SEWER WILL GO THROUGH

PEOPLE OF NORTH ESCANABA NEED HAVE NO WORRY AS TO THE ROUTE OF THE TRUNK SEWER

PROMINENT OFFICIAL SAYS SO

Plans Are Made to Have It Run From One Side of City to The Other Starting in Seventh Ward

There seems to be some anxiety among the residents of North Escanaba in regard to the trunk sewer that will be built if the proposition is carried at the coming election.

It has been freely stated by some of the people in the Seventh ward that there will not be money enough to build it and that North Escanaba will be left out when it is put in.

Several prominent officials were interviewed this morning and they say that there is absolutely no grounds for this talk. The sewer will be started in the Seventh ward. As far as the money is concerned, there will be ample to complete the improvement and the people will get the improvement as planned.

COURT DECISIONS DISREGARDED

Break Down of Voting Machine at Ann Arbor Formed Basis for the Election Contest

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 17.—Flying in the face of the law, but standing squarely on a platform of fair play, the senate yesterday, by a vote of twenty-two to nine, in which four of the five Democrats, five of the six Progressives and thirteen of the twenty-one Republicans cast their ballots for him, retained James M. MacGregor, Democrat, in his seat as senator from the Twelfth district.

This contest raised by Frank L. Covert, the Republican candidate, had attracted more attention than any action of the legislature thus far. The committee which investigated the charges made in the contest consisted of Senators Smith and Fitzgibbon, Republican.

THIS CASE PATHETIC

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY IS AT HOSPITAL HOPING THAT SPECIALIST MAY RESTORE SIGHT

FRIENDS RAISED THE MONEY

Members of The Church to Which She Belonged in Manistique Raised Money For Her.

Mrs. Hoff, the mother of a large Manistique family, is at the hospital in this city being treated for glaucoma, which has practically made her totally blind. She came from Manistique a few days ago and Mrs. Oren the wife of one of the Swedish ministers of that city is with her.

When it was found that Mrs. Hoff was going blind, the people of the church to which she belonged, raised a small sum of money to pay her expenses to this city. The members of the congregation of the little Scandinavian church are not rich. Most of them are common laborers and all have families of more or less size.

Each willingly gave what they could and while only $45 was raised on the start it is thought that more will be raised.

The specialist who is caring for the woman says that he has some hopes of saving the sight of at least one of her eyes, though her condition is very serious.

A large crowd of her friends accompanied her to the station in Manistique when she left for this city and prayed that her sight might be restored.

DONA LA FOND LOST TO GROTH

Gladstone Youth Could Not Keep Up With Helmer Groth At The Peterson Rink Last Night

Helmer Groth is now the champion roller skater of Delta county having won out over Dona LaFond of Gladstone, in a fast race at the Peterson rink last night. On the first few laps of the race LaFond set a pretty fast pace for the Escanaba lad, but later he seemed to fall behind gradually and Groth won by a nice margin.

Many friends of the Gladstone boy came down last evening to see the race and were disappointed when their champion lost out. Both boys are good skaters and either one of them would make a good showing in one of the big city races.

The government furnishes free of charge tobacco, cigarettes and food and everyone has an enjoyable time.

Once in awhile someone gets excited and has to be quieted. This morning an enthusiastic stranger was stopped by the guard when he shouted that the election should not take place. He had a gun in his pocket and to save trouble he was jailed.

Prize Fighter Says That he Was Confined in the Death Chamber is all in From Scare

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, Jan. 17.—Jack Johnson, suffering from an old-fashioned case of "hants," limped into the office of Superintendent Charles F. DeWoody, of the federal department of justice, yesterday and complained bitterly because he was detained in one of the death cells at the county jail Tuesday night, after his return from Battle Creek, Mich.

The negro swore that "spooks" made merry around his cell all night, some of them dancing about the floor and others amusing themselves by talking on the outside of the iron cage.

"I'm all bunged up," Johnson said. "For the first time in my life I'm suffering from a weak back. That's due to my thrashing around all night when the spooks were bothering me. Look here—" and he displayed part of a large porous plaster on his back.

"I thought you had a large comfortable room," Mr. DeWoody said. "No complaint on the size," Johnson replied, "but just thinking of sleeping in a room where many men have spent their last nights on earth. I'd rather jump from the top of a twenty-story building than repeat that experience."

Support of Lawmakers Asked in Having Suffrage Question Resubmitted to Voters

(By Associated Press.)

Lansing, Michigan, January 17.—The suffragettes decended upon the legislature yesterday, and for a few moments at least held the floor in each branch of it. When the whole big crowd attending the convention here filed into the house, Representative Flowers, of Wayne, moved that business be suspended for fifteen minutes and that Mrs. Arthur, of Detroit president of the Michigan Equal Suffrage association, and Mrs. Cardine Bartlett Crane be escorted to the speaker's desk and speak to the members. This was done, amid applause.

