Reported That Ticket to London Has Been Purchased—Will Double into Penna

(By Associated Press.) Montreal, Sept. 13.—It is reported that a ticket has been purchased from Montreal to London by the friends of Thaw and the arrival of many strong men at Colebrook has led to the report that Thaw will be kidnaped. His guard has been increased.

It is thought that he will go to Montreal with the ticket and then travel back into Pennsylvania, his escape route, in which he thinks he will succeed.

McCord, N. H. Sept. 13.—The district court of the United States presided over by Judge Edgar Aldrich granted the writ of habeas corpus for the return of Thaw to his home on Tuesday.

HYRIDE, DANCE AND FEAST ARE ENJOYED

By Escanaba Young People Enjoyed Big Time at the Peter Younger Farm

A party of Escanaba's young men and young women last night and this morning enjoyed what those who partied maintained was the "best, brightest, bonniest, bustling" a dithersome bunch ever enjoyed.

As a hayride and to use the oxen of one who attended—some of them too.

Young people left Escanaba at 10 o'clock, all thirty of them tucking away in a hayrack filled with fragrant "new mown." It was time after ten when they arrived at the Peter Younger farm on the River Switch road and it was the midnight hour when they had feasted what young appetites long for the substantial and dainties the season affords.

Feast over the Escanaba merry with 15 additional Ford Rydens, proceeded to hold an old barn dance in the Younger barn. The structure has just been completed. The hayrack floor provided splendid opportunities for the joyous barn dance. To the music of guitar and violin they danced and until 1 o'clock when a large bonfire built and a marshmallow indulged in until three o'clock morning. It was 4:30 this morning when they arrived home, sleepy, red, perhaps, but happy—you

Mary Younger was hostess for Escanaba young people are to take oath that she deserves.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING

Members of West End Improvement Association—Met Last Evening

The meeting held last night by the West End Improvement association in the Washington school building was a most enthusiastic one and the discussion of what is to be done to promote the best end of the city as Escanaba's garden spot brought out some excellent ideas.

Timothy Magher, Krank Kraus, sr., Dr. W. A. LeMire, Charles Gustafson, Samuel Mills, Carl Johnson, Peter C. Beck, C. S. Woods, Cornelius Gallagher and Frank Geniesse were named as an executive committee to meet for the first time Monday evening in Dr. LeMire's office.

Mayor Chatfield Issues Fair Proclamation

To the Citizens of Escanaba:

The Third Annual Northern State Fair will be held in this city from Tuesday to Friday of next week. Every thinking citizen must appreciate the vast importance of the success of this fair, not only to the city of Escanaba, but also to the surrounding farm district. The fair is a valuable educator, a broad advertiser and above all a superb exposition of home grown products, local manufactures and business. It is a civic duty for every citizen of this city to aid the fair as much as possible, and every resident should with his family attend on at least one or more days. The school exhibits will themselves be worth the price of admission and the fair generally is conducted on straight clean lines, thereby protecting the citizens attending from dishonest persons, fakers and rowdies.

That all may have an opportunity of attending the fair on Escanaba day, which is Thursday of next week, and on Friday, Children's and Field day, I would request all stores, shops, factories, offices and other places of business to close on Thursday and Friday afternoons from one o'clock until six o'clock in order that the employers and employes alike may with their families attend the fair, perform their civic duties and receive the benefit of this excellent display.

O. P. CHATFIELD, Mayor.

INCREASING ENROLLMENT

BOTH GERMAN AND FRENCH PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS SHOW INCREASE OVER LAST YEAR

FURTHER INCREASE IS EXPECTED

Services of Sisters in the Musical Departments are in Great Demand

A notable increase is manifest in the enrollment at both the French and German parochial schools in Escanaba. In both institutions the enrollment today exceeds that of September 1912 and students are being added daily.

In the St. Joseph school the enrollment is now 425 and is expected to reach 450. Last year the enrollment at this time was slightly less than 400, so that the increase is about ten per cent.

In the St. Anne's school there are now 295 students enrolled and new pupils are being added daily. Last year the roster contained the name of 280 students so that the increase in the French schools is also a large one.

In both the German and French schools the musical departments are rapidly coming to the fore front. Recognizing the ability of the Sisters of Notre Dame and of the Sisters of St. Joseph as teachers of music, the parents, both Catholic and Protestant, are seeking the musical education for their children that the patience and ability of the Sisters makes possible.

WILL SERVE LUNCH TO THE BOOTH DECORATORS

Young Ladies Will be at the Fair Exhibition Building on Monday Next

A committee of the Young Woman's Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church have planned to be at their booth at the Fair Ground on Monday ready to serve all those who are busy with their exhibits at the noon hour.

It will not be necessary for any one to go home to lunch, for the young ladies will have coffee, sandwiches, pies and cakes on sale at a very reasonable price.

The booth is in the main exhibition building, in the section occupied last year by C. M. Thatcher and the National Grocer Co. These firms have kindly donated the use of their sections to the young women who are determined to make a big success of their enterprise.

Coffee urns and demonstrations have been kindly given by the Carpenter Cook company, and the outlook for a successful event is very bright.

At this booth may be found the "Cloverland Cook Book" spoken of more definitely in another column of this paper.

Following the ceremony a delightful wedding repast was served at the bride's parents. The young people will leave Escanaba this evening on their wedding journey.

The bride is one of the most popular young women on the Stonington shore and is well known and greatly esteemed in Escanaba.

