POLICE SEEK T. CARMODY

CONFIDENT THAT BOY IS NOT IN BAY THEY ABANDON ALL BUT KIDNAPPING THEORY

UNCLE OFFERS REWARD OF $50

Dynamiting of Last Evening Brought No Results—Will Send Circulars Broadcast

The police are now centering all their efforts on the finding of Thomas Carmody, the father of six year old Leslie Carmody, who disappeared so mysteriously on Saturday last. All other possible solutions to the mystery have apparently been exhausted.

Last evening the bay in the vicinity of the dock was carefully dragged and dynamiting resorted to. The uncle of the lost child supervised the placing of the explosive. Four charges were exploded but with no results. The uncle and the mother of the child have both reached the conclusion that he was kidnapped.

An effort is now being made to secure a picture of the father and if this can be done circulars will be printed and sent broadcast.

The name of the town in the state of Washington in which the sister of Carmody resides is not known but an effort is being made to determine it and if the police are successful in their efforts a telegram will be sent to the sheriff of the county in which the town is located with instructions to look for the boy.

A reward of fifty dollars has been offered for information that will lead to the recovery of the boy and this it is believed will lend further impetus to the search. The child's uncle has offered the reward.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR IN FLINT ON JUNE 3-4

Large Commanderies From Cities Throughout the State Arrange to Participate.

Flint, Mich., April 24.—Very extensive plans are being formulated for the fifty-seventh annual convocation of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of Michigan, which will be held in Flint on June 3 and 4.

The men in charge of the arrangements are men who understand things and do them. There will be completeness of entertainment for all who visit Flint at the time of this event.

Already several large commanderies have arranged to attend the convocation and the transportation facilities are excellent for arriving from all directions in time for the parade at 9:45 o'clock on the morning of June 3, and for leaving for home after the Templar ball in the evening.

In a general way, the program for the day will be the parade after arrival of the last commandery; the escort of the Grand Commandery to the Masonic temple; opening of the Grand Commandery; auto rides and big factory exhibits for the afternoon; Country club entertainment; elaborate conferring of the order of the Temple by De Molay Commandery; numerous street drills by highly drilled commanderies in different parts of the city; brilliant Templar ball.

The Board of Commerce and local associations will assist in the entertainment of visitors, and the whole city is interested in the complete satisfaction of the many Templars and ladies who will be its guests at that time.

BASEBALL BENEFIT PROVES BIG SUCCESS

The receipts as a result of the benefit given Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week at the Garrick theatre have not been tallied but it is known that the baseball association has netted a handsome sum through the performances.

Although this amount will boost the national game in Escanaba to a considerable extent more is needed and fans should busy themselves devising ways and means to raise it.

The little girl was playing with several other children about a bon fire when she tripped and fell into the flames. Her clothing caught fire and before the blaze was extinguished, she was so badly burned that death resulted the following day.

DRAGGING BRINGS QUEER ARTICLES TO SURFACE

Bicycle is Hooked—Dynamiting Sends Dead Fish to the Top of the Water

The dragging and dynamiting of the bay in the vicinity of the Stephenson dock last evening in the effort to find the body of Leslie Carmody brought to light many queer articles. Almost the first object the drag encountered was a bicycle. Later a complete suit of clothes was brought up and nondescript articles of clothing followed in great quantity.

The dynamiting killed a large number of fish which floated to the surface. The child's uncle, who was in charge of the dynamiting, showed an interesting knowledge of explosives.

As he started to rise to his feet the sheriff and deputies pulled him up by means of the rope and kept him dangling while he struggled in agony for some time before he was suffocated.

MONTENEGRO IS OBDURATE

KING NICHOLAS SAYS SCUTARI WILL BE HELD AT ALL COSTS—POWERS SEEM AT UTTER LOSS

INTERNATIONAL COMPLICATIONS

Austria Determined to Punish Montenegrins Unless City is Surrendered in 48 Hours

(By Associated Press.)
Cettinje, April 24.—"Scutari is from today Montenegro" was the definite reply of King Nicholas to the European invitation to surrender the city which forces captured Tuesday after a siege of six months. This morning King Nicholas addressed a crowd of several thousand from the palace. "Montenegro," he said "will give its life blood to hold Scutari."

If the city is taken from the hands of the Montenegrins it will have to be done by force of arms. Austria seems determined to punish the Montenegrins unless they surrender Scutari while the remainder of the powers seem at an utter loss as to what course they should pursue.

Berlin, German, April 24.—Austria-Hungary, according to an unconfirmed dispatch, has telegraphed all other powers, demanding that they send ultimatum to Montenegro to evacuate Scutari within forty-eight hours otherwise Austria and allies would take steps to protect political interests.

TEA AND SUPPER PROVES GREATEST OF SUCCESSSES

Many Take Advantages of Excellent Repast Offered by Young Ladies of Presbyterian Church

Great success attended the tea and supper given last evening, by the Young Women's auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church in the Corcoran building.

The tea served from 3:00 until 5:30 was taken advantage of by a large number but the supper served from 5:30 until 8 o'clock proved far the more popular and the young ladies in charge were kept busy waiting on the hungry hordes that patronized the affair.

The decorations, which were in charge of Miss Helen Miller and a competent committee added much to the pleasure of the feast. Mrs. R. H. Banks, who headed the committee on arrangements, together with all members of her committee are deserving of much praise.

