ONE LIFE SNUFFED OUT FOR EVERY 183,000 TONS OF COAL MINED IN U. S.

DR. HOLMES DIRECTOR OF THE BUREAU OF MINES ISSUES ANNUAL REPORT TO SECRETARY FISHER

DEATH LIST BEING REDUCED

Work in The Mines By Experts From The United States Government Is In Pioneer Stage

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Jan. 15.—One miner's life is snuffed out with every 183,000 tons of coal mined in the United States. In 1907 when the federal bureau of mines was beginning its work the ratio was greater. One life was given with every 144,000 tons. Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, director of the United States Bureau of Mines, in his annual report today to Secretary Fisher attributes the decrease in the mortality to the Federal government's work in the mining fields, and points out how the enormous death list may be still further reduced.

While much remains to be done, including a broad extension of the investigation of accident and rescue work so that it will include metal and other mineral mines as well as coal mines. Dr. Holmes shows that where as there was an average of 6.93 men killed for every 1,000,000 tons of coal mined in 1907, this number decreased steadily to 6.05 in 1908, to 5.79 the next year, 5.66 in 1910 and 5.48 in the calendar year 1911. The figures for the year just closed, it is estimated, will show further decrease in the death rate.

The death rate in the metal mines of the country is nearly as high, he declares, as in the coal fields, averaging more than three men per thousand (Continued on Page Two.)

NEW GARAGE COMPANY HOLDS OPTION ON LOT

Building May Be Built For New Garage on Centrally Located Lot on Ludington Street

It is understood that L. K. Edwards holds an option good for 60 days on one of the vacant lots on Ludington street and that if he exercises the option a new and up-to-date garage will be built. One of the men that is interested in the proposition said today that nothing further had been done in the deal and that the final papers would not be drawn up until Mr. Edwards decides whether or not he will be a member of the new company.

Mr. Edwards said today that the option on the Ludington street property is not held by him, but by one of the parties interested in the new company.

MASHEK MAN DIES AT HOSPITAL LAST NIGHT

Frederick Anderson, of Mashek, died last evening at the Delta county hospital from pneumonia, at the age of sixty-nine. He had been brought here from his home the previous evening, in a sinking condition. The funeral was held this afternoon from the undertaking rooms of D. A. Oliver, Rev. C. A. Lund officiating.

Mr. Anderson, who but recently became a resident of this country, is survived by three sons, John, of Mashek, Emil, of Channing, and Fritz, of Escanaba.

THE JURY DISAGREED

JURYMEN THAT WERE TRYING THE CASE OF THE PEOPLE AGAINST JACOB MILLER OUT ALL NIGHT

EIGHT ARE FOR CONVICTION

Judge Flannigan Went to Court House to Discharge Jury About Midnight But Could Not Get In

The jury in the case of the people vs. Jacob Miller, who was charged with a violation of the liquor law, disagreed after remaining out all night and was this morning discharged by Judge Flannigan. Shortly before midnight last night when a verdict was not forthcoming, Judge Flannigan went to the court house for the purpose of discharging the jury. He was unable to effect an entrance to the building and after rattling the door for a time without attracting any attention, he retired to his hotel for the night.

How the jurymen spent the night may be imagined from the fact that the jury rooms are not fitted up with sleeping accommodations and the appearance of several of the jurymen after being relieved this morning indicated that they had spent rather a hard night.

It is said that the jury stood eight to four in favor of conviction. The complaint against Miller was made by Rev. Rutledge, F. L. Baldwin and several others who made a tour of the saloons on Dec. 27 and who claim they found several places open after eleven o'clock in the evening.

SCRAMBLED EGGS IN PARCEL POST

Iron Mountain Postal Clerks Get a Bad Mess When Mail Pouch is Opened in Office

Yesterday the post office clerks at Iron Mountain had scrambled eggs on their menu. A package of several dozen eggs, sent to G. F. Seibert from Witch Lake by parcel post, arrived in rather poor condition. Most of the eggs were on the inside of the mail pouch, but had scattered themselves promiscuously over the other mail, and left the pouch a fit subject for the laundry.

The eggs seemed to have been well packed originally, and it is thought that they were broken when the train caught the pouch at Witch Lake where the pouches are strung up and caught by the mail clerk without stopping.

Such a method has its advantages, but is a little too strenuous for hen fruit.

BARBER SHOP HAS FIRE DISTURBANCE

The Imperial barber shop, conducted by Gierke and Perrin at 709 Ludington street, was damaged by fire about 9:30 last evening, originating, it is thought, from the water heater in the rear room. When the alarm was given, flames were breaking through the low roof. The fire department responded promptly and after using chemicals to check the blaze two streams were turned on. The fire caused much attention on the street and a large crowd gathered, who assisted in removing the shop fixtures, which suffered but little. During the fire traffic was blocked on the street.

SEIDLE FAMILY LOSE THEIR BABY

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Seidle of 1310 Hale street are mourning the loss of their fifteen months old daughter, Francis, who died this morning at 4:00 o'clock after a brief illness. The funeral will be held from St. Joseph's church tomorrow afternoon with interment in St. Joseph's cemetery.

ASYLUM IS CONGESTED

SENATOR WINEGAR SAYS THAT THE CONDITIONS AT NEWBERRY ARE VERY UNSATISFACTORY

MANY IMPROVEMENTS NEEDED

Place Was Built for 750 And is Now Caring For 836—More Money Needed At Once

(By Associated Press.)