BOOSTS FOR CLOVERLAND

Yield of Oats, Wheat and Rye in Upper Peninsula Far Exceeds That of Lower Michigan

The Michigan crop report, recently issued, shows the Upper Peninsula to be far ahead of lower Michigan in the yield of wheat, rye, oats, the yield per acre almost doubling that of lower Michigan in each instance.

O. J. Osler of Osler will exhibit oats at the Northern Michigan State fair that ran 100 bushels to the acre.

Road Commissioner Johnson of Gladstone, who has been inspecting the road system remarks that he has never seen a finer second growth of clover than is now apparent throughout Delta county. It is almost ripe again.

The horses were unhitched and as one was being led into a stall it dropped over and in a few minutes was dead. The horse had not been sick and its death mystified its owner. This morning an autopsy was performed at the burying ground and it was found that the animal had suffered an internal rupture.

CLOVERLAND COOK BOOK READY FOR DISTRIBUTION

Edition Compiled by the Young Woman's Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian Church

"The Cloverland Cook Book" edited by the Young Woman's Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church, on which the committee of that society have been working for the past ten months, has arrived from the book binders and is one of the most attractive editions ever issued by any society in this city.

There are over five hundred recipes in the book. Recipes which have been tried and tested by the best cooks of Cloverland.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the President, has also a tried recipe in this book. The following words are found on the page of dedication:

"The present volume is a compilation of recipes gathered from private sources. They have been tried and tested, while profit to us from the sale is our principle object, it is not the only one. Much happiness depends on well-cooked food, so we believe this book will do good and we will get good by devoting the profits to Christian purposes."

The committee has already been receiving scores of inquiries and orders for the new edition, but the books will be found on sale during the week of the fair only at the Presbyterian booth. The price of the book is very reasonable and many who have had the privilege of reviewing it have asserted that it is worth far more than the price asked.

There will be a great demand for the "Cloverland Cook Book," and it will be necessary for those desiring them to place their order early.

WOODSMAN CRUSHED TO DEATH BENEATH A TREE

Body of James Graham Brought to Escanaba This Morning From Lumber Camp

Caught beneath a falling tree James Graham was instantly killed at one of the I. Stephenson camps along the E. & L. S. railway yesterday afternoon about four o'clock and the body was brought to the Oliver undertaking establishment here at one o'clock this morning.

With another woodsman Graham was sawing when the tree at which they were working suddenly toppled over and crushed Graham beneath it. His partner escaped.

The deceased was forty-two years of age and single. He came to this section from Tose, Chippewa county, and relatives there have been informed of his death. The body will be held pending word received from Tose.

SPECIAL SUNDAY SCHOOL PROGRAM AT M. E. CHURCH

MEN WANTED IN THE WOODS

BOOM IN THE LUMBER CAMPS IS ON—SUPPLY OF MEN DOESN'T HALF MEET THE DEMAND

MANY BROUGHT IN FROM CITIES

Ore Traffic Has Fallen Off Slightly But Woods Will Supply Work For all.

Ore traffic has fallen off to a considerable degree and as a consequence a number of ore handlers at the local docks have been laid off. A resumption of the August boom in ore shipments is expected, however, and the force will probably be increased again before the end of the shipping season.

Notwithstanding the drop in ore traffic the prospects for a bumper winter in the Upper Peninsula are good. The various lumber companies are combing the country with a fine tooth comb in the endeavor to secure men to work in the woods.

Through the Carl P. Gunderson employment agency forty-seven men were on Thursday brought to Escanaba and sent to the camps of the Northwestern Coöperage company.

On Wednesday 137 men arrived here from Chicago and Detroit and are now working I. Stephenson company camps along the E. & L. S. railway. All the employment agencies in this section are busy trying to secure men for the woods and the various agents of the lumber companies in the Upper Peninsula are daily sending men from the cities into this section. Notwithstanding the efforts of the employment agencies and of the companies agents the supply only about half meets the demand.

ROAD FROM ESCANABA TO MARQUETTE BEST

Aurora, Ill., Party Makes Trip From That City to Marquette—Praise for U. P. Roads

Frank S. Howard of Aurora, Ill., has just completed an automobile trip from that city to Marquette and he is greatly enthused over the Upper Peninsula roads and the hospitality of the Upper Peninsula farmer.

The party left Aurora Aug. 25, but spent several days on Oconto Falls, fishing. The trip was made not with Marquette as the particular objective point but for an outing. The only guide used by Mr. Howard was a railroad timetable map. He went from Aurora to Chicago, through Chicago along the Lake Shore drive, then on the Sheridan road to Kenosha, from Kenosha to Racine, then to Milwaukee, DePerre, Green Bay, Oconto, Menominee, Escanaba and then direct to Marquette. Mr. Howard did not attempt to follow the shortest route but took the best roads he could find, and he said yesterday that he found some good ones. The road between Escanaba and Marquette was probably the best stretch he drove on, he asserted.

TROUT FISHING SEASON WILL CLOSE ON MONDAY

Many Anglers Will Spend Sunday Along Streams—But Little Interest Apparent

The trout fishing season comes to a close on Monday of next week and a number of Escanaba anglers will spend Sunday on the trout streams in this section.

Despite the extension of the trout fishing season by two weeks the anglers have not been very active during the closing days of the season and but few trout have been removed from the streams. The majority of sportsmen favor the shortening of the season again and this will probably be done by the next legislature.

