DIAZ CLAIMS COMPLETE CONTROL OF MEXICO CITY

REBEL LEADER ASKS FOR RECOGNITION BY UNITED STATES

IN A MESSAGE TO THE AMERICAN AMBASSADOR HE CLAIMS CITY IS IN HIS POWER NOW

REBELS NOT TO SURRENDER

Wilson Replies That he Does Not See the Situation in That Light at Present

(By Associated Press.) MEXICO CITY, FEB. 14, 4:30 P. M.—DIAZ HAS INCREASED THE BOMBARDMENT OF THE NATIONAL PALACE AFTER WARNING ALL NON-COMBATANTS TO GET OUT OF THE WAY. FEDERALS ARE CLOSING IN AND THERE HAS BEEN THREE SHARP ENGAGEMENTS.

City of Mexico, Feb. 14, 4:30 p. m. The federal engineers have just finished placing mines filled with dynamite below four blocks of residences between the arsenal and the National palace in order that the federal army may have a better chance to work their artillery.

The federals slowed up firing about an hour ago to change their position from the palace to the English embassy. A truce was declared at noon to give the White Cross society a chance to pick up some of the dead and wounded.

Straggling federals are frequently passing the American embassy and say that they have quit the fight and deserted Madero. Food is scarce and what there is to be had is so expensive that only the well to do can afford to buy.

TO ORGANIZE BOYS' SCOUTS AT WELLS

Movement Has Been Started For Such Organization By Congregationalists There.

A movement has been launched at Wells by Rev. Wood, of the Wells Congregational church, for the launching of a Boy Scout organization in that village. This evening the first meeting of those interested will be held.

Mr. Spooner has kindly consented to be the Scout master and the boys are quite excited over the formation of the society. It is believed that two patrols will be formed, and the body will consist of a membership of sixteen, eight boys in each of the patrols. Arrangements will probably be made at this gathering for the procuring of uniforms and other equipment.

MEETING OF FARMERS AND BUSINESSMEN

Gladstone Businessmen Are Going After the Trade of Bay De Noc Farmers

A meeting of the members of the Commercial Club of Gladstone and the farmers of the Little Bay de Noc peninsula will be held at the Alton Grange hall on Saturday evening, Feb. 22, for the purpose of discussing the proposed ferry line between Gladstone and Maywood. The proposed macadam highway across the peninsula from Maywood to Ogonts will also be considered.

Gladstone business men are giving strong evidence of their intention to go after the trade of the farmers in that part of the county. The ferry line if established, together with the proposed macadam road, will give Gladstone the advantage in every way in cultivating closer trade relations with the farmers in the peninsula.

PROFESSOR PROVES THAT PIGEONS HAVE EMOTIONS OF LOVE

With the lowly angleworm dabbling deeply in the classics and the humble mouse soaring in philosophical realms, the latest and mal at Harvard to go in for the "deep stuff" is a bird—the pigeon. Proving the domestic pigeon has emotions, thoughts and leads to a somewhat intellectual life like a human being has won John Edward Rouse a degree of doctor of philosophy. By measuring the heart beats Rouse found a pigeon has emotions like any human being can desire—he angry, afraid, fall in love, and so forth. He placed one pigeon where he could see a trained bird performing the tests. Then he tried to see whether the other bird could learn how to do the tricks by watching his feathered comrade. The amateur proved an apt pupil.

KILLS HIS LITTLE GIRL

The Tragedy May Have Important Bearing on the Graft Investigation, It is Said

New York, Feb. 14.—James Purcell, the veteran gambler, who recently testified before the aldermanic committee on police graft, shot and killed his thirteen year old daughter, Agnes, this morning during a quarrel with his wife in their apartments. One of the wild bullets struck the daughter with the fatal result. Mrs. Purcell fainted during the reign of bullets. Purcell, believing that he had murdered two, surrendered himself to the police. The tragedy may have an important bearing on the graft investigation, it is believed.

AN INFANT SUCCEUMBS AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Baker Died Last Night After a Short Illness at Home

After a short illness, Raymond, the fifteen months old child of Mr. and Mrs. William Baker, 604 Escanaba avenue, died last evening. The child had been sick but a short time with pneumonia. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at two o'clock from the St. Patrick's church.

MISS HELEN MILLAR ENTERTAINS CLASS

Young People Spend Several Social Hours Last Evening as Guests of Miss Millar

Last evening Miss Helen Millar entertained the members of her Sunday school class of the Presbyterian church at her home on 410 Hale street. Games were played, music was enjoyed and a general social time was had.

ON THE WAY TO CANADA

PEOPLE OF GLADSTONE THOUGHT THAT ROY HAMEL WAS ON SOO TRAIN THIS MORNING

CURRAN WAS NOTIFIED OF FLIGHT

Manistique Police Were Notified to Search Train for Him and Hold Him There

Sheriff Curran was called up early this morning from Gladstone by some person who had been down to the passenger station and thought, Roy Hamel was on the Soo train bound for Canada.

No one stopped to think that if this was the case, Roy was under bonds and the bondsmen would have to settle. There is another warrant out for him, which has not been served as yet and there were grave fears that the young man was making his way to Canada to avoid further prosecution.

On the strength of the reports, Sheriff Curran called up the sheriff of Schoolcraft county and told him to search the train when it arrived there. When the passenger pulled into Manistique the police officials were ready to arrest Hamel, but no amount of searching the train from the engine to the platform of the last sleeping car resulted in locating him and the train was allowed to proceed on its way, without the capture, being made.

The report circulated in Gladstone that Roy Hamel was leaving the United States caused great excitement until Manistique was heard from and it was found out that he was not on the train. Prosecuting attorney Strom is investigating the claims that are being made in regard to the illness of Roy Hamel and will probably make known the result of his investigation within a short time.

GLADSTONE CASES POSTPONED AGAIN

Complaining Witness May Drop Action Against Liquor Men if They Obey Law in Future

Another postponement was taken yesterday afternoon in the cases against the five liquor merchants of Gladstone in Justice McEwen's court for two weeks.

The liquor dealers are now acting in harmony with the laws of the state in Gladstone and if they continue so to do, it is stated that the action that has been started against them by a minister in that city will be dropped.

FORTIER FUNERAL IS TO BE HELD SATURDAY

Brother of the Late Felix Fortier Arrived This Morning From Canada for Funeral

Francis Fortier, brother of the late Felix Fortier, who passed away a few days ago at the Delta county hospital, arrived this morning from Canada, and assumed charge of the body. The funeral will be held Saturday morning from the St. Anne's church, and interment will be in the St. Anne's cemetery. Until that time the remains are being held at the Allo undertaking parlors.

