FIGHT STORM IN A CANOE

ROBERT L. JOHNSON AND BROTHER DRIVEN ABOUT BAY FOR SEVEN HOURS LAST NIGHT

SEARCHING PARTY ABOUT TO START OUT WHEN MISSING RETURN—BAILED BOAT WITH HANDS

When R. L. Johnson, chemist at the Stephenson Charcoal Iron company's plant at Wells, failed to show up for work this morning and inquiry at the house in which he roomed developed the fact that he had not been home since shortly after three o'clock yesterday afternoon when he had left to go canoeing with his thirteen year old brother, who is visiting here from Cincinnati, considerable anxiety was felt. When it was learned later that Johnson with his brother had started across the bay from Escanaba towards Stonington in a canoe just previous to the heavy storm of four o'clock friends became assured that the young men were drowned and a searching party was hastily organized.

The searching party had rented a boat and were making preparations to start across the bay when the missing man and his brother stepped off the launch Elite.

For seven hours the two had drifted about the bay in a frail canoe, driven hither and yon by the wind, battling with their hands and completely at the mercy of the elements.

They were about midway between Escanaba and Stonington when they saw the storm coming. They hastily paddled toward the west shore but the storm struck after they had proceeded but a short distance. Realizing that they could not make it they endeavored to run before the wind but soon the waves were dashing over the craft and their time was occupied in bailing with their hands. Every object they could spare was thrown overboard and many times they were in their canoe would swamp. At seven o'clock last night they were even ashore near the Robertson dock completely exhausted. They made their way to the home of Harry Robertson where they spent the night and made their way to Escanaba at the first opportunity this morning.

News of the absence of the young men flew about the city like wildfire and everyone seemed confident that they had been drowned.

Mr. Johnson is a member of the choir at the Presbyterian church and had that he, with his brother, was received with much gratification by the people here.

N. Halran, the local employment agent, returned yesterday from the copper country with twenty men who are started to work for the Bay de Noc Lumber company at Nahma.

Mr. Halran states that there seems to be no indication of a break in the strike situation and that the business end of the section are badly discouraged.

One of the Copper country merchants made his annual visit to New York for fall and winter buying and has since cancelled the orders.

Representatives of several employment agencies are recruiting in the Copper country.

LIND REMAINS IN VERA CRUZ

CHANGES PLANS AND WILL NOT GO TO MEXICO CITY UNTIL NEXT WEEK

BRYAN OFF TO DELIVER LECTURE

Thought That He is in Doubt as to the Welcome That Will be Accorded Him

(By Associated Press.) Washington, D. C., August 29.—The administration officials are puzzled over news dispatches announcing that John Lind has reconsidered his plans and will remain in Vera Cruz for several days. The official expected Lind to depart for Mexico City immediately and his decision to remain in Vera Cruz is taken to mean that he is not over confident of a cordial reception in Mexico City.

Secretary of State Bryan has gone to Doylestown, Pa., to deliver a lecture and expects to return to Washington on Sunday.

President Wilson left for Carlisle late this afternoon and will return to the city tomorrow.

LOCAL HORSES MAKE GOOD AT DEPERE

Colts Entered by Charles Ehnerd and Joseph Hirn Captured Third Places

Charles Ehnerd and Joseph Hirn returned this morning from DePerre, both well satisfied with the showing made by their horses in Wednesday's races of the Brown county fair.

Mr. Ehnerd's horse "Chesco, Jr." was entered in the three year old class and was started for the first time in its life. The colt proved its mettle by capturing third money in the race. The race was won in straight heats of 2:35 and 2:39.

Mr. Hirn's horse "Ethel Mayme" competed in the 2:32 trot with six entries and captured third money in a fast race. The race was won in straight heats in 2:27 1-2, 2:26 1-2, 2:26 1-4. Although Mr. Hirn's horse has had good schooling as a racer but raced Wednesday for the first time and the showing made by the mare is especially gratifying to its owner.

Dr. William Firkus of this city drove both local horses and handled them in such a way as to prove his thorough knowledge of the game.

The horses have both been shipped to Plymouth where they will contest in the races to be held there during the coming week.

J. O'Connell of Milwaukee is in the city on business.

DENOUNCES PARTY CAUCUS

SENATOR HITCHCOCK SAYS INCOME TAX AMENDMENT WAS BEATEN SECRETLY AND UNFAIRLY.

ONLY DEMOCRAT SUPPORTING BILL Brands the Caucus Rule as a Farce and Scores Those Who Upheld It

(By Associated Press.) Washington, D. C., August 29.—Senator Hitchcock this morning scathingly denounced the Democratic senate caucus as a "political machine." Hitchcock is a Democrat who refused to be bound by the caucus on the tariff bill. The Democratic senator maintained that the action was not only hasty but secret. He maintains that the amendment for a heavy penalty tax on trusts and monopolies that control a fourth of the country's production, was beaten in caucus unfairly and not openly. The caucus rule, he said, killed the spirit of legislation and makes debate formal.

Hitchcock's amendment was beaten 41 to 30. He was the only Democrat supporting it.

ESCANABA YOUNG MEN IN BOAT DURING STORM

Elton Brown and Ed. Brotherton Compelled to Land at Stonington Where They Spent the Night

Elton Brown and Ed. Brotherton, young men of this city, had a harrowing experience with the storm of yesterday afternoon and occasioned their friends in the city a great deal of anxiety which was not relieved until ten o'clock this morning when it was learned that the young men had landed safely at Stonington and had spent the night there.

The young men went out in a sail boat yesterday afternoon and were sailing about Little Bay de Noc when the storm arose, their endeavors to reach the west shore were futile and after several hours battle with the storm they managed to reach the east shore. With a high wind in evidence and a heavy sea running, they wisely refrained from attempting to return last night and at the first opportunity this morning apprised their parents of their safety.

GANG OF FOUR BOYS WAS EXTRA BUSY

Youngsters Arraigned Yesterday Admitted to Having Cut up Tire on Frechette Automobile

The four youngsters who were arraigned yesterday before Judge Yeland in Juvenile court have confessed themselves responsible for many depredations in addition to the thefts announced in yesterday's issue of The Mirror.

