VIOLATION OF LIQUOR LAWS

PERKINS, SALOON KEEPERS PLEAD-GUILTY AND ARE SENTENCED BY JUDGE FLANNIGAN

JUDGE LECTURES THE DEFENDANTS

Peter, Sovie Fined $25 and Costs, Fred Geroux Pays Fine of $100 and Costs

The two Perkins liquor cases were disposed of in court this morning when both the defendants pleaded guilty and were later fined.

Peter Sovie was arrested on June 14, and was held in jail until the morning after his trial. Sovie stated that he was of the belief that he was allowed to keep open until eleven o'clock but freely admitted to the judge that he had kept open after eleven.

The frankness of the defendant and his assurance that it would be his final offense induced Judge Flannigan to make his sentence a light one and he was fined $25 and costs, amounting to $37 in all.

Fred Geroux, also of Perkins and arrested by Sheriff Curran, was charged with keeping open on Sunday. He pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs amounting to $110.

In passing sentence upon Geroux Judge Flannigan stated that those men who violated the liquor laws were working against their own interests for the reason that repeated violations might in time cause the people to vote the saloon out.

John Killman, arrested three times within the year for being drunk, was arraigned and pleaded guilty. He will be sentenced tomorrow.

WANT TO SEE CONTEST DATA

ATTORNEY RYALL REPRESENTING FRED PORTLANCE ASKS THAT MORNING PRESS CO. PRODUCE

DECISION GIVEN IN FEW DAYS

Judge Flannigan Hears Long Argument and Takes Matter Under Advisement

Attorney Ryall of the firm of Ryall and Loell, representing Fred Portlance in his suit against the Morning Press company to recover damages in the sum of $1500 which he alleges were offered in the recent subscription contest, this morning offered a motion before Judge Flannigan to compel the Morning Press company to produce all the books and data bearing upon the recent contest.

In his argument Attorney Ryall stated that the books, etc., were a necessity to enable him to draw up a specific declaration as to what constitutes the alleged fraud.

Attorney Thomas Riley representing the Morning Press company averred that the charges made were merely guesses and that the plaintiff had no more grounds on which to demand an examination of the books than a discredited political candidate would have to demand a recount of the vote because he believed himself to be elected and without any evidence to that effect.

The argument consumed the major portion of the morning and at the conclusion Judge Flannigan took the matter under advisement.

If the United States should fail to make such a declaration in a very short time it is thought very likely that the European powers may take a hand in restoring peace.

"Montecarlo," "Swindlers' Paradise," "Huge vampire that sucks blood from the arteries of industry," "Unincorporated irresponsible monstrosity of unfair pale of law" and "The antitheses of fair dealing and common honesty" are only a few of the synonyms he used. ERM WILL BE EXTRA BRIEF

MAJORITY OF CRIMINAL CASES CONTINUED OR NON-PROSECUTED THIS MORNING

VERY LITTLE INTEREST IS SHOWN

Session Will Doubtless Conclude Wednesday or Thursday of this Week

The criminal calendar was considered this morning and the majority of the cases disposed of. The cases continued were: People vs Thomas Rowan, keeping saloon open on Sunday.

People vs John Ilijanic, violation of liquor laws.

People vs Joseph Blondeau, attempt to kill or murder.

In the case of the People vs Thomas Rowan, selling liquor to a minor the a nol pross was allowed on petition of the prosecutor.

In the case of the People vs Charles Olson, violation of the liquor law, Judge Flannigan gave it as his opinion that if the case came to trial he would be compelled to instruct the jury to return a verdict of not guilty for the reason that it had been clearly shown that in this instance the saloon was left open by the bartender when he was caring for a sick man and that the violation was one of neglect and not of intent. The case was nol proseed.

In the People vs Joseph LaCausa, charged with burglary, the case was passed until Wednesday. La Causa was found guilty at a previous session of court and sentence was suspended on condition that the defendant leave the county and abstain from the use of intoxicants. The case of the People vs Marcel LaFleur, violation of the liquor laws, was stricken.

