SHIFTS DON'T WORRY CUPID

MISS ALICE MUNNINGS AND ALEXANDER MACSWAN MARRIED TODAY AT WATERLOO. IOWA

FORMER CLERKS AT LUDINGTON

Bride Clerked at Hotel by Day, Bridegroom was the Night Clerk

Miss Alice Munnings for eighteen years day clerk at the Ludington hotel in this city and Alexander MacSwan, who for eight years served as night clerk in the same hotel, were married today at Waterloo, Iowa and will sail from New York next Wednesday for Scotland.

Miss Munnings came to Escanaba from Scotland when she was little more than a child and in a few years became day clerk at the Ludington hotel. During her many years of service she gained a large circle of friends and was the best known of the hotel clerks in the Upper Peninsula. Genial and with an aptitude for making friends that but few possess she numbers her friends here by the hundreds.

Mr. MacSwan until four months ago served as the night clerk at the Ludington when he resigned to accept a similar position at the Palmer house in Chicago. He too is of that genial mould that is the most valuable asset in a hotel clerk and his friends here are a legion.

Following the ceremony the couple left for New York where on July 16 they will take a steamer for Scotland. They will later tour the British Isles and the continent. They will be in London for several weeks.

Upon their return they will likely make their home in Waterloo, Iowa.

They arrived home shortly before five o'clock.

Despite the raging of the storm the young people enjoyed a picnic feast, barn dancing, etc.

The party was given in honor of Miss Edie Lindquist, Earl Bossler and Robert Johnson of Marquette who are visiting in this city.

Three Men Step Onto Road and he Believes Them to be Highwaymen

Edward Meyers, the mail carrier who hauls the mail between West Gladstone and the Northwestern station received a scare about nine o'clock last night while driving along his route.

A number of people had congregated in the vicinity of the bluff near Gladstone and three of the crowd stepped from the woods at a point along the road that is rather dark and lonely. Thinking immediately of his precious burden and suspecting that the men might be highwaymen, Meyers whipped up his horse and was soon out of what he believed to be the danger zone.

REVISE THE SCHOOL LAWS

LUTHER L. WRIGHT, SUPERINTENDENT PUBLIC INSTRUCTION, TALKS TO COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

STATE BOARD MEETS JULY 25

Repeal of Act 176 of 1891, Unifying Upper Peninsula Township School Systems, Will be Asked.

Marquette, July 12.—At yesterday's meeting of the upper peninsula county school commissioners, convened at the Northern State Normal school at 9 a. m., and which continued just one hour, Luther L. Wright, state superintendent of public instruction, discussed the question of having all township schools of the state operate under the unit township law of 1909, which applies to Michigan as a whole. At present all township systems in the upper peninsula are organized under Act 176 of the public acts of 1891, known as the "upper peninsula township unit law," which authorizes any township to organize as a single school district; that is, it may have any number of schools, but all under the control of one board.

Under the present system there is no way of changing the system despite that there are many things that school officers both of the upper peninsula and of the state as a whole want to change. Still, the township schools north of the Straits must operate under Act 176, unless this act is repealed. If repealed, the townships might organize under the unit township law of 1909. Superintendent Wright is now working to bring about this change and will endeavor to induce the legislature to pass a bill repealing the act of 1911, attaching thereto a referendum providing that the proposed measure be submitted to popular vote in the upper peninsula. The school commissioners have all agreed that there are a number of important changes that should be made.

May Not Amend Local Acts. The one thing which stands in the way of a simple revision of the law to suit the needs of the upper peninsula is the sections of the constitution as it was last revised, forbidding the passage of local or special acts. The attorney-general holds that no local (Continued on page five)

POLICE SEEK BLACK HANDER

GLADSTONE MERCHANT RECEIVES DEMAND FOR $500 WITH LIFE AS FORFEIT

MAY BE THE WORK OF A BOY

Money Was to Have Been Placed at Foot of Bluff Last Night—Author Fails to Show Up

L. Jacobs, a Gladstone merchant, received a conventional blackhand letter yesterday afternoon demanding $500 with his life as the forfeit and the Gladstone police are today uncertain as to whether the letter is a bona fide demand of one who seeks money or vengeance, or the work of a nickel library leading youngster.

The writing is of the scrawly kind that might either be attributed to a boy or a person of uncertain literary attainments. Following the demand that $500 be placed at the foot of the bluff outside of Gladstone and the threat of life, appears a black hand, a crudely drawn near-likeness of a revolver, with a smear of blood or red paint at the bottom to emphasize the blood thirstiness of the author.

Sheriff Curran and Under Sheriff Henry were notified of the receipt of the letter by Jacobs as were the Gladstone police and several officers gathered about the foot of the bluff where the money was to be placed, early last evening and distributed themselves in hiding where they might see the blackmailer if he arrived on the scene.

They waited until the storm broke without results and today there is much speculation as to whether the letter is a hoax or the real thing.

The police are about inclined to believe that the letter was written by a youngster but Mr. Jacobs is thoroughly frightened and fears for his life.

Mr. Jacobs showed the letter to a number of people before he was cautioned by the police not to speak of it and the Chief of Gladstone is inclined to believe that this publicity might have kept the Black Hander away.

CROSSING A FUNERAL. The Point at Which an Old Superstition May Cease to Govern.

"I don't suppose I'm more superstitious than most folks," said Mr. Sandback. "Yet I never cross a funeral. There's an old superstition that to do this brings bad luck. I don't know whether I refrain because of this fear or because crossing a funeral, considering your own convictions first, in time hurrying on, seems to show a lack of the proper respect due the mourners; but anyway I find myself instinctively halting when a funeral comes along and not crossing over until it has passed, though I do not always wait for the very end of the procession."

Now as that draws near I look along the line and when I see coming a carriage in which the men are sitting back comfortably smoking big fat cigars, why I figure that these men are not so really and truly mourners but that if I am in a hurry I can pass in front of them without falling under the ban of the superstition or committing any impropriety."

Importance of Deep Breathing. Nervousness can be cured by forming the habit of breathing deep and long, and one medical authority prescribes it in his schedules for nervous women. All singers are invariably high-chested and free from colds or chronic coughing spells. It is because they have learned to breathe from the waist instead of the top of the lungs, so the majority of people do. To breathe deeply is to stimulate the heart and circulation. It means a full, high chest and broad shoulders. It means practical lameness from the dangers incurred by exposure. It means a good carriage and well-poised head. And best of all, it means perfect physical health.

Miss Agnes Marchant of Green Bay returned to her home today after a visit with relatives in the city.

MISS MARGERY ALESHIRE

The time to impart this knowledge of Sex Hygiene begins when the child asks "why" and "where" and "how" with reference to life and especially human life. If the child is in earnest (and he is sure to be) he will get an answer to his questions from some source. It is for us to say what that source shall be; and it is vitally important that the source be right and the teaching right. Mothers and fathers are the natural teachers and should be the best. But many fathers and mothers confess their inability to impart the necessary information. It would require only a few plain reverent words to answer the little child's question, longer talks with the older child—but how, asks the father and mother.

Here the schools might come in with the physicians of clean life and pure hearts and loving the pure hearted little child of whom the great Teacher said, "Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

These physicians might tell the boys and girls in clear and carefully chosen language just what their minds question and with that knowledge plant the seed of reverence for the body which the Creator built for man's soul, each part of which body he gave to be under control of mind and heart.

Does man presume to criticize his Maker? It would seem so when the subject of Sex Hygiene is spoken of with shame facedness. God's handiwork is perfect and it is akin to blasphemy to call his handiwork impure. The function of reproduction as the Creator planned it is perfect as all his works of creation are.

And this function of reproduction which the sole function of the body sexual is invested with abounding beauty in all of nature. The perfume and color of our garden flowers, the wonderful plumage of the very commonest bird, God's gardens on mountain side and rolling prairie, even the wild blossoms of the roadside tell of the glory of life producing life. The myriad grains and fruits of North and South are the expression of sex in vegetation. The whole world is eloquent to the ear that can catch its voice, eloquent in its appeal for the care of the power to produce life.

