The witnesses for the state appearing against Monson and Powell, appeared this morning for the state when the case of Jacob Miller was on trial. Miller is charged with keeping open after hours. The trial of the case consumed only a few hours and the case was given to the jury at three o'clock this afternoon and the trial of Paul Stricker also charged with violating the liquor laws, was taken up.

Mrs. Peter Foy of Isabella was arraigned this morning for keeping open after hours. She pleaded guilty to the charge. It is not probable that sentence will be passed until the latter part of the week.

The Jewish Feast of Spring Commenced Last Evening, Continuing For a Week

At sun down last evening the Jewish Passover, the spring festival of a week's duration commenced. The first two and the last two days are the most important of the week.

The Feast of the Passover is observed by the Jews in commemoration of the escape of their people from Egypt and scourge of the Pharaohs.

Last evening the first Sedar was held, a grand feast is held by each family, the father at the head of the table reading the Agadah and conducting the dinner. The tale of the flight from Egypt and the sufferings in the desert are all gone over by the father during the meal. The choicest wines are drunk during the evening.

During the week of Passover the orthodox Jew eats out of separate dishes and does not touch bread, cakes or any leavened bread. Matzos are used during the week. This is to remember of bread that the Jews were compelled to eat when they fled from Egypt.

LIVED ALONE, FOUND DYING

DANIEL ROBNOW TAKEN FROM HIS HOME WHERE HE HAD LAIN TWO DAYS WITHOUT ATTENTION, EXPIRES

SUFFERED STROKE OF PARALYSIS

Death Came to Well Known Blacksmith at Four O'clock This Morning in Delta County Hospital

Daniel Robnow, found dying by a friend in his shack on Hartnett avenue, North Escanaba on Sunday evening, died shortly before four o'clock this morning in the Delta County hospital of paralysis, aged fifty-seven years.

Rosnow, who had been a resident of Escanaba for a number of years, had been employed the past two months on a section gang for the Northwestern railroad company. Previous to that time he had worked in the woods for the Escanaba and Lake Superior railroad company as a blacksmith. Friday evening he quit work and started for his shack. From that time until Sunday evening he was not seen and L. M. Scott, a grocer of North Escanaba, becoming alarmed went to his house. He found the door locked and promptly broke it in. Rosnow was lying across the bed fully attired. He was breathing lightly and Scott at once summoned Dr. Kitchen. Rosnow was taken to the hospital in the ambulance but medical aid was of no avail and he slept into death.

The deceased had been a resident of Escanaba for about sixteen years. He is survived by his wife and two daughters who now reside in Racine, two sons, who make their home near Harbor, Wisconsin, a brother living near the same place and another at Sturgeon Bay.

The relatives have been communicated with but up to this time no arrangements for the funeral have been made.

BELIEVE BOY KIDNAPPED

FATHER OF LESLIE CARMODY WAS SEEN IN ESCANABA ABOUT THREE WEEKS AGO DETECTIVE LEARNS

DROWNING THEORY FALTERING

Child Told a Friend That He Was Going to Leave the Town Soon

Nothing definite concerning the disappearance of little Leslie Carmody, the six year old son of Mrs. Margaret Carmody, who has been missing since Saturday morning, has been learned but the belief that he has been kidnapped by his father is growing.

George McCarthy of the local police department has ascertained that Thomas Carmody, the father of the child, was seen in Escanaba about three weeks ago. This coupled with the fact that the child had told Alfred Blomquist on Friday that he wasn't going to stay long in Escanaba and that he had gone to the nickelodeon with a man on Friday evening and upon returning had told his mother that he had "pulled one over" on her and that he was "wiser" than she, has convinced the members of the local police force and the county authorities who have been assisting in the search that the youngster was stolen. This is the conclusion that the public at large has arrived at.

The bay around the dock was dragged Monday evening by the chiefs of the police and fire department and Captain Shipman, but without results.

The rumor that two boys had lowered the boy on the ice and that he had fallen through is still circulating among the boys of the town but this is believed to be only a story which some imaginative youngster has started, although there still remains the possibility that the child was drowned.

Considerable excitement followed the announcement last evening that some one had telephoned to the mayor's office stating that Rachel Johnson knew where the child was but couldn't tell. When this was investigated it was found that Rachel Johnson was only a child of about eleven years and that she had only remarked to a playmate that maybe "Leslie" had been stolen by someone.

The fact that the ice about the dock was sold Saturday evening practically does away with the drowning theory.

Veteran of 82—Life Saved

Mr. W. C. Atkinson is filled with enthusiasm over his complete recovery from grip and loss of appetite.

"I myself do firmly believe that had I not seen the advertisement of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey on my return to my country home from the National Soldiers' Home in Tenn., I would have died, as I had taken a very severe cold which gave me grip and I could not eat enough to give strength. Right then I bought 6 bottles. It helped me so much that I vowed that thereafter I would not be without it.

"I know that, taken as prescribed, it is certainly good for old people. I am a veteran of the Mexican War of 1846. I was a musician only 17 years of age. I was 82 years old September 25th. Born in 1830. Very distinctly do I remember seeing the stars fall."—W. C. Atkinson, Russellville, Tenn.

THIRTY-FIVE CENT COAL RATE FROM MILWAUKEE

Contract coal rates from Milwaukee to Escanaba, Sheboygan, Manitowoc and Green Bay have been affirmed at 35 cents. Contracts for tonnage will be closed within a few days at this rate by the Reiss Coal company. Owners were given to understand that 35 cents would be paid by the company. The Reiss Coal company ships about 3,000,000 tons annually. This makes the rate 35 cents to all ports on Lake Michigan where fast docks are operated.

Grain shippers are offered 2 1/2 cents for boats to load at Duluth upon arrival with no guarantee of dispatch. Ore shippers are calling upon vessel owners to be ready to carry ore as soon as the boats can get around and they rain men are not going to get the ships so long as the ore men want them.

Lumber shippers are paying the higher rates that have been established by contract and the boats will get 25 cents a thousand more than last year.

Mr. Newman also closed a contract to haul a load of potatoes from Upper Michigan to Chicago.

GOV. FERRIS NAMES BIRD AND ARBOR DAY

Friday, May 6 is Designated—Requests Schools to Observe the Day

Governor Woodbridge N. Ferris has issued the following proclamation designating Friday, May 9 as Bird and Arbor day in the state of Michigan:

The tremendous commercial value of forests is fast coming to be appreciated. Effort is being made throughout the United States to conserve what remains and so far as possible, reforest large tracts of territory. Trees have a value other than commercial. They are friends to man and beast. Without friends man is a forlorn creature. Every choice tree that is planted not only blesses this generation, but graciously blesses coming generations.

