

REMOVAL OF TROOPS FROM COPPER COUNTRY INTIMATED

Increased Activity in Mining Operations Following Intimation of the Soldier's Departure

ALL APPLICANTS ACCEPTED

LACK OF RIOTING AND EXPENSE OF UPKEEP MAY RESULT IN ORDERING TROOPS HOME

FOUR ARRESTS MADE TODAY

(By Associated Press.)

Calumet, August 2.—Although unverified the intimation that the troops will be removed next week from the Copper country has gone broadcast and is generally credited. As a result of this the activity about the various mines is increasing wonderfully. Every applicant is given work so that his interest may be held until the actual mining of ore begins.

The lack of rioting and the expense will probably cause the removal of the soldiers.

Four strikers were arrested today for intimidating one of the men who had returned to work.

Calumet—$60,000 was distributed among the enlisted men and officers of the troops in the strike zone this afternoon. Some of the mining companies settled their July accounts with the strikers.

Federation headquarters was busy all day promoting parades, arranging for the mass meeting of Sunday and the arrival of "Mother Jones" on Tuesday.

Houghton.—In general, the situation throughout the copper country today has been one of profound peace. There has been a slight resumption of activity in all mining districts excepting in Keweenaw county, where conditions are as they have been—the county at the mercy of the strikers.

A strengthening of the military positions as a sequel to the revelation of alleged plots to dynamite property marked the early hours of the strike today. Reports that a supply of dynamite had disappeared from the Hancock mine powder house and the discovery of dynamite on a prisoner taken at Red Jacket led General Abbey to issue orders designed to increase the effective strength of the brigade of state troops controlling the district.

The Third Infantry hospital corps in Calumet was pressed into service, its members being mounted and armed with revolvers and riot sticks fashioned from wagon spokes. This force, it was announced, will be used as a reserve cavalry. In addition, a section of Battery A, stationed at Quincy, was ordered to Calumet to take the place of infantrymen sent to reinforce some of the outlying posts. Fifty-five comprise the section ordered to Calumet. This will leave an equal number at Quincy, while it will increase the artillery strength at Calumet to 105.

The Quincy section will take two guns with it, giving Calumet a total of four. General Abbey desires as effective a force in Calumet as possible, as it is the largest district to handle.

"Sand" Shaft Restored to Activity. The first actual mining operation attempted in the copper country since the opening of the strike was the re-sumption today of operations on the sand shaft at the Champion mine of the Copper Range Consolidated at Painesdale.

The purpose of this shaft is to lower stamp sand into the mine. It is a small shaft, about eight feet square, and it will meet a raise that is being sunk toward it from underground. The stamp sand is used in connection with poor rock to form a sort of rude concrete to be used in the filling operation in the mine. The Copper Range mines use a filling system in lieu of timbering, in many cases.

As the sinking of the sand shaft is actually surface work for the present, the management of the Champion decided it might be resumed under military guard.

More Shops Resume Work. The surface shops around the Quincy mine resumed operations today, following the example of the Calumet & Hecla earlier in the week. The men are working under military guard. (Continued on page six)

PLAN CALLS FOR THREE CITY COMMISSIONERS

Will be Chosen in April of Next Year of The New Charter, is Adopted

The tentative plans of the charter commissioners provide a commission form of government of Escanaba, three commissioners, including a mayor to direct the affairs of the municipality.

The charter will be submitted to the voters of the city for acceptance or rejection in January and it is planned to hold a special election in April for the choice of the commissioners. One commissioner will be elected for three years, one for two and a third for one year. Thereafter one commissioner would be elected each year for a term of three years.

Nothing has been definitely adopted by the commission. Several provisions were discussed at the meeting held last night.

NOTHING HEARD FROM THE CARNIVAL COMPANY

Will Probably Not Exhibit Here the Week of August 15.

Nothing has been heard from the Great Southern Carnival company and it is now generally believed that they will not exhibit here the week of August 15. The license of $475 and the knowledge that the business men of the city almost unanimously opposed the coming of the carnival was doubtless too strong a combination for the carnival company to go up against.

INCREASING MEMBERSHIP

DELTA COUNTY FAIR ASSOCIATION ROSTER OF MEMBERS IS STEADILY LENGTHENING

THE EAST GATE WILL BE OPEN

Demand for Advertising Horse Blankets so Great That Duplicate Order is Necessary.

The fair directors have distributed one hundred pairs of horse blankets advertising the Delta county fair. So great was the demand that yesterday a duplicate order was telegraphed for and upon the arrival of the order the blankets will be distributed among the farmers of the county who did not benefit by the first distribution.

The finance committee of the association will start out soon with a subscription paper and it is hoped to secure at least the amount that was donated last year. Members are being received daily and within a month the list of members will have been doubled if the present rate of enrollment keeps going.

The east gate of the fair grounds will be open this year as in the past. The building of fences along the road that led from Stephenson avenue to the east gate led many to believe that gates could not be used this year. However Ninth street leading off Washington avenue directly to the east gate will afford much easier access to the gate than in the past.

ROAD MAP FOR MOTOR TRIP

M. K. REYNOLDS OF MARQUETTE IS IN THE CITY TODAY—MAPPING ESCANABA TO POWERS ROAD

CAMPING OUT WITH HIS WIFE Data Secured Will be Published Later for the Information of Automobileists

M. K. Reynolds of Marquette was in the city this afternoon with Mrs. Reynolds. He is engaged in finishing the mapping of the route which the Chicago Motor Club will cover while in the Upper Peninsula. Today he is engaged in mapping that portion of the route between Escanaba and Powers.

Mr. Reynolds has already mapped the route from Floodwood to Marquette and from Marquette to Rapid River. Today he and Mrs. Reynolds will travel through to Rapid River from Marquette without study of the route, but from Rapid River through to Floodwood, by way of Powers, they will secure the data that will guide the members of the Chicago club on their trip to Marquette.

With the exception of the loop around from Powers to Marquette and back to Escanaba, the route of the endurance run this year will be identical, in the upper peninsula, with the run of 1912, when, as they will the coming September, the members of the club traveled east through the upper peninsula to the straits and returned to Chicago by the way of the western part of the lower peninsula. The route this year is laid out by the way of Marquette because of the desire of the members to see the city and Lake Superior.

When he was in Chicago recently Mr. Reynolds was informed by Secretary Root, of the Motor club, that he expected that twenty-five cars, carrying perhaps a hundred Chicagoans, would make the reliability run this year. The schedule calls for the party spending the night of September 10 in Marquette. It will depart from Iron Mountain after the noon meal, and Mr. Reynolds expects that it will reach this city sometime before 6 o'clock. Arrangements for its entertainment here will soon be taken up. It is likely that the visitors will be given dinner and a reception at the Marquette club.