But many cannot hear this voice and they have not yet listened to the voice of God. The loud call of selfish pleasure has drowned the quieter and less compelling voice. And it has come that these are ashamed to speak of the source of human life. From these the feeling has grown that this subject should be left to dark corners and whispered words until without knowing why, many, even pure minded men and women, blush to speak of the life giving function.

Let us have courage to declare that we will begin the New Day that is just opening before us, the Day that world, Day that will bring clear eyed and pure hearted men and women. Day when men and women can look into the questioning eyes of the little child and answer without fear or shame, Day of Glory when men and women shall walk through this life, walking before God as He planned may be a "thousand years" in this old earth should. For the pure in heart do see God.

A GREATER MENACE THAN THE WHITE PLAGUE

Much is being done today toward the cure of tuberculosis; the efforts of communities, of separate states and of the nation itself are put forth to stamp out the so called "White Plague." Free lectures are given throughout the country, anti-tuberculosis clubs are formed, institutions are established for the treatment of those afflicted with the disease. Sanitary measures are advocated, and incidentally many thousands of dollars are expended.

It is well that this is so. Human life is sacred and every means should be taken to conserve life. But there is a greater foe to human life than tuberculosis, and that is the myriad headed monster that boldly stalks our streets and feeds upon the harvested "wild oats" that youth was formerly condoned for cultivating. One of these heads, so to speak, is that unmentionable disease which is visited "to the third and to the fourth generation" of them that receive this brand of sin.

Every wide awake man and woman, and every one who will simply read the reports of the State Board of Health, will know that our nation is even now in danger of early decay and death from the result of the ravages of this one form of disease.

If one who knows, were asked to choose which of three diseases he would least fear to be afflicted with Tuberculosis, cancer or the disease, the name of which is considered unfit for public utterance—he would quickly answer, give me either of the first mentioned or both combined, rather than the last and most to be dreaded. Neither tuberculosis, nor cancer has the power to afflict succeeding generations; but this monstrous thing that we have been so covetly passing by, works evil to body and mind in generations to come.

And this menace to human life has scarcely been recognized outside the medical profession until these last few years. Now there is the murmuring of a great awakening. Men and women are asking why this neglect or a subject of such vital importance. All over the land men and women are asking what can be done about it.

From all sides attention has been drawn to Sex Hygiene. A definition of this term may help make our statements more clear. The standard dictionary defines Hygiene as "The branch of Medical Science that relates to the preservation and improvement of sexual health both in individuals and in communities."

Hygiene has been for many years taught in our schools without any opposition, but always a most important yes, the most important division of general Hygiene has been omitted from the text books and the oral lesson. However this awakening of recent years has led to discussion and study and enlightenment, and the cobwebs of prudery and superstition are being cleared away; though from some quarters the cry is still heard for days of ignorance, and darkness instead of the knowledge and light that is promised.

The time to impart this knowledge of Sex Hygiene begins when the child asks "why" and "where" and "how" with reference to life and especially human life. If the child is in earnest (and he is sure to be) he will get an answer to his questions from some source. It is for us to say what that source shall be; and it is vitally important that the source be right and the teaching right. Mothers and fathers are the natural teachers and should be the best. But many fathers and mothers confess their inability to impart the necessary information. It would require only a few plain reverent words to answer the little child's question, longer talks with the older child—but how, asks the father and mother.

Here the schools might come in with the physicians of clean life and pure hearts and loving the pure hearted little child of whom the great Teacher said, "Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

These physicians might tell the boys and girls in clear and carefully chosen language just what their minds question and with that knowledge plant the seed of reverence for the body which the Creator built for man's soul, each part of which body he gave to be under control of mind and heart.

Does man presume to criticize his Maker? It would seem so when the subject of Sex Hygiene is spoken of with shame facedness. God's handiwork is perfect and it is akin to blasphemy to call his handiwork impure. The function of reproduction as the Creator planned it is perfect as all his works of creation are.

And this function of reproduction which the sole function of the body sexual is invested with abounding beauty in all of nature. The perfume and color of our garden flowers, the wonderful plumage of the very commonest bird, God's gardens on mountain side and rolling prairie, even the wild blossoms of the roadside tell of the glory of life producing life. The myriad grains and fruits of North and South are the expression of sex in vegetation. The whole world is eloquent to the ear that can catch its voice, eloquent in its appeal for the care of the power to produce life.

But many cannot hear this voice and they have not yet listened to the voice of God. The loud call of selfish pleasure has drowned the quieter and less compelling voice. And it has come that these are ashamed to speak of the source of human life. From these the feeling has grown that this subject should be left to dark corners and whispered words until without knowing why, many, even pure minded men and women, blush to speak of the life giving function.

Let us have courage to declare that we will begin the New Day that is just opening before us, the Day that world, Day that will bring clear eyed and pure hearted men and women. Day when men and women can look into the questioning eyes of the little child and answer without fear or shame, Day of Glory when men and women shall walk through this life, walking before God as He planned may be a "thousand years" in this old earth should. UNDER SHERIFF ASSUMES ROLE OF TREE MERCHANT. Lures Board Bill Jumper Into his Rig With Fictitious Story and Makes Good. In the arrest of a board bill jumper who was sentenced to spend thirty days in the county jail for his offence Under Sheriff Adam Henry pulled off a bit of detective work. The man was expecting arrest and was looking for a visit from the sheriff so it was thought best that the Under Sheriff, whom the man did not know, should make the arrest. Mr. Henry accordingly drove to where the fellow was believed to be, furnished with his description. When about a half mile from his destination Henry noticed that a man who had been walking along the road in his direction had disappeared. This aroused his suspicions and after driving about a quarter of a mile further he turned and drove his horse back over the same route. He came upon the individual who had ducked out of sight and asked him if he wanted to ride. The man was a little dubious and asked: "What are you doing?" "Selling apple trees," was Henry's reply. The man climbed in they started off. "Haven't I seen you around the boarding house at Commonwealth?" asked Henry. "Yep, I boarded there," was the reply. "Your name is Bourdreau," isn't it pursued Henry. "Yep," was the answer. "When they came to the forks in the road where the right fork leads to Shaffer and the left to Escanaba, Bourdreau wanted to alight but when he was informed that the "apple tree man" was an officer and that he (Bourdreau) was under arrest, he grinned sheepishly and admitted that he guessed he had been "stung."

SAYS PIRATES ARE NOT GAME

Clarke Bemoans Scarcity of Courage on His Team.

ADVERSITY AFFECTS SOME.

Failure to Hit or Field Perfectly Causes Players to Worry—Manager Admits Club Has Been Disappointed to Him and the Fans.

"What is the matter with the Pirates?" was the question put to Manager Fred Clarke, of the Pittsburgh baseball club by a scribe recently. "Tell me, if you will, just what you think is most largely responsible for the failure of the team to live up to the standard the fans set for it when the season opened."

"Did you ever hear of a dead live man?" queried the Pirate manager.

"Well, that is the state of many of my players. They have been through so many misfortunes this season that they are afraid to do anything for fear it will turn out wrong.

"Our troubles started with accidents which threw our entire machinery out of whack and broke up a combination which looked like a winner. The fans know all about these accidents—the injury to Wagner, the fracture of Gibson's ankle, the illness of Campbell's baby, the injuries to Simon and Kelly, to Artie Butler, to Viox and Miller.

"These untoward events were followed by a batting slump which affected every member of the team at once. It was no more noticeable in any one than in Bobby Byrne, but he has apparently recovered, and the others have not.

"You know all about what we have been through. Now, let me see if I can explain something to you. I want to convey my meaning clearly, for I don't want to do anybody an injustice.