Birds too have an economic value in the distribution of plant life and in the destruction of harmful insects. They also have a higher value. Literature abounds in allusions to birds, their nests, songs, food, flight, migrations, plumage and habits. On account of their beauty countless numbers of our winged friends have been killed to meet the ruthless demands of fashion. May the fathers and mothers and their children of today use their best efforts to preserve and perpetuate the lives of our useful and beautiful birds. Love for birds is akin to love for man.

Therefore, I, Woodbridge N. Ferris, Governor of the State of Michigan, do hereby designate Friday, May 9th. A. D. 1913, as Arbor and Bird Day, and do request that this day be observed by all schools, public and private, and other educational institutions by the planting of trees for beautifying school grounds and parks and by conducting suitable exercises for promoting the spirit of protection to trees and birds.

Noticed Improvement.

A commercial traveler on arriving at a wayside station between Sligo and Ennskillen, remarked to the chief official: "I observe your service has improved latterly." "Can't see it," replied the stationmaster stoically. "Oh, I can," said the "commercial." "your trains are able to whistle without stopping now."

ICE CONDITIONS ARE STILL BAD AT STRAITS

Thirty Boats Downbound, Also Reported Stalled in Flee Off Whitefish Point.

That ice conditions in the northern waters of the Great Lakes are still bad and are holding up general navigation is illustrated in the situation at the Soo and at the Straits of Mackinac. The Mackinac Transportation company's car ferry Chief Wawatam was stalled in floating ice Saturday from 3 a. m. to 1:20 p. m. about the middle of the channel. On board were the cars of South Shore train No. 1, which had been on the way to Mackinac City since early Friday evening. The struggle up to 3 a. m. was a hard one, but at that hour the engines of the boat had to be shut down and the vessel was powerless in the ice until early afternoon. It forced its way across the straits, however, and upon returning encountered no great difficulty. It was unprecedented that such a mishap should occur at a date so late in the spring.

South Shore train No. 14, operating between St. Ignace and the Soo and connecting with Nos. 1, 2, 7 and 8, under various schedules, was put on the St. Ignace-copper country run in place of train No. 1 Saturday. The crew was sent back as train No. 2 yesterday afternoon. The cars taken off the ferry were placed on the run of No. 14, but will be returned to the St. Ignace-copper country run today. The substitute train which arrived in Marquette Saturday afternoon was in charge of Conductor William J. Anear, of the Soo, and a Soo-St. Ignace crew.

A dispatch from Sault Ste. Marie last evening reported that "twenty boats downbound from the head of the lake are in the ice ten miles above Whitefish Point." These boats are mostly grain carriers that had wintered in the Duluth-Superior harbor with cargoes loaded, ready to move as soon as the Soo canal was opened.

The ice at Whitefish Point extends beyond vision from the lighthouse. The ice crusher St. Ignace left yesterday in a second attempt to force a passage, on her way to Port Arthur.

The following upbound boats passed the locks at the Soo Saturday and Sunday: Osler, midnight; Graham, 9 a. m.; Meaford, noon; Beatty, Ranny, 3 p. m.; Sahara, 4:30; Ball Bros., 5:30; Port Colborn, Kotcher, Wickwire, Jr., 6:30; Kaminstiquia, Wexford, Sylvia, 8; J. E. Upson, 9.

Recovered From Severe Lung Trouble

While we all know that plenty of fresh air and good food are necessary to persons suffering from lung trouble, something more is needed to bring about full health. Eckman's Alternative is a medicine for throat and lung troubles, and so many reports have been received showing that it brought about good results in a number of cases which were declared hopeless, that all sufferers who are not benefiting otherwise, should, at least investigate what it has done for others. It may be the means of restoring you to health. Investigate this case:

"Gentlemen: In December, 1908, and March, 1909, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs, which confined me several weeks each time to my bed. These left me very weak and I coughed at nights and could not sleep. My appetite also failed me. My doctor advised me to go West. So, in September, 1909, I planned to go, but I had four more hemorrhages, which put me in bed for three weeks.

"In November I started for Denver, Col. After my arrival, I met Michael Brody who, upon learning of my condition, urged me to take Eckman's Alternative. In about two months, I began to feel better. I kept on taking the medicine and improved fast. In March, 1910, I returned home. I think I am entirely well, have a good appetite and sleep well. When I left Denver my weight was 120 pounds. I now weigh 165, my normal weight. I thank God and your Alternative for my health. If I can help any other person suffering from Tuberculosis, I will gladly do so."

(Swoon affidavit) PAUL L. FASNACHT, Eckman's Alternative is effective in Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Troubles, and in upbuilding the system. SAIORS SUPERSTITIOUS, WON'T SAIL ON FRIDAY

First Voyage of Bon Ami Starts One Minute After Midnight.

Because of the general suspicion among sailors against inaugurating the season's cruises on Friday, the steamer Bon Ami, of the Hart Transportation company, though ready to leave port at Sturgeon Bay at any time Friday, lay in the docks until midnight and left its moorings at exactly one minute after that hour. The boat reached this city at 3 a. m. Saturday and its arrival marked the installation of passenger service on the bay for the season. The craft departed this morning on its regular trip to Green Bay.

The steamer Sailor Boy of the same line is expected to commence its regular passenger service this week. The Bon Ami encountered no trouble whatever in negotiating the lake and the ice was reported to have disappeared.

WILL TRY FOR DAVIS CUP TEAM

Lawn Tennis Stars Announce Willingness to Compete.

STRONG PLAYERS ARE LISTED

Nearly All the American Cracks Will Be on Hand to Try to Life International Trophy—Hackett Will Be Selected For Doubles.

Robert D. Wrenn, president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, has announced that six of the players who have been asked to take part in the trial matches for the selection of the Davis cup team have signified their willingness to play. President Wrenn also said that arrangements are now being made for the preliminary matches.

America will be represented by a strong team this year, for the men who have answered the call for material are strong winners of the racket and ranked among the best in the country. Those who have come out and announced their willingness to try for the team are as follows: R. Norris Williams, the national clay court champion; Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, Harold H. Hackett and Raymond D. Little have replied directly to Mr. Wrenn, while Maurice E. McLoughlin, the national champion, and Thomas C. Bundy, the partner with McLoughlin in the national doubles, have communicated with the committee through Dr. Sumner Hardy, the national committeeman of the Pacific coast.