In the People vs Nick Grass, larceny from person, a nol pross was allowed.

People vs Harry K. Olson, statutory offense, passed until Wednesday.

"NICK CARTER" IN LAW SUIT

"Nick Carter," the hero of many a "yellow back" novel and who has survived three generations of small boys, is to be considered by the supreme court.

"Nick" was about to appear upon the moving picture stage when a New York firm of publishers today claimed that Nick Carter was born in their imagination about twenty-three years ago and had risen to fame as leading character in the detective stories.

A St. Louis moving picture film company believes that "Nick" was destined to be a drawing card and it prepared and advertised a "detective" film with an attractive title.

The matter got into the courts. The New York publishers claim the moving picture company is infringing a trade mark they possess to "Nick Carter."

After going to the federal court of appeals for the Eighth circuit, the matter was appealed by the publishing concern to the supreme court.

One of the "Nick Carter" films was shown last week at the Grand theatre in Menominee.

TOURNEY PLANS ARE PERFECTED

Red Jacket is Making Ready to Entertain Firemen.

Four days of carnival, merry-making and jollity await the Upper Peninsula Firemen's association upon its nineteenth annual tournament in Red Jacket July 23 to 26. Elaborate entertainment has been arranged and every detail that will add to the success of the gathering has been carefully planned.

The tournament calls for an expenditure of upwards of $3,000, which business men of Calumet have generously donated, and such attractions have been procured that will figure one of the biggest and most successful meetings in the history of the association.

With a view toward supplanting the customary hook and ladder and other track races with firemen's foot races, the committee has substituted a 100-yard dash, couplers' race and flag race for firemen only, and a free-for-all 100-yard dash.

For the flag race three prizes, $30, $20 and $10, have been offered; for the couplers' race, $20 and $10. In the free-for-all dash, the winner of the firemen's race is barred, the prizes for this event to be $15, $10 and $5. A 100-yard dash between the winners of the 100-yard dash (free for all) and the firemen's 100-yard dash is a novelty race that offers $10 to the winner.

To the best appearing company in the parade $20 will be given and a like amount to the company having the greatest number in line of march. Both of these have already stimulated interest in the parade, which is always a feature of the annual tournament.

The parade will mark the formal opening of the convention Wednesday afternoon, July 23, at 2:30 o'clock. A firemen's ball, taking the shape of a reception to firemen and their ladies, will be held the evening of that day.

The athletic events, Thursday and Friday afternoons, beginning at 2:30 o'clock, will precede baseball games between teams of the Calumet & Hecla league, an organization that produces an excellent grade of the national game. The famous Calumet & Hecla band will render concerts during the races and during the intervals between the races and ball games. The musical feature of the entertainment will be one of the best attractions of the week. The evening of each day will be given to street concerts and dancing on the pavement. The latter is a source of enjoyment that is appreciated by the street throngs.

An added attraction that bears assurance of passing the standard of such performances is the Miller Carnival shows, composed of eighteen acts. These shows will be grouped on the streets, the effect of which will be the instilling of the carnival spirit into every one who attends the convention.

The accommodation committee has responded to demands for reservations from all upper peninsula towns and preparations to care for several thousand visitors have been made.

EARTH CURRENTS

Experiments to Show Effects of Electric Traction Systems.

Interesting experiments have been made at the Kew Observatory, East London, on the effects of the electric currents produced in the earth by the electric traction systems of the British metropolises. The delicate magnetic instruments of the observatory are affected by the currents.

Metallic plates buried in the ground were connected with a photographic recording apparatus, and the tracings recorded by the instrument formed a picture of the time-table of the London Central Railway, although the nearest point of approach of that line is six miles from Kew.

Even accidental breakdowns occurring on the track line were indicated in the photographic record.

By connecting the earth-plates with a sensitive galvanometer, the effect of the movements of the tramway controllers was rendered evident, and a telephone being attached, sounds were heard at each controller movement.

