Photograph of the launching of the new Turkish battleship, Reshad the fifth, at Barrow, England. Unusual interest was displayed by the English public and great throngs gathered to witness the great monster make her initial dip.

Contrary to the claims of the promoters of air craft, the building of fighting vessels continues. Early enthusiasts asserted that with the aeroplane floating overhead, loaded with bombs, it would be an easy matter to destroy an entire fleet. During recent warfare a few bombs have been dropped and the navy has had considerable experience with the air-devils, but it is evident that the warship is not destined to immediate oblivion.

Church Notices

First Presbyterian Church
The services at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow morning will be unusually attractive. The quartette choir composed of Miss Gertrude Lind say, soprano, Miss Drusilla Shaw, contralto, Robert L. Johnson, tenor, and Oliver V. Thatcher, bass, who sang so acceptably last Sabbath morning will again lead the singing and contribute special musical numbers. The pastor will preach on the theme, "The man who is too busy."
The same quartette choir will sing again at the evening service and will give several helpful musical numbers in the hour of public worship. The pastor will preach on the theme, "What One Man can do." These services will be so helpful and attractive that no one can afford to miss them. The evening service will be brief. Lasting just one hour. Come to the evening service Sunday and you will not miss another during the year.
The Bible school had a fine attendance last Sunday. And every scholar is expected to be in their places tomorrow. Under the efficient leadership of the new superintendent, the Bible school will be the largest and best in many years. Chas. F. Jacobson is superintendent. COMING WITH BELLS ON

Fayette Farmer Expresses Surprises at Exhibits Shown at Northern Michigan State Fair

The farmers of Fayette and vicinity were fairly well represented at the Northern Michigan State fair but it is assured that they will be better represented in years to come. One Fayette farmer after having visited the fair yesterday said:

"I am completely taken off my feet by the number and quality of the farm exhibits. I knew we had bumper crops throughout Cloverland and I expected to see something out of the ordinary but what I did see so far exceeded my expectations that I am wholly unable to express myself. I thought, as doubtless did a number of other farmers living in my vicinity, that the fair would be made up of exhibitions from farms in the immediate vicinity of Escanaba. I have seen my error and you can be assured that every farmer in the vicinity of Fayette will be here with bells on in 1914

Worth Knowing.
If a package of value is to be sent a great distance, it is an excellent idea to provide the box with a cover of unbleached muslin securely sewed in place. If the shelves and floors of closets are wiped with water which is hot with cayenne pepper, insects will be kept away. Borax and alum are good to put into the cracks.

Joseph Peterson returned to Chicago this morning after a visit in the city with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Peterson.

"FINE FEATHERS."

Eugene Walter apparently is a leader in an intrigue to purify public morals by setting upon the stage pictures of motives at the psychological moment. He seems to have a rare faculty of picking up a national tendency and dramatizing it and he is said to have used this faculty when he wrote "Fine Feathers," the play which H. H. Frazee will present for the first time here at the Peterson on tomorrow night.

Most of Walter's plays have been unusual. It is the element which has made them stand apart from other plays. It made "Paid in Full," "The Wolf" and "The Easiest Way" attractive.

"Fine Feathers" is said to be a play well named, the story of a simple-hearted, devoted little wife who yields to her yearning for pretty things. Her husband, clean charactered, wholesome, manly, idealistic, refuses to make $40,000 by falsifying a report. The man who offered him the chance snaps his fingers at his old-fashioned honesty and, secretly, appeals to the wife. He uses keen-edged weapons, ridicule and appeal to woman's weakness, her natural love for fine feathers. The husband refuses to succumb. The wife accuses, mocks, pleads, threatens, and then leaves her cozy little bungalow home. And she leaves behind her every chance of love, of happiness, of faith, of understanding.

The husband-love deadens consequence. The bungalow becomes a memory of a buried yesterday.

Two years pass. And the rising curtain reveals an interior of shaded sconces and candelabras, formal Chippendales—an effective contrast to the humble bungalow and the "few lohomese chickens pecking around."

He had relented and yielded. And it is upon this motive that the author has built his play from which the law of compensation has been deducted as the moral.

C. C. Carlisle of Marquette was in the city on business yesterday.

CHAPTER XIII. In Which We Enter the Place of Horror THE statues or images rose from a kind of terrace a foot or so above the level of the platform, paved as before. They formed a sort of cloister, or colonnade, around the central platform, which rose twenty or twenty-five feet above. On the center of the raised platform or altar stood three or more of the same monster heads, placed one after another, the largest one being in the middle. They were in line, all looking in the same direction which my compass told me was due west. They were staring, therefore, toward the setting sun.

