COUNCIL WILL HAVE TO TAKE ACTION NOW

In the Matter of Those Having Paid Their Assessments in the Langley St. Situation

Some of the residents who have paid their assessments for the Langley street improvement living on the side streets are wondering whether a refund will be made to them now as the action of the city council decided that the taxpayers should pay according to frontage instead of benefits. Although very few have paid such assessments, according to the city treasurer, still some little controversy may arise with that point at issue. The city officials claim that the matter will have to be taken up by the city legislative body as to whether a refund can be made or not.

PART ATLANTIC RESERVE FLEET

Boys Will be Given Leave of Absence to Visit the Exposition Grounds There

Washington, Jan. 23.—The navy department is working on plans to attach the naval militia, including those of the Hancock and Escanaba divisions to the fleet which will make the initial trip through the Panama canal. The naval militia on the Atlantic coast will go through the big ditch in their own ships, while the great lakes organizations will form part of the crews of the Atlantic reserve fleet. This information has been communicated unofficially to officers of the National Militia association so that the naval militia will have sufficient time to arrange for the trip. As in the mobilization last October, the naval militia will be enlisted temporarily in the regular navy and will be discharged at the conclusion of the cruise. It is probable that the fleet will sail from New York down the Atlantic coast, proceed to San Francisco after going through the canal. At San Francisco a grand review and sufficient shore leave to give officers and crews of all ships an opportunity to see the exhibition grounds will be features of the expedition.

The Council Will Meet in Special Session This Evening to Consider the Proposition

This case raises over the purchase of several voting machines for the precincts of the city of Escanaba in 1907 from the Abbott Voting Machine company, who later sold out to the Cogswell concern. The Greatest Harley-Davidson

Eight Horsepower.

THE new Harley-Davidson Twin Cylinder does not have to be babied, nursed or coaxed into action—it is ALL THERE. It is instantaneously responsive to the throttle—off like a flash—picks up quickly—no hesitation—no sluggishness—no snorting or popping. This new without question is the fastest machine on the road today.

Its exceptional speed has been obtained in a measure through the use of large intake and exhaust chambers and passages; and pistons, connecting rods and fly wheels individually and collectively in perfect balance. And this speed comes without sacrificing one atom of Harley-Davidson reliability or endurance. In fact the decreased vibration, due to more perfect balance of the vital parts has actually increased the life of the motor.

The Full-Floating Seat which does away with all jolts and jars due to rough roads, and the Free-Wheel Control, a device which permits starting without the usual hard pedaling or running alongside are incorporated in all models.

Both of these features are patented and are to be found only on the Harley-Davidson.

SALA IS WAS, BUT NOW NO LONGER IS

Story Leaks Out How Millionaire Dawe's Oriental Valet Lost a "Soft Snap"

Milwaukee, January 23.—The manner in which Edward G. Dawe, the Pittsburgh millionaire, president of the bath tub trust, lost his valet in Milwaukee on the eve of his wedding here became known recently. The story of Sala Is, the East Indian valet, who was but now is not, was held a secret until Dawe and his bride, who was the Mrs. George named in the recent divorce suit of Mrs. Dawe, left on their honeymoon.

Sala Is, who was but now is not, had what is called in popular parlance a "soft job." He accompanied Mr. Dawe on travels through the United States and Europe, staying at the best hotels, being supplied with expense money and receiving a salary of $30 per week.

On their arrival here the day before the wedding he went to his master after breakfast.

"Sahib," said Sala Is, "my value and skill have much increased since first I graced your presence and I demand more gold. In the future I wish my pittance doubled. Sixty dollars each week it shall be."

When he recovered his breath the millionaire told Sala Is in no uncertain terms of several places he could go to. The next day Sala Is received $500 in lieu of notice and a ticket to his native land with instructions to get hence.

THE BETTER WORLD.