Sparks will Not Burn.

the muzzle and ignite the gas from a wall-jet, kitchen range, or automobile lamp, as the case may be. In the barrel of the pistol is a rod of flint. Penetrating the barrel near the open end is a steel cap. The pulling of the trigger shoots the flint forth, and as it scratches beneath the steel a shower of sparks shoot out that have power to ignite the gas, but die so quickly that they would not burn woodwork or hangings or ignite anything less inflammable than gas. By pressing the plunger in front of the trigger the pistol is re-loaded for another charge. As the sparks grow fewer by use of the implement, the steel cap can be screwed tighter and the flint turned over to offer a fresh surface to it. Matches are not needed with this weapon in the house.

Of Interest to Women

Views On Women and Maternity—Prof. Armstrong and Herbert Spencer Both Feel Confident that "Woman Must Fail and in Failing, Must Carry Man to Her Destruction."

That the success of woman's struggle for equality with man would compass the destruction of the human race was asserted by Professor H. E. Armstrong at the last meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

Those who presumably are the fittest," said Dr. Armstrong, "are falling to contribute in proportion to the perpetuation of their race. The condition of affairs to-day affords a most striking exemplification of the slowness with which civilized nations are learning to appreciate the lessons of science. No problem can compare in importance with that of the future of our race. Not only do we encourage deterioration at the lower end of the scale of intelligence, but we are now, through our system of education, courted failure also at the upper end.

Herbert Spencer forcibly drew attention many years ago to the tendency which the development of individuality must have to depress fertility and to the evil effects of severe mental labor on women especially. It has been stated that in the United States of America the higher education of girls has been proved to "sterilize" them.

The most disquieting feature of the times is the revolt of women against their womanhood and their claim to be on an equality with man and to compete with men in every way. There should be no question of equality raised. When comparison is made between complementary factors the question of equality does not and cannot come into consideration. It is clear that should the struggle arise—and it is to be feared that it is coming upon us—there can be but one issue, "woman must fail, and in failing must carry man to her destruction."

One American Breaks Barrier.

Consuelo, Duchess of Marlborough, is the only American admitted to the circle of the Duke of Richmond. The Duke, like his father, has a prejudice against Americans. It was at the express wish of the King and Queen that he admitted the Duchess. When Consuelo received her first invitation to Goodwood, it is related, she was immensely tickled, but felt sure there must be some mistake. Lest there should be she sent it back, writing a letter with it saying she thought it was sent in error, as she had not the pleasure of the acquaintance of the Duke of Richmond and his daughter.

To this came a reply by wire saying "The Duke and his daughter, Lady Helen Gordon Lennox, would take it as a special favor if the Duchess would honor them with her presence as their Majesties particularly desired it." The delighted Duchess ordered her maid to pack her boxes and off they went, and now she receives an invitation each year, as a matter of course. But the Duke still is determined to draw the line at all other Americans.

Good Form in Girls' Running.

Probably the growing interest in athletics of all sorts is responsible for it, but, whatever the cause, girls nowadays run in a manner that differs widely from the way their mothers did when it was necessary for them to sprint for a car. Watch the average girl running for a car or for any other purpose and you will notice the difference at once. They place only the ball of the foot on the ground and they hold their bodies and head erect, as any one should do who is not indulging in a hundred-yard dash. It adds much to the grace of their appearing, a fact that may have some style.

A New Way to Bind Rag Carpet.

After carpet is laid, sew it on the machine according to the pattern, stitching straight on a row of rags. Use a short stitch and good thread as near the color of carpet as possible. Fasten firmly at each end and trim off close to the stitching. It will not pull or ravel, is neater than carpet-binding, and at any time pieces can be joined to fit a room by overbanding the stitched edges together. Such a joint is scarcely noticeable on the floor.—D. A. F.

Rubber Band Instead of Dental Floss.

Some dentists advise the use of a small rubber band instead of dental floss for running between the teeth. "Sometimes floss instead of dislodging the bits of food presses them closer to the gum."

The WOMAN A Novel by Albert Payson Terhune

founded on William C. de Mille's Play Illustrated with Photos from the Play and Drawings by V. L. Barnes

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I - Congressman Standish and the Woman, believing themselves in love, spend a trial week as man and wife in a hotel in northern New York under assumed names.