Mrs. Arthur said, briefly: "It was twenty-seven years ago that the Equal Suffrage association came to the legislature first to ask the franchise for women. We have been coming here every two years, but who shall say that knighthood is not in flower in Michigan, when you by your resolution"

Great Honor is Given to an Old War Horse

Comanche, the old horse which was the only surviving thing of Gen. Custer's army to escape annihilation at the hands of the Sioux Indians in the massacre of the Little Big Horn in 1876, is soon to receive military honors beside the Custer monument at Sheridan, Wyoming, where are buried the bones of all the soldiers killed in that battle.

Comanche was ridden in the battle by Private Miles Keogh. Two days later, when relief came, he was standing on the battlefield, head hanging, wounded in six places, and every one a desperate wound. Around him were dead men and dead horses. At his feet was his dead master. He was the only living thing on the battlefield.

The horse was taken in charge by other troops of the Seventh cavalry and nursed back to health. For sixteen years old Comanche was the idol of that regiment, then he died and was buried with full military honors, a salute being fired over his grave.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 17.—Colonel C. W. Mott arrived in the city yesterday afternoon from Menominee for the annual business meeting of the Upper Peninsula Chamber of Commerce to be held in this city Feb. 4. He is strongly optimistic in his views on the work undertaken. "The bureau has completed its second successful year, he said, and upper peninsula people are finally awakened to the importance of the movement."

The chief session Feb. 4 will be held at 10 o'clock a. m. in the city hall assembly room. The public is invited to attend this meeting and a time will be set aside for those who may wish to speak. New ideas for the furtherance of the work of advertising the upper peninsula will be gladly accepted and it is hoped that the public will join wholeheartedly in making the meeting interesting. The business will be to elect new directors, five from each county, who, in turn, will meet to elect the officers.

On the afternoon preceding the public meeting there will be a meeting of the present directors at the Marquette club. The session will come to order at 2 o'clock. Anyone who may be interested in the work of the bureau whether he is a director or not, is invited to attend.

Colonel Mott said last evening he believed there would be no resignation.

MRS. MUNGER WILL BE BURIED TOMORROW

An error was made in announcing the funeral of the late Mrs. Munger as being at 9:00 o'clock tomorrow morning from St. Joseph's church. It was found that the church had been engaged for that hour and it was necessary to make the hour of the funeral at 10:00 o'clock instead of 9:00.

Robb Only Those Who Can Afford to Lose

Boston, Mass., Jan. 17.—William J. Monague, who deserted the routine of army life for the career of a "holdup" man, was brought into court today and held in $5,000 bail for the grand jury. Monague came to town on Tuesday and registered at a first class hotel as William J. Clayton. He spent two days looking over the town before deciding to attempt the robbery of an uptown ticket office. His selection was an unfortunate one for when he entered the place last evening and demanded the contents of the safe, there were half a dozen persons present, one of whom slipped out a rear door and gave the alarm.

In describing his exploits to the police Monague was particularly anxious that they should understand that he was "a gentleman" bandit. He robbed only those who could afford to lose.

"I never took from the poor," he said proudly. "My game was those who had more than they needed. For instance in Pittsburgh when I held up an office there, an employe told me that the $7 I had taken from him was all he had. I promptly handed it back. "In Philadelphia, when I obtained $127. I sent back $1.27 so they would be able to make change in the morning."

Monague is only 22 years of age.

Washington, January 17.—More than 4,000 buffalo overcoats which the government has preserved for the past twenty years, or since they were worn by the troops in the Northwestern Indian campaigns before 1891, are to be used by soldiers in Alaska. GEORGE PRESTON TENDER HEARTED

Authorized a Friend to Buy Christmas Presents For Several Poor Children Who Had Written Letters

In spite of the fact that little was known in regard to the private life of George Preston, whose funeral occurred this afternoon, he was a man that loved children, though he very seldom seemed to notice them.

During the Christmas season of 1911 the Mirror was printing letters from children, written to Santa Claus, in which the little ones asked for different presents. Several days before Christmas, Mr. Preston called upon Mr. English and requested that a number of the letters be given to him to read. He took great interest in them and after reading some 25 or 30 said that he would like to see to it that the children got the things that was asked for.

His plans were carried out and after the holidays he settled the bill for the toys, fruit and candy. At the time he requested that his name be kept out of the deal as he did not wish credit for anything of a charitable nature.

Milady's Mirror

How to Get Thin.

"I have often thought," says Mme. Jeanne la Placé in a recent number of Woman's World, "that the world is divided into but two classes of people—those that want to get fat and those that want to get thin. Honest, did you ever meet a person who seemed perfectly satisfied with his weight?"

"Of the overfat and overthin women, perhaps the overfat are the more to be pitied. At least they seem to think they are. It is always possible for the thin person to pad herself out to appear plumper, but it is extremely difficult for the fleshy person to disguise her infirmity. A good corset, a preference for dark and quiet colors in dress and a strict avoidance of horizontal stripes will do much to improve the appearance of her figure, but even these are of little avail if she once crosses the line between plumpness and fleshiness.

"Like other beauty ills, tendency to superfluous flesh must be taken in time. So many women will go on placidly and steadily gaining in flesh from month to month and from year to year until some day they wake up to the terrible realization that they are fat. Then a frightful wall goes up, and the victim begins to scramble around wildly for something to 'reduce flesh' and to answer 'anti-fat' advertisements and write pathetic letters to beauty editors.