Lansing, Mich., January 15.—"Packed like cattle in pens," is the emphatic descriptive phrase Senator Winegar, of the Newberry insane asylum committee of the senate, applies to conditions at the Newberry institution.

The senate's upper peninsula committee got in last evening and it is safe to say that they had more exact data concerning the institutions they visited than any preceding "junketing committee" ever dared to assemble. Newberry came in for close attention, as the asylum, built to accommodate a maximum of 750 patients, has 836 on the rolls and the institution is cramped for eating, sleeping and hospital room.

Its budget asks for $167,000 for improvements, additions and added equipment. There are 20 marked tuberculosis cases, with no provisions for special treatment or isolation, and $10,000 is asked for a tubercular shack. For two "cottages" to supply more sleeping room, $87,000 is asked, and $9,000 is wanted for an addition to the dining room.

Sensors Grace and MacGregor corroborated Senator Winegar's statements regarding overcrowding and needs.

RABID DOG HAD TO BE KILLED

Canine was Bitten by Another Dog in a Fight Several Days Before Rabies Were Manifested

One of the police officers was called to a home on Wells avenue Saturday to shoot a dog that had become afflicted with the rabies. It was claimed by the owner of the animal that it was bitten by some dog about ten days before and that it was this that caused the attack. It was stated this morning that two or three dogs in the city have rabies in a mild form and are running at large.

This may or may not be true. If a dog has rabies he does not live long and could not be at large more than a few days.

Jacob Lauson the mail carrier came over from Stonington this morning, driving a horse the full distance. "MOVIES" TO LEGISLATURE

MILITARY PICTURES WILL BE PRESENTED BEFORE THE STATE LEGISLATURE AT LANSING TONIGHT

PICTURES OF THE STATE MILITIA

State Solons Will Be Given An Idea Of What A State Military Encampment Looks Like

(By Associated Press.)

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 15.—The members of the legislature will have a moving picture show given to them in the house of representatives hall this evening by the state militia department. A big canvas will be stretched in front of the speaker's desk and the pictures thrown on it from the center of the rear gallery.

The pictures are those taken of the state militia camp last August when the state troops were encamped at Ludington. They are a fine set of films and have made a hit wherever shown. A moving picture machine and operator from Detroit will be brought to Lansing to run off the idea of what a state military camp is pictures and give the legislators an like

Adj. Gen. Vandercook of the state military department made arrangements for the show, which has the approval of Speaker Currie of the house. As the entire legislature will be on hand, a big crowd is looked for.

WATER QUESTION IS AGITATING GLADSTONE

Upper Bay City Is Considering Ways and Means of Securing Good Beverage for Citizens

The illness of the past season, which has been heavy in Gladstone, and the fact that the city water is pronounced unwholesome by the state analysts, urges upon the people of that town some action to secure a better quality.

Recent samples taken at a distance of a quarter of a mile beyond the mouth of the intake, at a depth of about thirty feet, have been pronounced wholesome by chemists, and it is suggested that about twelve hundred feet be added to the present pipe.

At present the inhabitants are forced to resort to artesian or boiled water, with considerable trouble or expense. When the present sewer system was planned, an allowance of $5,000 for artesian wells was made but this sum is plainly inadequate to secure the water needed for use by the city. In addition to this the manufacturing and other plants which have bored wells around the city, at depths of from 300 to 600 feet, have been troubled with shortness of the water.

The Soo line for this reason was compelled to take city water for its roundhouse. During a recent repair to the mains, it was endeavored to keep the system in operation temporarily from the Soo line well and pumps, but this supply proved inadequate after a few minutes.

The question of wells or intake extension, as well as of sewage disposal will be of considerable interest in Gladstone for the coming year or two.

STATE-WIDE PROHIBITION

QUESTION MAY GO TO VOTE OF THE PEOPLE NEXT FALL IF ORDERED BY LEGISLATURE

RESOLUTION IS INTRODUCED

A Constitutional Amendment is Proposed—Bitter Fight in Both Houses in Prospect

(By Associated Press.)

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 15.—Statewide prohibition is the big question right now with which the legislature must struggle. The resolution providing for the submission of the question to the voters of the state at the November election in 1914 was introduced by Representative Dunn, of Sanilac, yesterday and the fight is formally launched.

The question up is constitutional prohibition, not statutory. This means that once the amendment to the constitution is carried, it will be many a day before it can be undone.

What chance the resolution has for passage in the legislature is problematical, although strong forces are lined up in support of it. It means the throwing of the prohibition question directly into the gubernatorial campaign of 1914 when every candidate for office will be forced to declare his wet or dry tendencies. It means a bitter fight first in the legislature to procure the submission and then, if (Continued on page six)

He remembered that there were two letter copy books, three parcels of letters and one telegram that was taken by himself and Stump. He says that he got $15,000, as his share and that this was only one third of the price that was paid for them. He says that it was understood by him that the New York American bought and paid for the letters.

NEW NICKELS ARE COMING VERY SOON

Escanaba Banks Are Looking Forward to The Receipt of The Novel Coins in Short Time

The banks of Escanaba are awaiting consignments of nickels of the new design which has been approved by Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh. The new coin will be a "nickel" containing practically the same composition of metal as the present one.

It will be plainly severe, bearing the word "Liberty" and the date of coinage on one side, instead of a female Liberty head, as on the present coin. On the opposite side will appear the figure of a buffalo and the words "Five Cents" instead of the laurel wreath and letter "V," as at present. The coin will bear the words "E Pluribus Unum," but not the motto "In God We Trust." It will be in circulation by the latter part of the month.