The world was never so cheerful, so charitable, so solicitous for the welfare of the needy, so indulgent in its verdicts upon the unfortunate. We place on a lofty pinnacle the chivalry of the middle ages. We serenely ignore the unknighly actions and characters of many of those who appear to possess advantage before "ladies whose bright eyes rained influence" in the tournaments where men were the targets instead of the animals in a Spanish bull fight. Football is not so bad as the contests of the gladiators in the Coliseum, no matter what objections the enemies of the thrilling modern sport may accumulate against it. Today there is something rather stronger than a prejudice against the taking of human life, in quarters where cannibalism used to be the accepted order, and a value is placed upon the individual which mothers who threw their deformed children over the cliffs of Sparta. Nowadays we have hospitals, commissions, research laboratories—for what? To keep alive those who once were allowed to die because of superstition or deliberate indifference, says the Philadelphia Ledger. We inveigh against the luxurious entertainments of "malefactors of great wealth," and "the idle rich." We overlook the profligacies that antedate Sardanapalus, and are more ancient than Nineveh and Tyre. It is good to believe that the golden age men were better than they are in the age of steel. But if it is not true.

What attracts money to New York is reasons of general fitness is the fact that local banks pay interest on deposits by the out-of-town institutions, says the New York Herald. Idle money is accumulated here in excess; unwholesome speculation and manipulation of stocks is thereby fostered, and when the crops are to be moved or business revived and the country banks recall their money from New York banks the latter must take it away from the speculators who are using it to "carry" stocks. Thereupon enforced liquidation by the borrowers, depression in Wall street and sometimes panic. The evil of this accumulation of idle money and its sudden withdrawal has been denounced by committees of the clearing house after every panic in the last 50 years, accompanied with a recommendation to stop the payment of interest on the deposits of out-of-town banks.

There has been much controversy of late as to whether the national emblem of Wales is the leek or the daffodil. If the national emblem of Wales was really picked up at Croyce or Poleslers, writes a Paris correspondent, it was without doubt a leek. For the men gathered there would see leeks all around them and would see them, too, honored and prized beyond every other vegetable, used with every drop of soup and eaten in some form with every meal. At this day the leek is an honorable badge in those parts. The green decoration bestowed for "merite agricole" is in the form of the green part of a leek and popularly so called "le poireau."

THE ROOT OF EVIL

BY THOMAS DIXON

Stuart, southern lawyer in New York is in love with Nan Primrose. His friend, Dr. Woodman, who has a young daughter, is threatened with the loss of his drug business by Bivens, whom he befriended years before. Stuart visits the Primroses.

SYNOPSIS

Nan wants Stuart to accept a place with Bivens' chemical trust. He dislikes Bivens' methods and refuses. Bivens calls on him.

Bivens is in love with Nan. Stuart refuses the offer, and Nan breaks her engagement with the lawyer. Bivens asks Woodman to enter the trust.

Woodman will not yield and sees Bivens' company. The premier tells the doctor he and Nan are engaged. Harriet Woodman is studying music. Stuart takes Nan for a day in the country.

Stuart pleads with Nan to give up Bivens, but the spell of millions is on her and she yields to it.

Nan becomes Mrs. Bivens. Harriet loves Stuart, but he does not know it. Nine years pass. Stuart becomes district attorney. He investigates criminal trusts. Nan asks him to call.

Stuart wants Woodman to end his suit against Bivens, but the doctor stands firm. Bivens aids Stuart in his investigation of crooked financiers.

Stuart's revelations aid in bringing on a crisis. Bivens promises to aid the Van Dam Trust company, which is in trouble. Woodman needs money badly.

In the stock market slump engineered by Bivens, Woodman and many others lose all. The trust company falls because Bivens, at command of the money king, breaks his word. Stuart faces his critics in front of Bivens' bank.

The mob attacks Stuart and injures him slightly. Nan sees it and reveals her love. Bivens piles $10,000,000 on a table and bids Stuart to see the money to refute rumors of his financial weakness.

Stuart is tempted to join Bivens as a confidential man. He accepts an invitation to visit the Bivens house and is received by Nan.

At a meeting of the disinterested, at which Bivens is denounced, a bomb thrower is killed by his own missile. Woodman decides to continue his fight against Bivens.

Harriet confesses to her father her love of Stuart. She needs money to continue her music studies abroad, and Woodman tries to see Bivens to give it to him. Harriet is to sing at a ball at the Bivenses.

Harriet sings at the Biven ball, which has for its special feature a costume dance of "death and the worm." Nan and Stuart revive old memories.

CHAPTER XV.
The Dance of Death.

A FLUSH of excited pleasure overpowered Stuart's face as he led his beautiful hostess to the dining room. Apparently on entering the banquet hall they were stepping outdoors into an enchanted pine forest. The walls were completely hidden by painted scenery representing the mountains of western North Carolina. The room had been transformed into a forest, trees and shrubbery melting imperceptibly into the scenery on the walls and mocking birds were singing in cages hidden high among the boughs of the trees.

