NO CHANCE TO WIN CASE

SAYS CITY ATTORNEY SPENCER UPON RETURN FROM LANING CONCERNING ACTION

CONSULTED A SPECIAL COUNSEL

The City Would Have Saved About $1000 If They Had Settled the Matter Tuesday

City attorney N. C. Spencer returned this morning from Lansing, where he has been making arguments before the state supreme court. In reference to the voting machine action, which is to be argued before the supreme court Mr. Spencer says that the city has not an iota of a chance to win its case. With Mr. Mead, he has consulted special counsel about the possibility of winning the case, and was advised that very little chance existed. However, in accordance with the united wish of the city council, the case will be argued before the court as originally planned.

Further the city attorney said that the settlement of the case, in the proposition would have meant a saving to the city of at least a $1000.

Alderman John D. McColl received a telegram this morning from Attorney Mead saying that the case had been delayed and that the arguments would be reached Monday. Attorney Mead expects to return home next Wednesday.

The Greatest Harley-Davidson

Eight Honest Horsepower.

THE new Harley-Davidson Twin Cylinder does not have to be babied, nursed or coaxed into action—it is ALL THERE. It is instantaneously responsive to the throttle—off like a flash—picks up quickly—no hesitation—no sluggishness—no snorting or popping. This new without question is the fastest machine on the road today.

Its exceptional speed has been obtained in a measure through the use of large intake and exhaust chambers and passages; and pistons, connecting rods and fly wheels individually and collectively in perfect balance. And this speed comes without sacrificing one atom of Harley-Davidson reliability or endurance. In fact the decreased vibration, due to more perfect balance of the vital parts has actually increased the life of the motor.

The Full-Floating Seat which does away with all jolts and jars due to rough roads, and the Free-Wheel Control, a device which permits starting without the usual hard pedaling or running alongside are incorporated in all models.

Both of these features are patented and are to be found only on the Harley-Davidson.

How many of us with life before us have smiled when we have heard that old song of old people. "Oh, if I could only begin life over again?" When we hear that wall in every phase of life, under all conditions, in places thousands of miles apart, we cannot help thinking that some great thought lies at its basis and that humanity as a whole, or at any rate in the greater part, loses something that it might possess. Loses something because of carelessness, or for some other reason which might be avoided.

If the greater number of those with many years behind them are living in a lower sphere of life than they might have been and really their tale of woe would give us this impression, then those of us who are just beginning to see the greatness of life itself and to feel that our work will of necessity make a difference to this great world, the difference to be regulated by our own efforts, then we should naturally be interested in any article or discussion that has to do with the curtailing of those chances which are continually slipping through the hands of the young.

On Sunday next at 9:00 p. m. the pastor will take for his subject "Forfeited Blessings" and will speak of one who threw away his chance in life and failed when trying to recover what he had counted as worthless.

The Cowled Monk's Head, Cooney Canyon, New Mexico.

Almost every western state has one or more natural statues. Some are carved so perfectly by the action of the elements as to be startling in their expressions. One of the most striking is the "Monk's Head." In Cooney canyon, New Mexico, a freak of nature which brings out in clear relief a man's face, the head appearing to be hooded. The figure is of giant proportions, and at a distance, sharply outlined against the sky, it seems impossible that it is not the work of some ancient people who may have wrought upon it with crude tools, yet obtaining a singularly strong and virile expression of countenance.

Set Twelve Years Ago is Still Untouched

Olivet, Mich., January 25.—The discovery that a meal has stood on a table for 12 years without being touched was made by Royce Thorpe, of Olivet, while hunting in Brookfield township, about four miles from Olivet. Thorpe passed by a deserted old shack which used to shelter Charles Derby and which has been unoccupied since the sudden death of the latter about 1900. Peering into the old hut, Thorpe was surprised to see a table set with two plates, knives, forks, cups and other table ware. Thinking some one had taken possession of the building, and knowing it had been unhabited for half a score of years, Thorpe pushed open the door and entered. He found the table set for two. Examining a loaf of bread he discovered it to be hard as a rock and somewhat musty, but entirely undisturbed by mice or animals. The sugar in the great bowl in the center of the table had hardened and it too was unbreakable. Some cheese had shriveled and hardened and a jar of mustard had dried and blackened in the 12 years. Derby, who was the last person to live in the shack, according to neighbors, always set the table for two.

