BIG SHOW AT FAIR GROUNDS WILL OPEN TOMORROW A. M.

Third Annual Northern Michigan Fair Will be in Full Swing Tuesday A. M. at Nine O'clock

FARMERS BRING EXHIBITS

Merchants Busy Fixing Booths for Display-Exhibition of Live Stock Will be Special Feature

ART EXHIBITS TO BE FINE

With the music of bands, the cries of the sellers of candy and novelties, the farm yard noises from the animal section and all the other things exciting and appropriate to the occasion, the third Annual Northern Michigan state fair will open tomorrow morning—bigger and better than ever.

Everyone Busy Today
The fair grounds present a busy scene today. It is hard to get the spirit until the day before the fair opens and many of the merchants did not start to arrange their exhibits until yesterday and some of them even waited until today to get busy. Everything will be ready for the big show tomorrow and no one is going to feel heated after they see what the fair has to offer.

Farmer's Enthusiasm
The farmers came in crowds this morning with the products of their summers work to show the people that can be done in Delta county in the way of growing farm truck pumpkins as big as wash tubs and squash bigger than beer kegs were among the things that were placed on exhibition this morning.

The exhibition of live stock this year is going to surpass any former display and will be the center of interest to a large number of people.

Art Exhibit to Be Fine
The women are taking great interest this year in the display of fancy work and a great number of pieces were placed on display this morning. Many fine things will be shown this year and it will tax the ability of the judges to make the awards to those who have entered the different pieces for all are good and it is going to be rather hard to tell which is the best.

Officers Are Busy
President Torval Strom and Secretary Matt Peterson were on the grounds early this morning and will lead the rest of the week in looking after the big show. They have worked hard for the past three months and the success of the fair will be greatly due to their untiring efforts.

Both young men know what is needed to make the fair a great success and they are exerting the last ounce of energy to get things in shape for tomorrow morning.

New Road is Built
This year it will not be necessary to drive around to the entrance on Danforth road to get into the grounds. A driveway has been built on the east side of the grounds to the entrance, which is much better and will save a number of steps to the fair.

Attend the Fair Every Day
You will not be content with just one day at the big fair. You will not be able to see a quarter of the big show in one day. Go every day and spend enough time upon the grounds to see what a fine country you live in. What can be grown in Delta county. See the fine cattle and don't forget the exhibits that the local merchants have prepared for you.

DISMISS BILL OF COMPLAINT

MISS VILNA MACDONALD OF THIS CITY WINS SUIT OVER VALUABLE MINING PROPERTY IN IRON COUNTY

ATTORNEY EMPSON NOW IN RUSSIA

Judge Clarence Sessions Renders Decision Favorable to Local Resident

A valuable mining property in Iron county in litigation in the United States court, has been permanently secured as the property of Miss Vilna Macdonald daughter of ex-Lieutenant Governor J. H. Macdonald of Michigan deceased, of this city.

In United States court suit in equity was brought against Miss Macdonald several months ago by Frederick Carpenter of Barrington, Ill., to set aside a quit claim deed held by her to a valuable mineral property in Iron county. Miss Macdonald was represented by Attorney G. R. Empson of Gladstone who argued the case before Judge Clarence W. Sessions in chancery court at Sault Ste. Marie.

Judge Sessions has just filed his decision which dismisses the bill of complaint, and firmly fixes the title of Miss Macdonald to the property. The land in question is regarded as one of the most valuable mining properties in Iron county.

Attorney Empson has not yet learned of the decision. He left Gladstone two weeks ago for Europe on legal business which will take him both to England and continent. The business has to do with mining concessions in the continent. Mr. Empson will probably not return for several weeks.

As the result of an alleged attack made upon her by John Heyman, Mrs. Blackbird of St. Ignace is under the care of a physician. She is suffering from a broken rib and a badly bruised face. Sheriff Curran is meanwhile looking for Heyman.

Mrs. Blackbird came to Escanaba a short time ago and went with Mr. and Mrs. Heyman to their homestead near Cornell. While there, it is claimed, Heyman became intoxicated and attacked his wife's guest.

SEEK TO PROVE PRIEST A FAKE

CATHOLIC AUTHORITIES BELIEVE SELF-CONFESSED SLAYER OF GIRL AN IMPOSTOR

RIVER MYSTERY FINALLY CLEARED

Rev. Hans Schmidt Assistant Rector of St. Joseph's Church New York Admits Crime

(By Associated Press.)
Mainz, Germany.—Johannes Schmidt belonged to the Mainz bishopric but was long ago suspended. He disappeared from Mainz and later appeared in Munich where he was arrested and charged with fraud. He was acquitted on the grounds of being weak minded. The Mainz episcopate was unaware that he was exercising the functions of a priest in America.

New York, September 15.—In the tope of branding as an impostor Rev. Hans Schmidt, the self-confessed slayer of Anna Aumeller, the victim of New York's river murder mystery, church authorities have begun a sweeping investigation into Schmidt's record and his pretensions to ordination.

