MONEY LOSS THREE MILLION

A Hundred Car Loads of Oil is Burned in Grove to Try and Save The Crops Now Growing

(By Associated Press)
Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7.—The hopes of the orange and lemon growers are blasted by the low temperatures of the past few days. It is now estimated by the citrus men that the loss will reach three million dollars.
In an effort to save the crops that are now nearing maturity upon the trees, oil fires were used extensively throughout the district. A hundred car loads of oil was burned for this purpose last night and it is thought that in some cases the fruit was saved.

ELECTRIFY WESTERN RAILROAD IS PLAN

(By Associated Press)
Washington, Jan. 7.—What Secretary Fisher believes is the beginning of the electrification of all transcontinental railroads was marked today by a government grant to the Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound railroad to transmit power over the public domain under strict government regulations for the purpose of furnishing power for 450 miles of track of that system between Harlowtown, Mont., and Avery, Idaho. The name of the power company is known as The Great Falls Power Company and it is really to this latter corporation that the grant was given.

MARINE DISASTER SHOCKS ASTORIA

Sailors Go to Their Deaths While Plainly Visible to Crowds Who Are Unable to Save Them

Astoria, Oregon, Jan. 7.—Only three men were left of the 36 that were seen clinging to the rigging of the oil steamer Rosecrans that went on a reef near here in a fifty mile wind storm. Repeatedly efforts were made to save them, but nothing could be accomplished in the mountain high sea that was running. At three o'clock this afternoon all but three of the men had given up, through cold or deliberately jumped into the ocean. It is not thought that the three survivors can last a great time longer.

FISHERMEN PUZZLED

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE MUST GO TO SAGINAW BAY TO SEARCH FOR THE WANTED ANSWER

WATER SHRINKS THEIR NETS

But That's Only One of The Many Kicks Which Cause Solons to Sit Up and Take Notice

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 7.—The fisheries committee of the legislature are predestined to enjoy the biennial fishing excursion, and dear old Saginaw bay, which never fails to raise a legislative storm as choppy as those that disturb its own watery bosom, will again be the cause.

The pond net men will come down with a proposition as involved as an unsolvable puzzle, relative to the size of the mesh of their nets and the fish that slip—or rather can't slip through.

Net fishermen declare water will shrink fishing twine and the supreme court has held that the size of the mesh when the net was bought is what goes when the commercial fishermen are held before a justice to pay fines for using a mesh smaller than the law prescribes.

Water Shrinks Nets

The fisherman buys a net with a two-inch mesh. Next year the game warden comes along and his rule shows the mesh to be 1 3/4 inches. Now, the fishermen can't start with a 2 1/2-inch mesh and permit the water to reduce it to legal size. And when they buy the legal size net, the water makes it impossible for a yearling fish to break through.

SNOWSLIDE COSTS LIVES OF THREE

Sandon, B. C., Jan. 7.—Six men were caught in a snowslide on the mountain 2000 feet above the Noble Five mine. Three of them are dead and their bodies cannot be recovered. The other three men escaped in what seems to be a miraculous manner. Buried in thousands of tons of snow, they came down the side of the mountain in great mass of snow that carried everything before it. When they reached the foot of the mountain the three of them found that instead of being buried under the snow they were in some manner on the top of the great pile that was lodged in the valley.

San Francisco, Jan. 7.—Direct competition that will be national in its scope between the Wells Fargo Express company and the federal parcel post system will become effective as soon as the plans which have been maturing for the past four years can be completed by the express company. It is said that the express rate will be as cheap as parcel post in all cases and much cheaper in many.

MADMAN FOUGHT

PETER LINDBERG CAUSED SHERIFF CURRAN NO END OF TROUBLE ON THE WAY TO NEWBERRY

HAD TO BE STRAPPED TO SEAT

After a Hard Fight the Sheriff Strapped His Prisoner Securely and Ended Trouble

Sheriff Curran says that he will never again take chances with an insane person. Yesterday morning when he started for Newberry with Peter Lindberg, he supposed that the man would give little trouble, for he left the jail willingly and made no trouble until he was put on the street car and then the excitement started.

Lindberg wanted to get off the car and wanted to break things up generally. He had not even been handcuffed by the sheriff and when he started the fuss, it took all of the sheriff's time to handle him. Aided by the street car employes, the man was handcuffed and was quiet until taken on board the train at North Escanaba. He did not seem to care for traveling and again started trouble. This time it was necessary for Sheriff Curran to strap him securely. All the way to the hospital Lindberg made trouble and Sheriff Curran says that it was one of the hardest days he has put in since he was sheriff.

In talking over the handling of insane people this morning, Sheriff Curran said, "I never like to handcuff or strap up a person suffering from insanity. It always seems pitiful to me to see a person that has lost their reasoning powers and I never resort to extreme measures unless it is necessary for the protection of the patient himself as well as a precaution against him doing harm to some innocent person."

HOME DAMAGED BY SMOKE AND FIRE

Fire Department Handle The Blaze With The Chemical Outfit And Do Little Damage

The fire department was called to the corner of Wells avenue and Elmore streets this morning to put out a fire that had started in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Henry. When the firemen arrived the house was filled with smoke and it was almost impossible to locate the seat of the trouble. After windows had been opened and the smoke cleared away, it was found that the blaze had started from the stove and spread to two of the rooms. Considerable damage was done to the household goods including a piano, the case of which was very badly burned. The fire department used the chemical engine saving considerable property by not soaking it with water.

YOCKEY IS IN OFFICE

FORMER ESCANABA BOY ASSUMES DUTIES OF DISTRICT ATTORNEY OF MILWAUKEE COUNTY

HE HAS MADE NO PLEDGES

Tells The People That he is For Them and With Them and Will Try and Do Right

Edward Yockey, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Yockey of this city is now the district attorney of Milwaukee county and in his statement to the public, made at the time of taking the oath of office he promised them a good clean administration of the affairs of the county. He has already appointed his assistants and has taken up the work of the county. Some of the ideas expressed in his statement follow:

"In assuming the responsibilities and duties as district attorney of Milwaukee county, I desire to renew the pledges made the people in the platform upon which I was elected and contained in declarations made personally by me during the campaign. It will be my earnest and honest endeavor to administer the affairs of this office with an aggressive policy against crime and criminals and without personal or political favoritism or discrimination.

"Professions and activities against crime for political effect, or the prosecution of crime upon any basis of personal prejudices against individuals, is a misuse of the powers of this office. There is no such degree of civic uprighteousness in Milwaukee county and no wave of criminality so engaging as can justify the misuse of official power or authority. Criminals should be and will be prosecuted with all the vigor at the command of this (Continued on page 5.)