A Roadless Land.

Russia is almost a roadless land. It is inconceivable to the foreign visitor who has ever left the beaten track of the railways in Russia how a great empire can have subsisted so long and so successfully without even a pretense at roads. The secret lies in the fact that for five or six months in the year nature herself provides roads over the greater part of Russia—admirable smooth, grassy roadways over hard worn snow. The traffic is further cheapened over these roads by the substitution of a sledge, runner for the wheel and axle. This brings the cost of land carriage as near the cheapness of water borne freight as possible, and it is the principal reason why Russia in the twentieth century is still a roadless land.

Original Confidence Man.

A story is told of old New York and of how the expression "confidence man" meant a man in whom one could not place confidence at all. It is said that some years ago a very well dressed man, with a courteous address, was wont to walk up and down the principal streets of the city. Whenever he met a stranger who looked hopeful to him he would approach the man, and with the most delightfully frank manner he would ask: "My dear sir, have you confidence enough in me, an entire stranger to you, to lend me $5 for an hour or two?" And it is said that the man made an extremely good living in this very simple means. —New York Sun

A Diplomatic Fisherman.

A king once bought a string of fish from a poor fisherman and in return gave him a bag of gold coins. The fisherman swung the fortune over his shoulder and was about to depart when he noticed a single coin had fallen on the ground, the man stooped and took possession of the coin and put it in the bag with the fortune. "Are you a miser?" asked the king. "Were you afraid one of my servants would get it?" "Not so," replied the fisherman. "But the coin bears on one side the name of God, on the other the portrait of you, my king. I would not have one of the other defiled by being trampled underfoot."

Cats In Ancient Times.

Cats are mentioned in Assyria 2000 B. C. and are found in Egyptian tombs centuries prior to that date. Deified like the ibis and ichneumon from their useful properties, they were held in such veneration that Bubastis, at first lion headed, became a cat headed goddess. Herodotus tells us the Egyptians first saved the cat when the house took fire. To kill a cat even by accident was punishable by death. The Romans when they conquered Egypt treated the animals with the same contempt as the religion of which they formed part. Not a cat has been found in the ruins of Pompeii or Herculaneum. If the government buys out the express companies, it is to be hoped it does not pay more than twice what they ask for their business.

Mr. Francis Cardon of San Francisco is having erected an imposing house at Burlingame and will have installed there a room, part of an old royal chateau in France, which he purchased recently for $2,000. Count Boni has been engaged to set up the furniture and decorate the historical room.

Secrets. When I pass Linda's house and put a pebble on the gate it means: "I have to hurry on. Don't look for me now." And when I fix my ribbon bow in just a certain way it means: "Come over to my house this afternoon, and play." THE ROOT OF EVIL
BY THOMAS DIXON

Stuart, southern lawyer in New York is in love with Nan Primrose. His friend, Dr. Woodman, who has a young daughter, is threatened with the loss of his drug business by Bivens, whom he befriended years before. Stuart visits the Primroses.

Nan wants Stuart to accept a place with Bivens' chemical trust. He dislikes Bivens' methods and refuses. Bivens calls on him.

Bivens is in love with Nan. Stuart refuses the offer, and Nan breaks her engagement with the lawyer. Bivens asks Woodman to enter the trust.

Woodman will not yield and sues Bivens' company. The promoter tells the doctor he and Nan are engaged. Harriet Woodman is studying music. Stuart takes Nan for a day in the country.

Stuart pleads with Nan to give up Bivens, but the spell of millions is on her and she yields to it.

Nan becomes Mrs. Bivens. Harriet loves Stuart, but he does not know it. Five years pass. Stuart becomes district attorney. He investigates criminal trusts. Nan asks him to call.

Stuart wants Woodman to end his suit against Bivens, but the doctor stands firm. Bivens aids Stuart in his investigation of crooked financiers.

Stuart's revelations aid in bringing on a crisis. Bivens promises to aid the Van Dam Trust company, which is in trouble. Woodman needs money badly.

