The Moose.

When the rains and sunshine of late March and early April have lowered and crumbled the snow, so that travel again is possible, the moose and deer leave their yards to range the woods, feeding eagerly on the expanding buds and green plants that first appear in woodlands. The moose sheds his lordly antlers, and thereafter until the autumn finds them renewed, he keeps himself in retirement, shunning the company of his kin and all other creatures during the summer, while his budding new horns are yet in velvet, he is circumscribed by day in some dense thicket, coming out at night to the still water reaches of stream and lake to feed upon lily-pads and aquatic weeds. Here he remains through the long, dark, standing or lying in the water or swimming per chance long distances to fresh feeding grounds. The cow moose and her calf are less wary, so far as fear of man is concerned, being protected by mau from the hunter's rifle at all seasons, but there are enemies in shape of hungry bears and wild-cats that compel her vigilantly to watch over her calf and sometimes to fight for its safety. She seems fully to realize her immaturity from danger from man, and even displays great indifference to his presence. Throughout the summer she stays much of the time in the water of still streams and coves in lakes where water grass and lily-pads grow, with her calf lying in concealment on the banks, but never so far away but that she can come promptly to the spot in case of danger.

AUTOMOBILE MASCOTS.

St. Christopher One Favorite Design —Comic Figures of Many Kinds. Automobile mascots are growing in popularity and in variety in London. Already a form of etiquette has grown up as to the carrying of an automobile mascot. It must be attached to the cap of the radiator and the material must be solid brass or aluminum picked out with enamel. Many English automobilists have adopted the Continental patron saint, St. Christopher, who is represented bearing a lamb in his arms and picking him up over a stream. But there are countless other badges of a less dignified and more humorous order. The comic London "bobby" ranks as the most popular of amulets among automobilists, closely followed by a weird specimen of a yelping dog.

Two Automobile Mascots. Then there is the black cat, the proverbial bringer of good luck; the golliwog, the weird paberwood, a zoological monstrosity that never was on land or sea; a horned fawn, borrowed from classical mythology; a crowing cock, which came into fashion when Rostand's "Chanteclair" was monopolizing theatrical talk, and a spread eagle. The teddy bear has fallen into disfavor. Some of these mascots have been also dropped by airmen. A good many devotees of the car believe in carrying live mascots. One woman never leaves a pet monkey at home when out in her car, while others have beribboned pet animals of different sorts seated between themselves and the chauffeur.

Unique Coffin.
Perhaps the most singular coffin in which a human being ever was buried is the one of which the following story is told:
A workman engaged in casting metal for the manufacture of ordnance in the Woolwich arsenal, in England, lost his balance and fell into a cauldron containing twelve tons of molten steel. The metal was at white heat and the man was utterly consumed in less time than it takes to tell it.
The War Office authorities held a conference and decided not to profane the dead by using the metal in the manufacture of ordnance, and the mass of metal was actually buried and a Church of England clergyman read the services for the dead over it.—New York Herald.

BOY IS KILLED AT HOUGHTON

umpire Quick, a suit boss in the employ of the company, sworn in as a deputy sheriff, was on guard at this point to observe when Kollan and Kashquan came along. He says that he warned the two men to keep away from the path and that Kollan used threatening language. He deemed it the better judgment to allow them to pass and to report this to Deputy Sheriff Raleigh, in charge of this territory for Sheriff Cruise. Raleigh decided that Kollan's threatening language was sufficient cause for an arrest, and he had Deputy Quick swear out a warrant for the men under a charge of intimidation.

Men Found Playing Tenpins.
Armed with the warrant, Deputy Sheriff Polkinghorne, accompanied by Deputies Raleigh, Cooper and James, went to the Putrich house, in Seoberville, to arrest Kollan. Quick accompanied them and pointed out Kollan in a group of men playing ten pins in the yard.

The party of officers entered the yard and Polkinghorne laid his hand on Kollan's shoulder and told him he was under arrest. Kollan shook the officer's hand from his shoulder and the crowd, all of whom are identified as strikers, backed into the house.