ROESER SUIT VERDICT IN

JURY RETURNS VERDICT OF "NO CAUSE FOR ACTION" AFTER BEING OUT OVER THREE HOURS

CASE IN COURT FOR TWO YEARS

Many Cases Are Continued by Consent Cardinal Trial Taken up This Afternoon

The jury in the case of Charles Olson vs Anton Roeser returned a verdict of "no cause for action" at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon after it had been out for about three hours. The trial of the case started yesterday afternoon at two o'clock and it was not until 1:30 this morning that it was given to the jury.

The suit has been in progress for some time. A son of Charles Olson was killed about two years ago when he jumped from a street car after being told to get off by the motorman, Anton Roeser. Criminal suit was brought against the traction company and the indictment was quashed. Later suit for personal damages was brought against Roeser and after twice being continued a verdict was finally reached as given above.

Several cases were continued yesterday afternoon and this morning. The suit of the Oshkosh Excelsior company vs Sarah J. and Thomas W. McDonough was continued by consent as was the case of Joseph H. Boyle vs the Township of Bark River for trespass. The case of Charles Sundin vs James Nepper for trespass was likewise continued by consent, also the suit of the Hewitt Grain and Provision company vs Charles Arnold, and that of William Sharkey vs Joseph Ambeau. Martin Roman's suit to enforce mechanic's lien against John Christie was continued by consent.

Under Sheriff Henry arrived here this morning from Ionia in charge of an inmate of the reformatory there. The boy is a witness in the case of the people vs William Cardinal, whose trial on a charge of violating the liquor laws was taken up this afternoon. The petition of Oramel B. Fuller auditor general of the state of Michigan, for the sale of certain lands for the taxes was argued before Judge Flannigan this afternoon. No decision has yet been given.

HUNDREDS OF MEN AT WORK TRYING TO CLEAR CINCINNATI MINE OF DEBRIS—NO HOPE FOR ENTOMBED

22 BODIES TAKEN FROM MINE

Track Layer Tells Thrilling Story of His Escape Following the Explosion

(By Associated Press.)
Pittsburg, Pa., April 24.—Twenty-two bodies have been recovered from the Cincinnati mine and it is thought that the fatalities number at least seventy-five.

All available men are at work clearing away the debris in an attempt to force air through into the ruined entries. Until this is done the death-list cannot be fully ascertained.

Robert Carten, track layer, who escaped, told the following story:

"I had been working at the head of No. 16 entry. After eating lunch I resumed work at 2:30 and had driven only two spikes when the explosion occurred. The concussion knocked me down and I was unconscious for fifteen minutes. After recovering I met Assistant Foreman Brown, who told me to get out of the mine as quickly as possible. Other men quickly arrived where I was. Followed by about twenty-five men I started down No. 8 motor road, one of the main roads of the mine. We had not gone far before we found there was so much smoke we could go no further. We tried No. 7 (Continued on page six)

REPORT OF MINORITY

MURDOCK PRESENTS PROGRESSIVE VIEWS ON THE TARIFF—WANT A TARIFF COMMISSION

FAVOR A PROTECTIVE TARIFF

Democratic Plan of Reduction is Condemned—Says People at Large Are Against It

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, D. C., April 24.—Representative Murdock today offered the minority report of the progressives in which it was urged that the tariff commission with power to elicit information be retained and that the tariff be reduced where the duty is obviously excessive. Radical reductions not founded on accurate information the report vigorously opposed.

Democratic revision, Murdock maintained, had been undertaken in defiance of a universally popular demand. He further stated that the progressives believed in a protective tariff that would equalize competitive conditions between the United States and foreign countries, both for the farmer manufacturer and for an adequate standard of living.

Representative Gardner admitted that the people of the nation had repudiated the Payne tariff and that the republican party had been dislodged from power because it had been too slow to recognize growing evils and permitted a "far too powerful oligarchy" to run the government its way instead of the people's way.

In presenting the views of the progressive party, Representative Kelly criticized the present method of tariff legislation. He said that the Underwood bill, like every other tariff bill in the history of the country was "framed on a basis of insufficient information and political and non-partisan log rolling." The solution of the tariff problem, he declared, could only be found in the adoption of the progressive policy of placing the tariff in the hands of a capable non-partisan commission.

COUNTY BOARD WOULD ABANDON WORKHOUSE

Marinette Institution Said to be Unsanitary—Prisoners Tell Pitiful Tales

That the Marinette county workhouse is in a deplorable condition in regard to sanitation; that it is an unfit place to commit a prisoner to, and that the fare is of the most inferior quality and wholly insufficient to sustain those compelled to labor at the institution, were declarations issued from supervisors at the meeting of the Marinette county board. Pitiful tales of prisoners once committed to the institution and their beseechings to courts when threatened with a recommitment, were retold at the session in theatrical way that caused members of the body unacquainted with conditions to listen in awe.

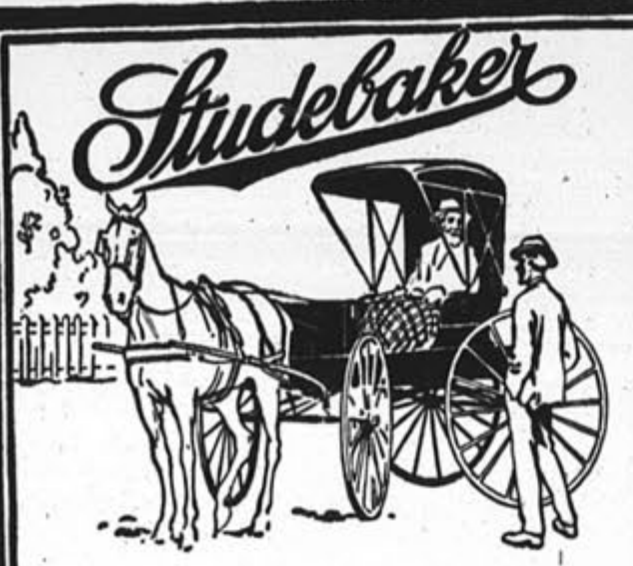

Discussion of the institution followed a report by P. M. Nelson of Beaver, chairman of the workhouse committee which recently investigated the institution. He declared it is in dire need of interior improvements, a bath room and toilet, but added that these additions would not place the building in desired shape. In connection with the reported needed improvements, John Stoven, president of the board, declared that the building had never been accepted by the state board of control and that improvements should not be decided on before its acceptance. He added that the structure should have been condemned before it was tenanted.