OLIVE Tablets OIL the Bowels

A PHYSICIAN'S SUBSTITUTE FOR DANGEROUS CALOMEL. When you feel that your liver and bowels need help, take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, substitute for Calomel. Calomel is effective, but dangerous—causing bad after effects. Olive Tablets are especially made to take the place of Calomel. Dr. Edwards for years has been Calomel's foe. He saw its dangers and its disadvantages in 17 years' practice, treating patients for all kinds of liver and bowel complaints. In his efforts to do without Calomel, he developed his now famous little olive-oil-colored tablets. Olive Tablets are mild but effective. Safe and sure. Pleasant to take but unfailing in results. Olive Tablets oil the bowels just enough to start Nature's own action, and they tone up the liver at the same time. They are made from a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil. If you want to regain that feeling of joyous buoyancy and clear thought, take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They work like a vacation. 10c and 25c per box. "Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own." The Olive Tablet Co., Columbus, O.

WON MISS GOULD IN WRECK.

Romance of Finley J. Shepard and Miss Helen M. Gould is Out. One of the prettiest romances that have come to light for some time in reference to persons of national prominence is that which is now related of Miss Helen M. Gould and her fiance, Finley J. Shepard. It is reported that Mr. Shepard won his bride to be through fine heroism during a wreck in which the pair figured on Oct. 10 last on the West Shore railroad. Miss Gould and Mr. Shepard were members of a party in a special car when the crash came. Dozens of persons were injured, and Mr. Shepard rose to the occasion by rescuing many of the injured from danger and by administering attention upon them. The picture shows the pair in separate poses. To all interviewers Mr. Shepard candidly declares himself the happiest man in the world and one of the luckiest. "I just can't keep my feet on the ground," he says. Mr. Shepard's reference to his feet, he lets it be understood, means that he could dance a jig on the slightest notice and it would be a fine reflection of his mood. Mr. Shepard's mother is a blind invalid in a sanitarium in the east. He visited her but a short time before his engagement and following the engagement announcement wired her immediate word. The news filled the aged woman with delight.

WORTH TALKING ABOUT

OLD TIMER REMEMBERS WHEN IT REALLY WAS COLD.

"Truthful James" Rivals Baron Munchausen in Recalling a Winter That Makes Even Oldest Inhabitant Take Back Seat.

"Did you ever hear," began the stem-winding story teller, as the unbound five yards of wrappings from his neck, "about the winter I lived in the country? It was what a fellow might be excused for calling some winter. That is to say, it was cold. "We began to notice unusual symptoms along in November. To begin with, the creeks all froze solid—clear to bottom, you understand—and instead of water flowing along in the creek beds there was ice moving at about the same speed. They have something up in the Arctic regions very much like what we saw then—they call them glaciers up there, I believe. But there was this difference—up north the glaciers all move down to the sea and break off and float away, leaving plenty of room for other ice to follow. Our ice streams didn't do that at all.

"The creeks where I was was all emptied into the river and, of course, the river was as full as the creeks. So there was nothing left for the creek ice to do but bump up when it reaches the river and double back on itself. Then when it got back to headquarters it had to double up again and go down to the river. All the creeks kept up this process until they were piled on top of themselves four or five times, or even more than that. We had to tunnel through them to get from one township to another. And we had to keep making new tunnels, too, as the old tunnels moved up above our reach.

"But, bad as this condition seemed, the worst was yet to come. The first cold snap lasted until along in January; then we had the usual January thaw—which in the country generally means something. But this particular thaw hadn't got good and started when a big freeze came down on us one night and froze the ground so quick and so hard that it popped the rabbits and woodchucks up out of their holes the way a little boy pops a pea out of its pod.

"Every single one of those poor little animals just stayed up there in the air—frozen stiff, some of them six or eight feet above the ground. There were so many of them that a fellow couldn't go out without bumping his head. It was much like walking along under a dense forest, only the animals were closer to our heads than the limbs of the trees would have been. The only way we could get a glimpse of the sun was to take an ice ax and climb up the side of one of the creeks. I never expect to see the like again."

"Well," exclaimed the wild eyed victim, "I don't believe you will. And I suppose that when you wanted dinner all you had to do was to go out and build a fire anywhere and the dinner would thaw out of the air and fall down into the pot and be cooked. Eh?"

"Not on your life!" asserted the stem winding story teller. "If you knew what you were talking about you wouldn't make any breaks like that. It was so cold that whenever anybody tried to start a fire the air melted and put the fire out. Every time!

"It was well along in March before a square meal could be had anywhere. I would have starved to death a dozen times only for one thing—and a mighty fortunate thing it was. I kept a Jersey cow—just one, but, of course, she was the pick of the herd—in a fireless cooker that I had.

"But since that I never have been able to say that I like ice cream. And I don't suppose I ever will either."—Chicago News.

Range City Has a $50,000 Fire Loss Monday Morning When Play House Burns to Ground

Iron River, Mich., Jan. 15.—At 1:30 o'clock Monday morning, with the thermometer registering below zero, the city fire department was called to fight a blaze in the Bijou Opera house. The firemen fought the fire for six hours, but no headway could be gained on the blaze which destroyed the structure, burning it to the ground. Several times adjoining buildings caught fire and it was with difficulty that the entire lower part of this village could be saved, as there was a high wind blowing at the time. The loss by the fire, the cause of which is unknown, is about $50,000.