"Why, Nan," Stuart gasped, "that's a view of the river hills at home where you and I used to roam."

"Well, if you hadn't recognized it, I should never have forgiven you. Are you pleased with my fantasy?"

"Pleased is not the word for it," he replied quickly. "I'm overwhelmed I never thought you so sentimental."

"Perhaps I'm not; perhaps I've only done this to please a friend. Do you begin to feel at home in this little spot I've brought back by magic tonight from our youth?"

"I'm afraid I'll wake up and find I'm dreaming."

ment the past ten years to have known that you didn't hate me."
"You know it now."
"Yes," she answered tenderly. "You have said so with your lips before, now you mean it. You are your old handsome self tonight."
Apart from the charm of Nan's presence Stuart found the dinner itself a stupid affair, so solemnly stupid it at last became funny. In all the majestically dressed crowd he looked in vain for a man or woman of real intellectual distinction. He saw only money, money, money!

In spite of the low murmur of Nan's beautifully modulated voice in his ears he found his anger slowly rising, not against any one in particular, but against the vulgar ostentation in which these people moved, and the rapid assumption of superiority with which they evidently looked out upon the world.

But whatever might have been lacking in the wit and genius of the guests who sat at Nan's tables, there could be no question about the quality of the dinner set before them.

When the feast ended at 10:30 Nan led the way to the bathroom, where the entertainment by hired dancers, singers and professional entertainers began on an improvised stage.

During this part of the program the women and men of the banqueting party who were to appear in the fancy dress ball at 12, including Nan, retired to the rooms above to dress for their parts.

Stuart noted with some astonishment the peculiar somber effects of the ballroom. He had expected a scene of splendor. Instead the impression was distinctly funeral. The lights were dimmed half the interior of a theater during the performance, and the lofty gilded ceilings with their mural decorations seemed to be draped in filmy black crepe.

The professional entertainment began on the little stage amid a universal gasp which made it impossible for anything save pantomime to be intelligible beyond the footlights. Star after star, whose services had cost $1,000 each for one hour, appeared without commanding the slightest attention.

Stuart turned to the program in his hand and idly read the next number: "A song by an unknown star."

He was wondering what joke the manager was about to perpetrate on the crowd when his ear caught the first sweet notes of Harriet's voice singing the old song he loved so well, the song she had first sung the day he came from the south.

His heart gave a throb of pain. Who could have prepared this humiliation for his little pal? He pushed his way through the throng of chattering fools until he stood alone straight in front of the slender little singer. She saw him at once, smiled and sang as he had never heard her sing. To his further surprise Stuart saw the doctor standing in the shadows at the corner of the stage looking over the gossamer, noisy crowd with a look of anger and horror.

When the last note of the song died away, quivering with a supernatural tenderness and passion, he brushed a tear from his eyes, lifted his hands high above his head and made a motion which said to her: "Tuneful applause."

She nodded and smiled, and he brushed behind the scenes to ask an explanation.

He grasped both her hands and found them cold and trembling with excitement.

"What on earth does this mean?"

"Simply that I was engaged to sing tonight, and I wanted to surprise you. Didn't you like my song?"

"It lifted me to the gates of heaven, dear."

"If I don't care whether any one else heard it or not. But I did so much wish that she might have heard it or her husband because they are from the south."

"But I don't understand—your father hates Bivens, so."

A big hand was laid on his shoulder, he turned and faced the doctor smiling.

"But I don't hate him, my boy! I've given up such foolishness. We've buried the hatchet. I'm to see him in a few minutes and we are to be good friends."

"Bivens invited you here to discuss a business proposition tonight?" Stuart exclaimed, blankly.

"No, no, no," the doctor answered. "I came with Harriet, of course." Her music teacher placed her on the program. But Mr. Bivens and I have had some correspondence and I'm to see him in a little while and talk things over quite informally, of course, but effectively."

She Sang as He Had Never Heard Her Sing.

"He has agreed to a conference here?" the young lawyer asked, anxiously.

"Why, of course. His butler has just told me he would see me immediately after the ball begins."

Stuart breathed easier and turned to Harriet.