Here Mr. Nelson injected a surprise into the assemblage with a declaration that the institution should be done away with and prisoners housed in the county jail.

McDONALD ON WAY TO THE CAPITOL CITY

Progressive Candidate for Congress Visits in City Enroute to Washington, D. C.

Enroute to Washington to be present when the fight for representative of the Twelfth congressional district is heard by the election committee of the house, William J. MacDonald, who alleges he was rightly elected over H. Olin Young who was given the certificate of office by the election commission recently was in Marinette Tuesday.

Mr. MacDonald was in Ontonagon in attendance at a hearing Saturday called by Mr. Young to gain evidence to be presented to the special committee to whom the battle will be relegated. It will be remembered that the election commission ruled all votes cast for Mr. MacDonald in Ontonagon invalid on the ground that his name was not properly placed on the ballot.

Charles Hoffman, secretary of the Progressive party at Detroit, testified Saturday that he sent a message to fifteen county clerks previous to election notifying them of an error on the ballots, in that the name of the candidate appeared as McDonald instead of MacDonald. County Clerk John Jarvin testified Saturday he received the message as given the name of Sheldon William A. MacDonald.

Mr. MacDonald declares that notwithstanding his name appeared with the surname of Sheldon, and that apellation was merely surplus and the people in reality voted for him. The same message sent by Mr. Hoffman was received correctly in the other fourteen counties.

The meeting Saturday was purely routine. While Mr. MacDonald will not be accompanied to Washington by his attorney, Henry Cochems, of Milwaukee, Mr. Cochems will follow in a few days. Mr. MacDonald declares he expects an early hearing.

DRIVE ON MEMONIEE RIVER HAS STARTED

Expected That 28,000 Feet of Logs Will Be Sent Down—Drags Because of Rail Shipments.

The annual log drive on the Menominee river and its tributaries was commenced yesterday and it was estimated by William Stephenson, superintendent of the Menominee River Boom company that the total drive for the year will reach 28,000,000 feet. That of last year was 45,000,000 feet, and while the drop is a marked one, the hauling by rail this year was far greater than ever before. The winter cut was a particularly big one according to Mr. Stephenson.

The conditions for driving are better this year than in many years past as the water is high in all rivers and a new driving record may be looked for if it so continues.

The Pine river drive is in charge of Charles Rinquist; the Paint river in charge of E. Palmquist; the Michagamme drive in charge of D. G. Bothwell of Menominee and the Brule and Pike river drive in charge of various parties.

"Wooltex" the Perfect Fitting Garments

One reason for Wooltex satisfaction and good looks is the way Wooltex garments fit the wearer. Wooltex coats and suits require fewer alterations than any make we have ever known. On women of average dimensions they go as a good glove goes on the hand it was made for.

And when alterations are required, the Wooltex system of manufacture makes them easy to do. The collars of Wooltex coats and jackets, for example, can be altered when necessary to a trim, smooth, snug-fitting and lasting fit with almost no trouble at all.

When you see a woman whose tailored suit fits her as if she had been melted and run into it, you can make a safe guess that she is wearing a Wooltex suit from this store.

Our fitters are at your service, but if you buy a Wooltex suit or coat you probably will not give them much to do. Ready to wear section Second floor.

STATE TO CONTROL ALL THE WATER POWER SITES

Madison, Wis., April 24.—A comprehensive water power bill was presented in the state senate today by a senate committee on conservation. Its framers hope the measure eventually will lead to the acquisition by the state of all of its water powers developed in the future.

The main idea of the bill is to create state agencies in the form of corporations and to delegate to them certain powers for the development of navigation, improvement of rivers, charging of tolls and the development, sale and distribution of hydraulic and hydro-electric power.

All dams and other properties necessary for the improvement of navigation and the development of hydraulic and hydro-electric power are to be constructed, maintained and operated under the direct supervision of the state railroad commission.

PLANS FOR CUTTING BIG POLITICAL PIE

President Asks Senators Interested in Appointments to Meet him
at the Capitol

Washington, D. C., April 24.—President Wilson has invited the senators interested in appointments to meet him today at the capitol.

The senate was not in session and the foreign relations committee listened to and gave their approval of Bryan's plan of international peace. This is a proposed system of treaties providing commissions of inquiry into all international disputes. A resolution abrogating the Isthmian canal treaties with Great Britain was referred to a sub-committee.

The house met and a general debate on the tariff bill began. Underwood asked that the general debate close on Monday night.

The Republicans and Progressives fought over minority time and the progressives were promised five hours.

Underwood said that the new tariff would reduce the cost of living eventually but not immediately. He said protection permitted certain people to grow rich and run the government.

WELLER FEARS PLAY BECOMING LOST ART

Inquiry Convinces Expert That Children
Are Forgetting How to Amuse Themselves.