In the stock market slump engineered by Bivens, Woodman and many others lose all. The trust company fails because Bivens, at command of the money king, breaks his word. Stuart faces his critics in front of Bivens' bank.

The mob attacks Stuart and injures him slightly. Nan sees it and reveals her love. Bivens piles $50,000 on a table and calls Stuart to see the money to refute rumors of his financial weakness.

Stuart is tempted to join Bivens as a confidential man. He accepts an invitation to visit the Bivens house and is received by Nan.

At a meeting of the discontented, at which Bivens is denounced, a bomb thrower is killed by his own missile. Woodman decides to continue his fight against Bivens.

Harriet confesses to her father her love of Stuart. She needs money to continue her music studies abroad, and Woodman tries to see Bivens to see the money. Harriet is to sing at a ball at the Bivenses.

Harriet sings at the Bivens ball, which has for its special feature a costume dance of "death and the worm." Nan and Stuart revive old memories.

Bivens refuses to compromise with Woodman. The doctor, in desperation, steals some jeweled favors intended for the ball as a bribe.

Stuart's plea with Bivens for Woodman is in vain, and the lawyer refuses to join in the millionaire's plans. Woodman pleads guilty and Stuart, who has resigned as district attorney, defends him.

CHAPTER XVII.
The Parting of the Ways.

THE two weeks which followed the Bivens ball were the happiest Harriet Woodman had known since Nan's shadow had fallen across her life. Every moment was crowded with the work of preparing for her trip, except the hours she could not refuse Stuart, who had suddenly waked to the fact that something beautiful was going out of his life.

Harriet watched him with keen joy and deep in her heart a secret hope began to grow slowly.

The day she sailed he refused to go with her to the pier.

"Why, Jim, you must come with me!" she protested.

"No, I can't, little pal. Goodby."

He watched the cab roll down Fourth street toward the pier while a great wave of loneliness overwhelmed him.

At night the doctor was not at home. Stuart rapped on his door next morning and got no answer. The girl said he had spent the night out—he didn't know where.

As Stuart was about to leave for his office the doctor entered. His bloodshot eyes were sunken deep behind his brows, his face haggard and his shoulders drooped. Stuart knew he had tramped the streets all night in a stupor of hopeless misery.

Stuart took his outstretched hand and led him into the library. "I know why you tramped the streets; the old house is very lonely."

"I never knew what loneliness meant before!" The big hand fell in a gesture of despair.

Stuart pressed his hand.

"I understand, I'm younger than you, doctor, but I, too, have walked that way alone. You're all in; you must go to bed and sleep."

When Stuart returned early from his work in the afternoon he found a group of foster women and children standing beside the stoup. A pale, elf-you did you were insane when you did it."

"Maybe it was a mistake. I don't know. I couldn't think then. I only know now that life is impossible any more, and I'm ready to go. You can send me to prison at once, Jim. I'm glad you are the district attorney."

"But I'm not. I resigned my office this morning to go into business for myself. I had only another month to serve. You're not going to prison if I can help it."

"But I don't want you to help it. It's the only place to go now—you see, boy, I can't live with myself any more! Besides I'm old and played out; the world don't need me any longer."

"Well, I need you," Stuart broke in, "and you're not going to give up this fight as long as I'm here."

"I'm a failure; it's no use."

"But you've forgotten some things," the younger man said tenderly. "You've helped to make my life what it is—you haven't failed in that. You gave your blood to your country when she needed it—you didn't fail in that. You have forgotten the thousands who have helped, the hope and cheer and inspiration that passed into their lives through yours. We'll go to Bivens' house tonight. We'll tell him the truth. We'll return the value of his jewels. I'll get the money to make good what you owe him"—His voice broke. "Oh, why, why, why didn't you let me know? I've influence with Bivens. He will drop the matter and no one on earth will know save we three."

"But you don't understand, Jim," the broken man protested, feebly. "I tell you I've given up. I can't take your money, I can't pay. I tell you I've given up. I can't take your money. I can't pay it back."

"You can pay it back, too. If you like, Harriet will be earning thousands of dollars in a few years. Her success is sure."

A faint smile lighted the father's face.

