

A FITTING MEMORIAL

MEMBERS OF DELTA COUNTY BAR ASSOCIATION HONOR MEMORY OF JOHN CUMMISKEY

COURT ROOM DRAINED IN HONORING

Court Room Crowded While Associates Speak of Life and Work of Deceased.

But seldom has such a tribute been paid to the memory of any man as was paid to that of John Cummiskey by the members of the Delta County Bar immediately after the July term of circuit court convened here this morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Practically every member of the bar sat within the railing of the court room and in addition were several attorneys from various points in the Upper Peninsula. The court room proper was filled with the relatives and friends of the deceased.

Black and white draperies were hung throughout the court room, ferns, potted plants and cut flowers were in evidence in profusion while from the center panel of the judge's bench looked out the portrait of John Cummiskey.

It was shortly after nine o'clock when court convened and long before that hour the friends and relatives of the deceased had gathered in the court room in large numbers.

Attorney F. D. Mead opened the memorial exercises by presenting resolutions, prepared by a committee of the bar association and adopted by the association. The resolutions, which Mr. Mead requested be spread upon the records of the court are appended.

Attorney M. J. Doyle, of Menominee paid a brief but loving tribute to the memory of the deceased. He spoke of eleven years of association with John Cummiskey during which time he had known him as his truest and best friend. He spoke of his never falling generosity, his utter lack of hypocrisy and of his love for his home and wife.

Out of the knowledge of fifteen years friendship John Powers spoke in loving terms of the memory of the deceased. Of his generosity, his brilliancy, his readiness to help the needy. Mr. Powers spoke in brilliant terms, saying in conclusion: "A man among men, a lawyer among lawyers, whose generosity, efficiency and love of home and friends will prove a lasting memorial."

Former Prosecuting Attorney I. C. Jenkins dealt in the main with the professional life of the deceased, speaking of him as he had known him before the bar. He spoke of his love of his profession, of his readiness even eagerness, to battle for whom he deemed wronged or oppressed, his ability as a trial lawyer, which, the speaker said, came not so much through his knowledge of the law but of his knowledge of men.

Judge Yelland, associated with the deceased in childhood, young manhood and in the very flower of his life briefly spoke of that association. Together they had attended the public schools of Powers, taught country school in the same township, were admitted to the bar on the same day and for four years associated as partners in law, a partnership terminating only when the health of Judge Yelland compelled his retirement. In conclusion he said:

My loved and loving friend is dead. He died where manhood's morning almost touches noon, and while the shadows still were falling toward the west. He had not passed on life's highway the highest point. While yet in love with life and raptured with the world, he passes to silence and pathetic dust.

Yet, after all, it may be best, just in the happiest, sunniest hour of all the voyage, while eager winds are kissing every sail, to dash against the unseen rock, and in an instant hear the billows roar about a sunken ship. For whether in mid sea or 'mong the breakers of the farther shore, a wreck at last must mark the end of each and all. And every life, no matter if its every hour is right with love and every moment jeweled with a joy, will, at its close, become a tragedy as sad and deep and dark as can be woven of the warp and woof of mystery and death.

UNSPEAKABLE ATROCITIES

DEFEATED BULGARS CRUCIFY, BURN AND MALTREAT THE WOMEN OF SERES.

STORES AND HOUSES BURNED
Rich are Starving to Death, Hundreds are Dying From Wounds Inflicted

(By Associated Press.)
Saloniki, July 14.—Scores of persons were crucified, many hacked to pieces or burned alive and women of all ages were subjected to the most incredible outrages in the report of the deprivations of the defeated Bulgarian army in the town of Seres.

The army first pillaged the stores and houses and then soaked them in kerosene, after which they were burned. Led by Colonel Yankoff, the notorious revolutionist who committed many similar acts in Macedonia in 1903, it is claimed that the Bulgars committed unspeakable horrors.

Those who were fortunate enough to escape are in lamentable condition. Rich merchants are dying from hunger, while wretched mothers are seeking covering for themselves and their children.

Medicine cannot be had as all the pharmacies have been burned. The American Tobacco company will be among the heavy losers. The total loss will reach into millions.

SCHOOL ELECTION IS IN PROGRESS TODAY

No Opposition to Spencer and LeMire—Deserve Big Complimentary Vote.

The polls opened at nine o'clock this morning for the school election at which two members of the board of education are to succeed themselves.

Attorney Newton C. Spencer, president of the board and Dr. W. A. LeMire, secretary of the board, are the retiring members and likewise the candidates to fill the vacancies caused by the expiration of their own terms.

No opposition was developed although a few names are being written in. The polls will close at eight o'clock this evening.

The first, second, third and fourth ward voters are voting at the city building the fifth and sixth warders at the Washington Annex and the seventh ward voters at Engine House No. 3. Attorney Spencer and Dr. LeMire are deserving of a large complimentary vote and everyone should turn out to see that they get it.

The vote up to four o'clock was rather light.