So far every detail in the old buccaneer's parchment was absolutely correct. I was certain now that the treasure was there and that we could find it. And a certain exultation filled me. At least we had not come upon a fool's errand, though what good the treasure would do us I did not stop to consider. "We have nothing more to do here," I answered as I led the way to the edge of the low altar.

"Oh, let's go back!" begged my mistress. "There is no treasure here, I am sure." "Nay," I answered. "With your permission, Mistress Lucy, I intend to explore further into the matter. Let's see." I held the lantern high above my head as I spoke. There above a certain entrance I saw a rude Latin cross. "Look!" I continued. "Some one has been here. 'Tis the sign of the cross!"

What Could the Poor Man Do? An amusing story is going the rounds in Fleet street about an editor who, to the surprise of those under him, had just accepted a large batch of contributions. The manuscripts were not of any remarkable brilliance; indeed, in the ordinary way they would nearly all have been returned to the senders with the usual formal announcement that the editor regretted he was unable to make use of them. The explanation of this apparent eccentricity on the part of the editor was that the other evening he took the manuscripts home in his bag to read at leisure. Between the office and his station he stopped to buy a bottle of whisky, which he put in the bag beside the manuscripts. In the train the bag got an unnoticed bang, and when he arrived home he was horrified to find the bottle broken and the manuscripts smelly strongly of whisky. Now, that editor has a great reputation for dignity and sobriety, and—well, there you are!—Pearson's Weekly.

World's Highest Monument. The highest memorial monument in the world is to be erected at San Antonio, Tex., in honor of the soldiers who defended the Alamo in that city against the Mexicans during the war for the independence of Texas. The tower will be 803 feet high and will be the highest structure of any kind in the world with the exception of the Eiffel tower in Paris. This structure will be a great deal more than a memorial monument, since it will contain four auditoriums, a museum, art gallery, statuary hall, and an individual exhibition room for each county in the state. The cost is estimated at $2,000,000. The base of the structure will be of solid granite and 50 feet high. Surmounting the ledge at the top of this base will be statues of heroic size, of Travis, Crockett, Bowie and Bonham, the four leaders of the Texans who were killed while defending the Alamo—Popular Mechanics.

CAPACITIES OF THE SOIL.

The average corn production in this country is about 25 bushels to the acre. In a good year it may rise to 30 or thereabouts. Yet here and there in many localities, we hear of farmers who get 60, 75 and occasionally more than 100 bushels. The average production of wheat the country over is barely 15 bushels; it is not much over 20 in localities especially favorable for wheat raising. Yet occasionally 75 bushels are raised. The south does not get half a bale of cotton from an acre, and very many of its acres yield a good deal less. Five years ago a Mississippi farmer had 160 acres of land and a mortgage of $900, and couldn't get credit at the store for a plug of tobacco. But he had brains enough to be impressed with the efforts of the department of agriculture to increase production, and he was willing to be taught by the "book farmers," says the Philadelphia Record. The first thing he was told to do was to break the land eight inches deep. He had small plows and two poles that were unequal to this task; but he borrowed a team from a neighbor, and instead of "making" three bales from 12 acres, he "made" one on a single acre, all that he had applied intensive culture to. He got half a bale an acre in 1908, three-fourths of a bale an acre in 1909, and he expects ultimately to get two bales from an acre. He is out of debt, has four fine mules, and he has a son and a daughter in college. The storekeepers are chasing him around trying to sell him goods on credit. He was willing to learn from the "book farmers," and it has paid him well.

The French government has reached the conclusion that the drum is no longer necessary in military affairs. Acting upon the recommendation of a military commission, orders have been issued to cast it out of the service. The history of the drum is most ancient and honorable. The Egyptians employed it and the Greeks attribute its origin to Bacchus. The Spanish conqueror, Pizarro, is said to have found drums in South American temples. The snakes of Ireland, we are told, fled from the Emerald Isle because of the drum beats of St. Patrick. The French report sets forth that the drum is a serious encumbrance in marching; that rain impairs its usefulness; that its calls cannot be distinguished in time of battle; that it consumes a period of years to turn out an efficient drummer, and that by abandoning the drum many thousands of youths will be released from the service.

Perhaps the worst infant prodigy on record was Christian Heinecker, born at Lubeck in 1721. At ten months he could speak and repeat every word spoken to him, at twelve months he knew by heart a great portion of the Bible, at three years he spoke and read French and Latin as easily as his native tongue. In his fourth year he employed himself in the study of religion and church history, and his fame as a scholar spread so that the king of Denmark sent for him, and was astonished at his learning. Just before he was five, however, Heinecker fell sick and died—and the world breathed more freely.

