PUMPS AT THIRTY SHAFTS IN COPPER COUNTRY WORKING

Officemen at Several Plants, a Number of Pumpmen and Few Surfacemen Return to Work

BUSINESS MEN ARE ACTIVE

Send a Telegram to Governor Ferris Asking That Troops be Kept on the Grounds

NO SIGN OF ANY DISORDER TODAY

Calumet, July 29.—The pumps at thirty shafts in the copper country are working today, the office men of several of the companies are at work and a number of surface men answered the toot of the whistle this morning. The conglomerate pumps of the Calumet and Hecla properties are working and the various companies seem in a fair way to get the mines in complete readiness for operation when the strike ends.

No disorders of any kind accompanied the return to work of some of the men this morning. They were given guard and are guarded at their work but as far as outward indications can be relied upon there is no use in either. This has been the most quiet day since the strike was inaugurated.

A telegram bearing the names of six of the most prominent merchants of Calumet was sent to Governor Ferris this morning asking him to keep the troops on the grounds until the strike was settled. The business men have apparently made up their minds to take an active part to see that their interests are protected.

It is the desire of the mining companies to keep their shafts dry so that operations will not be long delayed when the strike is settled. To allow the water to remain in the shafts would prevent mining operations for some time, even after the strike had been concluded. It would take weeks in some cases to get the shafts in readiness for a resumption of work. It is considered it is as much in the interests of the miners as the mining companies that the shaft be kept pumped out.

In the Calumet & Hecla conglomerate shafts the water has reached approximately three hundred feet from the bottom and is steadily climbing. No pumps were in operation at any of the Calumet & Hecla shafts up to noon today, but they will be started just as soon as possible. There already is activity in some of the boiler houses, fires having been started.

The pumps at the Hancock Consolidated mine resumed this morning, and at Ahmeek the fire pumps, shut down Saturday night, have also been started up again. The pumps at the Baltic are operating and the skips have been placed in position at Champion and Trumountain.

No plans have been made at any of the mines to resume mining operations during the strike, present plans having to do entirely with the operation of the pumps and keeping the shafts dry.

MILLER WANTS GUARDS REMOVED

Guy E. Miller, who is now the directing head of the strike for the Western Federation of Miners, in the absence of Vice President Mahoney who has left the district, stated last night that he intends tomorrow asking a conference with General Abbey. He will protest against the guarding of shafts at which pumps are working and also against the protection of the men at work. General Abbey has been advised of the intended visit, but offers no comment as to how he will entertain the proposals.

Pickets have been established at the Calumet & Hecla conglomerate shafts which are filled with water. Last night several hundred marching strikers visited these shafts, but made no demonstration. It is said today the strikers are circulating among Calumet businessmen a petition directed to Governor Ferris, asking him to call off the troops as being unnecessary and a great expense to the state. This rumor lacks confirmation.

ANOTHER INVESTIGATION

Democratic Congress Has the Old Solution for Mexico's Troubles Investigate

(By Associated Press.) Washington, July 29.—An investigation by a joint committee on the Mexican conditions has been proposed by Representative Stephens of Texas. He proposes that five senators and five representatives examine all the diplomatic correspondence and other documents.

President Wilson has made no announcement of the plans he has made or the policy he intends to pursue. The mediators hope to get the resignation of Huerta and then select a man that will be favorable to all sides.

"LIAR AND BLACKMAILER"

Majority Leader Underwood so Characterizes Martin Mulhall, Lobbyist

(By Associated Press.) Washington, July 29.—Majority Leader Underwood has denounced Martin Mulhall the alleged lobbyist of the manufacturers Association as a "liar and blackmailer." Underwood denies that he has talked to Mulhall and looking him squarely in the face declared that he never saw him before.

After Underwood made his denunciations Mulhall testified that Secretary Wilson, Speaker Clark and Republican Leader Mann as well as Samuel Gompers turned down his proposals for an investigation of his lobbying for the manufacturers. He declared that Mann and Clark refused to have the matter come up at all. Mulhall and Underwood had a hot debate the later insisting that Mulhall was a "liar," while the former maintained that he can prove all the statements that has been made by him and charges further that he had a conference with Underwood on legislation.

AUSTRIAN IS DEAD

Peter Miller Succumbed This Morning After Long Illness From Typhoid Fever.

Peter Miller, an Austrian, who has been employed at Kates for several months, died at the Delta County hospital this morning at ten o'clock, aged twenty-five years.

The young man was brought to the hospital six weeks ago suffering from typhoid fever. Since June 20 no one had called to see him and it is thought that he has no relatives in this country.

Undertaker Allo took charge of the body.

HARVEY IS "NOT GUILTY"

Local Man Accused of Taking Bicycles Was Discharged This Morning

David Harvey was arraigned before Judge Glaser this morning on a charge of stealing two bicycles and was found not guilty.

Harvey gave a satisfactory explanation as to how the bicycles in question came into his possession and was released. The case had been postponed empty-eleven times or more.

NO CLUE TO MURDERERS

DETECTIVES OF CHICAGO FIND NOTHING TO INDICATE WHO MURDERED BERNIE HOLSTEIN

POLICE DEPARTMENT IS AT SEA

Open Grave Found Few Feet From The Body in Bushes of Morgan Park

(By Associated Press.) Chicago, July 29.—Detectives worked day and night trying to solve the mystery that surrounds the death of Bernie Holstein, the fourteen year old boy whose body was found in Morgan park here yesterday.

"An open grave was found in a clump of bushes near the body. It had apparently been dug to place the body in but the murderers evidently became frightened before they accomplished their final task.

Empty beer bottles and a whiskey bottle lead to the theory that the boy was killed after a drunken orgy.

A newspaper bearing fingerprints, the heel of a shoe and the silver tipped bullet taken from the boy's brain are the only clues.

SON OF J. ALPROVITZ HAS SHOULDER BROKEN

Presence of Mind of Fred Fournier Saves Youngster From More Serious Injury

David, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Alprovitz is suffering from a broken shoulder as the result of a most peculiar accident, one that might have been many times worse but for the presence of mind of Fred Fournier, who collided with the youngster.

The accident occurred shortly after seven o'clock last evening when the boy darted directly across the street in front of Fred Fournier who was riding his motor cycle. Fournier flashed his wheel to the side but instantly realizing the handle bar would strike the boy he stuck his right foot forward and kicked the boy out of danger. The force of the contact sent the boy sprawling and his left shoulder was broken. Fournier was thrown from his motorcycle and slightly bruised.

Fournier's presence of mind doubtless prevented an accident of a decidedly serious nature.

CROWDED HOUSE AT GRAND

Flaig-Gilpin Stock Company Opens Indefinite Engagement

The Flaig-Gilpin Stock company opened an indefinite engagement last night at the Grand theatre, with "An Indian's Sacrifice" as the bill. The theatre was crowded to its capacity and the applause indicated that the audience was well pleased. The scenic effects are entirely new and the vaudeville numbers are new. The pictures are extra fine.

