BIG FUNERAL IS PLANNED

STRIKERS WILL PARADE WHEN TWO MEN KILLED IN COPPER COUNTRY ARE BURIED SUNDAY

NO ARRESTS BEEN MADE AS YET

Big Demonstration to be Made—Strikers Say Men Were Murdered by Deputies

(By Associated Press.)
Calumet, August 16.—The strikers plan a big public funeral to be held tomorrow for the two men who were killed in the fight Thursday night between deputies and strikers. There will be a procession, speeches, etc.

The strikers maintain that the dead men were murdered. Sheriff Cruse has failed to arrest the deputies implicated despite the order to that effect of Prosecuting Attorney Lucas.

Following an investigation made by Judge Albert J. Murphy of Detroit, Prosecuting Attorney Anthony Lucas and Sheriff Cruse, Prosecuting Attorney Lucas ordered warrants issued for the arrest of the six deputy sheriffs engaged in the battle of Thursday. The warrants were served today. The exact charge will be decided upon when the men are arraigned.

Putrich, the second person to die as an outcome of the battle, was taken to the Trimountain hospital directly after the shooting. It was found there that a bullet had perforated his stomach and intestines. At midnight Thursday Dr. W. K. West, chief surgeon for the Copper Range Consolidated, who had charge of this and the other cases arising from the shooting, gave out the opinion that Putrich could live. But this hope was given up within an hour and it was known that the shock had been too great for the man, even though the injuries had not offered a basis for expecting death.

Putrich was a miner employed at the Champion mine and lived with his mother, Joseph Putrich, in which building house the battle of Thursday evening took place.

LECTURE IN THE M. E. CHURCH WED. EVENING

W. B. Brubaker of Detroit Will Give Illustrated Talk

Wm. A. Brubaker of Detroit is scheduled for a lecture at the First M. E. Church next Wednesday evening. The views are projected by electric current. He will first show about fifteen views on the saloon question and then take his hearers on a trip along the Panama Canal. This great work is rapidly nearing completion and it is expected that the canal will be ready for traffic in the latter part of this year. The views will give the audience a very good idea of the enormous magnitude of this the enormous work of engineering that have ever been attempted by man.

There is wide spread interest in the subject and we predict that the lecturer will be greeted by a crowded house; especially so as there is no charge for admission. Children must be accompanied by their parents.

(By Associated Press.)
Flat River, Mo., August 16.—All mines in the St. Francis county lead belt are closed as the result of the striking of five thousand miners, members of the Western Federation of Miners.

The strikers demand the recognition of the Western Federation and an increase in wages.

All pumps are running at the mines and no trouble has as yet marked the strike.

The miners maintain that they are out until their demands are granted and the operators reply that the Western Federation will not be recognized if the mines have to be shut-up forever.

LIGHT RAINS HELP DROUGHT

HEAT RELIEVED FOR A TIME BUT SCARCITY OF WATER EXISTS THROUGHOUT KANSAS

SLEEP UNDER LAWN SPRINKLERS

Apples are Dropping From Trees, Withered and Immature—Praying for Rain

Kansas City, August 16.—Heavy showers last night relieved the heat drought in parts of Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma but the rains were far from general and mostly inadequate. Only a solid rain of at least twelve hours' duration can relieve the suffering.

Southern Kansas and northern Oklahoma are cooler owing to the showers and clouds but other localities are enduring their thirteenth day of fearful heat.

In Kansas City rains fell during a bright sunshine and slightly cooled the pavements and the atmosphere. Hundreds of children rushed into the streets and stood in the rain.

The drought in Northern Kansas and Missouri is unabated. Springfield, Mo., is nearly out of water. People are praying for rain in all the churches today.

The apples are dropping from the trees, withered and immature. A train load of water is sent daily from Topeka to the railway shops at Horton.

In Wichita the heat is so oppressive that the people have been sleeping under lawn sprinklers. Many streams have shrunk until they are merely pools of stagnant water and dead fish line the banks everywhere.

She was born in Kenosha, Wis., sixty-four years ago and had resided here for a number of years.

LUMBERMAN MURDERED?