Bank presidents are protesting against "laundering money" on the ground that the washed bills are hard to tell from counterfeit. Evidently filthy lucre has its advantages.

M'LOUGHLIN ON PLAYING TENNIS

The International Champion Gives Valuable Advice.

ACCURACY IS IMPORTANT.

Held Racket Firmly and Do Not Try to "Paste" the Ball—Patience, Ambition and Headwork Are Necessary For a Successful Career on Courts.

By MAURICE E. M'LOUGHLIN, World's Greatest Tennis Player.

A beginner at tennis should remember that accuracy should always precede speed. Any one can "paste" the ball, but it takes long practice, splendid control, to place it within an inch of a certain line. To firmly hold your racket, to have it under your thumb, so to speak, is the first lesson to learn. It should never slip or roll in your hand. The second lesson is to learn not to "slap" the ball, but to follow through with the racket every stroke that is made. Just as a jerky stroke in billiards spoils a shot, so a "non-follow" of the racket constitutes only half a stroke. The racket must be swung with a natural arm movement that ends easily and not with a jerk. At first it seems a trifle hard, but in the end it means much to a finished tennis player. Common sense, close application and a realization that one can always learn something new will help the beginner wonderfully.

To my mind there are three fundamental principles to be followed by the boy or man who seeks to shine at tennis. He must have patience, ambition and headwork. It may be said that this trio is necessary in every walk of life, in every effort to reach a goal. Well, I found that tennis differs from no other goal in any particular point. The first requisite, patience, is important, for tennis players of merit have had to bow to that for years, to make it an instinct, before they succeeded. Even after tennis has been mastered patience may be necessary in important matches. For instance, many a set has been won by patiently waiting for some brilliant streak of the opponent to pass off.

Ambition an Aid.

Ambition, the second requisite, is something that cannot be taught. It must be a natural trend. If allowed free play with his thoughts, is there a baseball fan who in his youth did not envy Wagner, Chance, Mathewson, Cobb or some other shining star of the game? When I first saw a real tennis player instinctively I picked out my game, my fun for the leisure hours. I little dreamed of ever playing at the heralded Newport Casino. That seemed miles and miles too far from California. But ambition had as much to do with it as anything else. There can be no limit to this point.

Headwork, the third requisite, is far more necessary in tennis than probably any other sport. Those who scoff at it those who see only the knocking back of a little rubber ball, are misguided. Tennis calls for more headwork than is apparent even to many tennis players. The sharp eye, perfect footwork, finished stroke, will avail a player nothing if he doesn't use his head. One game may beat a famous star, but may utterly fail against a weaker player, and the use of headwork only will point out the necessity for a change of pace and methods. Without being egotistical, I believe the three named principles have taught me tennis.

Know Your Weakness.

There are, of course, any number of subqualities called for in perfecting a game of tennis. There is one in particular that almost ranks with the above principles, and that is a thorough realization of a known weakness. A famous tennis player once said, "I win because I play my weak spots." No sounder epigram was ever spoken for the ambitious tennis player. It means that easy victory is often less preferable than a constant practice of a weak stroke. To succeed at tennis there must be a desire to learn and overcome a weak part of a game. If you don't correct the faults you see, if you don't fight them off, your game will soon develop into a one-sided one. It will be replete with weak spots, habits hard to eradicate. A good player will willingly lose a game he knows he could win just to play or practice a weak spot of his game.

Portuguese Boxer a Comer.

Joe Azevedo, who recently defeated Ad Wolgast, is a Portuguese. He is a product of the four round game and until he defeated Wolgast was never regarded seriously. In spite of the fact that Wolgast was in no condition, Azevedo's victory has caused Frisco ring followers to wonder if they have not been overlooking a coming star. Azevedo is a well proportioned little fellow, with a good punch and plenty of speed and cleverness.

YOST SEES NO HOODOO IN THE NUMBER 13

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 20.—With twenty-five candidates out for work on the first morning of practice, the football season started here in earnest Tuesday. The response to the invitations sent out by the athletic authorities to likely men was excellent and before the end of the week fully forty men will be hard at work on Ferry field and this number will be greatly swelled when the student body starts coming next week. In fact, the number of apparently open positions on the team is greater than it has been in years past and owing to this fact a larger number of candidates is expected.