ELEVATOR IS NOW A RUIN

A. AND J. DEGRAND GRAIN ELEVATOR AND FEED STORE HOUSE GOES UP IN FLAMES

EFFICIENT WORK OF FIEMEN

Tons of Hay Make Blaze a Spectacular One and Increase Labor of Firemen

The A and J. DeGrand grain elevator and feed storage house was almost totally destroyed by fire Sunday evening with a loss of about $6,000 resulting with insurance to the amount of $1500. The blaze was discovered shortly after six o'clock and did not until after nine o'clock that the stubborn fight of the firemen had been completed and the siren announced that the fire was over.

The fire started in the frame storage building adjoining the elevator which is just in the rear of the E. and I. S. depot.

When the firemen arrived on the scene after a fast run the five carloads of hay that the storage house contained were burning fiercely and the flames had communicated themselves to the elevator adjoining. Although three lines were soon playing on the flames they spread rapidly and in a brief time the elevator was riddled and the storage house a ruin.

The smoke rolled from the smoldering hay in dense clouds and added to the irksome work of the firemen. When the flames had been partially subdued on the surface the fire fighters turned their attention to quenching the fire that burned at the center and bottom of the mammoth pile of baled hay with pitchforks they spread the smoldering bundles, working with the facility of experienced farm hands with heavy smoke rolling over and about them.

Shortly after nine o'clock the last vestige of fire had disappeared and the siren announced that the blaze was over.

In addition to the huge quantity of hay that was destroyed about five hundred bushels of oats went up in smoke and a few bushels of other grains were destroyed.

The shell of the elevator building still stands with the front wall gaping slightly outwards. This will in all probability be pulled down.

The insurance on the building and contents is $1500.

Through the efficient labors of the firemen a number of frame buildings adjoining the elevator were saved.

In order to prevent injury to people who might be in the vicinity of the elevator, the fire department went to the scene of the fire this morning and pulled down the side of the structure that had become damaged.

EASTERN RAILROADS WILL SUBMIT TO CONDITIONS OF NEWLANDS BILL

THEY "REFUSED TO BE COERCED" Will Not Consider Proceedings Under the Erdman Act—Issue Ultimatum

(By Associated Press.)
New York, July 14.—The Eastern Railroads involved in the wage controversy with the trainmen and conductors have issued a statement through the conference committee of managers saying that they are willing to arbitrate under the conditions of the Newlands bill, before congress but are unwilling to proceed under the Erdman act. This is the reply of the roads to the ultimatum submitted by the unions.

The statement of the committee says that they refuse to be coerced through threats of strikes into paying railroad employees wages out of all proportion to the duties performed.

EIGHTEEN ARE NATURALIZED

SECOND PAPERS GRANTED THIS AFTERNOON TO NEW CITIZENS OF THE U. S.

ONE FORMER SUBJECT OF SULTAN Government Examiner M. H. Anthony Conducts the Examinations—Swedes Predominate

Court adjourned at ten o'clock this morning following the memorial exercises held for John Cummiskey until nine o'clock tomorrow morning out of respect to Cummiskey's memory. The fact, however, that a large number of petitioners for naturalization papers had come here from a distance made it necessary to take up the hearing of the petitions.

Government examiner M. H. Anthony conducted the hearings and did so with a dispatch that was pleasing to all concerned. Eighteen were accepted, five dismissed and two were continued.

The five dismissals were due to the fact that the petitioners brought with them witnesses who had not known them for five years as is required by law. The continuance of two petitions was due to the fact that the petitioners did not have the necessary witnesses.

Of the petitioners admitted to citizenship five are Swedes, four Austrians, three English, three Norwegians, two Russians and one a Turk.

The former subject of the Sultan is Tafel Nasser. Court will resume tomorrow morning at nine o'clock when the criminal calendar will be taken up.

WELL KNOWN ENGINEER DIED SUDDENLY SUNDAY

Charles Johnson a Victim of Acute Bright's Disease.

Charles Johnson, a well known engineer in the employ of the North-western railroad, died suddenly yesterday morning in the Delta County hospital of acute Bright's disease, aged thirty one years and ten days.

The deceased arrived home early Saturday evening after completing his day's run, apparently in his usual health. Mrs. Johnson retired first and was awakened a few hours after she went to bed to find her husband convulsed with pain. His answers to her questions were not intelligible and she summoned a physician. An examination showed that Johnson was in a critical condition and he was hurried to the Delta County hospital where he died.

The deceased had been in the employ of the Northwestern railroad company for a number of years and had been a resident of this city for thirteen years. Three years ago he was promoted from fireman to engineer. He held the esteem of his employers and many friends. His wife and three children survive him. One sister is living in Escanaba, his father, mother, two brothers and two sisters reside in the old country.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Swedish Lutheran church. Burial will be made in the Lakewell cemetery. Rev. C. A. Lund will conduct the services.

Undertaker Wilkinson has charge of the remains.

