WHAT IS BEST IN COUNTRY

Victory Over Jim Flynn Him Logical Man to Jack Johnson.

Aug. 12.—Gunboat Smith today loomed up on the prize as the "white hope" probably be chosen to wrest the crown from the dusky Jack Johnson.

Smith's backers today announced that he is prepared to meet Sam Langford, Jack Johnson or any other heavyweight in the world. Winner take all.

Flynn entered the ring weighing 183 1/2 pounds, and Smith weighed 183 1/2.

Commercial Possibility.
Little Ruth is busily occupied with her slate and pencil. Presently she ran to her father, whose face at the time required the services of a barber, climbed upon his knee and rubbing her chubby little hand over his chin, said: "Papa, can you sharpen slate pencils on that?"

Flynn showed wonderful courage and aggressiveness, continually boring in, in an attempt to land a decisive punch, while Smith, cool and alert, sent a crushing right and left-hand blows which quickly sapped the strength and senses of his opponent. In the fifth Flynn was knocked down five times after one minute of fighting, and lying helpless when Referee Joh halted proceedings.

MCGRAW AND PLAYERS ENGAGE IN FIST FIGHT

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 12.—It develops that trouble which has been brewing in the ranks of the Giants ever since McGraw traded "Doc" Crandall for Larry McLean, broke out the other night in an exchange of fistcuffs between several players and Manager McGraw.

It was near midnight, when five of the Giant team, who had been spending the evening together, recalled the memory of Crandall's trade for Larry.

When McGraw took his athletes to task for their late hours, high words were exchanged and several blows were struck. Two of the players of cooler heads prevented the matter becoming a general fight and the party finally returned in a lody to their hotel. Outside of a bloody nose, sold to have been sustained by McGraw, there was no damage done.

MATCH WELCH AND RITCHIE

Lightweight Championship of World to Be Decided.

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 12.—The next lightweight match with a title of the ring at stake will be for the championship of the world, Willie Ritchie, the American champion, made this a certainty on Tuesday when he agreed to meet Freddie Welsh, champion of Great Britain and Australia, in Vancouver, B. C., for twenty rounds on Sept. 1. Welsh already has one decision over Ritchie, awarded in November, 1911, when Ritchie substituted at the eleventh hour for Ad Wolgast, then the champion, who was stricken with appendicitis on the eve of a match with Welch. Ritchie had never fought a long distance bout then and went into the match untrained. His surprising showing won him later his chance at the title from Wolgast.

Articles stipulating the weight and division of the purse will be signed in ten days or a fortnight as soon as Ritchie returns from a hunting trip into the mountains east of Salinas, whither he left Tuesday afternoon with his trainer, Harry Foley.

Hugh Springer, promoter of the Willie Ritchie-Freddie Welsh fight, said on Tuesday that the arrangement was to give Ritchie a guarantee of $15,000 win, lose, or draw. In other words, Springer guarantees him 50 per cent of the house and guarantees that the house will contain $30,000. He is also to get 50 per cent of returns from pictures, the remainder going to Welsh and the Vancouver promoters. Springer adds that he supposes weight will be 133 rindside, but that it is not specified, as Welsh agrees to make any weight Ritchie may require.

WELLS FARGO COMPETE WITH THE PARCEL POST

Express Company Organizing a Co-operative Marketing Scheme to Secure Monopoly of Farm Produce.

In a desperate effort to create a new field in the fact of the continuous encroachments of the parcel post, Wells Fargo & Co. are organizing a most elaborate scheme for co-operative marketing. This plan, which originated in the southwest, and has been tried out there for two years, is now being introduced throughout the United States.

The plan includes the organization and the education of the farmer on the one hand and the consumer on the other hand, what mainly concerns the express company, the control of the link between them. If the plan succeeds it will ultimately wipe out the small merchant and give the express companies a monopoly of the distribution of farm products.

Will Send Out Experts.

It is proposed to send expert agriculturists into farming districts who will first ascertain from national and state agricultural departments what products may be introduced into any locality that will require transportation by express. When it has been ascertained that the soil and climate are suited to the proposed crop, the farmers will be solicited to grow it. To encourage them to enter into the new field, the express company proposes to guarantee them a market. This brings the city office of the express company into action. Agents are sent directly to housekeepers to solicit orders. That these orders may come in as large packages such as the express company can best handle, neighborhood consumers' clubs will be formed to receive consignments in bulk for distribution to the various members.

