

TWO ESCAPE FROM JAIL

HILL SCOTT, FORMERLY OF ESCANABA, AND CHARLES DUNCAN BREAK JAIL AT IRON MOUNTAIN

SCOTT HAILS FROM GLADSTONE

Sheriff Curran is Notified of Escape of Desperate Criminals—Sheriff Dykes Was Here

While Sheriff John Dykes of Dickson county was in Escanaba last night two criminals broke out of the Iron Mountain jail and escaped. Sheriff J. J. Curran was immediately notified and he in turn located Sheriff Dykes who was on his way back to Iron Mountain, at Powers, and told him of the escape.

The criminals who are now at large are Charles Duncan and Hill Scott. Both are regarded as dangerous criminals and the police throughout the Upper Peninsula have been notified to keep a sharp lookout for them.

Duncan is about thirty years of age, five feet six inches in height and weighs about 145 pounds. He is chunkily built, has a scar on the right side of his face and his nose is long. He is somewhat shaven. His skin is dark although he has light hair. His eyes are brown. He wore a black suit, a black bow tie. He is a telegraph operator and a heavy drinker and much given to the habit of gambling.

Scott is a native of Escanaba and resided in Gladstone previous to leaving a term in the Waupun penitentiary in Wisconsin. He is about forty years of age, five feet, eleven inches tall, weighs 160 pounds, wears a beard of reddish tinged mixed with gray, sandy colored hair. He wore a dark shabby suit of clothes. He is a rather sickly complexion and has a disheveled look. He is a telegrapher by trade and is expected for a position with some railroad.

THE FOURTH AT FLAT ROCK

Baseball Will be the Big Feature of the Day's Celebration

Everything is in readiness for the Fourth of July celebration at Flat Rock. The various committees have completed the work assigned to them and there has been nothing left undone that will tend to make the celebration a glorious success.

MRS. D. H. MERRITT HAS PASSED AWAY

Old Resident of Marquette Died Saturday Afternoon at Her Home on Ridge Street.

Marquette, June 30.—Mrs. Daniel H. Merritt, wife of one of Marquette's oldest residents and herself a pioneer of the city, passed from life Saturday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock, after a week's illness. Her death was due to advanced age, she having celebrated her seventy-fourth birthday about three months ago. At her bedside were her husband and four children. All but one of the latter reside out of town. They were called here when it was apparent the end was near.

Since coming to the city as a bride in 1859 Mrs. Merritt had been active in social matters until advanced age prevented. She was one of those who built up the foundation upon which Marquette stands socially today. Her character as a lovable, refined woman drew around her a large circle of lifelong acquaintances. Mrs. Merritt was especially fond of young people. She was a devout member of St. Paul's Episcopal church and was one of its earliest supporters. Her charities were numerous. Doing for or giving to someone at all times was a characteristic of Mr. Merritt.

James Alford, father of Mrs. Merritt, was born in England and immigrated to this country at the age of fourteen. After a few years' residence in this country he married Elmira Chase, a Vermont girl, and about 1838 he and his wife moved to Cleveland, O. Their daughter was born April 8, 1839, near where the Woodell House, in Cleveland, now stands, at the corner of Superior street and what was once Bank street. A few years later she went with her parents to Lancaster, O., where she lived until she was married, July 26, 1860, coming to Marquette with her husband in that year. Mrs. Merritt has resided here continuously since.

THE OPENING CEREMONIES

FIFTEEN THOUSAND VETERANS SIT IN SWELTERING HEAT AND LISTEN TO LONG ADDRESSES

GOV. TENER WELCOMES SOLDIERS

Commander of United Confederate Veterans Urges Pensions for Soldiers of the South

(By Associated Press.)
Gettysburg, Pa., July 1.—Fifteen thousand veterans sat in the sweltering heat of a big tent on the battle field today and joined in the opening ceremonies of the celebration. The doctors and nurses in attendance looked apprehensive as the old men climbed over their seats and tried to look comfortable in a temperature that was passed the hundred mark.

Colonel J. M. Shoonmaker, chairman of the Pennsylvania battle celebration commission presided and Governor Tener welcomed the men of the blue and the grey. Secretary of War Garrison delivered the oration of the day.

