ARRESTED ON TWO CHARGES

SALOONKEEPER ALLEGED TO HAVE SALOON OPEN SUNDAY AND SOLD LIQUOR TO MINOR

MUST FACE CHARGE OF LARCENY

Alleged to Have Relieved Martin Mlacka of $240 While Intoxicated at Time

This morning, in justice court before Judge McEwen, two charges were entered against Tom Rowan, who conducts a saloon in North Escanaba. The complaint, which was made by Attorney H. J. Rushton, states that the defendant kept his saloon open on Sunday, January 18th, and that he sold liquor to a minor. The complainant demands that the saloon license of Mr. Rowan's be taken away from him.

In the complaint it is averred that Rowan sold liquor to Martin Mlacka on the Sunday above mentioned and that the party is a minor. In court Mr. Rowan pleaded not guilty to the charge and a hearing will be heard in a few days.

In connection Nic Grasa, his bartender was arrested, also. The charge against him is larceny from the person of Martin Mlacka. It is alleged that the bartender after the lad had become intoxicated, went through his pockets and relieved him of about $240. Before Judge McEwen Grasa pleaded innocent to the charge and a hearing has been set for Thursday. Attorney Wm. Dotch will defend him.

KNIGHTS CELEBRATE FIRST ANNIVERSARY

Knights of King Arthur Have Enjoyable Tie Saturday Evening; Banquet and Sleighride

The Knights of King Arthur of the First Presbyterian church celebrated their first anniversary Saturday night. From eight until ten the lads enjoyed a sleighride about the city. At the close of the ride the members of the society and their chaperones came to the church parlors where an elaborate banquet was served. A committee from the Westminster Guild assisted in serving the knights. The officers present, aside from the pages, esquires and sir knights were Rev. P. B. Ferris, Merlin, F. E. Harper, assistant Merlin, Queens of Avilon, Mrs. P. B. Ferris and Misses McNaughton, Helmer and Atkins.

In one year of service the K. O. K. A. society has become a well known organization. The boys have assisted in many local enterprises for the good of the church and community and have grown strong in more ways than one. It gives promise of being one of the strongest organizations of that church. Already the boys have inaugurated plans for a new campaign which will be made public in a subsequent issue of the Mirror. Their next meeting is Friday night. Lawrence Johnson is King Arthur and he asks every member to be present as there are many important matters to come before the society. The commemoration of the first anniversary was declared a decided success and it showed the same enthusiasm and good spirit which has characterized all of the enterprises of this society.

SAYS MAN IS RESPONSIBLE

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER JR. SAYS THAT PROSTITUTION IS A BUSINESS RUN FOR PROFIT

WHITE SLAVERY QUESTION VITAL

Improper Home Conditions and Lack of Training at Desire for Amusement is Cause

New York, Jan. 27.—"Prostitution is largely a man's business and women are merely tools in the hands of men; it is a business run for profit and the profit is large" said John D. Rockefeller, Jr., yesterday at a social worker's meeting. Man is responsible for the organized commercial evil which from point of disease is the greatest menace to perpetuation of the human race. White slavery is one of the great vital questions of the world. Less than twenty-five per cent of the prostitutes would not have fallen had they an equal chance to live a pure life. They were dragged down because of poverty, caused by low wages. Improper home conditions together with the lack of training at desire for amusement and pretty things are the principal reasons given by him. Notwithstanding Mr. Rockefeller says that man is chiefly responsible.

ANOTHER PHASE IN THE EKERN FIGHT

Ekern's Attorneys Argue the Case Before Judge Stevens in Defense at Madison

Madison, Jan. 27.—John Alyward, Ekern's attorney before Judge Stevens in the circuit court, said that the governor's power ends with the removal and the court has the right to decide on the appointees right to take the office. Alyward also said that the legislature was in session the day that the removal order was given and that no specific hour for convening is named by law. M. B. Olbrich, another attorney for Mr. Ekern, cited cases in sixteen states to sustain the legality of the injunction proceedings. After resuming the case it appears that the matter of the removal of Ekern evidently hinges on whether the governor was acting in an official or individual capacity. "There was no occasion to use this strange mixture of Oyster Bay and the Cameron dam to determine the title of the office," said Olbrich in describing the attempt to break the commissioner's door.

FOLDING STEP LADDER IS OF MUCH BENEFIT

In all Probability the Manufacture of the New Patent Will be in Gladstone

E. S. Eaton is very much busy just now with a folding step ladder of which he, Joseph Dyer of Toronto, and Dr. Springer of the Soo, are the patentees both in Canada and the States. It is a handsome little piece of mechanism and the owners expect to make and sell them on this side of the Line. Eli says that if they manufacture, which he thinks is sure, the factory will be in Gladstone. The ladder is adapted for use in sleeping cars, in homes, shops or stores, and folds compactly, instantly and noiselessly. He says five hundred have been sold in Toronto alone. We shall be glad to see the factory going in Gladstone. Mr. Eaton had photographs taken in the car aisles of No. 7 on his way from the Soo, to illustrate the utility of the ladder, and will offer local rights to several large railway systems. For commercial purposes he plans on the manufacture of the article at Gladstone. There is no more convenient point for obtaining short hardwood lumber, in quantity and no better shipping point. The consideration of this matter will be resumed at a later day.

Mrs. F. M. Shaw of this city left for Chicago last night.

Preventing and Fighting The Country's Worst Scourge

THESE pictures show just how the white plague is being fought by the National Association For the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. At the top is shown a roof garden school for gardening in Chicago, where children who are suspected of being susceptible to the dread scourge are taught practical things in the pure air and sunlight, so that when they grow older they may live in the open as tillers of the soil, retaining health and happiness. At the bottom may be seen tuberculosis patients being cared for on a ferryboat, where they get the air and sun.