Studebaker

More, We Believe,
Than $885 Has Ever Bought Before

STUDEBAKER "25" $885

The design and chassis construction of the Studebaker "25" is precisely similar to both the Studebaker "35" and the Studebaker "Six." In quality of chassis material, methods of manufacture and care in inspection the "25" is identical with the higher priced Studebaker cars.

Because of these facts alone the Studebaker "25" is taken out of comparison with other cars of the same price. In every essential of automobile construction it is as good as the Studebaker "35" and "Six," and that means as good as any cars can be built.

In proportion to its weight of 1750 pounds the "25" has extraordinary power. For ease in handling, "roadability," we do not believe it is surpassed by any car at any price.

Moreover, the finely upholstered and deeply cushioned seats are extremely comfortable. There is no swaying across the road at speed as is frequently the case with light cars. The body is of handsome design, with ample room in the tonneau of three passengers. Notice the close resemblance to our other cars.

As in all Studebaker cars, everything has been made convenient. We have equipped the car with a gas primer, which altogether does away with the objection to hand cranking.

The Studebaker Jiffy controls on the "25" are very handy, and from the spark and throttle controls, which are on the steering column, to the 30x3 1/2 inch Goodrich tires, everything about the car is of the best quality, and will appeal to the purchaser who knows automobile value when he sees it.

We have built the "25" not only for the buyer who delights in accessories, but for the great American people who want an unflinching, handsome, enduring car at a price within everyone's reach.

The "25" is the kind of a car a man ought to buy, because it conforms in every way to the high standards of Studebaker reputation and Studebaker practice.

WEATHER CONDITIONS
Low temperatures still prevail west of the Mississippi River, but it is beginning to moderate in the far northwest. Colder weather is slowly advancing eastward, but seasonable temperatures were again reported this morning from most of the country east of the Mississippi River, the principal change to colder having occurred over the west Gulf states. This retardation of the western cold wave has been due principally to an area of low pressure central over the Ohio Valley, which is sustaining moderate temperatures and causing unsettled weather with rains and snows over a large portion of the East. Fair weather is indicated for this vicinity for tonight and Wednesday, with slightly warmer Wednesday.

IS BASKETBALL ON THE WANE?

Eastern College Critics Think Roughness Is Killing Sport.

"MAKE THE GAME CLEANER!"

Cry Is Sent Up by Lovers of Fast Contest—Suggestions Made For Speeding of Play—Is Much Cleaner in the Middle West.

By TOMMY CLARK.

Is basketball to live on its merits, or will it eventually be abandoned by the larger colleges now playing the game in the east? It is the general impression among collegians that the game is waning fast and losing many of its staunchest supporters.

"Make the game cleaner," has been the slogan for several years. The recent action of the rulemakers indicates that the trend of their activities is in the above direction.

The novel scheme of numbering the players, such as will rule this season, appears to basketball rooters a good idea both from the spectators' and officials' viewpoint.

Quicker play, too, is the rule, and this appears to be another good move for improvement. In these lively days spectators demand speed and unless they get it show no disposition to enthuse.

Basketball players in the west are not experiencing the trouble with rough work that has threatened to ruin the game in the east, according to Chicago critics.

GOULDING SETS 12 RECORDS.

Walker Leads All Rivals in Matter of Setting New Marks.

At the head of the 1912 record breakers is George Goulding, the great walker of Toronto. He hung up twelve new world's marks in this country this year.

But while Goulding and Kramer lead in the number of new marks, the feats accomplished by James Edward Meredith of Mercersburg academy, George Horne of the University of California and M. S. Wright of Dartmouth university stood out as the best.

The athlete who made the most spectacular and phenomenal records was James Thorpe of Carlisle Indian school. He hung up new marks for the all-around championship of America and the pentathlon and decathlon, the two all round contests of the Olympic games.

"HOBEY" BAKER HANDS OUT A NEAT KNOCK.

"Hobe" Baker, the renowned football star, was lurching in his native Philadelphia.

A young girl over her pear salad mentioned the name of the Princeton sophomore who had played rather badly on his class team.

"He is an awfully nice boy," she said. "What was it he played on the eleven. Mr. Baker—half-back, quarterback, fullback?"

"The handsome and heroic 'Hobe' smiled.

"I think he played drawback," he said.

HOW JIM THORPE STARTED.

While in Overalls He Surprised Coach by His Skill.

Indian athletes of exceptional ability have been numerous in the last decade, but there is one today who is the athletic marvel of the age. James Thorpe, a Sac and Fox Indian, is that individual. Thorpe is distinctively a Carlisle product.

There isn't a thing in an athletic way that Thorpe cannot do and do it as well as the best, and incidentally he is one of the most learned Indians at Carlisle. Thorpe is at home in any event on the track and field, is the pitcher of the ball nine, left halfback on the football team, a forward on the lacrosse team, center on the basket ball team and a member of any other team that should happen

CHARACTER STUDY OF JIM THORPE. along at Carlisle. And he captains every team he plays on. He is also an expert shot and likes to hunt.

One day in the early spring of 1908 there was the usual vast bunch of Indians doing stunts on the Indian athletic field. A few feet away from the high jumping standards was a little Indian, very much interested. He was dressed in overalls and a blue blouse, just as he had come out of the shop in which he was learning a trade.

When the high jumpers were through they went away without taking down the crossbar. The little Indian walked up to the bar and then he bent it for it was higher than his head. Then he walked back a few paces and surveyed the bar. Taking a short run, he leaped and easily cleared the cross-piece. The height was five feet eight inches. There was some one else watching the Indian in the work clothes. The spectator was Glen Warner. The latter had been watching the high jumpers from a distance and noticed the name of the Indian and went out a distance as the Indian came away, and he never let his gaze wander.

The lad had no more than landed on Mother Earth than Warner was saying in his own mind, "There, son, Indian go over that bar in the crossbar and get a try in it and you will be a right big hero." And that day in the Thorpe has continued to grow and improve. He was five feet seven inches in height at that time and weighed 127 pounds. He now weighs 180 pounds and is five feet eleven and three-quarters in height. And since then he has cleared six feet four inches in height.

San Juan to Have Race Course. John J. Gray, acting as a scout for the Porto Rican government, recently arrived in New York for a conference with August Belmont and other members of the Jockey club.

GREAT SWIMMING MATCH IN SIGHT

Charles M. Daniels May Oppose Duke Kahananoku.

In Recent 100 Yard Swim "Human Fish" Came Within One-fifth Second of Old Record—Daniels Will Not Enter Competition Again.