"While it is possible for a really fat person to reduce her weight, it can usually only be done by immense self denial and excessive and often painful exertion, whereas a very moderate amount of self denial and exertion begun in time might have kept her from ever becoming an unsightly mass of flesh.

"In the vast majority of cases—in every case, I believe, in which fat is not due to actual disease—excessive flesh is caused by too much food and too little exercise. This may seem harsh doctrine to the fleshy sister, but if she wishes to improve her condition she might as well begin by looking facts in the face.

"Therefore the woman that finds that she is putting on flesh at an alarming rate should start out to regulate her diet. She is almost sure to find that she is eating more than she needs, taking into consideration the amount of physical labor she performs. Brain workers need less food than manual laborers, and people whose occupations keep them indoors should not eat as much as people who are in the open air most of the time.

"So the fleshy woman will either have to cut down her diet or take increased exercise, or, more likely, because it may cost some effort to get back to a normal condition she will have to do both at least for a time.

"The woman that wants to lose flesh should never eat more than once a day and then should confine herself to lean meats, fish and poultry. She should avoid starchy foods and go very lightly on potatoes, bread and sweets. The bulk of her diet should consist of fruit and green vegetables. This may sound like Lenten fare, but I am talking now to the woman who is determined not to be fat.

"Then, again, the fleshy woman should not sleep more than seven hours out of the twenty-four. She should never lie in bed late in the morning nor indulge in the rocking chair habit. On the other hand, she should get all the physical exercise she can possibly manage, preferably in the open air. The best all around general exercise and one within the reach of all is walking. Most women, whether they be fat or thin, walk far too little. The woman who tends to be fleshy should walk for at least an hour every day and do it regularly and systematically. As she gets accustomed to the exercise she should increase the number of miles she walks a day until she is doing five miles."

Treatment of Finger Nails.

To keep the finger nails clean the nailbrush and soap and warm water should be used daily, and every time the hands are washed and while they are still soft and warm the free edge of the scurf skin, which, if not attended to, is apt to grow upward over the nails, should be gently loosened and pressed back in a neatly rounded form, by which the occurrence of cracks, hangnails, etc., about the roots of the nails will be prevented, and a graceful oval form and the display of a crescent-like space of white will be insured. This scurf skin, as a rule, should never be cut and should on no account be torn or picked at, as is commonly done. The less it is meddled with, other than in the way recommended, the better.

Your False Hair or Switch.

If it has lost its luster and looks dry and dull wash it just as you would your own hair, rinsing well and afterward hanging it up so that it dries thoroughly.

After it is quite dry put a little vaseline on the palms of your hands and rub this into the switch, rubbing with a downward motion so that the vaseline gets into the hair well. Do not, however, have the hands too greasy. When you have rubbed the vaseline in take a good brush and use it vigorously with even, steady strokes.

You will find this will make the hair glossy and bright again.

X Rays.

X rays, discovered in 1895 by Professor Roentgen, were so called by him because "x" is the symbol used in algebraical equations, for an unknown quantity.

Points for Mothers

Your Daughter's Friends.

Here is a question that every mother of a growing girl should consider very carefully: How can I have more good times with my daughter and her friends?

Have you made friends with your daughter's friends? Do you know who her friends are and who are their friends?

It would seem from a study of social conditions that more than half the mothers in this country pay little attention to their children's associates outside the home. Perhaps your plea for this neglect—for it is a neglect, a neglect of duty—is that the housework and the care of younger children will not permit you to spend any time getting acquainted with young Ethel's friends.

Ethel enjoys their company, and you would not wish to hurt her feelings by suggesting that she should not associate with them. Ethel must have her fun while she is young.

Five mornings a week ten months in the year Ethel has to get out of bed early, dress, have breakfast and hurry off to school. Perhaps she returns at noon for a hasty lunch, perhaps not, but after school hours she must practice her music, study her lessons for the next day and attend to some small duties at home.

The evenings are long in winter. As a rule, there are few amusements at home, and the young boy and girl seek pleasure at some neighbor's house or get permission to attend a moving picture show.

On the way to either place Ethel meets a boy friend or several boys and girls, who suggest a walk or a visit to some boy's or girl's home where they can "rough house" unrestrained.

Very often a dance hall claims the boys and girls of fifteen and older. Surely there has been enough written about the dangers of the public dance!

The boys Ethel knows come to your home infrequently. They are at the awkward age, when the thought of meeting you and Ethel's father is most distasteful to them.

Ethel knows how they feel and courts their favor by arranging meetings outside her home—on the corner or at some girl friend's house where there is less supervision by parents than at her own home.

You, however, are really relieved by the thought that you do not have to meet and help entertain these young people. You say to yourself: "Oh, well, if she likes to be at Anna's house let her go. I suppose they do have a better time there, where they do not have to take care not to waken a baby." And so Ethel is allowed to go out in the evenings according to her own sweet will.

She forms the habit, and few are the evenings spent at home with mother and the other children.

If trouble comes to Ethel she is to blame. She is reprimanded, upbraided, and if she is a girl of spirit the chances are she leaves home entirely to join the army of working girls—or comes to greater harm.

Care of Children's Eyes.