NULLIFY IN PART COMPENSATION ACT

Ogg Bill Would Restore to Suing Employee Defenses He is now Deprived of Lansing, Mich., Jan. 27.—What looks strongly like an attempt to practically nullify much of the workmen's compensation act is contained in a bill introduced today by Senator Ogg, of Detroit.

The bill provides that employees may, within 90 days from the time of an injury, decide whether they will accept compensation from the employer, if he is under the act, or will sue for damages. The important clause is that which, according to the interpretation of senators who have looked at the bill, gives back to the suing employee the defenses which the compensation act nullifies.

There is much uncertainty over the act because of its ambiguous language, but the general impression is that if it became law it would rob the compensation act of much of its value by again making lawsuits possible, even when the employer has elected to come under the act. Lawsuits are now possible, but if brought the complainant loses the defenses formerly accorded him by law.

It is this circumstance that makes the compensation law effective.

Veterinarians who were pushed out of business several years ago because of failure to register in time when the new law was passed will get relief if Representative Fralick's bill is passed. It provides that all veterinarians who practiced for five years prior to the passage of the present law may resume practice by registering now.

Representative Crasner introduced a bill amending and making more stringent the act providing for inspection act is on the books, but it has never amounted to much.

Representatives Morford, Clark and Jansen were today appointed by Speaker Currie as members of the commission to serve jointly with a commission from the Wisconsin legislature in an attempt to bring about the joint laws governing the fishing on Lakes Michigan and Superior.

SHIPS ARE BEING RECONSTRUCTED

Thirteen Lake Carriers Are Being Rebuilt at Lake Ports this Season

Thirteen ships are being reconstructed at lake shipyards and owners are considering similar work for no less than three others. The changes that will be made in the several ships will fit them to compete with the larger ships on the lakes so far as convenience for the unloading docks is concerned.

Eight of the thirteen are being rebuilt with arch construction and twelve foot center hatches. Four are being rebuilt on the Herriman plan which does away with stanchions and between deck beams.

The work is distributed among practically all the yards on the lakes. The Toledo Shipbuilding Co. has the E. A. S. Clar and W. E. Reis for arch construction, side tanks and twelve foot center hatches; The Great Lakes Engineering works at Ashtabula, the steamer Centurion for tank top and the Pontiac for Herriman construction; The Manitowoc shipbuilding Co. the E. C. Pope for Herriman construction and twelve foot fore and aft hatches and steel hatch covers; the American Shipbuilding Co. at Cleveland, the Walter Scranton and Carnegie for arch construction, twelve foot center hatches and side tank. The Carnegie also will have new boilers installed. Several of the steamers mentioned make the local harbor and load with ore at the local docks.

Foundle of Mercury.
A peculiarity of fulminate of mercury is that it produces a shock to which all other substances are sensitive, and its supreme value as an explosive rests in this fact and in the known liability of all explosives to be detonated by more or less distant explosions. There is a current of sympathetic influence in these terrible chemical compositions that is as strange as it is dangerous. What is required to produce explosion is the rapid generation of great heat along with large quantities of oxygen. In gunpowder, for instance, the nitrate of potash (saltpeter), which is the chief ingredient, is practically impregnated oxygen, and when it is decomposed along with charcoal an immense heat is developed, which causes the gases to expand suddenly, hence explosion.

Mournful.
Emma sent her plate back three times to be filled with turkey, and she was helped humbly each time. Finally she was observed to look regretfully at the unfinished portion of her dinner.
"What's the trouble, Emma?" asked Uncle John. "You look mournful."
"That's just the trouble," said Emma. "I am more'n full," and then she wondered why all the others laughed.

The Greatest Harley-Davidson

Eight Honest Horsepower.

HARLEY-DAVIDSON

without question is the fastest machine on the road today.

Its exceptional speed has been obtained in a measure through the use of large intake and exhaust chambers and passages; and pistons, connecting rods and fly wheels individually and collectively in perfect balance. And this speed comes without sacrificing one atom of Harley-Davidson reliability or endurance. In fact the decreased vibration, due to more perfect balance of the vital parts has actually increased the life of the motor.

The Ful-Floteing Seat which does away with all jolts and jars due to rough roads, and the Free-Wheel Control, a device which permits starting without the usual hard pedaling or running alongside are incorporated in all models.

Both of these features are patented and are to be found only on the Harley-Davidson.

Don't Admit Light-Decayed Beer Into Your House

You must drink beer not only made pure, but kept pure.

Purity exceeds all other costs in our brewery. We even filter the air in which Schlitz is cooled. We scald every tub, keg and barrel, every pipe and pump, every time we use it.

Then, instead of putting pure beer in light glass bottles we use Brown Bottles.

Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives the best protection against light. The Brown Bottle protects Schlitz purity from the brewery to your glass.

We began in a hut, sixty years ago. Today our agencies dot the earth. Our output exceeds a million barrels a year. More and more people each year are drinking Schlitz.

Why don't you, too, drink only pure beer—Schlitz in Brown Bottles.

THE WOMAN'S BRIGADE

A Story of A. D. 1946
By SUSAN YOUNG PORTER

During the first and second decades of the twentieth century the women of England and America determined to wrest the vote for themselves from selfish men. The principal argument used against them was: "If you are citizens in one respect you must be citizens in all respects. If you are voters you must be soldiers."

The women triumphed. But their securing the vote brought about that which in the beginning they had not intended. Having proved their courage and endurance, they were forced to do military service. The more delicate women could not be induced to go to the polls. This gave the men a majority, and an act was passed by congress requiring military service from women as well as men.

To the surprise of every one, they sprang forward with alacrity. That aggressive spirit which had led many of them to smash windows led them to enlist, and the woman's brigade of the United States army was organized and placed under the command of women officers. The corps had hardly been completed when the anarchic condition of Mexico rendered intervention necessary, and the Mexican war of 1946 was repeated. The woman's brigade was sent with other troops by sea to Vera Cruz and began a rapid march toward the capital.