No item of swimming news has in years created such a stir in aquatic circles as the recent report that a match race of a hundred yards would take place this season between C. M. Daniels, the idol of American watermen, and Duke Kahananoku, the Olympic hundred meter champion and record holder. Ever since the lanky Hawaiian broke into the limelight about a year ago followers of natation in this country have been eager to see him pitted against the great Mercury foot paddler, whom they still looked upon as undefeated. Unfortunately Daniels had already announced his permanent retirement from the competitive field, for his many business and social engagements no longer permitted his training, and he refused to reconsider his decision. It looks now, however, as if the meeting would be arranged.

Recently Daniels went to New York from Buffalo, where he is living, and paid a visit to the New York Athletic club natatorium. He had not done any swimming in some time, and curiously about his form led him to go a hundred yard trial under the watch. To the surprise of himself and every one present he tore off the century in 54.15 seconds, within one-fifth of the best time he ever made in the slow local pool. Immediately his old team mates clustered around him, begging him to consent to devote just one more session to the sport that he might try conclusions with Kahananoku.

He was at first obdurate, but so insistent were his friends that he finally agreed to do some work and take on the island in a friendly match. If the latter were willing, of re-entering open competition he would not hear. Still, a match is a match, and whether held privately or publicly it will just the same prove a test of supremacy.

Joseph Ruddy of the New York Athletic club's swimming committee has received a letter from Kahananoku saying that he will be back in the United States some time in February, and as the Hawaiian is nothing if not a good sportsman Ruddy anticipates no difficulty in getting him to face Daniels, and he hopes to pull off the sensational event in the home club.

That Daniels is as fast as ever there can be no doubt, and many are confident that if he trains properly the world's indoor record of 55.25 seconds is at his mercy. Kahananoku has been unable to touch this mark in a pool, but his open water times are better than Daniels'. To the unbiased observer there is little choice between the two men at the classic distance, but the feeling is prevalent among the fans that Daniels has never had to exert himself to win and that when the time comes to defeat his formidable rival he will rise to the occasion as he always has.

First Term of the United States Court At Soo

The First of Two Newly Created Terms For The Northern Division Will be Held Commencing Next Tuesday—People of The Soo Seem Fortunate in Getting Things

The first term of United States district and circuit courts for the Eastern sub-district of the Northern division of Michigan will open Jan. 14, at the Soo. The session will be held in the recently finished customs building, and will be first result of the movement to give the Soo what its citizens consider their just share of the government's judicial activities. Formerly there were but two terms of court in the Northern division, both at Marquette, but a recent enactment of congress has doubled the number of terms, and two sessions of court will hereafter be held at the Lock City.

Other Changes Expected. Federal officers in Marquette are inclined to believe that the charges will mean a gradual separation of the offices in the upper peninsula, and there is a notion that the Soo is out after the office of the collector of customs of the Superior district. The Soo has an advantage over Marquette in court matters, since a large number of cases annually have their origin there. Any case in the Northern district may be taken up at any session of court within the jurisdiction, and it is possible that many cases formerly argued in the two sessions of court in this city may be transferred to the Soo. This would cut down materially the amount of business transacted by the court in Marquette, and there is some doubt whether the department of justice will see fit to continue the terms in this city.

By the creation of two additional terms for the Northern division, court business can be transacted more expeditiously than heretofore. As an example, the grand jury at the Soo will consider cases that have originated in all parts of the district, including many that formerly were brought up in Marquette, and the disposition of these cases will have a direct effect upon the criminal docket for the Marquette terms.

Change in Dates. In the enactment of the last congress that created the court at the Soo, provision was made to set the date of the sessions of court in Marquette almost a month ahead. Previously court convened in this city on the first Tuesdays in May and September, while hereafter it will meet on the second Tuesdays in April and September. The sessions at the Soo are to be opened on the second Tuesdays in January and July. Since there will be little effect in continuing either at the Soo or in this city, any Northern district case can be tried either at Marquette or the Soo, depending upon the pressure of business for the term. There will be no distinction in the court business at either place. The Soo jurors, both traverse and grand, however, will be drawn from the Eastern counties of Chippewa, Mackinac, Luce, Alger, Schoolcraft and Delta, while the Marquette jurors will be drawn from the Western counties.

In working to procure government interests, the people of the Soo and the residents of the eastern portion of the peninsula enlisted some of the most influential persons in the state in their behalf, among these, it is said, Senator William Alden Smith.

Would Take Away Collector

The office of the collector of customs appears to be the most coveted government post in the upper peninsula at present and the Soo, it is said, is making a strong play for it. On the other hand, there is talk at the head of the lake of finding a berth for the office at Superior, Wis., a redivisioning of the Superior district. It is not likely that this move will be successful, however, it having been conclusively proved that the business of two customs offices in the present Superior district would not pay, and there is a general tendency in the department of the treasury to reorganize the entire service with a view to economy.

It is considered probable that action will be taken shortly to work out the suggestions made by a special commission that has been looking to the customs service and it is said these include the cutting down of the number of offices and the employment of collectors of the port on a merit basis, under civil service examinations thereby divorcing the office from any political control. The first of these suggestions is strictly opposed to the efforts of the Democrats in the western end of the Superior district who would divide the business of the office. As the grain trade of the western end of Lake Superior is the most paying business of the district, should this be taken away from the present Superior district there would be little left east of Superior for the support of a collector's office.

The Marquette federal officers are anxiously awaiting to see whether the Democratic administration will make any change in the situation.

Government Jobs Now Open Without Politics

MORE government jobs are open, and the civil service board at Washington, of which General John C. Black is president, has its work cut out for it. This time it is to fill positions that require special training along scientific lines. Radio research, scientific housekeeping and practical dairying are three of the fields of endeavor opened by this latest call to men and women who want to work for Uncle Sam.

Also the bureau of mines needs an assistant versed in radioactivity and kindred chemical research, and in the southwest there are a number of other positions to be filled which require a special knowledge of sanitation and hygiene, home management, laundry, domestic supplies, cooking, care and feeding of children, home nursing and plain and fancy sewing.

The announcement, as is always the case, is published broadcast over the country and caves in its wake, as usual, a furor of excitement among men and women who have long had their hearts set upon working for Uncle Sam.

Stir in Washington.

In Washington, the home of the civil service board, the announcement means increased activities all down the line.

Perhaps a better understanding of the work can be obtained when one stops to consider that over 25,000 persons in different sections of the United States were examined and admitted to places through this commission during the last year. It is true that Washington is simply one of twelve stations throughout the country, yet it is the most important one in that practically all the actual work of preparing and rating the papers is done there.

The commission does not have the power to make appointments, as many people imagine, but determines what persons shall be considered for different kinds of employment in the government service. Its work, when the examinations are over, is to keep lists of eligibles from which the various departments draw when they wish to make appointments.

In fact, the first step in a civil service test is taken by the government departments. Those in charge send word to the commission stating just what kind of work they want done and the salary they are willing to pay. After this the commission sends notices broadcast, announcing that an examination will be held and setting forth all details.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSIONER GENERAL JOHN C. BLACK.