Judge Alfred Beers, commander in chief of the G. A. R., then spoke and he was followed by General Bennett H. Young, of Kentucky, grand commander of the United Confederate Veterans, who suggested that the confederates be given the same privileges as the federal soldiers. He advocated their admittance to the government homes and the paying of pensions to them. "For sixty years," he said, "the south has helped to pay the pensions of the union. He said McKinley has reached the sublimate heights of statesmanship when he allowed a little daughter of the south to pin a confederate badge on his breast and then urged that stones be provided for the confederates who had died in northern prisons. "The same before us today," he concluded, "proves the greatness and the perpetuity of the American Republic."

Despite the strenuous efforts of the regular army men to prevent, thousands of the veterans slept on the Gettysburg field last night just as they did fifty years ago, without covering. The late trains poured veterans in so fast last evening that they could not be accommodated. Fifty-five thousand are expected by nightfall.

Disclosures to be Made to Investigators Tomorrow Expected to Startle World

Washington, D. C., July 1.—The disclosures to follow the reopening of the Senate lobby investigation tomorrow are expected to be among the most important developments in recent years in a congressional inquiry.

John Kirby, Jr., and David M. Parry, former presidents of the National Association of Manufacturers have cancelled reservations on the liner Ventura and have engaged transportation to Washington appear before the lobby investigators. They promise to make public statements.

WOMEN SUICIDE TO PREVENT OUTRAGES

Forty Women of Durango Have Taken their Lives Since Rebels Occupied the City

(By Associated Press.)
Mexico City, July 1.—Forty women residents of Durango have committed suicide since the occupation of the rebels last week. The women of the city have become desperate as a result of the treatment given them by the rebels who conduct themselves like bandits. They burned the greater portion of the business section after looting and the wildest excesses. The foreign flags are not respected. Many German women have been forced to submit to indignities and a few Americans have been wounded and one Englishman killed. The Mexican government is sending troops to the relief of the city.

Hoffman's Team is Going to Make the Others Hustle for Pennant Honors

The box score of the game played Sunday at Gladstone between the Beaults and the Eagles is appended. The writup in yesterday's issue of The Mirror should have been credited to the Gladstone Reporter.

Buck Nolden, who was on the mound for the Beaults, proved conclusively that he has "come back" with a vengeance. His teammates gave him faultless support and the Beaults made it evident that they are going to make a strong bid for pennant honors.

WOLVERTON PUT ONE OVER ON UMPIRE FINNEY

He was banished to the center field clubhouse by Umpire Finney in a game at San Francisco the other day, but sat down on the doorstep to watch the game. Finney perceived him, stopped the game and motioned him off the field. Harry then puffed his back up and sat on the doorstep with his feet against the jam. His point of view remained the same, and there was slight change in his body, but he was off the field and Finney knew it. The game continued.

Helpful Beauty Hints
Numerous Hints Given Here for the Toilet—Lotions and Bleaches for Face, Neck and Arms—Removal of Freckles—Hair Beautifier.

Milk of Cucumber—Cut up two large cucumbers and cover with water—about half a cupful of water will be about right. Let simmer half an hour and keep covered to the water will not steam away, then take off and strain through cloth to the water add a cupful of boiling water, 10 grains of powdered borax and enough tincture of benzoin to give the water a look milky. Strain the liquid in gradually. When cool, bottle. This is a delightful skin lotion, and can be used freely upon face, neck and arms. It is claimed that the use of an onion juice to remove stains from the hands and nails will make the skin yellow and the nails brittle. Peroxide of hydrogen is recommended using a toothpick and a little cotton to clean under the nails. No metal such as a knife, or point of scissors should be used to clean under the nails.
Ripe tomato juice is claimed to have bleaching qualities for the toilet. It is certainly inexpensive and harmless, and easily within reach of any one. It is used externally, like lemon juice.
Ghical acetic acid is just what its name implies—an acid, and a strong one, and if used at all it is largely diluted, fifteen parts of water to one of the acid, is used as an astringent for dabbly muscles, and some claim it as a bleach. Any acid will burn out the natural oil of the skin if used too strong or too freely. Vinegar, though an acid, is healing and disinfecting.