Almost on the exact ground on which was fought a century before the battle of Buena Vista another fight occurred between the Mexicans and Americans, in which the women took a conspicuous part. But, unfortunately for General Pollywottle, the American commander, it was his first fight with such an auxiliary, and he was utterly ignorant of certain provisions he should have made to guard against contingencies to which they were liable.

In this respect the Mexican commander, Antonio Rodriguez Bustamante, proved greatly the American's superior. The Mexicans were drawn up in line of battle to resist the advance of the Americans, who buried themselves against their enemy with great vigor. The woman's brigade, being a part of the reserve, stood under arms, impatiently waiting to be led forward. Colonel Amanda Patterson of the First regiment sat her horse superbly, resplendent in a uniform cut and decorated in a fashion that excited the admiration and envy of the whole corps. Major Mildred Fortescue rode over to Colonel Patterson to ask her who was her tailor. Colonel Patterson refused to give the information. This led to hot words between the two, in which many of their subordinates joined, and before long their shrill words could be heard above the snoring bullets and shrieking shells.

"For heaven's sake," roared the American commander to an aid, "send those women into the fight! Our men can't hear the orders for the din they make, and there'll be a panic. Order their general to lead them against the enemy's left flank and turn it if possible. Should they succeed the battle is won."

General Angelina De Lancy, a young commander of whom much was expected, as soon as she received the order, drawing her sword, swung it over her head. Unfortunately she severed two ostrich feathers worth a hundred dollars each, and so unnerved was she that valuable time was lost. When she recovered from the loss of her treasures she directed her bugler to sound the advance.

Now, General Bustamante, as I have said, had great experience with women, having been married seven times, which is once more than King Henry VIII., and had prepared an expedient for them which, on seeing their line move forward, he put into operation. "What is that the enemy are firing from those mortars?" asked the American commander, raising his glass.

"They look like paper shells," remarked his chief of staff.

Great wads of paper rose in the air and, breaking apart, were scattered on the ground over which the woman's brigade was passing. Here and there a soldier in the ranks picked up one and became absorbed in reading something printed and looking at pictures on it.

"Great heavens!" cried General Pollywottle, "they are stopping to pick up the papers. The advance is delayed. Precious time is being lost."

Presently an officer from the woman's brigade was seen riding full gallop toward the commander in chief. When she came up she saluted and said:

"General De Lancy directs me to report that the enemy have fired a volley of fashion plates with descriptive articles among the troops. This has checked the advance and she is unable to induce them to advance farther. They are poring over the papers and are insensible even to danger. General De Lancy respectfully suggests that you send another force to turn the enemy's flank."

Words that sounded like a volley from a gatling gun left the general's lips. There were no other troops to send in place of the woman's brigade, and General Bustamante, seeing his advantage, sounded a general advance. The battle was lost. Within ten minutes the American army was in full retreat. The Mexicans passed the woman's brigade, still intent on the fashion plates and cut them off. The corps became disorganized, many of the soldiers marrying Mexicans.

Millions of Americans have stood on the shores of the Niagara River, or on the deck of the little "Maid of the Mist," and looked up at the greatest falls in the world, and, awed and spellbound by the sublime handiwork of the Almighty, marvelled at the magnitude of the force of the mighty waters which hurled themselves over the great precipice, on the dividing line between the United States and Canada, into the boiling, seething, foaming vortex of waters and rocky crags 164 feet below. Man has now turned this gigantic waste of energy and power into the blue current of Electricity, and for many miles roundabout, cities are made almost light as day, and the wheels of industry are made to whirl by the harnessed power of Niagara, which now silently and faithfully does the bidding of mankind. The Washington Crisps Mills, at Buffalo, are run by the power of Niagara. The big package of Washington Crisps is, likewise, the greatest thing of its kind in the world—a mighty force for strength and health throughout the United States.

Bad Breath

It's Your Duty to Get at the Cause and Remove it. O Word to the Wise, You Know.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, oil the bowels and positively do the work. People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them. Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system of impurities. They do all that dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects. All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Olive Tablets without griping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind. Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath. Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Take one every night for a week and not the effect. "Every little Olive Tablet has a movement all its own." 10c and 25c per box. LOOK YEARS YOUNGER! GRAY, FADED HAIR DARKENS BEAUTIFULLY WITH SAGE TEA

Says Sage and Sulphur Will Stop Falling Hair and Cure Dandruff

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur and alcohol added, then left to age and carefully filtered will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, gray Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of fuss. Some druggists make their own, but it isn't nearly so nice as "Wyeth's."