Next comes the examination, then the correcting, and from the rating lists of applicants are prepared. They are drawn on until the list is exhausted, after which the same plan is followed again.

Every possible effort is made on the part of those directing this work to bring notices of examinations to the attention of the public in every part of the United States. Besides announcements made in the newspapers and by posting signs through the different districts, the commission keeps on hand a mailing list of the principal educational institutions and persons, to which notifications are sent prior to the examinations.

Drumming Up Applicants.

In some cases where applicants are unusually scarce or where it is a difficult matter to obtain qualified persons posters are sent out calling attention to the salary offered and other inducements that the government affords. Many times in order to obtain applicants for special scientific work word is sent to schools that in particular stress on the desired subject or to clubs or societies where the members are especially interested in the science on which the examination is based.

When the questions have been decided upon they are sent in sealed packets by special messengers to the government printing office, where they are put in printed form. The strictest secrecy is maintained at the big printery, and in no way is it possible for the questions to become public until they are distributed to the applicants in the various examination rooms.

CATARRH CLOGGED NOSTRILS A BREEDING PLACE FOR DEADLY GERMS.

The nostrils are perfect "air filters" and, when kept in a clean, healthy state strain every bit of air we breathe catching dust particles, foreign matter and germs. You cannot dodge them, but you can safeguard yourself against catarrh and other diseases contracted in the process of breathing by keeping the nostrils clean and healthy. Catarrh germs will sometimes get in their work, and you may mistake the symptoms for an ordinary cold.

Don't take any chance. If you have a stuffed up feeling in the head, or if your throat is sore or filled with phlegm, just treat the nostrils with a little Ely's Cream Balm, draw the pure, aromatic fumes back in the head and you will be astonished at the effect. In a few minutes you will feel a loosening up in the head, the nasty discharge will soon be stopped, the soreness gone, and you will feel a sense of genuine relief.

Ely's Cream Balm not only wards off catarrh, but will quickly cure even a chronic, long standing case of catarrh. It takes the trouble right where it starts, in the nose and throat, cleans, heals and strengthens the raw, sore inside skin, or membrane, and in this way drives out catarrh and makes you proof against this filthy, disgusting disease.

Colds, which often hang on for weeks, can be quickly cured with this cleansing, healing, antiseptic balm. All druggists sell it for fifty cents a bottle, and the one bottle is generally all that is needed to effect a complete cure. Try it today.

BIG LAKE TRAFFIC SETS THE RECORD

Commandant of The Cutter Service Reports That 72,500,000 Tons Went Through Soo Canal

Washington, Jan. 7.—Traffic on the great lakes during the last year was greater than ever before, according to reports received by Captain Bertholf, commandant of the revenue cutter service.

Nearly 72,500,000 tons of freight passed through the Soo canal from the upper to the lower lakes from April 24 to Dec. 19—the longest season in the history of the canal. This compares with 65,000,000 tons principally of ore and iron ore in 20,000 ships, and 60,000,000 tons in 1909. A year ago the canal in operation passed

Women's Convoy Corps.

The mothers and sisters of the Boy Scouts of England, not to be outdone in the matter of home defense, have organized themselves into service companies under strict military orders. It is no idle, movement for show or spectacular effect, but the outcome of a serious purpose. In case of war a well-trained body of women fully uniformed and equipped for hospital work and campaign hardships.

Under the general name of the Women's Sick and Wounded Convoy Corps, the organization has been in existence for a little over a year and is steadily growing. Riding, camp and hospital cooking, bicycling, home nursing, laundry work, signaling and stretcher drill are included in the training. Pidding drills are held monthly after the "raw recruits" are first broken into service. In the stretcher drill a real man is employed to give practice in lifting a body on and off a stretcher, as well as in banding up wounds. Particular attention is paid to dietary kitchen methods, and the preparation of simple dishes that will tempt the faded appetite of sick and wounded is the subject of practical consideration. The training in every department is as thorough as it is modern.—Harper's Bazar.

One thing which the prophets of a world wide timber famine forget is the supply of tropical timber in a hundred jungles, waiting the demand of the white man. Until recently, the coarser, commoner uses of tropical timber were hardly known outside the tropics. Mahogany, ebony, teak and rosewood were brought to northern cities for use in cabinet work; the same ships which brought these tropical woods carried back northern pine for use in rough structural work in the tropics. Of late the subtropical woods, cypress and eucalyptus, have come to the front, for all sorts of uses. Now "greenheart," an equatorial wood very common in Brazil and British Guiana, has been chosen for the locks of the Panama canal. Investigators keep reporting that this or that tropical wood is really well fitted for ordinary use, and can be had at a moderate price by use of modern lumbering methods. Twenty years in the tropics will grow a forest larger than can be produced in a century in the north.

THE ROOT OF EVIL

PROLOGUE.

This remarkable tale, in which each character is sketched from life by a master hand, goes beneath the surface of modern society and lays bare the canker at the root. Like all Mr. Dixon's work, it is a tale of American life, essentially true in the picture it draws and done with a swinging power which brings its dramatic scenes home to us. The splendid strength of the tale lies in the conflict between James Stuart and Nan, in which love and greed of wealth struggle for mastery.

CHAPTER I.
A Star Boarder.

AT the end of a warm spring day in New York, James Stuart sat in the open window of his room on Washington square smiling. With a sense of deep joy he watched the trees shake the raindrops from their new emerald robes and the flying clouds that flecked the western sky melt into seas of purple and gold. A huckster turned into Fourth street crying:

"Straw-berries, straw-berries!"
And the young lawyer laughed lazily. A flood of tender memories stole into his heart from the sunlit fields of the south. He had gone hunting wild strawberries with Nan Primrose on the hills at home in North Carolina the day he first knew that he loved her.

How beautiful she was that day in the plain blue cotton dress which fitted her superb young figure to perfection! How well he remembered every detail of that ramble over the red hills—he could hear now the whistle of a hob white sitting on the fence near the spring where they met, calling to the mate. As Nan nestled closer on the hill side they saw the little brown bird slip from her nest in a clump of straw. Lift her head and softly answer:

"Look!" Nan had whispered excitedly. "There's her nest!"

He recalled distinctly his tremor of sympathetic excitement as her warm hand drew him to the spot. With peculiar vividness he remembered the extraordinary moisture of the palm of her hand trembling with eager interest as he counted the eggs twenty beads. But above all memories stood out one. As he bent close above her to enquire for the first time in his life the delicate perfume of her dark rich hair and felt the thrill of its mystery.

"I hope I can build as snug a nest for you some day, Nan," he whispered gravely.