"There are ball players who are gamblers than others. 'Gambling' is hardly the word I want, but I can think of no other. What I mean is this: Some ball players are not affected by adversity. A slump does not weigh on their minds. Unfortunately we have too few of that class in our club. We have an over-abundance of the players who worry when they fall to hit or field perfectly. That is not to their discredit, for it simply means that they are in earnest. In fact, many of them are trying too hard under such conditions.

"In the days of our pennant winning team we had a bunch of hard hitters, great fielders and wonderful base runners. Yet the man whom we depended on most in the pinches was a man who never batted 300 in his life—Claude Ritchey. Why? Because he was one of those care free fellows who never worried about anything. If he did, all right, and if he didn't, all right. That was his way of looking at matters, and it made him a great ball player. Coming to bat in a pinch, with a pennant deciding game hanging on his ability to hit, did not affect him any more than lying down to take a nap.

"The stories of dissension, as I said before, are absolutely without foundation. The players are not and have never been laying down because they were not given a share of the receipts of the Cleveland exhibition game. I do not believe that any ball player ever laid down in a game, and I defy any one to show me where I am wrong. It is a practical impossibility for them to do it.

"If they do, whose interests are they hurting most? Their own, of course. The Pirates were tipped in advance

NEW LAWN TENNIS STAR.

William Johnston, Eighteen, Wins Pacific Coast Championship.

William Johnston of San Francisco, an eighteen-year-old boy, won the Pacific coast lawn tennis championship in singles recently at Del Monte, Cal., by defeating John Strachan in the final match, 6-1, 6-2, 3-6, 4-6, 6-4. Johnston, who has made a clean sweep of all the important tennis tournaments on the coast in the last year, including the British Columbia championship, will be sent across the mountains to represent the Pacific Coast Lawn Tennis association in the eastern events.

Strachan is but seventeen years of age.

LAJOIE MAY BE TRADED.

Detroit and Chicago Clubs After Cleveland Veteran.

Larry Lajoie, the veteran Cleveland player, who was deposited as the team's regular second sacker by Manager Joe Birmingham recently, may be seen in a Chicago or Detroit uniform shortly. It is said that Managers Callahan and Lajoie is sore at heart over being made what he terms a bench warmer when he is still able to play the position. ager Birmingham declares that the reason he benched Lajoie was because his broken hands had caused him to slump in his work. In fifty-three games this season he batted .327 and fielded 995. Detroit, it is understood, offered Sam Crawford or Bobby Veach or a fair sum of money in exchange for Larry. Jennings figures that with Lajoie batting behind Ty Cobb the hit and run play, a forgotten item in the Tigers' attack, would be revived.

As a purely mechanical baseball player Lajoie was a wonder—is still, compared to some in the big league. Time was when the issue between himself and Hans Wagner as to which was the greatest baseball player in the world was on everyone's lips; and many gave Larry the palm.

But Daddy Time's scythe cuts them all down to the common level and the once "greatest of all" has lived to be ordered to the bench by a former player, who was just big league class and that's all.

Maranville Some Scrapper. Little Maranville, the Boston shortstop, is a fighter from the headwaters. He believes the Braves can beat any team in the league and can show you how they can win the championship.

to win the pennant. They had every thing to lose and nothing to gain by playing below their standard. The fans expected them to win, and, while I am sorry that to date the patrons have been disappointed, I am certain that the players are not to blame and that they have been doing their best at all times."

ONE BATTLE FANS HAVE NEVER WON

Can Force Salaries and Releases, But Can Not Keep Pitchers From Passing.

There is one battle that baseball fans never won.

They have forced big league club owners to pay their stars bigger salaries than they thought they could; they have forced them to hire and fire managers; they have forced players and umpires to give them everything possible in the way of quick action and snappy ball games.

But they never yet have forced a pitcher to pitch to a man, if he wanted to pass him purposely. Crowds have hissed indignantly, they have yowled and threatened to mob the pitcher, but he has thrown four impossible ones to the batter and past his man.

Passing good hitters purposely when there are men on the bases ahead of them waiting to score has been a thorn in the side of every fan for years. All kinds of schemes have been suggested to make it impossible to do this, but nobody has been smart enough as yet to think up any system whereby pitchers could be forced to pitch to their batters.

Cobb, Jackson and recently Frank Baker are the swiftest in the American league whose value to their clubs has been diminished most regularly by the refusal of pitchers to put the ball where they can hit it in crisis.

Hitting is one of the most enjoyable parts of the game and it detracts much from the pleasure of a contest to see a couple of men go on only to have our favorite slugger walked on purpose.

There is no doubt that the system robe baseball of a great deal, but what can be done about it?

Helpful Beauty Hints

Face Massage By Finger Tips Makes Plump Cheeks—Antiseptic Mouth Wash—Best Hand Made Whitener—For Rough Fingers—Clean Scalp.

Never get the idea that little things are trifling. They make just the difference between a woman who is beautiful because well groomed and a beauty whose looks are ruined by carelessness.

Massaging the cheeks with the fingers increases and quickens the circulation in them and tends to keep them plump and free from wrinkles. A little cold cream or skin food can be used occasionally in massaging. Frequent brushing of the hair with a good bristle brush will reduce the necessity of frequent washing.

Tartar being an enemy to sound teeth and healthy gums, care should be taken to prevent tartar from forming. Use frequently in a solution of tincture of myrrh, enough in a glassful to make it milky in color. The mouth should be carefully rinsed with an antiseptic wash immediately upon arising and before going to sleep.

Good wash is made by adding one or two teaspoonfuls of latherine to a glassful of tepid water, but this must not be used too constantly. Another good mouth wash is thymol, seven grains; distilled water, one pint.

Cornmeal paste is the best hand-made whitener known. To make it you take enough cornmeal to half fill a pint bowl. Into this you put enough oil to moisten it slightly, and add a little oil of jasmine. A hand specialist adds also a little lime juice. To whiten the hands of her patrons she writes herself with a pair of gloves three sizes too large. She splits them down the back and with a dull knife spreads the paste on the inside of the gloves. She then puts them on her patient's hands, sewing up the outside with big stitches. In two hours she rubs the hands with sweet almond oil made into a paste with sheep's fat, which is left on the afternoon. In the evening they are something to conjure with.

Hair Famine is Imminent. There are few women in this country today who are not wearing coils or toupes shorn from the heads of maids in France, Switzerland, Germany or Hungary. There will be less false hairdressing in the future, unless a new source of supply is found. The several governments of Europe are legislating to make it illegal for a girl to sell her hair or for an agent to buy it. But there is another reason for the growing scarcity of hair for artificial purposes, and that is the practical exhaustion of the European supply. So great has been the American demand for the last six months that there is hardly a peasant girl to be found with long tresses. The girls of Brittany for many years have given the finest coils to the market, and every head there has been shorn. As it takes several years to grow coils to equal the first crop, it is evident a hair famine threatens. Its first effects will be felt by the American woman, who, however luxurious her own hair, is not satisfied, but needs must borrow.

Wedding Note. A grain of rice which lodged in a bride's ear ten years ago has just caused her death. How very fortunate for the bride that her well-meaning friends didn't throw old shoes.

Heredity. Mrs. Peavish says that she never realized the power of heredity until she noticed how the baby kept her waiting on it whenever its father didn't keep her waiting on him.

New Petroleum Engine. A new petroleum engine used on some Swedish fishing vessels makes it possible to run a craft of eighty horse power for less than 99 cents an hour.

BASEBALL BINGLES.

The Athletics have five men—Collins, Strunk, McInnis, Baker and Schang—bating over the 300 mark.

The champion, New Haven team is showing the way and burning up the Eastern Association again this year.

The price paid Superior by the New York Giants for "Rube" Schauer has now been cut from $10,000 to $7,500.

The St. Thomas team has the call for the Canadian league with Guelph and Hamilton the runners-up.

For the third in as many seasons the Chicago Cubs have allipped Pitcher Fred Toney to the Louisville team.

Manager "Whoa Bill" Phillips' team at Indianapolis is out in front and going strong in the new Federal league.