He recommends, therefore, that the bureau be given money to carry out its investigation into these other fields in larger measure than the limited appropriations so far granted have allowed.

The enormous annual loss in mining and preparation of coal for market, the huge waste of water, gas, oil, as well as lack of efficiency and waste in the coal mining industries are mentioned by Dr. H. C. Fox, an advocate of natural resources, in his report to be checked. "Pioneer educational work, temporary in character," is the way in which the director refers to the mine rescue and first aid work among the more than 700,000 miners in the 15,000 mines of the country. Ultimately this must be taken care of, he says, by the coal mining companies through the training and organization of miners at each of the larger mines or group of mines. He states that already a number of companies maintain rescue stations at their own expense. The chief purpose of the bureau of mines is to train miners in first-aid, mine-rescue and fire-fighting methods; and he adds that "during the year more than 30,000 miners have attended the lectures and demonstrations given from the mine safety cars, more than 1,000 additional miners received training sufficient to enable them to participate in actual mine-rescue work, and more than twice that number have been added to the list of miners trained in first aid practice."

MARRIED IN COMMON LAW; ARE DIVORCED

Appleton Woman Names Menominee As Place of Marriage in Suit For Unique Divorce

A common law marriage came to an ending in Appleton municipal court yesterday when Mary Dick was granted a divorce from her husband, Joseph. The couple united in wedlock without a marriage ceremony at Menominee, Mich., on March 12, 1906. Desertion was given as the reason for divorce, the husband having left about a year ago, but it has been expected for sometime that there might be sensational developments, an attorney at Madison, Maine where Dick was located, having written that he married a girl in Waterville, Maine, last year. The state of Maine, however, does not hold common law marriages as being legal, so that Dick is not liable to face bigamy charges there. No effort was made to obtain extradition papers to bring him back to Appleton on that charge, a divorce being all that was desired on the part of wife No. 1.

Frank Chance's $25,000 Salary Fine Piece of Advertising.

HAS BIG TASK ON HAND.

New Manager of New York Americans Will Experience Hard Time Trying to Build Up Weak Club With Material on Hand.

By TOMMY CLARK.
The announcement that Frank Chance will receive $25,000 and 5 per cent of the earnings of the New York American league club is about as clever a piece of baseball advertising as has ever been pulled off on the fans. This gossip about paying a $25,000 salary for piloting a team should be taken with a grain of salt by the fans. It is hard to figure any logical reason why Chance as manager of the New York Americans should be paid a salary three times as large as he received when leader of the Cubs. While at the head of the Chicago team Chance drew down $7,500 a year and 10 per cent of the earnings of the club. If Chance gets half of the amount mentioned above he will be doing well. Baseball is a hard business proposition, and the magnates see to it that players don't get any overabundant share of the profits. How he will fare as manager of the Yankees remains to be seen. When he assumed charge in Chicago he had the good fortune to inherit a ball team built up by Frank Selee, and while it was badly shattered it still had a number of stars in its ranks, such as Evers, Shawkard, Tinker, Schulte and Brown.

But he got wonderful results out of this team. It began to crumble in 1910, but Chance pulled it home a winner and in 1911 and 1912 gave the Giants a hard struggle.

The collection of players he falls heir to are not anything to speak of, with the exception of one or two men. They were a sadly disorganized lot at the conclusion of the season.

Chance will be placed in entire charge of the team, given a free rein and be judged by results. As a disciplinarian he is in a class by himself, and there is no doubt that he will be able to handle the players under him to better advantage than if it were left partly to others.

Chance's main danger is that the fans are apt to expect superhuman things of him. The fact that he himself does not believe that he can build up a winner in a single season is shown by the fact that he signed a three years' contract. He will have little trading material and will therefore be obliged to develop a team of youngsters.

President Robert C. Watson has received a letter from P. Deschamps, president of the Golf de Paris, from La Bouille, France, inviting the United States Golf association to choose a team of four professional golfers to play a Franco-American professional team match against four of the leading French professionals at the La Bouille links at the end of June, 1913. As some of the leading American professionals will undoubtedly be abroad to play in the British open championship it will be easy for them to go to France to take part in the event. The French association will guarantee to each player on the American team $100 for traveling and maintenance expenses and an extra $200 to the winning team, with a medal for each of its players.

The proposed dates for the Franco-American match are on either June 27 and 28 or else June 30 and July 1, which is left to the option of the American team.

LACK CONTROL AT START.

Star Pitchers Are Wild When Only Recruits.

The game has few great pitchers who broke into the big league with control. Ed Walsh, Bill Donovan and even Mathewson were a wild lot when they started on their major league careers. But they gradually overcame this failing and eventually were numbered among those pitchers who are noted for having command of the ball. Walter Johnson was one of the few great pitchers who came into prominence in possession of control. He was able to get the ball over the very first day he pitched for the Nationals, and it is on rare occasions that he is wild.

Control seems to have been natural to Walter, just like his tremendous speed. The night he reported in Washington to Joe Cantillon in 1907 Cantillon put this question to the youngster: "Johnson," asked Joe, "how is your control?"

Walter studied awhile, then answered in that characteristic drawl: "I don't know. I never had to use any where I was." And that was likely true, for with his speed those bush league batters did not venture very near the plate or stand close enough to make it necessary for Johnson to get the ball over.

there is a walker in Denmark who sooner or later will succeed him as champion.