CUBS LOST TO EAGLES AT GLADSTONE SUNDAY

McDonnell Pitched Good Ball But Teammates Weren't Going Right

The Gladstone Eagles came back yesterday and defeated the league leaders in a game that was fast and flashy by turns. Pourtro, who was on the rubber for Gladstone had his bender and speed ball working fine and the Cubs were able to glean but four bingles off this delivery. Olmsted connected twice while Baum and Klingler each bingled once.

McDonnell was on the rubber for the Escanaba team and pitched glitter-ed ball allowing the Eagles slingers but seven hits. Several errors and a number of bonehead plays behind lost the game by a score of 5 to 2.

CUBS, GLADSTONE AND RAPID RIVER TO STICK

Meeting Tomorrow Night Will Determine Whether Beauts Will see Season Through

Tomorrow evening at eight o'clock the players of both the Cubs and the Beauts are requested to meet at Olmsted's billiard parlor. The purpose of the meeting is to determine whether or not the teams will stick the season through. The attendance has been very poor and there has been some talk of a league explosion but it is a surety that the league will go through.

Manager Olmsted of the Cubs stated this morning that the Cubs would stick to the finish. The Gladstone and Rapid River teams have both signified their intention of seeing the season through and it is highly probable that the Beauts will agree to stick.

If, however, the Beauts decide to go by the board the season will be finished with three teams, one team laying off every Sunday.

ANIMALS HAVE ODD FEARS.
 Elephants, Lions and Tigers Dislike Mice and Rats.

It is well known that many people have an inexplicable aversion to certain animals. Most people have a horror of snakes and other things that creep the earth. Captain Winfred Gonzales, the Director of the German Zoological Annex, with Sun Brothers' World's Progressive Shows, in speaking of the peculiarities of animals, says: "Animals, like human beings, have their likes and dislikes. Put certain animals together and you will expect a fight, while another two will become the friendliest of comrades. Women are proverbial for their horror of mice, but one would hardly expect an elephant to show fear at such a tiny foe. This fear was recently shown at Winter-quarters, Macon, Georgia, where the Sun Brothers spent their winter months' lay off, during some experiments to find out the likes of animals in a menagerie. The huge animal spotted the mouse as soon as it was placed in its enclosure. The elephant gave evidence of fear immediately.

"With one of his big feet it would have smashed the tiny intruder out of existence. Instead, it stood for a few minutes motionless, and apparently helpless with fright. Not until the mouse had been removed was the elephant to be pacified, and it was some hours before it regained its normal courage.

"Mice, indeed, inspire fear, or something akin to it, in great many animals. A Bengal tiger trembled and uttered long, mournful howls the whole time that a mouse was in its cage. Two rats were introduced into a lion's cage, and the same fear was shown by the larger animal for the smaller ones. There have been many suggestions put forward for this extraordinary dislike of these large animals for mice. One very probable one is that mice and rats have a peculiar smell which is highly repulsive to their enemies. A Puma, however, has no such fear. When a rat was introduced into its cage, the huge cat made a spring and that rat was a goner."

The Sun Brothers will exhibit their big animal annex and their many clever sights and performances, afternoon and night on July 16 at the fair grounds.

WRESTLING.

Wrestling is the most scientific and strenuous of indoor sports. Ours is an age when skill and supreme effort are valued as seldom before. Yet wrestling sinks lower in public favor year by year. Why? The answer is clear to all who will read the report of a recent match in this city. "Grunt with pain." "Much distress." "A punishing body lock." "Great agony." "Writhe in agony." There are some of the expressions sprinkled down the page, and they do not seem too strong. The first fall was not properly a fall at all; one of the contestants had secured a hold causing such frightful pain that the other had to yield. In the second bout the victor made another attack on his opponent's sore leg and kept twisting it until the weaker man went down. The time consumed in these gentle operations was 53 minutes for the first "fall" and 29 minutes for the second. An hour and a half watching men torture each other. Small wonder the crowd hissed and "booed." Wrestling will win no great favor from a modern community until it becomes a little more lively and a good deal less brutal.

The court of appeals of New York in the case of Brooklyn Heights railroad company vs. Gillespie lays down this rule: "A common carrier is liable in damages to a passenger for an injury to his feelings caused by the insulting language of its employee, upon the ground of a breach of its contract, which obligates it not only to transport the passenger, but to accord to him respectful and courteous treatment, and to protect him from insult from strangers and its own employes. Among the elements of damages in such a case and which may be considered in determining their amount are the humiliation and injury to his feelings suffered by him, not, however, including any injury to his character resulting therefrom, and he is entitled to recover compensatory damages only, not including punitive or exemplary damages."

A Paris correspondent writes that at a recent ball a young woman suddenly dismissed her dancing partner at a signal from her mother. The cause of the dismissal was that the young man had begun to put on tango airs. It is expected that the danger of similar public ignominy will prevent other Parisian youth from venturing upon the performance which in this case was so promptly checked, and that there will be no further attempts at tango in polite circles in Paris.