"We hope of course to prove this unspeakable monster, an impostor, that he has been using forged papers," declared Monsignor Lavalle, vicar general of the archdiocese of New York. Schmidt slept soundly last night and partook of a hearty breakfast.

With the arrest yesterday of Rev. Schmidt, assistant rector of St. Joseph's church, charged with the murder of Anna Aumeller, a domestic the mystery surrounding the finding twelve days ago of parts of the dismembered body of the girl in the Hudson river is solved. Schmidt, according to the police report, has confessed and at the time of his arrest attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat with a safety razor blade.

"I slew her because I loved her so much," Schmidt is alleged to have told his captors, but the police version of the motive for the crime is that the young woman was approaching motherhood. He had married her through a ceremony of his own, performed without witnesses.

Killed With a Butcher Knife.
According to the police and the district attorney's office, Schmidt's confession is complete. He is quoted as saying that he killed his companion with a butcher knife and cut up the body with a knife and a saw. The deed was committed, the police say, while the woman slept, shortly after midnight on Sept. 2, in an apartment where the guilty man had placed her five days before.

Once her heart had ceased beating, according to the alleged confession, Schmidt carried the body from the bed to a bathroom and, placing it in a bath tub, began immediately his gory task of cutting it up. With a sharp knife and a saw, he cut off the head, arms and legs. Still fearful of detection, he then cut the body in two.

Five bundles, wrapped in bedclothes and papers, were made of the six parts. Five times Schmidt left the apartment house with a bundle to cross the Hudson river to the Jersey shore. Five times he leaped over the term of the ferry boat in midstream and gently gave the river his burden. Then he returned to his church.

The stains of the girl's blood still disclosed the bathtub when detectives searched the apartment today. Schmidt told the police that he had taken the mattress on which she lay when he dealt the death blow to a vacant lot nearby under cover of darkness and burned it.

In the apartment, among other things, the police found a marriage license issued in New York last February and bearing the name of Schmidt and the murdered woman. This license had been used. According to Schmidt's confession, he went through a marriage ceremony with the girl. In this ceremony Schmidt was both priest and bridegroom; there were no witnesses.

PEACE PLANS AGAIN FAIL

COMMISSION TO INVESTIGATE GRIEVANCE IS NOT MET WITH FAVOR BY COPPER MINE OPERATORS

EXPECTED TROUBLE NOT EVIDENT

Biggest Parade Since the Inauguration of the Strike Held This Morning

(By Associated Press.)
Calumet, Sept. 15.—The largest parade since the strike began was held this morning, without any disorders or trouble. It was rumored yesterday that there would be trouble today, but the line of men and women passed down the street without a disturbing element of any kind.

The latest plan for the settlement of the strike has failed and Allen F. Reese the attorney for the mines has notified Governor Ferris to that effect. The plan that was suggested as a settlement was that the governor appoint a commission to investigate the grievances of the strikers and that the Western Federation of Miners withdraw from the field. This the miners who are striking will not hear to and it now looks as though the strike would be continued many months longer.

SAFE AT GOLDFIELDS

Superintendent King Receives Wire From Son Reporting "All Safe and Nothing Lost"

Superintendent F. E. King of the city schools, yesterday received from his son Joseph King of Goldfields, Nevada, a telegram reading: "All safe. Lost nothing."

The telegram would indicate that Goldfields had suffered from a fire, tornado or some disaster that affected the major portion of the town but as yet Mr. King has not learned the nature of the disaster. Yesterday's news dispatches did not contain any mention of a disaster in Goldfields.

Perfume Peddler is Assessed $15 by Judge McEwen

Frank Rice was arrested Saturday and arraigned before Judge McEwen on a charge of peddling in the city without a license. He was found guilty and fined $10 and costs, $15 in all, which sum he paid.

A man and a woman came to the city on Monday and placed a considerable amount of perfume in the hands of children about the city with instructions to sell it. The police sought the two but they left town before they were apprehended. Rice came to town Saturday to make collections and was at once arrested.

TROUT SEASON ENDS

Local Anglers Will Lend Effort Toward Reducing the Open Season

The trout fishing season came to a close today. The Escanaba anglers were not out in any great number and the catch reported was small.

Local anglers are intent upon the shortening of the season. They are of the belief that the two weeks additional fishing provided by the last act relative to trout fishing will do much to rid the streams of the big trout since the extension carries the open season into the spawning season.

FIRE IN CEMETERY

Considerable Grass Burns—No. 1 Company Responds to Still Alarm

The grass in Lakeview cemetery caught fire in some unknown manner this afternoon and a still alarm was sent into No. 1 engine house. The company responded and succeeded in putting the fire out with sand. A considerable stretch was burned over.

MANY HEAR SEX LECTURES

DR. A. F. FISCHER OF HANCOCK TALKS TO THREE LARGE CROWDS IN THE HIGH SCHOOL

EPOCH IN CITY'S MORAL WELFARE

Lecture to Men Last Evening Brought Out More Than Two Hundred—Talked to Women in Afternoon

The series of three lectures delivered Saturday and Sunday by Dr. A. F. Fischer in the high school auditorium attracted large crowds and the interest manifested and that the good that must necessarily follow heart to heart talks such as Dr. Fischer gave, is incalculable.