As the officers did not have a search warrant, they did not attempt to enter the house, but started to leave the yard for the purpose of getting authority to invade the house. As they were leaving the yard the crowds began to throw ten pins and beer bottles from the windows. A ten pin struck Deputy Sheriff Cooper on the back of the head. Then shots were heard from the house, and Deputy Cooper's hat showed a bullet wound after the affray.

Boy Dies in Landlord's Arms.
When the shots were fired from the house, Deputy Polkinghorne pulled his revolver and fired three shots. They herded the men into the kitchen, a room ten by twelve feet, and there a melee of shooting and bottle and ten-pin swinging took place. Kollan, Pashquan, Steve Putrich and Starke Stepe were arrested. The remainder of the crowd were cowed and then the officers found that Diaz Tazan had been killed.

Sheriff Cruise and his aids began an investigation. As nearly as they can arrive at, young Tazan was shot while standing at the foot of the stairway leading to the second floor. The only man on the second floor during the battle was Joseph Kutrich, the boarding boss. After he had been shot, the boy climbed the stairs and exclaimed, "By God, they've killed me," died in Putrich's arms.

Wounded Men Expect to Recover
When Starke Stepe and Steve Putrich were examined, they were found to be wounded, and were taken to the Copper Range hospital at Trimountain, where Dr. West gave them immediate attention. Both are on a fair way to recovery tonight.

Continuing the investigation, it was found that Max Stimach, another occupant of the house, had been shot in the stomach, but had escaped. He was located, after a search, and taken to the hospital. His injury is not serious.

Deputy Sheriff Polkinghorne was the only man to fire in the party of officers. All of the other officers showed clean guns when Sheriff Cruise arrived. The house shows a number of bullet holes and several of these show splinters on the outside, showing that shooting had been done from the inside.

LICORICE ROOT.

We Buy Half a Million Dollars Worth a Year From Asia Minor.

Licorice root grows wild in the fields of Asia Minor, and few attempts have been made thus far toward its cultivation. Until fifty years ago it was practically unused, says Fur News. The root grown on the Meander plains is the best in the world, being superior to that found in Syria, Mesopotamia, Caucasus, Siberia or China. The exporters of the root lease licorice bearing lands for a period of from three to five years. Digging usually begins in October, and is done by peasants, who at the end of each day deliver the root to the various depots and receive payment according to the quantity they bring. The root is piled up and exposed to the air until about May and June. It then weighs only half as much as originally, owing to the thorough drying process to which it has been subjected. The root is sorted to obtain the qualities known as "debris" and "bagette," both of which are highly valued.

Licorice root is shipped in bales weighing about 220 pounds each, pressed by hydraulic machinery and strapped with iron bands. The United States is the principal consumer of this class of licorice, which is shipped there in its natural state as raw material, being admitted free of duty. It is converted into licorice paste for medicinal purposes, and is especially used for flavoring plug tobacco. Licorice root in its original state can also be found in any drug store in America. Annual exports to the United States amount to about 14,210 tons, valued at $550,000.

FRIVOLOUS MADRID.
 Capital a Spendthrift Town
 Devoted to Gossip.
 Madrid is frivolity. It is a town where do people of modest means, or at least like them, mobile has supplied a new an old passion. There do so many people who would to have a motor driver, regular supplies of petrol to be sure, is both dear and pain). Keep an automobile, they turn out now and a short run at high speed in glorification and the dan- public. As for that public, in the streets and in a per- of brist talk.
 London or Paris news comes to Madrid, except telegrams, gossip. Important matters inter- t the Madrilenio lit- did it interest him was when person appeared on horse Hyde Park in a Director's Feather headed and light e Madrilenio, on the other e natured and easy to live women dress well, even and the charm of the Span- is never denied. Modern sometimes supposed to be on modern Paris, but the low is that there is nothing