CHAPTER II - Wanda Kelly, telephone girl at the Hotel Kenwick, Washington, is loved by Tom Blake, son of the political boss of the house. He proposes marriage and is refused.

CHAPTER III - She gives as one of the reasons her determination to get revenge on Jim Blake for ruining her father, Congressman Frank E. Kelly.

CHAPTER IV - Robertson, son-in-law of Jim Blake and the latter's candidate for speaker of the house, tries to win Standish over and failing, threatens to dig into his past.

CHAPTER V - Jim Blake falls out about the episode of five years back at the northern New York hotel. He secures all the facts except the name of the woman and proposes to use the story as a club to force Standish to allow the Mullins bill to pass.

CHAPTER VI.

"This story about Standish-- began Tom uncomfortably; then paused involuntarily as Blake leaned back with a grunt of relief.

"That all?" asked the father. "I was afraid I was going to get another, call-down from my wise son on my follies and sins. Honestly, Tom, I don't know how I ever got through the first quarter-century of my life without your holy guidance and correction."

"Is that quite necessary?" said Tom. "I only wanted to ask you--"

"Of course you did. You wanted to ask me some question in politics. And instead of being glad that you are beginning to show an intelligent interest in my affairs, I made fun of you. I'm sorry, son. I'm an old crank. Go ahead with your question. You were asking about this Standish story?"

"Yes. I suppose it will give us the fight."

"Looks that way from where I sit," replied Blake. "Such pretty romances have wrecked many a man as strong as Standish--and stronger."

"Oh!" exclaimed Tom, almost shuddering. "I wish you wouldn't use blackmail to win your fight."

"Blackmail!" echoed Blake slowly. Then he paused. The rugged mask of a face had not changed. But the pupils of the half-shut eyes had suddenly contracted as though a blinding light had been flashed before them.

Yet, a second later, when Blake spoke again, there was no trace of pain or resentment in his dry drawing voice.

"Blackmail!" he said once more. "How about the way Standish dragged up that franchise affair of mine last year? What was that but blackmail?"

"Well," demanded Tom, in the stark mercilessness of youth, "you were stealing the franchise, weren't you, dad?"

"Yes," asserted Blake with a delightful absence of all false modesty. "I sure was. And I was doing it neatly, too. Not a ripple, not a kick, till Standish butted in with his sneaky reformers and queered the whole job and cost me a half million dollars. Son, every time I think of that, I want to chase some one with an ax. I don't lie awake nights thinking how cunning our friend Standish would look with seaweed in his hair and sand under his nails. But I keep that franchise memory and a few others fresh on the ice. And it sure doesn't break my heart to have a chance now of getting back at him."

"But," persisted Tom, "that was a public matter. It doesn't justify you in dragging his private life into the lime-light."

"The deuce it doesn't? Who told you that?"

"My self-respect."

"Oh! I thought maybe you might have got the tip from some reliable source. Go ahead, son. Don't justify me, hey?"

"No, dad, if you want truth, it doesn't. It isn't clean!"

"(Don't say, son, this is politics. Not a prayer-meeting. You've got in the wrong pew."

"If the right pew justifies dirty work like that," flashed the boy, "I'm glad I have. And I want to stay there. This business of making political capital of a man's dead-and-buried sins is enough to turn the stomach of a camel. A thousand times more so when one considers the Woman--"

"Well," queried Blake, in high good humor, as he always was when he could stir up a quarrel between his adored only son and himself. "What about her?"