Saturday evening Dr. Fischer, who is lecturing for the American Medical Association and who came here under the auspices of the Delta County Medical society, lectured to physicians, dentists, druggists, educators and members of the press. Practically every professional man, in the included list, in the city was present. Dr. Fischer's subject was "Syphilis."
Sunday afternoon the Hancock physician addressed an assemblage of over two hundred girls and women on "The Story of Life." The talk, while perhaps on a delicate subject, was most carefully handled and the speaker said nothing that might have offended the most prudish and he was firmly congratulated, especially by mothers, at the close of the lecture.

Last night the lecturer talked to two hundred men on "The Scarlet Plague" and for over an hour held his hearers in breathless interest.

All lectures were accompanied by stereoscopic views that added greatly to the enjoyability of the lecture. Dr. Fischer's lectures here should be regarded as doubtless will be as an epoch in the city's moral welfare.

John D. Bakken Died This Morning At Nine O'clock—Resident Here Eight Years

John D. Bakken, a brakeman on the North Western railway and formerly, baggageman at the North Western depot in this city, died this morning at nine o'clock in the Delta County hospital after an illness of about three weeks.

The deceased was apparently much improved yesterday and his recovery was regarded as but a matter of time. This morning at 5:30 o'clock he suffered a relapse and died at nine.

He was about thirty-seven years of age and had been a resident of Escanaba for the past eight years, coming to this city from DePere. His wife died two years after they located in Escanaba and he is survived by two sons. His parents reside in DePere and the body will be sent there for burial tomorrow.

The pays in the future will be from the fifteenth to the eighteenth of each month for the last two weeks work of the month preceding and then from the twenty-eighth to the thirtieth for the first two weeks of the month.

In the future the I. Stephenson company will pay on the tenth and twenty-fifth of each month instead of the tenth as heretofore.

"The school teachers of the city will also be paid twice each month.

LOCAL GIRL SLIGHTLY INJURED NEAR SCHAFFER

Miss Anna Menard Suffers Bad Fall When Motorcycle Skids and Falls

Miss Anna Menard of 1300 Ludington street is suffering from painful injuries yesterday afternoon when a motorcycle, which she was riding in company with Eugene Gamash of the Danforth settlement, skidded in rounding a sharp curve and turned over. The motorcycle fell upon Miss Menard while Gamash was thrown over a fence.

The young people had just left Schaffer and were going to Rapid River. At a sharp curve near Schaffer Gamash seeking to decrease the speed of the machine, increased it instead and when it became evident that the motorcycle was going over Miss Menard jumped. The motorcycle toppled over at the same time and fell upon her. Gamash was catapulted over a fence and landing in a bunch of bushes, was uninjured.

Miss Menard was severely bruised and is confined to her bed today although no serious results are anticipated.

North Escanaba Boy and Girl Are Thought to be in Milwaukee

The police have as yet been unable to locate Elizabeth Roan and Frank Maleak, school children from North Escanaba, who disappeared last Friday.

The police are convinced that the young people went to Milwaukee and have informed the police there to be on the lookout for them. The girl is not yet fifteen years of age and the boy is not yet seventeen although he might easily pass for twenty-one. It is thought that they left the city with the intention of being married either in Milwaukee or Chicago.

RULING ON SUNDAY LAW

Acts of Violence or Disorder Necessary to Cause Arrest

Attorney General Grant Fellows has given the following opinion regarding Sunday ball games and like sports, in response to an inquiry from the sheriff of Gladwin county as to whether it was possible to stop Sunday games:

"In the case of Yerkes vs. Smith, which was an action brought to compel the police commissioner of Detroit to take action to prevent a game, the supreme court held that the mere assembling of persons to play and witness any Sunday game is not sufficient without overt acts of violence or disorder, to authorize an officer to make a summary arrest," says Fellows.

"Under this decision of the supreme court, it follows that a crowd exceeding 30 persons assembled on Sunday to witness a ball game or any other similar purpose, if riotous or tumultuous, within the meaning of the act, may be ordered by you as sheriff of the county to disperse. A refusal to obey your order render such persons so assembled liable to arrest and prosecution. In other words, persons present at and participating in such games may not under the general laws of the state be summarily arrested and prosecuted unless the conduct of the assemblage is such as to warrant an officer to command its dispersal and then arrests may be made only upon refusal to comply with such orders. Of course, as stated in the opinion of the court, in the case of Yerkes vs. Smith, any person participating in such a game is liable to the penalty of $10 to be enforced in a civil action brought for that purpose"

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK, THICK, GLOSSY

Look Years Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

GOES TO STATE FAIR AS GUEST OF STATE

Altona Caruffell of Schaffer Winner of Contest in Delta County

Altona Caruffell of Schaffer left last evening for Detroit, Mich., where he will attend the State fair, which begins there tomorrow, as the guest of the agricultural department of the state.