Parisian about Madrid, except the skin.
 Paris works desperately hard, is intensely interested in serious things and producers, thinkers and men of intellectual and scientific eminence. Madrid certainly does not work hard, does not appear to be much interest- ed in anything but frivolity, and few of its greatest men, even statesmen, are much more than names.
Fox Steals Fowl From Kennels.
 Foxes seem to be unusually plentiful in the Blackmore Vale this year and several instances of their remarkable boldness have occurred of late. A few days ago Reynard had the hardihood actually to pay a visit to the hunt kennels at Charlton More- thorne, a village in a sheltered valley in broad daylight between the Sher- borne and Wincanton, and carry off a much prized cock belonging to the huntsman.
 Apparently the marauder had been lying up in a hedgerow close to the poultry yard, and his tracks were easily traced in the muddy lane by which he safely beat his retreat with his capture.—London Standard.
Buttonhole—If after cutting button- holes they are carefully fast be- fore being worked, you will find they look much better and are a great deal more worked.

Hygiene and Aeroplanes.
 Top floors are healthiest. On the same principle to nest like birds hygienically and one that is indulged in every summer by Princess Marie of Roumania, who owns an airy habitation that was erected for her by the King. This consists of a small two- roomed stately furnished cottage with a kitchen and bath for its support four big birches. The idea is not original, but it suggests the most convenient form of abode for an aeronaut, as it facilitates the process of launching. Thus a man could step out of his dining-room into the air.
 A possibility of the near future is the aerostation treatment of invalids. Instead of sending his patient to a health resort a doctor will prescribe some hours a day in a balloon at an altitude adapted to the case in hand. In this respect there has already been considered a perfected system of balloon car with a library, a recreation- hall, and a portable laboratory com- plete.
Strict Economy.
 "Nothing is lost here but the squeal," declared the pork packer. "Are you an economical in conducting your busi- ness?"
 "More so," answered the visitor, "I'm in the lumber business. We don't waste even the bark."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Little Thing

A woman, young and beautiful, but with a shadow on her face, walked aimlessly down the broad avenue. Last night she had been disappoint- ed, and the bitterness of it still rank- ed in her heart.
 To be sure it was nothing of great import. An elegant necklace she had admired and desired to purchase had just been sold when she telephoned asking the jeweler to send it up.
 Turning off the avenue, she stop- ped at a florist's and ordered several boxes of lovely flowers. As she started to go her eyes met those of a frail little girl who was looking with won- dering eyes at the immense bunch of roses she had just ordered. In one hand something was tightly clasped. The wistful face turned to the florist and with a quiver of the lips the child asked the price of "just one rose."
 "Ten cents each, little one," re- plied the florist.
 The tears rushed to the little tot's eyes as she opened her hand dis- playing, only two pennies, and turned to leave the room. The young lady was touched by the disappointed face, and stepping after the girl she asked her what she wanted to do with a rose. The beautiful flowers seemed out of keeping with the pitifully shabby figure of the child.
 "Oh, Harry, he's so sick," was the sobbing reply, "and he begged for just one flower like we used to have out in the country. Mamma couldn't afford flowers, but I earned one cent by going to the post-office for Mrs. Blake, and I sold my—my dear old dolly to Della Fry for another. And now I haven't any doll and I can't get the flower either, and poor Harry will be so disappointed," and the sobbing grew louder.
 "Never mind, little girlie, I'll divide my roses with you. Where do you live? Just wait a minute," and the young lady rushed to the florist's, saying she would take a dozen of the roses with her.
 Out along the street she went with the child, up a long flight of dark stairs, and into a dimly lit room, where little Harry lay on a dicky cot. A woman, the mother, old beyond her years, sat by the eye window sewing feverishly, for she had no time to waste if she was to earn sufficient for their absolute wants.
 The young woman stopped just inside the door unseen by the mother and son, while the little girl ran to the bedside and placed the roses in Harry's arms.