Harold Hackett, it is said, undoubtedly will be selected for the challenging team. It is said that the selection of the veteran, Harold Hackett, would chiefly be due to his phenomenal record as a doubles player, and it is in that department of the game that he is expected to strengthen the American team. He was rated four times with different partners in the first ten of the doubles list last fall.

In the estimation of the committee and the experts, who are carefully scanning the records so as to put together one of the strongest teams this country has ever mustered, Hackett is regarded as probably the greatest doubles performer this country has ever produced.

PITCHERS HEAD THE CLUB.

One Hurler is President, While Another is Manager.

Unusual complications are possible under the new ownership of the Grand Rapids (Mich.) Central League club. Both President W. E. Essick and Manager Ed Smith of the club are pitchers and expected to take their regular turns in the box.

Some day the president may be yielding too many hits to suit the manager. Then Smith will order Essick to the bench.

Will the president submit or will he hand Smith his release?

Then, too, in the course of time Manager Smith is likely to report to President Essick that Pitcher Essick "has gone back" and should be released.

Doubtless in that contingency the president will back up the pitcher.

LEFT HANDERS NUMEROUS.

Rebel Oakes Says He Has Seen Little Else This Spring.

"I have never seen so many left handers as I have this spring," said Rebel Oakes of the St. Louis Cardinals ruminatively as he watched Pitcher Hamilton of the St. Louis Browns warm up in one of the city series games recently. "All spring long we have had left handed pitching and left handed batting. Why, even the waiters, the porters and the bellboys have been left handed."

The other day in fungo practice Pitcher Harmon hit one over my head and three small boys relayed the ball back to me. Every one of 'em was left handed. Believe me, I am no sea of gurgling glee, or words to that effect." And Mr. Oakes continued to watch the sorrel topped Hamilton fan the Cardinal batters.

Cleveland May Hold Big Meet.

The Brookside park stadium in Cleveland may be the site of an international athletic meet next summer. Secretary George A. Schneider of the Cleveland Athletic club proposed at a recent meeting with Park Secretary Sidelar that a tournament be arranged at which champions of the United States and Canada be invited to participate. Seats can be provided for 100,000 people at the park. It is estimated.

LARRY DOYLE TELLS A FUNNY ONE.

Larry Doyle, second baseman of the New York Giants, lives near Brees, Ill. Every pay day at the mines there used to be a battle, said Larry a few weeks ago. One day when there were twenty fights going on at once a minister of the gospel, who was visiting Brees, stalked up to the town marshal, who was standing idly by.

"What does this outrage mean?" he demanded.

"This is pay day at the mines," explained the marshal in a strong Swedish accent, "and every pay day this happens. The Irish miners fight with the Welsh miners."

"But why don't you stop it?" asked the gospel man.

"For why should I interfere?" said the marshal simply. "I'm a Swede."

Which reminded Jimmy Burke of a picnic he once attended. One of the features was a tug of war between a team of Irish and a team of Slovaks. The Slovaks were winning. The Irishmen dropped the rope and began fighting. It was a good fight. George Greeley had an opponent down and pounding him at his leisure when Burke came along.

"Gimme a belt at him," said Burke.

"Gwan," replied Greeley. "Go and get one for yourself."

TO TRY LONG SWIM.

Three Americans to Attempt to Cross English Channel.

Several American swimmers are proposing to attempt to swim the English channel within the next few months. Among those said to have their eyes upon the goal, which the world's best swimmers have always held to be a supreme test, are Charles Durborow of Philadelphia, Joseph M. Callahan of Pittsburgh and Benjamin Schomburg.

Durborow is an amateur and a member of the Philadelphia Swimming club. The other two men are life savers.

Durborow's most recent big swim was over a course of twenty miles in Delaware bay last summer under conditions which witnesses said made the feat equal both in distance and difficulties to the classic channel swim.

Callahan has wished for some time to show his prowess abroad and has been preparing for it by many long swims off Atlantic City.

Schomburg has openly challenged any swimmer in the world for a race across the channel in the early part of May, notwithstanding that the channel waters at that time are generally regarded as too cold for the feat. Both Callahan and Durborow have written abroad in negotiation for races in July and August, respectively.

NAP PITCHER A LINGUIST.

Youngster Can Abuse Umpire in Three Different Languages.

Since Luke Glavenich became a member of the Cleveland Naps the conjectures have been many, no doubt, in regard to his nationality. The name didn't sound exactly American, reasoned a good many. Of what parentage might this slanting right hand pitcher be, all ask.

Glavenich is of Slavonian ancestry, his father coming from that little country in Austria-Hungary which at present writing is sending hosts of soldiers to fight the Turks.

Up to the time he was four years old Luke himself could not speak a word of English. After that he got out among the town boys and soon learned the Anglo-Saxon tongue. He speaks Slavonian with all the fluency of a native of his father's country and knows Italian almost as well.

There are many Italians in Jackson, Cal., and as Glavenich was thrown among them more or less from boyhood, he learned to handle their language almost as well as English, and his own.

HORSE RACING IN NEW YORK.

Sport Will Be Revived at Belmont Park May 30.

Horse racing is to be revived in New York state.

This assurance was given recently in an announcement by the Jockey club that an "owners' fund" had been subscribed to provide proper purses and that renewal of racing would be inaugurated with a meeting at Belmont park, beginning May 30.

At the close of the Belmont park meeting on July 5 a twelve day meeting will be opened on the Jamaica track. Following this there will be racing at Saratoga all the month of August.

"Should conditions warrant, autumn meetings may be considered," says the announcement. It is probable, it was learned, that there will be fall racing at the Aqueduct and Empire City tracks, as well as at Belmont park and Jamaica again.

It is understood that from $2,000 to $2,500 is to be added to all stakes and $1,000 to selling stakes.

INFIELDERS GET CALL AS PILOTS

Five National League Managers Learned Baseball There.

CLARKE ONLY OUTFIELDER.

Up Until He Became Bench Leader Pittsburgh Man Performed in Suburban Garden—Few Catcher-Managers Make Good.

Infielders have rushed to the front as managers in the National league this season. Five of the eight teams in the league are being handled by men who are now playing infield positions or did before they retired from active service on the field. The three infield players are Tinker of the Cincinnati Reds, Huggins of the St. Louis Cardinals and Evers of the Chicago Cubs, all of whom are assuming the burden of management for the first time this season.