One of the most important organs in the human body is the eye. Yet parents constantly jeopardize their children's eyesight by allowing them to read or study in insufficient light or light that is harmful to the delicate mechanism of the eye.

Light should always fall over the left shoulder of the reader. By so doing the rays of light follow the line on the printed page, and the vision also following the line from left to right meets with no resistance in the way of light waves, but, on the contrary, is aided in its work chair with the shoulders touching the chair back; then when they do lean forward to write they will instinctively move forward on the seat and retain the erect position of back and shoulders.

This is a most important matter, for many persons have had to go through life with a distressing curvature of the spine simply because in early days they have been allowed to sit with bent backs over their books.

When Baby Travels.

There are all sorts of fitted baskets for all sorts of purposes, but the one that most appeals to mothers is dedicated to baby on his travels.

Some of these are wonderfully elaborate affairs in a morocco case, but one within reach of the average income is of wicker, with stout straps and a firm wicker handle, light enough to be easily carried by a maid.

In the basket are a bottle for keeping liquids at an even temperature, two boxes for food, a feeding bottle with special cleansing brushes, a mixing cup, funnel, measuring spoon, napkin, bib, thermometer and a watch warranted to keep baby's meals as accurately on time as if in his own nursery.

Homemade Shoes.

Soft suede makes delightful shoes for the little one, and it is quite a simple matter for a mother, with a little practice, to make them herself and to decorate them with tiny flowers or leaves. The stitching should be done on the machine and the pattern quite simple, so that there will be no unnecessary seams. Slits may be cut round the top through which to run ribbon laces.

"Burnt Tower" of Stamboul Holds Fate of Turkish Empire

THIS is the "Burnt tower" of Stamboul. It is an old and respected tradition among the Turks that when the "Burnt tower" falls the Turkish empire will fall. So from time to time the ancient pile—no one knows exactly how old it is—has been strengthened against the evil day of the fateful crash. You can see how the spire has been held upright by iron bands. During the worst moments of the Balkan war, when it seemed certain that the Bulgarians would swoop down and drive the Turks into the Bosphorus, many a faithful Ottoman offered a silent prayer that the tower would stand intact and thus ward off the impending doom.

It is astonishing how prosperous we should be if there were no waste and losses. We are now told that cattle ticks cost the country $100,000,000 a year. If we remember aright, the department of agriculture has told us that rats cost us as much as that, and several other varieties of vermin and injurious insects rob us of as much larger sums. The underwriters tell us that nearly all the $240,000,000 a year we lose in conflagrations is preventable, and the doctors tell us that the greater part of the sickness, which is a tremendous drain on individual and national resources, is preventable. Some time we may stop these leaks.

Miss Helen Louise Johnson, the new head of the household economics department of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, says that household administration is the privilege of the woman, and that she ought to regard it as a pleasure, as the man does his business. The man, she says, plays his business as he plays a game, and he plays to win. It will probably take Miss Johnson some time, however, to persuade the average housekeeper that washing bottles is a game.

Spinsters in Massachusetts are reported to have organized a club to induce eligible bachelors to call on them—object not necessary to state. Yet such is the contrariety of poor human nature that if it were announced to be a club to drive them away, it would be more likely to bring them there in crowds.

SYNOPSIS

Stuart, southern lawyer in New York is in love with Nan Primrose. His friend, Dr. Woodman, who has a young daughter, is threatened with the loss of his drug business by Bivens, whom he befriended years before. Stuart visits the Primroses.

Nan wants Stuart to accept a place with Bivens' chemical trust. He dislikes Bivens' methods and refuses. Bivens calls on him.

Bivens is in love with Nan. Stuart refuses the offer, and Nan breaks her engagement with the lawyer. Bivens asks Woodman to enter the trust.

Woodman will not yield and sees Bivens' company. The promoter tells the doctor he and Nan are engaged. Harriet Woodman is studying music. Stuart takes Nan for a day in the country.

Stuart pleads with Nan to give up Bivens, but the spell of millions is on her and she yields to it.

Nan becomes Mrs. Bivens. Harriet loves Stuart, but he does not know it. Nine years pass. Stuart becomes district attorney. He investigates criminal trusts. Nan asks him to call.

Stuart wants Woodman to end his suit against Bivens, but the doctor stands firm. Bivens aids Stuart in his investigation of crooked financiers.

Stuart's revelations aid in bringing on a crisis. Bivens promises to aid the Van Dam Trust company, which is in trouble. Woodman reads money badly.

In the stock market slump engineered by Bivens, Woodman and many others lose all. The trust company fails because Bivens, at command of the money king, breaks his word. Stuart faces his crisis in front of Bivens' bank.

At the King's Command.

BIVENS' plan would have gone through without a hitch but for one thing. He had overlooked the fact that the kingdom of Mammon in America has a king and that the present ruler is very much alive. A man of few words, of iron will, of fiery temper, of keen intellect, proud, ambitious, resourceful, bold, successful, a giant in physique and a giant in personality.