Several weeks ago the police were considerably stirred up when they learned that Frechette's automobile, while standing in front of the high school building had had one tire cut to pieces with a knife and the lamps stolen from it. The boys admitted to this deed of vandalism. In their possession Detective McCarthy also found tools of all description, several automobile lamps and a number of small articles for which they could have practically no use. Four bicycles were taken in all by the boys and the youngsters made evident their ingenuity in covering up marks of identification on the wheels. For identification the rear wheel of one of the bicycles was removed and placed on one of the others. Another was covered with a coat of paint so that when it was presented to the owner for identification he promptly stated that it was not his. Not until some of the paint had been scratched off was he able to state that the bicycle belonged to him.

They maintain that they discovered the tribe of Esquimos which Stefanson left recently to investigate and that they had been with the tribe three weeks when Stefanson arrived. The Esquimos they describe as being whiter than the "white" man and they maintain that the tribe which Stefanson will visit is not nearly so large nor so strange as several other tribes on the shores of the Arctic.

GREATLY IMPRESSED BY THE UPPER PENINSULA

Arthur Meeker the general manager for Armour & Co., who has been in the Northern Peninsula of Michigan for the past two or three days, enroute to Canada on a hunting trip was greatly impressed with the farming land between this city and the Soo.

"I have been hearing a great deal about 'Cloverland' for the past year or two," said Mr. Meeker, at the Soo yesterday, "but had no idea that there was so much good land in the Northern Peninsula of Michigan. I did not think it possible to raise such crops as I saw from the car window between Escanaba and the Soo."

Mr. Meeker has not been north in a number of years and claims that the general impression of the people who are uninformed, is that after leaving Menominee, there is little more than a wilderness.

The party on Mr. Meeker's private car included, Mrs. Meeker, Miss Katherine Meeker, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Stevenson and Dr. Chancellor, all of Chicago. They will spend about ten days in Eastern Canada, and will go to New York, and Boston before returning to Chicago.

GETTING ON WITH HER

By SIDNEY CONWAY.

"Isn't Charlotte a dear!" cried the girl in the swing seat as the young woman of whom she spoke waved a distractingly pretty hand from the window of her electric brougham. "Fancy your luck in having a step-mother nearly your own age, and such an adorable creature, too. So much more exciting than having a mere sister."

"Charlotte and I do have good times," agreed the girl with brown eyes and a small, rebellious mouth. "But I really thought for a while that we weren't going to get on at all. She made me feel snubbed all the time at first."

"I dare say the Viennese type is difficult to understand," agreed her friend, "But I cannot imagine Charlotte's hurting your poor little feelings."

"Oh, she didn't mean to hurt them. But we take such different things seriously. Now, clothes, for instance. Charlotte is one of those lucky persons who think that whatever is fashionable is exactly right. She can prove to you that the most hideous nightmare of the dressmakers' congress is eternally fit and intrinsically beautiful. She really thinks so—for the time being."

Charlotte has a positively uncanny sense of what is going to be the thing to wear. I can't catch her taking any preliminary notes. And she is perfectly unconscious of her gift.

"So when she discovers me dressing in a different way from herself, instead of asking me why I don't consult a really good dressmaker she merely looks hurt and inquires gently whether I don't think white hose with black pumps are just a bit—well, not what a lady would wear? Or she asks whether I realize that my hair is parted just a thought to one side? Or she will point out to me that to a really sound aesthetic sense the thought of trimming raw silk with any sort of lace is simply excruciating."

"You see, dear, it is a tailored matter," she would say, with that little reverent hush in her voice that some women always have when they speak of anything that is tailored. And she would say, "Of course it is hot and uncomfortable, but really, you know, a coat must always be worn on the train." And she would ask if I myself

Waved a Distractingly Pretty Hand. didn't feel the indelicacy of a blouse under such circumstances. The unprotected publicity of the thing, as it were, surely could not have escaped me.

"As for persons who permit themselves to appear on the street without gloves or in a drawing room with short sleeves and no collar, she could not speak of them for sheer horror. These offenses passed the bounds of charity. It wasn't the question of taste that she considered; it was the eternal rightness of things that weighed upon her.

Well, you can realize that I haven't had to wait long, at the rate our styles move, exactly to change places with my pretty stepmother. Now she wears the lowest necks and the most frivolous excuses for sleeves, and the most costless blouses; and when she catches me in a high collar she looks exactly as grieved as she used to look when I rolled up my sleeves.

"But she can't hurt my feelings any more—not a bit! For I know now that what she honestly supposes to be high moral ground is nothing in the world but a clever sixth sense as to what is being worn."

"I don't mind unfashionable, but I did hate to think I was color blind, tasteless, of doubtful delicacy and generally a blight on the good old puritan stock—all because I didn't wait to consult some Parisian fashion tyrant before I wore a dark waist with a light skirt. I've made her see it, and now we get on beautifully!"—Chicago Daily News.

It Certainly Would Not. Church—I see women throw spotted eggs at a neighbor, in New York, the other day, because she sang ragtime songs.

Gotham—Can't see how that would make either the songs or the eggs any better.

With Bedtick She Fires Min. Centralia, Pa.—Officials of the Lehigh Coal Company discovered that a woman had dumped an old bedtick on fire into a mine branch, the flames igniting the coal in workings, near here. Men put forth great efforts to extinguish the blaze.

THE MOST FAMOUS OF ALL PALMS.

The Coco de Mer Which Bears the Biggest Nut in the World.

In the magnificent palm palace of the New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, a specimen of the most famous of all palms, and one of the rarest in cultivation, has been placed for public admiration after three years in the propagating house, where it arrived as a seedling. This is the double cocconut, the coco de mer, the coco de Salomon, the coco des Maldives of the French.