Mrs. A. G. Grouse is reported to be ill at her home on North Oak street.

WOODROW WILSON INCREASES GUARD

Guard is Increased to Four Members and They Live in Shack Opposite Wilson Home

(By Associated Press.) Princeton, Feb. 14.—For some unknown reasons, Woodrow Wilson has increased his guard to four members. The quartette live in a frame shack opposite the Wilson home. The shack has windows on all the sides. The marching suffragettes called at the Wilson home today and sent a formal request for a hearing with the president when Wilson reaches Washington.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION AT LANSING PROMISES TO BE A VERY TAME AFFAIR, IS REPORT

TOO HAPPY TO WAR IN CAMP

No Note of Discord is Being Heard, and Candidates Are Few and Far Between

Lansing, Feb. 14.—Democrats from all over Michigan last night assembled in Lansing for the state convention. No particular issue is involved in the convention and no great contests for the nominations are on. Democrats are coming here in the exuberance of their spirits, because they are victorious and have a chance—the first chance, in many years—to laugh and sing and cheer and enjoy the unusual happiness of being in power.

No note of discord is to be heard. Senator Anderson, supported by Senator Grace of Kalamazoo, threatens to try to put the unit rule out of business, but that is creating only a very slight ripple. The delegates as they arrive are filled with joy and, being in that condition, have no chance for discord. They are talking of candidates, but the candidates are not pushing themselves forward. In fact, difficulty in finding men who will permit the use of their names is being experienced. (Continued on page six)

COUNTY SCHOOLS MAKE GOOD PROGRESS NOW

Commissioner Legg Reports That Schools Are Doing Good Work at Present Time

Commissioner P. R. Legg, of Gladstone, has sufficiently recovered from the grip so as to be able to resume his work of the inspection of the schools of the county. This morning the commissioner left for Ford River, where he will visit the schools.

Commissioner Legg reports that the schools that he has visited thus far are acting in harmony with the work outlined, and the progress being made is encouraging indeed.

MR. YELLAND PASSES AWAY

FATHER OF JUDD YELLAND, OF THIS CITY, DIES AT HIS HOME IN HOWLETT YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

WAS NINETY-TWO YEARS OF AGE

Was One of Howlett's Early Settlers, Retiring From Business Twenty Years Ago

Mrs. Judd Yelland received a telegram this morning from Judge Yelland at Howlett stating that his father had died yesterday afternoon. Mr. Yelland was ninety-two years of age and about ten days ago he suffered with a stroke of paralysis, from which he suffered greatly until the end came yesterday.

Mr. Yelland was one of the early settlers of that community, locating there nearly three-quarters of a century ago, shortly after his arrival from England, his birthplace. He followed the occupation of a farmer until about twenty years ago, when his wife passed into the great beyond and then retired from active life. Mr. Yelland has been enjoying good health up to about a year ago when his health began to decline. Besides Judd Yelland four other children survive him. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon in Howlett.

MEMORIAL SERVICES

ENGLISH PEOPLE HOLD SERVICES FOR LAKE CAPT. SCOTT AND PARTY THROUGHOUT NATION TODAY

IMPRESSIVE EXERCISES ARE HELD

It is Alleged That Scott Party Could Have Been Saved if Rescued Had Acted Properly

(By Associated Press.) London, Feb. 14.—Memorial services for Capt. Scott and companions who perished on their return from the South pole recently, were held through out the nation today. St. Paul's cathedral was thronged by all classes of people today from King George to the laborers. The services were opened with the singing of "Rock of Ages," and the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee" closed the impressive ceremonies. Intense bitterness prevails against the Scott expedition survivors at Scott church. Some allege that Capt. Scott could have been saved if the rescue party had done their duty. It is also alleged that they used too much fuel, causing greater privation to the captain.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS BACK FROM MARINETTE

The members of the local council of the Knights of Columbus returned yesterday afternoon from Marinette, where they attended the initiation exercises of the Marinette lodge. Officials of the organization from Wisconsin were present and had charge of the initiatory work. Following an oyster supper was served. Visitors from lodges in neighboring towns were present, also.

FURNITURE PLANT BURNS

Ionia, Feb. 14.—The Ypellanti Reed furniture companies big manufacturing plant was burned today with a loss of $260,000. The building was adjacent to the state reformatory.

DEPUTY FORWARDS THE FOREST SCOUT MOVEMENT

MUSICAL MICE ARE FOUND BY MAN WHO CAN'T UNDERSTAND

Ragtime and grand opera by mice soloists and chorists is the last word in Harvard's world of psychology. The songsters are in the care of Charles Coburn, Harvard's psychological expert. There are five of these gifted mice. They are females and they come from New York. Whether they are of the prima donna type, or whether they are merely of the Broadway chorus girl type remains to be seen. A New York man found these mice, so it is said, in his tool chest. He was guided by the sound of their piping. The canary-like tone of their voices prompted him to notify the Harvard psychological department, which referred the matter to Mr. Coburn. The latter made a trip to New York and got the mice. Mr. Coburn will try to breed more singing mice.

It is interesting to learn that the two organizations have been merged and that the text books and line of

MAKES SUGGESTION THAT IS ALL RIGHT

Writer Says That Execution of Bulls be Put off Until Cannibal Canines are Dead

Although it is not the policy of this paper to print unsigned communications, but the following one, which was received this morning, is good and contains a point that undoubtedly will meet with the hearty approval of our readers:

"Would respectfully suggest that you put off the intended execution of those bulls until after they have chewed up the last tail of their cannibal canines. Then go to it."

This was a suggestion made after reading the article printed in a recent issue stating that Chief Iverson had instructed the members of the police department to kill all bull dogs caught fighting.

Commercial Traveler Uses It for Colds and Pneumonia

MR. CHAR. W. GITTLEMAN

Charles W. Gittleman, 38 years old, and family have used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey since 1906, when his doctor ordered it used as a medicinal tonic.

"I have used Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as a medicinal tonic since 1906. I had pneumonia and was directed by my family physician to use Duffy's. It did me a great deal of good and ever since it has been used by my family. I am 38 years of age and a commercial traveler. Am outdoors a great deal, and find this medicine a worthy stimulant and good preventive of colds, etc., for which I cheerfully recommend it."—Charles W. Gittleman, 1684 Gates Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

Is a safeguard in Winter against serious diseases, if used as directed. You can break up a cold with Duffy's before it becomes deep-seated and dangerous. For men and women who are exposed to Wintry blasts and raw, wet weather it is an effective protection. It is pure and dependable in throat, lung and stomach troubles. It overcomes weakening, wasting and run-down conditions of body, brain and muscle.

