

WICKERSHAM MAKES AN INTERESTING REPORT

Points Out Many Reforms and Recommends Changes in Many Policies--Appreciates Interest of Public in the Work.

MANY SUITS ARE CONCLUDED THIS YEAR

Points Out that Suits Enforcing the Sherman Anti-Trust Law Are Confronted by Economic Rather than Legal Problems--Rigid Custom Laws Have Increased Revenue of the United States

(By Associated Press.) Washington, Dec. 14.—Pursuing President Taft's recommendation that an executive bureau be created to supervise corporations chartered under a federal incorporation act, Attorney General Wickersham, in his annual report submitted to Congress today, suggests that the bureau of corporations be raised to that dignity, even in the absence of the proposed federal incorporation statute.

In enforcing the Sherman anti-trust law, the attorney general points out that the department of justice and the courts are confronted by economic, rather than legal, problems when it comes to working out methods of disintegration after a corporation has been declared an illegal combination. The department enlisted the assistance of the bureau of corporations in the dissolution of the tobacco trust, and it would be of great value to the legal branch of the government, Mr. Wickersham says, if the functions of the bureau should be so enlarged that it could be called upon officially to make investigations and report its conclusions with respect to plans for the voluntary or enforced disintegration of monopolistic combinations.

In a comprehensive review of the anti-trust prosecutions, the attorney general shows that the 17 anti-trust civil suits pending at the beginning of the last fiscal year were augmented by 61 additional actions; while the 11 criminal prosecutions under the same statute were increased by 23 more prosecutions during the last fiscal year.

Eight civil suits and a similar number of criminal trials were brought to conclusion during the year. In

STEREOPTICON URGED FOR SCHOOL

REV. FATHER BARTH IN ADDRESS AT GREEN BAY PRAISES USE OF PICTURES IN TEACHING CHILDREN.

The use of stereopticon pictures and views to aid in teaching school children Christian doctrine, geography and catechism was urged by Rev. F. X. Barth of St. Patrick's church in an address given before the priests of the Green Bay diocese at the Priest's Eucharistic league meeting held at St. Joseph's orphanage Wednesday. Father Barth displayed pictures with his own stereopticon to add force to his words concerning the value of the machine in educating the boys and girls. His subject was "The Power of the Stereopticon in Teaching Christian Doctrine," and he advised that pictures be shown in all the schools to further educational work.

The daily attendance at mass was urged by Rev. Herb of Whitewater in the other address given in the afternoon.

The meeting was attended by about 80 priests. High mass was sung at nine o'clock by Monsignor P. J. Lochman, vicar general of the diocese and an hour was spent in adoration.

SAYS McNAMARAS WERE JUSTIFIED

Professor Ames of Olivet Uphold Acts of Violence by Labor Men--Says Capital Has Done Worse Things

Olivet, Mich., Dec. 14.—That the McNamara brothers and their associates were justified, to a certain extent, in the act which they confessed to having committed, and that although they should be imprisoned because of their menace to society they should not be looked on as criminals, was the opinion expressed by Prof. E. M. Arnos in his course on labor.

Prof. Arnos upholds the acts of violence which labor has committed because, he says, labor is treated in exactly or in worse ways by captains of industry. The Olivet teacher blames the cause for such acts on capital. He contends that such methods as the McNamara brothers used as the only means which are open to labor and such acts are used merely as a last resort. Labor, he said, has been trying for centuries to secure even a pretense of justice and has failed so hopelessly that it sees no im-four of the civil prosecutions judgments were rendered in favor of the United States, while three were lost and one was discontinued. Four convictions were secured until the criminal clause of the statute during the year and four cases were either quashed or discontinued. Declaring that he appreciates that public interest in the Sherman anti-trust law was "even greater" than it was at the date of his last report, the attorney general set forth the following cases as being prosecuted or pending for final settlement: The "powder trust"; the "night rider" cases; United State steel corporation; cotton corner; alleged towing monopoly; beef packers; South-

ANOTHER ROBBERY ON LUDINGTON ST.

THREE PAIRS OF SKATES WERE TAKEN FROM SPORTING GOODS STORE—THREE SIMILAR CASES IN A MONTH.

For the third time in the past couple of months, thieves have broken into stores on Ludington street and taken a few simple things, of little value. This morning upon opening his place for the day's business, Harry Bolger, proprietor of a bicycle and sporting goods store on Ludington street, found that a back window had been broken and that thieves had been prowling about the store during the night. Making a hurried inventory of his stock, Mr. Bolger could find nothing missing except three pairs of skates. There were plenty of other things of value within easy reach of the marauders, but apparently they were satisfied with the skates and left all the other things behind. It is of course, possible that they were disturbed in their work or frightened away before they had secured much of value. There have been three robberies of this kind in Ludington street stores during the past few weeks and there is a great similarity in the methods and work of the thieves in all these cases. The Burke Clothing company and the Jordan Billiard parlors were both visited some time ago and in all three of these robberies, entrance was gained to the buildings by the breaking of a window in the back of the store rooms, on the ground floors. In the Jordan case, there was nothing for the thieves to take, everything being securely locked up, but in both the other cases, there were plenty of valuable articles within reach that were not taken, the thieves contenting themselves with very small hauls.