"Everything. She made a good one" herself. Precisely when she was young. She has probably repented it bitterly, ten thousand times. She may have atoned for what she did. She may even be a wife and mother, now. Respected, loved. All the world and Heaven, besides, to her husband and children. And, just to pass a rotten railroad bill, you are going to drag her out into the glare of the newspaper world and crucify her! You are going to strip from her her husband's love; you are going to make her friends shun her as an outcast; you're throwing black shame on her innocent children's name. You are--"

"Excuse me, son," interrupted Blake. "But it's not doing a single one of those terribly dramatic things. Standish is doing it--or, rather, he has done it. Not I. Catch the idea? Standish committed a murder and found the body, would you call me a murderer? Hey? Well, that's what has happened this time. When Standish took the lady on that little left-handed wedding trip, five years ago in March, he rendered her liable to all that and worse. A man doesn't think of such things at the time. Neither does a woman. I guess. This one sure didn't, or she'd never have thrown over her one hope of safety by flitting him."

"Listen, dad," returned Tom, choking back a hot answer. "Ever since you brought me here into the thick of the fight, you and I haven't agreed about politics. But I've stood with you, through and through. I've worked hard for the party, because I felt I was working for you. But--well--this time I'd rather be working for the other side. Because I believe they're right and we are wrong."

"Well, then," blazed his father, in a dry gust of unvoiced wrath, "why don't you work for the other side? Go ahead! It's no great loss to us."

"You know perfectly well why I don't. It's because you are on this side--the wrong side just now."

"Go over to the other side!" snapped Blake. His rare anger still unspent. "They'd be glad enough to get you. Not that you'd be worth a hot in hell to them in actual value. But the fact that you're the worthy son of your unworthy blackmailing father would make you welcome. Go ahead! Lord, but I wonder what I ever did in the old days to be punished by having a centing reformer for a son! Well, why don't you go over to them?"

"Just as you say," answered Tom with a philosophic shrug of the shoulders. "Good night."

"Where are you off to, now?" grunted Blake indifferently, albeit there was a glint of wistfulness in the half-shut, steely old eyes.

"To the club. To dinner," said Tom, moving away.

"To the club, hey?" growled Blake, detaining him. "Huh! Afraid it'll hurt your spotless reputation to be seen dining here with a 'black-matter'?"

"You have a positive genius for choosing the rottenest, most disagreeable thing to say," remarked Tom; and there was a note of hurt in his voice that somehow reached the far-hidden and tortuous recesses where Jim Blake's battered old heart was supposed to be.

"Well," vouchsafed the father grumpily, "maybe that was a trifle"

"I Wish You Wouldn't Use Blackmail to Win Your Fight."

swift. Look here, lad," he went on, a soft, almost tender tone creeping into his dry voice, as he laid his hand on Tom's shoulder, "I'm the only father you've got. And you may as well make the best of it."

"You're the only father I want, dad. But--"

"There! There!" hastily admonished Blake. "Don't go spilling it with 'but's! You know what you are to me, boy. I guess I don't need to get mush-headed and try to tell you. And--and," he repeated, hiding his momentary tenderness under a cloud of made-to-order impatience, "that's why I hate to see you loading up your alleged brain with these fool ideas about--"

"Let it go at that, dad," laughed Tom.

"Oh, all right. I will, if you like. And you'll stay to dinner?"

"Why, of course," quickly assented Tom.

"That's better," approved Blake. "Now, run in and start with Mark. I'll be with you in a minute or two. And--say--if Mark and I should get to talking politics at dinner--"

"Don't worry," returned Tom, smiling. "I'm getting quite used to my muzzle. But Mark won't be as usually is. Grace is coming down."

"No!" cried Blake, his face might with pleasure. "Good for her! When?"

"At eight o'clock. But she didn't bother to mention whether it was eight this evening or eight tomorrow morning. Mark was just going to call her up on long distance to find out, when we happened to meet Standish. And I suppose the prospect of a clash with Standish quite drove a minor matter like his wife out of his thoughts."

"You're wrong there," dissented Blake. "There's nothing on earth can drive Grace out of Mark Robertson's head. He's as crazy in love with her as he was the day he married her. If he didn't telephone her before he went in to dinner it's a chinch he'll do it the minute he comes out. Queer old Mark. Grace is the one thing that makes him human. Chase on in, and order for me."

Dismissing his son with a slap on the shoulder, Blake strode across to the telephone alcove. Wanda Kelly looked up inquiringly from the novel she was reading between telephone calls.