CAUTION—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, be sure you get the genuine. Sold in SEALED BOTTLES ONLY—never in bulk. Look for the trade-mark—the "Old Blend" on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is broken. $1.75 a large bottle. Write for a medical booklet and doctor's advice, free. The Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y.

The Marching Song. No one knows the inspiration of a tramping song better than the soldier, and most regiments have their favorite airs, which they love to yell when on march. The men of the Manchester regiment have a fine reputation for singing on the march, and two of their favorite songs are "Kilbuck" and "Brian Boru," both of which give opportunity for some hearty shouts at intervals. Similarly the "shirras" when route marching, and the way with "Dan Tucker," a song in which the words are of no account, and the tune a series of dissonant notes.—London Chronicle

DEPUTY FORWARDS FOR-EST SCOUT MOVEMENT

(Continued from Page One.) year of 1912 the boy scouts extinguished 509 fires. The forest scout movement is considered the most important factor in bringing about this marvelous decrease in loss though the boys have ably secured in the prevention of forest fires by lumbermen's organizations and the fact that rains came at opportune times.

Believes This Will "Cure Lung Troubles"
Consumption is a baffling disease—that is one of its chief dangers. Those who have it are rarely willing to acknowledge the fact. If this trouble is present, it is no time for trifling. If a so-called "cold" has long persisted; if a cough is present that keeps you anxious, or any of the symptoms are present, such as fever or night sweats, weakness and loss of appetite, and perhaps some raising of mucus—do the sensible thing.—Take Erkman's Alternative—as Mr. Bettersworth did.
Bowling Green, "y. R. No. 4.
"Gentlemen: I wish to say for your alternative that I believe it to be a medicine of unequalled value for all Bronchial and Lung Trouble. The Spring of 1908, I had a severe cough for six months. I tried all the medicine that my doctors recommended to me, but no results came for the better. I had night sweats, and weak I could hardly do anything. But, at last, James Deering, of Glasgow Junction, insisted that I try your medicine. In one week's time there was quite an improvement in my condition, and after I had taken several bottles, I felt as well as ever in my life.
"I desire the world to know that I firmly believe that your Erkman's Alternative will cure any case of lung trouble if taken before the last stage. I will gladly write personally to any party wanting information in regard to your wonderful medicine." (Sworn Affidavit)
A. C. BETTERS WORTH.
Erkman's Alternative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain poisons, opiates or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of recovery, and write to Erkman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa. for more evidence. For sale by all leading druggists plished in the first year of actual work in the line of preventing forest fires.

Among the things presented to the boys this afternoon were the following facts:

There are at the present time 2,500 boys organized in the forest districts of this state.

The year 1912 is the first year since the great saw mill business started some sixty years ago that forest fires did not destroy more timber than was manufactured into lumber during the year.

The estimated loss by forest fires in the state of Michigan during the year nursery at Roscommon and instructions relative to planting same will be furnished the school children interested in the work. It is expected that arrangements will be made with the railroads to frank these shipments through to the several localities desirous of planting the trees.

Medals will be awarded for the best work done. Badges are distributed free and nearly 100 special medals have been awarded during the year to boys having performed some meritorious service to the state.

Old Time Valentines

Tame Compared With "Raggy" 1913 Creation

"Raggy" sentiment is the latest attraction in the valentine market. Its popularity—for the demand has exceeded even the expectation of those foresighted merchants who, reputation in hand, dared recognize the call of a distinctly modernized cupid—may be attributed to the same emotional tendency that has characterized the "trot" and the "Tommy."

If the eminently respectable young man, whose fiancée is "thrilled" on today by a heart-shaped box of fresh down violets, should receive a picture postal bearing an enameled bleeding heart and the caption, "It's a Bear," undoubtedly he would be as shocked as the divine who attended the leap year dance given by chorus girls.

Youths clamor for them. But blindly to shut one's eyes, like the fabled ostrich and declare with Berkeley that the subject does not exist because one refuses to see it, denies the raggy 1913 valentine no realism. That the lad of 16 is clamoring today for the raggy missives at the valentine counter is ample proof of their appeal. Misinterpreted sentiment, if you please, but with the same "hit" that has magnified the sales of "Alabama" and "Robert E. Lee."

With the modern adoption of the legitimate valentine, the familiar "comic" is fast losing the element of caricature that was once the sole resort of boyish revenge. The old cartoon of the short weight grocer, the irate landlady and the everpresent old maid have disappeared from the windows of the shops. In their places, a rather tame humanized zoo flaunts the slogans, "Don't Monkey With My Heart," and "A Pig I'd be if I Could Eat Thee." Even the vendors of the new "comic" admit that these are hopelessly inadequate for the needs of the school boy.

But if some part of the vulgarity is gone, the celluloid and tinsel creation still retains its popularity.

In spite of rags and comics, however florists and confectioners declare that 1913 sentiment still clings to the romance of old fashioned expression. More heart-shaped boxes, crowded with violets, lilacs and orchids will be sent to destinations within a thousand mile radius of the Twin City this year than ever before.

Valentine confectionery boxes rival in artistic construction the candy with which they are filled. Elaborately decorated baskets of straw and raffia, flower and ribbon trimmed, offer as large a variety as the burnt wood boxes tied with tulle. The assortments range in price.

Romance Clings to Day

Popular sentiment lends but one conclusion, declare the St. Paul merchants. Cupid is far from dormant. His ingenuity is expressed at times in ways unfamiliar to the eighteenth century miss, but the romance of St. Valentine's day is as real as it was to the girl with the hoop skirts. The report that sales this year will be 40 per cent larger than in 1912 substantiates the theory.

DIPPING THE FLAG.

One of the Oldest of All Methods of Marine Greeting.

The salutation given when a vessel lowers or "dips" its flag is one of the oldest and most honorable of all forms of marine greeting.

This form of salute has always been demanded by English speaking seamen, and its execution has burned the hearts and the powder of generations of naval commanders.

In the old days for a foreign ship, whether merchant or naval, to enter an English port without veiling top-sails or dipping its national flag was to run the risk of war, although the profoundest peace existed.

Without warning or argument the shore defenses of a man of war could send a vessel that across the bows or between the decks of the foreigner, and if the flag did not instantly det was brought to her senses by being raked through and through.

Such was the reception accorded by Sir John Hawkins in the sixteenth century to the Spanish admiral who, in time of peace, sailed into Portsmouth sound without veiling his top-sails or lowering his flag.