The two retired infielders who are now managers on the old circuit are McGraw of the New York Giants and Dahlen of the Brooklyn Superbas. It certainly seems as if there is something about the playing of the infield which brings out the best that there is in a player and develops his faculties in a way to make him a successful leader.

Of the other three managers in the National league one is an outfielder and two are catchers. Fred Clarke of Pittsburgh was a playing manager in the outfield until last year, when he retired to the bench, but the chances are good that he will be in harness again this season.

George Stallings, who is managing the Boston Renns from the bench, was a catcher in his playing days, a good many years ago. Both these men have been successful as leaders of teams. Clarke has managed the Pittsburgh team for a dozen seasons and has never finished out of the first division, besides winning four pennants.

Stallings has been with several clubs in the major and minor leagues and has achieved a reputation as a winning leader wherever he has been. Charley Doolin of the Phillies is the other catcher now managing a team in the league.

Catchers have not been very successful as leaders. John Kling was a failure at Boston, and Roger Bresnahan failed to do what was expected of him at St. Louis. Doolin now has a chance to redeem the reputation of his position, for this year for the first time he will be free of senseless interference from officials of the club and will have an opportunity to run his team according to his own ideas. President Locke will give him an absolutely free hand, and Doolin is likely to make his club one to be feared by all other teams in the league.

But the infielders have the call as managers, and the work of the three new men who are trying to follow in McGraw's footsteps will be watched with intense interest as the season advances and the fans can observe what kind of work they are getting out of their ball clubs.

TO COMPETE IN AUSTRALIA.

American Team Will Visit Antipodes in Winter of 1914.

The All American track and field team which will visit Australia and New Zealand in November, returning in April, 1914, will consist of four men. William Unmack of San Francisco, who is organizing the team, said recently the men would be chosen as follows:

A sprinter who is capable of a good performance from 100 to 440 yards, a distance man who can run a good race from 880 yards to five miles, a man of all around ability who has been successful in the pole vault, broad jump, javelin and discus throwing, high jump, and possibly can negotiate the hurdles, and a field event man with fair shot putting ability.

Three and possibly four of the men will be easterners. The expenses of the trip will be paid by the Australian and New Zealand Amateur Athletic association.

CATCHER SCHANG LOOKS GOOD

Athletic Young Catcher Gives Promise of Developing into a Star.

That the abilities of Wally Schang, the young catcher of the Philadelphia Athletics for whom thirteen clubs put in a draft last fall, have not been over-estimated has been proved to Connie Mack. The youngster shows more and more every day. He can hit, is fast on the bases and has an excellent throwing arm. Mack also is well pleased with the work of Pete Daly, the young outfielder he secured from Los Angeles for Maggart, Fahey and Crabbe. The youngster has the ability to get on the bases, and Mack hopes to use him as a lead-off man for the Athletics.

State Food Department Offers Hints to Condensed Milk Users

Women Combine to End High Prices

One of the greatest triumphs of the age is the successful evaporation and condensing of milk so that wherever man journeys, whether in the poles or in the tropics, the lactical fluid of the cow can always be procured.

It is fortunate, however, that some manufacturers of condensed milk have been so extravagant in the claims of their products as to seriously affect human life. Most manufacturers give to their cans a formula for extending their milk with water which sometimes makes it appear to be cheaper than the natural product.

Ordinary milk from the average cow contains about 12 per cent total solids of which 3 1/2 per cent is butter fat and the balance casein, albumen and milk sugar. This department purchased several cans of milk on the open market and diluted the same with water until the solution equalled normal milk, having a 3 per cent fat content which is the legal standard in Michigan. Such milk was found to cost as follows per quart for the following brands. XXXX, ten cents per quart; Van Camp's, Pet and Premier brands, seven and one-half cents per quart; Nu-Way, seven cents per quart, Leader, ten cents per quart and Eagle brand, twelve cents per quart. All of these milks before dilution contained less than 10 per cent butter fat, while the legal standard for commercial cream is 18 per cent.

Condensed milks are therefore rather dearer than ordinary milk in most cities. It is the convenience, not the cheapness of condensed milk that should appeal to the consumer. The directions for infant feeding on some of these cans are very misleading. Take the Eagle brand, one of the best known to the trade. It gives on the can directions for infant feeding as follows: One month old, dilute 1-14. This would give the baby milk containing about 6 1/2 per cent total solids which would have in it less than one per cent (.82) butter fat. Normal human milk and cow's milk are about the same, 12 per cent total solids with 3 1/2 butter fat. Is not a milk containing less than one per cent butter fat too thin for a growing babe? Further directions on the can are dilute 1-12 for second month. This would give a butter fat of less than one per cent (.93). The third month a dilution of 1-10 is recommended. This gives 1.10 per cent butter fat, less than one-third of normal milk. For a babe 10 or 12 months old, a dilution of 1-6 is recommended. Even this only gives a butter fat content of 1 3/4 per cent about half that of normal milk.

We believe these dilutions are much too thin for babies. Representative Whelan has introduced a bill in the legislature which has passed the house and is now pending in the senate requiring all condensed milk to be labeled on the can with a formula that when extended, will be equal to legal standard milk. When this law is passed every consumer can intelligently use condensed milk.

FIRE BUGS IN DETROIT, MICH.

Insurance Commissioner Palmer Says City is Full of Traveling Arsonists—Try to trap Them

Lansing, April 22.—Insurance Commissioner C. P. Palmer says the city of Detroit is full of traveling arsonists and he believes that several conflagrations may be traced directly to the work of fire bugs. It has been known for several months that there is an organized band of fire bugs operating in Michigan and Commissioner Palmer and Deputy Fire Marshall Wolf have been working on several cases in an effort to land the members of the gang who are "working" the insurance companies.

Commissioner Palmer is extremely reticent when approached on this subject as he is desirous of catching some of the culprits and making a horrible example of them. On this account the department declined to give any of the details of its fight against the arsonists, but it is known that Commissioner Palmer has men in various parts of the state who are laying their lines for a big catch and some highly sensational developments are expected within the next few months. It is believed that in many cases the fire bugs are foreigners. An arson case is one of the most difficult to prosecute and the foreigners complicate matters by their feigned ignorance of the language, when pointed questions are asked. In some cases cans of kerosene have been found in the basement of burned buildings, but without direct evidence it is almost impossible to establish a case of sufficient strength to warrant prosecution. There is one reason why commissioner Palmer is desirous of securing a larger appropriation for the state fire marshall's department. Without adequate funds it is pointed out that it is impossible to apprehend guilty ones.