SOME CHICKEN PICKIN'

Live Chicken Made Ready for Frying Pan in One Minute and 41 Seconds

Clarence Cunningham, of the Oliver hotel says that when it comes to dressing chicken, he will not take his hat off to anyone. This afternoon he gave a demonstration to a number of newspaper men with most remarkable results.

Taking a live chicken from the crate he had it ready for the frying pan in one minute and 41 seconds. Six other chickens that were killed but not picked, were made ready for the broiler by "Cully" in two minutes and 21 seconds. "Cully" says that this is not a remarkable record and that he has seen it beaten in the south many times. He says that he remembers once upon a time when a friend of his "picked" ten nice fat hens in less than a minute, but he adds that the night was pretty dark and the farmer had gone to town with the dog.

CHAPTER VII.

John Bargain For a Woman.

WHAT had happened I could not guess. Captain Matthews had been attacked. He had promptly shot one of the mutineers, and thereafter the mutineers had got him. My first impulse was to open the lock of the door to his rescue, but wiser counsel prevailed, and I did nothing. I went, somewhat cool headed in and surely this was one. I saw a loaded pistol was bent an empty one, and to deal with whatever purpose they might have, either to murder me or to me. In either event I could not help Captain Matthews. I was sure that whatever fell they might entertain for my distress would be in abeyance by had settled with me. I dealt with every nerve strained most. I also waited most anxiously for the opening of the after door, which was her own, but

"man," I hissed out, "gets a bullet."

I have been in a sound sleep, the door did not open. Evidently had heard nothing. I waited not an easy task, but I best. I had not long to wait, time by far than I have felt the hatch was opened heavy booted men clattered companionably. The key was outside, and I could hear it. I loosened my sword, and slung by its belt around picked up the two pistols, and backed against the side of the door ready for whatever was pushed open abruptly, the cabin was crowded with least half the crew were there, and it was a little Rose of Devon being but a The rest, I guessed, were I could not see the boat-vidently he had the deck, couldn't be left unwatched night as this and in such he was the fittest man to be of her. The steward had cabin lights, several of the lanterns which they had on the forepeak, and others their sheath knives. There of illumination to show faces.