And when she stood silent and blushing he made the final plunge. Looking straight into her dark eyes he had said:
"I love you, dear Nan!"
As she stood very still, looking down in silence, with a throbbing heart and aching tenderness he dared to slip his arm around her waist and kiss the trembling lips. And then he noticed for the first time a deep red straw berry stain in the corner of her mouth in spite of her struggles he laughingly insisted on kissing it away.

And then as a dreamy smile stole into her face she suddenly threw her arms around his neck in passionate tenderness, returning with interest every kiss he had taken.

"Straw-berries!"
The man looked up and drew his familiar cry.

"Yes, yes!" he shouted. "Two boxes

him unbounded loyalty and admiration, but he had never been deceived. He knew that Mrs. Primrose lied as she breathed—politely, but continuously—by her involuntary muscles. Day and night since they had reached New York she had schemed for Nan.

She had leased a house in the fashionable neighborhood of Gramercy park, and to meet the extraordinary expense began a careful and systematic search for rich young men to whom she could let two floors.

Stuart was sure in his heart that Nan had never joined in those plans of her mother, though he had wished that she might have shown a little more strength in resisting them.

Well, he was going to win at last, and the world was full of muscle! He had the biggest surprise of life in store for Nan, something no true woman's heart could resist. He had succeeded after incredible difficulties in secretly building a cottage by the sea in Brooklyn. Its lawn sloped to the water's edge, and a trim boat lay nodding at the dock. Neither Mrs. Primrose nor Nan had the faintest suspicion of what he had been doing.

Tomorrow he would lead his sweetheart into this holy of holies of life, the home love had built. He could see now the smile of tenderness break over her proud face as he should hand her the keys and ask her to fix the wedding day.

His reveries were broken by a timid knock on the door and a faint call:

"Jim?"

"Come in!" he cried.

"You're not a bit glad to see me," the soft voice said. "I've been standing out there for ages."

"Forgive me, Sunshine. I must have been dreaming," Stuart pleaded, leaping from his seat and seizing her hand.

"I'm awfully glad to see you!"

"Then don't call me that name again," she pointed.

"But isn't it beautiful?"

"It would be if my hair wasn't red and I didn't have freckles and was older," she protested, looking away to hide her emotion.

"But your hair isn't quite red, Harriet. It's just the color of the gold in honeycomb," he answered, gently touching her disheveled locks. "Besides, those few little freckles are becoming on your pink and white skin, and you are nearly fifteen. Well, I'll just say, 'little pal.' How's that?"

"That's better," she said, with a smile and sigh.

"Oh, Jim, I've been so dreadfully lonely since you were away! I declare, Jim, I'll die if you go away again. I just can't stand it."

Stuart smilingly took her hand.

"Lonely, Miss Chatterbox, when that big father of yours worships the very ground you walk on?"

"Yes, I know he does, Jim, and I love him, too, but you've no idea how dreadfully still the house is when you are gone. Oh, say, I want you to be a real boarder and eat with us. Of course you will."

"That would be very nice, dear, but I'm sure your father would draw the line at a real boarder. I'd never have got into this beautiful room with that big old fashioned open fireplace in your home if it hadn't happened that our fathers fought each other in the war and became friends one day on a big battlefield. It's been a second home to me."

"Be our boarder and I'll make it a real home for you, Jim," she pleaded.

"Ah—you'll be making a real home some day for one of those boys I saw at your birthday party—the tall, dark one, I think?"

"No. He doesn't measure up to my standard."

"What ails him?"

"He's a coward. My hero must be brave, for I'm timid."

"Up it will be that fat blond fellow who laughs?"

"No, my prince, when you must be truthful. It's so always to tell the truth."

"Well, that dreamy looking fellow who danced with me?"

"No, my hero must be a man of mustache and a deep voice."

"I don't see any of those fellows here, Jim."

must be awfully important. He looked so worried. I don't think I ever saw him worried before."

"I'll go at once," Stuart said. He strode rapidly across town toward the Bowery, through Fourth street, wondering what could have happened to break the accustomed good humor of the doctor.

The doctor had long since retired from the practice of medicine as a profession and only used it now as his means of ministering to the wants of his neighbors. His neighbors were a large tribe, however, scattered all the way from the cellars and dives of Water street to the shanties and goat ranges of the upper Harlem. Stuart had never met a man so full of contagious health. He was a born physician. There was healing light streamed from his brown eyes, and his iron gray beard sparkled with it. His presence in a sickroom seemed to fill it with waves of life, and his influence over the patients to whom he ministered was little short of hypnotic.

Stuart found the doctor standing at the door of his factory, shaking hands and chatting with his employees as they emerged from the building at the close of a day's work. A plain old fashioned brick structure just off the Bowery was this factory, and across the front ran a weatherbeaten sign which had not been changed for more than fifty years: "Henry Woodman, Manufacturing Chemist."

The doctor's father had established the business fifty-two years ago, and the son, who bore his father's name, had succeeded to its management on his death, which occurred just after the return of the younger man with his victorious regiment from their last campaign with Grant before Petersburg and Appomattox.

He took Stuart's hand in his big, crushing grip and handed him a letter, which he opened and read hastily:

No. 90 Gramercy Park.
To Dr. Henry Woodman:
Dear Sir—I must have an answer to the proposition of the American Chemical company before noon tomorrow. After that hour the matter will be definitely closed. JNO C. CALHOUN BIVENS.
April 2, 1908.

Still looking at the letter he asked:

"What does it mean?"

"An ultimatum from the chemical trust. I'll explain to you when you've seen something of my work tonight. The first hour I want you to put in with me at the dispensary."

Stuart's eye rested on the embossed heading of the letter, "No. 90 Gramercy park," and he slowly crushed the paper. It was the Primrose house, Nan's home. Her mother had succeeded.

Bivens, the new sensation in high finance, she had established as her star boarder in Stuart's absence; Bivens, the little razorback scion of poor white trash from the south who had suddenly become a millionaire!

His blood boiled with rage. As he turned and followed the doctor he laughed with sudden fierce determination.

The dispensary was Woodman's hobby. The old fashioned drug store stood on a corner of the Bowery, and in the rear extension, which opened on the side street, he had established what he laughingly called his "life line," a free dispensary where any man needing medicine or a doctor's advice could have it without charge if unable to pay.

For two hours Stuart saw him minister with patience and skill to the friendless and the poor; for each a cheerful word and the warm grasp of his big hand with the prescription. The young lawyer watched with curious interest the quickened step with which each one left. The medicine had begun to work before the prescription was filled.

When the last applicant had gone Stuart turned to the doctor:

"And what is the proposition which the distinguished young head of the chemical trust has made you?"

"That I sell my business to them at their own valuation and come into the trust or get out of the earth."