Chicago, April 24.—Children of the present generation are forgetting how to play, in spite of the superior opportunities offered them for healthful amusements, according to Charles F. Weller, of the Playgrounds and Recreation Association of America.

Mrs. Weller's conviction is based on data gathered by an agent of the association sent to the cities of Richmond, Va., Milwaukee and Kansas City, Mo., to ascertain how children of all classes spent their time after school hours. The cities were chosen because of their uniform size and population.

In Richmond, one per cent of the children were found on a few playgrounds, five per cent on the weed covered vacant lots in and around the city, twenty-five per cent were found actually playing with hoops and jumping ropes and taking parts in games, and seventy per cent were found in the streets and alleys with nothing to do. These figures were practically duplicated in the other cities.

Mr. Weller places part of the blame upon the routine and practical nature of modern parents, who allow the children liberties without any attention "as to whether they will use their time sitting on iron steps, thinking of nothing and doing the same, or employing their time in games and recreation." He declares that while a few playgrounds are doing good, few if any, are given the correct supervision to make their existence a success.

Kalamazoo, April 24.—The Flying Mercury in aviation costume, the Dying Gladiator in a track suit, fountain Naads in bathing suits and Venus De Milo in a mother Hubbard, are expected to appear in this city's statutory exhibit following the edict by Chief of Police Struble that no pictures or statuary should be displayed with the figures clad less scantily than would be allowed in life. The crusade originated in complaints by citizens of the city of the pictures, "Miss September Morn," "Spring" and "The Bathers" displayed in a local art store window. After having these removed, the chief looked up the state law and found he could keep out all pictures arrayed with less than in life and could also bar from public gaze all pictures of fights and crimes. On this basis it is expected that he will start censoring motion picture films commencing next week.

The feats of professional runners seem insignificant when compared with the regular performances of an East Indian caste. These Kahars, who are also known as Jhinwar, live in the Punjab, where for centuries they have acted not only as runners, but as fishermen and as water fowl carriers. These men are said to be able to accomplish 109 miles a day without resting. There is said to be a well authenticated instance wherein one Fika Ram carried dispatches 309 miles in three days, from Meer-Mir to Meer, says Harper's Weekly. It is further said that so far from shortening their lives, these performances really conduce to longevity in the Kahars, many of whom are able not only to withstand the strain of covering great distances, but to thrive under it. The Jhiriksha man, too, notwithstanding his irregular diet, excessive use of liquor and exposure to the elements, lives to a reasonable age. In Tokio, when a census was taken of the Jhiriksha men some years ago, there were found to be more than 1,300 who were over fifty-five years of age.

SYNOPSIS

Anthony Hamilton Hawthorne with $200,000 won at Monte Carlo visits Borrovina, a little Balkan kingdom, where he falls in love with the king's daughter, Princess Irma. Against her will she is engaged to Prince Valdimir.

Hawthorne seizes a man who fires at the king and princess. The princess is taken to a hotel unharmed and cared for by Senator Ballard and his daughter Kate.

Later Hawthorne tells the king the prince is conspiring to depose him, but is ordered from the palace.

More evidence of the plot is found when Hawthorne catches the prince and confederates planning a movement to seize the throne. Hawthorne is caught listening.

The prince attempts to kill Hawthorne and his friend Blake. The ceiling caves in, burying the prince and his equerry, Radulski. Hawthorne and Blake, escaping, go with a newspaper reporter to a drinking place. The prince bursts in on them and orders them to jail.

The king becomes convinced that the American's story of the prince's treachery is true. Hawthorne bursts into the room, having bribed a guard to release him. The mob is heard outside. Hawthorne pleads with the king not to abdicate.

The mob, led by the prince, appears. The king, the princess and her friends have been sent into a side room. Hawthorne greets the mob alone. The king appears. The mob realizes it is in the presence of Mr. Hawthorne, "an American millionaire."

Hawthorne offers to pay the country's debts. The prince declares his money spurious. He bribes two guards to pose as Americans and decide in his favor.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Decision.

HAWTHORNE had all the confidence in the world in himself now. He quickly sized up his crowd. He knew now that the thought uppermost in their minds was "money," and that the side that could produce the quicker would have their support. His plan of action was quick in its evolution. If he could carry it out without any expense to himself so much the better. If they insisted upon deeds and not words he could use his winnings at Monte Carlo and, with the populace already believing he was the richest man in America, it would be easy to convince them that there was plenty more to come. Then, too, Hawthorne sincerely believed that if Borrovina were rid of the prince and allowed to run along in a peaceful channel without a revolution a minute, there was a lot of prosperity ahead of it, for the people could apply themselves to the development of the country instead of preparing for battle every other day.

Now he proposed to tell these people that they were making a very bad break in deposing the present king; that with the king went all hope for the future prosperity of the country. With that argument he hoped to score a bloodless victory. His trump card, of course, was the realization that the people of Borrovina believed him to be a millionaire and he proposed to play it many times over—if he wasn't caught at it.

Just for a moment he looked squarely at the prince. The eyes of his highness glistened with rage. He knew now that every minute of delay weakened his effort to depose the king. He could see the tide slowly changing. The substantial men of Borrovina took furtive glances at him as if expecting some announcement of the prince's

"Tell me! Please, please tell me! What does it all mean?"

plans in case he succeeded to the throne. He was about to start a little more excitement when Hawthorne, who had been waiting for the chattering of the crowd to cease, turned and with a smile which seemed to communicate good spirit to the disturbers, said:

"Gentlemen, I am pleased to meet you."