They were surprised to find me so prepared, and I gave them no time to recover. "The first man," I hissed out, "that steps across that threshold without permission gets a bullet through him!" "We mean you no harm, sir," spoke out one who seemed to be a ring-leader, a man rated as boatswain's mate, whose name was Glibby. "What are you doing here?" I asked. "In the cabin at this time of night?" "Softly, softly, sir," replied Glibby; "we are here to ask questions, not to answer 'em." "What do you mean?" I cried. "We are masters of the ship." "Captain Matthews?" "He will captain no more ships on this or any other seas," answered Glibby, with truculent emphasis. Now, it rose in my mind to shoot him then and there, murderous brute that he was. If I had been alone perhaps I would have done it without reckoning the consequences to myself, but I had another to think of. Unless craft stood me in good stead her case was hopeless. And bad as Glibby was, Pimball was the chief villain. "Serves him right!" I broke out with well simulated heat. "He disgraces me and locks me up here just for stealing a kiss from a maid, and—" "Spoken like a man of spirit, Mister Hampdon!" cried Glibby. "What did I tell ya, mates; he's with us!" "With you?" said I, loosening my hold on the pistol, but taking good care to keep ready. "I am with you, all right. What do you propose? I am sick of the treatment I received, and—" "We want that treasure for ourselves." "And you shall have it, provided I get my share with the other men," I answered, scarcely startled by their words, for this I had expected. "We will share and share alike in everything," answered Glibby. "Am I right, mates?" "Right you are!" came from the deep voices of the men. How I longed to clutch him by his throat and choke him! My temper rose again, but this time, as before, I managed to keep it down, but with immense difficulty, as you may suspect. "Come into the cabin, Mister Hampdon," said Glibby, "and we will talk it over." "Wait," said I. "Who is in command of you?" "Why, Mister Pimball, the bo'n'n," answered Glibby. "Very good," said I. "I must talk with him about the future. Do you go on deck, Glibby, and send Pimball below, and be and I with the rest of you will soon settle this matter." "All right," answered the boatswain's mate, turning to the companionway. "Pimball can talk; him and you can come to terms, I make no doubt." Now I couldn't allow myself to hesitate for the thousandth part of a second. Ostentatiously I shoved one pistol into the belt that hung at my right side, the other I dropped carelessly into the pocket of my coat, and as Glibby clattered up the ladder, I walked fearlessly, to all appearances, out of the berth and into the cabin, the men giving back respectfully enough to leave me gangway. "Now, what is it that you propose, Master Bo'n'n?" I began, sitting down at the cabin table, while the rest ranged themselves about it, some standing, some sitting on the transoms at the sides, as Pimball came lumbering into the cabin. "We know," began Pimball insolently, without further preliminaries, "that this ship's cruisin' for treasure. We know all we'll git out of the cruise is what we signed for an' nothin' else. We've made a good guess that the treasure is hereabouts, and we mean to have more than our wages. We're goin' to have our share of whatever's found that we're after." "So you shall," I said, "I am with you in that. I want something more than my wages too." "What's this woman anyway?" broke out another. "Why should she get it all? She's a mere girl." "You have said right, mate: who and why indeed?" I answered smoothly, marking him down for my vengeance when my turn came. "Now, what are your plans?" "We want that there map or chart that you have been seen readin' in your cabin," said Pimball. It was in a little bag around my neck. I reached down, pulled out the bag, took the torn parchment from it and threw it on the table. There was not the least use in my pretending ignorance or in refusing to give it up. They could kill me and take it any way. "There," said I coolly, "you have it." Pimball picked it up. "I can make but little out of it," he said, and I doubted if he could read. "You can at least see the latitude and longitude on it in the upper corners, can't you?" I asked, hardly suppressing my contempt for the man. "Aye, that's plain enough," he answered dubiously. "And you see that little wavy line that runs up from the lagoon over the top of what looks like a wall to an opening in the side?" I continued, determining suddenly, to inflame their minds with the treasure so that they would give less heed to other things more important to me. "Yes, I can make that out too." "You see that little cross there?" Pimball turned around and faced the others crowding about him in great and growing excitement. "Here—lights here!" he growled. The men nearest him shoved forward with their lanterns illuminating the torn sheepskin. "Aye, I can make that out too. What does it mean?" he asked, after a long stare. "It means, if there is any truth about it, that the treasure is thereabouts." "What treasure is it?" "The plunder of a Spanish galleon by a pirate ship." "And how came it to be there on that island?" "It was buried in that cave there a hundred and fifty years ago by one Philip Wilberforce, an English buccaneer." "And how came this girl by news of it?" "How much of the story they understood I could not tell. Probably but little, yet the idea of the treasure was real enough undoubtedly. "And you think there is treasure there?" asked Pimball. Now, of late I had changed my mind, why, I know not, but I had, yet it would not do to tell them that. "I am sure of it," I cried, "gold, silver, jewels, God knows what. Everything to make us rich forever." "And what do you reckon the value of it all to be?" "Oh, several millions of pounds," I answered lightly as if the treasure was so great that a million more or less was of no moment. "Hurrah!" cried out one old seaman, and the cabin on the instant was filled with wild cries, bestial, brutal shouts. As the sound partially died away I heard the door back of me open. Now, I had purposely so placed myself as to be between the crowd and the door. The door was opened but a little way. I was conscious that she was awake and at least was listening. "You are the only navigator among us, Mister Hampdon," began Pimball, after the men got measurably quiet again. "And if you are with us, you will take the ship there to that island. We'll git the treasure aboard, sail away and sink her on the South America coast and then every man for himself with all he can carry." "Am I to be captain?" I asked. "There'll be no captain. Every man for himself, I say, but me and the bo'n'n's mate, Glibby, will take the watches in turn. You'll navigate the ship and whatever is necessary for our safety we'll do at your order. Is it understood?" "Yes," said I, "under one condition." "We make no conditions," said Pimball darkly, "we are masters of the ship, remember, and this is our last word." "It is not mine," said I composedly, for I had yet the hardest part of the bargain to drive. "Well, it's got to be," said Pimball menacingly, starting toward me with the marlinpike he carried. "Now, my friend," said I, "we might just as well understand each other. You can kill me if you want to. It would be easy enough, but when you have killed me you have killed your last chance at the treasure. You don't know what latitude or longitude we are in now. There is not one of you that knows enough to take a sight or to sail the ship to the island. You are completely helpless. My life means the difference between treasure and no treasure to you. You are smart enough to see that." "He speaks right," said an old seaman at the back of the crowd. "There speaks a man of sense," said I. "Therefore you will hear my conditions and accede to them." "Heave ahead," said Pimball roughly enough, evidently not liking the situation, but falling utterly to see how it could be amended since I completely held the whip hand of them all. "What I stipulate is very simple. First of all, I am to have my full and equal share of the treasure with the rest. I am to be treated exactly like the others in the division, and my life and liberty, which are just as valuable to me as to any of you, are to be treated with respect, as I respect those of others." "Why, we told you that in the first place," growled out the boatswain. "If that's all you've got to say—" "The woman!" "Ah, the woman!" said Pimball slowly. "What had you proposed to do with her?" I asked. "Why—er—er—the man faltered. He actually did not dare to say what had been in his mind, and I've no doubt that my pistol never looked bigger than it did when I quietly laid my hand on it. It was probable that the others had not as yet decided what was to be done with her, whatever Pimball may have concluded. I took advantage, therefore, of their hesitation and pushed the matter to a speedy conclusion. "Well," I said quickly, "I want her for myself." Did I hear a groan in the cabin back of me? If I did, I could not afford to hesitate. I could not let them hear. "You saw how she treated me," I cried, raising my voice and banging on the table. "She struck me. She had me imprisoned. I want her to be given over to me alone." "But—" began Pimball, not relishing the abandonment of this prize which he had evidently marked for his own. "I tell you what it is, mates," said I, disregarding him and addressing the rest directly. "I am a poor man and the treasure, or my share of it, means a great deal to me, but revenge means much more. You give the woman to me and I will divide my share of the treasure among the crew." "Well," began Pimball uncertainly, but the sentiment of the crew was palpably against him. "Don't be a fool, man," cried the man who had spoken before. "Give him the wench." "Aye, let him have her," cried a second. "He'll bring her to her knees," said a third. "Stop it," I cried, doubling my fist—this was no assumed rage either, for my blood was boiling. "This is my own affair."

"You take the woman, we take the treasure."