It happens that his majesty is an old-time Wall street banker, with inherited traditions about banks and the way their funds should be handled. He had long held a pet aversion. The Van Dam Trust company had become an offense to his nostrils. It had built a huge palace far up town and its president had attempted to set up a court of his own. He had gathered about him a following, among them an ex-president of the United States. Gold had poured into the treasury of the great marble palace in a constant stream until its deposits had reached the unprecedented sum of $90,000,000, a sum greater than the royal bank it self could boast.

When the king heard the first rumor of the fact that the Van Dam Trust was backing the schemes of the Allied Bankers in their sensational raid on the market his big nostrils suddenly dilated.

At last he had them just where he wanted them. He signed the death warrant of the bank and handed it to his executioner without a word of comment. And then a most curious thing happened. The king summoned to his presence a little, dark, swarthy man.

When Bivens received this order to appear at court he was dumfounded. He had long worshipped and feared the king with due reverence and always spoke his name with awe. To be actually called to his august presence in such a crisis was an undreamed-of honor. He hastened into the royal presence with beating heart. The sovereign glanced up with quick energy.

"Mr. Bivens, I believe?"
The little man bowed low.
"I hear that you are about to aid the Van Dam Trust with four millions in cash?"

Bivens smiled with pride.
"My secretary will deliver the money to the bank within an hour."

The king suddenly wheeled in his big armchair, raised his eyebrows and fixed the little man with a stare that froze the blood in his veins. When he spoke at length his tones were smooth as velvet.

"If I may give you a suggestion, Mr. Bivens, I would venture to say that the Van Dam Trust company is beyond aid. The larger interests of the nation require the elimination of this institution and its associates."

"I have heard good reports of you, and I wish to save you from the disaster about to befall the gentlemen who have been conducting the present campaign in Wall street. If your secretary will report to me at once with the four millions you have set aside for the Van Dam company I shall be pleased to place your name on my executive council in the big movement we begin today. The other gentlemen whom I have thus honored are now waiting for me in the adjoining room. They represent a banking power that is resistless at the present moment.

"When the Van Dam Trust closes its doors today a temporary panic will follow. We will give the gentlemen who started this excitement a taste of their own medicine, render a service to the nation and incidentally, of course, earn an honest dollar or two for ourselves. I trust I have your hearty support in this program?"

Bivens again bowed low.
"My hearty support and my profoundest gratitude."

"I'll expect your secretary with your check for four millions within thirty minutes."

The king waved a friendly gesture of dismissal, and the little dark figure tremblingly withdrew. He had been ordered to stab his associates.

Without a moment's hesitation he gave the cruel orders that sent them hurrying over the precipice.

When the president of the Van Dam Trust company failed to receive the promised millions from Bivens he called his telephone and, receiving no answer, sprang into his automobile and dashed downtown to the little main office.

When the clerk at the door informed him that Mr. Bivens could not be seen by any one, he drove back to the palatial house of his bank, smiled sadly at the mob in front of its huge pillars, ordered its bronze doors closed, walked around the corner to his home, locked himself in his room and blew his brains out.

For a week the panic held the financial world in the grip of death. A dozen banks had closed their doors and a score of men who had long boasted their courage among men had died the death of cowards when put to the test.

One of the most curious results of the panic was the revulsion of popular feeling against the daring and honest young officer of the law who had rendered the greatest service to the people wrought by any public servant in a generation. He was hailed as the arch traitor of the people, the man who had used his high office to produce a panic and carve a fortune out of the ruin of millions whose deposits were tied up in banks that might never again open their doors.

Stuart, stung to desperation by their infamous charges, attempted at first to repel them. He stopped at last in disgust and maintained afterward a dignified silence.

From the first day of the run Bivens had laughed in the face of the crowd that besieged the door of his big Broadway bank. He stood on top of the granite steps and shouted in their faces:

"Come on, you dirty cowards! I've got your money inside waiting for you, every dollar of it—100 cents on the dollar!"

The crowd made no reply. They merely moved up in line in stolid silence a little closer to the door. Each day this line had grown longer. Bivens was not worrying. The king had spoken. The folly of these people to their insane efforts to wreck Bivens' bank was making impossible a return to normal business.

Stuart determined to face this crowd and have it out with them. He believed that a bold appeal to their reason would silence his critics and allay their insane fears. He told Bivens of his purpose over the telephone, and the financier protested vigorously.

"Don't do it, Jim! I beg of you," he pleaded. "It will be a waste of breath. Besides, you risk your life."

"I'll be there when the bank opens at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning," was the firm answer.

When Stuart appeared the next morning a roar of rage swept the crowd. Howls, curses, catcalls, hisses, boos and yells were hurled into his face. It was a new experience in Stuart's life. He flushed red, stood for a moment surveying the mob with growing anger and lifted his hand for silence.

The answer was a storm of hisses. Apparently he had not a friend in all the swaying mass of howling maniacs. He drew his heavy brows down over his eyes and the square jaws ground together with sullen determination.

With a sudden impulse he threw his right hand high above his head and his voice boomed over the crowd in a peal of command. The effect was electrical. A painful hush followed.
"Gentlemen!"