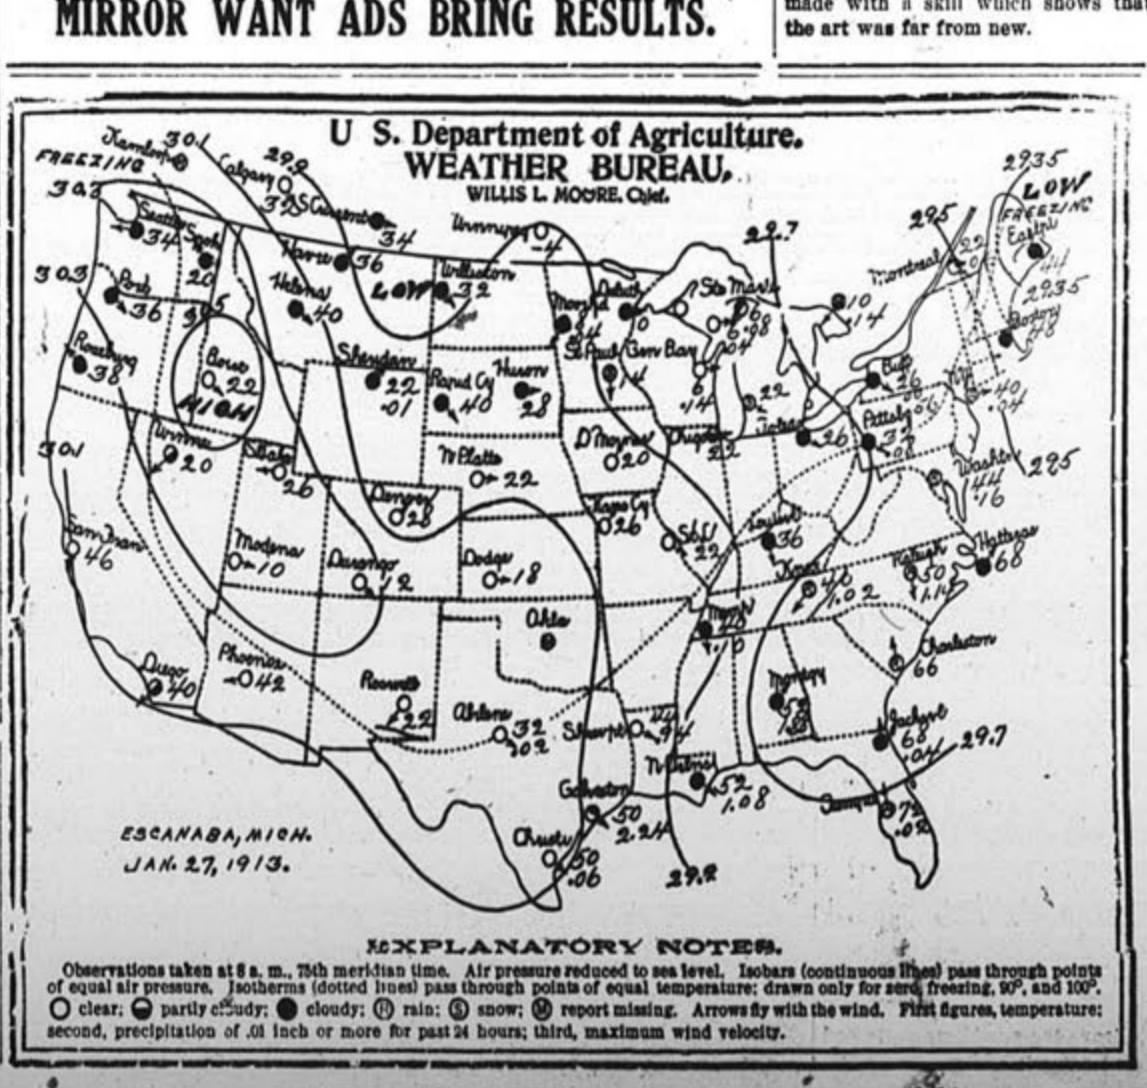

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this tonight and by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, after another application or two it will be restored to its natural color and be even more glossy, soft and luxuriant than ever. Local druggists say they are selling lots of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and it surely helps folks appear years younger.

So Says the Dairy and Food Commissioner—Will Appoint Another Inspector

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 27.—Dairy and Food Commissioner Helme announced today that he would probably not name a deputy.

"A deputy is sort of an assistant boss," he says, "and I think I can boss this department. I don't need any fifty wheels. I think I will take the money and appoint another inspector. If a man is elected or appointed to head any department he should be on the job and not leave the work to a deputy. I understand this has not been the custom in state departments for years."

In the Smithsonian Institution's museum in London the first specimen of pure glass the color of which can be approximately fixed is a small lion's head, bearing the name of an Egyptian king of the eleventh dynasty. That is to say, at a period which may be moderately placed at more than 2,000 years B. C. glass was made with a skill which shows that the art was far from new.

THE PROGRESSIVE PARTY AND THE ENROLLMENT

For the last few days the National Progressive Party has had the field unopposed for the purpose of getting all members of that party enrolled. Everything possible was done through advertisement and personal efforts to see that all were enrolled. It is safe to say that few if any missed enrolling. The result in this county is only a repetition of what has happened and is happening throughout the United States to the National Progressive party. The result shows that nearly all persons who voted for Mr. Roosevelt voted for him as Republican and that they are still loyal Republicans. With all the effort put forth only one hundred and fifty four were enrolled in this city with that party. The result shows that that party can never expect to make any showing in any election in this county. Last fall there was a great split in the Republican party and a great many of loyal Republicans voted against their party as a protest but now the fight is over and the Republicans are showing a solid front throughout the United States. It is surprising that after March fourth there will be one United States Senator declared National Progressive and he rode into office under the Republican banner. In the lower house of congress there are only eleven or twelve progressives and several of these were elected under the Republican name. The progressive element of the Republican party is now in full control of their party. This is true in the United States and the House of Representatives. It is true in nearly every republican state in the Union and it is especially true in Michigan. All of the old stand patters have gone down to defeat and have been eliminated from power. The election last fall was a disastrous one to the republican party, but it had a purifying effect upon the party and it is going to emerge from that defeat stronger than ever with the full confidence of the people behind it. There is no reason why any republican should enroll as a progressive or leave the republican party because the republican party is the progressive party of the nation. Those who join the national progressive party will be in a hopeless minority and will have no chance to take any part in the government of the country. In states like Michigan that party has no hopes of success and there is nothing to induce a republican to join that party. A large majority of those who enrolled in this county last Saturday will see their mistake in the near future and the prediction is made that they will be found loyally supporting the republican party. There are a few leaders in this and every other community who are doing everything in their power to keep the party alive but their efforts will in the end be in vain. There is no comparison between the republican party and the old whig party. The republican party is constructed on a solid and lasting foundation and people are not going to leave their party as republicans chasing after an uncertainty. The American people are not hero worshipers. They are not going to follow any individual but will vote for principle. Republicans can do more in their own party than out of it. This is the reason that such great progressives as LaFollette, Hadley, Cummins, Borah and their like refuse to leave the republican party and are now leading it.