It attains a height of 20 or 30 feet, and is surrounded by a beautiful crown of winged and palmated leaves. The diameter of the trunk varies from 12 to 15 inches, and the whole is so flexible that it sways in a strong breeze. The leaves attain a length of 20 feet, and even 30 feet, with a breadth of 10 or 12 feet, and open like a fan. The fruit is the largest which any tree produces. It frequently is 18 inches in length, with a circumference of 3 feet, and sometimes weighs 40 or 50 pounds. A remarkable circumstance connected with the tree is the length of time necessary to mature its fruit and the long duration of the bloom. It bears only one spadix in each year, and yet has often as many as a dozen in bloom at once. It has flowers and fruit of all ages at one time.

Until the year 1743, when they were seen on the trees in the only spot where they grow, the nuts were known solely from having been found floating in the Indian Ocean off the Maldive Islands. They were found in no other place in the world. The reason was that the trees grew on the shores of the Seychelles, and large quantities of the great fruit, falling into the water, were borne to the Maldives by currents, the direction of which in those parts is east-northeast.

The nuts were always found minus the husk and mostly with the internal part decayed. They were called "Calappa Laet" by the Dutch, and under that appellation Rumphius has given a historical account of them. The double cocconut, he says, is not a terrestrial production, which may have fallen by accident into the sea and there become petrified, but a fruit probably growing itself in the sea, whose fruit hitherto has been concealed from the eye of man.

The Malay and Chinese sailors used to affirm that it was borne upon a tree deep under water, which was similar to a cocconut tree, and was visible in placid bays upon the coast of Sumatra, etc., but that if they sought to dive after it the tree instantly disappeared.

The negro priests declared it grew near the Island of Java, where its leaves and branches rose above the water, and formed the habitation of a monstrous bird or griffin. This griffin was accustomed to sail forth nightly and to peck with its beak such insignificant game as elephants, rhinoceroses, and tigers, and carry off the flesh to its nest to feed on at leisure. Moreover, ships were attracted by the waves which surrounded the tree and were unable to sail out of the fatal zone, so that the hapless sailors fell an easy prey to the voracious bird. Needless to say that the inhabitants of the Indian Archipelago in their travels about the ocean were careful to give the spot the widest possible berth.

Nowadays the crown of the trunk—that is, the heads of the leaves—is eaten like that of the American cabbage palm, and often preserved in vinegar, but it is less delicate and slightly bitter. The trunk, itself, after being split and cleared of its soft and fibrous internal parts, serves to make water troughs as well as pallades for surrounding houses and gardens. The foliage is employed to thatch the roofs of houses and sheds, and even for walls. With a hundred leaves a commodious dwelling may be constructed, including the partitions of the apartments, the doors and windows. The down attached to the young leaves serves for filling mattresses and pillows. The ribs of the leaves and fibers of the petiole are used for making gaskets and brooms, while the young foliage furnishes an excellent material for hats.

Of the nat. vessels, of different forms and for various uses are made. When preserved whole and perforated in one or two places the shells serve to carry water. Some of them hold from six to eight pints, and generally are carried suspended to sticks, one on each end. If divided in two between the lobes, each portion serves, according to its size and shape, for plates or dishes or drinking cups. In European countries the shell has been utilized for making shaving dishes and similar articles. It is black and polished beautifully, and generally is carved and set in silver.

For many years attempts to introduce the coco de mer in the conservatories of the European botanical gardens failed invariably. Such was the eagerness to make experiments in rearing it that germinating nuts were disposed of at public sale in London for £10 apiece. There are some fine examples now both at Kew and Hanover.

Artificial Ice.

There are 2,004 ice making factories in the country, making 12,647,949 tons in 1909. The number of factories increased 684 in five years, or 52 per cent. The ice made does not represent the total, only that made for sale in ice factories only.

The capital invested in these establishments is $118,642,000, a gain of $52,050,000. The average capital was $59,000. The value of the ice was $42,953,000. The total horse-power was 317,789.—United States Census Reports.

MAKES STATEMENT ON SENATORSHIP

Sen. Stephenson has Made up his Mind in Regard to Another Term But Won't Tell it

Menominee, Aug. 29.—Senator Stephenson left yesterday afternoon to resume his duties at the national capitol. Speaking of his position in regard to another term in the senate he said today: "I have made up my mind but no man, woman or child knows what I will do, not even my wife, nor will they know till I make the announcement which will be some time before the senatorial primary next year."

Senator Stephenson let this be understood as the last he would have to say on the senatorship until he makes the formal announcement, which he says will be made public in a seasonable time before the primary.

During Senator Stephenson's absence from the senate he has been paired with Senator Tillman of South Carolina on all tariff matters. He expects to remain until the end of the session and will select a secretary to succeed the late L. S. Patrick shortly after his arrival in Washington.

Senator Stephenson views with some pride the record he has made in securing public buildings for Wisconsin. He succeeded in having appropriations made for the following cities during his term, Appleton, Oconto, Delevan, Ft. Atkinson, Mineral Point, Beaver Dam, Rhineland, Ripon and Menominee. The senator is a firm believer in public buildings altho he thinks that in many instances, the appropriations are out of reason, considering the size of the cities in which they are located. Speaking of this matter he said, "I believe every city in the country from 3,000 up should have a public building. Not too large or too ornate but suitable to the needs of the community. A public building stands as a reminder of the government for all its inhabitants. In many instances appropriations beyond reason have been made for cities and this is wrong."

MEN STRIKE FOR RAISE

Twenty Employees of the N. W. C. Co. at Flooring Mill Demand Increase of Wages—Demand Refused

Gladstone, Aug. 29.—About twenty men working in the flooring mill of the Northwestern Co. have struck for higher wages Tuesday noon. The men demanded an increase of twenty-five cents per day. The company refused to accede to the demands of the men and others will be put in their places. The men are now receiving two dollars per day.

As the result of the men striking the flooring mill had to be closed down for the entire afternoon.

Unexplored Africa. More than 1,000,000 square miles of the continent of Africa—an eleven of its total area—still remain unexplored. About three-fourths of the unknown country lies within the Desert of Sahara, but there are also many fertile regions that have never been visited by a European. The largest stretch of unexplored country near the sea coast is in Liberia, about 20,000 square miles, all within 200 miles of the sea. The basin of the Upper Nile and the adjoining region of the Kongo basin, Morocco, parts of Abyssinia, Somaliland, British East Africa and many other districts, have yet to be surveyed and mapped. Any opportunities still await the plucky explorer in the Dark Continent.