His name is V. E. Gylike. He completed the 10,000 meter walk at the Stockholm Olympic games, making a good showing. The Dane is a natural walker, with a smooth and finished style.

Goulding announced a short time ago that he intended to quit. He is considered the greatest walker that ever put on a shoe and is the holder of many world's records.

Holding Pace Hard Work.

John J. McGraw arises to state that this last National league campaign furnished the toughest year he has ever known as leader in the game.

"Setting the pace is always the hardest job of any race," he remarks, "and holding the pace after you have set it is about as tough. It was all the harder, as there was no one weakness in the Giant play, but a flurry of weak batting, poor fielding and uncertain pitching mixed. If it wasn't that it was something else."

And the toughest blow of all was to guide a team of this order successfully to the tenth inning of the final game of the world's championship and then gaze moodily upon the result.

M'CARTY IS YOUNGEST HEAVYWEIGHT TO BE CROWNED.

Luther McCarty is a living denial of the tradition that heavyweights have to be past the age of twenty-five before achieving great honor in their profession. The Nebraskan has not yet cast his first vote for the reason that he fears it would be challenged. He is only twenty.

Jim Corbett was twenty-six when he took the crown from John L. Sullivan at New Orleans. Fitzsimmons was thirty-five when he laid his famous solar plexus punch on Corbett at Carson City. Jeffries was twenty-four when his double left dropped Fitz for the ten toll, and Tommy Burns was twenty-five when Jeff gave him his title. Johnson was thirty at the time he stopped Burns in Australia.

MELISSA HAD REVENGE

SHE WAS SCOLDED FOR BEING ARRESTED FOR SPEEDING.

Austere Professor When Absent Minded Wore Wrong Hat and Telephoned From the Police Station for Her Help.

"No, Melissa," the professor rose with deliberation, "I cannot but feel that my duty to you, my wife, constrains me to forbid the repetition of such a vulgar happening. If you cannot indulge in automobilism without incurring the contamination incident to arrest for overspeeding, I shall reluctantly be compelled to dispose of the car."

He drew himself up imposingly, and left the room with a firm tread; but in the hall his agitation showed itself, for he captured and placed on his head the first hat which came to hand. It happened to be a jaunty toque of soft felt that Melissa had carelessly left on the hall table.

Before the professor had gone ten steps, however, his domestic tribulations had left his mind, and he was deep in the consideration of a difficult problem. Therefore he did not notice the curious glances and amused stares that began to follow him. As he progressed further and further he acquired a following of street boys and newsmen, whose jeers and hoots became louder as their number augmented. Finally his mind, distracted by the noise without, broke from the obtrusiveness of its problem, and he turned to confront external conditions.

The jeers died away and he faced his followers—then broke out louder than before. As the professor began to expostulate with his tormentors, a crowd gathered, bringing with it a blue-clad policeman, who speedily made his way to the center of the gathering. The professor turned to him with relief, and began to explain the situation in somewhat intricate English.

The policeman smiled genially. "Drunk again?" said he. "You come with me. It'll be ten days or $10 for disturbin' the peace."

He took a firm grip on the professor's arm just above the elbow, and marched him off, protesting.

Meanwhile Melissa, her lord and protector departed, had seated herself in an easy chair to read the morning paper. After awhile she tossed it aside. "He can be just horrid when he wants to," she complained. Then a smile crept over her face, "and, besides, he forgot that it's my auto, not his," she chuckled.

The telephone bell rang, and she took up the receiver. "Well!" A meek and quavering voice came over the wire. "Is—ah—is this Melissa?"

"It is."

"I—er—I—L," then with an agonized rush: "Please hurry down in the car and bail me out! I'm in the—ah—police station!"

THE HUNGRY EARTH MAN.

Many, many years ago, when there were fairies everywhere, a cunning tit the earth man lived in a hollow tree near a peasant's hut.

Of course all the children knew about it and left a cup of milk and a hunk of black bread by his little house every night.

But one fine day the children left their home to visit their aunt, who lived a couple of miles away. And, though they told their mother to be sure to look after the little earth man, she only shrugged her shoulders and laughed.

Now, when evening came the poor little man went out to look for his dinner, and when he found none he felt very sad and tried to go to sleep so as to forget how hungry he was.

But every time he dozed off he would dream of bowls of milk and great big pieces of black bread.

Finally he could not stand it any longer, so he got up and dressed himself in his little leather suit, putting his little cap well on his head.

He thought perhaps if he walked around the house he might find a saucer of milk which had been put out for the cat or perhaps a stray bone which the dog had left. Nothing was there, however, and the cat and dog were both in the house.

Just as he felt that life was indeed very miserable he saw that the pantry window was a little open. So he quickly clambered up the grapevine growing over the doorway and into the window.

My, what a feast met his eyes—two pieces of black bread and two mugs of milk laid out for the good man and his wife's early breakfast! What a good time the little earth man had, tracking his little muddy feet all over the table in his joy at finding such a very nice dinner.

Then when he had eaten and drunk up everything he stole out of the window and down the grapevine, walking quickly to his little house, where he went to bed and slept peacefully all night.

Now, when the good wife woke up and found the breakfast gone what a clatter she raised, to be sure, and spying the cat, she said, "It is you, is it, eating the breakfast and tracking my nice clean table all over with your muddy paws?"