There have been three robberies of this kind in Ludington street stores during the past few weeks and there is a great similarity in the methods and work of the thieves in all these cases.

The case against Vassil Effenchek, a Russian laborer, employed by the I. Stephenson company, who was arrested by Sheriff Curran Wednesday at Wells, on a warrant sworn out by Thomas Mackaracha, who charges that Effenchek threatened his life with a revolver, was settled out of court this afternoon. The defendant agreed to pay the court and witness fees which amounted to $17.10. Judge Linden took occasion to warn Effenchek not to make any more threats of this nature, and if they should occur again, the court would be very apt to impose a sentence of six months in the county jail. The accused bowed to his honor and in broken English mixed with Russian he promised to "be good" in the future.

Work on Kratze Brothers' new department store on Ludington and Jeanette streets is progressing rapidly. The roof of the structure it is said will be finished Friday afternoon, and plastering will begin next week. The building which is three stories will be in readiness for occupancy about the first of March. Axel Anderson has gone to Bark River for a few days.

BARBER SHOP CHANGES HANDS

EDWIN JERNSTROM SELLS OUT TO JOHN HUGHSON WHO WILL OPERATE THE SHOP AT 506 LUDINGTON STREET.

John Hughson, who has been employed for some time in the barber shop of Theodore St. Peter, today bought out the shop of Edwin Jernstrom at 506 Ludington street and will take possession next Monday. Mr. Hughson says that he will make some repairs and improvements to the shop and continue to operate it on the same lines that have made it one of the most popular barber shops in the city. The shop will be enlarged and entirely remodeled next spring.

MISSING MAN RETURNED

HARRY WALDRON, THE JUROR IN THE HYDE TRIAL WHO DISAPPEARED LAST SUNDAY, HAS BEEN FOUND.

JURY WILL BE DISCHARGED.

In Court This Morning He Told the Judge How He Had Spent the Past Four Days Wandering About in the Country Districts of Kansas to Find Freedom from the Crows.

(By Associated Press.) Kansas City, Dec. 14.—Harry Waldron, the juror whose mysterious disappearance last Sunday blocked the progress of the Hyde trial, was returned to his home today, pale and emaciated from wandering about in the country without food. He was brought into court by his wife who has been in consultation with Judge Porterfield ever since the strange disappearance of her husband. Judge Porterfield has been taking an active part for the past couple days in the return of the absent juror, working secretly in conjunction with Mrs. Waldron.

In court this morning, Waldron told how he had been wandering through the country, searching for "fresh air and freedom from confining walls and staring eyes." He said that the confinement had driven him almost distracted and that it worked upon him so that he felt that he must escape at any cost. After leaving the hotel, he took a street car to Argentine and from there stole a ride on a freight train to Emporia. At this place he read in the papers an account of his escape and the theories of suicide. This made him think of his family and he decided to return home. Waldron declares that he did not discuss the Hyde case with anybody while he was absent from the trial. Judge Porterfield said today that he would dismiss the jury on the grounds that Waldron is not mentally competent to act as a juror. New trial set for January 2nd.

WOODSMEN MAY HAVE HARD WINTER

According to information received at a local employment office, there will be less demand for lumber camp employes this winter, than has been the case for many seasons. The reason for this it is said is due to the fact that work in the woods was begun earlier this year, and so much timber has already been cut, that the various lumber companies have decided that enough trees have been felled until the next spell of sleighing weather. It is believed also that there will not be much snow for some weeks to come and if this belief turns out to be true, great numbers of "lumber jacks" will be minus means of support. Already various firms have discharged many of their camp men.

Mr. Allyn has been with the State Savings bank for the past year and a half and has done a great deal to make that institution what it is today. He came to this city over 20 years ago, from Oberlin, Ohio, and has been identified with the banking business here for many years. Probably no other man can equal his record as a banker or stands higher in the community than Mr. Allyn and the news that he must now give up his career through ill health, has caused a great deal of regret among the

MANUFACTURER SCORES GOMPERS

PRESIDENT OF NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF MANUFACTURERS FLAYS WHAT HE CALLS THE "LABOR TRUST."

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Union labor, President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, and the McNamara brothers were the subjects scheduled for discussion yesterday at the second day's session of the National Business congress.

The bitter attack against union labor made yesterday by Henry M. Wallis of Wisconsin, was followed up by an even more severe arraignment by John Kirby, president of the National Association of Manufacturers. Mr. Kirby attacked President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor and the McNamaras.

Mr. Kirby's subject was announced as "The Relation of Industrial Abuses to Our Foreign and Domestic Trade." Frederick Townsend Martin of New York was on the program at the morning session also for a speech on state insurance.