A British baronet says New York is lapsing into paganism. That is what comes of mistaking New York's front for its rear self. We would hate to believe that the metropolis is as bad as it appears. Doubtless there is a large majority of decent respectable citizens there who never break into the Hmelight, but a between-steamers visitor could not be expected to believe it.

A Boston artist intends to go into the Maine woods without clothes, firearms or other of civilisations' aids and come out at the end of five months fully clothed. His idea of being fully clothed must be the same as Eve had.

A woman contends that the masculine form is more beautiful than the feminine. Has she never seen a drummer strapping it for the dressing room in a human steamer at 6 a. m.?

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Congressman Standish and the woman, believing themselves to have spent a trial week as man and wife in a hotel in northern New York under assumed names. The woman awakens to the fact that she does not love Standish and calls their engagement off. Standish protests unavailing devotion.

CHAPTER II—Wanda Kelly, telephone girl at the Hotel Keswick, Washington, is loved by Tom Blake, son of the political boss of the house. He proposes marriage and is refused.

CHAPTER III—She gives as one of the reasons her determination to get revenge on Jim Blake for ruining her father, Congressman Frank E. Kelly. Congressman Standish, turned insurgent, is fighting the Mullins bill, a measure in the interests of the railroads. The machine is seeking means to discredit Standish in the way of pushing the bill through.

CHAPTER IV—Robertson, son-in-law of Jim Blake and the latter's candidate for speaker of the house, tries to bribe Standish over, and failing, threatens to dig into his past.

CHAPTER V.

Jim Blake. The man whose advent in the Keswick corridor caused more attention among the loungers than would the arrival of a stage beauty, had at first glance little about him to justify such interest. He was long rather than tall, thin with a wiry compactness, and of a pleasant non-committal face. His age might have been fifty. But a closer glance at his half-shut eyes always gave an odd impression that they were fully a thousand years old. Perhaps this was why Jim Blake seldom opened them wide.

"Hello, boys," repeated Jim Blake, glancing genially and inexpressively from one to the other, from beneath his hanging lids. "Seemed to me I smelt something burning. How are you, Standish? What's up, Tom?"

"Why," answered Tom vaguely embarrassed, "nothing very much. Just a little political discussion." "So I gathered," yawned Blake. "Mark, you seemed to have been supplying the fireworks for it. I don't suppose it occurred to you that the whole surrounding landscape is fairly crawling with reporters? Nice little story for the morning papers, hey? 'High Words Between Speakership Aspirants in Keswick Lobby.' And a half column more of what you both would have said if you'd said what the reporters thought maybe you might have said. Fine business. Especially at this time."

"He called me—" burst forth Mark. "And you showed your hand?" hazarded Blake. "Good poker, Mark. But punk politics. Mark, I'm afraid we're keeping Mr. Standish from his dinner."

"Good night," replied Standish, taking the broad hint with no show of feeling.

"Good night—till the house meets at ten o'clock," said Blake. "I suppose you'll lead your gallant insurgent cohorts in person this evening?"

"Yes." "Don't want to call it off and come into the fold again, I s'pose?" suggested Blake quizzically.

"No, thanks," smiled the insurgent, and passed on toward the dining room.

"Hello, Van Dyke!" called Blake as the lawyer, with Neligan and Gregg in tow, came along the corridor toward them, from the bar. "What brings you to Washington? What's up?"

"That's what I'm trying to find out," answered Van Dyke, shaking hands with Blake and instinctively leading the way to the adjacent amen corner.

"What is up? You're supposed to be managing this fight, Jim. And here we find ourselves in the very worst hole we've been in since ninety-seven. If you and I hadn't fought shoulder to shoulder for years and years, I'd be tempted to say you were lying down."

"The crowd down on Broadway," answered Blake, "have handed us a raw proposition in this Mullins bill. The bill smells so rank that even the dear, dear public have got a whiff of it. And when the public gets its sense of smell into good working order—Oh, what's the use, Van Dyke? You can see what we're up against. You know the temper of the country. We can't even defend that bill of yours. And this is no time to put over such a raw one. It's like—"

"Bill," argued Van Dyke, "you said you'd be able to put the deal through. And there's surely enough in it for us all."

"I said I could put it through. And I could—when we started. But Standish wasn't fighting it then. This isn't the Bill versus the People. It's Mat Standish versus the Organization. And Standish has the people—the waked-up people—behind him. He's their idol. He's the parson's pet. They look on him as the Worthy Young Man who couldn't do wrong if he tried and who isn't wicked enough to try. In other words, he's never been found out. There's only two classes of men that I ever met—the sort that have been found out and the sort that haven't. If we can damage Standish in the eyes of the people—if we can make the clergy repudiate him—"

"That's just the point," cried Van Dyke. "Why haven't you been able to do that, instead of sitting peacefully to one side and waiting for him to wreck himself?"