The young man takes the trip at the expense of the department as the result of the contest held throughout the state during the spring. As previously announced contests were held in each county in the state and to the winner a free trip to the state fair was offered.

P. R. Legg conducted the examinations in this county and in competition with a large class young Caruffell, who is but fourteen years of age, was adjudged the winner. In addition to the eighth grade examination the examinee was required to answer a number of questions specified by the department.

With eighty-four other young men from the state young Caruffell will camp on the state fair grounds during the week and will return home the latter part of the week.

The young man is a nephew of Mrs. Joseph Moreau of this city.

It only means two drunks a month instead of one for the ole man."

THE ISLAND OF THE STAIRS

Being a True Account of Certain Strange and Wonderful Adventures of Master John Hampdon, Seaman, and Mistress Lucy Wilberforce, Gentlewoman, in the Great South Seas.

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Copyright, 1912, by Cyrus Townsend Brady

SYNOPSIS

The body of Sir Geoffrey Wilberforce, ruined gambler and suicide, is found by Hampdon, a sailor. Hampdon quarrels with the Duke of Arondeer.

Hampdon breaks the news to Lucy Wilberforce and delivers a letter found on her father's body.

It contains half of a map of a treasure island. Lucy already has the other half. There are directions for finding the treasure.

Hampdon punishes the duke for insulting Lucy. Hampdon and Lucy start in a ship for the Island of the Stairs.

Hampdon steers a kiss, and Lucy has him imprisoned in a cabin. Desperate men in the crew mutiny.

Pimball and Gibby demand the map of the island of Hampdon, who pretends to join the mutiny. Hampdon demands possession of Lucy.

He treats her with respect and offers to save her from the mutineers. The pair plot to escape to the Island of the Stairs.

CHAPTER VIII.

Wherein I Make All Clear to My Little Mistress.

MY pistol was still in my hand, and she made a clutch at it, but I was too quick for her. I caught her by the wrist.

The spell she had cast upon us by her sudden entrance, her beautiful presence, her proud, brave demeanor, was broken by that touch. The men laughed. The remembrance of that laugh makes my blood boil even now.

"I wish you joy of her," said one. "You will have a time taming her," cried a second.

"Ah, you think so?" I cried, determining to carry out the deception to the bitter end and to leave no chance for the least suspicion to arise. I seized her by the shoulders, secretly praying God to forgive me for what I was about to do, and shook her violently back and forth. It was easy enough.

A baby in my hands would not have been more helpless. "Silence, you fools!" I cried as the men began to laugh again, and then to her: "You belong to me, woman. Do you hear? I've bought you. I am your master. Get back into your cabin. I will have speech with you later." Helpless, she could do nothing. I thrust her into the cabin, shut the door and faced the men. "Will you gentlemen leave me alone to tame this she devil for a little while, and I will be on deck presently," I panted out.

"Very well," said Pimball, "but before you go"—he pointed to a heavy bottle in the rack—"I propose that we drink the health of the new navigator and his lady."

"Right-o!" said I. I reached for the glasses that were on the rack and poured out a stiff dram for each man and added mighty little water to it. The room was soon filled with mocking, jeering toasts to my health and happiness. I drank with the rest, although I would rather have swallowed poison. They went out one by one, Pimball last.

"I wish you joy of your woman," he roared.

"You will see how tame she is tomorrow," I laughed as he climbed up the ladder and soon disappeared. To throw open the door of the cabin was the work of a minute. There she stood. She had twisted some kind of rope out of the sheets which she had hastily torn up. Her purpose was plain. She had intended to end her life by hanging herself from the hook of the deck beam above to which one end of her rope was secured, and she could have done it, too, if I had not been in the nick of time.

I stared at her for a moment and then reached forward and tore the salted strands out of her hand and from around her neck and threw them on the deck. It was evidence to me of the depth of her despair—that she had attempted such a thing. It owed me for one thing the excellence of my acting. I had convinced her of my villainy, I realized with a sudden pang.

Hard as I stared at her, the glance that she shot back at me in intensity, not expression, matched my own. I never want to see such loathing, such contempt, such scorn on a human countenance again. It cut me to the heart.

"A moment," she said wildly, "and I shall have done it, traitor!" "Nay, nay," I protested, "I am a man."

You bargained for me: you bought me. I was not in earnest," I cried, but she interrupted me in a perfect tempest of outraged feeling.

"My God!" she burst out. "Why don't you stay away a little longer? You dog! You vile, low-down scoundrel! You that I found voice again, for you are getting angry myself, my tempter!"

"I mean you no harm. Can you not see it?" I burst out. "It was all a play."

"The murder of the captain, the mutiny of the men, the seizure of the ship, the giving up the chart, your purchase"—she drew herself up—God, she was a brave little thing—"of me," she continued, "with your share of the treasure—was that a play?"