The three coaches, headed by Yost, are already on the ground and planning the work. Yost will be aided this year by Prentis Douglas, former fullback who will not only help with the varsity but also have full charge of the freshmen squad which looks good this year. The other assistant will be "Germany" Schulz, the giant center whom Walter Camp honored by placing on his list all American team. Schulz has been coaching the Wisconsin line for the past two years and the success of that team has in a large share been credited to him. Steve Farrell, trainer, is also back on the job and the number of coaches will be increased later in the season when many of the old stars will be invited to come back and help. This system of inviting the old stars to come back has a double advantage for it not only gives the team the benefit of their experience but their presence puts a fighting spirit into the squad that is hard to obtain otherwise.

The work for the next week will be confined largely to the rudiments of the game and getting the men into good condition. According to Yost the squad is more or less green and the elementary points must be mastered first. Nine "M" men will form the nucleus of the squad although the competition for positions will be just as keen for them as anybody. Bushnell and Hughtitt will be the only old backfield men back and the making of an entirely new backfield will be Yost's greatest problem as the line will be more or less left to Schulz. The decision of Craig not to play is a serious blow to the outlook but the condition of his leg makes it impossible for him to come out. It is probable that little Hurdler will be groomed at winter to try for track next spring but his condition is not promising.

The preliminary training table started at the Michigan Union this week and will be continued throughout preliminary practice when the squad for the season training table will be selected. This is the first year the table has been maintained at the Union and the experiment will be watched with considerable interest.

The first game, the annual struggle with Case, will be staged at Ann Arbor on October 4th, and considering the inexperience of the squad the task of whipping a machine into shape by that time will call for an enormous amount of work. But Yost, scoring the sixteenth year of coaching here, does not seem to be greatly worried over the prospects.

THE WORLD TOUR.

Director General Bunnell Confers With Comiskey of Chicago.

Dick Bunnell, director general of the White Sox-Giants tour of the world, reached Chicago recently after stopping in New York on his return from a trip over Europe blazing the trail for the athletes. He spent some time conferring with President Comiskey.

Mr. Bunnell is planning to get in touch with Secretary of the Navy Daniels to ascertain more details of the government's plan to send a fleet of twenty-five vessels on a visit to the Mediterranean early next year. If the itinerary of the White Sox and Giants can be made to match the stay of the United States tars at any of the Mediterranean ports it is expected much dignity can be added to the visit of the athletes, to say nothing of the kale that could be extracted from the able seamen.

Wells Knocks Out Moir.

Bombardier Wells, heavy weight champion of England, retrieved his previous defeat at the hands of "Gunner" Jim Moir, the ex-champion, by knocking him out in the fifth round in a bout that took place in Canterbury music hall.

Big Price For Player.

Larry Chappelle, the sensational outfielder of the Milwaukee team in the American association, was sold to the Chicago White Sox.

President Comiskey gave an outfielder, John Beall, a catcher, whose name was not made public, and a "cash consideration" for the player, who promises to be a star.

Chappelle reported at once. He had been batting around 350 and fielding with the best of them, and practically every club in the major league bid for his services, and, according to report, bid in fancy figures.

President Comiskey was quoted as saying that Chappelle is the highest priced baseball player ever purchased, but would not give the figures. Rumor has it that the cash consideration was $15,000.

60 PER CENT RISE IN THE COST OF FOOD

Big Advance in Living Expense Over Average for 1890-1900 Decade

Washington, D. C., Sept. 20.—The cost of living on June 15 was approximately sixty per cent higher than the average between 1890 and 1900; more than three per cent higher than it was two years ago.

Investigations of retail prices in Cleveland and thirty-nine other cities conducted by experts of the bureau of labor show prices practically at the same level as last November when the high records of the last quarter century were reached.

Fourteen articles of food were investigated, and compared with the average prices between 1890 and 1900. Every one except sugar showed a marked advance. Bacon which led in the soaring went up 128.5 per cent.

Other articles which showed remarkable advances were: Pork chops 111 per cent; round steak 102.5; smoked ham 84; hens 76.8; sirloin steak 75.2; rib roast 75; lard 66.5; cornmeal 57.3; potatoes 44.4; butter 41.3; eggs 40.8; milk 38.4, and flour 28.6. During the same period sugar showed a decline of 8 per cent. During the past year prices of eleven of fifteen articles investigated went up.

Bacon advanced 162 per cent; smoked ham 14.1 pork chops 13.4; hens 11.8; eggs 11.7; round steak 16.1; sirloin steak 9.8; lard 7.2; rib roast 6.8; butter 5.8, and milk 4.1.