Some of the better appearing men in the crowd, who seemed to represent the business interests of the community, applauded. Even the ferocious glare of Radulski and the prince could not quiet them.

"It means some quick work now," whispered the prince to Radulski. "Why can't you come forward with a good suggestion. You're always bubbling over with advice except when it's needed."

Hawthorne was bowing with businesslike brusqueness to the mob.

"Now then, let's cut out the merry repartee and get down to brass tacks. You've demanded his majesty's abdication. He has left it to me to give you his answer. Well, gentlemen, his majesty and I have thrashed out this subject pretty thoroughly. We've decided to sign the abdication and abandon the throne."

"Tricked!" gasped the king. Irma, who had been sitting alongside of her father, jumped to her feet. She couldn't believe that Hawthorne had been disloyal to them, although for the moment she was forced to the conclusion that the evidence was very much against him.

"Step up, soldiers, and get yours first."

The prince immediately came out of his sulks and smiled. With a wave of his hand to the crowd he said:

"You see, gentlemen, right is might. Even this American couldn't stand to see you all ruined."

Hastening to Hawthorne's side, Irma pleaded:

"Tell me! Please, please tell me! What does it all mean?"

"Just wait!" whispered Hawthorne, at the same time concealing with some difficulty a very good laugh.

"Bravo!" shouted Radulski, only to find that the crowd didn't seem to be so strongly in favor of abdication now that the millionaire was displaying such cordial good feeling toward the present ruler.

Just then it dawned upon the prince that perhaps the American was planning a little scheme whereby he could subvert both the king and himself.

"Gentlemen," said the prince, again walking to the front in an effort to retain that power which he had held over the mob, but which he felt slowly ebbing away from him. "don't be fooled by this young upstart!"

Groans greeted this announcement because Borrovina could not understand how any man with money could be an upstart.

"There is a wicked plan afoot here," continued the prince, trying hard to get the attention of the crowd. "This intruder has come here with a paltry sum of money, and he wants to be dictator of the country. He has inveigled himself into the good graces of your poor weak king by telling him that he would see him through the revolution."

"Is that right, your majesty?" demanded one of the leaders of the crowd.

The king did not answer. Irma was about to do so when her father bid her be silent.

"He'd have the king abdicate, would he? Yes! And then he'd take the throne, and after he had milked the country dry he'd take up his little carpet bag and go home. In case the country proved prosperous he would turn it over to the United States, and they'd milk you dry with taxes."

Once more the tide was turning, but this time it was going back to the prince.

"Down with him!" shouted a voice in the crowd.

"Not so hasty," said Hawthorne. "You want ready money, don't you? Whether I want to be dictator or not we can settle at some other time. Your troops want money."

"Yes, yes!" came from the soldiers. "Well, I'll give it to you. Step up, soldiers, and get yours first."

Once more the prince injected himself into the situation.

"Men, be calm. Are you going to be gold bricked? Do you imagine that any man is going to carry around real money like that?" pointing to the satchel that Blake had brought in. "Why, those are medals they gave away at a fair over in his home country a couple of years ago. They look good but are counterfeit."

"Medals, eh," said Hawthorne. "Well, you'll find that you can get pretty near any place if you have enough of those medals."

"Men, appoint a committee. Let him give you one or two pieces that you may pick right out of that satchel and take it down to the hotel, where we'll have a committee of three Americans examine the coins and state whether they are genuine or not."

"Agreed!" said Hawthorne. The mob quickly decided upon its own committee. Hawthorne readily turned over several coins to them.

The prince was not an easy man to outwit, and he proposed to have Americans that he knew on that committee at any risk. Then he remembered that he still had in jail the two Englishmen whom he had arrested for their part in the escape of Hawthorne and Blake.

"Easy," said the king to Radulski, as the somewhat disgusted crowd filed out of the palace fearful lest the committee find that the American's gold was not good. The committee of Borrovians hurried to the hotel. The prince and the faithful Radulski made for the jail.

"Say, would you fellows like to get out of this scrape?" said the prince to the imprisoned Englishmen.

"Don't make us laugh," said the taller of the two.

"Well, we've got a little job for you, and if you go through it straight you'll be seen safely out of the country. If you don't there is no telling when you will be—well, you know I'm a man of few words."

"Go ahead with the scheme," said the little Englishmen, eager to get out into the open air.

"I want you to get into some American togs right away. That American who gave you the money has come pretty close to upsetting this country. He's got a lot of counterfeit money—"

"Not if it's like what he gave us," ventured one of the prisoners.

"Never mind that. You've got to examine more of it and swear that it's no good. Do you see? Now, you come with me. Get into these American clothes and go up to the hotel and register."

"Where'll we register from?"

"Any place so long as it's in the United States."

In the meantime the crowd had taken to the hotel to await the deliberations of the committee. After an hour or so it was announced that Senator Ballard had been chosen as the first member to pass upon the coin offered by Hawthorne. Just to keep up appearances the prince offered opposition to the senator, claiming that he was a friend of Hawthorne's and would naturally side with that gentleman. However, he didn't make any real trouble about the suggestion of the senator, for he felt that the "Americanized" Englishmen would vote right.

At the proper time he walked the two ex-guards. They had hardly depended upon to sign the register when Radulski was before the committee announcing that two American strangers had just arrived who would be sure to be free from prejudice and who could be depended upon to give an honest verdict.

The announcement was welcomed by the committee. Blake happened to be hovering about the hotel, and when he saw the two guards being greeted by the crowd as Americans he gave way to a good laugh. He quickly communicated the news to Hawthorne.