"And you wish my advice?"

"Yes."

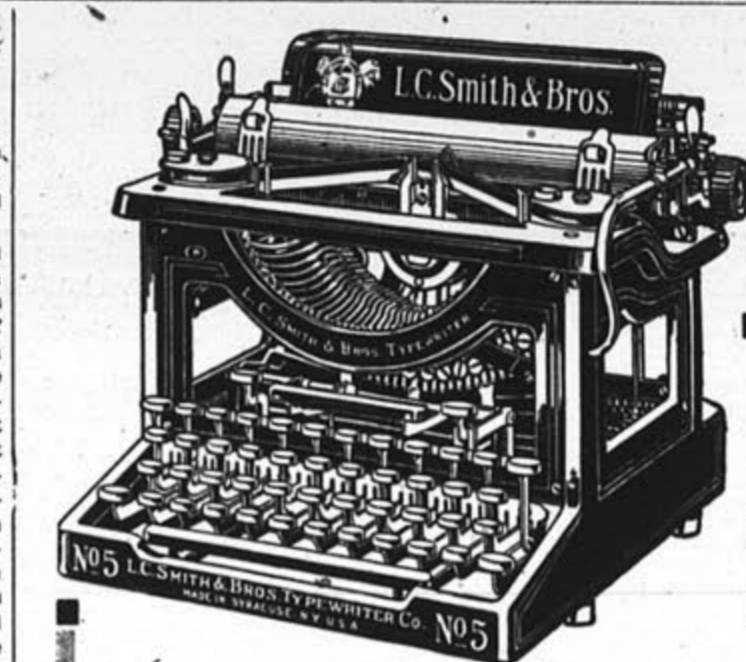

"What figure did he name?"

"More than its cash value."

"Then you will accept of course?"

"I would if there were not some things that can't be reckoned in terms of dollars and cents. If I take stock in the American Chemical company I am a party to their methods, an heir to their frauds."

"Yet isn't the old regime of the small manufacturer and the retailer doomed? Isn't combination the new order of modern life? Will it pay you to fight a losing battle? Bivens is not a man of broad culture, but he is a very smooth young gentleman."

"I'll never forget them," Stuart broke in.

"We used to cry over Uncle Tom's woes," the doctor continued. "And yet there are more than 5,000,000 white people in America today who are the slaves of poverty, cruel and pitiless. The black slaves always had food and shelter, clothes and medicine. My business is to heal the sick—mind you! Shall I give it up to exploit them?"

"But could you not use your greater wealth for greater good if you joined the trust?" the lawyer asked. "Won't they make drugs more economically than you do and drive you to the wall at last? Isn't this new law of co-operation the law of progress—in brief, the law of God?"

"That remains to be proved. I don't believe it."

"Well, I do, and I think that if you fight it will be against the stars in their courses."

"I'm going to fight," was the firm response. "The law is on my side, isn't it?"

"The written law, yes. But you are facing a bigger question than one of statutory law."

"So I am, boy, so I am! That's why I gave you a glimpse tonight of the

"Bivens has put up to you a cold blooded business proposition."

"Exactly. And there are things that can't be bought and sold. I am one of them!" The stalwart figure rose in simple dignity, and there was a deep tremor in his voice as he paused.

"But I'm keeping you. It's 9 o'clock and somebody's waiting eh, boy?"

"Yes," Stuart answered apologetically. "I'm afraid I've not been of much use to you tonight."

The doctor bent closer, smiling: "I understand—of course. The angels are singing in your heart this evening the old song of life that always makes Parcels post sprung into popularity in Gladstone as soon as it went into effect.

Severe Lung Trouble

While we all know that plenty of fresh air and good food are necessary to persons suffering from lung trouble, something more is needed to bring about full health. Eckman's Alternative is a medicine for throat and lung troubles, and so many reports have been received showing that it brought about good results in a number of cases which were declared hopeless, that all sufferers who are not benefiting otherwise, should at least investigate what it has done for others. It may be the means of restoring you to health. Investigate this case.

"Gentlemen: In December, 1908, and March, 1909, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs, which confined me several weeks each time to my bed. These left me very weak and I coughed at nights and could not sleep. My appetite also failed me. My doctor advised me to go West. So, in September, 1909, I planned to go, but I had four more hemorrhages, which put me in bed for three weeks. In about two months, I began to feel better. I kept on taking the medicine and improved fast. In March, 1910, I returned home. I think I am entirely well, have good appetite and sleep well. When I left Denver my weight was 130 pounds. I now weigh 165, my normal weight. I thank God and your Alternative for my health. If I can help any other person suffering from Tuberculosis, I will gladly do so."

Will Assist in Reform
"I believe that the parole and reform of prisoners is beneficial in a large number of instances, and I will assist and aid in this work as much as possible.

"Some provision should be made whereby the families of prisoners convicted of abandonment should receive remuneration for the prisoner's work at the house of correction.

"Free legal advice and counsel will be given to all poor persons who are unable to pay for legal assistance.

"I will not countenance any firm, person, politician or other individuals to represent that they have any influence either political or personal with me for the purpose of deceiving or duping people to hire them, that advantages may be secured, and I will deem it a favor to have such actions reported to me, that I may expose and punish the persons daring to attempt such methods.

"I deem it timely to call attention to the aggregate number of petty cases which often should command remedy at the hands of fathers and mothers rather than the attention of the courts. A more humane and more enlightened method should be devised than the placing of a criminal tag upon boys and girls for the mere infraction of a law without criminal intent or habitual law breaking. It seems to me many of these cases more properly should be punished by parental authority than come under the jurisdiction of criminal courts. A police court record fastened upon a child early in life is a bad framing for any picture and its influence is a permanent shadow. In the handling of cases of his nature, I believe some better remedy can be achieved than under the present system, and I ask for the honest co-operation of parents in seeking a better remedy than the giving a criminal record to incorrigibles, in connections in so far as they relate to criminal proceedings.

contradictory provisions in the numerous laws that have been passed to regulate Saginaw bay fishermen. The general law provides that the property owner along the bay shore has the exclusive right to fish for one mile from shore, the shore meant, so the supreme court has said, where the water is four feet deep.

Barred by the Law
The property owner or lessee of his nets out to the mile limit. Another man sets his nets starting at the one-mile line and continues to jump over the outside man's nets for the sake of landing in the nets of the man who has a mile of fishing, alongside his shore line.

Arenac county, by special act, has a two-mile limit. Bay is restricted to one mile. The fishermen on the bay side of the county line can go out one mile and see their Arenac neighbors hauling 'em in two miles out. At one point on the Tuscola shore line, fishermen can go out three miles.