Salutes are essential matters of naval etiquette and are exchanged on an elaborate scale fixed by the maritime powers. The number of guns to be fired under all circumstances is minutely stipulated. Harper's Weekly.

The Innocent Bystander
By Walter A. Sinclair.

DIDNT this the buck fever season? demanded the Regular Fellow. This is the season when insurance agents regard the mountain guide with the same chill disfavor as they do the women in "high society" whom they recently warned against. A guide must be a mighty poor insurance risk at times, and the wives of guides can do no better than practice such small economies as selecting their winter dresses in conventional blacks.

"I used to think that buck fever meant an Indian suffering from malaria, but after an exhaustive study of mortality statistics I now know that it is the peculiar affliction which seizes a city man who has been allowed at large armed with a pump gun capable of spraying sudden death around the immediate vicinity. The buck never suffers from buck fever, but it is particularly virulent when it attacks the man behind the gun or the guide and coveys in front."

"What causes it is something of a mystery. Some think it is germs or bacilli, especially the 'cill' theory. A human being who comports himself sedately for eleven months and a half each year decides to inflict himself on the wilds in the guise of a Nimrod. After numerous weighty conferences with more experienced stalkers of the big game and a lengthy correspondence with owners of rural camps and all-around guides who hold their lives as trifling matters, the intending victim goes into a gunnery.

There he tries to discuss with an art of experience matters of caliber and bore. There is no doubt about the bore. He helps make up the vast majority of the latter. For a monetary consideration which would extract shrieks of protest if connected with the usual household expenditures he is properly mounted with the necessary homicidal outfit, to which he has to add an elaborate costume, designed to deceive other shooters while alarming the antlered monarch of the forest. Dainty shades of vivid red and yellow are favored by those who wish to return to their families for the last fond words rather than to be brought back an excess baggage.

"With this special scenery the intending devastator of the wood flies him forth to the end of the railroad line, rides a superannuated buckboard until it flatly refuses to go another foot, and then tramps on to the scene of carnage. After enduring hardships which would be a shame to tell and endangering his life repeatedly with camp cookery, our hero finally is allowed to go to the scene of the crime, marked X, where he crouches behind a tree or a rock.

"At this point his system explodes in a series of rattles and shakes. He would shake his best friend at that moment. The rattle of his teeth alarms the countryside and he can see nothing. Ambers spout suddenly all over the landscape and his rifle breaks into a profuse re-creation of steel jacketed bullets.

"When the city man regains consciousness he takes possession of a large hatrack in the rough, laid low by a guide who smokes a villainous pipe and talks in halting dialect. Maybe the city man dies. Otherwise and usually he pays for the cow or settles with the guide's widow."

"But the buck—how about the buck?" persisted the Regular Fellow.

"What is this—a touch?" asked the Innocent Bystander.

DRESSING CHILDREN.

There is a slight tendency in the direction of overdressing children just now. Every now and then this tendency arises, only to be annihilated by the fact that there are few women so silly that they will overdress their children, whatever they may do themselves. Children are not independent of fashion, but certainly they are not dependent on it.

Real torture may be inflicted on a sensitive child by dressing her in out of date and clumsy garments when all her school fellows are daintily clothed. But what are wanted are not up-to-date things, but simple and pretty things.

The rise of the knitted coat for adults has led directly to the use of knitted suits for children. They are very comfortable, very warm, and as durable as anything can be that is submitted to the extreme chances of a child's day. For very small boys little knickers and jerseys of knitted wool are the most practical of garments, especially for fat little boys, who will come through any non-elastic fabric much quicker than they will come through knitted wool.

NUMBER 13 STILL CLINGS TO WILSON

Governor and Militia From Thirteen States to Attend His Inaugural March 4.