Otis Clymer, now with the Boston Braves, has played in the past with the Chicago Cubs, Pittsburg Pirates and Washington Nationals.

Mr. Pipp, the new Detroit first baseman, is pastiming about as well as the other Tigers. He comes from the Catholic university at Washington.

With "Big Ed" Walsh, Eddie Cicotte and "Buck" O'Brien, the Chicago White Sox have a swell trio of moist-ball fingers.

Duluth, in the Northern league, has three sweet hitters in Smith, Miller and Rhoades. Together they have polled out 24 home runs this season.

Larry Lajoie ventures the prediction that in another season or two Ray Morgan of the Washington team, will be the leading second baseman in the American league.

Outfielder Mann, of the Boston Braves, has put himself in the honor list by making five hits in five times up in a recent game at Brooklyn.

Cliff Blankenship's Misoula team, which was a pennant winner last season, is having a hard struggle in the Union association this year.

It begins to look as though the Phillies have cracked. After the Superbas gave the Doolin crew a wicked walloping the Giants stepped in and delivered the knockout.

Recent American association batting averages show a large crop of stickers in the 300 or better class. Miller of Columbia, Hehmpill of St. Paul, and Chappelle of Milwaukee, are the top notchers.

Crandall of the Giants and Rudolph and Hess of the Braves are the only pitchers in the National league who are batting in the 300 list. Blanding of Cleveland, and Willett of Detroit, are the only American league braves in the charmed circle.

Twice this season have Walter Johnson of Washington and Ray Collins of the Red Sox, hitched up in great pitching duels that ended in 1 to 0 scores. Collins won the first great battle and Johnson copped the second in fifteen innings.

UMPS WHIP BILL ROUKE.

Omaha Owner Knocked Down by Diminutive Umpire.

Denver, Colo., July 12.—President Tip O'Neil of the Western league, is expected to take immediate action regarding the fight between Umpire Sigler and Omaha players which broke up Wednesday's game between Omaha and Denver here.

As a result of the encounter Owner William Rouke of the Omahas, is nursing a sore jaw received from "his umps" when Sigler put a good old right cross over and sent the Omaha magnate down for the count.

The trouble started in the first half of the sixth inning, with the score 4 to 2 in favor of Denver. Sigler called Congalton out at the plate, and Connie attacked Sigler. Manager Arbogast hit the umpire in the face, and Sigler, after retaliating, ordered Congalton and Arbogast off the grounds. They refused to go and Sigler forfeited the game to Denver.

Afterward Owner Rouke began cursing Sigler in the office under the grandstand and the little umpire sailed in and cleaned up his big opponent.

The Acreage Problem.

The "acreage problem" is very simple. An acre measures 309 feet each way, containing 43,681 square feet. Now, if a plot of ground has a frontage of 354 feet, its depth must be as much as 254 is contained into 43,681 square feet, equalling 123.35 feet, which will be the depth. To prove it, multiply 354 by 123.35, which equals 43,681. Very simple, isn't it?—L. Gibbins in the New York World.

The Horses of St. Mark. They were taken from Chios in the fourth century by the Emperor Theodosius, and placed in the great hippodrome at Constantinople, whence they were taken by the Venetians in the year 1204. Venice and Constantinople were bitter rivals in trade, and largely through Venetian intrigue and diplomacy the Fourth Crusade was turned from its original purpose into that of the capture and practical destruction of the splendid city on the Bosphorus; thus making it possible, later on, for the Turks to establish themselves on the continent of Europe. It was during the sack of the city by the Crusaders that it was spoiled of its famous horses by the Venetians.

A young Louisvillian who was married in Indiana to a girl fifteen years old is charged with subordination of perjury and pleads insanity. Why not? Pope declares love "the sole disease thou canst not cure," and, of course, he did not mean to call it a physical ailment. Theocritus asserted that there was no remedy for it, "either saline or plaster," says the Louisville Courier-Journal. Scott spoke of it as a disorder when he said that even ambition was no cure for it. Rosalind told Orlando that a man in love might be readily picked out in a crowd because his hose would be unbuttoned, his bonnet unbuttoned, his sleeve unbuttoned, his shoe untied and everything about him awry, and carelessness in the arrangement of clothing is one of the well recognized symptoms of perjury. Literature bristles with expert opinion tending to establish the insanity of lovers. And great literature is great literature because it is luminous with truth.

The lady's maids of Chicago are about to form a union and strike against some grievances, which many sympathizers will regard as very real. They are rebelling against interminable hooking up of gowns, late hours and dog nursing. A domestic service union, with strikes on one side and indignant but helpless mistresses on the other, will add vastly to the gaiety of nations, that is, to the portion of the national contingent, who will not be requisitioned to do the hooking up and wash the dogs.

The duchess of Marlborough advises British mothers that "a dinner well cooked is better antidote for drink than any possible legislation." Without going into the actual verity of the aphorism, it is pertinent to suggest that the noble duchess proceed to the real antidote by personally teaching the British mothers to prepare a dinner well cooked.

It is said that the Princess Patricia of Connaught wrote a book of her impressions over here which has been suppressed by high authority. This is a pity. We can stand with equanimity anything a pretty girl chooses to say about us, especially if the writing is of the usual caliber of royal authorship.

The certainty of a new age development is manifested in two recent examples, that of an actress in New York who refused to give out details of her divorce action, and that of a man who is going to try to fly across the Atlantic, but had no photographs for the newspapers.

The pretender to the French throne is being sued by his wife for support and return of the large loans she has made him. As an evidence of his abilities to rule the destinies of a nation the suit is hardly what can be called a forcible endorsement.

Hobble skirts and high heels are blamed for many accidents. Despite the danger, women will continue to wear them; for no one has ever questioned her bravery in the cause of fashion.

The WOMAN
A Novel by Albert Payson Terhune
Founded on William C. de Mille's Play
Illustrated with Photos from the Play and Drawings by V. L. Banks

CHAPTER I - Congressman Standish and the Woman, believing themselves in love, spend a trial week as man and wife in a hotel in northern New York under assumed names. The woman awakens to the fact that she does not love Standish and calls their engagement off. Standish protests undying devotion.

CHAPTER II - Wanda Kelly, telephone girl at the Hotel Keswick, Washington, is loved by Tom Blake, son of the political boss of the house. He proposes marriage and is refused.

CHAPTER III - She gives as one of the reasons her determination to get revenge on Jim Blake for ruining her father, Congressman Frank E. Kelly. Congressman Standish, turned insurance agent, is fighting the Mullins bill, a measure in the interests of the railroads. The machine is seeking means to discredit Standish in the hope of pushing the bill through.

CHAPTER IV.

The Clash.

The telephone girl looked up a minute later to see Tom Blake hanging once more over the rail.

"I got a telegram from Grace," said he. "She sent it to me, I suppose, instead of to dad or Mark because she knew I'd be looking around the hotel at this hour and she didn't know when either of them would be back from the capitol. Says she'll be in Washington at eight. But, being a woman or else thinking I'm a mind-reader, she doesn't say whether it'll be eight this evening or eight tomorrow morning. I've been looking everywhere, since I got it, to find Mark and—Excuse me!"

"Good!" he said emphatically. "But why doesn't she tell whether she means tonight or in the morning? Isn't that just like Grace?"

"Why not call her up on long distance?" suggested Tom. "If she'll be here at eight tonight she'll have left New York long before now. And if she isn't coming till morning—"

"Good idea!" assented Robertson, starting for the telephone alcove. "Sometimes you actually show a gleam of human intelligence, Tom, in spite of the way you've taken to mooning around lately. I'll—"

He stopped short, and the unwonted look of happiness froze from his face. He and Tom, on their way to the alcove, were passing the short flight of steps that led down from the outer foyer to the corridor.

And a man was coming down those steps. A tall man, whose shoulders were slightly stooped, whose dark hair was beginning to grizzle at the temples, whose swarthy and somewhat heavy face was lined and hardened by marks that did not seem to have come from time's brush alone.