The men fell back. They forgot for the moment their advantage in numbers. "Well, that is agreed at last," said Pimball, reluctantly enough. "You take the woman, we take the treasure." "Agreed," said I. "Is that right, mates?" he asked of the rest. "Right—e," was the answer. "It's all settled, then," said I, "but no—" "Bring out the gal, then, and let us see her," suddenly began one of the men, stepping forward. The door back of me was thrown open wide and she stepped out into the cabin. How I thrilled to see her, erect, fearless, more beautiful than ever. The men recoiled, and I stepped back myself. "I have heard all," she cried. "You murderous villains, to have killed my captain and seized my ship, and you—she turned to me, "to have bargained for me and to have bought me like an animal, a horse, a dog—oh, if I had a weapon!"

STARTLING EXPOSURE IS MADE IN ILLINOIS

Jails Said to Be Dens of Filth and Vermin—Further Investigation.

(By Associated Press.) Chicago, Sept. 13.—Sensational charges and disclosures in regard to the conditions of the jails have been reported and made public by the state board of charities. Cells are described as dungeons that are unfit to house animals. Children and adults are put in the same cells and clean and diseased prisoners are obliged to use the same towel. In many of the jails the mattresses are filled with vermin and rats are numerous. Poor ventilation, no light and improper food is also charged to some of the jails of the state. An investigation will be made by members of the state legislature.

State Geologist Reports Remarkable Decrease in Valuation of Mines.

(By Associated Press.) Lansing, Mich., Sept. 13.—State Geologist Allen has made the announcement of his appraisal of the mines, which shows a decrease of nearly three million dollars. Twenty million tons of ore has been shipped from Northern Michigan in the past two years.

U. P. COW IS THE CHAMPION

ROYCROFT FARM BOVINE CAPTURES WORLD'S LONG DISTANCE MILKING RECORD

ANOTHER BOOST FOR CLOVERLAND

Produces Milk of Twenty Times Her Own Weight in Twelve Month's Time

Sidnaw, Mich., Sept. 13.—The world's "long distance" milking record for the Jersey and Guernsey breed was won yesterday by Eminent's Bess, 269719, a Jersey cow owned by Roycroft farm, Sidnaw. Her yearly record under the supervision of the Michigan Agricultural college shows a production of 18,783 pounds of milk, testing 1,132 pounds, 9 ounces of butter.

The achievement of Eminent's Bess exceeds the record of Jacoba Irene, heretofore the world's champion of the Jersey breed, by 1,525 pounds of milk and at the same time exceeds the record of Spottwood Daisy Pearl, the world's champion Guernsey cow, by 179 pounds of milk. The cow was not bred at Roycroft, but was purchased in Connecticut and is completing her second year at Roycroft.

Milk 20 Times Her Own Weight

It was following the completion of a careful observation and compilation of data covering a period of twelve months that it was demonstrated that Roycroft possesses the champion Jersey cow of the world. The performance of the cow during the last year has been watched with close interest by Walter S. Prickett, proprietor of Roycroft farm, and Professor Leo M. Gelsmar, farm expert for the Houghton County Farm bureau. The final compilation of the figures was not made until last night at 11 o'clock. The data showed that this Jersey cow produced during the year twenty times her own weight in milk. Roycroft farm has specialized on Jersey cows for the last ten years, Mr. Prickett having bred the bulk of his present herd. Mr. Prickett has contended for years that the soil and climate of Houghton county present the most nearly ideal conditions for dairy cattle raising, and the test now concluded demonstrates the virtue of his contentions. The performance of this cow is a victory for the entire upper peninsula. It is the finest recent contribution to the arguments of the Upper Peninsula Development bureau. Every stock raiser in "Cloverland" will be interested and gratified that the chamionship has come to the North country.

EXAMINATIONS EASIER.

New Chief of Weather Bureau Changes Systems of Promotions.

Professor C. F. Marvin, recently made chief of the United States weather bureau, succeeding Professor Willis L. Moore, has changed the examination questions applicants for admission to the service must answer. As a result the examinations are now much easier, many of the scientific questions having been dropped. Applicants will be examined on their general efficiency for the service, and not on their technical knowledge alone.

The change has been made because it has been found that many who attained high marks in the examinations were utter failures when put in charge of stations, while these who have "risen from the ranks," and who gained their knowledge by actual experience, have succeeded.

Notice of the change has been received at the Escanaba office.

The Cat "Jumped."

The Nickingtons, suburban householders, brought back from the beach a cat which the Swedish maid discovered there and had gradually educated to some athletic tricks. Mr. Nickington was endeavoring to demonstrate to visitors what had been taught. Making a hoop of his arms he invited the cat to leap through the opening. "Jump! jump! jump!" he bade the feline coaxingly. Kitty never stirred, but turned away in indifference.

The maid arrived. Nickington expressed his disappointment. The maid, Olga, insisted that it could perform and would. "Here," she commanded to the cat "Come, jump! jump! jump!" The cat jumped through, lithely and gracefully.

The fact that under the new Pennsylvania marriage law the applicant for a license has to answer questions as to whether he is an imbecile, epileptic or of unsound mind, or whether he has ever been in a home for paupers, is calculated to throw some thing of a damper on love's young dream.

The radioactive substance known as mesothorium, which Dr. Otto Hahn of Berlin declares to be valuable in the treatment of cancer, is said to have been bought by a syndicate of philanthropists with the assistance of the town council and the central insurance bureau for the Rhine province, the price paid being $65,000. But the treatment will not be popular till the cost of the medicine is reduced. It is said that half a gram is needed for each patient, and that one gram costs $65,000 to prepare.