He paused and his next words were spoken in intense silence.
"My answer to the extraordinary greeting you have given me this morning is simple. I am not working for your approval. I work for my own approval, because I must obey obedience to the call within me. Long ago in my life I gave up ambition and ceased to ask anything for myself. You cannot destroy my career because I cherish none. The scene you are enacting here this morning is a disgrace to humanity. You have surrendered to the unmeaning fear that drives a herd of swine over a precipice. You have, by an act of will, joined in a movement to paralyze

He hurled him down the steps. The motive power of the world—faith! There is but one thing that runs this earth of ours for a single day—faith in one another.
"You are scrambling here for a few dollars in this bank. What can you do with it when you draw it out? There is not enough cash in the world to transact a single day's business. Business is run on credit—faith. The business of a bank is to keep money moving and make it do the world's work. You are attempting to stop the work by the destruction of its faith."

Suddenly a man who had quietly pushed his way through the crowd sprang on the step before the speaker and thrust a revolver into his face.

A cry of horror swept the crowd, as Stuart paused, turned pale and looked steadily down the flashing barrel into the madman's eyes.

"Who started this work of destruction?" the man cried. "You—you—do you hear me? And I've been commanded by God Almighty to end this trouble by ending you!"

As Stuart held the glittering eyes levelled at him across the blue black barrel he could see the man's nervous and uncertain finger twitching at the trigger. With a sudden panther like spring he leaped across the five feet which separated him from the man who held the revolver. His left hand gripped the weapon and threw it into the air as it was fired, while his right hand closed on the throat of his assailant. With his knee against the man's breast he hurled him down the steps, wrenched the revolver from his hand and with a single blow knocked him into insensibility.

The spell was broken. The mob that hated him saw their chance. A yell of rage swept them, and a dozen men sprang toward him with curses. For a moment he held his own, when suddenly a well directed blow from behind knocked him down. In blind fury he felt the smash of blows on his face and head. A stream of blood was trickling down his forehead and its salty taste penetrated his mouth.

A sudden crash from space seemed to send the world into a mass of flaming splinters and the light faded. He heard the soft rustle of silk and felt the pressure of a woman's lips on his. Surely he must be dead, was the first thought that flashed through his mind. And then from somewhere far away in space came Nan's voice low and tense:

"Come back, Jim, dear. I've something to tell you. You can't die, you shall not die until I've told you!"

He opened his eyes and found Nan bending over him. His hand rested on her soft arm, and his head lay pillowed on her breast.

"Why, Nan, it's you! What's happened? What on earth are you doing here?"

He moved about the room and saw that he was in the inner office of the president of the bank, alone with Bivens' wife. He was lying on the big leather couch.

"I heard that you were going to speak this morning. I wanted to hear you and come. I arrived just as you began and managed to get into the bank. I saw that man try to kill you, Jim, and that crowd of wild beasts trampling you to death. Two detectives pulled you out and dragged you into the bank."

A doctor entered and quickly dressed Stuart's wounds, and turned to Nan.
"He'll be all right in a week or so. Mrs. Bivens, provided he doesn't insist on breaking the run on another bank by the spell of his eloquence. I hope you can persuade him not to try that again."

"I think I'm fully persuaded, doctor," Stuart answered grimly. "I've seen a great light today."

When the doctor had gone and Nan was left alone with Stuart an embarrassed silence fell between them.
She was quietly wondering if he were fully unconscious when she was sobbing and saying some very foolish things. Above all, she was wondering whether he knew that she had kissed him.

When her car stopped at South Washington square and Stuart insisted on scrambling out alone, she held his hand tight a moment and spoke with trembling earnestness:
"You will see me now, Jim, and be friends?"

He answered promptly.
"Yes, Nan, I will. The world is never going to be quite the same place for me after today. There was one moment this morning in which I think I lived a thousand years."

A hot flush stole over the woman's beautiful face as she looked steadily into his eyes and quietly asked:
"What moment was that?"

"The moment I looked down that gun barrel, saw the stupid hate in that fool's eyes and felt the throbbing of the insane desire to kill in the people behind him, the people for whom I've been giving my life a joyous sacrifice."

Nan smiled a sigh of relief.
"Oh, I see. Well, you've made me very happy with your promise. I know you will keep your word."

He pressed her hand firmly.
"You are more beautiful than ever, Nan. Yes, I'll keep my word. Goodbye until I call."

And the woman smiled in triumph.

BALLOONIST HELD AS SPY

This photograph of the American balloonist, John Watts (on left), and a German army officer was taken just before the start of the International Balloon race at Stuttgart. Watts in descending at a place about 400 miles from St. Petersburg was struck on the head and made unconscious. Then the Russian police arrested him and his companion on suspicion of being German spies and held them for five days.

KRISS KRINGLE PACKS.

Something Quite Novel to Send Your Friends.

Two clever young New York women who have built up a delightful and lucrative business through the contriving of artistic gift boxes made up especially for the individual recipient have introduced a novel Christmas package this year.

It is called the "Kris Kringle pack." It is a stout khaki pouch, finished with tan leather straps and fastened with a small padlock. The pack is filled with gifts chosen with special reference to the age and tastes of the person—small boy or girl, invalid or healthy grownup—to whom it is to go.

The gifts are daintily wrapped and fastened with Christmas seals, and to each is attached a bit of merry verse.