Will Make Good Time As the Chicago run is scheduled for fast time, Mr. Reynolds is under the necessity of mapping out the route between Powers and Marquette and between Marquette and Escanaba in so clear and unmistakable a manner that the scout car of the Chicago party will be able to follow it without any chance of error. A mistake on the road that would carry the party off the proper roads might upset all its calculations, and has to be carefully guarded against.

Accordingly Mr. Reynolds is mapping the routes he is covering in a much closer manner than is the rule in the official automobile guide books. All the prominent landmarks are accounted for, with the correct speedometer readings, and the turns that are necessary are identified in a manner that admits of no mistake. His notes contain full information on the nature of the roads and adequate warnings of all dangerous turns and other points on the route where trouble is likely to be encountered.

As a result of the care with which Mr. Reynolds' work is being done it will be the most complete data on the route between Marquette and Powers and between Marquette and Escanaba to be had. It will likely be published by the Cleveland Auto company, for whom Mr. Reynolds is acting, for the information of tourists. When his notes are complete they will be forwarded to the Chicago Motor club for the information of its members who will make the run, and they will be embodied in the book for the tour of 1913.

On their present trip Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds will be away for three or four days, and they will camp enroute.

RATS CHEWED HIS BILLS.

Government Experts Piecing Notes Together to Determine Their Value. A London paper indulges in a wall over the disappearing hostesses and describes a state of affairs which is similar to that existing here. The blame is laid at the doors of the fashionable restaurant. "The first woman in society who gave a dinner at a restaurant put the first nail in the coffin of the moribund hostess," says the critic. "To entertain in a tavern—however gorgeous the surroundings—is to abdicate your position of mistress of a house, as queen-regnant of your dinner table. You are no more responsible for the conversation than you are for the dishes, and, indeed, it may be said that there is no talk in the higher sense of the word in all the public dining places from Piccadilly to the Strand. Men go to stare about them, and are often more interested in the fair at neighboring tables than in their legitimate partners for the evening. Women go to show their new frocks, and have one eye on the gallery while they lend an inattentive ear to the man at their elbow. How shall the most accomplished hostess gather together these wandering glances, these vagrant thoughts? The feat is well-nigh impossible, and she has given it up. "The decay of the art of conversation has made a concert the only kind of entertainment to which a modern hostess—unless she belongs to the world of politics—would venture to invite her friends," the article proceeds. "A veritable gill chair, two famous singers and a fiddler, and the great question of amusement is solved. Even the most inarticulate can sit and listen, and the hostess heaves a sigh of relief when the affair is over and the last motor car has grunted down the street. It used to be said of English musical parties that the talking never began until a celebrated pianist began to play, but nowadays it seems that there is no conversation to compete with the music, and any one who ventured to raise his voice while an artist was performing would be withered by the basilisk glances of his or her neighbors. At this kind of entertainment, it will be seen, the hostess plays but an insignificant role. If she provides a hot supper and exhibits shining teeth and a tush at the head of the staircase the majority of her guests will think she has fulfilled every obligation of hospitality."

Confederate Flags Numerous in P. I. Confederate flags are numerous in the House Office Building, but a pennant in the room of Manuel Luis Quezon, resident commissioner of the Philippine Islands, is somewhat novel. It is the emblem of the Philippine republic which Admiral Dewey saluted when he went into Manila Bay, but is not allowed to be shown in the islands now. Since 1907, by decree of the Philippine commission, it has been a penitentiary offense for any one to be found with such a flag in his possession there or even a photograph of it. The emblem owned by Mr. Quezon depicts a picture of Jose Rizal, who was murdered by the Spaniards in 1896. Senor Rizal, the George Washington of the Philippines, was killed because he advocated that Spaniards permit Filipinos to sit in the Spanish Congress in Madrid. Mr. Quezon enjoys all the rights accorded to the delegates in the House. His principal mission is to urge that his countrymen be given real freedom. He is but thirty-three years old and a very remarkable young man. Mr. Quezon fought with Aguinaldo in 1898 to 1901. He was graduated from Santos Tomas, in Manila, run by the Dominican Fathers, a university which antedates old Heidelberg, of Germany, by one hundred years. He advocates absolute independence for the people of the Philippine Islands.

Canadian Export Trade. The increase in the exports of the Dominion to the mother country the second year after the McKinley tariff became operative was over $15,000,000. Since 1899—when the exports to Great Britain were less than $50,000,000—Canada's export trade with England has been steadily mounting up, until this year it has reached nearly $124,300,000 ($125,000,000).

OBJECTS TO AERONAUTS.

Holland Passes Laws Against Visitors From the Clouds. The increasing frequency with which balloons have come to earth of late in various parts of Holland has led to a bill being laid before the Netherlands Second Chamber with a view to putting a stop to these unwelcome visits. The bill, says the London Globe, is aimed mainly at balloons belonging to the German Aeronautical Societies in the region of the Lower Rhine as in most cases it has been found that when the balloons have landed the occupants of the car have been officers of the German army, and their object in making these balloon trips into Dutch territory very naturally is thought to be connected with spying out the country. Henceforth, every aeronaut landing in the Netherlands will have to pay a fine of £50 or go to prison for three months.

TIME FOR THE GREEN BAY VISITORS

Care Will be Taken of the Comers From Escanaba and Wells

Martin, chairman of the Perry's Centennial and Green Bay Coming celebration writes to the Mirror saying: "Order that the people of Escanaba and Wells who will visit the city in Green Bay to attend the Perry's Centennial Celebration and Green Bay Home-Coming, to be held from the 10th to the 16th inclusive, may be properly cared for, the Executive Committee of that city has appointed a committee of these cities to act as their Reception Committee that week. The Committee consists of Mayor O. P. Chatfield, C. E. Grosbeck, J. E. Hanrahan and J. E. St. John, and R. E. McLean and H. E. Kates of Wells.

The people of Green Bay have made very extensive preparations for the entertainment of their guests, an attractive program having been planned for each day of the week. The old flag ship "Niagara," which has lain at the bottom of Lake Erie for 100 years has been raised and re-fitted as nearly as possible like it was when the famous victory of Commodore Perry was won. It will be accompanied by a number of the naval boats of the squadron of the Great Lakes and will anchor in the Green Bay harbor for four days, for public inspection. There will be extensive and beautiful historic floral and industrial parades, and the noted "bird-man," Jimmie Ward, will make two ascensions each day of the week. There will also be numerous free attractions, so that the visitors will have entertainment during every minute of their stay. Special accommodations have been provided, so that all will be comfortably cared for."