So she slapped her soundly and put her out of doors. "How stupid she is, thought pussy, "for she ought to have seen that my little paws are nice and clean."

But when night came around again the little earth man was just as hungry as ever. In fact, he was even hungrier, for he had been playing all day and, as every one knows, that makes one very hungry.

So he went to look for the open window into the pantry. But it was closed tight. What should he do? There was nothing for it but to change himself into a fly and crawl through the key hole.

No sooner thought of than done; but, I tell you, he had a narrow escape from a great ugly spider that was all ready to pounce on him.

Everything was just as it was the night before except that there were two apples there too. So he ate up just as much as he could and changing himself back into a fly, though he was a very fat fly this time he squeezed himself with great difficulty through the keyhole.

So back he went to his little bed and went fast asleep. My, what a good sleep he had. He dreamed he was eating and had swallowed the cat.

But the good wife, I tell you, was cross when she discovered her breakfast was gone again. So, seeing the dog sitting by, she said, "Oh, it is you, was it?" and smacked him soundly, never thinking that dogs do not eat apples.

But just then the children came home, and they said, "We know it was not Rover who did it, mamma, for he doesn't eat, and if you will look you will see the marks of the dirty little boots of the earth man."

Sure enough, when mamma looked there they were. So, you see, she never after that she was very careful to leave a small supper for the little earth man right by the front door of his house in the hollow tree near a peasant's hut.

UNITY OF LIFE.

Cells of Animals and Plants Alike and Governed by Same Laws.

Protoplasm, the literal translation of which means "the first man made," was the name given by a German scientist in 1846 to the shaly, granular, semifluid contents of vegetable cells.

It looks like the white of an egg, and it can be analyzed into four chemical elements—carbon, oxygen, nitrogen and hydrogen. It is now recognized as the fundamental basis for all life. The smallest particle of it goes through what is known as the cycle of life—free motion, feeding, feeding and reproduction. When in some unconscious way it grows a membrane for a covering or a little nucleus, a kernel somewhere within it, science calls it a cell.

These cells are the same in plants and animals. Professor Jacques Loeb showed the importance of this fact. Although plants, he explained have no nervous systems, they have "instinctive movements." In analysis of instincts he found together in the cell common to them the plant and the worm at the root of the plant—as some day, perhaps, the tree of life and the serpent may be bound—and he called their reflex actions "tropisms."

Then he pointed out that tropisms are mechanical acts—that tropism and ivy leaf move in spite of themselves in chemical subjection to light, heat and odors, which the scientist calls "emanations."—From "Man as a Mechanism" in Metropolitan.

Confounding a Braggart.

At the time when Louis Napoleon was president of the French republic the commander at Lyons was General Castellane, an old soldier whose stern rule did not in check the riotous spirits of that disorderly city. One of the most boisterous of the latter was a barber, who openly boasted that he only waited for the opportunity of riding the city of its stern commander. The general heard of the threat and one afternoon ordered his coachman to drive to the barber's shop. Leaving his carriage, the general entered the shop unattended, took a seat in a vacant chair and desired the barber to shave him. The astonished braggart performed the operation as well as his nervousness would permit. When he had finished the general, while paying him, quietly said:

"Monsieur, since you have not availed yourself of the opportunity to cut my throat which I have given you, would it not be wise for you to refrain from uttering threats that you have not the courage to carry out?"

The New Maid.

Mrs. Brown-Jones (which isn't her name at all, not nothing like it) has a new parlor maid. Last Thursday was Mrs. B.'s day at home. Six callers were at the door, and each proffered her card.

Hilda looked the cards over carefully one by one.

"Youse ladies iss all wrong!" she decided finally. "One of your tickets iss fer Mrs. Choph Thompson, one iss fer Mrs. Miller, one iss fer Miss Chenks and Miss Mabel Chenks—and den dere's 'ree odders, all wrong names. Yet. Try next door. Goodby!"

Then she went back to her mistress. "None of 'em want to see you," she beamed. "Deir tickets was fer odder houses. I guess maybe dey ain't lifted here long!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Hard to Realize.

The variety of ways in which a given number of articles may be placed has often created much surprise. A mathematician once set himself to the task of calculating the number of different ways in which the fifty-two cards of a pack could be distributed among four players, thirteen to each, taking every possible combination. It would be useless to present the answer here in a long row of figures, for no one can realize what such a numerical array really means, but the following illustration can be readily grasped:

If the entire population of the earth, say one thousand millions of persons, were to deal the cards continually, day and night, for one hundred millions of years, at the rate of a deal to each person a minute, they would not have exhausted the one hundred thousandth part of the number of essentially different ways in which it is possible that the cards can be so distributed.

China Ornaments the Chief Feature of This Pincushion

THERE are numbers of pretty little china ornaments that may be purchased at a very trifling cost that lend themselves for the making of pincushions. In fact, all that has to be done is to make a small velvet cushion, which can be made from remnants, to fit into its place with a few drops of liquid glue.

Certain ornaments, such as little vases and jugs, may also be decorated with prettily colored ribbons tied round and about them and finished off with smart bows.

We give a sketch of four inexpensive little china ornaments treated in the manner suggested that made very successful pincushions. No. 1 is a white china swan; No. 2, a small pink pig; No. 3, a pair of little gold china shoes joined together in the center and fitted with a ring, by which the cushion may be lifted, and No. 4 is a dark green china frog.

The swan pincushion was made of pale blue velvet, the pig black velvet, the shoes pale green, and the frog crimson.