A bleach for freckles is given, made by mixing one dram of borax with one-half fluid ounce of diluted acetic acid, and one ounce of rose water. Apply at night, and leave on. If the skin becomes tender and sensitive apply a soothing cold cream.
Pork Diet for the Complexion.
Pork is called by a doctor an excellent cosmetic. It is guaranteed to provide the complexion of a newly opened blush rose. If you can't get pork you are urged to eat bacon, the reason is this: Usually, when the skin is dry, it is deficient in oil, and cosmetics are employed to soft and moisten it, as supplied by the skin. The reason, said a doctor recently, that many girls have such dry, gray skin is because, in addition to breathing fresh air, they eat fat (bacon and pork) than 40 their sisters in the cities. You will find that girls who live in or near towns and play many games outdoors do not have the clear, rosy complexion that leave the fairer girls of the country. Baked bacon and pork are the staple meat of the countryside, and there is only one flesh food that is better for the skin, namely, roast pork. Pork is not easy to digest, but it acts beneficially on the systems of those who can eat it. It supplies oil to the skin.

Teeth-Hold Hair Ornament in Place.
There is already a woman's back comb designed so as to retain its place in the hair. It has remained for a Massachusetts man to turn on a rattle with the same virtue. A barrette has a row of teeth inside and running lengthwise with the back. The pin is wide enough to carry an opening into which the teeth fit, so that when the whole is closed and fastened in the hair there is little danger of the pin coming open, as the pins of most barrettes are prone to do, inasmuch as the strands of hair that are caught between the teeth keep it in position. There is probably no one article of dress or ornament more frequently lost by a woman than a barrette, and as many of these are costly articles, some of them, indeed, containing valuable jewels, the importance of this safety device can be readily appreciated.

Art of Thieving.
The merest chance, writes our Cairo correspondent, the police there have just made a startling discovery in the existence for some time past of a regular school for the education and turning out of young criminals, such as is so graphically described in "Oliver Twist."
Branches of this "School of Crime" had been founded in four different parts of the native quarter, and lessons were given there nightly by ten native Egyptians. The "students," who were for the most part sent there by their parents, and whose age could not exceed ten years, had to attend the classes for three years.

At the end of that period the most adept of them were turned out to earn their own living and a percentage of their ill-gotten gains had to be handed over to the directors of the school, who kept their pupils very much under their influence. At present there are no fewer than two hundred budding "Bill Sykeses" attending the school, and all are being initiated into the mysteries of pocket-picking, forcing locks and similar branches of the fine art of thieving. They are also taught to disguise themselves, and are made adept in the science of strangulation.

SHOULD WE CELEBRATE ON THE 2D OF JULY?

On the 2d of July, 1776 John Adams, then one of the representatives of Massachusetts in the Continental Congress, wrote to his wife, Abigail: "Yesterday the greatest question was decided which was ever debated in America, and a greater perhaps never was nor will be decided among men." In a second letter, written the same day, he said: "But the day is past. The 2d of July will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America. I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations from one end of this continent to the other from this time forward forevermore." When the resolution was taken up on the 2d all the states, except New York, voted to accept it. Thus on the 2d day of July, 1776, the independence of the thirteen united colonies from the throne of Great Britain was definitely decided upon. The 2d and not the 4th may be called the true date of the separation. We could with propriety celebrate the Fourth two days earlier. That the participants in the work considered the 2d as the true date is shown by the letters written by John Adams, quoted at the beginning of this article. The popular fancy, however, seized upon the Fourth, the date of acceptance of Jefferson's more dramatic declaration of the reasons for the separation, as the proper day to celebrate. The debate upon the document was continued until the afternoon of the Fourth and, says Jefferson, might have run on interminably at any other season of the year. But the weather was oppressively warm, and the hall in which the delegates sat was close to the stable. "Whence the hungry flies swarmed thick and fierce, alighting on the faces of the delegates and biting hard through their thin silk stockings. Treason was preferable to discomfort," and at last the delegates were brought to such a state of mind as to agree to the Declaration without further amendment.

The real worth of a refrigerator depends largely upon the hidden wall construction. You buy good kitchen ware because you know it will keep its newness and beauty longer than the ten cent store "secondly". The same principle applies to your refrigerator. The RHINELANDER is beautifully but scientifically built and contains the most perfect system of sanitary air circulation known.

Ludington Street Lights to Form Important Part in Decorative Scheme for the Fourth

The residents of Escanaba and the city last evening were given an inkling of the appearance Ludington street will have on the 4th of July. The wires strung across the streets now bear red, white and blue bulbs. The red lights are strung along the north side of the street, the white lights in the center and the blue to the south. The buying of the bulbs, a most pleasing one. The bulbs, will be placed in the sockets of the street lights this evening. The electric street works in Escanaba are about to be established.