O. Beauchamp of Lake Linden is visiting in the city for a few days.

Pontius Pilate.
History is silent regarding the last days and manner of death of Pontius Pilate. Some claim that he killed himself; others that he was beheaded by Nero. Another tradition banishes him to Vienna on the Rhine, where a singular monument is called "Pontius Pilate's Tomb." Still another has it that he sought to hide his sorrows on the mountain beside Lake Lucerne, now called Mount Pilatus, and that there, after spending years in its recesses, in remorse and despair, he plunged into the lake which occupies its summit. All of this, of course, is pure guess work, and it is safe to say that concerning the place or manner of the famous (or infamous) Procurator's death we know absolutely nothing.

Land of Orchids.
Brazil is the land of orchids. Plants of eight leaves are sold for 5 cents apiece; of fifteen leaves for 18 cents; twenty to thirty leaves, 32 cents. Above forty leaves special bargains are made. This season a remarkable plant of 295 leaves was brought to market strung on a pole and carried forty miles by two men. Such a plant has a blooming capacity of 500 flowers. It sold in Pernambuco for $5.00. It is the largest orchid in the world.

A COAL MINE MAP.

This One Shows Location, Ownership and Production of All the Mines. John W. Bolleau, the expert on coal mining, has in his Pittsburgh offices one of the most expensive maps in existence. It is not very large, but the work of collecting material for the map has taken more than a score of years and the work involved has cost Mr. Bolleau thousands of dollars. He values his map, it is said, at $25,000. The map shows the location of every coal mine in the United States and who owns each mine. Besides this data the map gives the quality of the coal produced at the mine and the quantity as well. Mr. Bolleau and his assistants keep the map up to date and see to it that every newest piece of information from authentic sources that comes into his office is indicated on the map. Some of the data shown on the map were easy to secure, but other facts required hard digging and sometimes journeys to the places themselves. There are stories and incidents connected with the collection of this information that might furnish material for many interesting articles.—New York Sun.

Taints in Frozen Meats.

Signs of badness in frozen meats are the smell near the bone, bone taint. Frozen or refrigerated meat should be defrosted in a special chamber at 70 degrees Fahrenheit. If thawed at atmospheric temperature such meat becomes dry and dirty looking, and will spoil before it can be cooked. Old cold-storage meat is bristly and colorless and wettish. The American process, currents of cold air 30 degrees, is the best way to refrigerate meat.

Tree Planting by a Railroad.

More than a million trees were planted on tracts along its right of way. The total number of trees planted since 1902, when the forestry work was started, is 3,482,186. These figures are included in the report of the company's forester. Special effort was given last year to growing ornamental shrubbery for parking purposes, and to save time 6,000 plants were imported from France.—Philadelphia Press.

Penny-in-the-Slot Light.

In the little Silesian town of Zankau the authorities have adopted an ingenious automatic device for the benefit of those who are afraid to go home in the dark. The introduction of a coin in a slot at the foot of an electric light standard after extinguishing hours, will light the roadway for twelve minutes.

VALUABLE SEAWEED.

Put to Many Uses by the Coast Dwellers of Japan. "A large income is derived by the inhabitants of the coasts of Japan from gathering and selling ordinary seaweed," said Jeremiah King of Atlantic City. "More than 3,000,000 yen is derived by the harvesters of the deep each year. This does not include the large amount of the product consumed by the natives. "Certain kinds of seaweed are used for food and its by-products represent thousands of dollars annually. As choice a dessert as I ever have eaten was made from weeds gathered on the southern coast of Japan. This mixed with sugar and sprinkled with rum makes a dessert rarely equaled on this side of the Atlantic. "There are families on the coast of Japan whose ancestors for hundreds of years have 'lived' entirely from the proceeds of the seaweed gathered from March to November and sold for food. The natives anchor branches of trees at the mouths of the rivers which flow into the ocean. The incoming tide deposits seaweed on the branches. The natives gather it, dry it and after micing it with huge knives sell it in large quantities."

Microscopic Measurement.

The measurement of microscopic objects is done by rulings on glass, which are produced by wonderfully delicate machines. These rulings are constructed so as to accurately divide an inch or any other unit of measurement into any desired number of parts, as, for instance 1-100 of an inch, or 1-1,000 of an inch, or even 1-10,000 of an inch. The finest rulings thus far produced by any of the machines are at the rate of something like 200,000 to the inch. Some idea of the closeness of the ruled lines can be obtained from considering that 1,000 such lines would occupy only the space included in the thickness of a sheet of ordinary writing paper.

The Flying Dutchman.

The Flying Dutchman was a ship which was sometimes visible from various points of land, but more particularly from the Cape of Good Hope, in very stormy weather. The story runs that her captain once swore so fearful an oath that as a punishment for his blasphemy he was condemned to beat about the oceans until the day of judgment. The Flying Dutchman was never known to get into port, and was generally seen sailing under full canvas, before a strong wind. The myth is generally understood to have had its origin in the waterspout, which in the distance resembles a sailing vessel.

MRS. FRANKLIN K. LANE

Mrs. Franklin K. Lane, wife of the secretary of the interior, is well known in Washington society, for Mr. Lane has been a member of the Interstate commerce commission since 1905. Before her marriage Mrs. Lane was Miss Annet Wintermut of Tacoma, Wash.

Taste is Localized.

Taste is curiously localized in the mouth. Put a lump of sugar on the tip of your tongue and you will find it tasteless. All sweet or aromatic substances, such as wine, sugar and coffee, can be properly appreciated by the front half of the tongue, a piece of knowledge that every true connoisseur applies when he sips instead of taking a mouthful. With most other substances, however, the reverse is true. In these cases the tip of the tongue serves only for touching—it is the back part that tastes. The sides of the mouth, too, are quite insensible to certain substances not tasteless. Put some salt or vinegar between the teeth and the cheek, and you will find them absolutely flavorless.—London Chronicle.

STUDY YOUR NOSE

It is a Most Wonderful Organ and a Really Fine Furnace.

ACTS AS A PERFECT FILTER.

This Facial Ornament Strains, Heats and Moistens All Air Drawn Through It Into the Lungs—Its Delicate Nerves and Microbe Catching Mucus.

Ordinarily we regard our own or another person's nose from the standpoint of personal beauty. If the organ is a becoming one it wins our admiration, and unless occasion arises we give it no further thought. A delicious or a repugnant odor reminds us at times that we possess a sense of smell, and a cold in the head is apt to make us wish that there was no such thing as a nose.

Beyond these points, however, we really penetrate, and as a rule we fail to fully realize what an important part of the human anatomy is this most prominent feature of the face.