POLICE CONVINCED THAT JOHN McALPINE MET WITH FOU PLAY BECAUSE OF INSURANCE

INVESTIGATION IS BEING MADE

Deceased Carried $90,000 Accident Insurance—Members of Family Suspected

(By Associated Press.)
Duluth, Minn., August 16.—The police are convinced that John McAlpine, the millionaire lumberman, who was found dead in the cellar of his home here yesterday did not accidentally shoot himself but was murdered and members of the aged lumberman's family are suspected.

The deceased carried $90,000 accident insurance and this is the chief reason for the belief that his death was not inflicted as members of the family claim.

McAlpine was found yesterday morning in the basement of his home with a bullet wound in his head. Members of the family maintained that he heard a noise in the lower part of the house and got up. He went to the lower part of the house looking for the intruder. A few seconds later they heard a shot and rushed to the basement to find him dead with a bullet hole through his head. His own gun was discharged.

In addition to the $90,000 accident insurance carried by the deceased he also carried $50,000 life insurance. His wife now maintains that he committed suicide but the police scout the idea.

A revolver was found lying beneath the stairway in the basement with one shell missing. There were no powder marks about the wound in the head of the deceased.

LONG DISTANCE SWIM

Raymond Jewell and Edward Erickson swam from Maywood to the ferry dock at Gladstone yesterday afternoon.

The distance from Maywood to the ferry dock is about one mile.

LONG CHASE ENDED HERE

NOTORIOUS CRIMINAL WANTED IN CHICAGO, CHASED THROUGH SEVERAL STATES AND LANDED IN ESCANABA

Detective Makes Arrest in Local Hotel Where He Found Fugitive Sleeping

A notorious criminal was arrested here yesterday by E. R. Shoenberger of the Chicago detective force after a chase that extended through several states an which began on July 2 in Chicago.

Jack Dalton (B-R-R-R-shivers) alias George Smith, cashed a check for $55 on July 2, presenting the check to F. H. Weber proprietor of the Union hotel. The check was on the LaSalle Street Savings and Trust company and the forgery was soon detected.

E. R. Shoenberger of the Chicago detective force was placed in charge of the case and he located his man in south Chicago. Smith made his getaway and jumped to Toledo, Ohio, with the detective on his trail. From that city he was followed to Detroit and thence back to Chicago. He was next located in Owosso and then to Mantowoc. He was arrested here early yesterday morning while sleeping in a local hotel.

The detective returned to Chicago with his prisoner on the four o'clock train this morning.

MAYWOOD MAKES LAST RUN FROM THIS PORT

Left at Eleven O'clock This Morning on Regular Schedule

The steamer Maywood left Escanaba at eleven o'clock this morning on its final run out of Escanaba. Although the steamer has been leased for this season by the Hill company for the fruit trade it is probable that the boat will be purchased and that Escanaba has seen the last of the Maywood.

For several years the Maywood has been making this port and local people have come to regard it as a home institution, so that the announcement that it is making its last run is heard with considerable regret.

Illusions of a Passing Car

Why a Wheel Sometimes Seems to Revolve Backward.

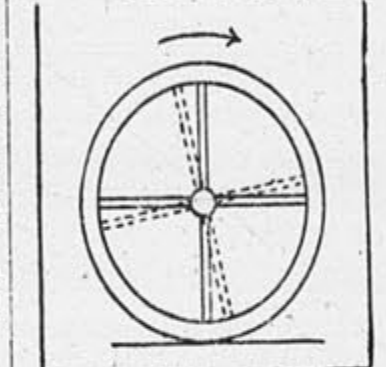

Under this heading, in The Autocar, the Rev. F. Street notes and explains the fact that at night a moving wheel occasionally appears to revolve abnormally, that is, going too slowly, again appearing to stop, and still again seems to turn backward. Under the heading, if a walking stick is held in the hand, a series of distinct flashes will be observed at intervals, their distance apart depending upon the speed of walking. We read that these flashes are only obtainable in the light emitted from an electric lamp supplied with an alternating current. The alternating current changes its direction, in some cases to times per second, and in others as many as to times per second.

"In order that the current may change its direction, there must be an instant in every period when there is a non-current, or a cessation of the current, and this cessation necessarily affects the emitted light in the form of a very short flicker.

"Owing to a peculiar property of the human eye, these cessations of the light, when the eye is viewing a fixed object, are not noticeable.