Self-Confidence. No man can get far without believing in himself; but he should also believe in a few other things.

DELIGHTFUL PROGRAM AT HOLY FAMILY CHURCH

The entertainment given last night at the Holy Family church delighted an audience that completely filled the church hall. The program, consisting of dialogue, recitations and vaudeville, was one of exceptional worth and the big audience was not slow in showing its appreciation of every endeavor upon the part of those participating.

The luncheon served by the people of Danforth was one of the most pleasing features of the evening. As a whole the entertainment was one of the best ever given by the church and Father Beauchene's invitation to "come again" is sure to be largely accepted.

CHANGES IN PUBLICATION.

Some after-dinner speakers like to prate of the waning influence of the press as they enjoy enlarging upon the diminishing authority of the pulpits. The facts rise up, in the one case as in the other, and give the lie to them. Every morning the vast majority of literary men reads the newspaper as an open letter to the race. This multitude of readers might pay no heed whatever to the editorials, says the Philadelphia Ledger. It might merely scan the "news." Yet what is found in the news columns each day is plentiful to make and unmake reputations. The token in proof is that a man held up to ridicule or blame by the mere impulsive, impersonal recital of his own action, even when he cannot deny the deed, indignantly resents the publicity. The mere plain statement of abuses in the newspaper has often been sufficient to correct them. It has been said that the beginning of every reform is to ask questions. It has repeatedly been the useful function of every worthy journal to lead the public to ask questions and to demand an answer. That is what is meant by public opinion, and the power of irresistible public opinion is the power of fearless, conscientious journalism. The certainty that the truth will be made known has called a halt upon the promotion of many a reckless and unscrupulous enterprise.

What's the matter with the girls these days? Can't they hold the attention of any one? Is it necessary to keep repeating the word "listen" in an ordinary talk where the "talkee" is all attention? A miss of perhaps seventeen years asked for a certain brand of face powder in a drug store recently, says the New York Sun. This is a fair account of what she said: "Listen! I want a box of yuh face powder. Listen! Do you keep that there kind that comes with—a mirror? You know the kind I mean. Listen! What shade do you think I need? Is Raychel (Rachel) too dark? Listen— That was as much as I heard. But it was enough. If a girl has a toothache, or a wart on her finger, or a headache, it is "Listen, listen, listen," to the patient or in many cases impatient drug clerk. No miss, it seems, considers her vocabulary up to date unless it is burdened with "listen." Girls, take a tip. Put "listen" on the shelf.

Professor Allen Hoben of the practical theology department of the University of Chicago told an audience in that city that if the average boy of the slums, when eighteen years of age, decides to pay back his parents what it has cost them to bring him up, he will find himself in debt $4,000. He went on to calculate that sons of wealthy parents cost much more—in some instances as high as $100,000. If a clever business man could arrange to buy some of those Chicago boys at what they are really worth and sell them on the basis of Professor Hoben's calculations as to their cost price, he would make enough money to live at Palm Beach every winter and at Newport every summer for the rest of his life.

Newport News boiler maker saw the surgeon's instruments, rose alertly from the operating slab, and ran away, not allowing them to operate for appendicitis. Now he's fully recovered. Question: What fee are the surgeons entitled to for working the cure?

HAWTHORNE
OF THE U.S.A.

Novelized from James Bernard Fagan's Great Play of the Same Name by Albert Payson Terhune

SYNOPSIS

Anthony Hamilton Hawthorne with $200,000 won at Monte Carlo visits Borrovina, a little Balkan kingdom, where he falls in love with the king's daughter, Princess Irma. Against her will she is engaged to Prince Vladimir.

Hawthorne seizes a man who fires at the king and princess. The princess is taken to a hotel uninjured and cared for by Senator Ballard and his daughter Kate.

Later Hawthorne tells the king the prince is conspiring to dethrone him, but is ordered from the palace.

More evidence of the plot is found when Hawthorne catches the prince and confederates planning a movement to seize the throne. Hawthorne is caught listening.

The prince attempts to kill Hawthorne and his friend Blake. The ceiling caves in, burying the prince and his squerry, Radulski. Hawthorne and Blake, escaping, go with a newspaper reporter to a drinking place. The prince bursts in on them and orders them to jail.

The king becomes convinced that the American's story of the prince's treachery is true. Hawthorne bursts into the room, having bribed a guard to release him. The mob is heard outside. Hawthorne pleads with the king not to abdicate.

CHAPTER VI.

The Crisis.

WHEN the dust died away and the prince found that the two Americans had escaped he was insane with anger.

"Get me out of here! Get me out of here!" he yelled.

"We can't do a thing until the men arrive with the axes," explained the landlord. "You're pinned in tight, and it would seriously injure your highness to attempt to pull you out."

"Would it though?" hissed the prince. "I'll seriously injure you when I get out of here. You knew the condition of this building. Why didn't you warn us. You're a fine subject. To jail with you!"

"But, your highness!" pleaded the poor landlord, who felt that the damage sustained to his building ought to prove sufficient punishment for him.

"Take him away," the prince commanded to two guards who had escaped the falling timbers. "I'll teach him to have better protection for the princes of his country after this."

"Where are those Americans?" was his next demand.

"Gone," came the reply from one of the guards.

"What! You men get busy and find them or I'll have your heads before night!"

For nearly an hour three heavy woodmen chopped away at the heavy timber that imprisoned their prince. Once released, he took two detachments of the guards and went in search of the Americans.

"Scour the woods," he ordered to one detachment.

"Come with me," was the order to the second.

Nearly fifty buildings had been searched before the prince and his guardsmen came to the tap room.

The keeper bowed as the prince entered.

"Seen any strangers hereabouts?" demanded the prince.

"No, your highness," answered the keeper.

"He's lying," commented the prince. "Take him outside and beat him until he tells the truth."

"Oh, don't do that, your highness. For the sake of my family don't put me to such punishment. The shock would kill me."

"Then tell me the truth."

It was then that the silvering keeper nodded to the room in the rear of the tavern.

There was no wild scramble on the part of the guards in the direction indicated by the tavernkeeper. The guards had apparently learned of the unpleasant experience their comrades had had with these same Americans but a few hours before in the casino.