No stove or furnace that ever was made by man can equal in efficiency the human nose, for the nose, in the space of three inches and in two seconds of time, can raise the temperature of the air it draws in nearly fifty degrees and at the same time saturate it with moisture and thoroughly purify it.

The nose is really one of the most extraordinary organs of the body. Its nerves are more sensitive than those of fingers or ears or eyes, for they can perceive distinctly an almost incredibly minute amount of a gas so subtle that its presence can be detected in no other way. It is also a perfect filter and thus the most important guardian of the body against disease.

All air that is breathed into the lungs should be at a temperature of nearly 90 degrees F. It should also be moist, even wet. Cold, dry air is fine for the outside of the body, but has no place in its interior. In heating the air the nose works on the principle of a steam coil. It is not merely two tubes leading up into the head and so down to the throat, but from the bones on either side three twisted bones curl out into the passage, one above the other, each coated with elastic cushions of blood vessels and tiny glands. These form coils with a great, hot, damp surface, over which the air spreads as it is drawn up. Thus is the air warmed for its entrance to the lungs.

A furnace maker told the present writer that any man who could invent an efficient apparatus for mixing moisture with air in its passage through a hot air furnace could make a fortune, as every device now in use is only a makeshift and of very little real value. The Almighty Maker of the human—and the animal—nose solved the problem. The entire surface of the inside of the nose is composed of a membrane that pours forth a fluid called mucus. This is composed largely of salt water, which is taken up by the passing air until this is saturated before it reaches the throat.

This mucus is also a microbe catcher and a dust catcher. Almost all the dirt and germs of disease that enter with the air through the nostrils are trapped by the mucus. The living enemies are killed, for the mucus is antiseptic and germicidal. Thus the air is heated, moistened and purified before it reaches the lungs.

Air breathed in through the mouth is not warmed, moistened or purified except to a very slight extent. Consequently it reaches the lungs cold, dry and laden with dust and disease. Bronchitis, tonsillitis, diptheria and consumption are the result.

The mucous membrane of the nose is subject to diseases such as catarrh, "cold in the head" and hay fever. Adenoids grow in the back of the nose and stop up its tubes. A simple and easy operation will remove the latter, while the former if taken when they first show themselves can be cured without difficulty. If neglected they may become incurable. Thus not only do they prevent the necessary warming, moistening and filtering of the air, but they spread and cause many diseases of the throat and lungs and are the commonest cause of serious and intensely painful trouble with the ears.—New York World.

May Have Been All Right.

The angry citizen puffed into the office of the city editor. "See here, sir," he yelled, "what do you mean by publishing my resignation from my political office in this way?" "You gave the story out yourself, didn't you?" asked the editor. "Of course I did," replied the angry citizen. "But your fool paper prints it under the head of 'Public Improvements.'"—Exchange.

Worse Than That.

"I know you don't like me, Miss Iphigenia, but won't you please tell me why, just to gratify a natural curiosity?" "Why, Mr. Orkida, I have never regarded you as a natural curiosity!"—Chicago Tribune.

A Difference.

"How much do you think he's worth?" "Are you asking about his efficiency or his financial condition?"—Detroit Free Press.

So many stories of cruelty and tyranny have been told of life in the German army, that it is a pleasant relief to read the fact that when a private soldier at one post lay so ill that only blood transfusion could save his life 17 of the officers volunteered to supply the needed life fluid and one was selected by lot.

A brutal mother in jail in New York thinks it a great hardship that the law will not let her bite her own daughter if she wants to. While, of course, very much exaggerated, this viewpoint represents an attitude often taken toward the law by people who cannot understand why they are not let alone in the perfectly legitimate occupation of abusing what is their own.

MORE TAINTED MONEY. If Charity Won't Accept, Where, Then, Must It Go?

A Chicago charity has refused to accept a legacy from a murderer on the ground that it is "tainted money."

"Much cheap" reputation has been gained by different institutions by declining to receive "tainted money."

It might be well enough to let "tainted money" alone if nobody else would touch it. But somebody is sure to get it. The "taint" follows the money. These refusals look too much like willingness to avoid contamination yourself while you rest serene in the consciousness that your brother is going to be polluted. That is not Christianity.

Fish That is Fearless. The boldness of a pike is very extraordinary. I have seen one follow a bait within a foot of the spot where I have been standing, and the head keeper of Richmond Park assured me that he was once washing his hand at the side of a boat in the great pond in that park when a pike made a dart at it and he had but just time to withdraw it.

A gentleman now residing at Weybridge in Surrey informed me that walking one day by the side of the River Rey, near that town, he saw a large pike in a shallow creek. He immediately pulled off his coat, tucked up his shirt sleeves and went into the water to intercept the return of the fish to the river and to endeavor to throw it upon the bank by getting his hands under it.

Sterilizing with Invisible Rays. Continuing his researches, begun with the ordinary ultraviolet rays, Billon-Daguerrre in France has recently experimented with still shorter rays of the spectrum, measuring down to 1,000 units, for the sterilization of all kinds of liquids.

It is recorded that an ignorant person, explaining her distaste for Shakespearean performances, said that his plays were too full of quotations. Yet we, too, though we may pride ourselves upon our learning, probably do not know the origin of half the common phrases we use as carelessly as verbs in our daily conversation.

FAMOUS PHRASES

Origin of Some of World's Most Popular Quotations.

WORDS THAT WILL ENDURE.

"While There's Life There's Hope" Was Written by Cicero, and Cynical Old Diogenes It Was Who Told the World "Habit is Second Nature."

No less a person than Cicero first made use of the expression, "While there's life there's hope," in a letter he wrote to Atticus. "We are in the same boat" is not modern slang, but occurs in a letter written by Clement I, bishop of Rome, to the Church of Corinth in the first century. This letter is extant and is one of the prized documents of the early church.

"I never put off till tomorrow what I can do today," was Lord Chesterfield's explanation of how he managed to do so much work. "Whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well" he wrote later in the famous letters to his son.

In some of the expressions we use habitually may be crystallized an epoch of history. Such is the motto of the Order of the Garter, "Honi soit qui mal y pense" ("Shamed be he who thinks evil of it"), which was given by Edward III, of England. Wishing to draw the best soldiers in the world to him, he proposed a revival of the round table of King Arthur, holding a tournament at Windsor castle on New Year's day, 1344. After the contest of arms the guests were entertained at his expense at a round table. Phillip, king of France, was jealous over the interest this aroused and forbade his subjects to attend, at the same time misrepresenting Edward's motives. Several years later, when Edward founded the Order of the Garter, he chose a motto that seemed to challenge his rival monarch to think wrong of it if he dared.