"We've had detectives on him," put in Neligan. "I told you all that, Van Dyke."

"Detectives?" snorted the lawyer. "What good is that? Your detectives will charge you seven dollars a day and expenses—mostly expenses—giving you a full report of the way Standish spends the day and what he has to eat and the number of cigars he smokes and the addresses of some of the letters he writes. You'll never get Standish that way. If ever he's broken a law—and most men have—"

"Oh, not so many," gently contradicted Blake. "Two jalls would be plenty large to hold all the folks who have broken any law. And the two jalls could be built real easy—just by running a high wall around the equator. But you're right in one thing, Van Dyke. We'll never get Standish in the way these boys have been going about it. So, it's lucky I happened to put a man of my own on the job."

"Yes. While I've been 'lying down,' as you call it."

"No. But you thought it. Just because I don't run around in circles, barking, and now and then biting a piece out of the ceiling, you folks think I'm doing nothing. And I'll never tell you any better."

"I put a man of my own on to Standish's record. I told him not to bother about anything that had happened during the last three or four years. Your men would be busy on that; and there'd be nothing to find, anyhow. I set my man to scratching up ancient history. I told him to go back and oack and back, in Standish's record; and to keep on going back till he found something."

"Well," chorused the others as Blake paused and searched his clothes with maddening slowness for a match. "Well," drawled Blake, "he's found it."

"No," chuckled Neligan, wildly elated.

"The story is long," said Blake; "but I can shorten it up considerably for you. Along about five years ago friend Standish fell in love with a girl. Right sort of a girl, you know. Good family. Father rich and all that. Standish wasn't very well off—he was always honest, you know. And he and she were going to get married on the quiet and keep their marriage secret. But she had to go to Europe. And for some reason or other—the secretary didn't know why and it doesn't matter, anyhow—the wedding was sidetracked. Instead, they took a notion to run off to a little country hotel, for one of those honeymoons that—that never came through the custom-house."

"No!" "Yes. And, as an afterthought, yes, again. I can show you the hotel register with—"

"The fool didn't register under his own name, did he?" demanded Gregg. "No," said Blake. "Registered under the name of Fowler. But any handwriting expert can prove he wrote it, and the hotel manager can swear Standish was the man. The manager is ready to swear Standish called the woman his wife, too."

"Oh, the jay!" grinned Gregg, the worldling.

"You see," went on Blake, "he really expected to marry her. They were just taking time by the forelock. And then—here's the queerest tangle of all—after that week there, it seems she backed out and wouldn't marry him at all. No, Gregg, it wasn't he that threw her over. This was the other way around. The woman jilted him and went back to her family. One week of Standish was about all she was up to. And she balked at making a life job of it. I don't wonder."

"But didn't her family find out?"

"It seems not. They thought she had been away visiting a girl friend in the country. She got home safe, and everything looked proper as a rainy Sunday in a grave yard. Some women sure have luck." "Go on," urged Van Dyke. "That's about all," finished Blake.

"She woke up, as I told you, to find it was all a mistake—and no harm done—thank heaven. And as far as I can make out, they haven't seen each other since. I won't swear to that part of it. But if they have, his secretary doesn't know it. Nor—"

"Who was the woman?" queried Robertson.

"That," answered Blake reluctantly, "is the one thing left to find out." Van Dyke fairly groaned.

"Then," he demanded, "how is this miserable story going to help us?"

"Oh," replied Blake, "the net's closing around her. I hope to have her name tonight."

"Tonight? We've got to have it tonight. Before the Mullins bill comes up. The name's no use to us after that."

"But," asked Robertson, "even if we do get it tonight, what use can we make of it? The house will be on the final debate of the bill by ten o'clock. By making use of every trick we know we can fix only a few hours' delay at most. What good—"

"What good?" retorted Blake. "Just this: Standish's long suit is morality. A lot of us have had smirches on our names from time to time. He never has. So the clergy are for him and the people swear by him. It's his chief pull with both church and public. Now—if we can get this story, properly authenticated, on the floor of the house tonight, it'll give a lot of men—Gregg, here, for instance—an excuse to swing over to us."

"Oh," he said, "but how?"

"I'll mutter it under his nose, once more, his usually quick mind loafing blissfully over the single grand idea."

"Yes," amended Van Dyke dryly, "we've got him—if we can get the woman's name in time. It all depends on that. Without it, our story is worthless. Thus far, I seem to be one knows her name."

"Except Standish," corrected Blake. "What good does that do us? He won't tell."

"What one man knows," returned Blake sententiously, "another can find out."

"And," put in Gregg, lowering his voice, "speaking of 'finding out,' reminds me. That little devil of a telephone girl over there—do you suppose she could have heard anything we've been saying?"

"If she has a whole pair of ears," answered Blake, sinking his own voice, "she surely could. Especially what I've been saying. For I've been straining my voice to talk loud enough for her to catch what I said, ever since we sat down here."