SPEND WEEK IN CAMP

Local People Left This Morning for Point Along the Escanaba River

Dr. and Mrs. Frank T. Long, Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Hodson, of Escanaba, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bisbee of Wells, Dr. and Mrs. Hardy Long of Gary, Indiana, left this morning for Camp Helen Delight on the Escanaba river. They expect to spend a week or ten days in camp.

MARVIN NOW IN CHARGE

Named as Chief of the Weather Bureau to Succeed Willis Moore

(By Associated Press.) Washington D. C., July 29.—Professor Charles F. Marvin has been selected as chief of the weather bureau to succeed Willis F. Moore, recently relieved. Marvin was chief of the instrument division.

SECOND CONVICT SQUAD TAKEN FROM SING SING

Sixty More Prisoners Taken to Auburn This Morning by Twelve Keepers

(By Associated Press.) Ossining, N. Y., July 29.—Convict squad No. 2 in a double line of 60, left Sing Sing for Auburn this morning and there was no demonstration like that of last week. Twelve keepers, heavily armed led and flanked the line. The prisoners were chained together, two and two, by ankle and wrist.

On the train they were chained to the car seats. With this removal of the second batch of unruly prisoners, Warden Clancy expects that quietude will again reign at the prison.

WEDDING FESTIVITIES COME TO JOYFUL CLOSE

Charles Mickelson and Miss Lena Johnson Were Married Saturday Evening

The festivities attending the wedding of Miss Lena Johnson of this city to Charles Mickelson of Iron Mountain ceased at eleven o'clock this morning when Iron Mountain guests returned home.

The ceremony was performed at five o'clock Saturday evening at the home of John Swanson at 310 Ludington street by Rev. Lundine, pastor of the Swedish Methodist church. Following the ceremony the bridal party and the guests, numbering fifty, enjoyed a wedding supper and later dance in the Lemmer hall which kept going until five o'clock the following morning.

Sunday afternoon and Monday the out of town guests enjoyed a trip on the water.

Those attending from Iron Mountain were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Arson, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Erickson, Andrew Walstrom, Victor Anderson, John Carlson, Gunner Johnson, Erik Gustafson, John Bach, Miss Segrid Olman, Miss Ida Rosenlof.

The bride has been employed at the Ludington hotel the past year. Mr. Mickelson holds a good position in Iron Mountain where the couple will make their home.

SUSTAINS PAINFUL INJURY

Leslie Schram Cuts Big Gash in Knee When he Falls on Broken Sewer Pipe

Leslie the son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Schram of this city sustained a severe laceration of the left knee last evening that will confine him to the house for some time.

The youngster was laying when he stumbled and fell on the edge of a broken sewer pipe. A nasty gash was inflicted just over the knee joint. Dr. Chenoweth dressed the injury and several stitches were required to close the wound. Because of the nature of the wound it will be necessary to keep the leg in a plaster cast for at least two weeks.

The boy was running across the Washington school yard when he tumbled into a hole about five feet in depth and struck his knee on a piece of broken pipe. The gas main is being changed at that point.

REVOLUTIONS LOOM LARGE

GREAT THROGS JOINING THE SOUTHERN REVOLUTIONARY ARMY—NORTHERNERS JOIN REBELS

THE SITUATION IS VERY SERIOUS

Portugal in the Throes of a Threatened Uprising That May Break Momentarily

(By Associated Press.) Amoy, China, July 29.—All troops have been withdrawn from the interior of the northern part of the province of Fo Kien and dispatched to reinforce the revolutionary southern forces at Nanking and Wusung. Large numbers of volunteers are enrolling in the southern army at Sney. The situation at Fuchow has caused great uneasiness.

Paris—Dispatches from Portugal indicate that great revolutionary activity prevails throughout that country. It is reported that a vast movement is planned in Lisbon and Oporto and the revolution may break momentarily.

Pekin—The province of Hu Nan seceded today from the Peking government and already an army of 5,000 is guarding the border. The government officials think the revolution will soon be put down. It is impossible to draw a line between the rebellious and loyal provinces for many cities in rebel territory declare loyalty.

"NO BLOOMERS" IS EDICT

Members of Young Woman's Christian Association of LaCrosse Can't Wear 'Em Camping

(By Associated Press.) La Crosse, Wis., July 29.—Bloomers which were worn by 25 members of the Young Women's Christian Association, who are encamped here have been tabooed by the matron in charge of the camp. The girls donned the bloomers for the reason that they were better adapted for hill climbing and roaming through the woods.

The matron says that there were too many motor boats passing with men who "rubbed" at the young women. The campers have returned to skirts and hammocks and chairs and abandoned the hills, wet grass and bushes.

SUPPER AT THE PARK

C. C. Club Gave Delightful Party Last Night in Honor of Visitor

The C. C. Club gave a delightful supper last evening at the City park in honor of Miss Esther Johnson of St. Paul who is visiting friends in Escanaba and Hyde.

The young ladies enjoyed a repast that was made up of a hundred and one delicacies and substantial games etc., and it was well after dark before the party was completed.

TEAMSTER IS TRAMPLED AND KICKED TO DEATH BY HORSE

LIMA IS UNSCATHED

Report of Catastrophe in Peru Has Been Denied

(By Associated Press.) Lima, Peru, July 29.—There is no truth in the report current in Europe and America covering a catastrophe in this city. It probably arose because the wire communication between this city, Santiago and Chile has been interrupted.

DIFFICULT OPERATION

Louis Lamoth Had Arm Dislocated Six Weeks Ago—Grew Fast Outside of Socket

A difficult operation was performed at the Delta County hospital this morning by Drs. Lemire and Kitchen. On June 17 Louis Lamoth of the Danforth settlement dislocated his left shoulder. The dislocation was treated by a bonesetter and Lamoth never regained the use of the arm.

An examination showed that it had grown fast outside the socket and the operation performed this morning was a most difficult one as the physicians were practically compelled to construct a new socket for the arm to work in. The results are expected to be satisfactory in every way.

SPEND TEN DAYS IN JAIL

One Boat Hands to Enjoy an Outing at the City's Expense

Two of the three coal boat hands arrested late yesterday afternoon on charges of assault and battery were arraigned last evening and found guilty. They were sentenced to spend ten days in the county jail and they began their sentence this morning.

The men then swore out a warrant for the captain of the vessel charging that he had assaulted one of them and "Sicked" his bulldog on him. The defendant was found not guilty. The cases were heard before Judge McEwen.

FAIR DIRECTORS MEET

Plans for Coming Exhibition Discussed at Meeting Held Last Night

A meeting of the fair association directors was held last night in the office of President T. E. Strom with all the board members from the city and practically all those from the county in attendance.

The details of the coming exhibition were thoroughly gone over and the plans laid out so that the various committees can work to the best advantage.