"Part of it, madam," said I, stung by her scorn and stunned again by the thought that she could ever have believed me capable of such baseness, who had loved her, worshiped her and—but for that fleeting moment when I had kissed her—had ever treated her with such humble consideration. "I bought not you."

per naturally being none the sweetest, save ordinarily when she was concerned.

"Hear me," I interrupted in turn. "Not a word."

"But indeed you must," I persisted, stepping within her cabin and carefully closing the door after me. "It is your welfare alone that I seek. I think you should have known that."

"After the insult on the quarterdeck last evening?" she asked cuttingly.

"Madam," said I, controlling myself again, but with added difficulty, "our concern is not with kisses, but with—"

"What?" "Life and—"

"I hesitated. "What else? Speak on!"

"Your honor," I said slowly, whereat she stared at my face, doubtless stern enough in all conscience.

What I had to say concerned us both so deeply that I cared not what she said, and perhaps that closed cabin into which I had penetrated was the likeliest place for privacy in the whole ship. I could by no means be overheard, so I determined to speak freely in a way not to be misunderstood.

"I mean you no harm. Can you not see it?" I burst out. "It was all a play."

"The murder of the captain, the mutiny of the men, the seizure of the ship, the giving up the chart, your purchase"—she drew herself up—God, she was a brave little thing—"of me," she continued, "with your share of the treasure—was that a play?"

"Part of it, madam," said I, stung by her scorn and stunned again by the thought that she could ever have believed me capable of such baseness, who had loved her, worshiped her and—but for that fleeting moment when I had kissed her—had ever treated her with such humble consideration. "I bought not you."

"What then?" "The right to live and serve you; the right for you to live unharmed and—"

"And what?" "And be served by me with no thought but for your safety and happiness."

She stared at me in deep consternation, her brow furrowed. I had wit enough to be silent and let the speech work.

"Have I wronged you?" she asked falteringly at last.

"What would your fate be if you were left to that murderous rabble on the deck yonder?"

She shuddered as I pressed the thought home to her.

"You should have known me better," I continued reproachfully, "than to have suspected—"

"But your insult to me this very night on the quarterdeck?"

"Is a man to be condemned beyond pardon who has served you truly because he snatches a kiss in a moment of madness and forgets it when your life and honor tremble in the balance?"

"I do not think even you could forget that ever," she said, and I could not fathom exactly her purpose in that remark.

Did she not want me to forget it? Or would she have me remember it? But this seemed like trifling. I turned away bitterly, but she caught me by the arm instantly.

"What are you about to do?" she began. "Don't abandon me now. I believe in you. I see now why you did it. It was to save me and help me. What would I do, what could I do without you? I am"—she hesitated; it was hard for her proud spirit—"I am sorry," she finished.

"Say no more," I answered, looking down at the little hand on my sleeve, my soul thrilling to her words and touch. "No harm shall come to you save over my dead body, and that is not enough for me to promise. I mean to extricate you from this peril."

"But is it possible?" "I think so; I pray so."

"You are one against so many." "I have one ally in the ship, you forget," said I, smiling at her, relieved and thankful to see her in her right mind again and awake to the truth and my real feeling toward her.

"And that is—" "Yourself."

"A feeble helper," she rejoined, smiling in turn.

"We shall see."

"And will you forgive me for having misjudged you?" she asked pleadingly.

"Gladly."

"My hand on it, then," she said, holding out her little palm which I swallowed up in my large one on the instant, standing silent as usual, holding it the while.

"And are you not sorry that you—kissed me?" she faltered at last.

"No," I answered bluntly enough—being a plain man I have always felt compelled to tell the truth—except, perhaps, when her interests were at stake—"I am not sorry." But as she swiftly tried to draw her hand away I added, "I promise you I won't do it again, and you will forgive me. I know. Meanwhile we have much to plan. We may be interrupted any time and we had best get at it."

I released her hand and she faced me calmly enough.

"You don't know how much safer I feel when I have you to depend upon," she said.

How my heart leaped at that assurance and I saw that she had indeed forgiven me.

"I shall leave everything to you, Master Hampdon," she continued. "Do you tell me what to do, and I will do it."

"I know you will. I could not ask a braver, better second," I answered heartily.

At that moment I heard a step on the ladder. Somebody was coming. Quick as a flash I realized the part we had to play in public. I balled my fist and struck the bulkhead anxiously. I suppose I must have changed my expression as well, for in her surprise she screamed faintly.

"That's it," I whispered, "scream again, louder, louder."

"What do you mean?" she asked in incomprehensible amazement, in this crisis my wits working quicker than hers.

"There is somebody outside. We have a part to play. I am abusing you and you are fighting," I whispered swiftly. Then louder, fairly shouting at her indeed, I cried, "Down on your knees, wench! You will find that you have met your master now."

I made some sound of scuffle and she did indeed scream loudly. In the midst of the commotion the door was tried, but fortunately I had turned the key.

"Who's there?" I shouted, and to my lady whispered, "Beg for help!"

Entering into the spirit of the game and smiling at me, since there was some but I to see, albeit she infused strange terror in her voice, so that I was amazed myself, she cried at the top of her voice:

"Help! Help!"