"Well, that's a good one!" said Hawthorne.

But he didn't see the joke as did Blake. He hurried down to the hotel. Instead, the senator and the two other "Americans" were sitting about the table ready to announce their decision just as Hawthorne walked in.

"There's no doubt in my mind, gentlemen. The coins are genuine. I have some of the same with me," said the senator.

"Probably given to you by Hawthorne," remarked the prince.

The senator arose from his seat prepared to take issue with the prince, but quickly realizing that any demonstration at this time would only thwart the plans of Hawthorne he merely overlooked the insult temporarily.

"Well, gentlemen, what is your judgment?" asked the chairman of the committee of the first Englishman.

"Bad!"

Just then Hawthorne appeared at the door.

"As I was about to say," said the Englishman, "bad coins are to be found everywhere, and it is very difficult to tell them offhand. It requires considerable observation."

"And your decision?" the second Englishman was asked.

"As my friend says," was his reply, "bad coins are very hard to detect. I shouldn't care to give a hasty judgment. Now, if you would take a little adjournment—say until 5 o'clock this afternoon—we perhaps could give the matter the serious consideration which it requires."

An approving nod from Hawthorne caused the senator to remark:

"Yes, perhaps on second thought it is only fair that the gentlemen should be given a little time to consider. They are right. There are lots of bad coins floating about the country."

The prince's temper was again beyond the control of his highness.

"I ought to kill the dogs," he told Radulski after they got out of the committee room.

"Wouldn't help matters now," said his aid consolingly.

"Find the fellows quick-ly."

The prince went to a room of the hotel, while Radulski told the two Englishmen they were wanted immediately.

"You bounds!" the prince hissed the moment they entered the room. "Why did you betray me?"

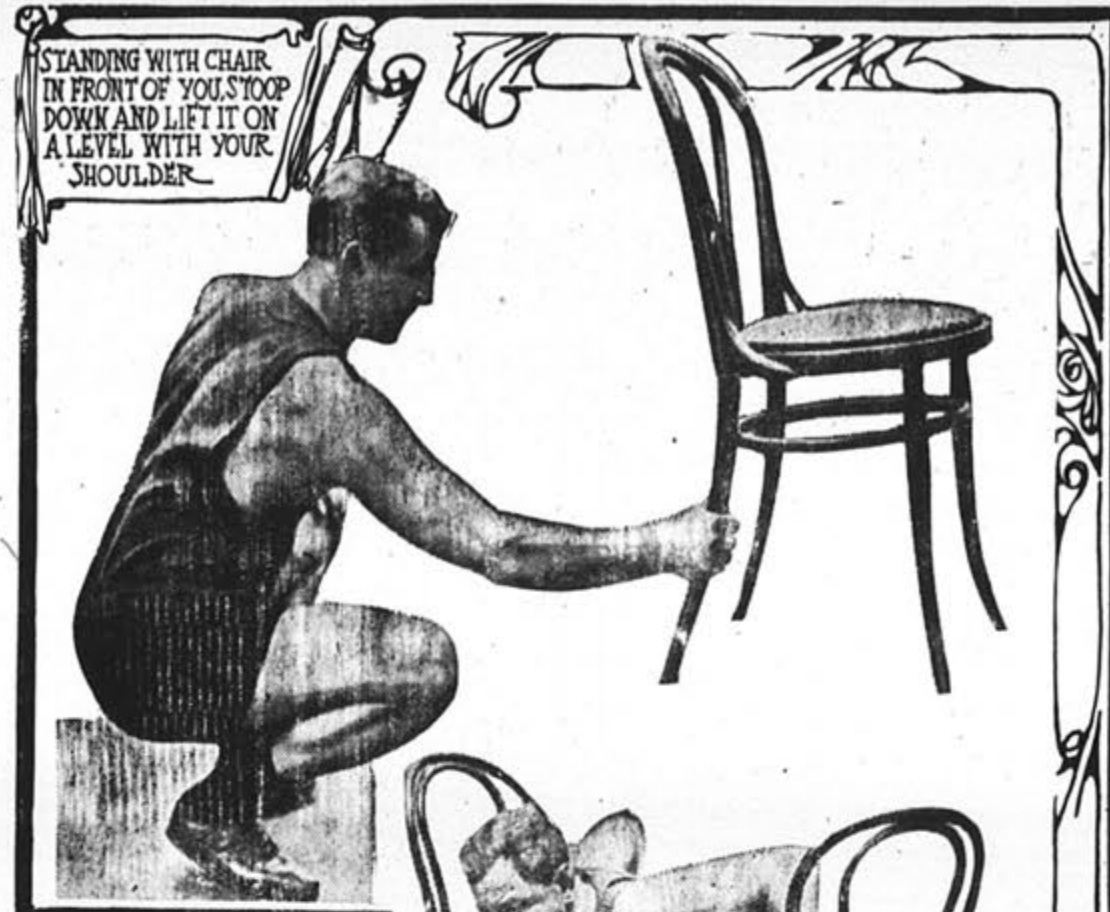

"Now, prince, be easy," said the tall man. "You see, me and my friend are business men. We have come to the conclusion that it is worth just a little more than our freedom to put this deal through."

"How much do you want? I'll give you 100,000 orals apiece."

"That looks pretty good," he replied. "And you'll decide in my favor?"