CHAPTER XVIII.
A Plea For Justice.

STUART was not surprised to receive notice from Bivens' lawyers that they would demand sentence on Woodman within two days. The financier was present with two great lawyers who smilingly assured him that he need have no fear as to the result. Yet the little man was uneasy. Heidgeted in his seat and watched Stuart's calm, serious face with dread.

"Don't worry," the senior counsel assured him with confidence. "The old judge is a terror to every criminal in New York."

In spite of all assurance, Bivens' nervousness increased as the hour drew near for the case to be called. He looked at his watch, fuming over the fact that Nan was late. He wished her to see Stuart and find out what he had up his sleeve. A woman could do such tricks better than a man. He looked out the window anxiously and saw the flash of his big French limousine rounding the corner. He hurried to the steps to meet his wife.

"Nan, for heaven's sake see Jim before this case is called and find out what he's going to say to that judge."

"I'll do my best. I'll send my maid in and ask him to see me at once."

"Good. When he returns to the court room wait and I'll come out."

Bivens went back to his seat beside his lawyers and watched the court officer speak to Stuart.

He frowned and hesitated, rose and slowly followed the man.

Nan seized his hand.

"Oh, Jim, I'm so worried. Cal says you are going to make a desperate fight against him this morning."

"I'm going to make the usual plea for mercy for an old broken man—my friend. I'm going to fight for his life as I would for my own."

"Please don't do or say anything today to cause a break. I couldn't endure it. You don't know how much your friendship means to me. Your visits are the brightest spots in my life. What are you going to say? Are you going to attack Cal? You don't have to do that, Jim. Promise me you won't for my sake."

"I'm going to do my level best for my old friend, Nan," he answered with dogged determination. "You needn't worry about your husband. He has the hide of a rhinoceros, and nothing I can say will get under his skin."

"If any other man said it, no, but from you it will cut deeper than you can realize. You are the one man who can hurt him beyond forgiveness, because you're the one man on earth for whom he really cares."

"I'm sorry, I'm fighting for my old friend's life. He wouldn't live in a prison a year. And I'm fighting for the life of his little girl, who loves and believes in him as she believes in the goodness of God. If her father is branded a felon it will kill her."

He turned abruptly and left her. In a moment Bivens came out and led his wife to a seat which had been reserved near his.

One of the things which had increased Bivens' nervousness was the fact that the judge ignored his presence in the courtroom. He had been accustomed to deference from judges. This judge was a man with red blood in his veins, a man of intense personal likes and dislikes and a fearless dispenser of what he believed to be even handed justice under the law.

The young lawyer sat in silence beside the bowed form, awaiting his case which the judge, at his request, had placed last. As the moment drew near for the plea his nerve tension grew intense. Waves of passionate emotion swept his heart. He waked from his day dream with a start, to hear the clerk read in quick tones:

"The people against Henry Woodman."

The judge looked at the dazed prisoner and said:

"What have you to say, Henry Woodman, why sentence should not be imposed upon you for the crime of which you stand convicted by your own plea?"

With a quick movement of his tall figure Stuart was on his feet, every nerve and muscle strung to the highest tension. Only the deep, tremulous notes of his voice betrayed his emotion.

"May it please your honor," he slowly began, "I wish to establish to the court before I say anything in behalf of my client, the important fact that he offered to make full restitution of the property taken, that he did this voluntarily before he was even suspected of the crime and that his offer was refused."

The judge lifted his gray eyebrows in surprise, and settled back into his seat with a low grunt.

"I make the fair inference therefore in the beginning," Stuart went on

"Two men are on trial, not one."

evenly, "that the prosecutor in the case is actuated solely by a desire for personal vengeance."

Stuart paused and Bivens moved uneasily in his seat.

"I speak today, your honor, in behalf of the man who crouches by my side overwhelmed with shame and grief and conscious dishonor because he took a paltry package of jewelry from a man who has never added one penny to the wealth of the world and yet has somehow gotten possession of one hundred million dollars from those who could not defend themselves from his strength and cunning. This man stands before you now with no shame in his soul, no tears on his cheeks, and with brazen effrontery demands vengeance on a weaker brother.

"Two men are on trial, not one. The majesty of the law has already been vindicated in the tear stained plea that has been entered. Between these two men the court must decide.

"This millionaire who demands vengeance against this broken man today has an income greater than the combined crowned heads of Europe and wields a scepter mightier than czar or emperor. Why? He levies each year millions of taxes without consulting this court, the legislature or any man who walks the earth. He does this by a machine for printing paper tokens of value called stocks.

The essence of theft is to take the property of another without giving a return. A green goods man sells printed paper for money. This mighty man also sells printed paper for money. What is the difference? Neither the green goods nor the bogus capital called watered stock represents a dollar in real value.

"This modern marauder whom we have enthroned as our ruler everywhere, from every one, seizes, tears and despoils the fruits of toil, has never added a penny to the wealth of humanity. And what do we find him doing? In the midst of poverty that means hunger and nakedness, disease and death, we have the shameless flaunting of insane luxury. And to what purpose? To challenge the envy of the vain, and the foolish, to dazzle the minds of the poor and inflame the lusts of the criminal.

"Do we believe that such things are the decrees of a just and loving God who created this world? These things are not the result of his law, but the results of the violation of law."

The speaker paused, drew close to the judge and then in low, impassioned tones told as if he were talking to a father the story of Woodman's life and the events which drove him to madness on the fatal night of his crime. In flashes of vivid eloquence he described the magnificent ball and drew in somber, heartwreaking contrast the desolation and despair of a proud and sensitive man made desperate by want and ruin, the man who had given his blood to his country and his daily life in an unselfish ministry to the homeless and friendless.

"I do not ask of your honor," he cried in ringing tones, "the repeal of the law, but that better men shall not steal! I only ask the suspension of its penalty on this heartbroken man until we can extend it to his oppressors as well, until its thunder shall also echo through the palaces of the rich—Thou shalt not steal!