I in turn called louder yet:

"Silence, woman!" and struck the bulkhead again.

Finally turning to the door I opened it a bit, and there stood one of the younger seamen.

"What want you?" I began sternly and stormily. "I don't care to be disturbed just now."

"You are wanted on deck. It is just dawn. Land has been sighted, and there's a heavy sea runnin'. Pimball an' Gibby want your counsel and advice what's to be done."

"Good!" said I. "I will be with you in a moment. Tell them I have yet a word or two to say to this woman here."

The man turned on his heel, passed through the cabin and climbed the ladder to the deck.

"Now," I said quickly, thrusting one of my pistols into my little mistress's hand, "we can talk no longer this time. I am going to do my best for you, and if I fall here is a weapon. You know what to do with it."

"Shall I use it on them?"

"No, lass," I answered grimly, "on yourself if it comes to the worst."

"I understand," she said, paling a little.

"Lock the door when I go out, and on no account open to any voice but mine."

"I shall remember."

"And keep up the acting," I said. "Whimper and cower away whenever we are seen together."

"I shall not forget," she said, standing very straight, looking at me bravely, her eyes shining.

"And now goodbye!"

I turned away, but she caught me by the shoulder. She extended her hand rather high. I was not too dumb not to understand what she wanted, and so I bent and kissed it, and it was no light kiss of gallantry, but I pressed my lips passionately against the little hand.

"May God keep you," she said as I turned away, breathing the "Amen" I dare not speak.

I heard the key turn in the lock behind me, and with a heart full of misgivings in spite of my stern and resolute purpose, I came out on deck again.

Girls and Convention.

The truth is that the free mind has made inevitable the free ankle. Our girls are no longer content to be tied up like bales of cotton. They have learned the use of their legs on the bicycle, on horseback and in the hockey field. The masculine leg is not a veiled mystery. Why should the feminine leg be regarded as a dreadful secret dedicated to the altars of the ballet? After all, our girls may not be quite so bold and quite so bad as we, in our flaming innocence, imagine. Perhaps they are right in assaulting the stupid tyranny of sex. Perhaps they are wise in forcing us to bear the shattering revelation that the end justifies the means. Perhaps they are doing a great and noble deed in delivering us from the delusion that the less we see of them the better. There is no doubt that they are rapidly emerging from the chrysalis of convention. They are asserting their right to be human beings and not bundles of obedient duplicity. They are shedding their self-consciousness as well as their clothes. The sooner we shed our self-consciousness the better.—James Douglas in London Opinion.

PATRIOTISM IN MEXICO.

Shown in the War of 1846-48 After Defeat at Cerro Gordo.

Ripley Hitchcock, who edited the book "Decisive Battles of America," published a year before the recent war in Mexico, had access to many obscure but important records. He brought to light many facts about the little known Mexican War of 1846-48.

Patriotism of an intense kind is here credited to the Mexicans. The editor of "Decisive Battles of America" relates that "with a constancy equal to anything recorded of the Roman Senate, the Mexican Congress on learning of the defeat at Cerro Gordo, had voted unanimously that any one opening negotiations with the enemy should be deemed a traitor, and the citizens had ratified the vote. Within six months Mexico had lost two splendid armies in two pitched battles against the troops now advancing against the capital, but she never lost heart."

Farmer Needs Ideas. The needs of ideals on the farm is urged by H. E. Eswine of the Ohio College of Agriculture.

"Failures in farming are often traceable to a lack of ideals," Mr. Eswine says. "The people who have made a pronounced success have been the people who have a clear and definite notion of the things they are trying to attain. Every man ought to try to make his home an ideal home because of his trying to make it measure up to some definite standard. Next, try to make your farm the best possible for its size and kind. To attain his ideal he must make a careful study of all his problems. Average amounts to the acre ought not to satisfy. Exceptional quality and quantity should be the mark set."

BASEBALL TOPICS OF THE HOUR

Carrigan to Manage Boston Americans Another Year.

WHITE SOX GET NEW PLAYERS

Russell Blackburne, Able Infielder, and Other Diamond Experts Secured by Comiskey—Rival Chicago Team Exercised No Options—Other Notes of Interest.

That President James R. McAleer of the world's champion Boston American league baseball club believes Manager William F. Carrigan capable of making the team again a pennant winner was demonstrated recently when he contracted with Carrigan to continue as manager during the season of 1914.

Carrigan was appointed manager of the team a few months ago, following the release of Jake Stahl, who piloted the club to a world's championship last year.

The Philadelphia Nationals have signed another minor league star. He is Anthony Marhefka, the shortstop of the Wilmington Tri-state league club. He will not join the Quakers until next spring.

Manager Joe Cantillon of the Minneapolis club has inaugurated a procedure that is being followed now by every other team in the American association, says a truthful Chicago correspondent. Early this year while he and his team were on their way from Minneapolis to Indianapolis to begin a series they arrived in Chicago on an open date, and Joe took the players out as his guests to see a game between the Cubs and Dodgers.