And the further you go, the bigger the fish.
The Charity islands are owned in part by the federal government. The federal government permits fishing far beyond the state limits. On one side of the Charities fishermen can catch one mile from shore; on the other only a short distance.

Causes Much Trouble
Fishermen are continually fighting and scrapping on the shores of the bays, inlets and points. One property owner runs his mile or two-mile lines out perpendicular to his shore, which is the only sensible way.

His neighbor, with a different slant to his shore line, does the same thing. Well, two bodies cannot occupy the same space even the legislature ought to see that.

A special law covers the fishing off the so-called Corydon reef, along the southwest shore of the bay. The limits from the reef toward the shore line (except the limits from the shore line towards the reef. Naval engagements, more or less vocal, and sometimes somewhat bloody, are the result.

GLADSTONE MAN DIES AT EL PASO

Fred Wohl—One of The Early Settlers of Sister City Succumbs to Consumption

Fred Wohl of Gladstone yesterday received a telegram from Mrs. Fred Wohl announcing the death of her husband at the Altura Sanatorium, near El Paso, Texas, where the family took him about two years ago.

Mr. Wohl was a prominent figure in Gladstone for many years. He was a carpenter by trade and was for a long time in the employ of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Co., as foreman. He was afflicted with consumption and about two years ago went out to Texas in the hope of being cured, his wife and children accompanying him.

Deceased was about 55 years old, and a member of the Swedish Mission Church. The body will be brought to Gladstone for burial, though it is not known just when the family will arrive with the remains.

E.N. BREITUNG HEADS MINES CORPORATION

Exploitation of Columbia Placer Gold Field on Large Scale is Planned

E. N. Breitung, of Marquette and New York, is the moving spirit in a new corporation—the Breitung Mines Corporation—formed to undertake mining operations wherever attractive opportunities present themselves. The corporation is capitalized with 2,000, 000 shares, par value $5, with no preference shares or bonds.

The first active operations of the new company will be on placer gold deposits in the Cauca and Nechi valleys in Colombia, South America.
Through ownership of the entire capital stock of the Marquette Magdalena company—the operating organization for Colombia—the Corporation owns, under grant from the government and holds under denouncement and by purchase contract, 80,000 acres, more or less, of placer quartz claims.

The company has already begun active operations, having built a substantial camp and having four drilling outfits in the field. The gold values are to be recovered by the modern dredging method, brought to a high stage of efficiency in California. The reports on the property, all of a highly gratifying nature, are dependable, as they have been made by the best engineers who could be retained for the work.
The management of the company, is in the hands of Mr. Breitung and a staff selected by him.

An idea of the scope of the project can be gained from the assertion that the company plans ultimately to operate to degrees that, with the necessary collateral equipment, will represent an investment of $2,500,000.
The estimate of the net return from the continual operation of these dredges for a year is $2,400,000.

In connection with the project, the Breitung Mines Corporation has issued a forty-page illustrated booklet under the title "Colombia" that sets forth in detail its nature. Included in the contents is a symposium of views of the greatest engineering experts, including John Hays Hammond, on gold dredging in Colombia, notes from authorities and official sources, picture-que incidents and matter of general interest, relating to South America.
The booklet also contains a sketch of Mr. Breitung's career.

"CHAIN PRAYER" IS GOING THE ROUNDS

Scores of Escanabans Get Them in Mails; Are Tabooed by Postoffice

Now the "chain prayer" bend is at it again.

Prayers, to be written out and sent to nine more victims, were circulated by some half-brained fanatic several years ago, until the postoffice authorities were obliged to bar them from the mails. The prayers contain a threat, which made it possible to put a ban
on them.

This is the wording of the message which has been received by scores of Escanabans within the last few days.

AN ANSWER PRAYER

Oh, Lord Jesus, I ask Thee to deliver all mankind; keep us from evil,
and bring us to dwell with Thee at last.

This prayer was sent to me and is to be sent all over the world. Please copy and send to nine others. Sign no name and see what it will bring you.

It was said in the time of Jesus who wrote this would be delivered from all calamities, but all who fail to send it on would suffer some misfortunes, commencing the day you get this.

On the ninth day you will receive
some great joy.

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

Growth of the Boy Scouts.

Few persons outside the scout circles know to what a great extent the movement has spread. Chief Scout Executive James E. West has completed an investigation of the work, and he claims that it has become one of the vital institutions of the country.

In speaking of the growth of the organization Mr. West said:

"The boy scout activities have appealed to the boys of every nation and have been a help to them in religious,
educational, athletic and other ways.
The striking thing is the wonderful spread of the Boy Scouts of America.
Not only have we boy scouts in every state in this country, but in every territory. We have scouts in Porto Rico, Panama, Alaska, Hawaii, the Philippines and Cuba, all wearing the emblem of the Boy Scouts of America.
Away out in Japan, over in Syria,
down in Bolivia, are scoutmasters registered with the Boy Scouts of America.

Scout Movement Appeals to Boys.

Closer investigation shows that the scout principles appeal to boys in various lines of life. We have innumerable scout troops in university settlements in the big cities, and by that means settlement workers have been able to appeal to the boys. The call for outdoor life has been used by settlement workers in appealing to boys of the streets and getting them interested in better things. In public schools the scout movement has been started and has been an excellent diversion from school work and at the same time a helpful adjunct to it.
Boys' clubs have taken up the scout movement. The playground associations have adopted it as a means of furthering and increasing the all around development of the boys. In many athletic associations there are scout troops.

"Still another phase of this wonderful versatile movement is the fact that preachers and religious leaders have seized upon it as a means of carrying on their own work. Cardinal Farley of the Catholic church is urging the organization of scout troops. The Mormons have taken up scout activities.
In Y. M. C. A.'s in many parts of the country boys' workers have found the ideals of the scout movement of great help to them.

An Inspiration to Boys.

"Despite the great variety of people in this country, the scout movement seems to have universal appeal. Indian boys in the west have found delight in the work. Chinese boys in New York have become scouts. Polish emigrant boys in Buffalo and boys of other nationalities coming to this country have formed scout troops and by that means have come in closer contact and understanding of the ideals of the United States.

"What is more inspiring is the fact that the scout movement has been a great help and inspiration to boys who are unfortunately handicapped in life.
Blind boys have taken up the work and through its inspiration have been stimulated to a thought of the trees, the great outdoors and have been able to feel that their lives need not be cramped through lack of sight. In the deaf and dumb institutions scout troops have been formed. Here, too, through the channel of scout activities
these boys have been made to feel that they are the brothers of the scouts throughout the country.

"By these many and diverse means hundreds of thousands of boys are receiving instructions that tend to make them strong, healthy men, fearless, self-reliant and determined to do what is best for the country."

HOLES in the POCKET

"Look at that hole in the bottom of my pocket; no telling how much money I have lost," lamented a young man the other day.