Later English history has not been laggard in increasing the supply of apt remarks that have grown into everyday sayings. Lord Eldon, lord chancellor of England during the first twenty-six years of the nineteenth century, continually mispronounced the name of Henry Brougham, afterward to be a successor in the chancellor's office. Brougham objected to be called Broffam, and in this regard Eldon was the chief offender. Once, after Brougham had made an excellent speech, Eldon by way of apology pronounced his name correctly and made a proverb, "New brooms sweep clean."

The same expression occurs frequently to different people who could have no knowledge that their thought had been given utterance before. "No man is a hero to his valet" has been paraphrased by scores, from Mme. du Corneil, a witty Frenchwoman of the seventeenth century, to Dr. Johnson and Napoleon. The first record of it, however, is found in Plutarch, who states that when Hermodotus addressed a poem to Antigonus I, king of Sparta, hailing him as son of the sun and a god, the monarch replied, "My body servant sings me no such song."

It was Diogenes, the cynic, who declared that "habit is second nature." The phrase "circumstances over which he has no control" was used by the Duke of Wellington in a letter concerning some affairs in which his son was mixed up and with which he declined to interfere. Dickens also used the expression a few years later when he had Micawber write to David Copperfield, "Circumstances beyond my individual control," etc.

"Conspicuous by their absence" has been used on many occasions in modern oratory. It was first used by Tacitus in relating that in the funeral procession of Julia, niece of Cato, sister of Brutus, wife of Cassius, many of the images of the most famous families in Rome were seen, but "Cassius and Brutus shone pre-eminent because their images were not displayed."

"Nothing is certain but death and taxes," wrote Benjamin Franklin, stating that the constitution of the United States was in operation and to all appearances would last. "Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones" was said by James I, of England when his favorite, the Duke of Buckingham, complained that a mob had broken his glass windows, which were at that time a luxury.

"Mind your p's and q's" is said to have been taken from an old French phrase at the time of Louis XIV. A very low bow was in fashion, and the dancing master in instructing his pupils would warn them to look out for the position of the feet and the movement of the head lest their cue wigs be disarranged. The French word for foot is pied. "Mind your p's and q's" soon came to be translated into English and abbreviated.

Wallace Irwin once complained that when he had been invited to be funny at a banquet his real gems of wit were addressed to the back of his chauffeur on the way home. But what's the difference? According to the Latin poet, upheld by modern investigation, everything you could possibly say has been said before—Anna Bird Stewart in Minneapolis Journal.

MOTHER-OF-PEARL.

Diffraction Grating Causes Its Beautiful Iridescence.

The apparent color of mother-of-pearl was for a long time somewhat of a puzzle to scientists. Later it was found that the surface of mother-of-pearl consisted of fine striations or ridges, with, of course, little hollows between. This explained everything, for it was then to the scientists nothing more or less than an ordinary diffraction grating. To prove it still further an impression of the surface was taken in black wax, and the wax itself exhibited the beautiful display of color shown in the original mother-of-pearl surface. The color is not due to pigment, but to the cancellation in part of the light falling on the surface.

To understand this better it will be well to explain a diffraction grating. It consists of a piece of plate glass upon which are engraved many parallel lines. Rowland has been able to scratch lines on a glass so that there are 20,000 to the inch and the distances from one to the other do not vary by one-millionth of that distance in the 20,000.

As white light, or sunlight, consists of every color known and as light travels in waves, at certain places if light is coming from several different directions very close to one another some of these waves will meet in what are known as opposite phases and will blot one another out, and the only remaining color will be the white.

It can be easily seen what is meant by opposing phases from a consideration of waves on the seashore. If the top of a big wave meets a trough of another they cancel, and no wave at all is the result. The same takes place in light phenomena. Light consists of an ether wave, similar to wireless waves, only much shorter, and if its wave is destroyed none of that light can be seen by the eye.

Colors of silk are due in the main to the same thing as mother-of-pearl, especially shot silk. It, as with the pearl, can be perfectly reproduced.—New York Tribune.

EGGS FRIED ON ICE.

By the Use of a Peculiar but Simple Principle of Electricity.

Frying eggs on ice is entirely feasible, as was demonstrated at a recent electrical exhibition given by the University of Illinois. The eggs were placed in an ordinary frying pan, and the frying pan was placed on a pile of cracked ice on a kitchen table. Eggs were fried nicely, though it took longer than when a stove is used. No wires were in sight. The frying pan had no electrical connections and could be taken up and replaced at will.

Under the table was the secret, an electromagnet. Even with the secret divulged, the trick was wonderful enough, for between the frying pan and the magnet was a pile of ice and the board table top, neither of which was affected excepting by the heat sent down from the frying pan.

A peculiar but simple principle of electricity was used. An electromagnet, as is generally known, is a horseshoe shaped bar of iron, with coils of wire wound round each arm of the horseshoe. When a current of electricity is sent through the coils of wire the horseshoe becomes a magnet and will attract and firmly grip any bit of iron placed near the ends of the arms or poles. This applies to a direct current of electricity. If, however, an alternating current of electricity is sent through the coils any iron near the magnet poles is heated by what are called "eddy currents."

In the egg frying trick the magnet was placed under the table, and an alternating current was sent through the coils.—Saturday Evening Post.

Advice to a Husband.

Don't kick because you have to button your wife's waist. Be glad your wife has a waist and doubly glad you have a wife to button a waist for. Some men's wives have no waists to button. Some men's wives' waists have no buttons on to button. Some men's wives' waists which have buttons on to button don't care a button whether they are buttoned or not. Some men don't have any wives with buttons on to button.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Caustic John Bright.

Many stories were told about John Bright's caustic repartees in private life. This story, says the British Weekly, is true: "I should like to come back to this world in fifty years to see what changes have happened in England." "My good sir," replied Mr. Bright, "if you don't mend your ways you may be glad of any excuse to come back."

Quite Soothing.

"I suppose, young man, that you realize the cost of supporting two persons?" asked the stern father. "I am sure that you will find that my income is quite sufficient for my own needs. You will not have an extra burden if I marry your daughter."—Buffalo Express.

Lacerated Feelings.

"Doesn't it humiliate you to have to go through life this way?" asked the sympathetic woman as she purchased a photograph. "Yes, ma'am," replied the bearded lady. "If it wasn't for the wife and kids I'd throw up the job today."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

BOEHLING IS A SHINING NEW STAR

Young Washington Pitcher is a Real Sensation.

HAS QUICK BREAKING CURVE

This is His First Year in the Big League, and He Has Been Leading the League in Games Won Without a Defeat—He is a Southpaw and For a Time Lacked Control.