"Her success is sure, isn't it?" he asked with the eagerness of a child. And then the smile slowly faded.

"But I shall not be here to see it."

"Yes, you will. I'm running your affairs now, and you've got to do what I say. Get ready. We are going to see Bivens."

Bivens refused point blank at first to see Woodman and ordered his servant to put him out of the house and ask Stuart to remain for a conference. Stuart drew from his case a card and wrote a message to Nan:

Impulsive that I see Cal at a matter of great importance. Please send him down. He is stubborn.

Bivens came in a few minutes, shook hands cordially with Stuart and ignored Woodman.

"I want to see you alone with the doctor," the young lawyer began, "where we cannot possibly be overheard."

"I have nothing to say to this man, but for your sake all right. Come up to the library."

Once in the room and the door closed the doctor sank listlessly into a chair, seeing nothing, hearing nothing. His deep, sunken, bloodshot eyes were turned within. The outer world no longer made any impression.

Stuart began: "Cal, you and I have been friends since boyhood. I'm going to ask my first favor of you tonight."

"For yourself, all right. You've got the answer before you ask it. If you've come to ask me to settle with old Woodman for any imaginary claim he has, you're wasting your breath. I won't bear it. So cut it!"

"I'm not asking you to settle any old imaginary claim," the young lawyer went on rapidly, "but a new one that can only appeal to the best that's in you. Let it be enough to say that the torture you inflicted on Woodman and the sights he saw in your house drove him insane. Hungry, wretched, in despair over his misfortunes and the promise he had given his daughter, whom he loved better than life, in a moment of madness he took a case of your jewels."

"He took that case of jewels?" Bivens cried with excitement.

"Yes."

The little financier broke into a peal of laughter, walked over to the chair where the doctor sat, thrust his hands into his pockets and continued to laugh.

"So that's what you meant by laughing and sneering in my face as you left that night, you hypocrite!" Stuart suddenly gripped Bivens and spun him around in his tracks.

"That will do now! The doctor is my friend. I won't stand for this." Stuart faced the little dark man with a dangerous gleam in his eye.

"Well, what did you come for? To ask me to give him a pension for robbing me of a case of jewels? I've accused every drunken servant in the house of the act."

"I only ask that you allow me to return the value of your jewels and drop the whole affair."

"Can the district attorney of the county of New York compound a felony?"

"I resigned my office this morning," Bivens tried to seize Stuart's hand, forgetting for a moment the jewels in the bigger announcement which meant the acceptance of his offer.

Stuart waved aside the extended hand with a gesture of annoyance. "You'll drop this case, of course, at my request?"

Bivens looked at the bowed figure and replied quickly: "I will not."

"I told you I'd make good the amount tomorrow morning."

"What the devil do you suppose I want with your money? Five thousand dollars is no more to me than 5 cents to the average man."

He paused, laughed and again stared at the bowed figure.

Cookery Points

Apple Tapioca. Butter and eggs are not used in the following recipe for apple tapioca, a most excellent way of preparing this dessert: Have ready a large cupful of tapioca, three pints of apples, peeled, cored and quartered; a cupful of sugar, a scant teaspoonful of salt, a flavoring of grated lemon peel or nutmeg and three pints of boiling water. After washing the tapioca carefully put it into the boiling water. Let it cook until perfectly clear and stir frequently to prevent burning. While it is cooking put the apples into a baking dish. Sprinkle them with the flavoring, and then over all put the tapioca while it is very hot. Bake the pudding in a slow oven until done and serve either hot or cold with cream.

Prune Salad. Prune salad is somewhat of a novelty to many. Soak the prunes overnight in cold water. Then the next morning stew them with water and sugar until tender. Let them cool, remove the stones and fill the centers with cream cheese which has been softened with a little cream and mixed with chopped nuts. Arrange these on lettuce leaves and pour over them a dressing made as follows: Mix in order one-half teaspoonful salt, a pinch of mustard, a little cayenne pepper or more paprika, five tablespoonfuls olive oil, two and one-half tablespoonfuls of vinegar and a few drops of lemon juice. Beat with an egg beater until it is thick.