A new baseball league is to be organized in eight southern cities, according to plans of the promoters, which have been under way for months, and are now perfected. Chattanooga, Atlanta, Birmingham, New Orleans, Memphis, Little Rock and Shreveport are to compose the eight club circuit, which will be named the Dixie Baseball league.

Memphis promoters are behind the scheme. It is said that the Dixie league will be associated with the Federal league, which is operating in opposition to the National and American leagues.

Manager McGraw announces that because of the strenuousness of the race morning practice has been resumed. The real fact is, it is said, he objected to his men playing golf in the mornings and thought that if they must get in action it would be better on the ball field. McGraw believes golf a bad thing for a players' arm.

Look out for the Chicago White Sox next season. Several new players have been added recently to the White Sox roster for the coming winter by the exercise by President Comiskey of options and by outright purchase. Most notable of the lot is Russell Blackburne, the world's champion finned infielder, who, it is just announced, will return to the Sox from Milwaukee. It was the general opinion that Blackburne was lost to the Sox when the option on him was not exercised last August and he was drafted for the Cubs. That draft subsequently was canceled, and it seems the master of the White Sox through some arrangement renewed a claim on the shortstop's services.

Blackburne has been giving a demonstration all this season with the Milwaukee team that his injured knee had recovered from the effects of the operation which kept him out of the game for an entire season. He has been fielding in his old time form and hitting consistently. Hitting is what Manager Callahan needs more than anything else, and it is likely Blackburne will get another thorough trial and be given a chance to demonstrate that he can come back.

Other players recalled for White Sox use are Catcher Mayer and Pitcher Prough, from the Birmingham team. Mayer has been with the Sox before, but Prough is acquired under a blanket option. Pitcher Ralph Bell has been recalled from Winona and Pitcher W. E. Johnson (Walter) from the Racine team. Mel Wolfgang, another pitcher, has been recalled from Denver. Maggert, formerly a Mackman, has been obtained from Los Angeles, but by some arrangement will not report till spring, contrary to reports from the coast. Outfielder Roush, purchased from the Evansville club, has reported to Manager Callahan and looks like a good prospect, but may need some polishing. To offset some of these additions Don Rader, the third baseman who was taken on the eastern trip, has been sold to Lincoln.

According to the national commission's bulletin, President Murphy of the Chicago Cubs did not exercise any of the option rights he retained on players.

There will be no change in the policies of the Philadelphia Nationals because of the death of President William H. Locke, and the possibility of any change in the ownership, other than the transfer of Mr. Locke's stock to some member of his family, is remote. The day following Mr. Locke's death Vice President Baker of the Phillies, who is a cousin of the deceased magnate, called Doolin's players together and announced that everything would go on in the future as it had since the club changed hands last January and that Manager Doolin was in absolute charge of the playing end of the venture.

Who will succeed Mr. Locke as president of the club is not now known. The indications are that the same policy will be pursued as was the case when another president of the club, Senator Durham, died at Atlantic City in 1909. Then the officials of the club permitted the affairs of the club to run along until the annual meeting was held in December. As the chief stockholder, the Durham estate, did not care to continue the baseball investment, the club was sold to Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati.

Scarcity of Bird Food. The scarcity of insects due to dry conditions have made it very hard for the birds to pick up a living, according to the office force of the St. Paul Humane Society.

Robins especially, who subsist largely on angleworms, are having difficulty in feeding their young that are being hatched everywhere at this time. The worms have gone down far from the surface, where moisture is to be found, and are safe from the robins. "Not only are insects very scarce, but berries upon which birds are accustomed to feed are also dried up," said J. S. Fugate of St. Paul, secretary of the State Society for the Prevention of Cruelty.

In a short time the young birds will be hatching out and the old ones will have to hurry to keep them in food unless people help them," said Mr. Fugate.

Cableways. The use of cableways for a large variety of purposes is an interesting development of modern engineering. Such ways are employed on the Panama Canal, the steel cables being supported by lofty movable towers. The present limit of span is more than 2,500 feet, and the speed of the conveyors may exceed 1,800 feet per minute. Such ways span gorges, valleys, roads, railways, and obstructions of many kinds. The system is used for building dams, by dumping in a stream beneath; hauling logs from booms by means of cables stretched above the river; running blocks out of quarries up inclined cableways; dredging channels; piling lumber, steel plates and beams on cars, and various kinds of excavating.

Japan Honors Pioneer. Japan has erected a monument over the grave of the scientist who, nearly two centuries ago, introduced the sweet potato into the empire for general cultivation.

Disclosed by the Cards. "You're sure they're misnamed." "There is no doubt of it. She is an expert at bridge and he is a champion pinocle player."

Fishermen Catch Deer in River. Two Isaac Waltons while fishing in the White Salmon River for rainbow trout unexpectedly captured game of a different variety. Some three miles up the river from where the fishermen were casting their lines in a box canon, where the stream is very swift, logs were shooting by at a rapid rate and the sports also saw a deer come floating down in apparently an exhausted condition.