Mr. Kirby's remarks concerning the "labor trust" as he called the federation, were sharp. He called the federation of labor "Samuel Gompers' monopolistic labor machine," and said organized labor had a "determined policy and methods either to control or ruin the commerce and industries of the country." He said its record and the utterances and acts of its officers "left no shadow of doubt that its policy is to employ any means, no matter how brutal, unlawful or unreasonable," which would produce a condition where workers would be "absolutely at the mercy and dictation of a gigantic and merciless labor trust."

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

A NAPOLEONIC COLONY IN ALABAMA.

By A. W. MACY.

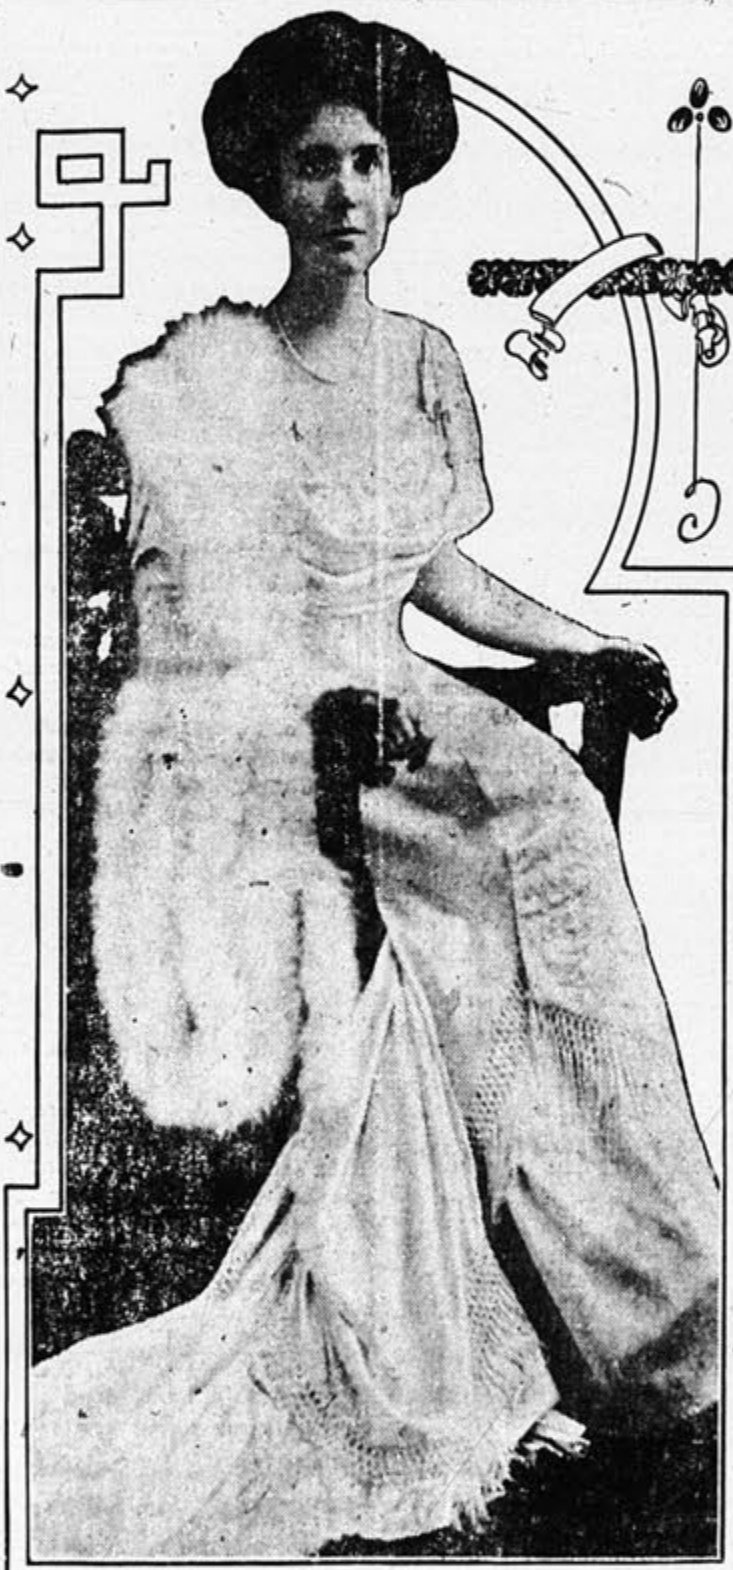

The overthrow of Napoleon and the establishment of a new regime in France was followed by the banishment of many of his prominent followers and supporters. Among them were generals and other officers of high rank, and ladies who had figured prominently in court circles. One group of them came to America, with the idea of establishing a little community of their own, but subject to the jurisdiction of the United States. Congress granted them, by act of March 3, 1817, four townships of land, to be selected by them in the state of Alabama; the conditions being that they should cultivate the vine on one acre in each quarter section, and the olive on another, and at the end of 14 years pay the government $2 an acre for the land. About 400 men and women came over, under the leadership of Marshal Grouchy and General Lefebvre. Most of them settled in two villages, Demopolis and Eaglesville, in what is now Marengo county. Here they lived for several years in quietness and simplicity. But the vine and the olive did not prosper, and the leaders became discouraged. The colony gradually melted away, though it is said the descendants of some of these aristocratic French settlers are still to be found in that region.