Oscar Romain Found at Three O'clock This Morning in Barn With Skull Fractured

STILL ALIVE WHEN FOUND

John Judson Goes to Barn to Hitchup for an Early Picnic and Finds Romain Dying

FUNERAL THURSDAY AFTERNOON

With the left side of his skull crushed just above the ear, his jaw broken, the left side of his face cut almost into ribbons and his left ear almost torn off Oscar Romain, a teamster in the employ of Coleman Nee, was found by John Judson at three o'clock this morning lying in a stall in Nee's barn at 215 South Jennie street. A few minutes later Romain was dead, kicked and trampled to death by a horse.

The victim of the fearful accident, who has for years been a resident of this city, probably laid down or fell into the stall sometime about midnight and the frightened horse kicked and trampled him to death.

Judson resides near the Nee barn and keeps his horse there. He arose before three o'clock this morning with the intention of taking his children on a picnic and wishing to get an early start he went to the barn to hitch up. Just as soon as he entered the door he saw Romain's inert form lying in the first stall and the horse, one belonging to Mr. Nee, standing trembling in a corner as far removed from the almost lifeless body as it could get in the stall. Judson quickly pulled Romain out of the stall and summoned Mr. Nee and Dr. Lemire. Only a few minutes after the arrival of the physicians Romain breathed his last.

An examination showed that his skull was fractured in two places, two lacerations on the back of the head showed the marks of the corks of the horses shoes, the left side of the face was torn by the corks and the ear was only hanging by a bit of skin. The right side of the face showed several bruises, as the point of the animal's shoes might have inflicted. The left jaw was laid open and the bone fractured. On the breast were also the marks of the shoes.

The body was taken in charge by Undertaker J. A. Allo and removed to his parlors where it was prepared for burial.

The details of the accident can only be supplied by the imagination. Mr. Nee and Mr. Judson were in the barn at ten o'clock looking after the horses so it is a surety that Romain did not enter the barn until after that time. A friend of the dead man stated this morning that he had left Romain about twelve o'clock. Romain then probably went to the barn, which is always left open, to sleep. Entering the door he probably fell into the (Continued on page six)

FORMER MENOMINEE MAN IS A SUICIDE

Guy Beardsley, Formerly Chemist for Menominee Sugar Co., Takes Life at Cleveland

Menominee, July 29.—Guy Beardsley, aged 29, three years chemist for the Menominee River Sugar company, committed suicide last Wednesday at the Hotel Statler in Cleveland, Ohio, by taking poison. He was despondent it is believed, over financial matters. He is survived by his wife and two little children.

His wife was formerly Miss Clara Gagnon of Menominee and she is now with her parents in this city. He was a son of a wealthy sugar broker of New York city and his remains will be taken there for interment. He was in Menominee four years ago and went from Menominee to Toledo where he worked for a sugar company. Mr. and Mrs. Beardsley spent one or two summers on the Chautauqua grounds.

Railway Business for May.

During May the railways of the United States received for their services to the public an average of $8,230,000 a day; it cost to run their trains and for other expenses of operation $5,920,000 a day; their taxes were $341,500 a day; their operating income $1,972,322 a day for the 220,597 miles of line reporting, or at the rate of $8.93 for each mile of line for each day. Thus for every six dollars of their earnings which remained available for rentals, interest on bonds, appropriations for betterments, improvements and new construction, and for dividends, the railways had to pay more than one dollar in taxes.

All of these amounts are substantially greater than the similar returns for May, 1912. They are from the summary of the earnings and expenses compiled by the Bureau of Railway Economics from the monthly reports of the steam railways of the United States to the Interstate Commerce Commission. They include over 95 per cent of the mileage and earnings of all of the railways of the country.

A South Arabian Food Plant.

Jowari, a tall slender plant resembling corn and headed with a grain something like millet, is the Abdali's chief crop. He feeds the stalk to his camels and eats the grain himself. Three crops a year are produced. Jowari requires little cultivation except weeding, which the Abdali does by hand, and when ripe he cuts it off close to the ground with his hunting knife. New shoots spring up from the roots to become the next crop. For a camel load of about 325 pounds he receives at Aden an average of two rupees, or $4.88. A fair yearly yield is twenty camel loads an acre.

Pet Bear Shipped.

Leon Flint, of Norway, has sold his pet bear to people living in West Virginia. The shipping crate bore the words: "My name is Jennie. I have been in captivity since I was a year old and am quite tame. Please give me a drink." It was shipped by the Canadian Express, and needless to say will be taken care of.—Lewis-ton (Me.) Journal

ATTORNEY GENERAL HOLDS SHERIFF WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO CLOSE THE SALOONS

Houghton, Mich.—Sheriff Cruse has received by wire from Attorney General Grant Fellows an opinion to the effect that the sheriff has no authority to close the saloons of Houghton County during the strike. The opinion says that the matter is in the hands of the village and township authorities, that a saloon that is living up to the requirements of the law cannot be ordered closed by the sheriff.

The opinion is taken to mean that in a village, city or township in which rioting may occur, and in which the rioters become lawless under the influence of liquor, thus becoming a greater menace, the municipal authorities may order the saloons closed.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney McCormick was in the sheriff's office when this opinion was received. He does not agree with the attorney-general, holding that the sheriff's police power extends to this, as to all other emergencies. But Sheriff Cruse probably will not act on this opinion of his own advisor considering that the right of the individual municipality to close the saloons will cover the situation.

A blanket order, for example, would close the saloons in Houghton, a municipality that has not yet felt any of the effects of the strike, other than the general effect on business.

It probably would be looked upon by the Houghton public as unjust to compel the Houghton saloon keepers to suspend when they would not be contributing to any unfavorable condition.

OFFICIAL FORECAST

July 29, 1913.
For Escanaba and vicinity:
Showers tonight or Wednesday; warmer tonight; moderate south east and south winds.

THE PINK WIDOW

The Pink Widow, one of "the Three Graces of Musical Comedy" booked at the Orpheum will be presented July 21, Aug. 1, 2, and 3. Of the trio of graces The Pink Widow is declared to possess the most melodious score. It is in fact the big song show of the three and those who delight in good music will possibly relish it more than any musical attraction that has been here in some time.

A special feature that never fails to create much comment is the presentation of the "Aeroplane Girl." Whether the "aeroplane" is in reality a craft floating about in the air either of its own will and accord or whether it is a clever device and illusion, is something that none but the managers of the show, the girl herself and the stage mechanics know. To the audience the effect is perfect. Its novelty is uncontroversial.

The ancient theme of mistaken identity brought up to date and served in Twentieth Century style furnishes the thread of plot. The comedy element is strong in this attraction.

The big chorus will be seen to much advantage in The Pink Widow. Some of the costumes are declared to be daring to say the least. Especially is this true of the swimming number and in the boat race when the young women display an abundance of curves such as would make a map of the B. & O. look like a tangent.

Arthur Clamage, the perennial favorite, is entrusted with the leading comedy role, that of a German soldier. Al Zimmerman plays an Irishman with all the humor accredited to sons of Old Erin.