"What's holding you back?" demanded the prince. "Are you all cowards? Do you expect me to go in there single handed?"

"No, your highness, but—" ventured a sergeant.

"No 'but's.' Come!" was his command.

On tiptoes the guards and the prince made their way to the room in the rear. There they stopped, while the prince, with his ear to the keyhole, listened.

"Now," said the prince.

And with that the guards forced themselves against the door, and it fell crashing to the floor inside. So quickly was it all done that the two Americans and the newspaper man found themselves held fast by the guards before they had time to realize what had happened. The prince, standing near the door, exclaimed:

"So you're caught like a lot of rats in a trap conspiring against the government, eh! And you, scribe, needn't worry about your job, for that went long ago. You got it right that time, all right, Mr. Hawthorne. It was a splendid suggestion, and within a few hours his paper will be telling its readers all about our little movement for the uplift of the people, and of how a few hours later we burst in upon you three conspiring to overthrow the government."

Hawthorne and Blake were doing their best to break away from their captors, but they were completely overpowered.

"You snake!" was all that Hawthorne could say.

Then he suddenly burst into laughter. By this time the prince's fury had about reached all bounds.

"Say," said Hawthorne, for the first time realizing that he had blacked one of the prince's eyes in the conflict at the casino.

"If there's anything funnier than your looks in the next world I don't care how quickly I go there."

"Take them away," ordered the prince.

Now, the guards were only too anxious to obey that order if they could do it without any bodily injury to themselves. But they also realized that so long as the arms and legs of their captives were restrained merely by human effort some one was in danger of being killed. So post haste a number of the guards went in search of heavy rope and chain, while about twenty held the two captives to the floor so that they couldn't play any tricks. The newspaper man was allowed only two guards, for it was very apparent that he didn't care to take issue on the merits of his capture.

While the guards were searching for rope the angry prince stood about and cursed at Blake and Hawthorne. Finally, when he found that he could bring nothing but smiles from his prisoners, he went stamping out of the room leaving the Americans in charge of the guards.

When the rope arrived they were bound up with as many knots as Borrovian ingenuity would permit. Then the two were loaded on to a dray and hauled to the jail. The newspaper man was allowed the privilege of walking.

Once inside the jail they were placed in separate cells. They didn't know just how long they were scheduled to wait, but Hawthorne had come to a very decisive conclusion that he was going to be out of there in time to prevent the attack on the palace even if he had to do the herculean trick of pushing down the walls of the jail.

For a long time the only sound that came to Hawthorne's ears was the monotonous pounding of the guard who was walking up and down outside. Later came the rattling of chains, and in walked the prince, puffing and blustering. He seemed careful to stay more than reaching distance from the barred door on Hawthorne's cell.

"Welcome little ray of sunshine," was Hawthorne's greeting.

The prince was unable to reply. He just trothed at the mouth.

"If it isn't good for sore eyes to see you again," said Hawthorne, who refused to let his good nature leave him. "I suppose you're dismissed two or three regiments of your soldiers now that you have my friend and I locked in here."

"No, I haven't, but I'll let you in on a little secret. I've picked out six of the crack shots of the army, and tomorrow at 9 o'clock they are going to have a little practice with you as a target."

"Great!" said Hawthorne.

"The first one will try to see that his bullet goes through your heart. In case he should miss, why, the second will try."

"Yes, prince," said Hawthorne. "But have you thought of what might happen in case the whole six missed me?"

"There was no answer forthcoming to that, but in a little while, when the prince regained his power of speech, he said:

"There is one way you can avoid being a target."

"How's that—by killing myself tonight?"

"No. You've a lot of money, haven't you?"

"Well, haven't you?"

"Who told you?" asked Hawthorne, this time just a little bit nervous.

"One of the papers came out today and said that you were a millionaire from America over here looking for excitement."

"Well," laughed Hawthorne, "I don't know about the truth of the financial end of that story, but the excitement end is all true. I'm looking for it and I'm finding it in abundance."

"If you have this coin," said the prince, ignoring Hawthorne's attempt at facetiousness, "we can probably arrange your release. If you have no money you'll have to die."

"How about my friends?"

"They'll die with you, and if you produce the money they will be allowed to live."

"No one will ever accuse you of not being generous," said Hawthorne.

"Now, just let me tell you something! If I had that money you wouldn't get it! You don't dare kill me, as a matter of fact, and even if you dared you couldn't do it by the plan you propose, for there isn't a man in the army could aim his gun straight enough."

"This is final," demanded the prince. "Absolutely!" replied Hawthorne.

"Then you and your friends die in the morning for conspiring against Borrovina."

With that the prince took his leave.

Then Hawthorne set himself down to some real serious thinking. Whether he died in the morning or not was a proposition that could be taken care of later. The immediate subject under consideration was whether he could get out in time to prevent the attack on the palace.

"The guard," thought Hawthorne to himself. "I wonder how well he loves his country?"

"Hist! Hist!" was the signal that brought the guard alongside of his cell shortly after the departure of the prince.

"How well do you like money?" asked Hawthorne.

"Pretty well," said the guard.

"What would it take to get me out of here?"

The guard looked around to make sure that he was safe in talking.

"I'll tell you," said the guard. "I'm an Englishman, and so is the guard at the big gate. Now, if you could let the two of us have enough to get us back home I think we could safely call it square."

"How would five hundred strike you?"

"Five hundred!" exclaimed the guard. "Why, we'd come pretty near scuttling a ship for such a sum of money."

"Then it's yours," said Hawthorne. An hour later Hawthorne and Blake were on their way to the palace. The newspaper man was left in prison, for the Americans didn't think it would be safe to have him out until after they had won the confidence of the king.

The king sat in his private study at the palace late that evening. With him were De Witz and the chancellor. An air of unrest pervaded the whole palace. The king alone was unmoved.

"Has Hohenlohe arrived yet?" he asked, glancing up from some papers on his desk.

"No, sire," replied De Witz.

"I'm! The commander in chief of the army ignores his king's summons? And the life guards? Have they been recalled from Mavoritz, as I ordered?"

"I am afraid not, sire, or they should have been here by now."

"Then," calmly decided the king, "that young American's warning was well founded, it seems. Vladimir plans a revolution. And Hohenlohe and the army are behind him. It only remains to learn when and how they intend to strike. Ah, Irma, he broke off as the princess stole into the room. "What brings you here so late, little girl?"