OPERATION OF THE MENOMINEE SUGAR COMPANY'S PLANT THIS SEASON WILL END IN ABOUT ELEVEN DAYS.

This season's run of the Menominee Sugar company's plant will end about December 25. The plant may close a day or two before that date or run a little longer.

The season has been unusual in one way. With ordinary weather conditions beets could be kept until next February in suitable condition for manufacture, but this year they are already commencing to show signs of rot. The reason is that they were frozen during the early cold weather, and thawed again during the present weather.

For once the plant has all the beets that it wants for a season because if the company had more beets to manufacture than those now on hand a loss would be sustained through rotting. As it is the supply of beets will all be manufactured before the rotting has caused any loss.

The run this year has been an exceptionally lengthy one, and the output has surpassed that of any other year since the plant has been in operation. The outlook for next year is even better.

STATEMENT OF LIQUOR TAXES

County Treasurer's Report

The following is a full and complete report of taxes collected or received by me, at my office, upon the business of selling or keeping for sale, or manufacturing distilled or brewed or malt liquors during the year ending December 4th, 1911.

Table with columns: Name, Residence, Kind of Business, Place of Doing Business, Amount of Tax Paid, Date of Payment. Lists various taxpayers across different townships like Baldwin, Bark River, Fairbanks, etc.

Continuation of the liquor tax table, listing names like Joseph Charlebois, John Denner, and others with their respective tax amounts and dates.

all ready long before Christmas and there is no necessity of going to the crowded store to battle with irritable clerks who will not give one the right thing. In consequence there will be fewer busy days and worried givers before the Christmas holidays.

Why is it not done? Wanda Howard. After thinking the subject over for a certain length of time, I will give my opinion why people should do their Christmas shopping early.

As the paydays come on the fifth and tenth of each month, so there would be no delay of money in buying your Christmas presents two weeks ahead of time.

We notice when we go in the stores a few days before Christmas we can hardly get waited on, because of the big crowds of people at the stores. So in following my advice I think it would be of great advantage to buy early.

There is an old saying: "First here, first served." I think we could very well apply to this discussion, because when they go to the store about the tenth of the month, when you have just received your money and the dealers have just received their Christmas orders. Then you will be the first to take the choice of his stock. How much better is this than to take your pick after everyone has taken their pick?

After reading this over I think you will agree with me on this subject. Arthur Aroffson. I think it is best to begin your Christmas shopping early because then you can avoid the Xmas rush. But the majority only begin their Christmas shopping about a week or a little more before, then as there is such a rush you forget what you want to get and when the time comes to send away the presents or give them away, well, then you have forgotten someone and then you'll hurry down town and then maybe not get what you want. Another reason is that you'll get so nervous you won't know what to get.

Sometimes you might hear things like this: "It is so hard to find something for my cousins;" "I don't think I will ever find what I want;" "I believe I've lost ten dollars;" "I don't know what to get grandmother;" But this is what the clerks here most every day during Christmas shopping and this makes them tired and cranky and everyone wants to be waited on first.

But if you start early you get time to think what you want to get and have time to make things yourself. But at least you need not be in a hurry and a rush, so I warn you to begin early. Astrid Dahlberg.

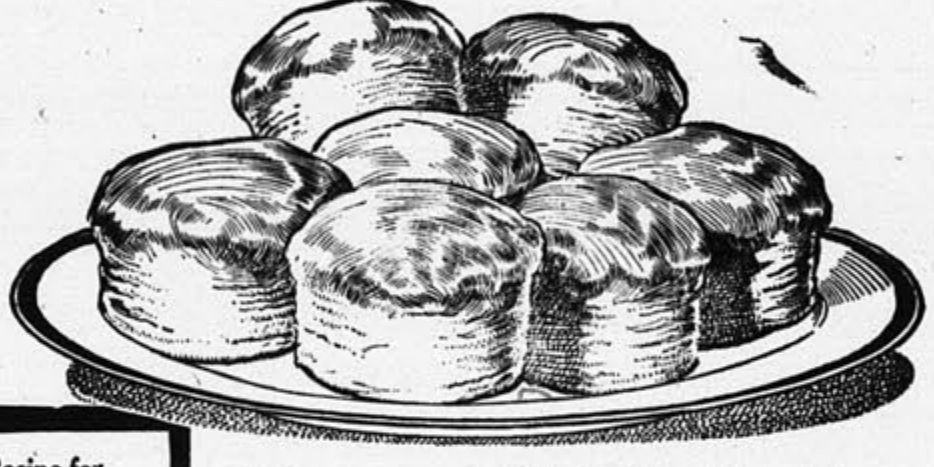

MAY BE NO MORE WORLD SERIES

AMERICAN AND NATIONAL LEAGUES ARE LIKELY TO SEVER THEIR RELATIONS AND NEVER PLAY POST SEASON GAMES.