Seats for The Pink Widow may now be had at theatre. The prices are general admission 10c, first floor 20 and 30c, boxes 30c.

Fossils as Sign-Posts.

The recent discovery in the southern part of Madagascar of reptilian fossils, which geologists affirm belong to the Permian epoch, leads to the expectation that coal will be found there. In India, Australia and southern Africa the strata containing the remains of these animals are characterized by the presence of coal-beds. The likelihood that the same condition of affairs will be found in Madagascar is regarded as being much strengthened by the association of one of the fossils recently discovered with a leaf of glossopteris, one of the plants most distinctive of the Permian coal formations in the southern hemisphere.

MISSING WORD CONTEST

NOTABLES IN THE LIMELIGHT

Rev. Charles Stelzle, Labor Preacher and Sociologist.

Rev. Charles Stelzle, for ten years in charge of the social service work of the National Presbyterian church, has resigned his position as superintendent of the bureau of social service of the board of home missions in order to enter the broader field of general social service and church efficiency upon an undenominational basis. Mr. Stelzle will become a "consulting sociologist" for national church organizations, social service agencies and industrial enterprises. This is probably the pioneer effort in this direction, particularly with regard to religious organizations. Mr. Stelzle is the machinist who became a preacher after twelve years' experience in the shop, for the purpose of trying to break down the antagonism existing between the workman and the church, and to introduce in the church in a national way the principles of industrial efficiency. He organized the department of church and labor for the Presbyterians, the first bureau of its kind to be established by any denomination. Similar departments have since been organized by nearly a dozen of the leading denominations in the United States. One of the enterprises that he established for the purpose of talking out with workmen their own problems is the Labor temple in lower New York, in the most densely populated section in the city.

With Captain Bartlett on the steam whaler Kariuk, on which the expedition sailed, was Dr. Robert Anderson, codiscoverer with Stefansson of the blood of Eskimos on Stefansson's last journey in the arctic.
Explorer Stefansson, who will join the Kariuk at Nome, Alaska, her first stopping place, is enthusiastic over the expedition and the outlook and says that, while every reasonable precaution will be taken to safeguard the lives of the party, it is realized both by the backers of the expedition and the members of it that even the lives of the party are secondary to the accomplishment of the work. The expedition expects to be absent in the arctic probably three years and in that time to make discoveries of importance to several sciences.

Conditions of Contest

In one or more ads on this page a word has been intentionally left out. Read all the ads carefully and see if you can supply the missing words. Write your answer plainly on a sheet of paper and sign your name to same, then put it into a plain envelope, and bring or send it to The Daily Mirror office. Only adults can enter their names in this contest. In writing your answer, specify the ads and the lines in the ads in which the words are missing, giving the correct words. These ads will run twice per week in this paper and one dollar will be given for the first correct answer in each day's contest. The envelopes will be placed in a box and drawn out; the first correct answer will be entitled to the dollar. All answers must be brought to The Mirror office following this publication. A notice will be published in following issue stating what words were left out of these ads and who is entitled to the dollar.

A Peculiarity of Wearers of Redfern Corsets

Is their loyalty to the corset of their choice. Women who once get the Redfern habit seldom care to change. This is no theory. It is a fact they are comfortable corsets. Redfern corsets fit well, they give the figure distinction desired, and the various models are so uniformly "sized" that one learns that a second fitting is unnecessary. We can't say much more for the Redfern—the fact that we sell them is a recommendation.

POWER FROM ELECTRIC EELS.

Result of Recent Experiments by a Venezuelan Scientist.
Prof. de Estando, head of the Government college at Caracas, Venezuela, had a hundred average sized electric eels captured and copper wire encircled around their necks, just below the ears and then connected them with a motor, the eels remaining in the river near the shore. Their violent flopping, and contortions proved a most uncertain sort of electric current, so he procured another hundred and put them into a zinc bath which he had in his house and connected it with the motor and found that they produced about twenty horse power. With this he ran a mill and lighted up his house and grounds. The power from each eel sufficed to produce a forty five candle incandescent light. Prof. de Esperando also has found that a motor can be run for twenty four hours with two eels in a tank 3 feet long and 1 1/2 feet square and weighing complete less than 200 pounds. It is claimed that the largest ocean steamers afloat can be run with 200,000 eels, producing 40,000 horse power and contained in a tank not larger than 10x10x15. This plant of course will have to be duplicated so that when the energy in one is exhausted it can be isolated from the hold to the deck so that the light from the sun can infuse new energy into it while the power is furnished by the relay plant.

Ancient Buildings Imperilled by Ants.
The Castle of Wakayama has been found to be in a state of ruin due to the attacks of African white ants. The main supporting pillars have been entirely hollowed out by the insects. On examination it has been discovered that the barracks in Awaji and the Miyama fortresses in the Kii district are also being ruined by these harmful insects.

What Coal Mining Costs in Lives.
It is estimated by those who have followed the annals of coal mining that the production of 514,292,000 short tons of anthracite and bituminous coal in 1911 involved the loss of 2,951 lives in twenty-one States and provinces of the United States and Canada. The loss of life exceeded that for the year previous by 26.23 per cent. The fatality for 1911 was 4.18 per 1,000 persons employed.

Ancient Manuscript Found.
A Berlin museum has recently acquired a very valuable manuscript which originated in the second century B. C. It seems to be of the nature of a biographical dictionary, for it contains a list of the leading men of the time in art, statesmanship and warfare with much other general information of a similar nature. The paper was found in the wrappings of a mummy.

Cold Storage Steamers.
During the season of navigation of 1908 there were forty-six steamers fitted with mechanical refrigerating plants sailing from the port of Montreal, with a combined cold storage space of 1,105,556 cubic feet, and, counting the total number of trips made by these steamers in the season, they rendered available a total cold storage space of 4,507,195 cubic feet. In addition, nineteen steamers with cooled air accommodation of 904,790 cubic feet were in commission.

The WOMAN

A Novel by Albert Payson Terhune

Founded on William C. de Mille's Plot of the same name

CHAPTER XXI.

Jim Blake, Loser.

And so for an instant they stood. It was an odd tableau: Grace, helpless, shaking, dumb; Wanda, her arms clasped protectively about the unheeding woman, who did not so much as realize their presence nor feel the warm sympathy of their embrace.

And it was Van Dyke who broke the brief silence. His precise dry voice was tinged by a note of something almost stern as he addressed her.

"Mark," he said, "Miss Kelly has told us that she promised the woman not to tell. When did she make that promise?"

"What does that matter now?" snapped Mark. "We—"

"She never heard of the affair until early this evening. So it must be since then that she talked with the woman about it. Miss Kelly has been on duty downstairs ever since six o'clock. She has not left this hotel. How could she have communicated with the woman?"

"By telephone, if—"

"I think not," denied Van Dyke, the cold sorrow in his voice now apparent to every one. "The woman is here in this house."