"In the case of the moving walking stick, an impression is gained as to the position of the stick at an instant of maximum illumination. This impression is retained by the eye, and the various positions, occupied by the stick during the period of less bright light are not appreciated.

"Suppose that a wheel is under observation, and that an impression is formed in accordance with the position of the spokes, and that the view

There Are a Dozen Different Kinds of the Borers.

"One of the queerest superstitions," says a second-hand book dealer in New York, "is the idea that the bookworm commits immense ravages among printed volumes and yet has never been seen.

"People think it bores holes through books and eats out large cavities in the middle of a volume, then disappears, and the superstition even goes so far as to assert that the bookworm will eat a hole that would hold a marble right in the middle of a book, then vanish without leaving any exit.

"The plain truth is that almost any borer that infest wood will bore holes through books and also that cockroaches do more harm to books as an insect.

"There are a dozen different kinds of borers that do more or less damage to books, and the reason why the insects are not frequently noticed is that they do their work and generally leave the book to show the Christians state in other quarters.

"None of the boring worms are large, and even when a borer is actually at work the sudden opening of the book allows the insect to drop out unobserved.

"American made books, however, are very little troubled by borers. There are so many different kinds of chemicals used in the covers, bindings, paper and paste that boring insects generally get very sick at the stomach before they have made their way far into an American book.

"In southern Europe, however, great damage is often done to libraries not only by borers, but also by ants which eat their way into the heart of a book and leave galleries and chambers easily mistaken for the work of the borers.

Brides Adorned Orange Blossoms.

From the other side comes the news that brides are departing from certain traditions with regard to their raiment when they go to the altar. For two years orange blossoms have been abandoned by many in favor of myrtle or the rose. Recently London women of prominent families have selected pale rose color for their wedding gowns and soft blue is also a favorite hue. Of course, yellow and green are to be avoided, but all the blues, pinks and shades on the fawn color are among those which may be selected. Paris girls who have married recently have chosen wreaths of fresh myrtle with long tendrils of green hanging in the folds of the tulle veils. So far few American brides have taken to wearing any except white or cream gowns, but the orange

A KANGAROO FARM.

Established to Provide Supply of the General Public for Pets.

The increasing popularity of kangaroos and wallabies as pets has led to a curious departure in farming at Lycombe Mill, Bath, where the first kangaroo farm in this or any other country has been established, says "The London Express."

The founders of this enterprise are two Englishmen, Messrs. W. H. Payne and "Jack" Wallace, who probably know more about the unexpected wilds of North-west Australia than any persons living who are not native to them. Their wanderings in the remotest of savage Australian districts cover a period of more than thirty years, and they are both seasoned hunters, keen naturalists, and skilled trappers.

They were the first persons to bring the beautiful and valuable antelope kangaroo to this country, and at Lycombe Mill they have just effected a remarkable success in breeding from this species, one of the does having care of a youngster—the prettiest and liveliest little fellow imaginable, with a smiling, little head exactly like that of an Italian child.

An "Express" representative was shown over the kangaroo farm by Mr. Payne, who is now in charge of both Mr. Wallace is securing a new collection of animals, which are to arrive from the antipodes next April.

Mr. Payne first led the way into the nursery—a large, bright apartment, heated very near to tropical temperature. Comfortably quartered here were several young wallabies, with the little antelope infant and its mother.

The buildings and paddocks of the farm cover about four acres, and they are surrounded by a high stone wall. The latter is an essential on a kangaroo farm, for, as Mr. Payne pointed out, an old-man kangaroo is a wonderful jumper. "Heights of ten feet and lengths of twenty feet are not uncommon," he added; "and I have myself measured a jump along the ground of eighteen feet in the large paddock here."

It was interesting to see half a dozen antelope kangaroos in one of the paddocks hustling one another to secure a slice of bread Mr. Payne carried. They bowed and wrestled just like human beings.

The rarest kangaroo in England are to be seen in the Belle Vue gardens, Manchester, and Mr. Payne said they nearly all went from the farm, but the most interesting fact in relation to our kangaroo farm is that we are doing a steady business with with whom the idea of having kangaroos at large in their parks is becoming very popular. Wallabies also are being bought in large numbers by well-to-do people.

Kangaroos are docile and sensible pets, and they require very little attention. In the summer they live mainly on grass and sleep out of doors; in winter they require a shelter such as park deer have, and they do best on a diet of crushed maize.