Chocolate Pie. Heat one cupful of milk with one square of chocolate, stirring until the chocolate, which should be broken fine, is melted. Beat the yolks of three eggs and add four tablespoonfuls of milk. Put a saltspoonful of salt and one-half cupful of sugar into the milk and chocolate, and when hot again add the diluted egg yolks. Cook two minutes, take from the fire and add half a teaspoonful of vanilla. Line a pie plate with good paste and pour in the filling. Bake twenty minutes in a quick oven and cover with a meringue made from the whites of three eggs beaten stiff with one-third cupful of powdered sugar. Color slightly in a cool oven.

Salmon Cutlets. For a hot dish salmon cutlets are easily prepared. They may be made from the surplus of boiled salmon. Shred cold boiled salmon with a fork; moisten it with a little melted butter or, better still, if you have it, some lobster sauce. Season with salt and cayenne pepper. Form into flat pear shaped cutlets about half an inch thick, roll each in breadcrumbs, dip in beaten egg, cover once more with breadcrumbs and fry to a delicate brown in butter. Serve with sprigs of parsley stuck in, on a platter. They look well when surrounded by marble potatoes which are garnished with little sprigs of parsley.

Pork Cheese. Cut but do not chop two pounds of cold roast pork into small pieces, allowing four ounces of fat for every pound of lean. Then pack this into a mold, with pepper and salt to taste, four sage leaves and two finely minced onions, filling up the mold with good, well flavored gravy with which a little gelatin has been dissolved and bake for rather over half an hour. Then leave it till cold and turn out. Beef may be treated in exactly the same way, only allowing four ounces of ham or pork to the pound of beef.

Piquant Tongue Rounds. Take half a pound of tongue for two dozen rounds, two tablespoonfuls of minced capers, one tablespoonful of English mustard and seasoning of cayenne pepper. Cream two heaping tablespoonfuls of butter, add seasoned tongue and rub the mixture to a smooth paste. Cut buttered bread thin and as many unbuttered squares. Spread the plain slices with the tongue cream and put the two together and cut round with a large biscuit cutter.

NEW YEAR GOOD CHEER.

A Little Chat on Open House During the Holidays.
A cup of tea and a box of crackers offered in a third story hall room to the half dozen people on the same floor is a hospitality which may have in it all the spirit of kindness which was demonstrated by the old time "open house." We are apt to grow supersensitive and self-conscious when we are surrounded by strangers. We wonder if anything we can do will give pleasure. We stay alone and wish that some one would meet us halfway, yet we do not go out to meet them. We sigh for responsiveness and sympathy and are not conscious that the slightest indication on our part of a desire to be friendly might bring a cordial welcome from those whose coldness we have criticized.

"Open house" in its old generous sense may not be a possibility under modern conditions, but those of us who live in the city might touch the lives of the people who yearn for companionship and bring to sad hearts a glow of delight in the enjoyment of our neighborliness. There is scarcely a community or settlement where one cheery and neighborly woman may not rouse a spirit of co-operation if she exerts herself sufficiently.

It would be interesting if more of us would make the experiment during the gray winter days, especially the days between Christmas and New Year's, which hang so heavily on the hands of those who have no share in the merry-making of others. If during these days we would open our tiny apartment, or even our one room in a boarding house, to receive those less fortunate than ourselves for an hour's interchange of good will.

Temperatures continue moderate throughout the country, and are decidedly above the seasonal average over many portions. Fair weather prevails west of the Mississippi River, except in the extreme northwest, while cloudy and unsettled weather is general in the East. Rains fell along the Atlantic coast and Gulf states since yesterday morning and light snows over the northwestern Lake region. A low pressure area is advancing toward the Lakes from the northwest, indicating continued snow and warmer weather for this vicinity tonight and Sunday.

Head Hunters of the Philippines.

Curiously enough, the head hunting peoples of the Philippines are apparently limited to northern Luzon. None of the warlike hill tribes inhabiting other parts of the archipelago are known to take the heads of their victims. The explanation of their head hunting customs which is given by the Negritos of northeastern Luzon is very simple. They believe that each family must take at least one head a year or suffer misfortune in the form of sickness, wounds, starvation or death. Their victims are always beheaded with bolos. Heads are buried in the ground under the "houses" of the men who take them. Plates or ollas are placed over the spots where the heads are buried and possibly contain offerings to evil spirits. The "houses" under which heads are buried are then abandoned and their supposedly fortunate owners look forward to a period free from death sickness of injury and to success in their hunting and fishing.