MOCK TRIAL SCORES HIT

Some when he needed help, he himself had seen the proposal, Mr. Allo graciously described several incidents in the life of the defendant, "Miss" Dattner, who testified that she was appearing in order to pay up a big board bill she owed the widow, very positively confirmed this evidence.

The witness, which was aptly conducted by John Cunniffsky, was that "Artie" had made love not to the widow Jerusha Rugee Perkins, but rather to the sweet and demure niece—the "Clinging vine" type—Miss Jerusha Ray Perkins. Mr. Tolson Strom, G. B. Snyder, confirmed this evidence by graphically telling how, after returning from a dog fight in which many prominent men were present, he had met the defendant, a supposed prostitute. The witness was that the defendant was such that the dog fight nothing but rather aimed, was refused to marry her. The personal appearance of the defendant, with a nose like a flaming torch, and "get up" that would make a Bowery tough envious, helped pass this conclusion.

The main witness of the first day, whose name is so long that it would put you out of breath to read it, he's commonly known as B. J. Goodman of Little Lake, and he surely lived up to his reputation as a comedian; for fifteen minutes he kept everyone in a perfect uproar, and even seriously upset the dignity of the court; he surely gave the defendant a "reputation." The Court had to rise to a second serious emergency when a guffrage broke into the hall, threw bombs and made herself generally obnoxious. Her dashing appearance belied any suggestion, however, that she had been on a hunger strike. The Guffrag, captured her with an efficiency that ought to commend him to the British Government.

T. E. Strom, who was hastily appointed Judge when Mr. Jennings was called out of town, presided with great dignity. With the rest of the court officers however (John Loeil in particular) he had considerable difficulty in always maintaining his equanimity. The Jury, from Professor Tall Brookler, Washington, Beam, and today's witnesses, and returned a verdict for the defendant in the sum of $18.48 to the Judge, and $1 to the Jury.

Col. Newton who furnished the line of evidence and took the part of the Plaintiff's Attorney was a minister in himself, and will be warmly greeted if he ever returns to this part of the country.

TWO MULES KILLED ON NORTHWESTERN VIADUCT

Train No. 122 Hit Span of Mules—Just Out of Chicago

Train No. 122 on the Northwestern railroad was slightly delayed by a peculiar accident. Two mules had in some manner crawled onto the viaduct just outside of Chicago and were instantly killed when the train struck them. How the mules made their way onto the viaduct is a subject of much interest among the railroad men.

At Mead's Drug-store today, seals will be placed on sale for the opening engagement of "The Making of the Panama Canal" and "Actual Scenes of the Bitkan War" in Kinemacolor. These wonderful pictures, which caused a real sensation on their presentation in New York, are still being shown in that city at the Carnegie Library. These pictures are in the same process of natural color motion photography which made the Kinemacolor representation of the Coronation of King George and Darbar so noteworthy. Not only are the present subjects even more interesting to Americans than the Coronation and Darbar could be, but it is said that the Kinemacolor process has itself been vastly improved and that, therefore, these pictures are more beautiful than their predecessors in popular favor. So lifelike is the magic of this long sought process that every color of nature, whether it be the scarlet of some strange tropical blossom or the indigo of the summer seas that wash the isthmus on either side, is reproduced in all exactitude and in every exquisite shading for the benefit of the spectator. And, as well does the natural color reproduce the actual scenes of warfare for the spectator.

She was Fired On Account of Good Looks

Restaurant Man Says Plain Girl Does More Work, So Chorus Type Must Be Banned.

That same sort of discrimination which has resulted in the discharge from certain railroad shops of all men weighing less than 160 pounds and the discharge of all street car conductors weighing more than 190 pounds may be applied to the waitress.

Looks! Why, she was the best-looking girl you had. She was a regular headliner here, a bill-topper. Wasn't that bad business policy? Stop right there," the manager interrupted. "Business will be bet-

They Remembered

"Do you remember," he asked with a little choke of sadness in his voice, "the last time we walked together at home? Wasn't it something like that? Do you know, I can smell the hay lying in the fields, and can hear the brook where it bubbled over the shallows at the bridge."

"That's an awfully unsafe bridge," she answered, the same touch of reminiscent sadness in her voice. "I wonder if they have repaired it yet?"