New York, Dec. 14.—The American league magnates, in session here, today adopted resolutions severing certain relations with the National league which it is said might lead to the possible elimination of future world's series ball games. This action was taken closely following controversies between the officials of both leagues relative to the so-called ticket scandal. The resolution follows:

"Resolved, That the American league will continue to exercise its privileges and observe its obligations under the national agreement, but will decline to have further official intercourse with the National league except so far as may be requisite for the safeguarding of its territorial and player rights. Be it further resolved, that the American league will not be represented in another series for the championship of the world or in any other interleague event, unless accorded sole charge of the sale of tickets to the games played on its grounds, under an arrangement and with the understanding that it shall not assume responsibility for the conduct of the business department of the games at the parks of the other clubs contesting."

F. J. Farrel of New York introduced the resolution, copies of which were sent to President Lynch of the National league and the national commission. Major league club owners said tonight they did not believe that the "break" would threaten a baseball war, pointing out that it would not involve the national agreement.

DO YOUR XMAS SHOPPING EARLY

Most everyone takes an interest in their Christmas shopping, so why not do it early? The value of doing your shopping early is that you get what you want and you also avoid the rush. Do not wait until a day or two before Christmas for shopping. Do it now.

It always seems a pleasure to have what you want for your friends and by doing it early you are sure you have what will both please them and yourself also. Another point scored in doing it early is that you do not give presents that do not suit your taste. A business man or a business woman will always tell you the same. Well if my readers are wise they will adopt this bit of advice. I do not only think, but I know that the early buyers will come out many points ahead of the later buyers. They will also leave the later buyers to repent at leisure for not adopting the advice of a school friend.

Margaret O'Donnell. As we are requested to discuss on the theme "Why We Should Do Our Christmas Shopping Early," I will give my best reasons why I think Christmas shopping should be done early.

Near Christmas there is always some shopping to be done in every household. This shopping should be done early so that you can have your choice and need not worry about not getting what you want. The clerks are not so busy and can give you proper attention. By doing your shopping early you save the clerks from having to do all the work on Christmas eve. You also avoid large crowds that are always at a store near Christmas. In these crowds you sometimes drop a package or parcel which you can not recover. Besides this the stores are sometimes short of stock and before these can be received Christmas has come and it is too late to purchase and many children are disappointed. Therefore it is best to do your Christmas shopping early. Rudie Lambert.

The question of early Christmas shopping is one which is worth while considering. Merchants and clerks throughout the country have long wished that the people would follow this rule. Both the people and the clerks would benefit by it. The first persons to be considered are the clerks. By shopping early they are saved from the usual rush of the week which precedes Christmas. Many clerks are unable to enjoy this holiday as it should be and all because of the sickening rush of the Christmas shoppers.

On the other hand the people would receive the attention which they require while shopping. They would also have the largest assortment of things from which to choose the desired articles, while those who wait until the last minute can only get the things that the others did not care to buy. So we see that the early shopping helps both the people and the clerks. Elizabeth Nelson.

People who are wise, do their Christmas shopping early. Many people do not realize or think that by doing their Christmas shopping early, they will avoid a rush, which happens in the week before Christmas; also if a person wants to get a certain thing, he or she must come early and they will be able to get what they want and also get a better chance to see what he is getting. In large cities, where there are many people, people should do their Christmas shopping early because in those large cities the crowds of people are so great that many people are killed, and some injured. Then again it would save the clerks, in stores, much trouble and save them from making some bad mistakes. Raymond Bredahl.

The subject of early Christmas shopping has been much discussed in the past few years, although few have been wise enough to apply it to themselves. Its being a better thing for the shop-girl is well understood. Imagine standing in one place and facing a crowd of people who all want the same thing at once! It's enough to make them irritable, and so it does. That is bad for the business, however, for customers must be treated kindly and thoughtfully, no matter how rude and thoughtless they may be. On the other hand it is better for this same customer. The gifts are

ENGLAND'S SERVANT PROBLEM.

Many an American woman who has had difficulty in getting or keeping good servants looks with envy across the Atlantic. She heard much about— in some cases she has seen—the efficiency of housekeeping in England and on the continent, where maids are reputed to be cheap and plentiful. But the complaint in England of late has been very much like that in the United States—that servants are hard to get and to hold, while their cost has increased greatly with the general rise in the cost of living.

Now the committee of the Women's Industrial Council is about to undertake a widespread investigation of domestic service, with the ends in aim of making servants more efficient, bringing about their organization and co-operation, and improving their material conditions, says the Chicago Record-Herald. The committee will seek, it is said, the establishment of public training in domestic service, minimum wages according to grade as determined by examination and certificate, the raising of the school age to 16, and official inspection of kitchens and sleeping-rooms. If these changes are carried through it is predicted that the status of the domestic servant in England will be raised as much as the modern nurse has been lifted above her Salre Gamp prototype of Dickens' days.