"You look glorious tonight, little pal! Funny that I never saw you in evening dress before. You look so tall and queenly, so grown, so mature. You're beginning to make me feel old, child. I'll be thinking of you as a grown woman next."

"I am twenty-four, you know," she said, simply.

"I have never believed it until tonight. I wouldn't have known you at first but for your voice. I had to rub my eyes then."

The lights were suddenly turned lower, approaching total darkness. The attendants noiselessly removed the temporary stage and cleared the great room for the dancers.

As the chimes struck the hour of midnight, skeleton heads slowly began to appear peeping from the shadows of the arched ceiling and from every nook and corner of the huge colonnade and pillars. Draperies of filmy crepe flowing gently in the breeze were lighted by sulphurous hued electric rays from the balconies. Tiny electric lights blinked in every skeleton's smoken eyes and behind each wringing row of teeth. Suddenly two white figures drew aside the heavy curtains in the archedway and the dancers marched into the somber room.

The men were dressed as shrouded skeletons and the women as worms. The men wore light filmy gray robes on their shaggy bodies and gaiters on four sides in deep colors the pictures of human skeletons.

The women wore curious light robes of cotton fiber which were drawn over the entire body and gave to each figure the appearance of a huge caterpillar.

The strange figures began to move slowly across the polished floor, to the strains of a ghostlike waltz.

From the corners of the high balconies strange lights flashed, developing in hideous outlines and phosphorescent colors of the skeletons and long, fuzzy, exaggerated lines of the accompanying worms. The effect was thrilling.

Suddenly the music stopped with a crash. Each ghostly couple, skeleton and worm, stood motionless. The silvery note of a trumpet called from the sky. The blinking eyes of the death heads in the ceiling and on the walls faded slowly. The trumpet pealed a second signal—the darkness fled and the great room suddenly blazed with 10,000 electric lights. The orchestra struck the first notes of a thrilling waltz, and, presto, in an instant the women appeared in all the splendor of the most gorgeous gowns, their bare arms and necks flashing with priceless jewels, and each man bowed before her in immaculate evening clothes.

From the four corners of the vast room were released thousands of gorgeously tinted butterflies, imported from the tropics for the occasion. As the dancers glided through the dazzling scene these wonderfully colored creatures fluttered about them in myriads, darting and circling in every direction among the flowers and lights until the room seemed a veritable fairyland.

Imagination was vivid enough to have dreamed half the splendors of such a life when you turned from the little cottage I built for you."
A look of pain clouded the fair face, and she lifted her jeweled hand.
"Please, Jim, I'd like to forget some things."
"And you haven't forgotten?"
She looked straight into his eyes and answered in even tones:
"No."
Both were silent for a long while, and then they began to talk in low tones of the life they had lived as boy and girl in the old south and forgot the flight of time.

ONE OF THE MOST ABLE OF ORGANISTS

is the Recommendation That Comes With Prof. Emil Larson, Who Appears Here

Prof. Emil Larson of Chicago, who will assist Mr. Gustaf Holmquist, the eminent Basso, in concert given at the Swedish Lutheran Church, Feb. 4th, is in his home city ranked as one of the ablest pipeorgan artists. He is often heard at the magnificent pipeorgan in Chicago Auditorium in connection with different musical events. During the years 1904-8 Prof. Larson served as Director of the Augustana Conservatory of Music in Rock Island, Ill. While at this institution he also served as director of the Wennerberg Male Chorus. This Chorus appeared in concert in above mentioned church of our city last year and made a most favorable impression. The concert then was given in the old church building and was literally packed to the doors. If the public realizes the merits of Prof. Larson and Mr. Holmquist the new church recently completed by the Swedish Lutheran congregation will be none too large to accommodate the audience.

Judging from numerous press notices and personal information given by several of our citizens who have heard Mr. Holmquist sing in Chicago and elsewhere, we do not hesitate to assure our song and music loving fellow citizens that a rare treat is in store for those who make arrangements to attend this concert Feb. 4th. From Richmond Times Dispatch we glean the following words of commendation:

The climax of the evening occurred, however, in the fourth number of the program, when Mr. Holmquist sang "O Rudder Than the Cherry," from "Act and Galates," and Walter Damrosch's "Danny Deever." The handclapping was so long continued that Mr. Holmquist returned several times to bow his acknowledgments. Finally he and Mr. Damrosch came together, and nothing hushed the applause but the continuance of the program.