A few days before Christmas the key to the pack is mailed to the recipient. It goes attached to a Christmas tag which announces in verse that the key will unlock a mysterious pack to be delivered by Kris Kringle on Christmas morning.

On the outside of the pack is a gay presentation card in colors showing Kris himself and leaving space for the name and address of the recipient. The toys, dainty gifts and imported novelties with which the packs are filled are things which for the most part cannot be found anywhere else. Many of them are made by the young women themselves.

The easiest way. He-I had made up my mind to go to Wiesbaden this year, and my wife was firmly determined to go to Ems. She—And did you have your way? He—Partly. We went through Wiesbaden to Ems—Pfeifende Blatter.

USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Druggist Says When Mixed With Sulphur Prevents Dandruff and Falling Hair

their own, but it isn't nearly so nice as "Wyeth's."

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, then left to age and carefully filtered will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching, and falling hair.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can tell, because it does it so naturally; so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this tonight and by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, after another application or two it will be restored to its natural color and be even more glossy, soft and luxuriant than ever.

Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray or dry, scraggly and thin. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of fuss. Some druggists make

Local druggists say they are selling lots of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur;" it surely helps folks appear years younger.

CHECKER "CHAMP" LOSES THE TITLE

Charles Connelly, Pride of The Firemen Has Been Defeated by Citizen George Finch

When the Mirror announced last night that Charles Connelly of the No. 1 fire station was the champion checker player something was started that has caused the fire fighters to bow their heads in sorrow, for their hero is no longer "It" when it comes to finding the king row.

The Mirror had been upon the street but a short time last evening when the fire station was visited by George Finch, who declared in a loud voice that no fireman was going to hold the checker championship if he could help it.

And he did help it, decidedly. The firemen say that George is some player and can wear the belt until someone is found that can take it away from him. If you are a checker player drop in and have a game with the firemen.

WHITE STAR FIGHTS TITANTIC CLAIMANTS

Company Asserts It Is Responsible Only for $100,000 Value of Wreckage

New York, Jan. 17.—Fifty lawyers who hope to obtain for their clients more than $10,000,000 damages for loss of life and property on the steamer Titanic, were arrayed against attorneys for the White Star line in the United States district court today, the expiration for the time limit set by the court for filing suits. The limit was extended to Feb. 11.

The White Star line contends that its entire liability is limited under the federal statutes to less than $100,000—the value of recovered wreckage and passage money. American claimants allege that the line cannot claim this limitation because it was itself responsible for the loss of life by reason of personal negligence. If their assertion in this respect is sustained the claimants will recover full damages. But even if this claim is not upheld the contention of A. L. Bringham, representing 200 claimants, is that the White Star line's liability can only be limited by the provisions of the British law which would compel the company to pay total damages of about $3,000,000.

The law requires that action for damages for loss of life must be begun within a year of the date of the sinking of the ship, and lawyers opposing the White Star line argued today that the company was endeavoring to mislead claimants so that their right to sue would be lost.

Lumber Camps For Inebriates Latest Suggestion of Lower Michigan Statesman

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 17.—Working short term prisoners in lumber camps in the north woods is the latest combination "jag cure" and reform measure to be advanced for the solution of the criminal problem.

FULLER ASKS FOR NEW LICENSE LAW

Lansing, Mich., January 17.—Auditor-General Fuller, in his report to the governor, urges the law licensing foreign liquor dealers be amended to compel all of them to pay license. He recommends it be made a misdemeanor for retail dealers to sell the goods of foreign liquor men who have not paid the license fee.

He also asks the repeal of the tonnage tax law on steamboats, passed at the 1911 session of the legislature, because the rate of taxes paid by the vessel owners under the law is not equivalent to the rate paid by the other property owners of the state. He concurs with former State Treasurer Sleeper that all state funds should be left in the state treasury until needed by the different institutions.

publicans, and Senator Curtis, Progressive. Its report, which was signed by all the members, found that in the Fourth ward of Ann Arbor the voting machine had broken down and that the inspectors, two of whom were Republicans, had made use of the regular ballots were marked in the open, some upon a swing table brought in for the purpose, some upon the wall etc., and that in a great number of instances the election laws had been absolutely disregarded. There had been no secrecy about the ballots and no attempt to observe the provisions guarding the honesty of the ballot. However it was not shown there had been any influencing of voters or any fraud committed.

The committee presented an extended report of the conditions, quoted supreme court decisions which all hold that in such a situation the vote of the five precincts should be thrown out and recommended that this action be taken and that Mr. MacGregor forfeit his seat to Mr. Covert.

POWELL MAY NOT LOSE HIS EYE

Gladstone Man Who Cut His Eye Yesterday While Cracking a Whip Has Chance For Recovery

Dr. Elliott who was called to Gladstone yesterday to examine the eye of Joseph Powell says that the injury to the eye is very severe and that while there are some hopes that the eye may be restored in a measure, Powell will never be able to see very well with it again.

Both the upper and lower lids were badly cut and the eye itself was lacerated as though it had been cut with some sharp instrument. Powell was driving a team for the Cooperage company and the "cracker" on the whip he was using flew back, striking him in the eye.