THESE views are actual scenes from the front, taken during the height of the Balkan war. At the top are shown wounded Turks on hospital cots. They were among the more fortunate of the defeated soldiers. They escaped the dread cholera. The middle picture is of a Bulgarian army aeroplane which came down nose first into the ground after a successful fight around Adrianople. The aviator was not hurt. At the bottom is a house looted and practically torn apart by Turkish soldiers.

GOVERNOR HAS POWER

ATTORNEY BUTLER ATTACKS THE EKERN COMPLAINT IN THE INSURANCE COMMISSIONER CASE

OFFICIAL ACT NOT AS INDIVIDUAL

Defense Maintains That the Power of Removal From office is Vested With Executive

(By Associated Press.)

Madison, Jan. 25.—Today Harry L. Butler, attorney for McGovern, attacked the Ekern complaint, which is leveled against the defendants as individuals rather than officials. The attorney said that the United States supreme court construed the act as individual in official capacity as an official in his argument before Judge Stevens today. Butler declared it was the first time any state court had been asked to restrain an act of the executive. He believes that the title of insurance commissioner belongs to Anderson, pending the settlement controversy. "Our supreme court" he said "has repeatedly held that an officer who holds prima facie title to office shall be given position until court decrees otherwise." Butler maintained that Anderson had such title; that the person appointed by the governor can remain until the appointment is acted upon by the senate and he further held that the court was without jurisdiction. The title must be tried Quo Quarranto, Butler said.

Gov. McGovern in an affidavit stated that the removal was an official act, not as individual and that Ekern's office was a "political headquarters" months before the opening of legislature.

Butler maintained that the power of removal rested with the governor and all the court could ascertain if the person removed for cause as defined by the statute. Ekern's attorney argued late this afternoon.

HOLY WEEK PRESENTS OBSERVANCE

Annual Celebration of March 17 Will Have to be Held on Another Day This Year

There will be no celebration on St. Patrick's day this year for the fourth time since 1800 and the last time in the twentieth century.

Hibernians will be unable to celebrate the annual feast day of their native country, but will have to content themselves with the thought that this will be the last time they or their descendants will have to forego the hilarity which should be theirs on March 17.

It is all because the annual feast day comes on the second day of Holy week and Catholic church rules that all feasts shall be either postponed or canceled if they fall in the week before Easter.

There have been only three times in the past that the celebration on St. Patrick's day was suspended on account of Holy week. They were in 1818 when Easter fell on March 22, the earliest date on which it can occur, in 1845 and 1856, when it came on March 23, the same date as this year.

Calculators have figured Easter dates until the year 2000 but they have found no other year in which Easter will come so early as to keep the Irishman from singing the praise of St. Patrick.

But the church does not forbid the wearing of green ribbon in Holy week and it is expected that yards of the national color will be worn.

Accordion Pleited Net. Accordion net is ubiquitous for girls' dresses, the more luxurious materials being, of course, more or less reserved for their elders. There are lovely little evening gowns, too, simply made of accordion or gaufered pearl white chiffon, into which is spliced a panel of shadow lace, likewise pleited to match. No other trimming but the lace is required unless it be the heavy silver or gold bullion fringe which so many dressmakers employ as a finish to the soft swathed satin belts.

Something Worth Knowing. Sometimes white trimmings on a colored dress look dainty. Wrap a white cloth out in thin starch, place on the trimming, then put a dry cloth over that and iron with a hot iron, and the dirt will come off on to the starched cloth.