Bichloride of mercury accidents are growing so numerous as to constitute a serious reflection on the drug trade. Can't the druggists decide on a plan for putting up bichloride of mercury tablets in such a manner that they will not look like something else? Of course they can, if they will. Make the thing blue by throwing in a little harmless coloring matter. Give them a distinctive shape. Adopt both of these precautions if necessary—it is easy. But certainly it will not do to put up a deadly poison in a form which it is liable to be mistaken—and in many instances is mistaken—for harmless or helpful medicine.

The ratification of the extradition treaty between the United States and Paraguay closes the last of the refugees for crooks and defaulters fleeing from this country. But there is a dissatisfied element which fears that our jails will be overcrowded when there is no longer any place for the undesirable persons to fly to.

Business men of Chicago now want aero yachts to sail in the air to and from their business to their homes. Perhaps in the next decade aerial trolleys will be running for the accommodation of the general business public who find transit on terra firma too slow for the needs of this rapid age.

The government is going to raise taxes to bring down the price of women's furs. Uncle Sam means well, but it is just as likely as not that the capricious and inconsistent sex will turn up its pretty nose at his mistaken gallantry in thinking they want a former desirable article when everybody knows it is cheap.

USED A TIN FINGER FOR FANCY CURVES.

Leave it to Roy Mitchell of the St. Louis Browns to pull the good ones. Ever hear of a pitcher with a tin finger? "Down where I live in Texas there was a young fellow named Gus Andrews," said Mitchell. "He had everything any pitcher I ever knew owned. If he had set his mind to working he would have been a wonder in the big league. But he didn't. "Andrews used to experiment with all kinds of curves and funny shoots. His best one was a wonder. One day he appeared at the park with a piece of tin through which he had punched a nail. This made the outside of the tin rough like a coconut grater. Andrews strapped this on his finger and proceeded to pitch. Say, he made that ball talk. Darndest shoots I ever saw."

PADDEN CHALLENGES BARRY FOR WORLD'S ROWING TITLE

J. Padden, the present professional sculling champion of Australia, has challenged Ernest Barry, the world's title holder, for a match race on the Parramatta river, Australia. Padden's friends cabled $500 to England as a challenge to the winner of the recent Barry-Pearce race, primarily to get ahead of Richard Armit, who is expected to challenge again. In this country Frank Greer of Boston, ex-amateur sculling champion, is thinking of challenging Barry.

STENGEL'S HOBBY IS TOUCHING SECOND BASE.

Casey Stengel, the Brooklyn National's center fielder, is superstitious, like many other ball players. He believes that his success as a batsman and fielder depends largely upon the fact that he never fails to step on second base on the way to his position or coming back to the bench. Stengel has been touching second nearly all season. Stengel says that the day he sprained his leg he had failed to touch the base.

Manager Tommy Burns Fixed Fight in March is His Confession.

Portland, Oregon, Sept. 13.—Arthur Pelkey the heavyweight fighter whose victory over Luther McCarthy, in a Calgary arena was followed by the latter's death, has parted company with Tommy Burns, his manager.

Immediately after cancelling his contract with Burns, Pelkey on Tuesday gave to a Portland sporting editor a signed "confession" in which he alleged that he and Burns faked their six-round bout at Calgary, March 26, last. Pelkey charges that Burns took advantage of the fact that he was without funds and induced him to "frame up" the match and that they rehearsed the battle nightly in a garret.

Pelkey asserts that he has never had an offer to fight Jack Johnson in Paris. Telegrams pretending to convey invitations to clash with Johnson for large purses were faked.

JAKE STAHL SUCCEEDS GEORGE STOVALL

St. Louis, Sept. 13.—Jake Stahl, who was deposed as manager of the Red Sox some time ago and who at the time announced that he was through with baseball for all time, is said to be slated for the management of the St. Louis Browns next year, if present plans materialize. Ban Johnson who has always been friendly to Stahl, has been trying to induce Colonel Hedges of the St. Louis club to take on the former Red Sox leader. There is some hitch in the proceedings, however, due to the demand, by Stahl for some stock in the club. It is said that Hedges is unwilling to dispose of any of his holdings.

M'ALLISTER IN 20 ROUND DRAW

Might Have Won But for the Lack of Punch.

San Francisco, Sept. 13.—Once again Referee Griffin declared a twenty-round bout between Bod McAllister and Sailor Petroskey a draw, and the decision was a fair one.

The contest in a measure was a re-production of the former bout. In the main, McAllister outboxed the sailor, sending in three blows to Petroskey's one. It was the same old story, however, McAllister was minus the punch. If he had been possessor of a knock-down blow, he would probably have won the fight in the opening round. There was not a round, in fact, in which Petroskey would not have been beaten down if McAllister could have infused average fighting force into his punches. It was no trick for McAllister to plant a straight left between the eyes or tilt the sailor with an upper cut. He did this so frequently that the thing was monotonous. Petroskey who was aggressive first to last, sent McAllister floor twice in the nineteenth. Each time when McAllister was managed by squirming and ducking to avoid the majority of the fierce swings. In the twentieth and closing round, McAllister steadied himself and he did not punch Petroskey as extensively he fairly smothered him with hooks, jolts and uppercuts. So fast and so effective that the sailor from scoring. Bobwell in fact that he evened the and Referee Griffin's decision regarded on all sides as the one that could have been rendered.