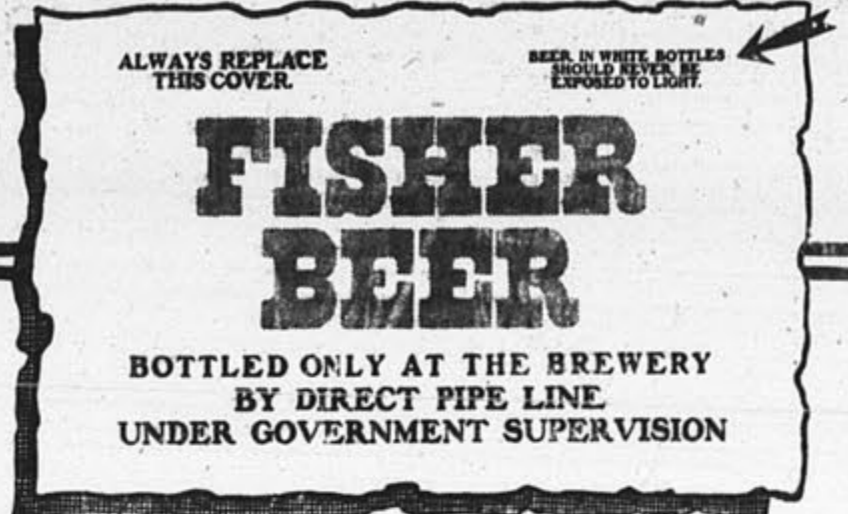

One of the fishermen risked his life by wading out and pulling the animal ashore. One leg was found broken and the deer was put out of its misery.

Pheasants and Squirrels in Indiana. Farmers in this county who have given over their lands to game preserves find that squirrels are more plentiful now than they have been at any time within twenty-five years.

A wood on the farm owned by Dr. S. S. Boots adjoining this city is alive with the bushy talls. They are tame and play about the farm stock and are not afraid of man or beast. No shooting is permitted on a game preserve and the Hungarian pheasants and squirrels are multiplying rapidly.—Indianapolis News.

FLAW IN PENSION BILL

Under Mother's Pension Law There is No Provision for Child When Mother Dies

That there is a flaw in the mothers' pension law, so-called, which was passed at the last session, developed today as the result of a ruling by the attorney general. Where a mother ceases to be the legal guardian of a child can be benefited under the act, as the money must be paid directly to the mother.

This decision from the state's legal department arose as the result of a case in Cass county. Probate Judge U. S. Eby referred to a case where the mother of a dependent child had been committed to an insane asylum. The child was placed in the care of the grandmother and funds were needed for the child's education.

Fellows informed Judge Eby that he had no legal right to enter an order fixing the amount for the support of the child.

LECTURES ON TEMPERANCE

Talks Given Yesterday in First M. E. and Presbyterian Churches Delighted Big Crowds

The lectures given by Mrs. Law under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. in the first Presbyterian and First M. E. churches yesterday were largely attended and greatly enjoyed.

Mrs. Law lectured in the morning in the First M. E. church and in the audience were a large number of children. The talk was on the evils of drinking and cigarette smoking. Mrs. Law possesses a fine delivery and statistics of a most interesting nature, which she has woven into an extra fine lecture. She talked in the evening in the First Presbyterian church to a large crowd.

This evening she will deliver a lecture in the Swedish M. E. church when she will talk of the white slave traffic in the slums of New York. Mrs. Law has had thirty years experience in slum work and her talk tonight should be a most interesting and instructive one.

THE SERVANT PROBLEM

Americans who can keep only one servant, and who often cannot keep that one very long, sometimes sigh for the supposedly domestic tranquillity of the old world—and yet here is a paragraph in the London Times saying that a certain marquis was summoned to a London police court for "keeping four male servants without having licenses," and fined forty shillings with costs. Life is not with out its troubles even for marquises with several servants. Licenses for servants and no golden grain belt beers! America for ours! advertisement. F. W. Arnsou, distributor.

SKIN GRAFTING FAILS TO SAVE CHILD'S LIFE

Girl Dies After Suffering Three Months From Burns Received at Crivitz

The heroic sacrifices of fourteen persons from Marinette and Crivitz who gave patches of skin for two skin grafting operations which it was hoped would save the life of Bertha Smith, the 15 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Smith of Crivitz, were made in vain.

Shortly after breakfast this morning the young patient's heart collapsed and she died in a few minutes. During the three months she had been a patient at the hospital there had been hopes that by means of the skin grafting operations her life might be saved but her long illness had sapped her vitality and death relieved her suffering.

While herding cattle at the farm of her parents at Crivitz last spring the girl got too near a bonfire and her clothes caught afire. She was terribly burned about the lower limbs. The wounds failed to heal and seven people on two occasions gave portions of skin for grafting operations.

Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Law will lecture in the First M. E. Church and Tuesday evening in the First Baptist church. Wednesday afternoon she will talk in the Presbyterian church and Wednesday evening in the Swedish Mission church. All afternoon sessions will be for women only.