At sight of him Robertson halted. His face darkened and his hands involuntarily clenched. The newcomer glanced across and his eye met the ex-governor's lowering gaze; then passed carelessly on to Tom.

"Good evening, gentlemen," he said. "Good evening, Mr. Standish," answered Tom.

Robertson barely returned the other's nod. But as Standish made as though to pass on, he took an impulsive step toward the insurgent chief.

"Well, Standish," he observed, steadying his voice by a palpable effort into some semblance of civility, "I understand the fight's on for tonight."

"Yes," answered Standish, pausing as though merely to wait until the other should move from his path. "An all-night session, probably."

Again, with a nod, he started toward the dining room. But once more Mark Robertson's voice checked him.

"Did it ever occur to you, Standish," demanded Mark, "that by opposing the Mullins bill you are betraying the party that elected you?"

Standish regarded him a moment with somber eyes from which all personal emotions seemed long since to have been burned away. Then he said in the heavy measured voice that had for years been characteristic of him:

"Did it ever occur to you, Robertson, that by trying to force the Mullins bill through, you are betraying the people who voted for you?"

"Oh, be sensible!" urged Robertson; and Tom, who knew his brother-in-law, noted the mighty effort with which the attempt at conciliation was kept up.

"We're both politicians. There's no sense in spouting noble sentiments for my benefit. Keep them for your parsons. I was promised the speaker-ship. And to get it away from me you turned insurgent. The Mullins bill—tonight's battle—means nothing to you but a test of power. There's no principle involved. If you can kill the bill—it will prove only you're strong enough to depose our speaker and put yourself in his chair. That's your game. Why pose as a reformer?"

enough on its face. Van Dyke and the rest saw to that, I suppose. But when I looked at it more closely I saw it was framed to legalize the over-capitalization of every railroad in the United States and to undo what little good a few recent lawmakers have been struggling for years to accomplish.

"Then—"

"You know I'm right. That is the Mullins bill's real object. That is why you people tried to rush it through before we could have a chance to pick it apart and to hunt for the nigger in the wood-pile. Well, I've studied it closely enough to make sure the pile contains very little except niggers. And I've made the public see it, too."

"Never mind bringing in your services to the dear public. You get your pay for that from them, not from me. The point is, you are lining up with our enemies. Standish, I'm not given to threatening; but from now on you're going to have an active life."

"I understand. And I look for nothing else. If the party that elected me is betraying the people, then I must fight that party. And I'm going to understand me clearly. I'm going to."

And the heavy slow voice held no note of threat, nor did it show the faintest tinge of excitement. To Tom Blake, the conversation's non-combatant, the insurgent's rather turbid words carried far stronger message for this very absence of emotion. But they served merely to strip from Mark Robertson his last shreds of diplomatic armor.

"You talk like a reform candidate for poundmaster at Pompton, N. J.," he retorted. "I've done nothing every one else isn't doing every day. Noting that the custom of centuries hasn't legitimated; and nothing, I believe, that you haven't done. You've made the people think you're a little tin god. But you can't make me think it."

"I can't now remember," said Standish wearily, "having tried to."

"Well, you probably know it would be time wasted," snapped Robertson. "There must be something, somewhere or other, in your past life, that wouldn't shine out to any advantage in print. I'm going to camp on the trail of your past performances. And when I strike the crooked by-path I'm looking for, I'll—"

Standish's dark face broke into a smile. The red angry politician's threats seemed to strike within the insurgent some genuine chord of merit.

"In that case, Governor Robertson," he said pleasantly, "I advise you to waste not one minute of time in setting to work. Because, though I've been able to upset several pet plans of yours during the past six years, you'll find everything I've done to you" will be as mere child's play compared to what I'll do as soon as I'm in the speaker's chair."

"Hasn't He Put Your People into the Way of Grabbing Millions?"

"The speaker's chair!" roared Mark, diplomacy, caution and even a cool fighting knowledge thrown to the four winds. "The speaker's chair! You'll never sit in it! Never in ten thousand years. Not if I have to—"

"Why, hello, boys!" drawled a voice from the doorway.

A man came leisurely down the stairs and laid one hand on Robertson's arm. Voice and action were calm, even pacific. Yet they slammed shut the New Yorker's floodgates of wrath, and left him speechless, nervous, almost apologetic.

A pair of eyes from all parts of the long corridor turned as by occult attraction and fixed themselves in wide interest upon the newcomer.

Early Notions of Future Existence. Coulanges says: "The earliest opinion of the ancient generations was that man lived in the tomb, and that he remained fixed to that portion of ground where the bones lay buried. Besides, man had no account to render of his first life. Once placed in the tomb he had neither rewards nor punishments to expect. This is a very crude opinion, surely, but it is the beginning of the notion of a future life."

TO LAY CARPET SMOOTHLY.

A Little Device Which Greatly Facilitates a Disagreeable Task.

The secret of the success achieved by the professional in laying a carpet consists chiefly of the use of implements which have not heretofore been altogether available for use by the amateur. This is not so any longer, for a stretcher and tackholder and carpet stretcher are combined in a single implement of such simple and inexpensive construction that it will soon take its place among the household implements which are regarded as essential.

This apparatus provides a third hand, which holds a tack in the right place for driving, while the carpet is stretched on the floor. It also obviates all danger of crushing the fingers with the hammer in the effort to drive the nail.

MAKE YOUR OWN HATPINS.

Embroider Them of Linen or Material to Match Your Frock.

The touches of embroidery which are almost essential with the linen gowns of this season are being introduced in a great many instances in the form of large embroidered buttons and hatpins to match. The latter most effectively supplement the simple trimming of the giant sailor hat of the moment, or that of the much room of Tagal straw.

Nothing can be simpler to work, says the Queen. You trace out the requisite number of circles enclosing designs upon a piece of linen left over from the dress and proceed to embroider them all before the circles are cut out. You can thus, if you prefer it, work the designs in a frame, which is the most satisfactory method of keeping the rounds in shape, or carry the work cut in the hand much more easily than if each button were embroidered separately.

Half a yard of linen will probably be sufficient for a set of hatpins and buttons but in estimating the amount of material it must be borne in mind that double the quantity necessary for embroidering must be allowed, as each button or pin must be neatly finished at the back with a circle of plain linen, turned in and invisibly hemmed.

It is as well to trace the circles for these plain pieces at the same time as those for the embroidery, and both must of course be left with ample margins; in the one case for turning well over the edge of the mould, in the other for turning under and hemming.

Nervous Prostration in Women.