"The deuce you have?" exclaimed Van Dyke. "What for?" "For the same reason I've been 'laying down,'" returned Blake. "Don't worry over that. A man whose voice is as tired as mine isn't straining that throat unless it's for a good cause. And you can leave the finding of the woman's name to me, too, I guess. Now trot along, all of you. Mark, go in and order dinner. I'll be there in five minutes. I've a couple of things to attend to first."

The group began to drift across the corridor in the direction of the dining room. Blake detached himself from the rest and started back toward the telephone switchboard. But Tom, noting his father's move, intercepted him. The young fellow's face looked worried and his manner had lost some of its wonted buoyancy.

"Dad," he said.

"Hey?" asked Blake, stopping and turning toward his son.

Reading Tom's face, as he was accustomed by instinct to read every countenance that came into his range of notice, Jim nodded and led the way to the amen corner.

"Now, then," he demanded, half-guilingly, half-anxiously, "what's on your mind? Speak up, son. There never yet was a delicate subject that wasn't the better for getting aired."

Schlitz Brown Bottle Claims Authenticated

by Dr. Robert Wahl, President of the Wahl-Henius Institute of Fermentology. We reprint from his letter.

"Our observations, extending over the last twenty-five years, have convinced us beyond a doubt that exposure of beer to light has a very detrimental influence on its quality generally, but especially upon the flavor of the beer.

We have tested beers repeatedly in this direction, placing the bottles into direct sunlight, and testing the same after one, two, three and five minutes exposure, found that the beer with three and five minutes exposure became undrinkable, on account of the peculiar odor developed.

The detrimental effect of light upon beer can be successfully counteracted by the employment of brown or dark colored glass bottles, and such bottles are therefore recommendable."

He quotes famous authorities to corroborate his opinion

Authorities on the subject of the detrimental influence of light on beer are:

C. Lintner, Lehrbuch der Bierbrauerei 1875, S. 343.
Beck, Zeitschrift für das gesamte Brauwesen, 1882, S. 370.
V. Huth Der Bierbrauer 1876, S. 127.
Ney, Allg. Zeitschr. f. Bierbr. u. Malzfabr., 1878, S. 273 liberty in March, after having spent sixteen years behind the bars. Governor Ferris has commuted his sentence upon evidence the authorities believe goes to prove that Nunn did not fire the fatal shot in a murder case on which he and his father and a man named Martel were tried.

Nunn was sent up from Gladwin Nov. 7, 1897, at the age of fifteen years. After he had served three years, Nunn informed the prison officials at Jackson, where he was originally committed, that he had confessed the shooting in the hope of saving his father. He claims he was promised a short sentence in the industrial school if he confessed, but that after he had admitted firing the shot he was given a life term at Jackson. His father received fifteen years and Martel got off with a sentence of two years.

When he told his story to the officials at the Jackson prison, his father had been pardoned and, with Martel, had disappeared, leaving Nunn without a friend or relative in the world. He told the Jackson officials that he had admitted the crime under promise of a short sentence in order to spare his father, knowing, he thought that Martel was the man who really discharged the gun which killed.

Two years ago Nunn was transferred to the Marquette prison. During the years he has spent behind bars he has studied and acquired excellent education and it is said a position is awaiting him when liberated. The pardon board, the judge and the prison officials recommended that the governor commute Nunn's sentence to twenty-five years.

 "Can't you see?" John Allen was a famous Methodist preacher and re- vivalist of the old days down in Ma- ne. His most successful pulpita- tions, his sense of humor was equal to his gift of speech.

It is recalled by the Boston Journal that on one occasion the old gentle- man's wife was getting into a carriage, and he neglected to assist her.

"You are not as gallant, John, as when you were a boy!" she exclaimed in gentle rebuke.

"No!" was his ready response, "and you are not as boyish as when you were a girl!"

A NOVELTY IN FANS.

When Closed It Closely Resembles a Bouquet of Flowers.

A decidedly novel and attractive fan that first appeared in the ball- rooms of Paris, is that shown in the illustration. The framework of the article is like that of an ordinary fan, but through holes in the tops of the sticks a ribbon is strung. At the end of each stick is sewed an artificial flower, rose, lily or some other type, and running from the bottom of the handle to the tops a broader piece of ribbon, tied in a bow. When the fan is closed it so closely resembles a bouquet of natural flowers that the difference is impossible to detect, except on close examination. The illus- tration is helped by the flowers, being perfumed so that in odor, too, they resemble the blooms they represent. A fancy metal ring which may be of precious metal, and which looks like a bracelet, runs up outside the sticks when the fan is closed and holds them together. As can be seen, the novelty combines usefulness with a high de- gree of ornamentality.

HOW TO TAKE CARE OF A HUSBAND.

By Lucile H. Dole.

The answer is don't—by all means don't take care of him. No animal enjoys his freedom more than man, and when he reaches the stage of domesticity, where he can't put the but- tons in his shirt, or select his ties, or pack his suit case, he reminds one of the family dog who has outlived his usefulness and ought to be dead—but none of the family have the nerve to chloroform him.