The health commissioner of Chicago would like to abolish the gongs on ambulances, saying that they are nuisances and incentives to violation of the speed ordinance. A gong has no place on an ambulance for the sick, he declares, and there is no sense in having to rouse the entire community when going after a patient. All of which indicates that the commissioner has a level head. He might have added that not once in a thousand times it is necessary to exercise frantic haste in conveying the patient to the hospital, the ailing occupant of the vehicle being the better in 999 cases for a moderate pace.

There will be, it is announced, no attempt this year to cross the Atlantic ocean. In view of all the fatalities which have happened in the attempted conquest of the air, it is reassuring to note an instance in which prudence is by no means the pusillanimous virtue which some rash ones hold it. On the contrary, courage could accomplish more if it took the hard common sense plan, as has been done in this case, of having prudence for a running mate. The two are not at all incompatible.

The Journal of the American Medical Association warns against the use of thyroid as an obesity cure. It is dangerous because it reduces protein as well as fat, and has been known to bring on serious illness. Most cases of undue weight are due to overeating, or lack of sufficient exercise, or both. The safest treatment for obesity is abstemiousness combined with exercise—not too violent, for that might injure the heart.

CHAPTER XXVII.

"Danny . . ." said O'Rourke without looking up from the occupation which had engrossed his attention for the last three hours; and for the first time in that period he spoke audibly, making an end to the mumbled confabulation he had been holding with himself, a Murray's Guide, a Bradshaw, an Indian railway guide, several steamship folders and a large colored map of the Indian Empire.

"What day's this day, Danny?" Danny thought laboriously. "Twas this morn' we lift th' Ranees, sor?" "This yestiddy was Wednesday."

"And today Thursday, be logical progress of reasoning, eh?" "Aw, yiss, sor."

"And what's the time?" Danny consulted O'Rourke's watch on the bureau. "A quarter of twelve."

"Then bestir yourself, ye lazy good-for-nothing, and pick up me things."

"Aw!" cried Danny, expostulating. "Our train leaves at two. Ye have an hour and a half."

"Aw, but yer honor, is it no rist at all we'll ever be havin'?" "Ye can rest on the train," said O'Rourke. "I've just ten days left in which to reach Rangoon, where I've an appointment to keep with a lady, Danny, to wit, Madame O'Rourke. D'ye mind her, and do ye blame me, Danny?"

Danny became suddenly extraordinarily busy. "Why did ye not say as much to begin with, yer honor?" he complained. "As if I wouldn't work me hands to the stumps at yim."

"Tis now Thursday noon," continued O'Rourke thoughtfully. "The two o'clock train's scheduled to land us in Calcutta at ten Saturday night."

At eight Sunday morning a steamer leaves Diamond Harbor for Rangoon, scheduled for a fair-weather passage of three days, barring accidents. But we've lo time to waste."

"But how'll we be catching that steamer at D'mind Harbor, sor? How far's that from Calcutta, now, an' will there be thrains at that hour av the night?"

"That's to be dealt with as it turns up, Danny. There's only forty miles between the two places, and if there's no train, we'll charter a motor-car or a boat down the Hughli."

The latter expedient O'Rourke finally adopted, although he could have afforded a comfortable night in a hotel at Calcutta, had he deemed it wise. But in the fifty-six hours of unmitigated sweating that he and Danny endured in their flight across India he had leisure to think matters over very carefully, with the result that, all things considered, he felt justified in assuming the world to be in his league against him and in shaping his course accordingly. Therefore it were unwise to permit himself to be seen and recognized in Calcutta, or even to linger on the soil of India an instant longer than absolutely necessary.

Within an hour, then, of his arrival at Howrah, he had, by dint of persistence and ruses, succeeded in hiring a launch to take him from the terminus by water to the steamer at Diamond harbor—

CHAPTER XXVIII.

At a small hour of the morning they made Diamond Harbor in pitch darkness and without misadventure were successful in causing themselves to be transhipped, bag and baggage, to the twinser steamship Poonah, which vessel rode at anchor in midstream.

Toward eight o'clock of the white-hot forenoon that followed, O'Rourke, in the shadow of a long-boat on the Poonah's promenade deck, stood finishing a matutinal cigar and watching narrowly a tender ferry out a final boatload of passengers from the eastern river bank.

Slowly the tender forged toward the steamer's side; and as it drew near, O'Rourke forgot to smoke and bent over the rail to inspect with unremitting interest those upon its decks.

The forward deck of the tender held his regard but briefly; those who waited there, eying impassively the towering flanks of the liner, were one and all of the east, of races, creeds and types too numerous to catalogue. These the adventurer might not read, save individually upon personal contact. If trouble was to come from them, collectively or individually, he would not know until the blow had fallen. On the other hand, he might be able to hazard shrewd surmises as to the potential animus inherent in any one of the Europeans who were to be his fellow passengers.

The latter were a mere handful; half a dozen commercial travelers from London, Paris, Berlin, their avocations evident beyond dispute; a slow English missionary with his withered wife, sombre figures in the stark sunlight, a red-faced deputy-sub-something-or-other of the Indian government, complexion in white drill and new pith helmet with a gay gurgaree; a lone English girl, and a Frenchman.