OLD CALLINGS THAT SURVIVE.

Whaling is Still Carried On, as is Also Candle Making.

The launching at Essex of a vessel built to cruise for whales is a reminder of the vitality callings have even when they have sunk from their old time spectacular prominence. The whalships of New Bedford are no longer found in every sea, as in the era before petroleum, but a serviceable fleet that searches for spermaceti and whalebone still has that city for its halting port. Some of these vessels pay very handsome returns to their owners and crews and New Bedford has an interest in the whalers that make San Francisco their base of operations.

Steam has been applied to the business carried on in Pacific Arctic waters, but on the old whaling grounds sailing vessels are free from its competition. Provincetown is also the home of many whalers who find the calling profitable, even if they do not push their voyages so far as the old timers who flew the house flag famous in New Bedford's annals.

The higher education sometimes demonstrates that the more we know the less we believe.

The people who jump out of the frying pan into the fire had no business in the frying pan in the first place.

By way of Illustrating Highland Longevity, interesting details are now available regarding the ages of persons who died in Inverness-shire during the past year.

Half the total (460) of persons who passed away died above the age of seventy years; 276 were between seventy and forty; 161 between eighty and seventy; 22 between ninety and one hundred, and one over a century.

Kissing the Dying.

To kiss the dying was long considered a gift of strength to the kisser, and among the Romans the nearest of kin was supposed to kiss the expiring one in order to receive the soul as it escaped the body. To this day the same custom is maintained among the European Jews and at the death of a czar of Russia.—The Smart Set.

other Mother-in-law Story. Great expectations of the East are weddings and funerals, but water of a poor district will be to see the funeral of a neighbor, perchance a man, woman or has been so happy as to meet violent death in the factory or street, they turn out in their hands in every possible variety and undress to do honor to the rites of the defunct neighbors, an unhealthy kind of interest, morbid excitement, but such as it plays a most important part in the life of the poor. A man of great liking, was told by his friends that he would have to ride in the mourning coach with his mother-in-law. Now, although there was little love lost between his wife and himself while she was alive, he had still less affection for his mother-in-law, and so he obstinately refused to consent to this arrangement. Finally, he gave way with the utmost reluctance.

"Well," he muttered, "if you say I must, I s'pose I must, but I'll spoil all the pleasure of this day."—Percy Alden, in The World To-Day.

Helpful Beauty Hints

Latest Beauty Potion—Camomille Tea Brings Cream and Roses in its Wake—Can Be Had at Druggists for a Few Cents an Ounce.

If you wish to be beautiful drink camomille tea and if you wish to be fashionable drink camomille tea. The advice is easy to follow, for the tea, in spite of the fact that it makes for beauty and fashion is only just as expensive. The fashion is only just as expensive. The fashion is only just as expensive. The fashion is only just as expensive.

A New York woman who is pretty enough not to need complexion improvers was taking luncheon at the home of a friend the other day when she made a discovery. After luncheon coffee was served to her in the usual tiny after-dinner coffee cup, but the other women at the table were drinking from generous, big, fat round cups which looked as if they held half a pint each.

Would they ruin their nerves and their complexions by taking black coffee in such quantities? she meditated. No, it couldn't be possible, she made up her mind, and not all of them would do it anyway, and besides the complexions of the three were perfect. She had remarked to her hostess on her arrival that she had developed a skin of roses and lilies since she had seen her.

"What are you all drinking?" she asked finally.

"Camomille tea," they all answered like a chorus, and then every one laughed.

"Is that what has given you that beautiful complexion?" asked the inquisitive visitor of her hostess.

"Yes," answered the one of roses and lilies, "there is nothing like it for the blood, and consequently for the complexion. We all drink it three times a day, and nothing else. It simply makes you over. The French women drink it, and that is what keeps them so fresh and young. Camomille tea is an old-fashioned remedy of the days of the grandmothers, when it was taken for colds or as a spring tonic. The Germans also use it in large quantities, though more as a remedy for minor ills than as a beauty drink. It has taken the French women to discover its uses in that direction.