COMPENSATION ACT KEEPS CLERK BUSY

Work in Woods Proceeding Vigorously to North of Rapid River With Deep Snow

Light though the snow fall has been here, there is three feet or so in the woods at the north end of the county, according to a woods foreman of one of the largest companies now operating in the peninsula. The weather has been uniformly cold enough so that hauling has not been interfered with, and a large number of camps have been erected and are now busy. One of the features this year in the operation of the camps has been the compliance with the terms of the new compensation act. Every accident must be reported to the state industrial commission, and the company has one clerk who is kept busy at this. Not only does the company have to furnish reports from all the camps operated by itself, but as a matter of protection, those from all its jobbers. The man who receives an injury in the woods now, if it be of any seriousness, is now removed at once to the hospital, where he has two week's care at the company's expense and after that time his compensation starts, at half pay.

RICH STRIKE IN FAR WEST

FRANK FORVILLY OF MENOMINEE WELL KNOWN HERE WRESTS WEALTH FROM EARTH IN NEVADA

LONG SEARCH IS REWARDED

The Young Man Left Menominee Sixteen Years Ago, Determined to Fortune in Mining

Menominee, Mich., Jan. 15.—(Special) tidings to the effect that their son, Frank Forvilly, who for the last sixteen years has thrown his life and efforts in a quest for gold in the Nevada region, has been rewarded with a strike estimated to be worth $120,000, reached Mr. and Mrs. Max Forvilly, 311 Ludington avenue, today. Of an adventurous spirit and from boyhood displaying a leaning toward mining in the distant northwest, the lucky miner sixteen years ago, then a boy, departed this city for the home of gold.

The strike in which Forvilly benefits is one of the most gigantic in a score of years in Nevada and the scene is Rochester Canyon, where a town is now fast building, evidence of the sureness of the discovery.

Contained in a full page article in the Rochester Miner, entitled, "Showings of Rochester Canyon, Marvel of State's Mining History," is the following concerning the good fortune of the Menominee boy:

"One of the most fortunate claim-holders of the great strike is Frank Forvilly, a hearty, clever, good fellow of the plains. He has been at the game for the last sixteen years and in that time has experienced those ups and downs which come with the good, square, venturesome spirits, who have made the west, and of which Forvilly is a fine representative.

"Forvilly has rich property on Lincoln mountain in association with Claude Campbell and DeLorme. He is a trained mountaineer prospector and when he beheld his chance he diagnosed, like a skilled surgeon would, the treatment necessary to make the hidden fortunes of Lincoln come forth and bless him and his fellows."

In his letter to his folks, Forvilly states he already has been offered $40,000 for his holdings, but has scorned that figure, declaring that the lowest estimate of its worth is $120,000.

The father of the fortunate young man is a retired farmer and formerly was engaged in the saloon business in Menominee.

HOW JAPANESE WORK

WAGES ARE LOW AND HOURS ARE VERY LONG.

Great Uniformity in Manner of Living Among the Poorer Classes—Expenses Are Not Heavy—Rent is Bagatelle.

In Japan a remarkable feature of the industrial and social life is the great uniformity in the manner of living among different classes. They all live in very similar dwellings, says a writer in the Westminster Review. The poorer people have four wooden walls, and for furniture a few mats and blankets and a coal pot. In Manchuria Japanese settlers are beginning to build stone houses with steam heating, but they are bare inside. Nor is this feature confined to the working classes. It is found throughout all strata of the population. The food, save in the very highest classes, is in the main very uniform, rice and green tea, with sake as a stimulant. Among those who have not yet adopted European fashions even the dress is in substance the same throughout the middle and the lower classes.

The question of the balance between wages and the cost of living is the one that in the long run makes revolutions; it has not come into the open yet in Japan. Wages vary exceedingly and no real standard can be given, but they are as a rule very small, though recent years have witnessed a steady rise. They are given sometimes by time, sometimes by piece, mostly by weird combinations of all possible methods.

But the weekly budget of the Japanese workman is very small. His rent is a mere bagatelle, the same may be said of his food. His only extras are a hot bath regularly every other day, twice a month or so a family trip to the theater, a few pence for toys for his children and a few more for the delices or bribe the priests. Counting the family at two adults and three juveniles, and including every necessary and likely outlay, the weekly bill will come to about 11 shillings 6 pence a week.

Hours of labor are, to western notions, outrageous, on an average 11 a day, but frequently 12, 13 or even 14. Attempts have been made repeatedly to start trade unions, but never successfully. Where they have struggled into wretched existence they are of no account whatever, because they do not as yet answer to a need of the people. It is significant that many of these attempts were brought to a ruinous end by the dishonesty and corruption of their promoters.

Insurance against old age and infirmity is unnecessary in Japan so long as the present firmly anchored tradition endures which ascribes it as a duty upon each person to contribute to the maintenance of an aged, incapable or infirm member of his family.

This Congregation Was Punished.

The "Bluecoat Boys" of an older time had worse things to complain of than hard discipline and poor food. Since the day when "Christies hospital erected was, a passing dede of pittle," they have had their grievances. And they were fated to hear probably the ongest sermon ever preached from any pulpit. It was in 1671, and the preacher was Isaac Barrow. He subsequently published the sermon, and it runs to 230 pages. Its subject was "The Duty and Reward of Bounty to the Poor," and Tillotson has said of it that "it seems to have exhausted the whole ment and left no consideration going to it untouch'd." No one will be likely to quarrel with that statement. But there would have been some excuse for a school boys' strike in those days.—London Chronicle.