The two latter held the Irishman's attention; the girl because, even at a distance, her slim white-clothed figure and well-poised head seemed singularly fresh and attractive; the man because—well, because O'Rourke was susceptible to premonitions.

He was a tall man and broad, the Frenchman—well-made, well-groomed, carrying himself with an indomitable air of distinction. His face was rather pale (and therefore notable in that concourse of dark skins), its features strongly modeled, the mouth and chin masked by a neatly trimmed and pointed beard and mustache.

O'Rourke could not have said that he had ever seen the man before; yet there was this and that about him which struck a spark of reminiscence from his memory. A suspicion flashed through his mind which he put aside with disdain, as absurd and far-fetched. On the other hand, . . . He knit his brows in concentration.

The very . . . record draw the eye to . . . The ly in an unveiled, inquiring stare in which there was not to be detected the least hint of recognition, and passed onward casually, indifferently, ignoring the impertinence.

The tender's passengers began to stumble up the gang-plank to a lower deck of the liner; and O'Rourke, with a sober face, went below, taking some care to avoid contact with the incoming crowd.

He found Danny in his stateroom, engaged with some details of repair to the adventurer's wardrobe.

O'Rourke remained for a brief space standing in the middle of the cabin, visibly abstracted. Then abruptly some whimsical consideration seemed to resolve his dubiety—as lightning will clear sultry, brooding air; a smile deepened the corners of his mouth, the flicker in his eye merged magically into a twinkle, the shrug of his broad shoulders conveyed an impression of casting care to the winds.

"Danny, lad," he remarked reflectively, throwing himself ungracefully upon the cushioned transom opposite to his berth. "Danny, ye wouldn't lie to me, would ye now?"

"Aw-w!" replied Danny. "Shure, yer honor knows it isn't in me at all. And to himself: "Phat the divvie now?"

"Then tell me, Danny, truthfully; did ye ever see a ghost?"

"Aw-w!"—seeing cause to take the query as a joke.

"A ghost that had grown a beard since it had become a ghost, Danny?" "Aw-w-w!"—still willing to be amused, if "himself" chose to be facetious.

"Because," continued O'Rourke with a slight frown, "I have, and that not five minutes since."

"Aw!"

"Wance I left a man for dead, Danny, with a clean sword-thrust through the body of him—a misbegotten black-guard he was; but I killed him in fair fight, sword to sword, and no favor. . . . And this bright and beautiful morning, lo and behold ye! who should come tripping up the gang-plank but his ghost, as lively as ye please, and with a neat new beard!"

"Aw-w!"—incredulously.

O'Rourke frowned impatiently. "Des Trebes," he explained.

"Aw—"

"Stop it, ye parrot! Stop it, I say! Have ye no word in the dark lexicon of your ignorance other than 'Aw-w'?" Get up, ye omadhaun, and take me respects to the purser and ask him please will he show ye the passenger-list."

A lone, O'Rourke and turned thoughtfully to a revolver that made a conspicuous black spot on the white counterpane of the berth, with nervous, strong fingers unlimbering the weapon and taking account of the brass dials of the cartridges that nestled snug in its six-chambered cylinder. The machine was in perfect condition; O'Rourke snapped the breech shut and thrust it in his pocket. Then he sat down to think, subconsciously aware from noises off that the tender had swung with the anchor was being tripped.

Could the resemblance be accidental? It seemed hardly possible. The Des Trebes he had known had been a type distinct, so clear and aloof from the general Frenchman that not even the addition of a beard to his physiognomy could have proven a thorough disguise. And it seemed reasonable enough to assume that, Mrs. Fryne having failed in her undertaking, Des

There would resume his office as active head of their conspiracy. If it were indeed he whom O'Rourke had just seen, there was every chance imaginable that the final chapter in the history of the Irishman's connection with the Pool of Flame would prove an eventful one.

"Maybe I do," admitted O'Rourke. "Maybe I deceive meself. But I'm persuaded I'll do well to keep both me eyes open until the day I'm rid of the damned thing!"

At this juncture Danny's knock took him to the door. "Monsere Raoul de Hyeres," announced the valet breathlessly. "Is that the purser says his name is, yer honour?"

"Yes," assented O'Rourke dubiously. "But perhaps the purser's mistaken—misinformed."