After he had gone an old man said, "I'll bet he has lost more money out of the hole at the TOP of his pocket than he ever lost from that little hole at the bottom." He spoke with the wisdom of age. Most of the money goes out of the big hole at the top of the pocket and we don't worry, but we raise a great rumpus if even a dime drops out through the hole at the bottom. Moral:—Do away with the pocket as a money purse by starting an account at this bank.

THEATRICAL NEWS

"THE MILLS OF THE GODS"

The big hit feature "The Mills of the Gods" the great three-reel special advertised to be shown at the Royal theatre tonight is adapted from George F. Dillenback's novel of the same name, and it is called a modern drama.
It is not modern in the sense that it has never been done before, dramas of the same order, palpitating with fire-real fire—and power—melodramatic power have often been done. It is vigorous stuff, principally on account of the splendid acting of the Vitagraph players and extravagance exercised in its production. It is thoroughly memorizable. The author of the piece has taken the bare skeleton of the novel, and upon that he has constructed his picture, and it is a logical picture.

Lorenzo, that is the "Jekyll-Hyde" man's name, appears first as the innkeeper, a filthy being who disgusts everyone with his presence, and then as the silver-tongued villain in society
who aims to lead innocent girls astray.
His persecutions are swift and subtle.
He allows nothing to stand in his way of accomplishing his ends; neither murder nor arson. He leaves in his wake riot and destruction and indignation. It is when he arouses the indignation of a girl by the murder of his sister that he seals his doom. The Mills of the Gods grind slowly, and they grind mighty slowly, and if we take this man as a just victim, we be to the person who gets caught between the rollers. In the three reels used to tell the tale, we see the coils slowly tighten around the villain, thank to the young lawyer who espouses the sisters' cause. The final retribution is meted out to him through fire and arson, and it is a picturesque and a grotesque scene. Do not fail to see this wonderful feature picture at the Royal tonight only.

URGES UNCLE SAM TO FREE INDIANS

Former Commissioner Valentine
Would Make Them Equal With Fellow Americans

Washington, January 7.—That the American Indian should be released as soon as possible from the paternal care of the United States government, now his guardian, in virtually everything he does, was the opinion expressed in the annual report today from the bureau of Indian affairs, submitted by Robert G. Valentine, until recently commissioner.

The former commissioner voiced the hope that the day might be near
"when the United States will finally have lifted its hands from Indian affairs and all Indians in all respects will stand on an equal footing with all their fellow Americans."

"With all the expedition compatible with the Indians' welfare," he added,
"they should be made subject to the laws of their state, and be taught to look to their local government, instead of the national government."

"I do not suggest further authority for enlarged federal jurisdiction over minor offenses on reservations. Important questions of marriage and divorce illustrate difficult points of which the only proper solution appears to be education of Indians, whether or not, they are citizens, to comply with the laws of their states."

Queen Wangalo Wunga.

In this game the children face each other in pairs, pulling long faces and looking very mournful. They must continue the following conversation as long as they can in "weepee" voices, mopping their eyes and noses and inventing the weirdest words they can think of.

"Have you heard the great Queen Wangalo Wunga is dead?"

"What did the great Queen Wangalo Wunga die of?"

"She died of an atishoo-huff that stuck in her throat, and Dr. Kanga-ju-Boola couldn't cure her."

"Where did they bury the great Queen Wangalo Wunga?"

"Down in the Dunna-rug Stumbabar, where the Hop-Diddgees grow."

"Who carried the coffin?" etc.

The one who laughs first must pay
a forfeit.

Hydraulic Mining.

Hydraulic mining is mining with a powerful stream of water directed against the earth. The stream washes away the stones and soil in a twinkling. You might call a great river a hydraulic engineer, since it does this kind of mining whenever it has a chance.

The Colorado river has a chance every once in a while. Not long ago it broke through its banks and flooded a low basin without an outlet, making a broad lake called the Salton sea.
Recently it has been digging away at its banks again, and ranchers say that it has uncovered an ancient city that had been buried under the earth for no one knows how many years.

THERE ARE TWO SIDES TO CASE

Majority Report is That The Accused Attorney is Not Guilty of The Charges Made

The Crystal Falls Diamond Drill has
the following:

"We are informed from Iron River that two reports have been filed with Judge Flannigan in the Waffan matter. The majority report says that there is no evidence and it is signed by M. H. Moriarty, Chas. H. Watson and Fred H. Abbott. The second one dissents from the majority report and asks that further investigation be made. The second report is signed by
I. W. Myers and E. P. Lott.

"What the next step will be in the matter is not known. It is up to the Judge to say. If Judge Flannigan feels that the matter should be proceeded further he will direct an inquiry but if he feels that the majority of the committee are right in their belief that there is no evidence he will let the matter drop where it is.

"The case has aroused a lot of interest in the county and all over the peninsula, owing to the fact that Mr.
Waffan was but recently chosen to the office of prosecuting attorney of the county.

"The sentiment upon the streets is very divided but neither faction can say positively that the complaints made against Mr. Waffan are true or untrue. It was the general wish that the public be put right and many advised that Waffan would be vindicated
by the inquiry."

THREATS OF DEATH IMPAIR HIS HEALTH

Foreman of Jury That Convicted "Dy-namiters" Goes to Florida
For The Winter

Newcastle, Ind., Jan. 7.—Frank Dare, foreman of the jury which returned a verdict of guilty against the alleged dynamite conspirators, and who has received two letters threatening his life, departed today for Florida, to spend the winter. His health has been impaired by the worry over the letters.

The threatening letters sent to Mr.
Dare were written at the request of a newspaper correspondent, to provide a letter received by the prosecuting attorney today from a person who signed himself "Joseph Allen, State street, Chicago." The prosecutor called various newspapermen into his office and asked for a sample of their writing. The dissimilarity to that in the threatening letters established their innocence.

FLINT'S LETTER

At the opening of the New York stock market this morning a little better feeling was apparent and advances were scored all along the line. The market however became decidedly dull and until near the close the transactions were few and far between. The close however showed gains of 1-2 to one point over yesterday. The Boston market was even duller than it has been and the closing prices show little change from yesterday with the exception of Granley which closed one and a half points better. Within a day or two the copper producers statement is due and the general rank and file seem to be awaiting the outcome before committing themselves either way. The prospect now is that there will be very little change shown in the surplus metal on hand probably a million or two one way or the other.

52 TIMES $2

Can you plan your expenses during 1913 so as to make fifty two visits to the State Savings Bank with a $2 deposit each time?

One hundred and four dollars, besides the interest earned, will look good to you at the end of the year, and the little self-denials necessary to save it will be beneficial also.

This is the opportune time to start a saving plan.
Will you do it?