A BIG FIGHT IS ON FOR WOMEN SUFFRAGE

Lansing, Jan. 23.—While there appears to be practically no question but what the woman suffrage amendment to the constitution will be ordered submitted to the voters by the legislature, a hard fight is nevertheless to be put up by the "anti" forces, and already strong protests against submission have been received by Representative Ashley, of Detroit, chairman of the committee on constitutional amendment and revision.

Not only will the anti-suffragist organization lobby against the plan but German societies all over the state are sending in warmly worded objections to a resubmission.

For the brewery interests, however, it must be said that their work has not yet reached a stage where it is recognizable; it is suspected by inference from the action of certain representatives only.

The big argument against the resubmission will be that it is scarcely reasonable to submit it twice within five months, especially as it was defeated in the first trial.

Judge takes the position that both sections of the committee which reported two weeks ago admitted that there was evidence existing which gave some ground for the charges against Wafflen, and since Wafflen desired it, he believed that the bar should go ahead with the investigation and the disbarment proceedings. If the prosecutor clears himself, the organization will be gratified, and if he does not, then proceedings will be justified, says the judge. The matter is expected to come up during the February term.

Easter Earlier Than is Usual This Year

Easter this year falls earlier than it has done since 1856. The date of the great feast is March 23, and the festival which is supposed to be a vernal one, will doubtless be ushered in with the characteristic weather of March. In Escanaba, where even April Easter is too cold usually to admit of the display of spring bonnets and dresses and where church folks usually cling to the winter raiment and warm furs when they attend Easter services, the difference in date will not be so greatly felt as it relates to clothes. In New York it is another matter and the early date will probably make the annual Easter parade out of the question entirely. In every school and college Easter is now synonymous with spring vacation. A holiday of from three days to two weeks is declared. Children and young men and women are sent home, teachers go off on special rate tours, and all hands make the most of the seasonable change of climate. Courses of study are arranged with Easter in mind. It is the time for "exams" in a host of places. Everything is wound up and set to "go off," like an alarm clock at Easter time. All of which is thrown out of kilter this season. The spring homecoming or special-rate tour will be a frost-bitten affair and just how to wedge in the Easter "exams" is a problem that many a faculty has yet to solve. Apropos of flowers, an Easter lily will submit to just so much treatment to retard or hasten growth but it must be allowed to mature in its own way after a certain point. The extra amount of forcing that will be necessary in order to supply Easter lilies on March 23, is going to make the price of Easter lilies go up this season. For one thing lilies will be scarcer. In order to force blossoms, the hothouses must be steam heated to a temperature of 100 or 110 degrees for days at a stretch. Some of the smaller florists cannot get up that much steam. With normal March weather outside, they will be short the usual supply of lilies when Easter arrives. Hyacinths, daffodils, tulips and narcissus, when grown in the hothouse, may be made to blossom almost at the will of the florist overlord, so that the chief concern is, and will be, until March 23, the lily.

HAIR FADING, TURNING GRAY, FALLING? APPLY A LITTLE SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR

It's Grandmother's Recipe for Dandruff and Restoring Color to Hair

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also cures dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays skilled chemists do this better than ourselves. By asking for any drug store for the ready-to-use Sulphur Hair Remedy—you will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Some druggists make their own but it's usually too sticky, so insist upon getting "Wyeth's" which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is the best remedy for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and to stop falling hair.

Folks like "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" because no one can positively tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly, says a wellknown downtown druggist. You dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. This requires but a few moments, by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two is restored to its natural color and looks even more beautiful and glossy than ever.

LAUERMAN BROS. PLAN TO ENLARGE BUILDING

Marinette Dealers Announce the Enlargement of Big Store On Dunlap Square.

Announcement was made yesterday by Lauerman Brothers, of Marinette, that they will build a fourth story to their department store, and will also add thirty-seven feet to the south side of the present building.

The building now occupied by Arthur Rettke as a saloon and the barber shop of Fred Gagnon will be used for the additional space. This property is owned by Lauerman and Madigan. As soon as both buildings are torn down the additional thirty-seven feet will be built, and used as additional room for the various departments of the retail store.