It is the German camomille flower that is used for making the tea. There are two kinds, the German and the Roman. The German is a little daisy-like flower, with a yellow centre, and the Roman like a small double daisy, without a centre. It is to be found at the druggists, and two ounces will cost five cents, while an ounce will make a pint of strong tea. The druggist will tell fearful inquirers that camomille is, as the beauty seekers say, a good tonic for the blood, that it may be taken in any amount without harm and with really good effects.

The tea is made as other tea is. The boiling water is poured on the little flowers, they are allowed to steep for a time and then the liquor is strained into the cup for drinking. It has rather a peculiar flavor, not altogether agreeable, but not distinctly unpleasant.

Cold Cream Advice.

Some reader asks me the exact process of putting on cold cream for the night or for removing dust from the complexion, and I wish there was a hard and fast rule for this cleansing, but in this, as in almost everything else, there is variation, according to the condition of the skin, writes Margaret Mixer. For instance, a woman whose complexion is dry can let the unguent remain on longer than one whose face is oily.

When skin is naturally oily I think the preliminary cleansing required after a train or motor journey, should be done with warm water. Such skin does not need grease to take out the soil, there being the natural supply of oil, or rather an excess of supply. In such cleansing instead of using soap I like shaving cream, which can be bought at any drug store. It is cleansing and not greasy. Before applying it wet the face and then rub on the cream with a soft wet brush, using vigorously but not hard enough to irritate the skin. There must be a rinsing in warm water and careful drying. It is easy to tell if the face is entirely clean, for if it is it will be soft and smooth. If the skin shows the least trace of roughness or hardness a little cream must be wiped over and followed with a wiping of alcohol and tincture of benzoin, an ounce of the latter to a pint of the former. I do not recommend it to any one whose skin is inclined to dryness.

When the complexion is dry or has only a normal amount of grease, preliminary cleansing is to be done with cream.

To apply, the finger tips of both hands are dipped into cream and the face is rubbed precisely as it would be with water, working down on the throat and behind the ears. A large quantity of cream should be used, the purpose being to cleanse and not to massage in the unguent. The rubbing should continue for five minutes at least, until the grease begins to show the effect of absorbing the soil. Under no condition is this oil to remain on, for it will discolor. Pure lemon juice will remove it, or the face can be bathed in hot water.

ORIGIN OF THE ROD.

Used in Driving Oxen, It Came Handy in Measuring Land.

The origin of the rod, pole or perch as a lineal and superficial measure has been traced to the rod, pole or goad used to urge and direct a team of oxen pulling a plough. So it came about it was used as a convenient and handy land measure in feudal times by the lords in allotting plots of land for agricultural purposes to the vassals and others.

One rod wide and forty long (i. e., one furrow long, deep) built up a quarter of an acre. The furlong, or four poles wide and same depth—i. e., forty poles, one acre was a convenient length for a furrow before turning the plough. Of course these lengths somewhat varied in different parts of the country where soils and agriculture varied, but gradually the slight variations grew less and finally the present accepted statutory acre was evolved.

Gunter's chain of 6 feet (ten square chains to the acre) was invented by the Rev. Edmund Gunter (1581-1626). He was a professor of astronomy at Gresham College, London, and ingeniously adapted it to facilitate decimal calculations in land measurements. The use of the rod in superficial measurements of brick work and lineally in hedges, ditches and fences followed as a convenient existing measure.

A "Sort of Cousin."

The lawyer eyed the woman in the witness-box in patient despair. Then, on the authority of a writer in the Detroit News, he rallied visibly.

"You say, madam," he began, "that the defendant is a 'sort of relation' of yours. Will you please explain what you mean by that—just how you are related to the defendant?"

"Well, it's like this," replied the witness, beaming upon the court. "His first wife's cousin and my second cousin's first wife's aunt married brothers named Jones, and they were cousins to my mother's aunt. Then again, his grandfather on his mother's side and my grandfather on my mother's side were second cousins, and his stepmother married my husband's stepfather after his father's and my mother's died, and his brother Joe and my husband's brother Harry married twin sisters. I ain't ever figured out just how close related we are, but I've always looked on him as a sort of cousin."

"Quite right," assented the lawyer, feebly.

Pleasure and Sacrifice.

An alert little five-year-old was visiting a city park with her mother for the first time. She had noticed the beautiful red and white swan boats, as they passed through in the morning, and her mother had promised they should come back after the shopping was done and have a ride.