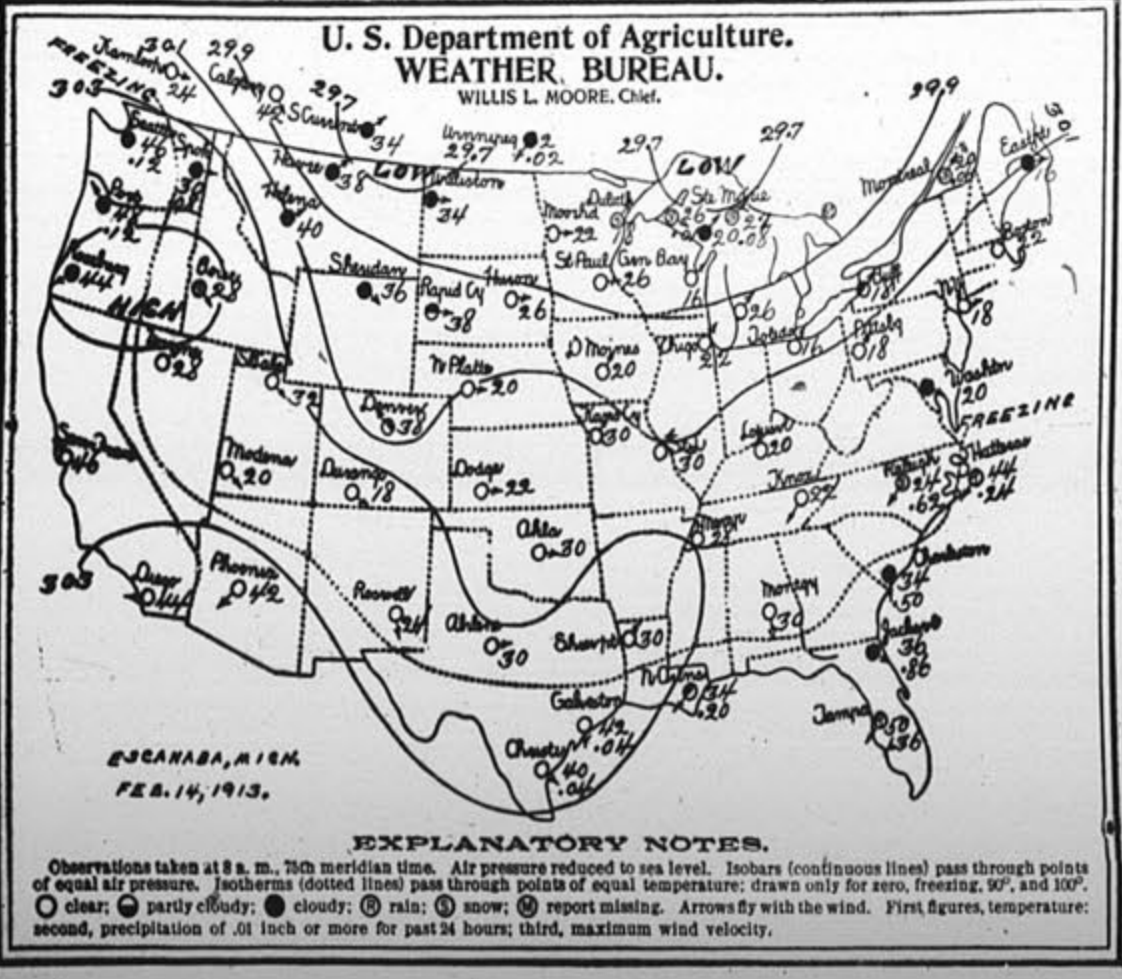

Washington, Feb. 14.—The number 13, said to be President-elect Woodrow Wilson's lucky number, appears to be following him even to the inaugural parade, according to an announcement made recently by the inaugural committee.

It was declared that 13 governors so far have signified their intention of being in line, and that the militia of 13 states will be represented. The states are Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina and West Virginia. Nearly a score of other states will be represented by marching clubs of a semi-military nature. The committee has determined to prevent speculation in the sale of seats for the parade. Efforts of speculators to buy blocks of seats have on every occasion, been without result, although seats in considerable number are sold to reputable clubs or organizations, under pledge that they are intended for distribution or sale among the accredited members of those organizations. Hartley Wiggins is in love with Cecilia Hollister. His friend Arnold Ames meets an elderly lady at the Asolando tea rooms. She is Cecilia's Aunt Octavia, an eccentric woman of wealth. She invites Ames to Hopefield Manor. Ames is fascinated by Francesca, a tea room girl.

CHAPTER III.

At Hopefield Manor.

MISS HOLLISTER'S summons lay on my desk the next morning and was of the briefest. I was requested to call at Hopefield Manor at 4 o'clock the following afternoon, being Thursday. A trap would meet me at Katonah, and it was suggested that I come prepared to spend the night, so that the condition of the fues might be discussed and any necessary changes planned during the evening. The note, signed Octavia Hollister, was written in a flowing hand on a wholly impeccable note sheet stamped Hopefield Manor, Katonah.

Before taking the train I sought Wiggins by telephone at his office and at the Hare and Tortoise, where he lodged, but without learning anything as to his whereabouts. His office did not answer, but Wiggins' office had never been responsive to the telephone, so this was not significant. The more I considered his conduct during the recital of my visit to the Asolando the more I wondered, and in spite of my wish to ignore utterly Jewett's revelations as to Wiggins' summer abroad, I was forced to the conclusion that Jewett had not lied. I had known Wiggins long, and this was the first time that I had ever been conscious of any withholding of confidence on his part, and on my own I had not merely confided all my hopes and aims to him, but I had leaned upon him often in my perplexities. There was, indeed, a kind of boyish compact between us that we should support each other through all difficulties. His reserve hid, I knew, a diffident and sensitive nature, and it was wholly possible that if his affair with Cecilia Hollister had not prospered he had fled to his ranch there to wrestle in seclusion with his disappointment. My mind was busy with such speculations as I sped toward Katonah, where I found the trap from Hopefield Manor awaiting me.

"It's rather poor going over the hills; about five miles, sir," said the driver as we set off.

This was the first week in October. There was just zest enough in the air to make a top coat comfortable. The team of blacks spoke well for Miss Hollister's stable, and the liveried driver kept them moving steadily, but eased the pace as we rose on the frequent slopes to the shoulders of the pleasant Westchester hills. Early frosts had already wrought their miracle in the foliage, and the battle banners of winter's vanguard flashed along the borders. I rejoiced that my business, wearisome enough in many ways, yet afforded me so charming an outing as this.

Presently we climbed a hill that shouldered its way well above its fellows and came out upon a broad ridge, where we entered at once a noble gateway set in an old stone wall and struck off smartly along a fine bit of macadam. The house, the driver informed me, was a quarter of a mile from the gate. The way led through a wild woodland, in which elms and maples predominated, and before this had grown monotonous we came abruptly upon an Italian garden, beyond which rose the house. I knew it at once for one of Pepperton's sound performances. Pepperton is easily our best man in domestic Tudor, and the whole setting of Hopefield Manor—the sunken garden, the superb view, the billowing fields and woodlands beyond—all testified to a taste which no ignorant owner had thwarted. The house was Tudor, but in no servile sense. It was also Pepperton. I lifted my eyes with immediate professional interest to the chimneys on the roof. It occurred to me on the instant that I had never before been called to retouch any of Pepperton's work. Pep knew as much as I about fine construction. I had an immense respect for Pep, and as my specializing in chimneys had been a subject of frequent chaffing between us, I anticipated with a chuckle the pleasure I should have later in telling him that at last one of his fues had required my services.

My good opinion of Miss Hollister did not diminish as I stepped within the broad hall. Houses have their own manner of speech, and Hopefield Manor spoke to all the senses in accents of taste and refinement. A servant took my bag and ushered me into a charming library. A fire smoldered lazily in the great fireplace; there was in the room the faintest scent of burnt wood, but the smoke rose in the flue in a perfectly mannerly fashion, and on thrusting in my hand I felt a good draft of air. I instinctively knelt on the hearth and peered up, but saw nothing unworkmanlike—Pepperton was not a fellow to leave obvious mistakes behind him. But possibly that was not one of the recalcitrant fireplaces I had been called to inspect, and I rose and was continuing my enjoyment of the beautiful room when I became conscious, by rather curious and mixed processes not wholly of the eye, that a young woman had drawn back the light portieres—they were dark brown, with borders of burnt orange—and stood gravely gazing at me. She held the curtains apart—they were indeed, a kind of frame for her—but as our eyes met she advanced at once and spoke my name.

"You are Mr. Ames. My aunt expected you. I regret to say that she is not in the house just now, but she will doubtless return for tea. I am her niece. Won't you sit down?"

As she found a seat for herself, I made bold to survey her with some particularity. She carried her fine height with beautiful dignity. She was a creature of grace, and it was a grace of strength, the suppleness and ease that mark our later outdoor American woman. She could do her hair over those hills—I was sure of that. Her low olive face, crowned with dark hair, verified the impression I had gathered from Jewett, that she was a woman of cultivation. She had read the poets; Dante and Petrarch spoke from her eyes. Cecilia was no bad name for her; she suggested heavenly harmonies! And as for Jewett's story of Wiggins' infatuation, I was content.