Seals With Good Appetites.
The six elephant seals at the Aquarium consumed in a month about a ton of food; to be exact, 1,951 pounds of codfish, herring and weakfish, or, approximately ten pounds and a half for each daily. As might be expected of creatures with such appetites, the elephant seals are thriving and growing.—New York Sun.

OHIO INVENTORS.

The First Friction Matches—Earliest Daguerreotypes in America.
It is not only in statesmen and soldiers and Presidents that Ohio has been great. In invention Ohio stands supreme, said John A. Poland, a lawyer of Chillicothe. The Wright brothers are the most recent inventors who have given to the world a revolutionizing invention.

The first friction match made in the United States was made in Zanesville, Ohio. In 1843 a man by the name of McGinnis kept a general store there, where he sold everything, including drugs. One day a clerk at McGinnis's was given an order to mix in a mortar a quantity of sulphur and phosphorus. He did it and delivered the compound to his customer.

"That evening the store boy, a lad named Sheward, in cleaning out the mortar used some shavings to scrape out the mixture that was left. He thought nothing more about it until the next day when he picked up one of the shavings and carelessly drew one across the counter. It ignited. He directed the attention of McGinnis to the phenomenon and the latter began to study.

"The result was that McGinnis manufactured the first sulphur matches made in the United States. The store boy afterward became Judge Sheward of Dunkirk, N. Y.

The first photographs produced in the United States were made at Zanesville, Daguerre, who discovered photography, had made known his secret and Alexander C. Ross, reading it, improved a camera from an old accordion, and produced the first daguerreotypes. There are some of these old pictures still treasured by the people of Zanesville.—Washington Post.

STUFFED PEPPERS—Peppers used for stuffing are of the mildest variety, many of the Spanish type being so slightly pungent that they may be freely eaten, providing the seeds and inner white veins are discarded. When to be stuffed they may be split lengthwise or a piece cut from the stem end, according to shape. After removing the seeds fill with the stuffing; this may be either crumbled bread, boiled rice or hominy with or without chopped cooked meat, the whole being well seasoned and slightly moistened with stock or gravy and enriched with a little melted butter. Arrange on shallow pans, pour in a few spoonfuls of boiling water or stock (to prevent burning) and bake in a hot oven for from 20 to 40 minutes.

THE CALL OF THE PROMPTER.

She Sighed Over the Relics of Footlights and Went Back.

The lady at the fireside laid down the sock she was darning and softly sighed. She was still fair and there were many attractive curves in her mature figure.

Her large and expressive eyes turned toward the mantel with its many ornaments. There she saw herself in various photographic poses. At the right she was Flossie Bloom in "The Single Taxer." At the left she was Toto Bongo in "The Sun God." In the center she was Minerva Van Skinner in "The Earth Worm." A soft pink flush stole across her smooth cheek. There was the souvenir programme of the hundredth performance of "The Glimlet" at the Van Hensselaer. What a night of glorious triumph that was!

On the sewing table was her scrapbook of dramatic notices, discreetly culled.

"Frolics are all right," she murmured, "but oh, you footlights!" She looked at her rounded arm, she stooped down at her dainty foot. A eager priny smile came to her, a faint smile gave birth to a quivering squeak, the misty blend of 1,000 white fays, a confused cry.

"Why should I profane my art by darning socks?" she cried.

Then, luring the inoffensive footwear into the glare, she went back to the stage.

Indiana Trolleys Carry Grain.
"Indiana has more trolley wires to-day than any State in the Union; that is, the cities of the State are more expeditiously connected by trolley than any other section of the country," said J. D. Ferguson of Logansport.

"Our trolley lines are not built merely to carry passengers. Their profit is realized to a great extent from the freight, especially the produce and grain they carry from the country to the cities. And the sections of the State which most of those lines traverse are the prettiest and most fertile in America. Directly through the corn belt are railway tracks, through fields of grain of all sorts, truck gardens and large farms. In all probability the rapidly with which garden and farm products can be gleaned from Indiana fields by means of the electric roads will lessen the price of food considerably in Chicago."

Scold Your Husband It's Your Privilege

"A WIFE HAS A perfect right to scold her husband if he has been misbehaving, and any judge in any court would be likely to take that view. The husband, as a rule, objects only when he knows that his wife is perfectly right, and then he usually blames it on her relatives."

This is the philosophy of Miss Rose McQuade, probation officer at the Court of Domestic Relations, whose business it is to have married people tell their troubles. Miss McQuade talked with interest of the recent decision of a Kansas judge who decided that a wife's scoldings did not constitute grounds for divorce.

"Of course, they don't," declared Miss McQuade, vigorously. "Why, whose business is it to scold a man if it is not his wife's? There are mighty few men who are so perfect that it is unnecessary at any time to point out to them that they are misconducting themselves and it is certainly a wife's business and duty to do that. She is the one that suffers—she and her children."

"Certainly no one expects a woman to sit meekly at home and have her children go without necessities because she thinks that she hasn't the right to tell her husband that he is not doing his duty. And I have always found—with very few exceptions—that when a wife scolds a man a little questioning of the man himself will generally bring out facts that make him admit the scolding was coming."

"I have talked to scores and scores of husbands in my little office here and I have observed two very curious things. One is that the scolding which most enrages a man is the one that he knows, absolutely he ought to get. Probably it is because a sense of shame is working on him at the same time. Another is that a man seldom blames his wife for the trouble. "He will tell all about how his wife has nagged and scolded him because he drank too much or didn't give her enough of the money to run the house, but generally there runs all through the story the refrain that he doesn't blame her. It is always the fault of the wife, mother or sister or aunt or some other member of her family."

"We would get along all right if it wasn't for my wife's sister or my wife's mother," is a sentence I have heard hundreds of times.