LABOR COUNCIL HELD MEETING

A meeting of the Trades and Labor Council was held at Union hall last evening and was attended by the delegates from the affiliated unions of the city. Little besides routine business was transacted. A committee appointed at the last meeting to look up the matter of union made hats and caps reported that they had called upon most of the merchants of the city and found that had hats and caps for sale bearing the union label.

The delegates also took action to request the representatives from this district in the state legislature to favor a bill that will be introduced in the legislature providing for the giving of state aid to the mothers of dependent children so that the children thus declared dependent may be cared for at home instead of being sent to the state public school.

OFFICERS INEFFICIENT, SAYS KENTUCKY CONGRESSMAN IN BITTER ATTACK UPON ARMY

Washington, Jan. 17.—Criticism of the army officers of this country and the army in general by Representative Helm, of Kentucky, marked the consideration of the army appropriation bill in the house today. Mr. Helm charged that the officers of the army were inefficient and incapable of performing the duties expected of them.

"I doubt very much if there is an officer in the army today who, in line of battle, could direct the fire of that line," Mr. Helm declared. Representative Hay, of Virginia, upheld the efficiency of the officers. The measure was still under consideration when the house adjourned.

The Commission. Of all the wild birds the canvasback duck is easily the king. Its flesh is matchless in street flavor unless it be by that of the redhead, and the extremely high price of 1 shows how precious and rare it has become. Not many years ago there was little difficulty in procuring a good bag of this bird on the shores of the Chesapeake, where it feeds upon the wild celery that gives distinction to its flesh. Today the canvasback is a rarity, indeed. It is going the way of all flesh, only faster than most, and its disappearance will be, unlike that of the dodo, a gustatory calamity. Its funeral procession follows close upon the footsteps of the prairie hen and the wild turkey. Voracious man, gun in hand, has been as thoughtless as a gluttonous child and sought to eat all his birds at a gulp. Philadelphia Press.

SUFFRAGETTES MADE PLEA

tion and your speaker in his courteous remarks invites us not only to come, but to address you. We bear wondrous things a going to do in the We hope you will, for we are those things which we hear you going to do. We give you more port now, but we hope in the future we may be able to give you political support. We thank you for your support and we urge you to give it to us once more, when once again the question of enfranchising women is placed before the people of Michigan.

Mrs. Crane said: "We believe equal suffrage will purify politics and result in better legislation. When it was believed that Michigan had given us the vote, it had more influence in all the territory east of the Mississippi river than the votes and acts in all those nine states which have already given us the ballot, because they felt that Michigan, in the great conservative Middle West, had broken the ice, the wave would soon sweep the entire country. It is hard for us even to think that we have to go through another campaign, but we are ready for it if we must, and we ask you in passing our amendment to also protect the ballot so that if now the votes of the men are not counted fairly and are not cast fairly those of the women when they get them may not be even more likely to suffer."

The same action was taken in the senate, where both these women also spoke.

FLINT'S LETTER

That pessimistic feeling still prevails is borne out by the action of the stock market today when good stocks declined to the low point of the first part of the week. Copper shares would be cheap if the metal was selling at 15c and the claim is made that there is a good demand at 16 3/4c. Wall street sees nothing in the future but unsettling investigations and legislation, but it is well to remember that Wall street operators always exaggerate all conditions and stocks have already suffered a severe decline in prices. While the foreign situation is not of the best, money is plentiful here and call loans are only 3 per cent. One of the bright spots in the present market is the Cobalts. The silver stocks are not only holding well but are quite strong. It may be that the public are commencing to realize that they are not only consistent earners but good dividend payers. After an early break the market closed strong at the high prices of the day. Greene cannot declare regular dividend of 25c today.

LOST TWO BOOSTERS

(Continued from page one.) changes in the officers, but a report from the copper country states that Thornton A. Green, of Ontonagon, president of the bureau and J. T. McNamara, of Houghton, the secretary have announced their intention of resigning. Colonel Mott's idea apparently is that these men may be prevailed upon to resume their duties. It has also been suggested that A. T. Roberts of this city, is the logical candidate for the office of president in case Mr. Green will not accept another term of office.

E. A. Hamar of Chassel, the Houghton county member of the board of directors, yesterday expressed his belief that Alton T. Roberts of Marquette, vice president of the association, is President Green's logical successor. Mr. Roberts is young and enthusiastic and can afford the time that the president of the bureau should devote to his duties.

Secretary McNamara heartily endorsed Mr. Hamar's suggestion and both agreed that Mr. Roberts probably will have no opposition for the presidency if he is willing to accept. No name as yet has been offered for the secretaryship.

WIFE DIES IN A TRUNK SHE ENTERED, IT'S THOUGHT, TO TEASE HER HUSBAND

Amesbury, Mass., Jan. 17.—To tease her husband, Mrs. Alphonse Victorine concealed herself in a trunk as she heard him enter the house last Tuesday. As the cover dropped over her, the bolt of the old-fashioned lock slipped into its place and in a few hours the woman was dead, from suffocation.

This is the theory today of Medical Examiner Hurd, who performed an autopsy after a three days' search by the police had revealed the hiding place of the unfortunate wife.