The new fourth floor will be used for wholesale display and stock rooms, the former Wilson building now owned by Lauerman and Madigan to be used also as wholesale warehouse. The building on Dunlap Square and Main street erected in 1904 by Senator Stephenson and leased for 15 years by Lauerman Brothers, was recently purchased from Mr. Stephenson by the department store men.

MONETARY PLAN HAS MUCH OPPOSITION

Washington, Jan. 23.—Andrew J. Frame of Waukesha took a stand yesterday in the opposition of the proposed monetary commission banking and currency plan. He presented a brief signed by twelve bankers throughout the country. The brief said that the commission plan "spells monopoly inflation over the expansion credit system." Instead of preventing panics it would speed panics. As a substitute the brief offered a central bank plan, which would have limited powers.

Migration of a People.
A correspondent has described the flight of the inhabitants of Turkish towns to Constantinople before the advance of the victorious allies as the "migration of a people." This photograph will give some idea of the eager crowds of refugees bent upon leaving Europe behind and getting into Asia Minor, where the Turk is undisputed possession-back among their own people and peace.

A Fish With a Lantern.
No matter what animals or groups of animals are studied, it will always be found that their leading physical traits are exactly adapted to their habits and conditions. A striking illustration of this fact is afforded by the torch fish. This is a deep sea fish that carries on its nose something like a short, thin bone, which it can illuminate with a phosphorescent light or extinguish at pleasure. It does not use this lantern to guide it on its way in the depths of the ocean or to enable it to see what is going on in the neighborhood. The light is put to a more practical use. When the fish feels hungry it lights up to attract smaller fish. They dart for the light and find themselves in the capacious mouth of the fish. How the lantern is lighted and extinguished is not yet clearly understood.

Fortune Telling.
Fortune telling is almost as old as the human race. We have no knowledge of the time when or place where it originated. We only know that the practice was in vogue as far back as we can go. Some claim that it had its beginning with the Chaldean astrologers, who claimed that they were able to foretell the future by aid of the planets. The oldest of the nations were familiar with the practice, and by the gypsies it has been carried all over the world. It is perfectly natural for man to want to know about tomorrow and next year, and it required but little effort on his part to listen to fortune tellers. To this day the business is carried on with profit by the gypsies and others who impose upon the credulity of the superstitious.—New York American.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

Temperatures have again fallen to considerably below zero over Montana, North Dakota and the Canadian provinces to the north, but elsewhere over the country they are still moderate. The low pressure area noted covering the west yesterday morning, is now central over Lake Superior; and while it was attended by scant precipitation over western sections during the past 24 hours, it is now causing widespread unsettled weather, with general precipitation, principally in the form of rain, from the Mississippi Valley east to the Appalachians. The influence of the northwestern low temperatures will rapidly extend to the Lake region, following the eastward passage of the low pressure area, indicating much colder and cloudy weather with a cold wave for this vicinity tonight. Friday will be fair and colder.

PROGRESSIVES WILL MEET THIS EVENING

This evening the progressives of the county will gather at Judge Linden's office to forward the progressive movement toward enrollment for next Saturday. A large number will undoubtedly be present and an enthusiastic meeting is promised.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WELL

Many Escanaba People Know the Importance of Healthy Kidneys

The kidneys filter the blood. They work night and day. Well kidneys remove impurities. Weak kidneys allow impurities to multiply.

No kidney ill should be neglected. There is possible danger in delay. If you have backache or urinary troubles.

If you are nervous, dizzy or worn out. Begin treating your kidneys at once;

Use a proven kidney remedy. None endorsed like Doan's Kidney Pills.

What Is A Bargain?

MOST of us, when we think of the meaning of "bargain," think first—and maybe last—of the price. That's why, so many times, when you see bargains mentioned, the price is strongly emphasized. A good many people seem to be unable to get by this price fact; it fills the mind and the eye.

But a moment's thought will tell you that the price is only a relative thing; it may look like a very low price and still be high, according to what you get for the money. If you can buy $10 gold pieces at $9.75, buy all you can get; that's a bargain, because you know exactly the value of what you buy; it's fixed and guaranteed. But you could, for instance, buy a horse for $50 or another for $150, and the latter might be a bargain, while the former might be dear at $40. Depends on the horse.

Now, that's the way with clothes; whether a price is high or low depends on the clothes, not the price.

Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes are $10-gold-piece clothes; the value is guaranteed. Under our new selling plan we're selling them at a little less than "face value" every day in the year.