Did you ever see a man in your life whose wife waited on his hand and foot who wasn't crazy over some woman who let him fetch and carry for her, and wouldn't know whether the long button went in the back or front of his shirt?

There was once a man whose family handled him tenderly, for they feared a stroke of apoplexy if he even as much as laced his shoe.

This said man met a widow—whose slippers had a chronic habit of becoming untied.

Well did he tie them? He did—until his face was lobster red and sighed that she hadn't the feet of a centipede.

A man doesn't want a valet—he wants a wife.

So have a care, sisters, it's better to omit than to commit.

Was World-Famed Eye Specialist.

The death recently of Dr. Charlotte Ellaby, one of the foremost eye specialists in the world, was due to the nervousness developed on a journey from London to India to perform a double cataract operation on the Rajah of Jamnager. She was in poor health before she left London, as a result of wearing duties in her profession. Dr. Ellaby was the daughter of a clergyman. She was graduated from a medical school in Paris and at once went to Bombay, India, where she practiced in the Cama Hospital for Women. In addition, she did an extensive general practice. While enroute under the severe Indian climate, she returned to London and became the first ophthalmic surgeon in a hospital for women and children. When she died she was consulting ophthal- mic surgeon and lecturer on ophthal- mic surgery to the London School of Medicine for Women and a member of the faculty of medicine of the University of London. She received a fee of many thousands of dollars for her trip to India for the single operation on the Rajah's eyes and also was provided with first-class return pas- sage.

This good and tender man in every storm of life was oak and rock; but in the sunshine he was vine and flower. He was the friend of all. He overcame all obstacles with a firm heart and smiling face and was the first one to go to the signal of dis- tress. He loved and sympathized with humanity and always sided with the weak, the poor, and wronged, and gladly and generously gave to others. Many a little heart he has made light by his generous gifts. With loyal heart and with the purest hands he faithfully discharged every duty. He added to the sum of human joy; and were every one to whom he did some loving service or kindly act to bring a blossom to his grave, he would sleep beneath a wilderness of flowers. The record of a generous life runs like a vine around the memory of our dead, and every unselfish act is now a per- fumed flower. We may, in speech, ex- press our thoughts but cannot con- tain our love. There was, there is, no gentler, manlier man than was our John Cummsiskey.

Scarcely able to control his voice Judge R. C. Flannigan spoke briefly of the deceased:

"What is in our hearts," he said, "it is impossible to put in words. That feeling of distress which weighs us down, which weighs you, his friends and associates, down, neither you nor I can convey in words. As a trial lawyer John had few equals and was ex- ceeded by no lawyer of my acquaint- ance. It was his humanity, his under- standing of men, his sympathy and generosity that made him. John was my friend and my grief is second only to that of his close relatives. The resolutions here presented will be spread upon the records of the court as requested."

A recess of half an hour was then taken.

MEMORIAL

It is impossible to portray in any satisfactory terms the value of the life of a splendid citizen and lawyer to his profession and State. John Cummsiskey, of the city of Escanaba, was such a man. One of those strong, congenial and constant characters that through a life time of steady in- dustry and ceaseless devotion to right living and conscientious endeavor in civil and professional duty, had won for him the love and respect of all those who knew him.

Unostentatious, industrious, learned in his profession, ever kind and con- siderate in his every action, consci- entious and faithful to every trust im- posed upon him, he was indeed a splendid man, and in his death Michi- gan has met with a great loss.

John Cummsiskey was born on a farm in the township of Isoco, Living- ston County, Michigan, on the twenty- first day of June, 1868. His parents were farmers and he was brought up to work on the farm. He was edu- cated in the common schools of Living- ston county, including the High School of Howell, Michigan. He was ad- mitted to the bar on the third day of July, 1889, and graduated from the Law Department of the University of Michigan in June, 1891. He com- menced the practice of his profession at Howell, Michigan, where he was elected circuit court commissioner, and afterwards, in 1894, prosecuting at- torney of that county. After his term as prosecuting attorney had expired, and in the year 1897, he moved to the city of Escanaba, where he has lived and practiced his profession until the 8th day of July, 1913, when as the result of a deplorable automobile ac- cident, which occurred while in the discharge of his professional duties,

He was recognized as one of the foremost trial lawyers in the state and his happy and congenial dispo- sition endeared him to all who came in contact with him. He was impartial, fearless, courteous, fairminded, even- tempered, with a sunny disposition and convincing in his appeals to the jurys. His devotion to home, kin- dred and the young was an example to all. He had a generous soul, fore- went to all hypocrisy. Unassuming, without undue or aid of influential friends, but with a brave heart, lofty ideals, with loyal friends, he over- came all obstacles and by the force of an indomitable will and with great natural abilities, won a well deserved recognition of his work as a lawyer and man at the bar, and as a citizen in the community in which he lived.