"And the man really believes it. He doesn't understand that his neglect or misconduct or abuse has driven her to her own family for counsel and sympathy. She has been abused or neglected, and they naturally sympathize with her and help her all they can. Then he blames them for all his troubles. This is the real explanation of most of the 'interfering' of a wife's relatives."

"In that connection there is another singular thing. There is the most marked difference in the attitude of the wife's mother and the husband's mother toward the family."

"The mother of the man never seems to fully grasp the idea that he is an inseparable part of another home. He is still her boy to her, and his wife and children are more or less in the background. When he has trouble with his wife she is never able fully to look at it as a wife and woman. She is too ready to side with her son regardless of the merits of the case because she has always known that 'that woman was not good enough for George.'"

"The much abused mother of the wife is usually the rock to which the younger household is anchored in time of real trouble. She is the one that cares for the children when the mother is ill. She is the first to go into her own pocket to help in time of financial stress. It is not strange that she should feel that she has the right to give her daughter aid, counsel and sympathy when they are sought."

French Custard

In this the sauce as well as the cream must be cold. Put one quart of milk in a double boiler; beat the yolks of four eggs with ten ounces of sugar until light, add them to the hot milk, and turn the mixture into the double boiler and cook as you would a soft custard, just a moment. Take from fire and strain. Add two teaspoonfuls of vanilla extract. When this mixture is icy cold, add a pint of cream and freeze. Golden sauce—Cover a level tablespoon of granulated gelatin with four tablespoon-of cold water. SOAK A HALF HOUR. Put a pint of milk in a double boiler, beat together the yolks of three eggs and a half cup of sugar; add a little of the hot milk and then cook the whole as a soft custard until it sticks to a knife blade; add the gelatin, take from fire, add teaspoon of vanilla and pour, while hot, into the well beaten whites of the three eggs, beating all the while. Brandy or sherry may be added if one uses wine.

Unfermented Grape Wine

Pick over grapes, rejecting all unsound ones; almost cover with cold water; heat slowly (mashing), and cook until all juice is out. Drain in jelly bag. Measure juice and add one-third cup of sugar to one quart grape juice. Boil four minutes, bottle, and seal.

Can't Sell Antiquities.

In a French village a citizen had upon his land a part of an old building containing two very beautiful windows. He was in debt and embarrassed and eagerly closed with the offer of a rich archaeologist, who bought them. Thereupon the government inspector, hearing of the bargain, arrived just in time to stop the masons from dislodging the windows. "You can not," he said to the villager, "sell antiquities, my man." "But, excellency, I have used the money and paid my creditors." The villager was in despair, but the official was untouched. "That's all right," he said, "the money is safe; the windows are no longer yours. But the buyer can't move a stone of them. He can, however, come with a campstool and sit down and look at his property as much as he likes."

Wild Sheep of Africa.

The Barbary sheep is of interest chiefly as the only wild sheep in the whole of Africa and is easily distinguished from the other by the long beard or fringe of hair in front of the neck.

One peculiarity of this creature is the facility with which it can be tamed. When I made an unsuccessful raid on its haunts, over 5,000 feet up in the Atlas, twelve years ago, I was told by many of the natives that some of the mountain chieftains had tame specimens about their castles. The Kald of Gundaf who entertained me on the occasion, was not at the time in possession of a living specimen, but he gave me a fine trophy of one shot by him a few weeks earlier. The weather was hot, however, and the sheep had retreated to the summits.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Feats of Champion Swordsman.

Squadron-Corporal-Major Eggleton, one of the finest swordsmen in the British army, is retiring shortly from the Royal Horse Guards (Blues) after twenty-one years' service.