Joe Boehling ("Dixie") Boehling they call him in the south needs no introduction. Any fan who knows his baseball primer can tell you offhand that Joe is the young southpaw of the Washington club who has become the pitching sensation of the American league this year. At this time, with every one watching the youngster's efforts to create a new season's pitching record for straight wins, it is more than significant to know that two years ago Joe was pitching on the sand lots of Richmond, Va.

Clark Griffith has seen his prediction come true that this youngster some day would develop into one of the stars of the game. But Joe fooled the "Sly Fox" at that. Griffith didn't expect he would come through so soon.

Until Boehling had won a couple of games and then topped off his work by equalling this year's record of ten straight wins made by Walter Johnson, his teammate, and by Falkenberg of Cleveland, nobody paid much attention to the youngster's work. But Joe now, so to speak, has them all holding fast to the rail to see if he'll romp home in the stretch.

But the fine work Boehling has done this year has not turned his head. A quiet, unassuming youth is he, and the least he thinks about is hanging up a record. Boehling's sole ambition is to win games for Griffith regardless of records. Linked with Walter Johnson and Griffith's other pitchers, Joe means to do as much as is possible to head off the Athletics and bring a pennant to the nation's capital. If Griffith had any more Boehlings and Johnsons he could start right in now and lay plans for the world's series.

Boehling, however, didn't produce much class last fall, and it was only this spring that he showed signs of developing. What he has done since then is ancient history. Nick Altrock and Johnny Henry both played a prominent part in Boehling's schooling. Nick showed Joe how to control his delivery and how to make the most of his assortments. Henry's handling of Boehling has done much toward making the southpaw effective against all comers.

One of the things that has helped Boehling to become a twirler of the first rank is he is a master of the change of pace. He can shoot his fast one over the plate with the same effectiveness that he uses on his slow one. He uses his fast one the most, for batters have found it most puzzling to hit. His quick breaking curve is also most deceptive. When he puts it over he invariably makes the batter look foolish. Nerve—he has lots of it—and when he gets in a tight position he is just as cool as if things were going smoothly. In the box he has a graceful delivery and works like the finished veteran of many campaigns.

Boehling has ideal physical fitness for a pitcher. He is young, ambitious and with careful handling should con-

M'LOUGHLIN'S SCORES TIMED TO THE SECOND

Maury McLaughlin's sensational playing in the Texas cup competition against the tennis stars of Europe, giving him the championship of the world, was due mainly to his ability to play the game faster than his opponents and to a service that combines the speed and accuracy of a basebal pitcher.

The accompanying shows three of the champion's most successful strokes—plays that have made the 25-year-old California star the wonder of the tennis world:

No. 1—The McLaughlin serve—the fastest in the world. To make this shot the young Californian rears high on his left foot and puts every ounce of his strength into the drive. The ball crosses the net with terrific velocity. Striking the opposite court near the side line, takes a sudden hop and bounds high over the receiver's head. McLaughlin serves his second ball as speedy as the first, and so wonderful is his control that he seldom makes a double fault. Players of many countries say that the American's serves are the fastest ever known and that they come over the net with such frightful speed that it is often impossible to return them safely.

No. 2—McLaughlin's reverse serve is one he doesn't often use, but it's a sure point winner whenever attempted. This service has a curve and bend that would make a Mathewson envious. The Californian starts this play by smashing the ball with a full-arm motion, meeting it shoulder high. The ball travels over the net at high speed and lands in the far corner of the court near the court line. As the receiver runs up to meet it the ball takes a quick turn to the opposite side, completely fooling the player with its wide curve. This service is particularly effective against tall players, for the ball in bouncing hardly leaves the ground.

No. 3—The favorite McLaughlin smash shot. From any position on the court the champion can pull off his sensational "kill" plays. His overhead work is murderous and his opponent stands little chance of getting back one of his hard smashes. At the net McLaughlin "kills" any kind of a return and his smashes bound far out of court. The Californian is deadly getting over high lobs. A gallery quickly knows that a point is to be made when it sees the dashing westerner poisoning for one of his spectacular lob smashes. The American star is absolutely confident of his ability to smash shots from any position, and his aggressive style has upset the conservative, English system of placements.

BIG LEAGUE CLUBS MAY TRAIN MEN

Clark Griffith Suggests Plan to Escape Paying Fabulous Prices.

Clark Griffith has started an agitation among big league managers and club owners against paying big prices for young players from the minors. The Washington leaved avers athletes can be drilled in the minors. He gives as an instance Joe Boehling. "When Boehling came to me he was worthless. Most managers would have sent him back for more seasoning but I saw he had the makings of a wonderful twirler, and I put him in charge of veterans like Hughes, Johnson and Groom. These three gave him plenty of pointers, and today he is one of the greatest in either league. If he were in the minors and gave such exhibitions I could not have bought him for less than $15,000.

"What is true of Boehling is certainly true of any other player, and I intend to continue the practice of training youngsters. There is only one high-priced man on my team and he is 'Chick' Grandil. When I secured Grandil I was in dire need of time as a star for many seasons to come. If somebody had offered Griffith $3,000 for Joe two years ago very likely Griffith would have sold him and considered himself lucky to have put over such a deal. Fifteen thousand dollars wouldn't buy him now. And the funny part of it all is Boehling didn't cost the Washington club a nickel. But such is the fortune of baseball.

Of Interest to Women

Why Not Plant a Wild Flower Garden—But You Should Avoid Too Many Varieties—Alice Lounsbury Writes Entertainingly.

At present there is a strong feeling among Americans for wild-flower gardens in which the plants shall be encouraged to retain their native characteristics, says Alice Lounsbury. Many nurserymen now make a specialty of supplying plants for the wild garden. Usually it is better to buy their stock than to rely wholly on transplanting from the woods, because under care plants often develop exceedingly strong roots which enable them to establish themselves more quickly and permanently in a garden than if just taken up from their natural surroundings.

In my garden I have a wild-flower corner, or it might be called a small woods garden, since most of the things growing there are true inhabitants of dense and quiet places. A similar effect might be achieved in a border by those who have not so large a spare corner in their gardens. The wild columbine has grown for years in light, dry soil under the full sun. Not far from columbine there snuggles in the May woods the showy orchid. The noxious flower and the large yellow lady's slipper, with other members of the evasive orchid family are to be found in the woods of May. In fact, these two mentioned beauties, along with the snowy orchid, are the three representatives that have come from their native haunts into my garden. The large yellow lady's slipper thrives perhaps the best of them all, and of it I have established a fairly large colony.

Often a mistake of those who search the woods for plants for their gardens is that they strive to collect too many species. It is better to have a few kinds and to have them in considerable numbers. The aim of wild flowers in a garden should be to form large permanent colonies; as scattered individuals they are not sufficiently effective.