WOULD REGULATE THE HOTEL RATES IN STATE

Assemblyman Palmer Recommends Charges Be Reduced When Two Or More Use A Room.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 25.—Representative George Palmer, Detroit, introduced an entirely original bill this week. Commercial travelers, he says furnished him the points. It provides that hotels on the American plan shall not charge more than three-fourths the rate for the second person when two occupy a room. Hotels on the European plan, when more than one person occupies a room, shall not charge more than one-half regular rates for the second person and one-third for the third person, and one-fourth for the fourth person. Not more than four persons shall be assigned to one room. These rates shall be posted in all rooms. Cots may be placed in halls and rooms and the charge for a cot shall not exceed one dollar. American plan hotels shall not charge for lodging and one meal more than one-half what the rate is for one day. All hotels must secure a license from the county clerk, costing $101., and must, on getting the annual license, file a schedule of rates with the clerk and the rates posted in rooms must tally with this schedule. Other bills introduced were:

By Rep. Skeels—To authorize absolutely divorce decrees for incurable insanity when the insanity has been for not less than five years.

By Rep. Downing—For appointment of a commission to co-operate with commissions appointed in other states to investigate systems of agricultural credits and credit banks in European countries.

By Rep. Farmer—To appropriate $45,625 for enlarging state sanitarium at Howell.

By Rep. Flowers—To create domestic relations court at Detroit and Grand Rapids.

By Rep. Newel Smith—To abrogate the common law disability of women so as to render them competent to bind themselves jointly or severally with their husbands as to matters not pertaining to wives' separate property, as makers, indorsers, guarantors, sureties, or otherwise upon negotiable instruments.

Rep. Dunn and Bricker both introduced anti-cigarette bills.

After the state central committee is organized a call for a state convention shall be issued which shall be not later than ten days after the meeting of the state central committee.

While this method of change does not put it up directly to the voter, the various candidates for office will certainly have to respect the wishes of their constituents."

COMMITTEE SELECTIONS ARE UP TO NOMINEES

Propose a Change in the Method of Choosing The State Central Organizations.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 5.—To further allow the people to rule, Senator Fred Woolworth and Rep. Baird, introduced bills in the senate and house last night providing for a complete change in the method of selecting the state central committees of the various political parties.

The proposed law provides that all political parties shall have a state central committee consisting of two members from each congressional district, and a chairman and secretary, and the nominees for the following state offices shall be members ex-officio: governor, lieutenant-governor, secretary of state, auditor-general, attorney-general, land commissioner and state treasurer.

The congressional senatorial, representative and county nominees shall within ten days after the August primary election meet at such time and place as shall be designated by the congressional committee of each party. The nominees shall comprise a congressional district convention and proceed to the election of two members of the state central committee to represent their congressional district for a term of two years. After notification of such election, the chairman and secretary of the state central committee shall call a meeting of the members so elected for the purpose of completing the organization.

After the state central committee is organized a call for a state convention shall be issued which shall be not later than ten days after the meeting of the state central committee.

The reports received this noon from the various polling places in the city state that the number of persons enrolling is very light. The only activity shown at the several polls is among the progressives as they are very anxious to get the necessary votes to have a city, county and state ticket in nomination at the next election.

According to information 250 persons will have to enroll with the Bull Moose in order that such a ticket can be placed before the people in the county at the next election and about 200 for a city ticket.

PETITION DIVIDES TOWN OF DUNBAR

And now the Village of Dunbar is in the Township With Another Name

Judge Quinnan, in the Marinette circuit court, yesterday granted the petition for the division of the town of Dunbar. Under the decree handed down by the judge, there will be two towns, one to be known as Dunbar the other as Girard.

The strange feature of the territorial division is that the village of Dunbar will hereafter be in the town of girary, while the town of Dunbar will have as its biggest village Goodman.

During the past two years five towns have been so divided in Marinette county, their tearing asunder becoming imperative as the result of increase in assessed valuation and population, thus denoting a considerable advance in the prosperity of Marinette county.

SHH! LADIES! HERE'S EASY WAY TO DARKEN YOUR FADED GRAY HAIR—USE SAGE TEA

Sage Mixed With Sulphur Restores Natural Color and Lustre to Hair

Why suffer the handicap of looking old. Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance.

Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use; but listen, avoid preparations put up by druggists as they usually use too much sulphur, which makes the hair sticky. Get "Wyeth's" which can always be depended upon to darken beautifully and is the best thing known to remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

By using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair. It does it so naturally and evenly—you moisten a sponge or soft brush, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time which requires but a few moments. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two its natural color is restored and it becomes glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger.