She was talking meanwhile of the day and its buoyant air and of the tapestries hung in the woodlands in a voice deep with rare intimations of violet chords.

"It's very quiet here. It doesn't seem possible that we are so near the city. My aunt chose the place with care, and she made no mistake about it. Yes, the house was built by Mr. Pepperton, but not for us. My aunt bought it of the estate of the gentleman who built it. This will be her first winter here."

Miss Hollister herself appeared. She greeted me without surprise and much as she might have spoken to any guest in her house. I had sometimes been treated as though I were the agent of a decorator's shop, or a delinquent plumber, by the people whom I served, but Miss Hollister and her niece established me upon a plane that was wholly social. I was made to feel that it was the most natural thing in the world for me to be there, having tea, with no business ahead of me but to be agreeable. The fact that I had come to correct the distemper of their fues was utterly negligible. I remembered with satisfaction that I had journeyed from town in a new business suit that made the best of my attenuated figure, and I will not deny that I felt at ease. Miss Hollister talked briskly as she made tea. "It is not necessary for you to take tea if you don't care for it, Mr. Ames," she said, as I rose and handed the first cup to Cecilia. "If you will touch the bell at your elbow you may have liquors of quite another sort."

"You are most generous, Miss Hollister. Tea will suffice for the moment. It is fitting that I should take it here. It having been a week's rest for tea as well as curiosity and chafe that threw me in your way at the Asolando."

"That absurd—that preposterous hole in the wall!" She put down her cup and faced me, continuing: "Mr. Ames, I will not deny that if it had not been for General Glendenning's cordial indorsement of you, and the further fact that I had met your late father, I should not have invited you to my house on the occasion to which you refer. My contempt for the Asolando and the things it stands for is beyond such language as a lady may use before the young. I fall back upon the privilege of my age to beg that you will hereafter give the Asolando a wide berth."

I laughed at her earnestness, but on turning toward Miss Cecilia I saw that she was placidly stirring her cup. It might be that one was not expected to manifest amusement in Miss Hollister's utterances, and I was anxious to adjust myself to the proper key in my intercourse, no matter how brief it might be, with this remarkable old lady.

In my embarrassment I rose and offered the bread and butter to Cecilia, who declined it. The austerity of her rejection threw me unnerved.

"I assure you, Miss Hollister, that I have no wish to become a habitue of the place," I said. "And yet you will pardon me if I repeat that, but for it, I should not now be enjoying the hospitality of Hopefield Manor."

She lifted her head from her cup and bowed, but I was immediately interested in the fact that her niece was speaking.

"I think Aunt Octavia is hard on the Asolando," she was saying. "Aunt Octavia is interested in the revival of romance, and romance without poetry seems to me wholly impossible."

"The age is decadent, and I know no better way of restoring the race to its ancient vim and energy than by sending men back to the camp and field or to sail the high seas in new armadas. The men of this age have become a lot of sordid shopkeepers, and in my moral sense the leading of cities is far more honorable than the creation of trusts and the manipulation of prices, though I cannot deny that but for my late father's zeal in destroying his competitors in the baby lunny business we might not now be enjoying the delicate fragrance of caravan tea."

"I assure you, Mr. Ames," said Cecilia, "that the Asolando is a very harmless place, and that as a matter of fact its aims are wholly consonant with those of Aunt Octavia. I myself served there for a time, and those were among the most delightful days of my life. There are times when I miss the Asolando."

"Mr. Ames," began Miss Octavia presently in her crisp direct fashion, which had the effect of leading me in my anxiety to appear ready with answers to take a dattering view of my own courage and resourcefulness, "Mr. Ames, are you equal to the feat of swimming a moat under a shattering fire from the castle?"

"I have every reason to think I am, Miss Hollister," I replied modestly.

"And if a white hand waved to you from the grilled window of the lonely tower, would you ride on indifferently or pause and thunder at the gate?"

"White hands have never waved to me, save occasionally when I have gone a-riding in the Sixth avenue elevated, but it is my honest belief that my sword would promptly leave its scabbard if the hand ever waved from the ivied tower."

My friends at the Hare and Tortoise would have heard this avowal with some surprise, for no man's life had ever been tamer than mine. I am by nature timid, and fall but a little short of being afraid of the dark. Prayers for deliverance from battle, murder and sudden death cannot be too strongly expressed for me. My answer had, however, pleased Miss Octavia, and she clapped her hands with pleasure.

"Cecilia," she cried, "something told me that afternoon at the Asolando that my belief in the potential seven was not ill placed, and now you see that in introducing myself to Mr. Ames at the seventh table from the door, in the seventh shop from Fifth avenue, I was led to a meeting with a gentleman I had been predestined to know."

As we talked further a servant appeared and laid fresh logs across the still smoldering fire. This I thought would suggest to Miss Hollister the professional character of my visit, but the fire kindled readily, the smoke rose freely in the flue, and Miss Hollister paid no attention to it. The merits of chain armor, I think it was, that held us for half an hour. Cecilia and I listening with respect to what, in my ignorance, seemed a remarkable fund of knowledge on this recalcitrant subject.

"We dine at 7, Mr. Ames, and you may amuse yourself as you like until that hour. Cecilia, you may order dinner in the gun room tonight."

"Certainly, Aunt Octavia."

Once more I glanced at the girl, hoping that some glimmer in her eyes would set me right and establish a common understanding and sympathy between us, but she was moving out of the room at her aunt's side. The man who had tended the fire met me in the hall and, conducting me to my room, suggested various offices that he was ready to perform for my comfort. The house faced south, and my windows, midway of the east wing, afforded a fine view of the hills. The room was large enough for a chamber of state, and its furniture was massive. A four poster invited to luxurious repose; half a dozen etchings by famous artists—Parrish and Van Elton among them—hung upon the walls.

My bag had been opened and my things put out, so that there being more than an hour to pass before I need dress for dinner, I went below and explored the garden and wandered off along a winding path that stole with charming freshness toward a venerable orchard of gnarled apple trees. From the height thus gained I looked down upon the house, and caught a glimpse beyond it of one of the chimneys of the Asolando, in which the western sun shined goldenly. Thus seeing the house from a new angle I was impressed as I had not been at first by its size. It was a huge establishment, and I thought with envy of Pepperton, to whom such noble commissions were not rare. Pepperton, I recalled a little lately, had arrived, whereas I, who had enjoyed exactly his own training for the architect's profession, had failed at it and been obliged to turn my hand to the doctoring of chimneys. But as I reflected upon the odd circumstances of my being there my spirits rose. Miss Hollister was beyond question a singular person, but her whims were amusing. I felt that she was less cryptic than her niece, and the thought of Cecilia drove me back up a Jewett's story of Wiggins' interest in that quarter. I resolved to write to Wiggins when I got back to town the next day and abuse him roundly for running off without so much as goodby. That, most emphatically, was not like dear old Wiggins.

