funeral train from Chicago to Springfield.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

THE OLD CAPITOL BUILDING. By A. W. MACY. The structure in Washington City known as the "Old Capitol Building" has a memorable history. It was erected in 1800, and was originally designed as a tavern, or boarding house. On account of poor management the tavern was closed after a few years. During the War of 1812 the British captured Washington and burned several of the public buildings, including the Capitol. The government then purchased this tavern building for the use of congress, and here both houses met for several years. Within its walls two presidents were inaugurated, and in it John C. Calhoun died. After the new Capitol building was completed the "Old Capitol" was abandoned by congress, and after that it was used for various purposes, hotel, boarding school, etc. In 1861 the government again took charge of it, and used it during the Civil war as a prison for captured southern soldiers.

campment to the left. About 150 burling prices are here, their camps being in close proximity to that of the king.

King George arrived today at the center of the great plain, about three miles from his camp, for the Durbar-in-state procession, and proceeded half way around an enormous arena in which were assembled not less than eighty thousand spectators. From there he went to a smaller amphitheatre, accommodating twelve thousand persons. These will comprise the Indian chiefs, governors and lieutenant governors, the imperial and provincial councils, with all the leading officials, nobility and gentry of India.

After receiving the homage of the chiefs on a special dais under a regal purple canopy, their majesties proceeded to a marble dais, surrounded by a golden dome, and showed themselves in their coronation robes and crowns to the assembled multitude. Twenty thousand troops, with heralds and bands, surrounded the dais, leading pictureques to the scene. On the return to their camps, their majesties completed the second half of the circle in the big arena and then proceeded along the Princes' road, through a number of other camps, occupied by the Indian princes.

King George today made a statement in which he said that he will immediately devote $1,600,000 to the promotion of popular education in India. He further announced that the seat of government would be moved from Calcutta to Delhi. The statement was widely applauded.

TRAFFIC IN SOUTH AMERICA

How Congestion and Accidents Are Avoided in the Streets of Buenos Aires.

Buenos Aires is very much unlike our American cities. In the first place there are no sky scrapers. The highest building does not exceed seven or eight stories. Then there are mile upon miles of streets with building of one story predominating. It is laid out in rectangular blocks, averaging 400 feet on each side. The streets are narrow, and even in the residence section they are generally built clear up to the street line. The principal business streets, such as Florida, Cuyo, Cangallo, Bartolom Mitre, San Martin, 25th of May, etc are only 33 feet wide, and you will wonder how the traffic is managed says Travel. It is done in this wise Street cars and vehicles are allowed to move only one way. On the adjoining street they move in the opposite direction. It is surprising how this plan helps to solve a serious problem of congestion. Cabs and automobile dash along with seeming disregard of human life, yet few accidents result. A uniformed policeman is stationed at each street intersection where traffic is congested and assists in the protection of foot passengers and drivers. This police force, made up of men with Indian blood in their veins, impresses the visitor as most efficient.

EVIDENTLY A HARD TASK

Somewhat Humorously Worded Epistle the Result of Struggle With English Language.

As the most delightful example she has ever seen of the English the European uses in his correspondence, woman who has just returned from "the other side" is showing her friends a letter that she declares to be her most interesting "souvenir." "After we left Amsterdam," she explains, "my daughter discovered that she had left her cuff-links in our room at the pension. So I wrote back to the proprietress, whom I knew spoke English, asking her to look for them. Here is the reply."

Then she shows it. And this, word for word, is how it reads: "Dear Mrs. Thomas Grant: "Immediately upon receiving your letter I am going at once to looking in every drawer, and found this two button in the table near her bed. Can it be this two things what your daughter lost?"

"In that way I am very glad to found it."

"So not, be so good to send it me back, for it might be of another person who perhaps will write me he lost something."

THEY KNOW SANTA CLAUS' ADDRESS

TWO BRIGHT CHILDREN WRITE ST. NICHOLAS LETTERS "PAPA AND MAMMA DON'T SEEM TO WANT ANYTHING," SAYS ONE.

W. J. Cyr, whose home is now in Superior has two bright children that have not forgotten where Santa Claus is supposed to get his mail. This morning the Mirror received two letters from the children which we publish below.

Superior Wis., Dec. 15th, 1911. VERY DEAR OLD SANTA:

I forgot last year to give you my address and that's why you did not come: Well live 2189 East 3rd St. Sup. and I want a doll, a sled, some candy and come by the both room window, I will let it open. Flo Kathleen Cyr.

DEAR SANTA:

I moved with my parents to Superior Wis. 289 3rd, a big house on Corner of Bechler, last year we missed you. I suppose you went to our home in North Escanaba; how sorry I was not to have told you; Did you give Paddy our parcels if so its all right, but bring me a big doll just like they have in window of North Brothers and a buggy, some candy, and a nice new baby to keep mamma company when we go to school, as Kathleen goes also and Ma is alone, bring Willy a nice book, Iona is wishing for manure Set. Papa and Mamma don't seem to wish for anything) if you pass by Escanaba bring Paddy Kitchens a nice sled like the kids out here has, now Santa dear I am H. Marie Cyr.

NO WILD PIGEONS FOUND

Not a Trace of the Birds Despite the Big Rewards

Saginaw, Mich., Dec. 12.—Professor C. F. Hodge of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., has issued a pamphlet showing that his investigations or reports of passenger pigeons during the past season have been fruitless. Professor Hodge has been in charge of prizes aggregating several thousand dollars—with a grand prize of $1,000 for the first find—for two seasons, to be given for verified evidence of nesting wild pigeons. He says there is but one spark of hope left that these birds are not absolutely extinct—several reports of flocks having been seen may be gathered and plotted in a map, trace the course of flocks, and practically prove that a few birds, nesting in the far northern wilderness, still exist. Only this will induce those who have offered the rewards to renew them for another season.

The last large pigeon roost and nesting occurred at Petoskey, Mich., in 1878, and has been fully described in W. B. Mershon's volume, "The Passenger Pigeon." Professor Hodge describes a visit he recently made to an old "pigeoner" at Brookfield, Mass., who still has his nest that he formerly used in taking pigeons for the market. Mr. Mershon recently bought these nests and has them in his Saginaw collection—probably the only ones in existence.

question and was still in the hands of the special sub-committee when the National committee went into recess until 2 o'clock. As indicating a phase of the attitude of the committee, its decision to call for the selection of delegates from the District of Columbia, at the primary election, was of unusual interest.

The National committee went into session at 11:30 this morning. Former Governor Hill, of Maine, was chairman by acclamation. Capers, of South Carolina said today that the fear that the fight in the next convention would curtail the southern representation was well founded since Burke, of Pennsylvania, who led the reduction fight in 1908, and lost by a narrow margin, had been decided upon to lead the movement.

The Taft program as approved last night, went through today, without change and the talk relative to Theodore Roosevelt's candidacy was continued.

Chicago has now been definitely decided upon as the convention city and the date for the convention set for the 18th of June.

COMMISSIONER HOLMES "GOT BUSY"

PETER HOLMES DESERVES MUCH CREDIT FOR RIDDING STREETS OF LARGE ACCUMULATION OF WATER.

Street Commissioner Peter Holmes deserves a great deal of credit for getting to work early Sunday morning to rid the streets of the great quantity of water that had gathered during Saturday night. On some parts of Ludington street the water was over the curb and covered the sidewalk. The street commissioner got out early however and succeeded in opening enough sewers to allow the water to drain off.

Miss Edith McArthur has returned to Wilson after having spent a week at her home here.