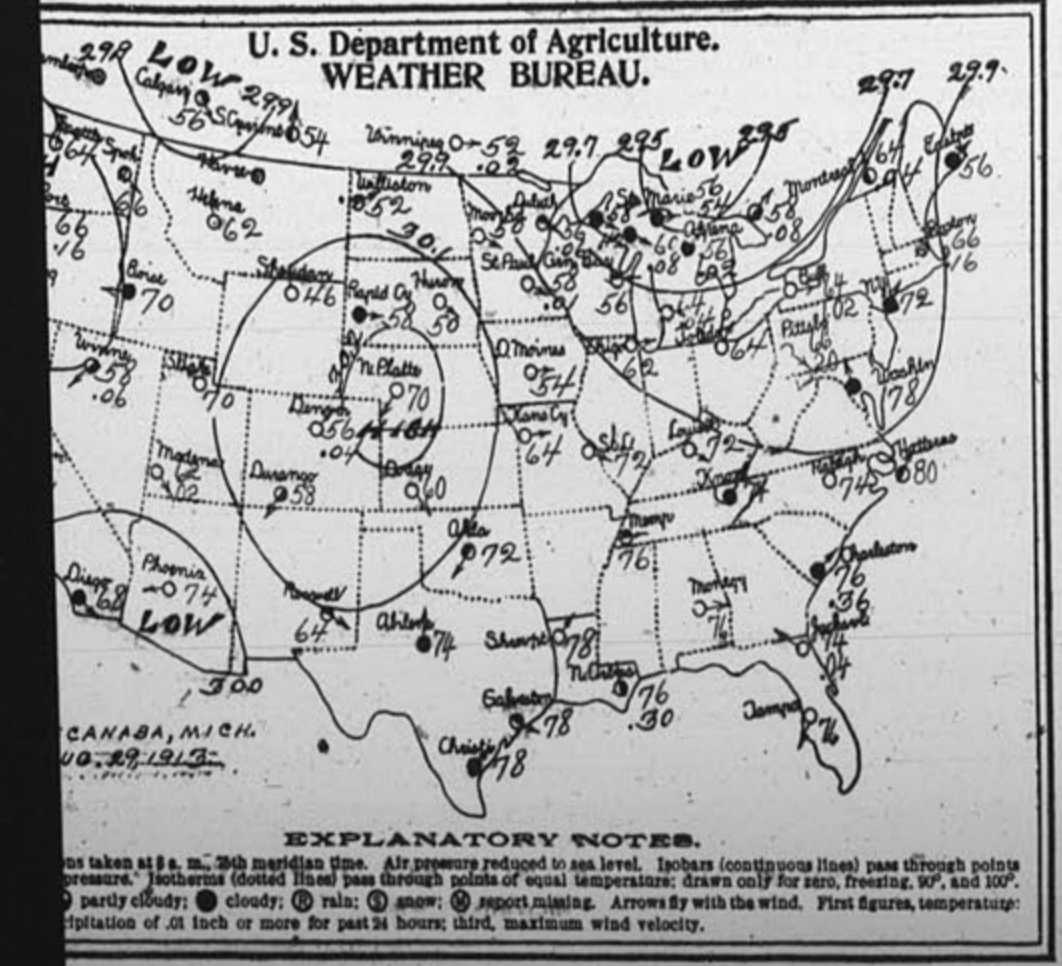

One of the Corporal-Major's sword feats is to cut in two an apple resting on the neck of a kneeling assistant. After a swift downward sword cut the halves of the apple roll away and the assistant rises unharmed. Another feat is with a horizontal stroke to sever an apple placed on a man's head.

The Corporal-Major has won many prizes at the military tournaments and has given displays of his skill before Queen Victoria, the late King Edward and King George.—London Daily Mail.

Old Glass in Fashion.

Old glass seems coming into fashion by way of decoration for the dinner table. I dined the other night with some people of taste whose beautifully polished dinner table of old mahogany was entirely decorated with antique glass, even to the central candelabra and four candle-sticks one at either corner.

The effect, with plenty of white flowers was I must say charming. It is curious, though, that what was nothing accounted of in one generation becomes a craze in the next. Lady Dorothy Nevill in her latest book of reminiscences remarks on the modern craze for old glass and how some specimens formerly used in the most ordinary way at public houses are to-day eagerly sought after by collectors.

The "tango gown," just in from Paris, is said to consist of "three layers of transparency." Apparently it is two layers thicker than the silhouettes gown, but distinctions so minute are scarcely worth making, perhaps.

Repeated accidents are still keeping up the ancient warning to motorists and pedestrians that the right of way on railroads belongs to the trains, and that it is unhealthy, as well as foolish, to contest the right.

A chimpanzee in the New York zoo has been trained to act like a woman. But ordinarily it doesn't take any longer than five minutes to induce a man to act like a monkey.

Those five-year-old eggs are said to have been delicious when turned out by a Jersey chef. But they are no food for a person with a sensitive imagination.

An iron chest containing $65,000 in gold is found on bottom of Angel island, on the Pacific coast. And they say there is no significance in names.

The World and the Jews.

According to the London "Jewish Year Book" the Jewish population of the world is 11,625,656. Of these, 1,330,926 are in America. The only country in the world having a larger Jewish population is Russia with 5,082,242. In the list of cities showing the percentage of Jews to the population New York is the fifth, the percentage being 28.39. Jerusalem comes first, with 55 per cent, and then, in the order named, Lodz 47.59; Odessa, 37.75, and Warsaw, 33.36. Chicago's Jewish population is only 3.58 per cent and that of London 2.28 per cent.—New York Tribune.

Best Canadian Tobacco.

The chairman of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada was asked, at Montreal, if the report was correct that they had bought the Ontario tobacco crop. His answer was that tobacco grown in Canada today was superior to the American-grown leaf from the same type of seed, for the reason that the soil in the United States has been used for a number of years and the Canadian soil is practically virgin soil for tobacco growing purposes, and therefore produced a better quality. The proof of this is that the consumption is constantly increasing.—Consular Reports.

Supply of Gold.

The United States and the British empire produce 82.7 per cent of the world's gold supply. Germany and France, which produce no gold, and Russia, which produces only some $27,000,000 worth a year, feel compelled to hoard vast amounts of it to be prepared for emergencies, such as sudden war. This is the reason why the banks of these countries begin a process of hoarding gold whenever there is any likelihood of trouble.

ANOTHER STAR GOES TO THE MINOR LEAGUES

Boston, Mass., Aug. 28.—The passing of another veteran player from major league baseball was recorded today when President James Gaffney of the Boston Nationals announced that Arthur Devlin third baseman had been released to Rochester, of the International league.

Devlin's last game in the big league and something of the dramatic about it. Coming to the bat as a pinch hitter in the ninth inning of yesterday's game against Pittsburgh, he drove in the run which tied the score for Boston, with a well placed hit to right field. He did not know at that time that he was to be released after the game.

BASEBALL BINGLES

The Western teams of the American league split even in games won and lost during their last tour of the east. "Rabbit" Maranville, the speedy little shortstop of the Boston Braves, dropped his first fly of the season on August 14.

No more golf players for Manager McGraw of the Giants. John claims that Fred Merkle's golfing caused his slump in batting.

"Giant Killer" Coveleskie, the former Philly pitcher, now in the Southern league is to get another chance in the big show, this time with the Detroit Tigers.

Third Baseman George Moriarty has been putting up the real article for Hugh Jennings Tigers of late. The ballad writer is sure some speeder on the bases.

Outfielder George Whiteman of the Houston Texas league team, who had a trial with the Red Sox some six years ago, has been signed with the New York Yankees.

Fritz Maisel, the $12,000 beauty, bought by the New York Americans from the Baltimore club, is a "we'un" of the same type as "Rabbit" Maranville and "Kid" Eberfeld.

Joe Jackson seems to be the one American leaguer who is able to nick Walter Johnson for safe ones. On the Cleveland lot Joe has hit the great Washington pitcher for an average of .456.

Pitcher Alexander of the Phillies, is living up to his name of "Alexander the Great" this season. He has been giving Christy Mathewson a good run for the National league pitching honors.

A change of scenery appear sto have the right recipe for Ed Reulback. The former Cub pitcher has been flinging some excellent ball for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Evidently Manager Clarke, of the Pirates' doesn't think much of the work of Walter Rehg. Otherwise he would have recalled the St. Paul outfielder instead of allowing the Red Sox to buy him.