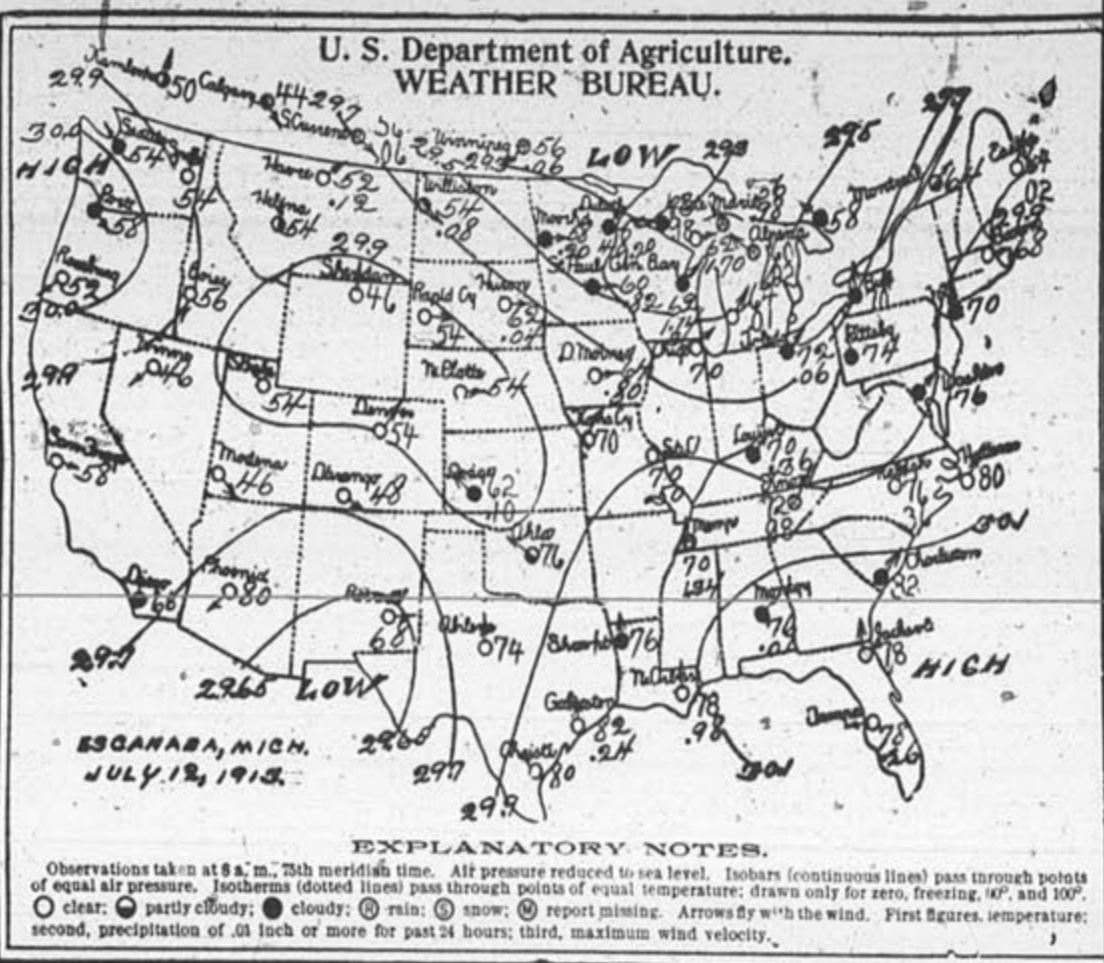

Women who fall a prey to nervous prostration begin losing ground by taking insufficient nourishment. An authority on the treatment of nervous diseases says, when consulted by a tired woman whose appetite is weak and fital, he directs her to take nourishment at least six times a day. Between her regular meals she may drink a cup of hot soup, or a cup of very hot milk, or milk with an egg beaten in it, or she may eat a slice of toast with hot cream poured over it, but with no wine or liquor, which would be likely to develop indigestion. When such nourishment is beyond reach, as when traveling or riding, a bit of sweet chocolate that can be conveniently carried in the pocket will be sufficient.

To Preserve Autumn Leaves.

To preserve Autumn leaves and berries in winter, when there is often difficulty and inconvenience in obtaining flowers for table or other decorations, it is a good plan to have at hand leaves, grasses, or berries which have been preserved during the Autumn. The leaves should be gathered when traces of coming decay are visible in the varying tints of red, yellow and brown which late Autumn shows on vegetation of all kinds. It is not advisable to collect them in wet weather, and when a sufficient quantity of specimens has been gathered they should be dried flatly and carefully, so as to preserve their stems.

The Usual Excuse.

When a maid appears with a valued teacup in one hand and handle in the other, and announces "It just came off in me hand, Mum," nine times out of ten she tells the truth, having held the cup by the handle while wiping, not knowing that it gives it a peculiar twist, which will, if the grasp be strong and unyielding, literally twist the handle off. Servants should be guided in dish-wiping as well as in dish-washing.—Mrs. G. B.

Cataclysmic Geology. Cataclysmic geology no longer exists. It was once the accepted opinion that the great changes on the earth's surface had been mainly brought about by sudden and violent (cataclysmic) agencies, but Sir Charles Lyell, as far back as 1830, demolished the old theory of cataclysm at once and forever. Sir Charles proved by facts which were indisputable that the great geological changes have been produced slowly by gradual processes of subsidence and elevation, and not by earthquakes, volcanic action, etc. Lyell may be said to be the father of modern geology, or, to put it more correctly, of real scientific geology.

The Afterglow. It has been shown that the afterglow that follows the ordinary twilight, and which produces such beautiful effects upon the snowy summits of the high Alps, is a phenomenon of general occurrence, and the hypothesis has recently been put forth that the light may be due to a peculiar form of radiation from the sun, composed of waves lying beyond the ultraviolet of the spectrum, and remaining in the upper air a quarter of an hour after the disappearance of the visible sun-rays. The supposition is that these rays, although themselves invisible, may excite phosphorescence in the atmospheric particles, thus producing a visible glow.

PLUCKY GIRL WEDS LONG LOST LOVER. Florence Eisman, An Illinois Miss, Comes in Search of Her Sweetheart.

Milwaukee, July 12.—A pretty romance, which saw its inception when the bridegroom was a tousled haired youngster in a small town in Illinois and the bride a wee miss and an inveterate maker of mud pies, culminated in District Attorney Edward J. Yockey's office on Thursday, when Williams Beyers, 24 years old, and Florence Eisman, aged 18, were united for life by the Circuit court judge.

The ceremony followed a search by the now Mrs. Beyers for her sweetheart. After pledging their troth, Beyers left the Illinois hamlet and came to Milwaukee. He wrote once and during an interim of six months, when the girl spent her time at her father's gate watching for the postman who passed by letterless, she decided to seek her lover. According to her story, her father was compelled to mortgage his property to raise money with which to send the girl on her quest.

In Milwaukee the girl appealed to District Attorney Yockey, who traced Beyers to a rooming house on the north side. When suddenly confronted by his brown-eyed little sweetheart in the district attorney's office early on Thursday, Beyers' stood frozen to the floor. Then occurred a head-on collision and embraces which left the girl gasping for breath.

"Do you want to marry this girl?" he asked Beyers.

Beyers agreed readily and a judge was sent for. Before arrival of "his honor" the bride confided to Yockey she had hoped for a church wedding with six bridesmaids and a wedding dinner. This inspired Beyers, and with Florence on his arm they made a flying trip to nearby stores.

The bride-to-be returned wearing a dainty pair of white suede shoes. A large bow of red ribbon, jauntily tied, held her hair. Beyers in his ecstasy, had bought a new white shirt, collar and white tie and besides wore a beaming smile which threatened to be permanent.

than he was holding and then made arrangements for the pair to soon be married. Then Yockey got into communication with a local concern and secured a better position for Beyers housekeeping on the north side.

WANTS SCHOOL LAWS UNIFORM

 act may be amended under this provision and Act 176 is undisputably a local act, as it applies to the upper peninsula alone.

Superintendent Wright is desirous of having the township school management uniform throughout the state. While the upper peninsula is now uniform in this respect, the law under which township school systems are organized is antiquated. The lower Michigan townships have not as yet all come under the system of organization provided in the act of 1909, as the boards have not as yet been able to adjust themselves to the new order of things.

In the course of the meeting, Mr. Wright went over the new school laws enacted by the legislature of 1913, of which there are many, and explained them as he found it necessary. The commissioners were asked what they thought to be desirable in the line of proposed legislation. Topics of common interest were discussed. The matter of institutes and institute funds was brought up. Mr. Wright advised with the commissioners on how the moneys for institute purposes might best be spent this year.

Oral arithmetic and oral language teaching were discussed. The examination of teachers and eight grade pupils in the township schools was also dwelt upon. The English classics for future examinations were announced. Mr. Wright has chosen "Silas Marner" as the classic on which the teachers' April examinations in English will be based. "Enoch Arden" is the work upon which the examination a year from this August will be based. The eighth grade examinations in English in May will be "The Vision of Sir Launfal."