"So much the better," declared Blake, again picking up the telephone. Van Dyke, in gloomy wonder, turned on his chief.

"You have often boasted, Jim," said he, "that you give your suspects to the fact you see things just a second sooner than other people. Don't you understand—even yet?"

"No," growled Blake, "I don't. Out with it, man! What are you trying to get at? Don't beat about the bush. You're wasting time that we haven't got."

Van Dyke faced Robertson; his lean face working.

"Mark," he said, tapping the duplicate telephone list, "your house in New York is charged here with two calls. We thought it was a mistake."

A wordless gurgle from Jim Blake interrupted him. The telephone was set down by a hand that shook as though from palsy.

Wanda Kelly wound her arms tighter about the heavy body. But Grace neither felt the contact nor heard the whisper of eager futile comforting.

"Don't you understand?" pleaded the latter.

"No, I don't," returned Mark. "What have the two phone calls to my home got to do with—?"

"Suppose the second call were not a mistake?" hesitated Van Dyke.

"Robinson's face went purple. The big veins near his temples swelled grotesquely. He took an involuntary step toward Van Dyke. The latter raised a protesting hand.

"Mark," he said, flinching not at all before the bloodshot fury in the husband's little eyes, "we are here as lawyers, making an investigation. At last we have struck the right trail. I am sorry it leads where it does. I—"

He got no further. At a stride Robertson was beside his wife. Roughly brushing aside Wanda's embracing arms he caught Grace by the shoulder and held her.

"You hear what this man insinuates?" he cried thickly. "I don't ask you to foul your lips by denying it. I'll attend to him later. But give me the right to do that by telling the woman's name at once."

"Grace!" cried Blake, his throat dead with a horror that he would not confess, "don't you hear what they're saying, girl?"

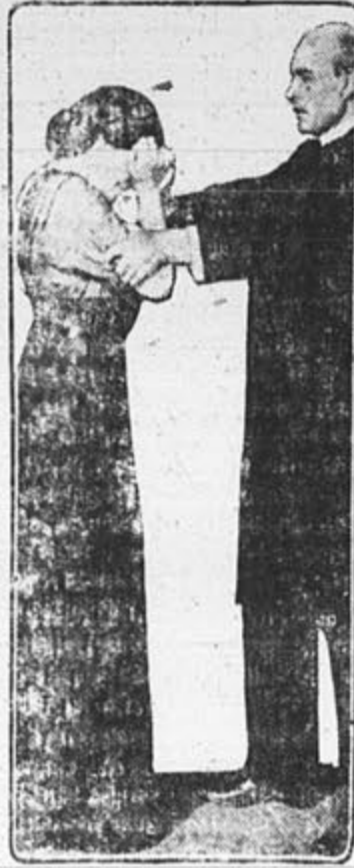

In his harsh eagerness, Mark forcibly lifted his wife's bent head and forced her eyes to meet his.

"What's the matter?" he demanded sharply. "Why don't you speak? Tell Van Dyke he lies. Tells him he lies, I say! Oh!"

His fierce appeal broke off in a cry of pain. He had at last raised her face and had read it. For the briefest moment he stood stupefied, expressionless. Then, cautiously, half-cringingly, as if expecting a blow, he moved back to Van Dyke.

"Why, Grace!" expostulated Blake, in pitiful bravado. "You're crazy! You don't know what you're implying—what you're letting them think. I won't believe it. Not a word of it. It's a trick to—"

His shaking hand and incoherent syllable or two amid the passion of her

Gathered Her Into His Arms as Though She Were a Baby.

"Almighty!"

Blake's legs gave way and he sprawled inert into a chair, his head on his breast. He had all at once grown old—very, very old. Meantime, Robertson had forced his own dazed brain back into a semblance of its former strong control.

"Van Dyke," he said as calmly as if he were giving a routine order, "you will have every trace of this story destroyed tonight. It must never get beyond this room. I can count on you."

"Certainly," agreed Van Dyke with equal coolness.

There was no hint in his voice or in his manner that Mark's command entailed the defeat of a bill, the collapse of millions of dollars' worth of stocks, a probably panic on Wall street and the money interests' total if temporary loss of power in congress.

On his way from the room, Van Dyke paused beside Blake's chair.

"Jim," he said hesitatingly, "I'm going over to the capitol. Shall I tell Mullins to let the bill come to a vote?"

"Yes," answered Blake, without stirring or so much as looking up.

"Yes," he said again, and his voice was dead. "Yes—I'm—I'm licked."

As Van Dyke opened the door, Wanda made as though to follow him.

"If you don't need me any further, Mr. Blake," she said gently, "I'll go."

Blake lifted a palsied hand in negation.

"In there," he muttered, pointing toward the door that led to the inner rooms. "I must speak to you—afterward."

When the old man raised his eyes, Mark and Grace alone were left in the room with him.

"Daughter," said Blake, almost timidly, "they're all gone. None of them will tell. But there's one thing we've got to know. I'm with you, no matter what you've done. But—tell me—that—that this was all over—and done with—before you married Mark!"

"Father!"

The woman faced him in dry-eyed horror. Every trace of weeping was scared away by the flame of sudden indignation. And, at the sight, Jim Blake gave a great wordless cry and gathered her into his arms as though she were a baby.

"Oh, my little girl!" he choked. "Dad's own, own little girl! We've been tearing your poor heart to pieces and your old father was the bitterest against you. It's all right, I tell you, girl. It's all right. Dad'll see you through. You shan't be bothered. There, there! Oh, don't cry like that, darling. Don't!"

His voice grew husky. Leaving her abruptly, he crossed to Robertson.

"Mark," he faltered, avoiding his son-in-law's eye, "you promised to protect her. This is the time to do it. It was for better, for worse. If that was in any good at all, it's a good for worse as for better. Mark—be gentle with her, boy."

He seemed about to say more. But, glancing furtively at Mark's set changeless face, he forebore.

Slowly, with bent shoulders and dragging step Blake made his way to the big room's farthest end. There, in the window's embrasure, out of earshot, his back to the others, he halted.

Drawing aside the curtains he glanced out into the night. The gloom of the sleeping city was below and around him. But, in one black mass, tiers upon tiers of garish lights glowed. There, in the capitol, the Mullins bill was coming to a vote.

There, Matthew Standish, freed by a miracle from the toils that craftier men had woven about him, was winning the victory which was to clear for him the pathway to the very summit of political power.

But he found his subconscious self straying from the picture he was so ruthlessly drawing. His mind would not fix itself on the lighted capitol and the wreck of his life-work; but crept over back into the dim room behind him. Even his tongue tricked him. For further he would have made it recite further the tale of his losses, it muttered brokenly:

"My own little girl! Dad's own, own little girl!"

HOW HURST PUT ONE OVER ON JOE SUGDEN.

Joe Sugden tells a story on himself of which Tim Hurst is the hero.