AT THE PETERSON

At the Peterson on Sunday Sept. 21, H. Frazee will present for the first time here, "Fine Feathers," the most notable of all his successful productions and quite the most talked of in New York and Chicago last season. To enumerate the length of engagements in the Astor Theatre, New York, and the Cort Theatre, Chicago, and its post-season tour to the Pacific Coast would be merely a recapitulation of business record, but to repeat encomiums of praise bestowed by the public upon this latest of H. Frazee's great dramatic works is to consume more space than is allotted the playgoing reader. "Fine Feathers" is the story of one man's fight against circumstances, not self. It is more than a mere drama of dollar-hunting, more than a study of temptation. It is a dramatic allegory of our revolt against the gods, and of the Nemesis of Nature awaiting those who stoop to combat. Its drama is relentless but inflexible. It shocks while it entralls.

THE ORPHEUM.

Full capacity house greeted the first nights of the last half of week and judging by the appearance of the audience was well satisfied with the bill offered. Harry Lancaster in his songs, stories and dances in full highland costume, was a Scotchman and received very much applause. The Jean King Quartette, two ladies and two gentlemen rendered a most excellent program of classical songs. They were warmly applauded at the end of each number.

The moving pictures, "General Culver and His Daughters," depicted thrilling scenes in the war of the rebellion, in three parts, and were true to life.

THE PETERSON.

Although it seems impossible, the bill that is playing at the Peterson the last half of the week is even better than the first half. The managers certainly deserve credit for getting such high class acts.

First on the bill is Byron and Nelson in their funny skit, "The Dutchman and the Prima Donna." Mr. Byron is a very comical dutchman and Miss Nelson has an excellent voice. Next on the bill is Gertrude McGill and Co. in their comedy playlet, "The Club Woman." This act is one of the best in the vaudeville world and just closed after a most successful run in New York. Billy Barlow, that ever funny comedian, is great. He keeps you laughing all the time he is on the stage. His parodies are very good and his humor original.

Josephine Saxton and her five Dixie Kids are a whole show by themselves. Songs which they know how to sing and the dancing is very good. This act alone is worth the price of admission. All around, the bill is excellent and good variety. No one should miss seeing it.

A NINE POUND BABY BOY

To Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Olson of 320 North Norris street was this morning born a nine pound baby boy. "Pa" Olson is about the happiest individual north of the Mason and Dixon line.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 13.—Seventeen fatal accidents during the past three months, reported to the industrial accident board, occurred in the mining industry in the Upper Peninsula. The entire cost to the companies, because of the accidents, was $41,523, an average cost of $2,442.53.

GUILD DANCE ENJOYABLE MILITIA COST IS HEAVY

Fifty Couples Enjoyed Party in the Clark Hall Last Evening

The dance held last night by the St. Agnes Guild of St. Stephen's church was attended by about fifty couples and the party proved to be one of the most enjoyable parties the Guild has ever given.

Olmsted's orchestra was responsible in the major part for the enjoyableness of the function. A delightful program of eighteen dances was given. The decorations were exceptionally pretty and refreshments were served.

COOK IN A LUMBER CAMP

Forest McKubic has left for Negaunee where he has accepted a position as cook in one of the Thomas Condlis company camps. Mr. McKubic has established a reputation as a cook that is the envy of all chefs and the Condlis company is fortunate in securing his services.

Will Be Over $250,000 By the End of the Month.

By the end of the month of September the cost of maintaining the state militia in the copper country because of the strike of trammers and miners of the mining corporations will reach the $250,000 mark, it is believed, and is very likely to be even higher than that. The cost, by the first of September was close to $200,000, according to word received from Lansing, and it is costing over $1,000 per day, it is said, to maintain 500 soldiers and horses for nearly 200 of them in this district. The daily cost is decreasing, however.

The distribution of the consignment of winter clothing received the last of the week has started, as cold weather is expected at any time. More woolen clothing for the men has been ordered and will be received shortly.

MUCH EXCITEMENT ON NORTHWESTERN TRAIN

Passengers on Train Bound for Marinette Thought It Was Held up Just Outside Depere.

De Pere, Sept. 13.—When the Northwestern train which is due here about midnight was approaching the city from the south on Saturday night, the engineer saw ahead of him near the city limits a red lantern. He immediately came to the conclusion that highwaymen were about to attempt to hold up the train and blew the danger signal. At the same time he put on the emergency brakes, and the train was brought to a quick stop.

The passengers were thrown into great excitement at the stopping of the train so suddenly and when they learned that the engineer feared a hold-up, many of them became frightened, especially the women, who began to hide their valuables.

After the train had stopped some distance from the red light, the trainmen, all armed, advanced toward the spot, and when they found the light came from a common red lantern, such as is placed at danger spots in the city. It was placed in the middle of the track. The vicinity was searched but no trace of anyone was found.

C. G. Wilcox, who was aboard, said the lantern was probably taken from the city by someone and placed on the track for a joke. The train was delayed about half an hour. It was bound for Marinette and the copper country.

MOTHER'S PENSION LAW

Judge Yelland Writes to the Supervisors Throughout the County

Judge Yelland has written the supervisors of the county regarding the new mothers' pension act. Briefly it provides that when the mother of any child or children, who is unable to support them, applies for relief to the probate judge, he shall issue an order, not to exceed three dollars per child per week, in her favor, instead of committing the child to a state institution. This means that a large proportion of the poor fund will be paid by the county for this purpose, superseding the previous arrangement by which the townships and cities paid for their own, and may demand an increased appropriation this fall from the board. The workings of the law will be followed with much interest in the state. The first order in Delta county was issued last week by the probate judge.