Shortly after dinner they stood on the bridge over the lagoon, watching the boats below and listening to the cry of the barker as he tried to induce the passing crowds to patronize his swan boats.

But when her mother started toward the boat landing, little Elsie declared very vigorously that she did not want to go at all, and as her mother urged her, broke forth in tears.

This sudden fear was so different from her former eagerness that her mother could not understand it until she noticed the boatman's call.

He was crying, "Come along, come along—ride clear round the pond—only five cents for ladies and gents—children thrown in!"

ATHLETIC EXPERTS TO VISIT

At Indianapolis Meeting Backers of New Major League Plan For Eight Clubs—Germans to Use Our Methods in Olympic Games in 1916.

Experts are praising the work of Al Demaree, the lean, lank twirler of the New York Nationals, who has been forging ahead with an impressive number of victories. If McGraw's team wins the National league pennant Demaree will surely be given a chance to work in the world's series.

Demaree recently tallied his ninth straight win. That's "going some." He is muscular, though not of heavy build, and should last through the remainder of the season without weakening.

Clark Griffith, manager of the Washington team, has been doing a lot of talking recently. He claims that his club will start to win now and will pass the Athletics, because the Mack pitchers do not have the class, and Bender and Plank are due to "blow."

CLARK GRIFFITH.

At that, the Senators look more formidable than Cleveland, and Chicago is more likely to cause trouble for the Athletics than either the Senators or Naps.

Just as long, though, as Connie Mack has his team intact, especially his infield, and the pitchers can hold the opponents as they have been doing, it seems foolish for him to worry.

In the Central association the Kenawee (Ill.) club has purchased Pitcher Tom Drohan from the Cleveland club, has signed Catcher Hally and released Outfielder Ryan.

Early in the season Manager McGraw of the New York Giants, made several unsuccessful bids for Pitchers Tyler and Perdue of the Boston Braves, offering Manager Stallings twirlers and infielders in exchange. McGraw certainly knew what he was doing, all right, for Tyler and Perdue have been winning consistently for Boston. But conversely Stallings also knew his little book when he turned a deaf ear to all of McGraw's blandishments.

Horace Fogel, former National league club owner, recently submitted a proposition to the directors of the Federal League of Baseball Clubs in Indianapolis to place a club in New York city. Philadelphia and Baltimore also made bids for clubs, and the directors began considering the advisability of making the Federal an eight club league next year.

No action other than the appointing of committees to consider the claims of each city and look over the ground that could be obtained for the ball parks was taken, and the directors adjourned to meet later.

Among the magnates attending the meeting were John T. Powers, Chicago, president of the league; Lloyd Rickert, St. Louis, secretary; Colonel X. Zimmerman and M. F. Bramley, Cleveland; Ed Steininger, St. Louis; W. T. McCullough, Pittsburgh; J. A. Gilmore, Chicago; and J. Edward Krause, Indianapolis.

The commission will remain for some time in New York and then tour the USE MORE THAN ONE DESK.

Men Who Find Two or Even Three Desks Convenient in Their Work.

"One man I had occasion to call on 'at my day' said a man whose business takes him around among people here or there, 'I found sitting between two desks. Facing one, he had the other directly at his back, and evidently both were in use. The significance of the two desks was really very simple.

"This man is at the head of an establishment called for both scientific and administrative work and in one of his desks he has all the material required in his scientific work and in the other the various things required in his business work.

"He sits between the two desks in a revolving chair. If he has business to attend to he swings around and goes at it on the business desk. Business finished, he swings around again to his other desk and resumes his scientific work, enabled by the arrangement to avoid confusion and to prosecute his work in either direction with convenience and economy of time, all of which I thought was very fine.

"I have since heard of another man engaged in three pursuits, who uses three desks in precisely the same manner, the three desks being set to form three sides of a square with his revolving chair in the center, the papers and documents and data pertaining to one thing in one desk, to another thing in another desk, to the third thing in the third desk, all very convenient, and also saving.

"Add I suppose you looked around enough you would find in fact a considerable number of men who make use of their desks in professions of more than one desk."

Arabic Breadmaking Modernized.