"It happened while I was with St. Louis," says Joe. "I didn't like the heavy masks that were supplied by the club, so I went out and bought one of my own of light construction. One day Hurst, who was umpiring behind the bat, picked it up and used it instead of his own."

"Tub Spencer had just reported to us, and he looked like one of the best young catchers in the business. That was before he began to fight the booze, and he could throw like a shot, hit well and was an excellent receiver."

"Hurst was stuck on him and used to call him Herr Krupp on account of his great pegging. Well, on the occasion mentioned, I walked up to Hurst as I came in toward the bench from the coaching lines and said: 'Who gave you permission to use that mask? It is my private property and I am not anxious to have everybody making use of it and spoiling it.'"

"So this is your private mask," he said. "Well, my boy, from the way Herr Krupp here is throwing, I don't believe that you will have many more chances to use it, and somebody else might as well get the good out of it."

Her Mind Relieved.

THE CURIST AND HIS MODEL.

"Well," said the artist's wife, "I'm glad on one account that Reginald has become a curist."

"What is that?" her friend asked. "Is he making more money than he did while he was painting real pictures?"

"No, he really isn't making as much, but formerly he had to hire girls to act as his models. Now all he needs is a pile of knitting wool."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A WORLDWIDE BASEBALL TOUR

Giants and Chicago White Sox Start Trip Nov. 19.

CHINA, AUSTRALIA, EGYPT.

McGraw and Comiskey Have Tentatively Decided on the Itinerary the Two Teams Will Take—Financial Backing is Assured.

While the plans for the world baseball tour of the Giants and the Chicago White Sox are far from complete, Manager John McGraw and Owner Charles Comiskey have practically decided upon the itinerary of the long trip. It will be by long odds the most pretentious athletic excursion ever undertaken, and there are but few countries which will not have the opportunity of seeing the American game of baseball exemplified by its best exponents.

The news of the proposed trip has already reached foreign cities, and Manager McGraw has received requests from various cities to visit them. From far off Bombay there comes news that there is interest in baseball, and if the teams stop there they will be assured of a cordial reception. Another request comes from Monte Carlo, where the promoters have been promised generous financial support if they include that resort in their trip.

The financial backing for the big tour has already been assured, and it will mean an outlay of at least $75,000. If the trip meets with the success which the promoters look for the globe trotting adventure will more than pay for itself.

Fourteen Players Each.

According to present plans, Managers McGraw of the Giants and Callahan of the White Sox will each take fourteen ball players. It is not known just what players will go from each team, but there is sure to be lively competition among the athletes for a place on the touring team.

The party will assemble at Chicago after the world's series and will leave that city Nov. 19. Between Chicago and San Francisco the players will stop at all the large cities and play exhibition games. All the California cities will be visited.

From San Francisco two routes are being considered. One is to sail from Frisco to Honolulu, where the interest in baseball is almost as strong as it is in this country. The other plan is to travel north along the Pacific coast and play at Seattle, Portland, Victoria, Vancouver and other cities, and sail from Vancouver to Japan. This is the route which will probably be followed.

The tourists will then sail up the Yellow sea to China, where several cities will be visited, among them being Peking, Shanghai and Hongkong, which is a British port. From China the party will sail across the China sea to the Philippines, where Americans who have been in the islands for years will have a chance to see the Giants play. It is planned to play several games in Manila and other cities in the islands.

To Australia.

From here the tourists will sail for Australia, landing at Brisbane, and will also play at Sydney, Melbourne and several other places. According to the itinerary, the party will sail through the Indian ocean to Bombay, and if present plans are carried out, other cities in the British possessions will be visited. From India the party sails up the Red sea through the Suez canal to Egypt to play games at Alexandria, Cairo and other cities where the conditions are suitable.

From Egypt the tourists will cross the Mediterranean to southern Italy. Games will be played at Naples, Florence and Rome, and the players will also visit Nice. There is some doubt, however, just what route will be taken from there.

Two ways are being considered, one of which is to tour the cities of France and then go to England, Scotland and Ireland and sail for home from Queens-town. There is some question, however, as to whether or not the weather conditions will be suitable for baseball in these countries early in the year. If the conditions warrant it these countries will be visited. The other plan is to sail to Panama, where the American population is large enough to insure great interest in the visit. From Panama the tourists will go to Cuba and expect to arrive back in New York on Feb. 20.

The world tour under A. G. Spalding was made in 1888 and 1889 with two teams he called the Chicagoans and the All Americans. On that trip were George Wright, Captain Assou, John K. Tener, John M. Ward, Herman Long and many others well known to the game. They visited the Sandwich Islands, where they were entertained by the king. They also visited Australia, Africa, Italy, France, England, Scotland and Ireland. In the winter of 1908-9 the Reach All American team toured Japan, China, the Philippines and Hawaii.

STOVALL TO BE LET OUT.

Browns Leader May Handle Toledo Next Year.

It is reported in American league circles that George Stovall, manager of the St. Louis club, will be the leader of the Toledo Mud Hens in the American association next season.

Colonel Bob Hedges, owner of the Browns, it is said, will hand the veteran first baseman his walking papers at the end of the American league season next fall and will scout around the country for a new manager.

Charley Somers, president of the Cleveland American league club and also owner of the Mud Hens, has not been satisfied with the work of Topsy Hartzel, the present manager of Toledo, and will try to get Stovall's signature attached to a 1914 contract at the end of this season.

Toledo now has one of the best hitting clubs in the American association, and with a fighting manager handling the team the Hens should be close to the top of the league. Hartzel played with Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics before going to Toledo two years ago.

A Horse Deal.

In the hay market one afternoon recently a couple of farmers stopped to talk crop and horses.

"Are you in the market for a good horse?" asked one.

"Always ready to dicker," the other answered.

"Ever see that little bay mare of mine?"

"I think I know the critter."

"How'd you like to own her? She's yours at rock bottom price."

Gathering up his lines preparatory to leaving the spot, the other farmer replied:

"Well, John, I'd buy her this morning, but I hate to bust a dollar."—Yonkers Telegram.

GREAT R. R. STRIKE AVERTED BY HASTY ACTION OF U. S. OFFICIALS

Congress Passed Bill Which Is Acceptable to Both Sides.

Committee of Six to Mediate Differences Now Existing.

HASTY action by congress in the passage of the Newlands law averted the greatest strike ever anticipated in America, one in which 100,000 men would have participated and one that would in the end have affected about 600,000 workmen and 50,000,000 passengers of the forty-two eastern railroads, which would have been tied up.

Members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and of the Order of Railroad Conductors on taking a strike vote decided almost unanimously to strike unless their demands were granted by the railroads. On the other hand, the roads were just as resolute in their decision not to yield to these demands, pointing out that it would not be possible to meet them.

The Erdman act, which provided for an arbitration or mediation committee of WARREN S. STONE OF THE ENGINEERS, three men, one to be chosen by the employers, one by the employees and these two to select a third, was not acceptable to the railroads. They wanted a larger committee—one of six members. The trainmen were willing likewise that the committee should be enlarged.