"Miss Kelly," said Jim, "will you kindly connect me with the hotel office?"

He sprawled into a vacant seat at her side, caught up the extra receiver and called:

"That the office? Perry? Hello, Perry. This is Blake. Jim Blake. Yes. In two minutes I want you to send word to Mr. Standish that he's wanted on the phone here. Yes. Here. Not in his room. Here at the phone booth. Fix it any way you like. Only get him here inside of five minutes. No, no! Do as I say, I tell you. Good-by."

He hung up the receiver, rose and stood lounging against the rail, looking down at Wanda from between his half-closed lids.

"Now, then, Miss Kelly," he began abruptly.

"Yes," Mr. Blake," she interrogated as he paused.

(To Be Continued.)

ALCOHOL FREE SAWDUST.

Cannot be Distinguished From That Made of Grain.

Samples of alcohol made from sawdust have been sent to the Department of Agriculture from one of the big saw mills where the work is being done on a commercial scale; that is to say, a distilling plant has been installed, which is turning out several barrels of alcohol daily, though no traces are available as to the actual cost of manufacture compared with wood alcohol or that from grain. The interesting point about the sawdust alcohol is that it is not a wood alcohol, having none of the properties of that fluid, but is an ethyl alcohol that cannot be told from that made from grain. The difference is that the sawdust alcohol is made after the sawdust has been treated with an acid, transforming it into methyl alcohol, and is then distilled in the regular way. If the work can be done at a profit, and the indications from the work of the company point to this being a fact, it will not only make a valuable by-product, out of the sawdust that has heretofore been an intolerable nuisance to the sawmills, but it will open up a way to make alcohol profitably from straw, cane, cornstalks and almost any other vegetable refuse.

School Children's Attention.

Prof. W. Phillips read recently, before the Royal Sanitary Institute in England, a paper detailing his observations on the habit of school children's capacity for attention. He concludes that two intervals of rest of 15 minutes each during an ordinary school session are more useful than one of 20 minutes. The attention wanes more rapidly in the afternoon, and consequently the studies which most severely tax the attention, like mathematics, should be confined to the morning hours. Professor Phillips concludes that gymnastics is not of necessity a mentally recuperative agent. If the teacher is a strict disciplinarian in gymnastics, the fatigue exhibited by the children may be of a pronounced character.

Of Interest to Women

The American Women Good "Evergreens"--They Retain Their Charm and Youth Until Middle Age--The Honorable Mrs. Fitzroy Stuart States so in One of Her Articles.

According to an Englishwoman, the Honorable Mrs. Fitzroy Stuart, writing in the Strand, American women make good "evergreens." "Evergreens" are women who have retained their charm until long past the period of life when most of their sisters have slumped into middle or old age. In botany an evergreen is a tree which does not shed its foliage, so a human evergreen is the man or woman who never comes to toopsee, cane or pivot teeth and remains unchanged by the flight of time. Among the remarkable American evergreens the Honorable Mrs. Fitzroy Stuart mentions are Constance, Duchess of Manchester; the Honorable Lady Carrington, Lady Paget and Mrs. Cornwallis West. In England Queen Alexandra is a remarkable instance of a woman who has retained past the prime of life the charm, beauty and fascination of her youth. Some of our great artists seem to have solved very successfully the problem of not growing old. There is Bernhardt, for instance, whose life still continues to be one of undiminished activity. Marcella Sembrich is another of whom one can truthfully say "Age cannot wither nor custom scale her infinite variety." Lillian Russell's undiminished good looks generate the wonder of theatre goers able to compute the number of years she has appeared on the stage. Ninon de l'Enclos is said to have retained her radiant beauty until after she was ninety; Cleopatra, so history tells, was forty when Antony fell in love with her, and Mme. Recamier had reached the allotted three score years and ten when Horace Walpole found her so charming. All of which is decidedly cheering to us who at thirty-five feel that we have had our fling and must now step out of the way for the youngsters we have watched play about in pinafores.