PRETZEL HOLDER.

Keeps Pretzels from Sliding Off Plate and Set Off Tablecloth.

Pretzels are piled up very well. When there is a fair-sized heap on a plate the top ones usually slide off as the plate is passed around and the salt from them is scattered all over the tablecloth. This may not be a very serious matter, but a New Jersey man didn't see why people need put up with even this slight inconvenience, so he designed a pretzel holder and here it is. A plate has a metal standard rising from the center to the height of a foot or more. The pretzels can be hooked over this Pretzels Hook on Standard. standard and a layer or two of them piled around the bottom in such a way that there is no danger of their falling off. The plate may then be passed around with no fear of dropping any of its contents. Restaurants, particularly of the German variety, can find plenty of use for this article, and the free lunch counters at saloons will probably use it to save the scores of pretzels that are daily knocked to the floor. In the home, the holder will keep the tablecloth clean.

Ancient Bank Note.

At the Bank of England privileged visitors are sometimes shown the oldest known bank note for £555, with the date "19th Xber, 1699." The memoranda written across the note show that payment was made by three instalments. The bank notes of that period were printed from engraved plates, blank spaces being left for the date, the signature, the number and the amount. The watermark can be clearly seen and in texture and general appearance the notes were very similar to those of today. It was not until 1797 that bank notes were issued under £5 in value.

Stenography.

To a limited extent the art of shorthand writing, known as stenography, was practiced by the ancients. The freedom of the poet Ennius, Cicero, Seneca and other literary men of Rome, are known to have resorted to shorthand. The oldest known system since the Roman days is that called the "Ars Scribendi," dating from the year 1412. Dr. Timothy Wright's system, the first English work on shorthand, dates from about 1558. Since then the approaches have been steady toward the greatly improved method of the present day.

Medical Services Free

The Detroit Specialist

All Well Known Health Experts Make Free Offer.

The above specialist will treat all aseptic cases free for a limited time only. He wants to prove cures. The only charge made to any patient will be simply for the medicines used in the case to the very poor, medicines will be furnished free. No matter what your disease or condition may be or of how long standing, do not fail to consult a master specialist while you have the opportunity free of charge. The object in making this offer is to secure a few supposedly incurable cases quickly to demonstrate the tremendous curative powers of his new system of treatment. The doctor solicits one or two of the most difficult cases from each location in order to show what can be done by scientific methods both medicinal and mechanical even in the worst forms of diseases. No case accepted without a moral certainty of either materially benefiting or curing the same.

The doctor uses a non-surgical system of treatment, using vibration, electricity, medicinal and other improved methods in curing or relieving diseases or diseased conditions. He has taken the best of the ideas from the different schools and embodied them in a new system of treatment individually adapted to each particular case. He has no cure-alls. Only the purest and best drugs and chemicals used. Every sick person is entitled to the best medicines that are to be found in nature regardless of cost.

The treatment used is more expensive than the ordinary treatment, yet the large number of patients treated make it possible to place the price of treatment within the reach of all. This is a very generous offer; it is an offer of free services until cured. This offer is good only in cases accepted for treatment on or before August 11; after that date full regular fees will be charged to all.

The doctor does not care to accept only curable cases for treatment, however, many cases claimed incurable by old methods have been relieved or cured by more modern and scientific means.

Call at once and have it settled in your mind as to your true condition. Hours: 9 a. m. to 8 p. m.; Sundays, 10 to 4. Office in the Berrigan building, 819 Ludington street, between Georgia and Elmore streets.

THIRD SOO LOCK IS # NEAR COMPLETION

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Aug. 1.—Excavation work on one section of the new third lock at Sault Ste. Marie is nearly completed and one-half of the lock masonry is in place, according to the report of Lieut. Col. M. M. Patrick, district U. S. engineer at Detroit, for the year ending June 30.

The total expenditures on the new locks to June 30 were $2,687,507.26, of which $1,359,065.70 was expended during the fiscal year. The estimated cost of the new lock is $5,700,000.

Excavation to rock work has been done on the new fourth lock, which is to cost $3,276,000, the work so far costing the government $22,558.45.

Maintenance and construction of the channel on the Great Lakes between Duluth, Chicago and Buffalo has cost $5,335,775.13 to June 30, of which $1,775.13 was used for maintenance the last year.

For the operation an dcare of the St. Mary's Falls canal, since 1881, to June 30, $2,264,402.92 has been expended. The cost of operation for the fiscal year was $151,748.43.

The U. S. canal was open 243 days of the fiscal year, during which 15,241 vessels were locked through in 10,261 lockings. The Canadian canal was open 250 days, the passages being 7,934 vessels in 6,323 lockings.

The combined traffic through the Canadian and U. S. locks for the fiscal year aggregated 72,472,676 short tons, the largest amount on record.

RARE ANIMAL SEEN

The badger—perhaps once fairly numerous in this part of the state—is now one of the rarest animals in Cloverland. A few years ago a badger was in captivity on Grand Island and "once upon a time" a young one is reported to have been captured near Miners' river. On Tuesday of this week Secretary Forester Wyman of the Northern Forest Protective association while riding in his automobile near the two mile post on the Munising-Chatham road saw an unusually large badger waddling off into the brush. Mr. Wyman gave chase and the animal finally crouched hissing in a small stream where his pursuer left him.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

No doubt many will attend the performances of Thomas A. Edison's Talking Pictures at the Orpheum theatre for three days commencing Monday, August 4th, to hear the suffragettes argue the question of "votes for women" will anticipate having a good haul. They will, however, hear the strongest and most sensible talk on the subject ever placed before the public. This record gives a graphic idea of what women are demanding and men will find it hard to find an argument against just demands. A few of the women prominent in this movement who appear in the Edison picture are Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Miss Harriet May Mills, Miss Eleanor Byrns, Colonel Ida M. Craft, Mrs. W. Field and Mrs. Mary Ware Bennett. Mr. Edison has perfected his Kinetophone to such a degree that records of many prominent statesmen have been ordered by the New York Historical society as historic references for future generations. A picture of Mayor Gaynor and his cabinet officers was one of the first to be made and this record is a part of the program which will be shown here. Prices for the attraction will be: general admission 10c; first floor 20 and 30 cents; boxes 30 cents.

REMOVAL OF TROOPS FROM THE COPPER COUNTRY INTIMATED

Considerable surface work was resumed at the Copper Range Consolidated mines today, including work at the various shops. No double resulted. All skips at the Champion shafts were replaced on the skiproads. These had been thrown out by the strikers early in the trouble.