"The man who has fallen was weak and poor. The man who demands his life is rich and powerful. I ask for a heartbroken man another chance. I ask this court to suspend all sentence against the poor bruised and bleeding spirit that lies in tears at our feet today."

The judge wheeled in his armchair, cleared his throat and looked out of the window to hide from the crowd a tear that had stolen down his furrowed cheek.

He turned at length to Bivens' lawyers and quietly asked:

"The state insists on the enforcement of sentence without mercy?"

"Absolutely," was the sharp answer.

"This is your desire, Mr. Bivens?" the judge asked with some severity.

"Yes," the financier fiercely replied.

"And yet you say that you are a Christian. Well, see to it. Your Master says:

"'He that saith I love God and hateth his brother is a liar.' Henry Woodman, stand up! The judgment of this court is that sentence in your case be suspended so long as you obey the law."

"And I may say to you, Henry Woodman, that my faith is profound that you will never appear in this court again. And if you ever need the help of a friend you'll find one if you come to me. You are a free man."

Stuart hurried the doctor out of the crowd. He had important work yet to do. He determined that no story of the scene should ever be printed in a New York paper. He would save Harriet that too.

As the court adjourned Bivens cursed his lawyers in a paroxysm of helpless rage. Then he suddenly threw his hand to his forehead, staggered and sank to the floor.

A doctor who was near rushed to his side and lifted his head into his wife's arms.

"What is it? Has he fainted, doctor?" she whispered, glancing toward the door through which Stuart had just passed.

"He has had a stroke of paralysis, madam, I fear," was the answer.

Stuart's appeal to the New York papers in behalf of Harriet was successful. For a week he bought every morning and evening edition and read them eagerly. Not a line appeared to darken the life of his little girl.

Bivens' illness shook the financial world. The men who had professed their friendship most loudly to his face now sharpened their knives for his wounded body. Every stock with which his name was linked was the target of the most savage attacks. The tumbling of values in his securities carried down the whole market from five to six points in a single day.

The great palace that had a few nights before blazed with lights and echoed with music, laughter, song and dance and clinking glasses, stood dark and silent behind its bristling iron fence.

Within the darkened palace the doctors were supreme. In his great library the hotel consultation after consultation and secretly smiled when they thought of the figures they would write on his face. They disagreed in details, but all agreed on the main conclusion—that the only hope was that he should quit work and play for several years.

When they made this solemn announcement to Bivens, he smiled for the first time. It was too good a joke. How could he play? He knew but one game, the big game of the man hunt! He told his doctors he would go to Europe and see if there were doctors over there who knew anything.

The shaking, miserable little figure staggered up the gangplank of a steamer. He made a brave show of strength to the reporters who swarmed about him for an interview and collapsed in the arms of his wife on reaching his stateroom.

He had forgotten his resentment on account of Woodman in the presence of the Great Terror, whose shadow had suddenly darkened the world.

The young lawyer had said goodby to Nan with a sense of profound relief. From the bottom of his soul he thanked God she was going away.

(To be continued tomorrow)

Why Chinamen Are Poor Soldiers.

The Chinaman is a poor soldier. Not that he is lacking in courage, for on occasions he cheerfully sells himself as substitute and goes willingly to the executioner's ax in order to provide his parents with the smallsum necessary to support them through life. The strength of an army is in team work, and here is where he falls on account of his aversion to being ordered. This is found in his domestic and industrial work. A general line of policy or desired results can be laid down, and he will faithfully work in accordance therewith, but he dislikes to be followed up through the details of the work with frequent orders. He will produce excellent results, but they must be accomplished in his own way; hence the essence of good militarism—prompt and unquestioned obedience—comes in direct conflict with his nature and makes him a poor soldier. However, this trait is not entirely wanting in other nationalities, as every business man knows to his sorrow, and the difficulty of getting employees to do a thing in the prescribed way is one of the constant anxieties. —H. Three Future White House Maids Have Fine Talents

Margaret Wilson Is Singer. Other Two Are Artists of Much Ability.

Mrs. Wilson, New Mistress of White House, Now Has "Official" Portrait.

Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson.

PROBABLY no three girls in America will be so much in the public eye during the next four years as the three daughters of the president elect, Woodrow Wilson. As daughters of the president of the United States they will be the cynosure of all eyes in Washington, and their daily doings will be chronicled throughout the length and breadth of the land.

Through a piece of fine photography Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the president elect, now has an "official" photograph. The portrait is one of the latest for which she has posed and because of its excellence is looked upon by both Mr. and Mrs. Wilson as the one which should properly be used henceforth for reproduction. Mrs. Wilson, by the way, for some time to come will be a figure upon which the eyes of Washington and national social circles will be centered. Many responsibilities of a social nature devolve upon her as mistress of the White House.

The three daughters are Margaret, Jessie Woodrow and Eleanor Randolph. Margaret, the eldest, is the possessor of a rich soprano voice, which has been cultivated under Mrs. Gillespie, a New York teacher. She is a "bachelor maid" in Manhattan for several Eleanor Wilson has had such well known artists as Child Hassam, Edward Rook, Willard Metcalf and Walter Griffin for her associates.

Up to the time they were twelve years old the three Wilson girls were entirely educated at home. Mrs. Wilson is a strong believer in family influence, and so she took personal charge of their early education. Even when they were little tots of five and six she used to read to them every day classic English literature, including the works of the best English authors, the Iliad, the Odyssey and translations of the older classics. She felt that if they were to acquire a proper appreciation of literature they could not begin too early.

Mrs. Wilson was always a great reader. She used to pass whole days in her father's and grandfather's libraries, and her three daughters have inherited her fondness for books.