"I hardly know," she faltered. "I was worried about your majesty. Ever since that shot today—"

"Why, dear, that is absurd. I am—"

"And from my window I could see knots of people gathering in the square in front of the palace, and—"

She paused on noting the exchange of quick nervous glances between De Witz and the chancellor. The former moved as if by chance toward the nearest window. He left the room a moment later to return with a look of perplexity on his wrinkled face.

"Sire," he reported, "one of my men tells me the American of whom you were just speaking has gotten himself and his traveling companion, Mr. Blake, into serious trouble. It seems he has had a personal encounter— a fight, in fact—with Prince Vladimir."

"With Prince Vladimir?" echoed the king. "A fight? You mean that the prince actually struck this American?"

"I am afraid, sire, that it was the American who struck Prince Vladimir. Indeed, he knocked the prince down."

"Splendid!" chuckled the king. "I mean deplorable! I fear this is serious."

"And further, sire. After the conflict the roof caved in and temporarily buried the prince, the general and his guards while the Americans escaped, only to be captured later by the prince and put in jail. Mr. Hawthorne—"

"Hawthorne?" repeated the chancellor. "Do you mean the man who struck the prince was Mr. Anthony Hamilton Hawthorne?"

"That is the name," asserted De Witz in surprise at the other's eagerness. "Why?"

"Because," the chancellor answered, "it is rather a pity we did not know it sooner. There is a long account of this Mr. Hawthorne in today's Scimitar. It seems he is a great American capitalist, a man of boundless wealth and unlimited power in the United States."

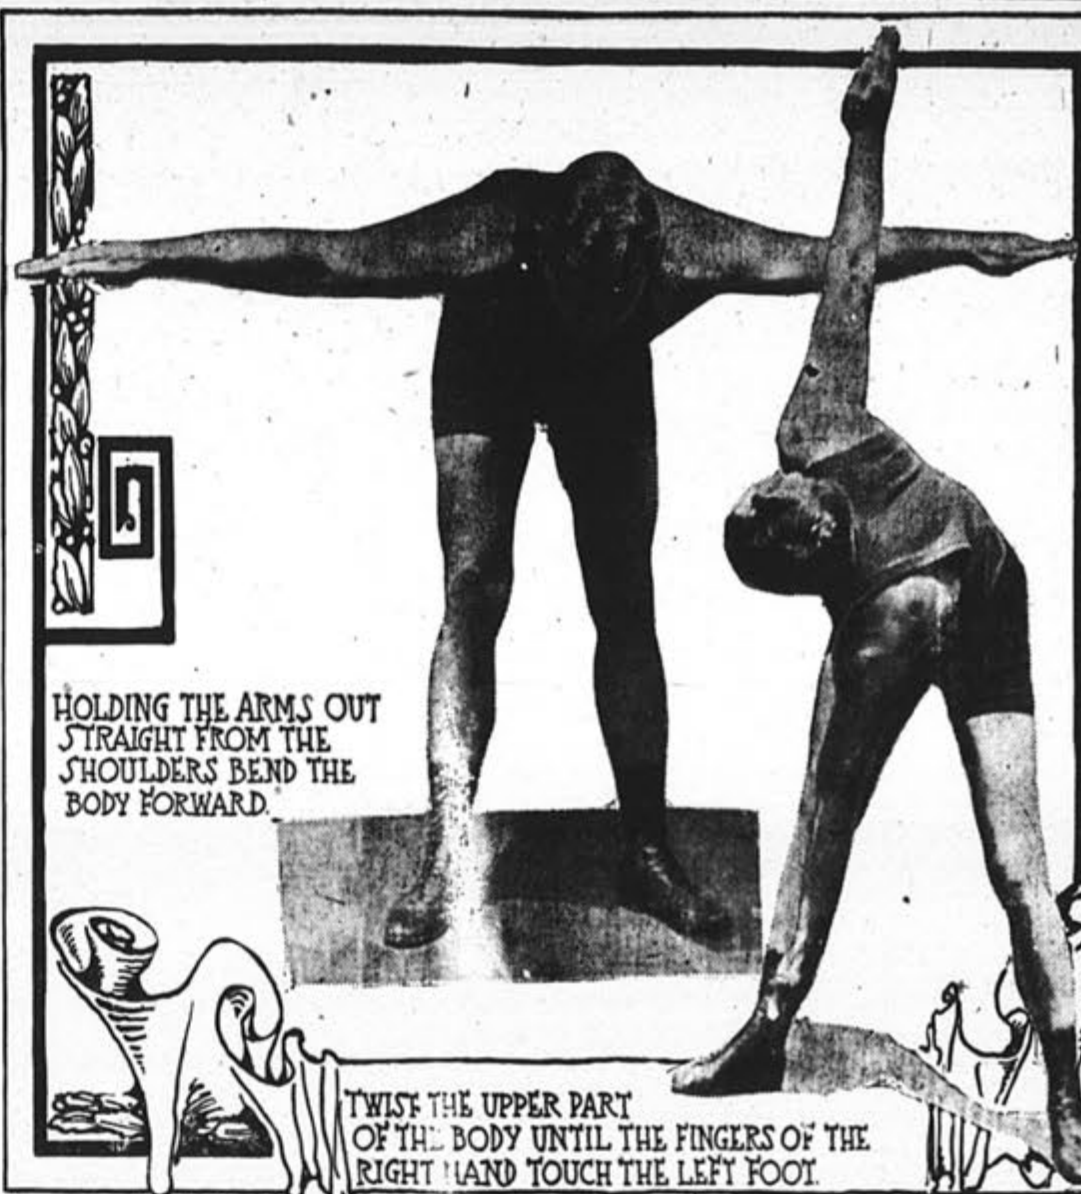

"Ah," exclaimed the king, "that probably accounts for his dictatorial manner today. De Witz, see that he is set free at once. We cannot afford a clash with the United States by imprisoning one of its greatest citizens. We—"

Through the open window of the study vaulted a man and stood panting in front of the desk. The princess gave a little cry. De Witz clapped a hand to his sword hilt. Then they saw who it was.

Hawthorne, disheveled, his clothes soiled and tumbled, his face dirt streaked, his hair in disorder, was before them.

"The guard wouldn't let us in at the gates," he explained suavely. "So I

HOLDING THE ARMS OUT STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDERS BEND THE BODY FORWARD.

THE SHOULDERS.