LOST EYELASH.

When James H. Keene Laid For Him a Big Bet on Besom.

Although James H. Keene was known as the nerviest of Wall street operators, he was anything but a betting man on the race track. He dearly loved to win valuable stakes, and he won nearly everything in this line except the classic English Derby. His horses rarely carried anything but an infinitesimal wager. Big wagers were few and far between with him.

One day when his Ben Brush colt Besom was making his racing debut at Sarsfield Mr. Keene visited the paddock in company with his trainer, Jimmy Rowe, and inspected the colt minutely. Keene was very fond of Noonday, the colt's dam, and he talked proudly of his expectations of Besom. The colt had worked exceptionally fast, and the race looked as sure as sure things can be regarded on a race track.

The result of the conference with Rowe was that Mr. Keene decided to make one of his rare large bets on Besom to win. The news of the Keene wager created almost a sensation in the ring, and the price against the colt went tumbling.

The race was run, and Besom lost by an eyelash. He went out with Berry Muhl, and the two raced stride for stride like a team. When it was Besom's turn to stride his nose showed in front, and when it was Berry Muhl's turn she showed a scant advantage. So it was all the way, Mr. Keene watching the contest through his field-glasses without a tremor. The crowd was on its toes. As they passed the Judges it was Berry Muhl's turn to stride. Then the apple of Mr. Keene's eye at the time of the verdict, and the vice champion of the Jockey club lost one of his few wagers on the turf.—New York World.

Grasp and Play.

If we want to sleep every night we should work and play every day. But the play must be play in its essence—that is, we must enjoy it. This is the gist of Dr. C. W. Saleeby's hints on exercise for business men. Nature is not so disabably contrived, he says, that anything we enjoy is bad for us.

"We daily need work to discipline us, maintain our physical mental and moral fiber; we daily need play to lighten us; to make us tickle, to cheer, to give us an outlet for our excesses and to give us a different view of our faces and to give different needs accordingly, and we nightly need sleep to restore us." Dr. Saleeby himself takes no annual holiday, believing that the best plan is "a holiday every day."—New York Telegram.

Who And What Are the Men Nominated by the Republicans

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 14.—Here is something of the candidates nominated at the republican convention.

Chief Justice Joseph H. Steere was the youngest circuit judge of the state, being under 30 when he was first elected to the bench for the Chippewa circuit in the early eighties.

When elevated to the supreme bench by appointment of Gov. Osborn, upon the death of Justice Hooker 18 months ago, he had been a circuit judge longer than the judge of any other circuit in the state. Justice Steere was born on a farm in Lenawee county and was educated in the public schools at Adrian and at the state university. He is a bachelor and an ardent devotee of the gun and rod, he having hunted and fished the country from Lake Superior north to the shores of Hudson bay. He comes of Quaker stock.

Moore is Veteran.
Justice Joseph B. Moore is the only member of the supreme bench who has served one full term. The other seven justices were either appointed to fill vacancies and then elected to their present terms or are serving first terms. Justice Moore is now serving his eighteenth year on the supreme bench. When first elected in 1895 he had been judge of the Oakland-Kapeer circuit eight years. Justice Moore was born in Oakland county, was educated at Hillsdale college and the law department of the state university, and beginning practice at Lapeer, in 1888, he was in turn mayor of the city, prosecuting attorney and state senator before he went upon the bench. He is much interested in the subject of international arbitration and was for several years a member of the Lake Monhkon conference.

Dr. Walter H. Sawyer, renominated for university regent, for a second term of eight years, lives at Hillsdale and is one of the most prominent physicians of the district. He is also interested in successful industrial enterprises. He is in middle life and ranks as a high-class citizen and practitioner.

Well Known Lawyer.
Victor L. Wright, renominated for a fourth term as superintendent of public instruction, was superintendent when first elected. He is a strong advocate of vocational education in the public schools, and ranks well as an educational executive.

Frank Cody, nominated for member of the state board of education, was born in Wayne county, educated at the Ypsilanti Normal, and 20 years ago, when just out of college, he became superintendent of the Delray schools. Seven years ago the territory where is now the McMillan high school was annexed to Detroit. Since then Prof. Cody has been principal of this school. For 12 years he was one of the Wayne county board of school examiners, and for several years was president of the Detroit Newsboys' association.

Both Are Incumbents.
Robert D. Graham and Alfred J. Doherty, nominated for members of the Agricultural college board, are at present members of the board. The former has been on the board 12 years, having just completed a third term in the legislature when he became a board member. From fruit growing he went into banking and is now a bank president at Grand Rapids. Mr. Doherty has been on the college board for four years. He was a member of the state senate from 1901 to 1905. He lives at Clare, where he has commercial and farming interests.

Frank F. Rogers, nominated for state highway commissioner, was born in Lenawee county 55 years ago, and was graduated at the agricultural college in 1882. Afterwards, he studied civil engineering. For eight years he was city engineer of Port Huron. When the state highway department was created in 1905, he was appointed deputy commissioner, under the terms of the law which says the deputy must be a civil engineer, although the commissioner himself need not be. As the engineering officer of the department since it was created, he has inspected and accepted or rejected every mile of good roads built under the state reward system. He is not much of a politician, but he stands high as a road-builder. The agricultural college in the past few years conferred a degree on him for a thesis on road building.

own, was the information given to Mrs. W. A. Smith by University of Michigan hospital physicians. She returned from Ann Arbor yesterday.

According to Mrs. Smith, her husband did not know that the second operation was going to be performed. He was getting along nicely, Mrs. Smith says, and expected to return home soon, when one day he was wheeled into the operating room, and the operation which has created so much interest was performed. The doctors told Mrs. Smith, she says, that the second operation was necessary in order to remedy a defect in his walk. When she saw her husband he was conscious and talked with her a number of minutes.

TO HOLD PATRIOTIC ENTERTAINMENT
The Athletic Club of St. Stephen's Church Will Hold Exercises This Evening

This evening the members of the Athletic club of the St. Stephen's church will give an entertainment at the basement of their church, being at 7:30 o'clock. A patriotic program will be given and friends of the young men are requested to be present.