The following nine commissioners were present at the meeting: T. K. Easterday, Chippewa county; W. T. S. Cornell, Schoolcraft; Jesse Hubbard, Menominee; Donald O'Hara, Dickinson; John F. Mason, Iron; A. E. Sterne, Marquette; William Bath, Houghton; J. M. Wilson, Keweenaw, and S. O. Clinton, Baraga. Six county commissioners did not attend the conference.

The state board of education will meet at the Northern State Normal school July 23. The new member, Frank Cody, of Detroit, takes the place of D. M. Ferry, succeeding the latter in office July 1. The meeting in Marquette will be the first the board will have had since the close of the last fiscal year, July 1, and one of the important business matters will be reorganization. The other members of the board are W. J. McKone, Professor Nadell, of Olivet, and L. L. Wright. A large amount of routine business will be disposed of by the board when it meets in this city. Every normal school of the state has new building contracts to be let. The Northern State Normal central building is the largest piece of work in the year's budget. The board will spend about $1,000,000 during the next two years. At the July meeting the plans of the architect for the Marquette building will be accepted and the board will advertise for bids on the erection of the structure. The board will probably hold two meetings each month during the coming year, this on account of the large number of contracts to be let. The state board of education has to look after the accounts and the business only of the normal schools, the other state educational institutions coming either directly under the supervision of the state superintendent of public schools or being managed independently.

SHOE BLACKENER.

Device Applies Liquid Blacking in Just the Right Quantity.
 Many people who think it too much trouble to shine their own shoes may try it, now that the blackener invented by a Texan is here to help them. This blackener is composed of a handle with a rotary dauber mounted between the spaced extensions at the end. Just back of the dauber, which acts as a brush, is a box containing liquid shoe dressing, which is supplied to the dauber in just the quantity to put a thin coating on the shoe. The flow of dressing is controlled by a valve and cut-off. This apparatus saves the user from soiling his hands, as he used to do so often when applying the shoe dressing from a bottle. Furthermore, the liquid spreads out evenly over the roller and is applied evenly, instead of in daubs, as by the old method. It is understood, of course, that the shoe will require brushing after the blackening has been put on but that part of the operation never was seriously objected to, even by the fastidious. The apparatus will be useful for professional bootblacks, too.

HANDY WASHBOARD.

Washboard Slides into Grooves Along the Flattened Side.
 A convenient type of wash pail has been invented by a New York man. It is particularly convenient for use in flats or other places where space is at a premium, for it is both pail and washboard combined. As seen in the illustration, one side of the pail is flattened. There are grooves along this side and into these grooves a washboard slides. The board can remain there without interfering with the use of the pail for other purposes.

Useful in Apartments.
 posess than washing clothing, but if need be it can easily be slipped out. Such a receptacle will save a great deal of space, as it saves not only the room taken up by a separate washboard, which is considerable, but that which would otherwise be taken up by a tub, as ordinarily a washboard can not be used conveniently in a bucket, having a somewhat topheavy effect. In this device, the washboard, being fastened to the pail, the whole stands firmly under the most vigorous rubbing and will not easily upset.

To Clean Bottles.
 All bottles, as soon as emptied, should be cleaned and put away, so as to be ready when wanted. A simple washing with hot suds and a good rinsing will do for some bottles, such as those which have held vanilla, lemon essence, etc., but any bottles that have held acids, or medicines, must have a more drastic cleaning. Put these into a kettle with a little soda of lye in the water and bring to a boil. If a good rinsing does not make them clear after this, a little clean coarse sand, or fine gravel in a little soap suds must be shaken about in the bottle to take out the residue. The lye bath usually does the work, however.

TALKING LIGHTHOUSE.

A Swedish Invention to Give Mariners Warning.

Wonderful possibilities are claimed for a Swedish invention called the photophone, by means of which it is said that sound waves can be registered on a sensitized plate.

The negative is developed in the ordinary way and the sound curves transferred to ebony plates, from which the sound is reproduced as by the gramophone.

The photophone records can be reproduced an infinitum, and if the original music or song should not be strong enough to fill a large concert hall, the sound can be increased as desired. On account of the immense volume of its sound the inventor prophesies that the photophone will replace fog sirens in lighthouses.

Instead of the inarticulate howl which the sirens send out in the night the photophonic foghorn will call out the name of the lighthouse for miles over the ocean.—London Daily Graphic.

Chimney Sweep Brutality.

This is almost too shocking for print. Jim Seaward, just elected an English Alderman, says he was "Tom," the little chimney sweep of Kingsley's "Water Babies." Here is part of Seaward's story: "When I was only 6 years old I went up my first chimney. Left an orphan I fell into the hands of a chimney sweep, and a cruel master was he. He would shove me up the chimney like a helpless little monkey, set straw afire under me, and stick pins into the soles of my bare feet to make me climb up the chimney. He would say, 'Climb, damn you, climb.' And when I came down my knees and elbows would be covered with blood and soot, and here are still blue scars. I was soaked in strong salt and water to make my flesh hard and tough, and sometimes I was kept up a bad chimney six hours at a stretch."

Progress.

The head of a New York firm having important interests in Italy decided some time ago, in view of the death of an old and reliable clerk, who, of all in the establishment, was the only one to have a good knowledge of the Italian tongue, that his own son, also a member of the concern, ought to take up the study of that language. Recently a friend met the young man. "I understand," said he, "that you're actually studying Italian." "Why, yes," said the other. "I've been at it for several months under a teacher just from the other side." "What progress?" "Good," was the answer. "He's beginning to speak English remarkably well."—The Argonaut.

Protecting the Birds.

Nowhere are birds better protected than in Germany. It is not only a subject of law there, but of education also, for children are taught in the schools the usefulness of birds in protecting trees, plants, crops and gardens. Bird-houses, and even bird-reflectories, are seen in every park. On the other hand, the enemies of useful birds, such as kites, buzzards, hawks, magpies, kestrels and jays, are remorselessly killed under the encouragement of local governments, which offer rewards for their destruction. One consequence is that the harvest-fields and gardens of Germany suffer relatively little damage from noxious insects.

Garters as Ornaments in China.

In answer to an inquiry, Consul General Amos P. Wilder, of Shanghai, reports that there is no demand for suspenders and garters in China, save among foreigners. Suspenders do not interest the native, his trousers being so constructed as to render the use of such article unnecessary, neither is there any need for garters, as the trousers when properly adjusted are tied over the sock at the ankle with a neat band of ribbon or cotton. Occasionally a native is seen with a well-known make of American garters, which are worn outside the trousers as ornaments.—Consular Report.

Bleeding Fish to Keep Them.

The Norway fisher cuts and bleeds fish the moment they are caught. He cuts the throat or bleeds them from the tail. Fish so finished keep far better. Fish are best just before spawning time; thereafter they become poor, then watery and unfit. Some folk are grieved by herring and mackerel. No matter how fresh the fish the people vomit, purge and break out in bold hives. It is not uncommon to find dead oysters mixed up in the heap. These dead ones are liable to poison the live ones.

Blue Beard.

Blue Beard was a historical person. He was Gilles de Retz, nicknamed "Barbe Bleue" from having a beard of a blue-black shade. Persuaded by a tall alchemist that his strength could be restored by bathing in the blood of infants, he had many children trapped for this heinous purpose in a castle of Chantouce, on the Loire, the ruins of which are still to be seen. At last the horrible suspicions of the country folk as to what was going on were brought to proof, and the monster was burned at the stake at Nantes in 1440.

Bullocks and a Bull.

He was an Irish barrister; therefore he must perpetrate a bull. Addressing the jury in tones of deep emotion, he said: "It will be for you to say, gentlemen, if the defendant shall be allowed to come into court with unblushing footsteps, with the cloak of hypocrisy in his mouth, and draw these bullocks out of my client's pocket with impunity."