But in spite of this fondness for books the girls are fond of outdoor sports. Miss Jessie Wilson is an exceptionally good tennis player, and all three ride horseback. They are strong, well developed American girls, healthy both in mind and body and essentially feminine.

An interesting little story arises concerning the Wilson girls from the fact that should all of them marry while their father is president one of them must be the "junior" (third) White House bride, but only one of them wedding can be a first.

There have been fourteen White House brides, but only ten of them have been married in that historic mission. The first to be married there was Anna Todd, a niece of the famous Dolly Madison, whose wedding took place in the east room in the year 1811 when she became the wife of John G. Jackson, congressman from Virginia.

The last to enter the holy bonds of matrimony within the confines of the president's home was Miss Alice Roosevelt, who became the wife of Nicholas Longworth, congressman from Ohio, in 1906.

Four White House brides have been married during the period of their father's administration as president. Those brides were Maria Monroe, Elizabeth Tyler, Nellie Grant and Alice Roosevelt.

Under the capable guidance of their mother the president's daughters are expected to be socially the pride of diplomatic circles. Although the young women have thoroughly formed interests along the lines of their father, they will have his social custom policies.

Pure Malice.

Curious Scientific Prediction.
Every one is familiar with the story often told of the great naturalist Cuvier to the effect that, given a single bone, he could reconstruct the animal to which it belonged. That a somewhat similar law of organization runs through the various species that form families in the animal world is indicated by a quaint case of scientific prediction to which attention has again lately been called. It appears that Ehrenberg when engaged in a study of the minute animals called diatoms found that many species were distinguished by the number of rays they possessed. In the series of specimens that he had, however, he could find none having, respectively, twenty-seven, twenty-nine, thirty, thirty-one, thirty-two, thirty-three, thirty-four, thirty-five, thirty-six, thirty-seven, thirty-eight and thirty-nine rays. Still, he predicted that the missing species would some day turn up. This prediction has already been verified, for ten of them have since been discovered, leaving only three to be accounted for.—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Knowing One.
Miss Maude Annesley in her book, "My Parisian Year," tells an excellent story to illustrate the way French restaurant keepers try to "do" the traveling Englishman.

She once went to a very well known restaurant with an Englishman who had lived nearly all his life in France. He wished to give a dinner for eight. He studied the menu, decided on what he wanted and then asked the price per head.

"Forty-five francs, monsieur," said the maitre d'hotel.

Miss Annesley's friend looked steadily at him and remarked, "I am French!"

The maitre d'hotel pretended to make another addition, then said, "Well, monsieur, we will do it for 40 francs!"

The other replied calmly, "I am still French!"

"Thirty-five francs, then," said the maitre d'hotel.

"I have not changed my nationality," was the retort, and Miss Annesley says that the price finally paid was only 22 francs per head.

The Curious Grapple Plant.
Plants have varied and ingenious ways of scattering their seed. Some with wings like those of tiny aeroplanes are blown by the wind; some are thrown out of the seed pods by explosions; others, by means of hooks, attach themselves to passing animals and are carried long distances. Of this last class is the fruit of the gourdlike grapple plant that grows in the deserts of the Transvaal and Orange river colony. From the hard pod of this plant project clawlike runners that are armed with sharp pointed hooked thorns, and when a springbok or some other animal steps on them they pierce the hoof and start the animal galloping madly away. As the pod often sticks to the animal's foot for several days the seed of the plant is likely to be widely distributed. This contrivance of nature seems unusually cruel, for the animal that is so unfortunate as to tread on the grapple plant not only suffers intense pain, but often becomes an easy victim of its enemies.

The Return.
"I believe," said the cheery philosopher, "that for every single thing you give away two come back to you."
"That's my experience," said Phamley. "Last June I gave away my daughter, and she and her husband came back to us in August."

When Harmonies Are Exhausted.
Once during a conversation on music, when James Hinton, the English physician and philosophical writer, was among the company, some one suggested that "owing to the unlimited number of musical compositions a time would come when all music would only be a repetition of exhausted harmonies. Hinton remarked that there would come a man so inspired by a new spirit that his feeling would be not that all music has been written, but that no music has yet been written." Mr. Havlock Ellis cites the saying in "The Task of Social Hygiene," applying it to the domain of love.

PROVIDE FOR DIVORCE BECAUSE OF INSANITY

Bill Introduced Making Insanity the Only Grounds For an Absolute Divorce.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 27.—Grim tragedies of life that hold their victims helpless because the law provides no relief are being recited by members of the house since Representative Rufus Skeels of Oceana introduced his bill making insanity alone a ground for absolute divorce.

Skeels himself, in his capacity as an attorney, has been in close touch with such a tragedy in Oceana county, and it was due to his own experience that he introduced the measure referred to. Strange as it may seem, in Michigan a husband is legally held forever to an insane wife or vice versa, and unless other causes than insanity alone can be brought into the case, the partner of one whose mind has become clouded must forever bear his or her burdens without legal relief.

Skeels' bill provides that after a married person has become insane for five years, action for divorce may be brought.

Dogs That Resemble Bears.

It has already been noted by scientists that certain mountain dogs have shapes and assume attitudes resembling those of a bear. Among these dogs the sheep dog of the Pyrenees bears a closer resemblance to the bear than most others. Although he is seldom over twenty inches high his bones are very massive and his muscles exceptionally developed. His fur is thick, consisting of long, fine, silky hair, either black, dun colored or gray. His head is large and the nose tapering, the eyes small, but sharp and lustrous and his ears always "attentive." The toes and the base of the feet are elongated and flat. The tail is very short or even entirely missing, and by his manner of climbing the abrupt mountain slopes he may easily be mistaken for a young bear.

A Thackeray Dedication.