After the strike vote had been taken and preparations for the greatest strike in the history of America were being made congress quickly passed the Newlands bill, which provided mediation in such cases by a committee consisting of six members. This bill was rushed through both houses of congress and received the signature of the president in a single day. Thus the strike was averted.

It was made plain that both sides wished to have a board of conciliation, independent of all government departments. This was not so much because of dissatisfaction with mediation under the old Erdman act, but because both sides felt the matter would be taken more seriously if provided for independently. Under the original Erdman law the commissioner of labor and the chairman of the interstate commerce commission were allowed to mediate, and that was regarded as an independent arrangement. The interstate commerce commission was not connected with any department, and the commissioner of labor was also independent.

By various changes of law the commissioner of labor ceased to be independent, becoming first a subordinate part of the department of commerce and labor and then being transferred into a department of its own. Consequently one of the problems that confronted the conference was how to accomplish the aim of the original Erdman law and provide a wholly independent board of conciliation.

President Wilson thought that the suggestions made for the adoption of the Newlands bill were wholly just and that there was no reason why congress should not immediately pass the Newlands measure and thus avert a disastrous struggle. The great points at issue were settled as follows to the complete satisfaction of the railroad presidents and the labor leaders as well as the federal officials attending the conference: First—Whenever a controversy arises between the railroads and their employees that cannot be settled by mediation and conciliation the dispute is to be submitted to an arbitration board of six members, three by the employers and the employees, parties to the agreement to arbitrate, each naming two arbitrators and the four arbitrators thus chosen being allowed by a majority vote to choose the remaining two arbitrators. If within fifteen days the four arbitrators fail to name the other two the latter must be named by the board of mediation and conciliation.

Second—The proposed board of mediation and conciliation, instead of being under the department of labor, is to be independent of every government department. The board will consist of a commissioner of mediation and conciliation to be appointed by the president for a term of seven years and two other officials of the government to be designated by the president.

The perfected Newlands bill creates a board of mediation and conciliation, composed of a commissioner appointed by the president, with a salary of $7,500 and a tenure of seven years, and not more than two other officials of the government already appointed by the president, with the consent of the senate, who shall be designated by him as the two other members of the board. An assistant commissioner, with a salary of $5,000, is also provided for and will be authorized to act in the commissioner's absence.

In case of a controversy arising of their party may apply to the board of mediation for an adjustment of the trouble. Where the controversy threatens to interrupt traffic the board may offer its services.

If the board's efforts prove futile it must seek to persuade both parties to submit to arbitration by a board of three or six, as they prefer.

Agreements to arbitrate must be written and must specifically state that a majority of the arbitration board shall have power to make a binding award. Awards made by the board are to be executed by the federal courts, with which appeals may be filed.

The demands of the conductors and trainmen now to be arbitrated are set forth in eighteen articles formulated by the Eastern Association of General Conductors, held in Rochester Oct. 15 to 19 last, and submitted to the railroads Jan. 6.

After the railroads had set actaries at work on the demands they announced that, if granted, they would cost the employers $17,000,000 annually. The employees have not refuted this statement. It increased pay the employees would average 20 per cent more than they are now receiving. On runs of 155 miles a day and over the passenger conductors ask 2.90 cents per mile, baggagemen 1.87 per mile, flagmen 1.80 per mile and brakemen 1.74 per mile. On runs of less than 155 miles a day passenger conductors demand $4.50 per day, baggagemen $2.90 per day, flagmen or rear brakemen $2.80 per day and brakemen $2.70 per day.

Over time on short runs up to eighty miles (this being time actually employed or held for duty over eight hours) conductors ask to be paid 45 cents an hour, baggagemen 29 cents an hour, flagmen or rear brakemen 28 cents an hour and brakemen 27 cents an hour. All other passenger trainmen ask to be paid for overtime on the speed basis of twenty-five miles an hour.

Men regularly assigned, who are ready for monthly service and who do not lay off of their own accord, demand the following minimum monthly wage: Conductors $135, baggagemen $87, flagmen or rear brakemen $84 and brakemen $81.

Men employed on freight trains want these wages: Conductors 4.18 cents per mile, flagmen 2.88 cents per mile, brakemen 2.78 cents per mile; runs of 100 miles or less to be paid for as 100 miles. On work trains the conductors demand $4.50 a day, flagmen $3.10 and brakemen $3. On way freights the conductors demand 4.84 cents per mile, the flagmen 3.31 cents and brakemen 3.21 cents, with a minimum of 100 miles.

SPaulding Man Hit BY TRAIN IS DYING

Edmond Depotsie, Struck by Soo Train Is Unconscious in Menominee

Edmond Depotsie of Spaulding who was struck by a Soo train about a week ago was brought to St. Joseph's hospital late Saturday night, where he lies today in a critical condition. Faint hopes are given out for his recovery.

The accident occurred a week ago last night on a track near the Peter Hansen farm at Powers. All fingers and the right hand and a portion of his left ear were cut off, he suffered a bad scalp wound and was injured internally.

Depotsie who is married and resides on a farm near Spaulding with his wife and six children, was struck by a Soo train while on his way home from the farm of C. Guay at Powers, where he spent the evening. He was hit by the fast passenger train that arrives in Hermansville at 11.55 o'clock at night. Early Monday morning he was picked up by another train crew and taken to his home.

He had been unconscious ever since the accident. He was brought to St. Joseph's hospital on Saturday night by Dr. Mason who has been the attending physician since the accident.

WOMAN DOCTOR ARRESTED FOR BATHING IN BLOOMERS

Chicago, July 28.—For swimming in bloomers without a skirt Dr. Rosalie M. Ladova was arrested at the Jackson park municipal beach here on Sunday and taken to a police station after she had put on her street clothes.

Dr. Ladova took off her skirt at the water's edge, placed it under a stone so it would not blow away and started to swim. A policeman caused a life guard to pursue Dr. Ladova in a rowboat.

Dr. Ladova asserted that she swam without a skirt as a matter of principle and would fight to have the sexes separated while bathing or else to have women allowed freedom in swimming costume. She was freed or bail.

Two of the crew rowed to Ford River and telephoned to Fred Royce of this city who took the "Comanche" out and towed the "Aida" in arriving at five o'clock.

WHY THE TIGER HAS STRIPES

In the Grassy Jungles of Asia They Match Light of the Forest.

It is not a mere matter of chance that the tiger's coat is marked with six beautiful stripes of black and yellow and that the lion is of a uniform sandy hue.

The former lives in the grassy jungles of Asia, where the glint blades of grass, as many feet long as there are inches in this country, and the light and shade of the forest are admirably matched by the skin of the animal in question. Hence it is able to approach its prey unperceived.

Lions, the big cats of Africa, on the other hand, are for the most part dwellers in the wilderness and roam the outskirts of the desert in search of food. Their color in these surroundings is equally protective.