WHY TRAINS START LATE.
 Object is to Give Passengers Just One Minute's Latency.
 "We're one minute late in starting," observed the man to his seatmate on an outward bound train at the Grand Central the other afternoon. "Either the train is late or my watch is slow. I don't think it's my watch, for it's as absolutely accurate a chronometer as there is in America. I paid $700 for it," he added, proudly.
 "Your watch is all right and so is the train," replied his companion. "It is something that is not known to the public, but it is a fact that most of the great railroads nowadays make their published time cards—those that it issues to the public—at large—exactly one minute later than those they furnish their train employees. For instance, this train, according to the time table, is due to leave the station at 4:59. The time card the en- gineer runs by gives the leaving time as five o'clock, and at five o'clock to the second he pulls out.
 The reason for that is this: I get to the gate at exactly 4:59. I am agreeably surprised to see that the train I want to take is still there and slide through the gate just as it is closing. I get aboard and in my seat just as the train starts. I look out of the window and see no one hasten- ing down the platform trying to make a swift swoop and land on the rear step at the last moment. If there is anyone left behind he is on the other side of the gate. The railroads have adopted this plan of having their pub- lic time tables 60 seconds faster so that the gate leading to the train may be closed at the moment the train is scheduled to start and so that those who get inside at the last moment can have exactly one minute to get aboard, which is ample if one is at all nimble."—New York Press.
How Far a Waiter Walks.
 Have you any idea of how much ground a waiter covers in performing his day's work? At a certain hotel which has a long, narrow dining- room the matter was recently put to the test, and the head waiter was armed with a pedometer when he went on duty at 7 a. m. When he had retired after the dinner hour he had covered ten miles, and a fraction. He asserts that this long record of dis- tance covered in a single room is largely the result of the telephone and the social life of the hotel. He not only must seat all patrons, but he personally carries to them the names of callers and all summonses to the telephone. The latter, he says, is one of the most annoying annoyances the head waiter has to contend with. Tit Bits.

Of Interest to Women
 Girls' College Fraternities for Cultivation of Social Life and College Spirit—"Nice" Girls Are Selected and Made "Nicer."
 "A fraternity is a large secret so- ciety, with branches—called 'chapters'—in various colleges," says Woman's Home Companion. "The fraternities flourish most conspicuously in the co- educational institutions. Here the girls, spurred by the presence of men, not only imitate their social organiza- tions, but find in them a substitute for the class loyalty and dormitory com- radeship which are so prominent in the colleges for girls alone.
 "It is on just such considerations—the opportunities for social life and for cultivation of college spirit—that the adherents of all secret societies base their argument. The girls in such a club get to know each other very well. If they have a house, or even hired rooms, to entertain in, they give pleasant little parties, which are enjoyed by outside friends as well as by their fellow-members. The fran- ternity gives a girl much social train- ing that she might otherwise miss. Moreover, knowing her fellow-mem- bers as she does and being in the avowed relation of 'sister' to them all, she is liable to receive much greater—and doubtless grateful—ad- monition from the older and more re- sponsible ones whenever her manners or morals seem to need it. The socie- ties intend to select only 'nice' girls, but even these can be made 'nicer' sometimes. And in the appalling event of a mistake in selection, the fact that all unpleasant traits of the bad bargain reflect upon the society as a whole is a powerful incentive to- ward the enforcement of correct be- havior.
 "On the other hand, all literary or executive ability or social charm sheds honor upon the society and is fostered accordingly. I have seen freakish holdens develop into well- mannered women with much to recom- mend them, besides the fact that they were 'stars in English,' which was the ground for their selection by certain societies wishing to shine in the eyes of the faculty. These girls might have developed sweetly in any event. But in the particular cases I have in mind the society certainly did a great deal and it would be unfair to refuse it the credit because it does not deserve the whole credit."

Lyrics by EDGAR LESLIE Music by AL PIANTADOSI

Last night I go to the five-cent-a show. When a man he come out, he was dressed up a-so, He stand-a up and I shake-a da... fist. He... say, sit down, wop, or I'll slap you on the wrist.