"No, Mrs. Hinkel's cow broke through the side rail and broke its leg. But do you remember how we leaned over the rail and listened to the brook? I don't think we spoke twenty words."

"Weren't the mosquitoes awful?" she said. "I remember how mad I was when you slapped at one on the back of my neck."

Yes, they were terrible. I don't believe, though, we shall ever see the brook again as it was that night. You remember how every time it made the top of the orchard trees look and how dark it was under the trees? Look out! Here comes an auto! I hate the foot of an auto horn, don't you?"

Yes, but I like it better than the rattling of a truck. It is over yonder. Don't you remember how we drove down in the swamp that night? I kept thinking, 'There was the brook, the brook always seemed to be behind the hills like a smiling mother. You leaned him the singing together and I listened to my hat tell into the brook.'

"I got a fearful cold wading in after that hat. I guess it was because we must have begun to rise and I got a chill that struck in through my wet clothes. But I can never forget how still and beautiful everything was, except for the frogs and the mosquitoes, and that whiplash will that kept up its whistling till I thought I'd burst."

And do you remember, when we did talk, you were planning to buy the Hadley farm, because your mother was a Hadley and was born there? And then you said you guessed you wouldn't, because it was rather low ground and you thought your mother caught her malaria from it?"

But it is a beautiful old farm, just the same, even if nobody ever could make a living from it. Probably that comes because the land is worn out. But I always did like the old house. It is so big and comfortable. Do you know the kitchen alone is as big as a New York flat?"

"Bigger, I think," she said. "But you said to keep it warm you'd have to cut and split twenty cords of wood, and that you'd rather go and enlist in the navy. Then I cried, and you said you'd come to the city and make your fortune. After that I came here to study shorthand. My, during those first few weeks how I wished I was back in the country. I used to sit and cry all the evening because I was so lonely."

He laughed joyously. "That's the first friend you met was me," he said. "How glad you were when I told you I'd come to the city and was getting eighteen a week."

"Yes," she said. "Then she loved her voice and asked anxiously, 'Honey, don't you think Central Park is never than the country?'"

"Don't!" he said enthusiastically. "Well, I guess I do. Let us go and get an ice cream soda."

"And won't the folks be surprised when they hear we're married?" she fairly shook with mirth.

And won't they be surprised to hear our wedding journey was a walk around Central Park?"

The laugh became louder. "And ain't you," she cried rapturously, "glad we came to New York?"

answer is "Yes, sir," and away she goes. Our reputation for quick and efficient service is the gain by it. I won't go the length of saying I'll never hire another blonde. But I will say this: let the chorus girl type stick to the profession. There's no room for her in this business."—New York World.

Banana the Greatest Fruit. Mr. Gustavo Leblanco, a Costa Rican, speaking at the Queen's Hotel recently about fruit problems in Central America, stated that every year the city to which he belongs, Port Limon, sends out 8,000,000 bunches of the best commercial fruit grown in the tropical lands of Central America.

"In the district surrounding Port Limon there are about forty plantations," each one with its manager, and each covering an area of from 100 to 500 acres.

"The managers of these plantations are chiefly Americans, though there is a sprinkling of English, German and native managers."

The Costa Rican Railway, the Northern Costa Rican Railway, and numerous branch lines have been built for the purpose of developing this great fruit zone, the working of which is becoming more and more profitable every year.

"The banana industry is perhaps the most important of the fruit industries."

"A good banana plantation will yield as much as 500 bunches for every two and one-half acres, and sometimes as many as 750 bunches are raised. Squads of negroes are set to work cutting down the banana bunches and a squad cuts as a rule 300 bunches a day for which the negro receives about 3 or 4 cents a bunch."

BARGE LOST PART OF DECK LOAD LAST NIGHT

When Being Towed Out of Wells it Dropped 100,000 Feet of Lumber Slid From Barge. Haisted.

At 7 o'clock last night the barge, loaded with a portion of the deckload of lumber, while being towed by the Steamer Progress from the docks of the L. S. Olsen company at Wells.

The Progress when its tow left the docks shortly after seven o'clock and while making a sharp turn the lumber barge developed a list and about 100,000 feet of lumber slid off into the bay.

The Haisted carried a valuable cargo of lumber but the best timber was in the hold and that which slid into the bay represented only about one-seventh of the cargo and that the most valuable part. A crew of men at once set to work gathering up the floating timber and not one stick was lost.