The only work attempted by the Calumet & Hecla today was the resumption of pumping at the No. 1 condenser shaft and the resumption of coal trains on the Hecla & Torch Lake railroad. These trains supply coal to the boilers for the pumps.

A survey of the entire district today showed that everything was quiet. No new operations were started, excepting at the Copper Range, Calumet & Hecla and ulcny, as stated. There was no disorder.

Meeting of Strikers Slimly Attended. The South Range strikers paraded from Painesdale to South Range during the afternoon and held a meeting at the latter village. Federation Committeeman Guy Miller spoke and there were speeches in Croatian, Italian and Finnish. Mr. Miller's speech was very pacific. He advised the men to stick, but to make no disorder, and to be peaceable at all times and they would succeed. He gave them much encouragement on the present status of the strike and promised victory.

Mr. Miller's speech was brief, because, as he spoke in English, it is estimated there were not six men in the crowd that could understand him. The crowd was the smallest yet at a strike meeting.

It was announced this evening that Claude O. Taylor, president, and Homer F. Waterman, secretary of the Michigan federation, had left Grand Rapids tonight for the copper country to investigate strike conditions.

Dynamite Scare

Calumet. Armed guards again tonight patrolled the Portage lake bridge connecting Houghton and Hancock as a result of an assertion of authorities that an extensive dynamite plot has been discovered in connection with the copper miners' strike.

Alleged Plotters Stay in Jail

Today when the eight men arrested in Red Jacket were arraigned in a Houghton justice court, no evidence was presented and the hearings were set for Aug. 11. Joseph Mihelichich, from whom a capped stick of dynamite was taken, was held under $3,000 bonds. The ball of the others was fixed at one-third that amount. None of the men furnished surety.

That the scare was still in existence however, was shown by the repetition of last night's precautions in guarding the Portage lake bridge between Houghton and Hancock. No one was allowed to cross the structure except after careful scrutiny by a militia guard, street cars, automobiles and foot passengers being stopped at the approaches.

Merchants Reducing Forces.

Commercial conditions in the strike zone are steadily growing worse. Some merchants are considering the advisability of closing their stores until noon each day, and others have abandoned their delivery systems and reduced their clerk forces.

The village of Laurium has a depleted treasury. The collections to date on the tax roll of $33,000 have totalled less than $2,000.

Houghton.—The excitement of Thursday night, occasioned by the dynamite case, caused some arbitrary actions in Calumet, and because of these things Executive Board Member Guy Miller, of the Western Federation of Miners, sued the following statement:

"The rules of civilized warfare are being swept aside in the copper district. Last night's brutalities certainly deserve the censure of every man who has not lost all respect for human rights.

"Notwithstanding the statements of the mining companies that strike-breakers would not be used, we find wounded men active about the streets. Notice of their activity in employing men for the copper district in the New York press and the acts of some men in uniform last night would suggest that Waddell men might be wearing uniforms.

A jeweler on Pine street, an old man, was struck over the shoulders with a pick handle in the hands of a uniformed man; a baby carriage was run over and its little occupant thrown on the pavement; an old man was beaten with a pick handle near the Schiltz place on Pine street and was taken to the hospital, and residents in various parts of the city have been driven from the porches of their houses.

Outrages that cause a policeman to draw his revolver need no comment from me and, in name of order pick handles are not soldiers' weapons. Had such acts been committed in an organized community, a riot would certainly have resulted. It seems that some parties who are supposed to be guardians of the peace seek a pretext for martial law.

"That men who don't like conditions ought to get out, does not sound impartial. But it doubtless accords with some men's idea of a square deal.

Houghton.—What is considered the most important arrest made in the Portage Lake region since the opening of the strike in the copper country was that of Victor Brader of Duluth, an agent for the Western Federation of Miners. The man was arrested while in the Quincy blacksmith shop by deputies from the sheriff's office.

It had been reported during the morning that Brander was active among the men at work, who complained of his interference, and a military guard was sent out for him. The guard did not locate him, but a squad of deputies did they recognizing him as a man who had been much interested in rioters' cases in Justice Little's court at Houghton on Thursday. Brander tried to get ball for these men, but did not succeed.

The prisoner was searched and photographed at the county jail and then was locked up in the steel cage, where the most desperate criminals usually are incarcerated. Brander is not a desperate appearing man, but he is locked up in solitude because the officers do not want him to communicate with other prisoners, at least for a time.

Obscene Pictures in Pockets. Among Brander's effects were found a bunch of photograph film negatives, some of the subjects of which would make "September Morn" blush for shame. There were a number of socialist documents, notices of the Western Federation of Miners and a letter from a socialist film and screen company.

Brander reported his occupation as that of a subscription agent for Tyonies, the Finnish socialist paper of Hancock, and also that he is working for the Western Federation of Miners. He did not state in what capacity in the latter case.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING

BLUE BIRD PINS—"THE SYMBOL OF TRUE HAPPINESS"—GIVEN FREE BY LOCAL TOBACCONISTS

In this age of something for nothing manufacturers of merchandise have given many useful and beautiful premiums to customers, as an inducement to try their products, but the limit seems to have been reached in this latest premium.

The Blue Bird pins are premiums offered by the manufacturers of Egyptian Straights Cigarettes.

Mr. Bullard their representative when seen at the Oliver Hotel said "These enameled pins are a particularly timely premium as the Blue Bird pin is the newest fad throughout the length and breadth of the Country it having its origin in the Poem-Play of the same name that is still enjoying successful runs in the large cities.

The value of the gift shows the confidence the manufacturers have in the brand.

The local tobacconists will give one of these pins with each package of Egyptian Straights for the next few days only, at the end of which time, we are fully confident the Egyptian Straights' package will be the true symbol to many of the local cigarette smokers.

Style Features For Fall Suits

OUR SHOWING of beautiful Fall Suits is the center of interest for all smart dressers. Elegance and style find delightful expression in these new modes. Women who are tired of summer and eager for new styles, are finding much pleasure in viewing and selecting of garments from this season's display. Features of the new suits are the high buttoning, the cutaway and the blouse effects, Mandarin sleeves, draping vests or vest effects and the use of one material for the coat and another for the skirt. Perhaps the most prominent feature of the suit coat is the cutaway effects, the back of the coat being considerably longer than the front. The slope of the cutaway is the element that determines the length of the back which varies to an unusual degree. Suit coats measuring from finger tip to bend of the knee length predominate. Besides scores of more or less plain tailored skirts which are always popular, the slightly dropped skirt is much in vogue, particularly in the dressier suits. The high waist line, a slash at the bottom, plaiting and shirring at the belt and narrowing effect toward the bottom, are other style tendencies you will be quick to note when you inspect these new arrivals. All are priced very moderately.