An Ambition Producer

Some time ago the head of this department picked up a Detroit paper which contained the picture of a full grown man in the act of jumping about four feet high. The picture was supposed to represent a man's feelings and actions after taking a box of Kellogg's Sanitone wafers made by the F. J. Kellogg company of Battle Creek, Michigan.
 Now the writer has had many moons pass over his head, until by the nature of things he has not only grown old but stout and pudgy and he was naturally attracted by any medicine that proposed to restore his youth to the extent that he could kick up his heels four feet high. So the advertisement was placed in the hands of an employee with instructions to ascertain the facts about this Battle Creek ambition developer. The inquiry brought the always ready testimonials and literature and follow-up letters. Sanitone wafers were described as the "Greatest nerve vitalizer ever known." Sanitone wafers are recommended as a remedy for "insomnia, brain fog, drowsiness, lack of energy, melancholy, hysteria, blue spells, St. Vitus dance, locomotor ataxia, loss of ambition, poor memory, bashfulness, tired feeling and neuralgia." The literature claimed that one box at $1.00 would, as Colonel Roosevelt would say, make you feel "bully" but the letters claimed that six boxes for $5.00 was necessary for permanent relief. After a few follow-up letters the price came down to $3.50. An analysis of these wafers by the state chemist showed each tablet to weigh 12 grains. Of this, 5 grains formed the outside coating; inside were 5 1/2 grains of chromium sulphate, a green pigment used by painters, 4-5 of a grain of phenolphthalein, a purgative derived from coal tar, and 1/2 grain of red pepper.
 If anyone thinks that green paint, red pepper and a coal tar product with an unpronounceable name will cure all nervous diseases from bashfulness to St. Vitus dance, he can get the above formula put up for about one-tenth of the advertised price. As for the writer, he is "doubting Thomas" and has no faith in the efficacy of green paint, red pepper and coal tar to restore lost ambition. Rather than paint our insides red and green we prefer to remain nervous and bashful. But we have no objection to other people trying it if they want to.

BICYCLES WERE LEFT IN REAR OF HARVEY HOME

Wife of Accused Man Explains His Connection With Alleged Theft

Concerning the arrest of David N. Harvey for the alleged theft of two bicycles mention of which was made in yesterday's issue of The Mirror, a communication from Mrs. Harvey has been received. It reads: Editor of Daily Mirror: Please give me space in your paper to contradict the statement in last night's issue in regard to those two bicycles. When I went to turn my cow out I saw the two bicycles laying in the alley near our barn. I stopped to look at them a minute and one of my neighbors came along with her cow and we stopped and commented, wondering how they came there. Soon along came a boy. He was taken up with the sight and picked up one of the handlebars and I told him to let them be that they did not belong to any of us and I turned and came into my yard then to the house. About fifteen or twenty minutes later I looked out of my door and saw the same boy and a man carrying them toward Ludington St. At that time Mr. Harvey had gone to his work and never seen or knew the bicycles were there till he came home last night, and then today they arrested him for stealing and carrying them to the shop to be repaired, now please right this up as I am terribly shocked to think things can be so misconstrued.

MULHALL GIVES SOME INSIDE INFORMATION

Tells Lobby Investigators How Manufacturers Association Worked in Campaigns.

(By Associated Press.) Washington D. C., July 12.—Martin M. Mulhall confessed himself a lobbyist before the investigators today and told how the National Association of Manufacturers attempted to defeat politicians through friendly labor unions, how employees were bought and where the money was spent to aid the association.

Before Mulhall took the stand the senate committee had a dozen persons regarding his papers and to prevent his being served upon.

He told the committee that he had pretended to be a friend of Senator McComas but had worked against him. He also said that Carl M. Downs secretary to McComas had been bribed by Cushing. He told of his relations with Senators Foraker and Aldrich. He said he secured a Union card so that he might get inside labor information and then used what he had learned against them.

He told how the association had hired labor leaders to work against Senator William Hughes of New Jersey and said the union men in the pay of the association took seventy-five thousand circulars, printed by the American Federation of Labor, favoring Hughes and turned them over to the Republican Campaign committee.

He said the association generally supported Republican organizations and opposed the democrats. He said the association favored labor unions.

BALTIMORE'S SHOWER BATHS.

They Are Set Up in Summer in Tents on Vacant Lots.

The city of Baltimore has a system of portable shower baths in which the residents of the congested sections may enjoy both hot and cold water baths during the summer months.

Although called portable the baths are not moved from place to place every few hours but are housed under canvas or constructed of galvanized iron sheeting.

They are erected, says Popular Mechanics, on vacant lots in congested districts and remain at one place all summer, the "portable" meaning that they can then be taken down and packed away until required the next year.

The patronage of such a bath on warm days, it is stated, numbers about 400. On two days a week women attendants are placed in charge and the baths are turned over to women and girls. From 250 to 400 availed themselves of this opportunity. Last year more than 16,132 persons used the bath.

Depwood. The industrial value of dogwood is probably but little appreciated except by manufacturers and users of bobbins, shuttles and spindles employed in cotton and woolen-mills. These are made of dogwood or persimmon wood, and hitherto the supply has come from the Southern States. The Forest Service now calls attention to the fact that the supply in that part of the country is nearly exhausted. Fortunately dogwood abounds in Oregon, Washington and California, and large plants for the manufacture of spindles have recently been erected in the Cascades in Oregon. In the East an attempt has been made to substitute the wood of the mesquit and the tupelo for dogwood. The mesquit is very hard, heavy and close-grained; the tupelo is heavy, but less hard. It has the valuable property of wearing smooth by friction.

The Earliest Men. Recent studies by Professor Penck in the Alps, combined with those of Mr. Hugo Obermaier, a distinguished pupil of Penck. In the Pyrenees, have had the effect of considerably shortening the estimate of the length of time that has elapsed since prehistoric man left the marks of his presence in Europe. It now appears that both in the Alps and the Pyrenees there exist contemporary geological records showing four successive periods of alternate advance and retreat of glaciation. Heretofore it has been considered probable that prehistoric man dwelt in the neighborhood of these mountains during the last two invasions of the ice, but the new evidence is regarded as proving that it was only of the last, or fourth, glacial advance that man was a living witness.

GREEN BAY READY FOR HOME COMING

Commodore Peary's Old "Flagship" the "Niagara" Will be One of Attractions.

It has been positively determined that the Niagara, Commodore Peary's famous old battleship, which was raised from the bed of Lake Erie a short time ago, will be in Green Bay from Aug. 10 to Aug. 13, and the committees of the Green Bay Commercial club have taken a renewed interest in the Perry Victory Centennial celebration to be held here then and they are more confident than ever that the celebration will eclipse anything ever attempted in the northern part of Wisconsin.

In connection with the historic and patriotic celebration Green Bay will hold a "Home Coming" celebration and welcome home its former residents, numbering many thousand. Green Bay is the oldest city in the state and the sentiment prevails in the surrounding country that the city is in a position to offer more attractive, interesting things to her sons and daughters of years gone by than any city in the state. The city has been adding to her outward beauty in the last several years by the construction of several public buildings, the finest court house in this section, a new federal building, many handsome office structures, and mile after mile of asphalt pavement. To augment the natural beauty and beauty of buildings and streets, the citizens will dress-up homes and public property as never before. Evidence of activity in this connection have been noticed for several weeks.

While the Perry water an dstreet pageantry will be the main features of "Home Coming" week in Green Bay, the program committee of the celebration has arranged to have numerous special features that will amuse and entertain the thousands that are expected to come here. Jimmy Ward the noted aviator, will fly in his aeroplane twice a day every day during "Home Coming" week. Competitive hand playing will be on the program, there will be a water carnival, in which yachts from many ports on the great lakes, will participate, a floral automobile parade, an industrial exhibit of "things made in Green Bay," displays of rare historical articles, grand pyrotechnical displays each night and out of door entertainment of every description.

The patriotism of the present generation will be aroused more over the Perry Centennial celebration than over any patriotic event that has taken place in the country's history. This celebration will be a new departure in American patriotic celebrations. It will be an educational commemoration instead of an educational exposition, patriotism rather than commercialism will be the controlling factor.