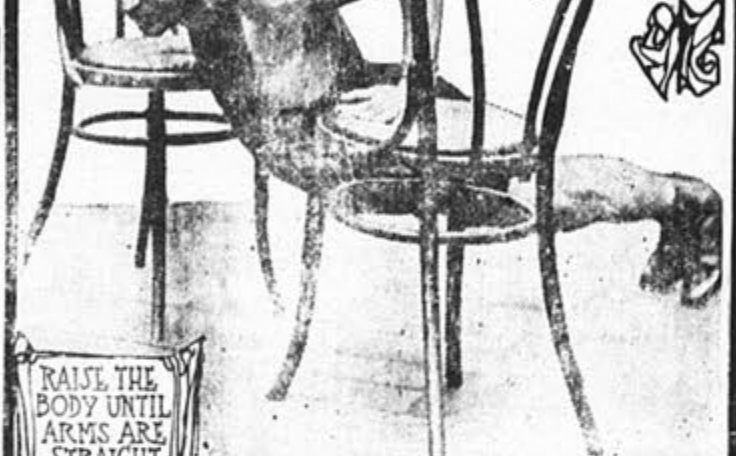

"The decision goes to the highest bidder," remarked the spokesman as

DEVELOPMENT TESTS.

ANY person who has followed these lessons and put the exercises into practice systematically and steadily, and who has fed himself or herself properly and has acted on the advice given as to walking and getting plenty of fresh air, will by this time have noticed an appreciable increase in strength and consequent good health and spirits. Here is an exercise that for some will test the amount of the increase. It is not simply a test, however, but an exercise with our old friend, the chair.

Place the chair in front of you with the back toward you. Stoop down and with one hand grasp one leg of the chair near the floor. With arms straight lift the chair from the floor to the level of the shoulder, keeping it perpendicular, as shown above, and rise to a standing position. Stoop down and replace the chair on the floor. Lift the chair similarly with the left hand. Repeat the exercise three times in the morning and five times at night with each hand. As the exercise becomes easier take a heavier chair.

Still using the chair, here is an exercise for strengthening the muscles in the top of the shoulders. Place the chair at your right side, you facing the back of it. With the right hand seize the side of the seat of the chair, balancing it with the left hand, and raise it to your shoulder and balance it on the right hand with the back of the chair horizontally across your face.

Thrust the chair upward to the full extent of your arm. Lower it to the shoulder and raise it again. Repeat this five times in the morning and ten times at night. With the chair on the floor at your left side reverse the exercise, balancing the chair in the left hand and raising it an equal number of times.

Adding another chair to the "apparatus" is use take this exercise. Place one chair at either side of you in such position that the palms of your hands will rest on the seats near the inner edges. With arms straight and hands on chairs lift the legs out at right angles to the body. Lower the body slowly between the chairs until it touches the floor.

Still keeping the legs straight raise the body again to the full length of the arms. Repeat the exercise five times in the morning and ten times at night. This exercise is for the muscles in the upper arms, the shoulders, the chest, the abdomen and the legs.

The Englishmen bowed their way out of the room.

Blake was waiting for the Englishmen downstairs in the hotel.

"Hawthorne wants to see you," whispered Blake at the same time pointing to the direction in which the American might be found.

"How much did they offer you?" asked Hawthorne quickly.

"One hundred thousand orals apiece," was the reply.

"By the way," asked the smaller of the two, "how much is that?"

"Oh, about $24.99 in American money," said Hawthorne. "Now, see here," said the American, pressing coins into their hands, "no money this fellow can give or offer you will be any good unless they have this good American coin to back their government. There's $500 apiece for you in good gold. Now, you fellows go down there and vote right. That's all I've got to say to you."

Late in the afternoon the crowd began to gather again.

The fishing season in Michigan opens just one week from today and local sportsmen are already making plans for an early trip to the trout streams in this section.

ACCIDENT BOARD PLANS TO HURRY SETTLEMENT

Lansing, April 24.—The industrial accident board has a new scheme to expedite matters in cases where only points of law have been subject of arbitration, the commissioners being required to go to different cities for the purpose of sitting as chairmen of the arbitration committees. A new blank is being issued called a stipulation and waiver of arbitration. This blank is for use only in cases where points of law are to be arbitrated. By the filling out of the blanks by both parties to the case the whole board proceeds to decide the points of law involved. The parties to the case are to abide by the board's decision.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

The low pressure area still covers the Mississippi Valley and upper Lakes, over which portion of the country and extending west over the Plains states, unsettled weather, accompanied by general showers in the valley states, has prevailed since yesterday morning. Over the eastern states, and from the Rockies westward, the weather has been fair. The low pressure area is centered principally over Minnesota, but will probably advance to the lower Lakes by Friday morning. Brisk and probably high south winds, shifting to west and northwest, with squalls, may therefore be expected in this vicinity within the following 36 hours. Showers are indicated tonight or Friday and cooler weather Friday.

NORMAL SCHOOL BILL PASSED THE SENATE

Measure Providing $160,000 for Marquette Institution Awaits Governor's Signature.

The appropriation bill for $160,000, $150,000 to complete the Northern State Normal School building and $10,000 for furnishings passed the Michigan senate today.

Just what this means to the people of Marquette and the upper peninsula can be realized from the statement that it will make the Northern State Normal one of the foremost institutions of its kind in the state and will raise its efficiency to a par with other normal schools.

The passage of the bill is due to a united effort on the part of the people of the upper peninsula, the representatives and senators from Cleveland the Marquette Commercial Club, Normal people and citizens, all of whom worked unceasingly in the interests of the bill. A week ago the appropriation bill passed the house and it now awaits the signature of Gov. Ferris.