Twist the upper part of the body until the fingers of the right hand touch the left foot.

Here is an exercise that is not the essence of grace and which may seem to serve little purpose. It will, however, bring into play certain muscles in the arms, neck and shoulders which are seldom used, as you will learn if you try it. You will remember how, when you were a child, you turned somersaults and imagined that you were an acrobat. Well, lie on your back and reverse the trick. Raise the legs, keeping them straight and together, until they are above the face. With the elbows on the floor, force them on back until the toes touch the floor beyond the head and the body is resting on the shoulders and back of the neck. Shift the hands to the floor and shove upward until you can pull your head through between them, completing the roll. Repeat the motion five times in the morning and five times at night.

"So!" cried the king.

left Blake there and shinned a tree by the wall and then climbed a water pipe. Excuse me for not knocking. I was a bit pressed for time."

"We were told you were in jail," said the king dryly, first of the group to find voice.

"We were, but at last I found a key that opened the door and let us out."

"A key?"

"A gold one," replied Hawthorne, jingling some coins in his pocket. "And we came here on the run. There's the deuce and all to pay, your majesty. The prince and his crowd plan to attack the palace at midnight. In less than ten minutes you're to be dethroned, and—"

"So!" cried the king, while De Witz gasped aloud in horror, and Irma stood speechless and ghastly pale. "So, that is why my life guards were sent to Mavoritz. They strike while we are unprotected."

"Your majesty's safety is the first consideration," cried De Witz. "The crowd is already gathering around the palace, but we can smother our majesty and her royal highness out through one of the rear entrances, and you can cross the frontier before—"

"He is right," agreed the chancellor. "Your majesty's only safety lies in instant flight. There is but a single file of the life guards on duty in the palace. They cannot hold the gates against the mob and the army for five minutes."

"To run away from my capital by night!" mused the king under his

Women Combine to End High Prices

It has taken the women of this city to find the real solution of the high cost of living problem. Many of them are organizing themselves into clubs and buying their household supplies such as soaps, foodstuffs, toilet articles, stationery, etc., at a big saving from the Larkin Co. This Company, by its "Factory-to-Family" method of dealing, saves its customers the big profits of the middleman, thus cutting down the cost of household supplies fully one-half. The amount thus saved is returned to the customer in the form of extra products of her own selection, so that she really gets just double the quantity she would get for the same money at the store. Any woman can buy her household supplies from the Larkin Co. in this way and save one-half or more of the money she now spends for them. Write to Larkin Co., Buffalo, N. Y., for their large catalog R 143 which will explain in detail this method of saving money. Sent free upon request.

Students Mistake Funeral Procession for Cabinet Member's Escort in St. Louis.

St. Louis.—Students and faculty members of Washington university greeted their chancellor, David H. Houston, the secretary of agriculture, when he arrived here from the national capital. A large reception committee met him at the Union station and escorted him to the university campus.

Plans had been made to let off seventeen bombs as the procession ap-

This is just what happened when "Mutt and Jeff" the record breaking production which has registered such a success that Gus Hill, who owns and controls six companies playing the attraction has arranged for special matinees for school children accompanied by their parents or guardians can attend the performance. These matinees are to be held in the morning starting at 9:30 o'clock, in every city or town where the show is billed. It will take place on Saturday and will in no wise conflict with the afternoon performance on that day.

This is probably the first time in the history of the show business that such an innovation has been inaugurated, and the announcement is worth more than passing comment; at any rate the procedure demonstrates the possibilities of what profitable advantages a successful play may be put to in this era of competitive and progressive theatricals.

The production will be at the Peterson Sunday, April 27.

PARCEL POST FIGURES SHOW ENORMOUS GAIN

850 Packages Delivered in Six Days—
Total Weight Was Over
1,300 Pounds.

The figures resulting from the count of the parcel post matter delivered during the past week in Escanaba, demonstrates the growth in the use of the system throughout the country, for the increase of business apparent here is in evidence everywhere. The count started Monday and continued until Saturday evening. Every piece of parcel post matter was counted and the figures show that 450 parcels weighing 170 pounds and 12 ounces. The parcel post delivery wagon distributed an even 400 parcels which weighed 889 and one-half pounds. The local postal officials have kept a careful count of the parcel post business since it first began and the count made last week, an official one, which will be submitted to the postal department, shows a wonderful increase in the business. The postal authorities are desirous of determining the speed with which the system is growing and the count was made in Escanaba as it was elsewhere for that purpose.

FLINT'S LETTER

The Chicago Evening Post says: "Iron and steel still reflect the effects of food disasters, but copper metal is one trade which shows real strength at present. The market is very much improved and a large business has been done during the last month. Production now is not equal to consumption and the copper-using trades all over the world are very busy. An advance in the price of metal during the last half of this year is expected to place it on as good a basis as that of the same period last year." If the foregoing statement is true, the present prices of good copper shares should look attractive to investors. Outside of the apathy of the general investor there does not seem any reasonable grounds whatever to account for the present low price of copper stocks. Today's market while strong shows very little change in prices from yesterday's close.

JUDGE FLANNIGAN WILL GIVE DECISION TONIGHT

Application for Change of Venue in Hammel Cases Still Under Advisement

A change of venue for the trial of D. Hammel and sons, the Gladstone bankers, is held under advisement by Judge R. C. Flannigan following arguments presented by the prosecution and defense in the case last evening.

Following the arguments for the change of venue both sides presented numerous affidavits, the prosecution alleging that the defendants could be given a fair and impartial trial in this county while the affidavits submitted by the defense were to the contrary. Bitter feeling on the part of residents of this county is the reason given for the application for a change of venue.

Judge Flannigan is expected to give his decision some time this evening.

The story of the crime is well remembered throughout this section. The Taylors had been arrested for stealing cattle and Weeks appeared as a witness against them. Later Weeks with his entire family was killed and their bodies were burned in a straw stack.

Our Responsibility to You

We have previously explained the safe-guards provided by banking laws, by the bank's capital, surplus and stockholders' liability.

But this bank goes much farther than any law prescribes in the handling of its business and in its most assumed responsibility to customers.

For instance,—It is a part of our business to be familiar with the signatures of every person writing checks upon this bank. We keep each individual's signature on file for reference in case his check is presented by a stranger or irresponsible person unknown to us.

All checks paid by us are carefully preserved and returned and our records on past transactions are available any time when required.

We make it a point to see that every depositor and borrower is protected so far as lies in our power.