When he was a-talk a-bout this fa-i-ry queen, Be-lieve-a-me, boss, I don't know what's a-mean; But wops, my dear, I'm got a-crash, Eve-ry time I hear, If he asked who build the sub-way, or who run the bar-bar-shop, Who make-a shoe-shine for the big-a-lr-ish cop, All... right, Then I shout out my-self, Wops, my dear!

I don't mind just what I hear, Till he look down and he shout in my ear... say, you Lizz, you'll suf-fer some more, When I catch you at the back... stage door.

 Don't slam the oven door; it will spoil the cake, and it won't improve the pudding.
 Don't cook by guesswork. Weigh all your ingredients, and test your oven before you try to bake.
 Don't fall to keep a clock in the kitchen, for time is a necessary ingredient in successful cooking.
 Don't fall to keep the ice-box clean, for many foods, like milk and butter, are quick to absorb foreign odors.
 Don't be in a hurry. If you skimp in the matter of time, you are certain to leave some important thing un- done.
 Don't be discouraged by one failure. If the dish does not succeed, try again; and keep on trying until you find out what is the matter.
 Don't try to economize in the mat- ter of fruits and vegetables; your green-grocer's bill may be larger, but you'll more than save it in the doc- tor's bill.
 Don't be wasteful. Bread crusts may be browned and ground; bits of meat may help to improve the soup pot.

Cleaning a Muddy Skirt.
 The popular way of freeing cloth- from mud is to wait until the mud has thoroughly dried, and then to rub the material vigorously between the hands, or brush with a stiff whisk. Now, after the mud is dry, instead of employing either hands or brush of any kind, rub the cloth over a per- fectly dry washboard. This, besides saving the fingers, will accomplish the work more easily and better.

Corset Covers.
 Beautiful corset covers may be made of a combination of lace and goldery, the latter being applied to the lace in the shape of medallions. Yokes in corset covers are quite popu- lar, but they usually are made the sole decoration of the plain nainsook cover.

to dodge his responsibility is a boob. The remedy is so simple.

Mr. Atkinson's opinion is that the state fire marshal exceeded his authority when he ordered the closing of the three upstairs theaters and demanded a number of changes in other places, although the theaters had obeyed the local ordinances.

For the last few days all theaters have been facing the prospect of being closed by the police at midnight Thursday. But the police, now that the corporation counsel has defined the city's power, will grant a few days' leeway in getting renewals of licenses. All were notified Thursday to see the building and fire departments for permits.

MOVIE REGULATION UP TO CITY OFFICERS

Detroit Building Inspector Called to Talk for Calling in State Fire Marshal

Detroit, August 13.—The question of regulatio not moving pictures is put squarely up to the local authorities in an opinion given Mayor Marx Thursday morning by Assistant Corporation Counsel Wm. Atkinson.

All theater licenses expire Thursday and Mayor Marx has been besieged by owners requesting renewals. All licenses have been held up pending the corporation counsel's opinion as a result of the visit of the state fire marshals recently and their attempt to supersede the local shows under a new state law that differs in some respects from the local act.

The question of whether the three theaters located upstairs at 39 Michigan, 4 Monroe and 996 Michigan avenues may remain is not up to the state authorities at all, Mr. Atkinson holds. This coincides with the opinion of Police Commissioner Gillespie.

whose department issues the licenses at the order of the mayor. If the building inspector and fire marshal O. K. the upstairs theaters the police will grant them licenses.

Chief Building Inspector Henry A. Dupont has left the city on a two weeks' vacation, but the building commissioner will hold a special meeting Thursday afternoon to discuss the matter. In the absence of Dupont, has left the city on a two weeks' vacation, but the building commissioner will hold a special meeting Thursday afternoon to discuss the matter. In the absence of Dupont, Sec Chas. A. Lady will refuse to grant permits to the upstairs theaters without the sanction of the commissioner.