A doctor who achieved literary immortality by his refusal of a fee was John Elliotson, who attended Thackeray during a serious illness in 1848. To him in return Thackeray dedicated "Pendennis."
"Thirteen months ago," he wrote, "when it seemed likely that this story had come to a close, a kind friend brought you to my bedside, whence, in all probability, I never should have risen but for your constant watchfulness and skill. I like to recall your great goodness and kindness (as well as many acts of others, showing quite a surprising friendship and sympathy) at that time, when kindness and friendship were most needed and welcome. And as you would take no other fee but thanks let me record them here on behalf of me and mine."

ADVERSE TO RESUME WAR

sidered forms of pressure with which Balkan delegates hope to obtain their object without resuming the war.

The meeting today lasted for an hour and a half, and the course to be followed was given earnest consideration. Two distinct views were manifested—one for the immediate rupture of the negotiations, leading to a resumption of the war and the other favoring a temporizing policy, in order to avoid irrevocable steps. The latter course triumphed and a committee was appointed consisting of one member from each delegation. The general lines on which the note is to be drafted were laid down, these comprising the arguments already set forth as to why the league demands the surrender of Adrianople and the Aegean islands as an indispensable condition to peace.

That the policy of the allies is to gain time is patent and does not deceive anybody. The delegates decided that the advantages to be derived from the resumption of hostilities would be in proportion to the risks they ran, and that they would not take such steps unless forced to do so. It is realized that even a partial reverse would have grave moral and material consequences, apart from the loss of thousands of men. In addition, the fact is not overlooked that there is danger of Roumania advancing from the rear and of Austria imposing on Serbia and Montenegro her conditions for remaining neutral. The only disadvantage in delaying decisive action is in keeping large armies inactive and on a war footing for a long time, thus heavily taxing both the financial and agricultural resources of the countries.

WINS HIS THIRD DECISIVE VICTORY

Bryant Victorious for the Third Time in Roller Skate Races with Local Boys

Frankie Bryant returned winner Saturday evening from the mile race with Helmer Groth at the Peterson rink, winning by a half a lap. The time was three minutes and twenty-two seconds, but the skaters covered the course one time too much. It is believed that the time should have been at least ten seconds less.

On Tuesday evening the three mile relay handicap race will be off in which Bryant will race Groth, Berube and La Fond. This will be interesting and will no doubt draw out a full house.

WILLIE RITCHIE, MODEL PUGILIST

New Lightweight Champion Is Fond of the Simple Life.

HOW HE BECAME A FIGHTER

When Home in Frisco Was Destroyed by Fire and Earthquake He Took to Boxing Game to Earn Living—His One Weakness Is Ice Cream Soda.

"Soubrette" of the prizefighters is the latest designation for Willie Ritchie, the lightweight champion of the world. Willie is a mere lad with rosy cheeks, brown eyes, white teeth and a complexion as clear as a girl's. He is a liver of the simple life, he looks like the idealistic picture of a choir boy, and when one converses with the fighter he momentarily expects him to break forth in a carol or cantata. Likewise he has what the Bertha M. Clay type of novelists call a "chiseled" nose and a "molded" chin.

Willie attributes his power and skill to clean living. But he has one vice that his friends fear may prove his downfall—a sinful craving for ice cream soda. When he walks along the streets it is a terrible temptation to pass the girl thirst emporiums and to know that within are fancy glasses and strawberry sundaes galore. He has to use his full power of control to pass by with his head turned away, for he believes in only a moderate indulgence of his vice, for too many sundaes would be as bad as too many highballs in a way.

Willie's worst jag is a box of candy, and he is awfully fond of layer cake with chocolate icing. But Willie manfully puts the brakes on his sweet tooth and shuns temptation—not that he cuts out the sweet stuff altogether, but he only indulges in moderation.

Willie dresses simply in a sort of Bunker Bean before-the-fall style, and he eschews diamonds.

He explains the diamonds thusly: "I don't want folks to get in the habit of looking around for my diamond and when they spy it saying, 'Oh, there he is.'"

Willie never lets his dad see him fight. "Believe me, a fight's no place for a boy's father," he says.

It was the San Francisco earthquake that sent Willie in the prizefight game.

"In San Francisco, after my home was destroyed by the earthquake and fire, I had to do something to take care of myself," he said. "I worked in a garage all day and boxed at the gym at night. One evening I attended a 'meeting' where there was to be a boxing match. One of the boys didn't show up. They called on me, and I took his place and won. I earned seven-fifty that night, and I bet it was the biggest seven-fifty ever in captivity.

"If my mother had lived I don't suppose I'd ever have been in the game now."

They Went Together.

Tom Meyers was a peddler in a humble way in Chicago, and he and his outfit were well known in the poorer quarters. His wagon was old and rickety, his horse had seen years of service in a street car line, and the peddler was old and feeble as his horse, which, by the way, bore the impressive name of Baron.

Saturday is always a busy day with peddlers, and one very cold Saturday Peddler Meyers had an unusually hard day. As he drove home late in the evening he noticed that Baron looked sick. He gave him a good supper of oats, rubbed him down and then went to his own supper.

An hour later he again visited Baron and found him worse. He applied such remedies as he could, and then, finding that the horse evinced a desire to lie down, he led it out of the stable and up the street.

Around and around the block he led Baron, and in the early morning a policeman found the horse lying on the street and the old peddler by his side with an arm on the animal's neck, and both were dead.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

FLINT'S LETTER

Walker in his copper letter says: "If the values of high and low priced stocks generally are submitted to a thorough analysis and thrown into comparison it will be found that the buyer of copper stocks at the present level gets more for his money and also greater speculative possibilities and prospects than he can secure in anything else. Comparable to present and prospective earnings the coppers are cheaper now than at any previous time in the past fifty years. No better bargains were presented in the panic days of 1907 than can now be found in the copper share list." Today's market was practically lifeless but despite this fact, the closing prices were full as high and in some cases, higher than last week. London copper opened higher but closed about ten shillings lower than last Friday. Nearly all trades made are professional and the market is in such a state that even its professionals are at sea.