It is with these thoughts and reflec- tions of splendid achievements of a life, that we spread upon our records some token of our esteem for the man who has gone out from among us. Not dead, for he lives; lives in the hearts of those who knew him; lives in the memories of those who still live, and in the achievements of a well spent life.

WHEREAS, We, the members of the bar of Delta County, Michigan, realizing our great loss and the loss to this community and the State in the death of John Cummsiskey, and desiring to acknowledge our appreciation and esteem of him as a man and friend and of his life's work as a lawyer and a citizen, and to express our sympathy with his immediate family and friends, IT IS HEREBY

RESOLVED, That in the death of John Cummsiskey we realize and mourn the loss with the whole com- munity of a splendid and efficient law- yer, and a conscientious and public spirited citizen.

RESOLVED, That we express, and hereby convey, our sympathy to the family and friends of our late decas- ed brother.

RESOLVED, That a committee of three members of this bar be appoint- ed to convey a copy of these resolu- tions to his family.

RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the re- cords of the Circuit Court of Delta County.

UMBRELLA HOLDER.

Leaves Both Hands Free to Attend to Other Things. One of the things that has helped the popularity of the raincoat is the universal objection to carrying an um-

Handy for Letter Carriers. Indeed, people in some oc- cupations find it impossible to carry umbrellas, and they will rejoice in the supporter designed by an Indiana man. Particularly will letter carriers find it a convenience, as it will hold an umbrella over their heads and leave both hands free to get mail from their bag and ring the doorbell. The holder is attached to the user's coat and has a groove in it and hook to engage whatever enters the groove. The handle of the umbrella is placed in the groove and clamped fast, hold- ing the rain protector firmly above the owner's head. If the umbrella is to be carried in the holder folds down, thus pre- venting it from being an encumbrance even then. Any person who has bundles to carry would find one of these devices useful.

Artificial Lace.

Mechanics and chemists combined have furnished France with a new product—artificial lace. The general public has heard little about it, but the lace manufacturers of Lyons, Calais and Caudey have for some time past been much perturbed over this unexpected competition to which they will have to submit.

Artificial lace is in effect a man- ufacture of a very simple nature, says the Daily Consular and Trade Report. There is no weaving employed in its production. The machine consists in its essential parts of a receptacle con- taining a cupro-ammonical solution of cellulose, a metallic cylinder upon which is engraved the negative of the design and a coagulation vat.

A rotary motion is given to the cylinder, over which flows the solution which, entering the interstices of the engraved pattern, fixes itself immedi- ately in the coagulative liquid, out of which emerges the texture ready to be dyed and dressed.

Artificial lace has a beautiful ap- pearance. It is homogeneous and un- alterable; will wear better, and is less combustible than ordinary lace. Water does not affect it. And desired patterns can be obtained by engraving a new design.

Members of St. Patrick's Boys' Brigade Attend in Full Uniform

Solemn high mass was said yesterday morning at St. Patrick's church for the members of St. Patrick's Boys' Brigade who left this morning for a week's outing at Fayette.

The boys assembled in the basement of the church and marched into the main auditorium in a body, seating themselves in the pews fronting the altar. All were in full uniform.

A special orchestra of nine pieces and a choir of thirteen voices furnished inspiring music.

Father Feldhaus was the celebrant. Father Beauchene of Flat Rock, Deacon; Father Hoff of Milwaukee, Sub-Deacon. Father Barth delivered the sermon.

E. F. VAN VALKENBERG VISITS IN ESCANABA

E. F. Van Valkenburg, formerly of this city and now of Boise, Idaho, arrived in Escanaba this morning accompanied by his daughter, Miss Muriel. They are on the way East, where Mr. Van Valkenburg will attend a convention of insurance commissioners. It was just eight years and four months ago that Mr. Van Valkenburg left Escanaba and he says that the changes in the city during that short length of time are remarkable.

It was quite a coincidence that Mr. Chambers arrived in Escanaba Saturday, after an absence of six years and Mr. Van Valkenburg got here this morning. They were formerly in business together and conducted the Escanaba Journal.

Housekeeping Is Not the Task It Used to Be

MODERN invention has done away with much of the hard work. For instance, the cleaning and polishing of hardwood floors, the dusting of moldings, the tops of high furniture, the stairs, under the radiator, etc. These back-breaking tasks are now made easy with the

O-Cedar Mop Polish

With it you can dust, clean and polish a hardwood floor in the time it formerly took you to get ready to do it.

Besides, you do not have to get down on your hands and knees to dust under the bed or other hard-to-get-at places, or to stand on a chair to dust the top of the high furniture. All of the hard work is now made easy with the O-Cedar Mop. It gathers all the dust or dirt from everywhere and holds it. The mop is easily cleaned by washing and then dried by passing on a few drops of O-Cedar Polish.

Try It at Our Risk. Try it two whole days with us and if it satisfactory in every respect we will return your money. The price is only $1.50 and it will save you more money than you can lose in a short time.