LITTLE BOY SUCCUMBS

Joel Danielson of Gladstone Dies While on the Operating Table

Joel Danielson, the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Danielson of Gladstone, died Monday while undergoing an operation for tonsillitis.

While having his tonsils removed the boy revived partially from the effects of the anesthetic and more was administered. His heart action failed and all attempts to revive him were futile.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at two o'clock at the home in Gladstone.

Of all the French historical legends there is none more dramatic than that pertaining to "the four Henrys." The tradition is that on a wintry night as the rain fell in torrents an old woman who passed in the country for a witch and who inhabited a miserable cabin in the forest of St. Germain was aroused by a loud knocking at her door. She opened it and saw a cavalier, who requested hospitality. A rap of cheese and morsel of black bread were all she set before him.

"I have nothing more," said she. "See, here is all that I have, taxes, subsidies and other extortions have left me to offer distressed travelers, besides which my neighbors call me a witch and rob me of the produce of my little farm."

"This a cruel situation," said the young man, "and were I king of France I would suppress the taxes."

"God hears you," answered the old woman.

The cavalier was about to commence his repast when a fresh knock at the door restrained him. Again a gentleman, drenched with rain, demanded shelter.

"Is that you, Henry?" said the one.

"It is Henry," replied the other.

The old woman discovered from their conversation that they belonged to a numerous hunting party led by King Charles IX, and that they had been dispersed by a storm.

"My good woman," said the second comer, "have you now also to offer us?"

"Nothing," was the reply.

"Well, then," said the other, "must divide it."

The first Henry gave signs of refusal; but, observing of the second, he replied in a tone of chagrin:

"Let us divide it, then."

They sat down opposite each other, and one had already commenced cutting the bread with his dagger when a third blow was struck at the door. Again a young nobleman entered—again "Henry. The meeting was most singular.

The first Henry endeavored to hide the bread and cheese. The second replaced it on the table and set his sword by his side. The third Henry smiled.

"What! Will you spare me none of your supper, then?" said he.

"The supper," said the second Henry, "belongs of right to him who knows best how to defend it."

The third Henry colored and said haughtily: "Perhaps it rather belongs to him who knows best how to win it."

At these words the first Henry drew his dagger, the two others their swords. They had scarce made a few passes when a fourth blow was heard at the door. The portal opened. A fourth Henry appeared.

At the sight of the naked swords the last comer drew his own and, taking the weakest side, fought vigorously.

The old woman, frightened, hid herself, and it was well that she did, for the sword dashed to pieces everything that came in their way. The lamp fell, was extinguished, and all four fought in the dark. The noise of the swords lashed for some time, but gradually died away. Then the old woman crept out of her hiding place, relit the lamp and beheld the four combatants stretched on the floor. She examined them. Fatigue had overpowered them more than loss of blood.

She rose up, one after another, asqu岸ed of what they had done. "Come," said one, "let us now sup with good humor and without quarreling."

But on looking for the supper they perceived it lying on the floor, soiled with their feet and stained with blood.

The old woman, sitting in a corner, fixed her dark eyes on the authors of the mischief.

"Why do you look at us in that manner?" demanded the first Henry.

"I see your destinies written in your foreheads," answered the injured woman.

The second Henry harshly commanded her to reveal them. The two others laughed outright.

With outstretched arms the old woman replied: "As you all four have been united in this cabin, you all all have reunited in one and the same destiny. As you have trodden underfoot and soiled with blood the bread of hospitality, you will trample underfoot and soil with blood the power of which you will partake. As you have impoverished and devastated this dwelling, you will devastate and impoverish France. As you have all four been wounded in the dark, you will all perish by treason and a violent death."

These four Henrys were the four heroes of the league—two as its chief and two as its enemies—Henry of Conde, poisoned at St. Jean d'Angely by his wife; Henry of Guise, assassinated at Blois by the Forty-five; Henry of Valois (Henry III), assassinated by Jacques Clement at St. Cloud; Henry of Bourbon (Henry IV), assassinated at Paris by Ravalliac.—New York Press.