J. W. Kress left for Milwaukee after a few days visit with his parents in this city.

Committee Chops $76,500 From the Amount Asked by Jackson Penitentiary

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 14.—The Jackson prison committee of the house yesterday made the first institutional report of note of the session and of its own volition lopped $76,500 from the $400,000 asked by the prison.

Incidentally, the hopes for a new cell block are badly cramped, as the committee rejected the request of $100,000 for a new cell block, and another of $125,000 for farms and equipment, and put the two together under the caption "new cells and farms and equipment," and allowed $150,000 for the whole.

This puts it up to the prison board of control to spend the money as it desires. It is practically certain a new cell block, such as was contemplated, will not be built.

The ways and means committee will next have a chance at the bill and a further cut is expected. The prison committee cut the request of $6,500 for new laundry equipment to $5,000.

TOTAL APPROPRIATIONS ASKED ARE $16,500,000

Chairman Hinkley of the Ways and Means Committee Makes Such Report to House

Lansing, Mich., February 14.—Sixteen and one-half millions are the total appropriations asked up to date of the legislature Chairman Hinkley of the house ways and means committee announced today. This includes the standing appropriations and the special sums asked by various institutions.

LENTEEN SERVICES HELD THIS AFTERNOON

This afternoon at 4:30 o'clock Lenten services were held at the St. Stephen's Episcopal church.

VALENTINE DAY

This is the day of "Sugar is Sweet,"
This is the day of the "So are you;"
This is the day of "If you love me
No knife can cut our love in two."

Oh, heigh-oh! for the long ago,
And the "Sure as grass grows on a stump!"
And the sprawly letters in childish script,
"I wish that you'd be my sugar lump!"

For the "home-made" valentines drawn in school
And passed to a maiden across the aisle,
And the heaven that showed in the lassie's eyes,
And flashed to you on her happy smile!

Sugar is sweet and so are you!"
And, "Sure as grass grows on a stump"
"No knife can cut our love in two!"
"I wish that you'd be my sugar lump!"

Oh, heigh-oh! for the days of old,
And babyhood's treasured but vanished things,
When bright eyes shone and wee hearts were glad,
And love wore nothing at all but wings!

FLINT'S LETTER

Labor troubles in the east caused a demoralized market about the middle of the forenoon today. In fact prices were going off at such a rate that for a few moments the stock market was panicky. About this time the banking interests came in and supported the market and the shorts started to cover at about the same time the result was a quick reaction which carried prices back to the opening level.

Some stocks sold lower than they have done since last February a year ago and at that time the general business condition was not as good as the present time. London copper warrants were one pound lower than yesterday and one pound and seven pence lower than last week. The New York stocks closed quite firm fractionally higher than yesterday.

DEADLOCK IS MORE ACUTE THAN EVER

(By Associated Press.)
New York, Feb. 14.—The deadlock between the firemen and the eastern railroads is considered to be more acute than ever. It is expected that there will be a strike of 34,000 men in a short time if a settlement is not reached soon.

THE BOYS' BANQUET WAS ENJOYABLE ONE

Enthusiastic Time Is Had By the Boys' Clubs of Protestant Churches Last Night.

The joint banquet by the boys of the protestant churches of this city held last evening in the parlors of the Methodist church proved to be a most pleasant gathering of young men. The social was largely attended and the enthusiasm was at fever height all the evening.

The dinner was served by the ladies of the Methodist church, and was a most appetizing one.

Harry St. Louis was the toastmaster, and the young man is credited with performing his duties in a most pleasing way. Eskil Ness extended to the guests the arm of welcome in a few well chosen words. George Westerman, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of the upper peninsula, answered the same in a manner showing that the intentions of the club boys were duly appreciated by the visitors. "The Toast to the Ladies," by Wesley Malloch, offered a vein of humor, and it was appreciated by his club members. The music for the occasion was exceptionally good. They were encored several times.

The humorous part of the program was the reading of telegrams received from prominent men of this nation. They were read to the boys by the toastmaster and much merriment resulted therefrom.

The last number of the program was an address by Secretary Van Dis, of the Y. M. C. A. His talk was on "Boys."

The purpose of the meeting was to promote the holding of a Y. M. C. A. conference in the upper peninsula. The idea appealed to those present. Mr. Van Dis announced that Ishpeming had extended an invitation for the conference should one be formed.

The speaker impressed upon those present that the young men in attendance at these conferences were not "sissies" but included some of Michigan's strongest athletes. He strongly emphasized and highly recommended athletics and physical culture.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

performed and the state central committee at its meeting yesterday appointed committees to fill their places.

Thus far three men are mentioned as possibilities for the two supreme court nominations—George L. Yapple of Kalamazoo, R. H. Person of Lansing and Francis T. McDonald of the Soo. Highway Commissioner Lockwood of Livingston county, is mentioned as a possibility for state highway commissioner. Some talk was heard of endorsing Frank F. Rogers, the Republican nominee, but that has for the most part passed away and Lockwood is more than likely to be the candidate if he really wants the honor.

But every appearance is that the convention will be very tame, indeed. No bitter battles are likely, and no great contests for the nominations. It is altogether likely that the chief interests will be confined to making speeches in which the recent great victory will be lauded to the skies and condolences will be handed out to the defeated parties.

The really interesting feature of the gathering from the standpoint of the outsider is that the convention will be made up for the most part of would-be postmasters down here to lobby for their appointments in their respective towns.

REBEL LEADER ASKS FOR RECOGNITION

Ambassador Wilson has been unable to get the money from the banks that has been authorized by the government for the expense of protecting the Americans.

Mexico City, Feb. 14.—The rebels started the fighting this morning by firing in the direction of the federal concentration points at 6:00 o'clock. A battery of rebel cannons were turned upon a large convent killing many of the sisters of mercy who were praying for deliverance within the walls.

Diaz Asks Recognition.

In a formal note to Ambassador Wilson this morning, Diaz asked that he be given recognition by the United States as a belligerent. He claimed in the note that he was in control of the city and that the rebels would all suffer death rather than surrender to Madero's forces.

SAFETY

When you have a checking account it is only necessary to keep a small amount of cash in your pocket. You can pay all bills by simply writing checks. Your money is, of course, much safer in a good bank than if kept at home or on your person.

You may lose your check book—you may even lose a check you have filled out—but you suffer no actual money loss. If a check is improperly paid the loss is the bank's, not yours. In fact, when you pay by check the bank guarantees that your money will only be paid out on your bona fide order. It protects you against loss in every way.

This bank cordially invites your checking account, no matter how small.

You will find a checking account a great convenience. Next week we will tell you why.