SWears AT THE SHERIFF AND GOES UP FOR 20 DAYS

Cussing the Sheriff Even Over the Telephone is a Dangerous Occupation.

You can't swear at Sheriff Tim Curran even though you use a telephone when you are doing it. Willet Crooks of Rapid River has twenty days in which to think over the inadvisability of swearing at Sheriff Tim.

Last night about eleven o'clock Sheriff Curran answered the telephone and found Willet at the other end of the line. Willet it seemed wanted the sheriff to make a hurry up trip to Rapid River to arrest someone against whom he had a grievance. The Sheriff wanted to know the name of the party and Willet replied:

"It's none of your—business."

He then proceeded to rid his system of a flow of profanity and while he was still at it Tim hung up the receiver. He then located the Rapid River deputy on the telephone and instructed him to arrest Willet. When the deputy found Willet and informed him that he was under arrest Willet knocked him down. The prisoner was finally subdued and was brought to Escanaba this morning, tried before Judge Glaser and sentenced to spend twenty days in the county jail.

SPIRIT AUTOGRAPHS.

Famous Signatures Which Show Strange Lines When Folded.

Nobody can deny that a person's character leaves innumerable indefinable traces of its workings upon the body, the face, the dress, and all material surroundings. One need not be a Sherlock Holmes to divine, upon entering a man's room and finding pictures of chorus girls arranged along the walls, that the occupant has no prejudice against the theatre; nor is any very deep insight necessary to discover, when all the chairs in the living room are arranged in mathematical order and nothing is ever out of place, that there are not several small boys in the household. Whether these small indications of character can be classified scientifically—whether the lines of the hand, the bumps on the head, the form and relationship of the features, can be so studied as to afford a definite and true indication of the owner's character is a question in which everybody is more or less interested.

The illustrations herewith reproduced represent a new cult of character-study—what may be called spirit autographs.

How far these weird little figures reveal the truth about the spirits who traced their skeletonlike outlines time and study may show.

There is really no reason to suppose that every trait in the character, every motion of the heart, every thought of the mind does not somehow register itself in a corporeal form.

A well-known Washington cartoonist once advanced the theory that the two sides of a man's face revealed his public and private character respectively. Picking a card over one side of the face of a well-known politician, he proceeded to prove his theory thus:

"Here, you see, is a half-closed, crafty, watchful eye, a determined mouth, a firm jaw—that's what this man is in Congressional debate. Now look at the other side. The eye opens frankly, the mouth almost smiles, the whole expression is that of decision tempered by gentleness and good humor. That's what he is in the bosom of his family."

In his recent novel, "The Heart Line," Mr. Gelett Burgess makes his term a palatial say:

"Everything that is distinctive must be significant, if only we have the power of interpreting it."

In some way or other we are all students of physiognomy. We all have our likes and dislikes, based on some physical peculiarity. One man will not trust a person whose eyes are very near together; another has no faith in a pointed chin; another objects to stooping shoulders. Generally speaking, however, we no sooner make up our minds that a certain physical attribute goes with a certain character than we find exceptions to the rule. The old adage about red-haired people having bad tempers may owe its force to the fact that a child continually tormented about red hair would be likely to be rather hot tempered in any event.

The truth is that every human trait has its good side and its bad side. The French recognize this in saying that a man has "the defects of his virtues." Your masterful man who can lead men to victory in an emergency may be a tyrant in ordinary life. Some physiologists think that a high, narrow forehead, with eyebrows sloping upward from the nose, indicates fanaticism, or the capacity to devote the whole energy to an abstract idea. Clearly, the possessor of that sort of face may become a martyr in the cause of religion, or a half-crazy assassin, according to the possession of other elements in his nature which direct his energies rightly or wrongly.

Astrology is another of the alleged sciences which deal with the relation between the spiritual and the material. Each sign is supposed to give the person born under it certain general characteristics, which are modified more or less by the influence of the various planets. President Roosevelt for example was born under the sign of Scorpio, which is the most dynamic of all influences, and the position of the various planets was such as to indicate extraordinary political activity. It would seem, therefore, that the expression "Roosevelt luck" is more than a jest.

There are people who read character in the way a person wears out shoes. There is an old rhyme about this:

"Wear at the toes, spend as you go. GRANTED LICENSE TO WED."

Ruebin G. Young of Elk City, Oklahoma, and Miss Emily Mollongree of Gladstone, were granted a license to wed today.

FIRE CHIEF HOME FROM NEW YORK CONVENTION

Chief Meiera Delighted With His Trip to the Metropolis

William Meier, chief of the Escanaba fire department, returned last evening from New York city where he attended the convention of the fire engineers.

The Chief is much elated with his visit to New York and with the entertainment offered for the visiting chiefs. A side-trip to Buffalo and Niagara Falls, a jaunt to Coney Island, a banquet at the Hotel Astor, a sight-seeing trip about New York are only a few of the delights of the trip.

Considerable fire fighting apparatus was on exhibition but not so much as had been expected by the visiting chiefs. The talks by eminent fire-fighters in the convention hall were rarrar by the fact that the audience was so noisy it was difficult to hear the speakers.

Returning the Chief spent a week in Chicago and vicinity. He visited with his brother Charles, whom he had not seen in twenty years and whom he found suffering from three broken ribs sustained in an automobile accident.

Mr. Meier found considerable difficulty in understanding the New Yorkers the first few days of his visit but in a short time he was "doing" himself.