A Restaurant Hat.

Although there is a strong tendency toward wearing moderately small hats on the street, picturesque ones will be worn in the evening at the restaurant supper, which has become such a feature of our life, and at the play. The sketch shows a high crowned toque but in King's blue, trimmed with one sweeping feather and a few short ones.

Silk Handkerchiefs.

In washing silk handkerchiefs care should be taken to prevent their turning yellow. A silk handkerchief should never be boiled, nor have any soap rubbed upon it. Make a lather of finely shredded white soap and water, wash and squeeze the handkerchiefs in it, press out all the moisture possible, and dry quickly in the sun, ironing them while they are still damp, but not wet.

White silk handkerchiefs used as neckties are sometimes cleaned very well with dried and powdered starch in which a little powdered blue has been mixed.

The handkerchief is spread over a clean linen cloth and with a pad on clean white linen the powder is rubbed over the silk, then dusted out, after which, with a moderately hot iron and two folds of a slightly damp linen laid over the silk on the right side, the handkerchief is ironed.

Sounds Like It.

Mrs. Young--They say Mrs. Tubbs treats her husband like a mandarin.

Mrs. Younger--How like a mandarin?

Mrs. Young--Picking on him all the time.

About Egypt. The total area of Egypt proper is about 480,000 square miles of which, however, only about 14,000 square miles are arable. The population exceeds 10,000,000, the density of the settled part that surpassing that of any other land on earth. Belgium not excepted. The superiority of Egypt as an agricultural country is owing to the equable climate, the possibility of carrying on farming all the year round, a constant supply of water and, as a consequence of the Nile overflow, a natural and perpetual richness of the soil, which does away with the great cost of fertilization.

FUNERAL OF MRS. SARAH BROWN WAS HELD TODAY

Died at Her Home at McFarland Hill on Sunday Last

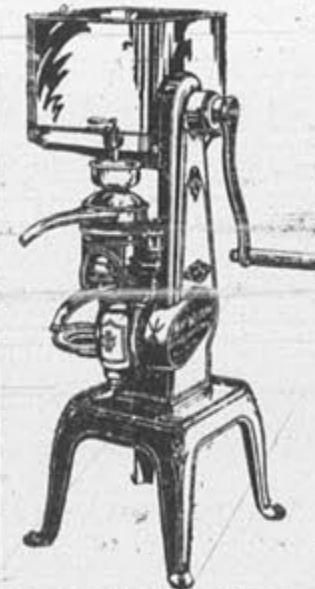

Funeral services over the body of Mrs. Sarah Brown, who died Sunday at her home at McFarland Hill, were held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by Rev. James Stanaway of Negaunee. The deceased was seventy-one years of age and had resided where death claimed her for over forty years.

Upper Michigan FARMERS

Do You Keep Cows or Do They Keep You?

Aye, this is the question. Year after year you care for them, feed and milk them. Is the income large enough to pay for all this labor and for all the food they eat? Are you caring for their milk with the least labor possible? All these things must be considered if your cows are to keep you in place of your keeping them.

A properly conducted dairy is one of the best paying departments on the farm, but to make it pay the most is secured only by reducing the labor, making it possible for the boys and girls ten to fifteen years of age to do the work ordinarily requiring the strongest men.

Turn All This Work Over to the Children

By the use of the GREAT WESTERN SEPARATOR they can handle all the milk because they can fill the supply-tank. The supply-tank can be easily filled by a boy or girl. They don't have to climb up on a chair, box or step-ladder and as a result all milk all over the floor and themselves in filling the supply-can. As the GREAT WESTERN supply-tank is low, they can stand right on the floor and fill it easily.

This big supply-can is made so they can easily swing it around to one side. It is not necessary for them to lift it off, either when full or empty, when they want to remove the bowl from the machine.

The gears and bearings in the GREAT WESTERN are all covered and run in a bath of oil, insuring not only perfect lubrication but also a long life of service from these gears and bearings, on account of no possibility of dust, dirt or grit getting into them as is possible with all machines with exposed gears and bearings.