Dupont is scored by Commissioner Gillespie for bringing the state inspectors here. The order of the latter that the upstairs theaters must close is now being contested in the court. "Dupont's action looks to me like an attempt to get out from under," said Commissioner Gillespie Thursday. "The building inspector does not have to call in anybody from upstairs to enforce Detroit laws. If he thinks upstairs theaters are unsafe all he has to do is to refuse to issue a permit for them.

THE PETERSON

Trust to the authors, Adams, Hough and Howard for the catchiest of music and the acme of novelty in the successes that they regularly give to the stage, another of their pleasing musical offerings is "The Prince of Tonight," full of melody and splendid humor, coming to the Peterson Sunday Aug. 17.

The play is a bright sparkling concoction of the very best there is in two hours of magic, mirth and melody and the balance of the time devoted to the unfolding of a pretty sentimental story. There is an excellent cast, lots of pretty girls who are good singers and dancers and a gingery lot of chorus men that get their work over in manly style. The scenery is correct of the location and the transformation scenes are bewildering. The costumes are a work of art. There are several musical numbers that make the head nod and the foot tap, among them "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," "Tonight Will Never Come Again," "Her Eyes Are Blue For Yale" and a score of others.

ODORLESS FRYING PAN.

Smoke and Smell Directed Into the Firebox and Up the Chimney.

One of the objections to the process of frying is that of the odor which emanates from the frying pan. But a utensil for the purpose has been recently designed which has the merit of overcoming this. The smoke and odor are permitted to pass into the firebox of the stove and thence up the chimney, through the means of a crescent-shaped opening at the side of the pan. With the pan cover on, the natural draft of the range starts a quick and positive circulation through the pan, over the cooking meat or vegetables, carrying down with it all steam and odors. This circulation is made more effective by an air intake space where the handle is attached. This patent air space method of attaching the handle is said to assure a cool handle at all times.

MISS JULIA PEPIN CHARMING HOSTESS

Entertains Twenty-Five of Her Friends in Honor of Miss Lillian Harvey

Miss Julia Pepin entertained twenty five of her friends last night in honor of Miss Lillian Harvey, whose marriage to Walter Hodson of Milwaukee will occur next Monday morning at seven o'clock in St. Patrick's church in this city.

The young ladies enjoyed the feature show at the Royal and then adjourned to the Hrn and Glech grill room. The popular confectionery had been prettily decorated for the occasion, a color scheme of white and red being carried out. Nasturtiums, sweet peas and other flowers were in evidence in abundance and the effect was a most pretty one.

One of the young ladies who attended the function described it as "one fine large evening."

INGENIOUS FLY TRAP

The inventor has a fly trap and a drawing of it. The trap is a no-applauding ornament for the table and a drawing attraction for mice and cats. It provides a disk for a ring of defensible cups which are baited with jelly or other foods that attract flies. By means of a screw in the base of the trap the disk is slowly revolved, bringing the cups one by one under a vertical cylinder of wire netting. The trap is covered by miniature representations, the one illustration being a windmill. The flies enter the door of the mill and while they are busy eating the bait they are carried under the tower. Arrived at this they fly upward, easily finding their way through the openings in the top of the cone, since in the prison tower they cannot escape and must await the hand of the executioner.

MOUNTAINS THAT DON'T EXIST.

Peaks That for Years Had a Place on Canada's Maps.

By far the neatest tale of Canadian mountaineering concerns Mounts Brown and Hooker—myths now relegated to the limbo of Mount Isaram, says a traveler in Outing. In its palmy days alchemy fostered no such credulity as aways some scientific map makers. Unexisting Mount Tillman, Alaska, which had decorated maps for fifteen years, where the writer in 1900 first found a flat plain, or the rubbery height of St. Elias, which has bobbed between 12,000 and 20,000 feet (even Russell cheated it by a sheer half mile) are not even good jokes beside the 17,000 and 16,000 foot mountains which from 1827 on have been engraved on each side of the pass at the head of Athabasca River, with the "Committee's Punch Bowl" between. Now, as a fact, the walls of this pass are only a few thousand feet high, and the "punch bowl" is twenty yards wide!