There are countless examples of this protective coloration among animals. Sometimes, as in the case just cited, the effect is to enable them to more easily obtain their food but it also acts in another way by affording concealment to weak and timid creatures from their carnivorous enemies.—American Boy.

COURTING A MILITANT.

Miss Nancy O'Neill was a suffragette lady. Decidedly militant, too. Who was loved by an Irishman, Martin O'Grady.

But vainly, indeed, did he woo. For Nancy was busy at blowing up houses and kicking the chancellor's cat and so had no time to be thinking of spouses or frivolous subjects like that.

With bonbons and flowers poor Martin pursued her. But Nancy was deaf to his suit. Though gently and sweetly and kindly he wooed her. At all his proposals she'd hoot till finally, wearied of being so tender, he gave up the homage he once used to render.

And sent her a dynamite bomb. He trampled her garden with ardor most fervent. Cast bricks through her windows with zest.

Set fire to the house and abducted her servant. Attempted to poison her guest. So Nancy said: "How can I ever resist him?"

Such militance beats me," she said. So she put her fair arms round his neck, and she kissed him.

And now they are happily wed. —Milwaukee Journal.

THE MISSIONARY'S SAMPLES.

They Give His Neighbor an Insight Into the Future State. A missionary returned recently from India, where he had spent many years. At the big hotel he stopped at while in town he found little to complain about except the absence of the very torrid sauces and spices to which he had become accustomed in the far east.

Fortunately he had brought with him a supply of his favorite condiment, and by arranging with the head waiter these were placed on his table. One day another guest saw the appetizing bottle on his neighbor's table and asked the waiter to give him some of "that sauce."

"I'm sorry, sir," said the waiter, "but it is the private property of this gentleman."

The missionary, however, heard the other's request and told the waiter to pass the bottle. The stranger poured some of the mixture on his meat and took a liberal mouthful.

After a moment he turned, with tears in his eyes, to the missionary. "You're a minister of the gospel?" "Yes, sir."

"And you preach the doctrine of everlasting fire?" "Yes," admitted the missionary.

"Well, you're the first minister I ever met who carried samples."—F. S.

How She Did It.

As a married couple were walking down one of the main thoroughfares of a city the husband noted the attention which other women obtained from passersby and remarked to his better half:

"Folks never look at you. I wish I had married some one better looking." The woman tartly replied: "It's your fault. Do you think a man will stare at me when you're walking with me? You step behind and see whether men don't look at me."

The husband hung back about a dozen yards and for the length of the street was surprised to see every man his wife pass stare hard at her and even turn around and look after her.

"Sure, lassie," he exclaimed as he rejoined her. "I was wrong and take it back. I'll never say aught about your looks again."

The wife had made a face at every man she met.—Exchange.

She Might. Marjorie was on a visit to her grandparents on the farm, and her enjoyment of country life was somewhat marred by the apprehension of being horned by the cows. One day her mother asked her to run to the barn and call her grandpa to dinner. She started, but, espying a cow in the lot, one of the mulley kind, ran back, crying, "Oh, mamma; there's a cow out there!"

After a glance out of the window at the meek looking bovine her mother said: "Why, Marjorie, that's a mulley cow. She can't harm you, for she hasn't any horns."

"But, mamma," exclaimed the child, "she might butt me with her pompadour."—Harper's Weekly.

A Handicap. The neatness of the New England housekeeper is a matter of common remark, and husbands in that part of the country are supposed to appreciate their advantages.

A bit of dialogue reported as follows shows that there may be another side to the matter: "Martha, have you wiped the sink dry yet?" asked the farmer as he made final preparations for the night.

"Yes, Josiah," she replied. "Why do you ask?" "Well, I did want a drink of water, but I guess I can get along until morning."—Everybody's Magazine.

Laid at Rest. Bacon—I understand some of your hens have stopped laying. Egbert—You've got that right. "What's the matter?" "Oh, they got mixed up with some passing automobiles."—Yonkers Statesman.

Pumps at Thirty Shafts in Copper Country Working (Continued from page 1) met military company. A private who is a timber boss for the Calumet & Hecla has received an anonymous letter threatening his life when the strike is over. A widowed mother of one of the Calumet company has been threatened also. These cases are being investigated by General Abbe. Demonstration on the South Range. The biggest demonstration thus far seen in the South Range territory was that of yesterday afternoon—a parade of strikers from South Range to Painesdale and the mass meeting and the speeches following. The parade numbered 985 men and almost an equal number of women and children. It was formed at South Range village, where the Western Federation headquarters for the South range mines are located. At the starting point the strikers forced a number of English miners to join the parade. The big body of men, women and children wound over the county road, three miles to Painesdale, passed through that village and then turned back to "B" location, where the meeting was held. In passing through the village the strikers reached out at nearly every man standing on the sides of the road and dragged them into the ranks, forcing them to march. As soon as this state of affairs became known the English-speaking miners took themselves off and ran in all directions, rather than to submit to this intimidation. The result was that the men for whose education the meeting was held did not attend. Western Miners Backing the Strike. The principal speech was made by J. C. Lowney, a member of the executive board of the Western Federation. He said, "fair play" was his text, that he knew the companies here could pay higher wages and that the high cost of living of today made the increase imperative. The speaker declared the west is watching this strike with interest, because the fact that there has been no union in the Michigan copper country has tended toward keeping down wages in the West. Mr. Lowney asserted that the miners of the West are backing this strike, because a victory here means higher wages for them. The parade and meeting were very quiet. The marchers carried a large number of American flags, which they waved to the accompaniment of cheers. The only unpleasant incident was the impression of the unwilling marchers. Rumor of a Conflict With Hancock. So sensitive has the public become toward rumors of little accidents out of the ordinary that the very breeze seem to whisper to some people tales of riot and human injury. An incident at Hancock at 6 o'clock this evening is a case in point. The battery stationed at Quincy is equipped with a light motor truck. This vehicle came down the hill bearing a man in uniform lying prone and four others apparently holding him down. At once the rumor of an attack on the military on the hill was sent out. As a matter of fact, the young soldier had been taken ill on the field and was being carried for treatment to St. Joseph's hospital, where he is now having the best of care. Stoppage of Pumping Costly. Each day that the pumps remain idle in the conglomerate shafts of the Calumet & Hecla, it is said, means eight more days of idleness for the miners, because of the extra amount of water that must be raised and the damage to be repaired. In other words, it will take eight days to undo the damage that is being accomplished in one day's "strike running" of the mine and a great majority of the men will not be earning anything for weeks, even after pumping starts, if this is true. It is stated that it will take forty-eight hours to get the pumps at the conglomerate shafts ready for work which adds two days to the six that have already passed since the strike was called. It is expected these pumping operations will be begun tomorrow and as the strikers seem to have concentrated their animus to the Calumet & Hecla company on these shafts trouble may be looked for there, anywhere.