August has been a great month for the minor league pitchers. Pitcher Hearne of the Toronto team, pitched twenty innings to a 0 to 0 tie against Jersey City. Hedgepeth, of the Petersburg team in the Virginia league, shut out Richmond in both games of a double header, allowing but one hit, and Bill Powers of the New London Eastern association team, shut out the leading New Haven team in both games of a double header.

NEW BALK DECISION.

No Offense to Drop Ball While Pitching in American Leagues.

President Johnson of the American league has notified all his umpires that no balk shall be charged to a pitcher when he, while in the act of pitching, accidentally drops the ball. Mr. Johnson's latest ruling keeps the ball in play, the pitcher escaping the penalty of a balk and giving him the right to recover the ball and make a play on a base runner.

In a recent ruling by President Lynch of the National league the pitcher is charged with a balk if he drops the ball while in the act of pitching.

A Chicago baseball writer advocated a change from the ruling of the National league head, and upon his recommendation Mr. Johnson is said to have acted.

The new ruling in the American league is a compromise of the old rule in the league. The writer suggested that both leagues make their rules uniform so as to avoid clashes between umpires who are officiating in world's series or other series between the rival league teams.

LARGE SUM FOR MINOR PLAYERS

Statistician Figures $147,000 Has Been Paid By Magnates.

St. Louis, Aug. 29.—More money has been spent in the last few years for young baseball players than ever before—that is, the figures quoted by the major and minor magnates. Taken all in all, $147,000 has been spent for a dozen ball players, some of whom have made good, some are unknown, while one of them has been sent back many moons ago.

Major league magnates are always trying to outdo each other in paying large prices for aspiring athletic. Or is it the minors who are claiming the record prices?

The year of 1913 sets the high mark for all others. So far $48,000 has been spent by the major league magnates, Connie Mack, chaperoning the leading club in the American league, has a club that cost him less than has been paid out for five ball tossers this year. The championship infield was secured for car fare and now valued at $100,000.

The prize of the 1913 flock is $18,000 for Larry Chappell, an outfielder, who has failed to startle the baseball community. McGraw paid out $15,000 for Rube Shauer, a pitcher working in the Northern league, a Class C organization. Frank Farrell expended $12,000 for Maisel and $6,000 for McHale. Then Montgomery got $7,000 for Elmer Brown.

Mack Was Stung Once. There are few magnates, in fact none who follow Connie Mack's system. In all the years that he has managed the Athletics, and he always had good clubs, he has purchased only one high-priced player. This one, Lefty Russell, cost $12,000, and he proved a big lemon. That was the end of Connie Mack's paying out large sums for a reputed player.

Charles Cummsky of the White Sox takes a front seat in getting the high-priced athlete. First Commy secures Russell Blackburn, shortstop, for $12,000. Blackburn proved a failure, but that did not stop the Old Roman. He grabbed Schalk and Chappell, the two costing him about $33,000.

This baseball lottery started several seasons when McGraw paid $11,000 for Rube Marquard. After doing little for two seasons, Rube came around and now is living up to his price. But for two years he was a complete failure and termed as the "$11,000 lemon."

O'Toole "Sale" is High. Then Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pirates sprang the high mark of all times when he "handed out" $22,500 to the St. Paul management for Marty O'Toole. Marty has yet to prove that he is worth that much.

True, several others have made good, but some havenot. Maybe the new ones coming up this year will prove wonders; maybe they won't.

Table listing high-priced players and their prices.

FLOYD A. ROWE CHOSEN DIRECTOR GENERAL

Floyd A. Rowe, Great University of Michigan Distance Runner, Chosen Director General Athletic Activities at Michigan.

The big problem of all problems which the Universities of the country are called upon to solve is that of the physical development of each individual student. The gymnasiums are carrying their share of the responsibility in an admirable manner, but their field is limited to indoor work and there has been a growing realization that some broad comprehensive system of outdoor activity must be developed before the universities can be considered as fully meeting their obligation to the students as a whole in the matter of their proper physical development.

The credit of taking active steps in this direction on the part of the University of Michigan is largely due to the untiring interest and efforts of Professor A. S. Whitney, chairman of its athletic board.

The coming year will see Mr. Floyd A. Rowe in charge of this work and because of his wide experience in directing general athletic activities in large high schools, it may safely be predicted that he will most successfully broaden this field of work at the university.

Rowe started his athletic career as a track man, football and baseball player in Battle Creek high school, Michigan. Entering the university in the fall of 1904, he won his "M" the following four years, running on the teams that took the four-mile college relay championship at Philadelphia those four years and competing twice in both the Western and Eastern Intercollegiate meets. In 1905, he broke the western record and in 1907 he broke an eastern record in the two-mile race. He captained the track team his senior year, 1908. Since graduation he has coached football, basketball, baseball, track and minor sports in Butte and Helena Montana high schools.

Mr. Rowe is assured the encouragement and support of the athletic activities for they consider this department of work most important. To give some idea of the broad scope of this work it might be said that a large field house capable of accommodating 450 men at one time is now in course of construction, that the number of tennis courts have been increased from 18 to 27 the past year, that an extra cinder track has been built for general use and that 38 acres of ground in addition to the present 39 acres has recently been purchased on which will be laid out football, baseball, soccer, hockey and various types of athletic play grounds.

Cecil Rhodes.

Cecil Rhodes is generally supposed to have left a fortune of $30,000,000, all of which he willed to the public service, a few private bequests excepted. The Rhodes' Scholarship Fund consists of an annual gift of $250,000, out of which provision is made for the annual matriculation at Oxford of 174 students, classified as follows—from South Africa, 24; Australia, Canada and the West Indies, 36; the United States of America, 100 (2 to each State and Territory); and Germany, 15.

ATHLETICS AND GIANTS ARE SURE

No Longer Any Doubt That They Will Battle for the World's Series Money.

Whatever chance remained for a shift in the prospect that New York Nationals and Philadelphia Americans would once more face each other as world series contenders faded almost to the vanishing point in the gloaming of yestereve.