The ancient custom of baking bread in Greece is being changed, in the old oven a fire of branches is kindled in the compartment where the bread is baked, and one of ordinary wood is put beneath. When the oven is sufficiently heated the brushwood and kindles are raked out of the upper, and the bread is put in.

The change, made in the interest of the protection of the forests, is to use the lower compartment for burning oak at one-half the cost of wood. Many of the bakers of Athens have already changed their form of oven.

HOW ROYAL LADIES PROPOSE.

The Future Consort is Relieved of Taking the Initiative.

When a reigning queen is to be married she must broach the subject first to her future consort. The same rule holds good with regard to all royal ladies who marry commoners.

Queen Victoria has told how she managed to "put the question" to Prince Albert—how she first showed him Windsor and its beauties and the distant landscape and then said: "All this may be yours." The Queen of Holland, on a like occasion, simply sent a sprig of white heather, begging Prince Henry to look out its meaning in a book of flowers and their meanings. The Duke of proposing to the Marquis of Lorne: She was about to attend a state ball and gave it out that she would choose as her partner for the first dance the man she intended to honor. She selected the Marquis, who subsequently became her husband.

But perhaps the most interesting of all ways chosen was that of the Duchess of Fife. She took the Earl, as he then was, to a drawer and showed him its contents. There he saw a number of trifles he had given her at different times, including sprigs of several kinds of flowers, now dead, he picked for her at different times. He was much impressed at the sight, nor did it require words on her part to make her twinning plain.

A Practical Philosopher

The well-grounded fondness of the common ground on which all members of the race and not a few white men as well can meet. Accordingly it is probable that the discussion which the taro collected in fell into the story attributed by the New York Times to Governor Glenn of North Carolina, was brought to an amicable conclusion by the statement of the speaker's position.

Deacon Jackson stated that in his opinion the only way going to the dogs, there he was accused of being a pessimist.

Older Hightower combated this view, seeing that the paric was about over and the price of cotton was on the rise. He declared himself a firm optimist.

opened its season Monday in Shebo-yan, Wis. Of the production the Daily News of that city said:

"A big audience witnessed the production. The company responded to encore after encore, and it was nearly 11:30 when the final curtain dropped.
The company is well prepared for a successful tour. The settings are artistic and pretty and with an unusually pretty chorus and a company wonderfully capable, the price ought to be a great go.

"There is also a much better plot than goes with the usual musical comedy. Tom Arnold, a Harvard student, cut off by his rich uncle, gets a job as swimming instructor at a Palm Beach hotel, although he cannot swim a stroke. He meets Virginia Stuart, the heart crushing daughter of Daniel Stuart, a millionaire, is spurned by her, and then is transformed by a package of magic cigars into a prince for one night. As a prince he wins the love of the heartless flirt, knowing that as soon as his cigars give out and the moon goes down it is all over with him. Alas, as a prince, he has no heart. The only way he can be saved is by the kiss of a certain woman. In the final act the girl's kiss saves him and everybody is happy.

"Tom Arnold, as Jim Sutherland, afterwards the prince, made a great hit.
He has a splendid voice and is a good comedian besides. Eva Carey made a good flirt, and Frank Harsh, as Daniel Stuart, the father, kept the audience laughing. Charles Corwin, the old gardener who supplied the dope, was another good hit.

"The chorus was exceptionally well balanced and attractive.

The Next Thing to Giving Goods Away

No phone orders taken for advertise items, you must call for them at the store.

Is to Sell at Prices Quoted at This Store

No phone orders taken for advertise items, you must call for them at the store.

All summer merchandise—odds and ends must go—Former selling prices cut no figures now—the main thing now is to get room for the display of the new fall and winter stocks—no time to be lost either—by September 1st must rid departments of all odds and ends and strictly summer merchandise. Four of our buyers are now in New York buying goods for their different departments. Our Mr. Salinsky reports very heavy purchases. Instructing us to use our own judgment—throw out all merchandise that have had its season and any odds and ends of staple merchandise taking up space that could be used to better advantage showing our new lines. Not been slow in following instructions—in some instances we may have overstepped our authority—but if we succeed in cleaning up stocks while the buyers and the boss is away—we are willing to face the music when they get home. Never in the history of the store have such radical reductions ever been made. If you can spare the money—and have any use for the goods within the next year—you certainly can't make a mistake buying now at these ridiculously low prices.