Of late the conditions at the school have been so congested that classes have been held in all of the basement rooms and hallways. The proposed central building, which is necessary to complete the school and for the building of which the $150,000 was appropriated, will be a model structure. It provides for an assembly hall of sufficient size for all conventions and large gatherings, which might be brought to this city. A large and commodious gymnasium is also provided for, together with roomy classrooms.

His father retained counsel and announced that he would fight against a death penalty for the fourteen-year-old murderer. ### What a Woman Discovered.

One woman in this city recently discovered that she was paying four profits on almost every article she bought at the store. That before it came to her there was the Manufacturer's Profit, the Jobber's Profit, the Wholesaler's Profit, and the Storekeeper's Profit all to be paid. She thought this excessive cost had to be endured, and was gratified to learn that she could buy her household supplies at manufacturer's prices direct from the Larkin Co., thus avoiding these unnecessary profits and getting $1.00 worth of household supplies for every 50c she spent. Today she is ordering her soaps, teas, spices, and hundreds of other household supplies direct from the Larkin Co., and saving money on every purchase she makes. She is, moreover, telling her friends about this "Factory-to-Family" method of dealing, and the big savings it means for everybody. Write to the Larkin Co., Buffalo, N. Y., yourself, and ask them for their large Catalog R. 43. This describes each of the Products (there are over 500) and gives full information about the Larkin "Factory-to-Family" method of dealing.

FIVE YEAR OLD BOY HAS BICYCLE-STEALING MANIA

Child Has Stolen or Attempted to Steal Four Bicycles in the Past Two Days

An Escanaba youngster only five years of age has developed a dangerous bicycle stealing mania and to the positive knowledge of the police has stolen or attempted to steal, four bicycles within the past two days.

Last evening two bicycles belonging to Taylor Peterson and Arthur Kalston were taken from in front of the Williams shoe store. Late last night the police found one of the bicycles in an alley and the other in the possession of the five year old boy. He had taken it to his home on Escanaba avenue, apparently caching the second one until he could return for it. Yesterday Chief Iverson was standing near the Mirror office when the same youngster quietly started off with a bicycle that was leaning against the curbing. When asked where he was taking the wheel, the child replied that he was just going down the street with it.

On Tuesday the boy took a bicycle that was standing in front of the Hill drug store. This was recovered a short time later. Because of the age of the boy no action can be taken.

RUNAWAY INDIAN BOYS THOUGHT TO BE NEAR HERE

 motor road and found this also choked with smoke and debris.

I then told Assistant Foreman Brown I was going to try No. 19 entry. He told me I could not make it, followed by the fact I tried. Less than 100 feet in No. 19 entry we found our way blocked with debris. We turned back and had penetrated No. 15 entry some distance when we were again blocked by debris.

Exit Through Debris

After investigating I found a hole at the top of the debris. I crawled through this on my stomach a distance of 200 feet and the others followed. I saw a small safety lamp as high as I could so that the light would fall behind me and guide the others. Finally I reached No. 4 motor road, which was clear. I stopped and a colored man was beside me. We listened for the others, but could not hear them. After a time, accompanied by the colored man, we started for the surface. Before reaching these we met Tom Thompson, the night boss, whom we told about what had happened. Thompson started back into the mine to lead the others out and we continued on down the slope to the open air, 3,000 feet from our starting point. Later the other men reached the open. All were ill and dazed on account of the fumes in the mine."

SUFFRAGE IS BEATEN BY OVER 100,000

Many Counties That Voted for the Women in the Fall Reversed Position This Spring.

Equal suffrage in Michigan was beaten by 100,000 majority and the vote against it was equally as strong in rural and anti-saloon counties as it was in the big urban and "wet" communities of the state, according to practically complete returns from every county, compiled by the anti-suffragists of Detroit. The largest estimated majority against the amendment heretofore published has been 50,000.

The surprising feature of the vote, according to the anti-suffragists, is the fact that the suffragists did not appear to have shown the strength in the dry counties and in the farming communities it was expected it would. In many instances the majority in favor of the amendment last fall in rural counties has been changed to an emphatic majority against it this spring.

Branch county in a typical example. This is one of the staunchest anti-saloon counties of the state and has a large farming population. The majority in favor of the equal suffrage amendment in Branch county last fall was 524. This spring the majority against it was 1,428. Even Van Buren, reduced its majority in favor of the amendment from 1,794 last fall to 400 this spring.

The county of Genesee, including the city of Flint, which changed from wet to dry this spring, refused to reiterate its emphatic verdict of last fall in favor of suffrage. In that county a majority of 1,911 in favor of the amendment is changed to a 1,321 majority against it. The result is all the more remarkable there in view of the fact that there is a strong socialistic sentiment in Genesee, particularly in the city of Flint, which elected a socialist mayor on occasions. Equal suffrage is one of the creeds of the socialistic party.

The county of Lenawee, including the city of Adrian, another county that recorded a dry verdict this spring, refused to stand by women's suffrage. Lenawee's majority in favor of the amendment last fall was 684. This spring the majority against the amendment was 1,180.

FLINT'S LETTER

The weakness in today's Boston market was attributed to the dull sagging of market in New York, the decline of twelve shillings and sixpence in London Copper warrants and the absence of any support whatever by the professionals or the general public.

There are indelible evidences that the position of copper metal is a strong one and indications are that higher prices will be seen unless there is a decided change in conditions. Our exports, so far this month, have been on a basis of eighty million pounds for the month and, there is no reason to expect any larger output from the refineries than last month, consequently there should be another large decrease in the visible supply for the month. Without any news to account for it the lake coppers were the weakest today. Osceola closing