Touching.
He met him in the darkened hall;
Said he, "I've brought some roses."
Her answer seemed irrelevant;
It was, "How cold your nose is!"

RESUME WORK SLOWLY

ment of the American Federation of Labor, which includes the United Mine Workers, the Tin & Sheet Metal Workers of America, the Union of Steam Shovel & Dredgers of America and the Western Federation of Miners, in this strike and expressed himself as optimistic that the strike will be won by the men.

Mr. Walker said he was much pleased with the unity of spirit shown by the men here. He stated that he intends to remain on the ground until a settlement of the strike is reached. The strike leaders, of course, are highly elated with this offer of assistance and the formal recognition of the strike by so large a body of organized labor. Mr. Walker, when he arrived in Calumet, first sought out "Mother" Jones and, after conferring with her, met with officials of the copper country branch of the Federation of Miners.

Judge Murphy Faces Big Task

Judge Alfred J. Murphy, of the Wayne county circuit court, Detroit, also arrived in Calumet yesterday. He comes as the personal ambassador of Governor Woodbridge N. Ferris, hoping to be acceptable to both sides of the industrial dispute as a mediator.

It is believed generally that Judge Murphy's overtures will meet the same fate as did those of Governor Ferris, himself. The governor failed to bring about a conference between the warring elements. The situation remains exactly the same. And that situation is:

The managements of the copper country mines will confer with no one, if that conference means in the slightest degree recognizing the existence of the Western Federation of Miners. The Western Federation of Miners, representing the striking miners in the copper country, will meet with any one or anything, if it can bring about recognition of the union.

Judge Murphy will find an immovable obstacle in the stand of the mine managers. There is no hope in the heart of anyone that his mission will be successful.

Seen on the train between Houghton and Calumet, Judge Murphy said that he was coming here to offer himself as a mediator. He intended to present credentials during the day from Governor Ferris to both sides. He intended to present to each side a peace plan that has the approval of the governor. He intended to ask that for the consideration of this plan a conference of the leaders of the strikers and of the mine managers be held.

Mine Managers Firm in Stand

There is no reason to believe that the mine managers will listen to the overture. They will show Judge Murphy every courtesy, will give him all the information in their power, but their decision not to treat with the Western Federation of Miners appears to be as irrevocable as a divine law, as irrevocable as Quincy bill.

It looks as though Judge Murphy's mission is at the expense of a deal of wasted time, notwithstanding that it developed later in the day that the jurist had been given positive instructions to offer mediation. He met in separate conferences during the afternoon with General Manager James MacNaughton of the Calumet & Hecla company and the officials of the Western Federation of Miners and strike leaders, stating his mission. He was given assurances by both sides that his effort to investigate labor conditions and the causes of the strike would be helped in every way possible while the federation people wished him God-speed in his attempt to arrange a settlement through mediation and said they would co-operate with him in his work.

Judge Murphy did not make his formal proffer of mediation at these meetings, but he will do so today.

"Mother" Jones Sneers at Him.

"Mother" Jones, when told of the arrival of Judge Murphy, said she did not deem him a man fitted to carry on strike, in view of the fact that he, as an impartial investigation of the a judge, "has more to do with those of the mined classes, both socially and in a business way, than with the working people."

Returning Soldiers Number 970.

The movement of the troops from the copper country began yesterday when Batteries A and B, of Lansing, constituting the entire artillery branch of the Michigan National Guard, moved out over the Copper Range railroad in command of Major Roy C. Vandercook.

Troop trains left during the afternoon and night and more left today. The troops have lost their identity with the various organizations at this time, because the men returning home have been selected from the various organizations. Men who can show good reasons for going home are being given leave of absence.

THE PRINCE OF TONIGHT.

A decided improvement over the ordinary musical is the gorgeous musical fantasy "The Prince of Tonight" coming to the Peterson on Sunday, Aug. 17.

This new Adams' Hough and Howard play has a well defined fantastic romance woven through it and the music is fitted to the play rather than used as incidental, as is so common in the general may be up of musical comedies. "The Prince of Tonight" takes you through some beautiful transformation scenes, entertains with clever dances and ensembles, makes you feel younger and you leave the theatre whistling or humming, "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," and feeling "It's a Dear Old World After All."