Twelve full games now separate New York and Philadelphia in the National league, with the Quakers wobbly and the Giants again in the full stride of their last 1913 gait. In the other division of major league baseball the Athletics, although shot to pieces with injuries, and going none too well on that account, have been able not only to hold their own but to increase their lead. Just when they would have shown quality and aggressiveness if they hoped to win, the Cleveland Yalld badly, and, with a string of defeats broken but once during the week, found themselves trailing the leaders by nine games as the new playing week opened.

Giants Are Sure.

With the close of the regular season and the call of play in the world's series hardly more than six weeks away, it takes little figuring to show how small likelihood there is of an overturn in either league. From present appearance Manager McGraw soon can begin to groom Mathewson, Marquard, Tesreau and Demarets for the post-season fray, while Connie Mack will have to tackle before long the problem of picking the youngster to co-operate with Bender and Plank in efforts to puzzle the Giant batsmen—unless Jack Coombs shall have recuperated sufficient by October to take a stand on the firing line.

Cubs Put Phillies Out.

The break in the Philadelphia sport which practically put Doolin's men out of the running in the National league race began with the appearance of Chicago on the Quaker field. Four straight was the Cubs' record in that series up to mid-week, when the Phillies finally rallied against Evers' team and won their single victory of the last eight games. Pittsburgh, however, fresh from a triumph over New York in three out of five games at the Polo grounds, at this juncture resumed Philadelphia's humiliation cleaning up a three-game series that ended on Saturday. Philadelphia's best was to tie the Pirates on Friday.

Pirates Play Well.

Meanwhile Chicago, moving over to New York, fell victims to the renewed vim of the Giants and dropped the entire series, enabling the McGrawites to round up their week successfully.

THE ONE GREAT THING

By GUY MARKHAM.

"Ah, roses! and I love them so," and the girl lifted the great armful of fragrant and beautiful flowers and crushed them almost roughly to her swelling bosom.

"Oh, why, why, cannot Will send me such things!" she whispered passionately to herself. "I like him so much better than any other man—yes, yes, indeed I fear I love him; but I cannot, no I cannot face life of 'love in a cottage' and know that I must always do without all the nice things of life."

Then she smiled a wonderful smile—the smile which had made her the most sought after girl in her set; and she blushed a rosy little flush and whispered still more softly to herself: "But I'd rather live a year with Will in a cottage than a lifetime in a palace with any other man. Besides they say Will is bound to rise and all the men say he will some day be an ornament to the bar and all that sort of thing. Even papa approves of Will along with all the other men."

Then she shivered a little shiver. "But mamma does not take any stock in Will," she thought soberly, "and mamma is the practical one in our family."

The girl buried her face in the great bunch of roses—they cost the sender a cold twenty-five dollars—and looked up defiantly.

"Well, why should I not marry Mr. Hadley?" she soliloquized. "He is a man who has demonstrated his ability and is not an offensive person in any way."

Then, without apparent excuse she cried out, aloud: "Will never could have sent me these roses—and I love them, I love them, I love them."

Then exercising her woman's prerogative, she sat down and had a good cry. Then she arose, glanced at the bit of pasteboard which came with the roses and which bore only the words "Nell—from W. T. H. Wear them tomorrow night," and went to her dainty desk to acknowledge them.

The note Hadley received at his office the next morning puzzled him not a little, but delighted him a great deal. He never had been able to pierce the reserve of the girl he desired so earnestly to marry, and being a keen judge of human nature he detected a warmer and more receptive ring to her words than there had been any others she ever had addressed to him.

"Roses," he exclaimed in a puzzled way to himself. "There's a mistake somewhere, but inasmuch as it seems to have warmed her toward me I reckon the way is to say nothing."

The incident so interested him that he lost all track of the market and made so many mistakes during the day that he came out a considerable loser—an unheard of thing for Walter Hadley.

In the meantime the young man who had gone broke to send the roses to the fair Miss Nell, ate his heart away in disappointment at receiving no word of acknowledgment. Before night he had decided that there was no use trying any longer and had planned a campaign in the Klondike, where he would acquire a fortune or leave his bones to bleach.

Miserable as he was, however, he could not refrain from sliding into his evening clothes that night and attending the ball at the Price's, where he was assured to see the idol of his dreams and his despair.

Hadley appeared at the ball early, easy and confident and proceeded immediately to take possession of Miss Nellie Ross, whom he found as gracious as her note indicated. Hadley knew well how to avail himself of an opportunity and before he had talked to her five minutes she knew that the great question was to be asked and that her answer was to be demanded that night. And she knew what the answer was to be. She was vaguely glad that Will was not there.

It was about midnight, when, after walking through a quadrille with her Hadley decided that the propitious moment had come and turned to lead her to the conservatory. Pale and trembling with excitement, for she, too, saw the moment had arrived, she turned to take his arm.

At this particular time Will Hunter, who had just come into the room, appeared before them in a state of more or less suppressed excitement. He had arrived late and with the instinct of love his eyes had rested at once upon the object of his devotion. With a start he observed that she wore the roses he had sent.

"As you wear my colors I think I may claim a waltz," he said with easy assurance. And before Miss Nell fairly knew what was going she found herself swinging round and round in the clasp of a strong arm.

"Did my roses bring any subtle message with them?" he whispered. "Your roses!" she repeated, puzzled.

"Yes, I see you wear them," he replied in ecstasy, "and I hope they conveyed all I meant them to."

"You great goose," she said softly, looking up at him with swimming eye. "You know you could not afford to. Besides, don't you know any better than to sign initials when so many men have the same initials. You deserve—"

"Let's go out on the veranda a moment and cool off," and Nell found herself whisked through the French windows onto the broad veranda overlooking the moonlit lawn; and of a sudden it came to her that it mattered not at all about an establishment and relations and position in society and flowers and all other inconsequential things so long as she had the one great thing in the world.

Gulls Make Trouble for Fishermen. Gulls off Chatham and Goshawk in the channel are giving the fishermen more than usual trouble.

The gulls strip the bait from the hooks as the trawls are put out, and as some of them in their efforts to get the bait swallow the hooks as well they are drawn under the water where they scare the fish from the trawls. Capt. Joseph King of the Edith Silveira has a lot of bait brought in and one of his crew brought in a gull's leg that he had taken from his trawls.