Neither the railway surveys, spending $3,000,000, nor George Gasan himself nailed the lie. That was done in a library by Collier after 130 seasons' expeditions and a year of worry. Except the maps and a hint in Palfrey's journal linking Brown and Hooker with one Douglas, a botanist, of Douglas fir (Oregon pine) fame, no mention of them could be found in print until Collier struck Bancroft's "History of British Columbia." There the botanist's diary was cited. Collier dug it out. Douglas had crossed Athabasca Pass from Vancouver in 1827, camping in the eye of the pass on May 1. On the north lay a mountain, he wrote, "which does not appear to be less than 16,000 or 17,000 feet high." But this three mile sheer peak, he climbed in a single afternoon—"which," as Collier naively observes, "was naturally absurd." The chance say so of a botanist, but geographers ate it alive! A Prof. Coleman had been in the pass five years before Collier, but finding no Brown and Hooker, and seeing higher peaks to the west, imagined they had been mislocated. But these peaks then had names; the Brown and Hooker business is no error, but a hoax. During the Klondike rush, when the writer was just north of this region, trappers smiled and shook their heads when you asked about Brown and Hooker. They knew. Geographers are more gulleible.

One of Dumas' Sentences.

The prize for the longest sentence ever written may fairly be awarded to the elder Dumas, who probably holds a further record for fertility of production. In the seventh of the 29 volumes which compose the "Impressions de Voyage," there is a sentence describing Benvenuto Cellini which fills three pages, or 108 lines, averaging 45 letters apiece. The sentence is broken by 68 commas and 69 semicolons, but as it contains 195 verbs and 122 proper names, the reader is somewhat bewildered before the end is reached.

An Unreasonable Command.

An Irish captain inspecting his company noticed that one of the soldiers had neglected to wash either the back of his neck or his ears. "Hi, you," he called to him—"you haven't washed yourself at the back! Right-about-face and look at yourself!"

Woman.

A Japanese saying runs: "Woman is an unmanageable creature; flatter her, she is elated; thrash her, she weeps; kill her, her spirit haunts you." We would suggest that the best remedy is to love her.—London News.

Worst of Hardships.

We speak of hardships, but the true hardship is to be a dull fool and permitted to mismanage our life in our own dull and foolish way.—R. L. Stevenson.

BOYS HAVING BIG TIME

Rev. King D. Beach Reports Boy Scouts Enjoying Themselves at Maywood. Rev. King D. Beach returned from Maywood, where the Boy Scouts are encamped, yesterday for a brief stay. Rev. Beach says the boys are enjoying themselves hugely. The first night the younger boys insisted on doing patrol duty and they had some wonderful experiences. Rev. Beach was kept awake the major portion of the night investigating "spooks" reported by the patrolmen. The "spooks" invariably turned out to be swaying bushes, stumps, etc. Joseph Perow left today for Bark River to visit friends and relatives.

FIRST MEETING WITH IRVING.

Not the 'Dramatic Occasion Which Legend Would Have It. Ellen Terry gives her own version of her first meeting with Henry Irving in "McClure's." Far from its being the dramatic occasion which legend would have it, she says: "One very foggy night in December, 1887—it was Boxing Day, I think—I acted for the first time with Henry Irving. This ought to have been a great event in my life, but at the time it passed me by and left no mark behind." Ever anxious to improve on the truth, which is often devoid of all sensationalism, people have told a story of Henry Irving promising that if he ever were in a position to offer me an engagement I should be his leading lady. But this fairy story has been improved ever since. The newest tale of my first meeting with Irving was told during my jubilee. Then, to my amazement, I read that on that fateful night when I was playing 'Pick-me-the-Princess' and caught my toe in the trap, a young man with dark hair and a white face rushed forward from the crowd and said: 'Never mind, darling. Don't cry! One day you will be queen of the stage.' It was Henry Irving!