DELTA COUNTY PIONEER DIES AT GLADSTONE

Michael Mackin, One of First Residents of Delta County Dies After Long Illness.

Michael Mackin, one of the oldest settlers of this county, died at his home at Gladstone yesterday from cancer of the stomach, after a long illness. He came to old Masonville from his native Ireland some fifty years ago, and had since then been a continuous resident of this county. When Gladstone was built Mr. Mackin was one of the first men at work on the erection of the new town, where his home was made ever since.

Mr. Mackin was well known throughout his long residence in the county and much respect by all. He was a man of remarkably cheerful disposition and had a host of friends. During the last year or two he had been in poor health, but was active until a few days ago in his position as janitor of All Saints' school. His death was actually unexpected at the time of his passing away.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning from All Saints' church. Mr. Mackin is survived by his widow, three sons, Edward, Ivy, and Dwyer and three daughters, Margaret, Anna, May and Katherine; two sisters are living in Massachusetts. He was a member for the past twenty years of Gladstone tent, K. O. T. M. M.

MARRYING PARSON OF UPPER MICHIGAN

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Jan. 15.—Rev. T. R. Easterday, of the Soo, a veteran clergyman, is believed to hold the record for the state in the number of marriages performed. Mr. Easterday does not know just how many couples he has united in wedlock, but as he has been a minister of the gospel for five and a half decades the number of ceremonies at which he has officiated run well into the hundreds.

GLADSTONE STATE BANK REELECTS ITS OFFICERS

New Institution Passes Quarter Million Mark With Deposits Yesterday Afternoon

The stockholders of the newly organized Gladstone State Savings bank met last evening for their annual meeting, required by law in January. The report of the cashier showed that on the same afternoon the deposits in the bank has reached the figure of $250,000, marking its growth in five months of business from $110,000. NO VERDICT YET IN THINNES CASE

Up to the time of going to press no verdict had been returned by the jury in the case of the people vs. Nicholas Thinnas, charged with a violation of the liquor law. The jury retired shortly before noon and it appears they are having a difficult time to arrive at a verdict. Thinnas was charged with having his saloon open after eleven o'clock on the night of Dec. 27.

FLINT'S LETTER

An upward reaction in the price of London copper caused a little better feeling in the market this morning and somewhat checked the downward tendency of the past three days. Good copper stocks are still earning in excess of the dividends they are paying and as there is really no over production, figured on the basis of consumption, there is no reason for any great slump in metal prices. The present surplus represents only about one months consumption and it is pretty hard to figure out how business could go on with very much less copper on hand to meet the ordinary wants of the trade. It looks as if stockholders had been frightened at a shadow. The opinion of prominent brokers seems to be that stocks sold lately have been going into stronger hands. The market closed stronger in both New York and Boston.

MEYER DANIELS

had been saving for three years. During that time he accumulated $1,700. Instead of depositing it in a Bank, where it would be safe and draw interest, he kept it in his house. His house was destroyed by fire, and this $1,700 in paper money, representing three year's saving, was consumed. If you are keeping money in your house, you are not only running the risk of its loss by fire, but you are actually losing 3 per cent. interest which you would receive if it were deposited with us. We are paying depositors about $30,000 a year interest.

BOARD OF HEALTH TO SEND SPEAKERS

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 15.—Dr. Robert L. Dixon, secretary of the state board of health, states that free lectures on health will be held in various parts of the state during the present winter. It is the intention of the board to obtain as many lecturers as possible, including members of the state board, Dr. Dixon, Assistant Secretary D. E. McClurke and as many others as can be obtained who will go to places in the state where lecturers are desired.

As the state board has no funds to carry on this work, it is presumed that the cities and towns desiring the lectures will defray the expense actually involved, such as traveling and hotel bills. The services of the lecturers will be given free.

It is estimated 200 lectures on public health can be given in the state during the winter.

STATE-WILDE PROHIBITION

Back of the resolution comes the unqualified indorsement of the anti-saloon league. Up to now the anti-saloon league has been strongly opposed to the submission of statewide prohibition, believing more could be accomplished by the county local option. On this account the local optionists and the prohibitionists have been as far apart as have the wets and the dries. Now, however, they seem to have met on a common ground, for J. F. Burke, state superintendent of the anti-saloon league, has given out an authorized interview indorsing the resolution and promises the support of the league to help force it through the legislature and to carry it at the polls.

LANDS ON FEET FROM LONG DISTANCE FALL

Edward Parrish, an employee of the Northwestern Cooperage & Lumber Co. at Gladstone, had a narrow escape this morning. He fell from the roof of the flooring mill, where he was at work, and dropped over twenty feet. He landed squarely on his feet, but pitched over and struck on his head and right arm, breaking the latter. He is now doing well.

WILSON MAKES WOE

(Continued from page one.) was the same outfit of wearing apparel that Wilson had put on under police auspices. Then the prisoner was marched out of jail again long enough to make another exchange of garments. This morning Sheriff Crofoot of Rhinelander arrived from Rhinelander to take Wilson, but the latter had made another confession—this time to the effect that he is a deserter from the United States army, having enlisted at Duluth and deserted from Fort Snelling. If this is verified, he will probably be taken to the nearest army post and turned over to the penalties of martial law. Wilson, who is about thirty years old, was an employee of the Soo line ten years ago, he says.