Forty-six prosecutions for illegal discriminations and rebates were instituted against railroads during the year. The attorney general urges the amendment of the 28 hour law governing the railroad transportation of live stock by imposing an imprisonment penalty for its violation. The vigorous enforcement of the customs laws, the attorney general says, resulted in the recovery of $2,120,000 in duties out of which the government had been defrauded. The white slave traffic act, now a year and a half old, is having a salutary effect, in the judgment of Mr. Wickersham. The statute was diligently enforced throughout the country, he avers, with most satisfactory result. One hundred and forty-five prosecutions were had, resulting in 76 convictions, 14 acquittals and 10 nolle prossed or otherwise discontinued. Forty-five cases are pending. Sentences imposed ranged from a few months in jail to 10 years in the penitentiary. Mr. Wickersham calls attention to the discovery of extensive irregularities and in some cases actual dishonesty in offices of clerks of the United States courts. No effective reform, he declares, can be accomplished until the power of removing the clerks is taken from the judges and lodged in the president and the clerks paid a specific sum, instead by the fees system. Declaring that many of the jails where federal prisoners are confined are wholly unsuitable for the detention of human beings and "are shocking breeding places of crime," the attorney general recommends the appointments of a commission to inquire into the conditions. This commission also would consider the general treatment of juvenile and first offenders. The attorney general also recommends that the federal government be given the right to bring an action against individual or corporation in any part of the country without restriction as to the place of residence of the individual or the home state of the corporation. The attorney general also recommends a general immunity statute, numerous laws for Alaska and a civil service retirement law.

SAYS M'NAMARAS WERE JUSTIFIED

(Continued from page one.) diate chances through the courts or through the avenues of legislation. Prof. Arnos does not describe the dynamiting of the Times building as a blood thirsty act, but asserts that the act was done to secure better conditions for the laborer after failing in practically every other method to benefit the workers' condition. It was the speaker's contention that the bloodthirsty part of the program was principally on the side of the industrial captains, and he pointed out the great loss of life which the laboring class suffered "because of the lust of capital for money and because of their selfish greed in not taking preventative actions to safeguard the laborer." Prof. Arnos mentioned the great loss of life in the mining and structural steel and iron industries, the electrical trade, lead and phosphorus poisoning, and the slaughter by the American railroads. "All the McNamaras and all like them, but also imprison the captains of industry who are destroying society and are committing greater crimes every hour than labor will ever be able to perform. Labor is merely using capital's own method in attempting to secure some rights, and the only reason that the acts of labor appear so criminal is that they are not sanctioned by the government as are the murderers which capital is allowed to commit," he said. "It is the unfair and inhumane treatment which labor has been forced to suffer that has driven them mad and it is little wonder that they break forth in rebellion and violent opposition. "It is seemingly forgotten by the laborers that their destruction of capital is more destructive to themselves than to their enemies. Any capital which is destroyed ruins the instruments through which the demand for labor is created and thus by destroying capital, labor decreases its chances of employment, and wages are thus lowered." It is the opinion of the Olivet professor that the only real value which the recent McNamara case will have will be to put before the minds of the American people "the great" industrial outrage which is being enacted in this country, and will instigate research and study along lines tending to diminish these great evils and injustices.

Furnishing Change. "Five dollars in change to be sent around to her house within five minutes, that was all the woman living at No. 211 in the next street wanted," said the New York grocer. "Not even a cake of soap to go with it as a guarantee of good faith—just the $5. I thought I had got so used to cheeky requests that nothing could surprise me in that line, but the change proposition did give me something of a jolt. A cheap peddler had called with something she wanted to buy; she was afraid to trust him with the money to go out and get the change; she couldn't leave the house herself, and she had nobody to send, so she just telephoned around so she could get 75 cents in change. Yes, we sent it because she buys things here once in a while, but I hope other women in the neighborhood won't get the habit."

H. H. ALLYN RESIGNS

men of the city who have known him so well in both a business and social way.

When interviewed this morning, Mr. Allyn said that although his resignation had been accepted, he would remain with the bank until the first of the year in order to train his successor, Charles W. Malloch, who has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

Just what Mr. Allyn intends to do, he has not as yet decided upon, but anticipates going into the woods and living an outdoor life that will remove him far from confinement and worries of business and give him a full return of the physical health that he has given as a part of the payment for business success.

Charles W. Malloch, register of deeds for Delta county, has been appointed as cashier of the State Savings bank and will assume his duties about January 1st. Business men all over the city today expressed their approval of the choice made by the directors of the bank and seem to feel that Mr. Malloch is just the man to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Mr. Allyn.

A bloody hatchet was found in the barn, but no motive for the crime can be discovered. Ed. Dennis, a farm hand, is missing and is being sought by the police. The bodies of the women were found last night and that of the son, this morning.

downtown district, and just how his nomination would be regarded by the men whose influence had always been sought at such times.

The canvass was informal and had to do mainly with the effort to see how Roosevelt would stand in comparison with Mr. Taft, and what the big men really thought of him as a "last resort candidate" in the next campaign.

The test was interesting for the reason that it was undertaken largely by men who fought Roosevelt bitterly at the time he was seeking to elect his gubernatorial candidate, H. L. Stimson.

Indiana For Roosevelt.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Colonel Henry S. New of Indiana, newly elected chairman of the committee on arrangements of the Republican national convention, today gave out a statement answering that made by Chairman Lee of the Indiana Republican state central committee in which Mr. Lee declared President Taft could not carry Indiana in the election next year. Colonel New charges that Mr. Lee issued his statement as a part of a prearranged plan and says he knows the influences back of it. "If Mr. Taft cannot carry Indiana no other Republican can," said Colonel New.