The other four declined as follows: Potatoes 31.9; sugar 15.2; wheat flour 7.7 and cornmeal 3.9.

Prices were investigated in Atlanta, Baltimore, Birmingham, Boston, Buffalo, Charleston, S. C.; Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dallas, Denver, Detroit, Fall River, Mass.; Indianapolis, Jacksonville, Fla.; Kansas City, Mo.; Little Rock, Ark.; Los Angeles, Louisville, Manchester, N. "FINE FEATHERS"

BY EUGENE WALTER

ensely interesting, excruciatingly funny, of a rare quality of clean humor and sparkling wit, "Fine Feathers" up to the final moment is exciting and intellectually delightful. It is the play by Eugene Walter, which H. H. Frazee produced in his Theatre, Chicago on Aug. 12th, and which ran there until Christmas to be followed by an equally successful engagement in the Astor Theatre, New York, and the play which enjoyed an unprecedented run of complete year of performances. Frazee will present "Fine Feathers" for the first time here at the Peterson on Sunday, Sept. 21.

The play is said to be a magnificent and yet subtle exposition of what all legitimate graft—the manner which certain factors in business to their consciences through technicalities and recognize no more distant "getting caught."

Reynolds, who lives in decent style with his pretty wife, knows a time payment bungalow isn't what she deserves, and she knows it. They were both born and raised in better things, for the glories of milliner and the frolics of Broadway and a college friend of Bob's led him the way. Cement expert great contracting company, all to do is to "pass" on an infidelity of cement that is "good" to save $200,000 for his friend, literally find $40,000 for himself the deserving and charming wife. He knows it isn't right everybody does such things and he, gloriously ingenious, says it stealing. It's only finding the "picking up the loose ends," as John Brand, the successful business man puts it. Then, Wall Street, the brokers, the crash, the overdraft, the bad check, they are all piling up. They want to forget, to evade, but they can't forget it. The law of compensation is cleverly made and the crux of the denouement in this powerful play.

Men of Wealth and Prominence Think Lightly of Obligations to Physician.

He was dressed immaculately and he escorted to a seat at a table in a "trottery" a woman whose dress and jewels bespoke wealth and taste. The elderly physician whispered to a friend:

"I'm wondering if that blue liddle buck knows that he owes me $190 for bringing him into the world? His father was a well-to-do merchant living on Madison street when his son was born, but not a cent could I ever get out of him in the days when I wanted money badly. He always said that he was hard up, and wanted the money more than I did. Yet when he died, years later, his estate was worth $200,000, and that young man got it all."

This physician, long retired from practice, said it was no uncommon thing for him and his fellow practitioners to meet socially or to see moving about the fashionable hotels and restaurants men and women of whom it could be said that they "owed for their borrowing."

"Doctors were easy marks when I first went into the practice of my profession," he went on. "I located just below Fourteenth street when I began as a general practitioner. Doctors' bills were the last ones that were paid in those days, and when I sold my practice and retired I had owing me between $32,000 and $33,000. For I had a large practice, especially in maternity cases. Every dollar was due from men who could amply afford to pay."

"The very poor people paid their bills as promptly as they were able, but from the moderately well to do class it was almost impossible to collect. Of course I could have sued and perhaps recovered from some of them. But I didn't like to bring such suits, for fear it would hurt my business, and they knew it."

"So years rolled by, debts became outlaid, and at the end of forty-two years' practice I found myself with that mass of bad debts and no chance to collect a penny of them. Mine is not a singular case, as any of the old time physicians can tell you."—Chicago Post.

Franklin's Coat.

When Benjamin Franklin, as minister to France, was formally presented to Louis XVI, he gained admiration for republican simplicity by appearing in a plain, ordinary suit. But when Nathaniel Hawthorne made the discovery that Franklin's tailor had appointed him of the gold embroidered costume he had ordered, simple-minded republicans were considerably discontented.

WILL EXILE YOUNG
 RACINE "BAD MAN"

Incorrigible, 6 Year Old Richard Tucklowsky to be Sent to St. Louis School.

Racine, Wis., Sept. 19.—Richard Tucklowsky, Racine's bold 6 year old bandit and all around boy bad man, is to be exiled from his home town. He boasts a record of more than thirty thefts and thirty other minor crimes. Having compelled his special guardian, Mrs. George C. Boyd, to leave two homes because of the objections of the landlord to the boy's presence in the flats and following his depredations of last Sunday, in which he robbed two automobiles of watches and tried to rob the home of Chief of Police Henry C. Baker, the authorities have decided to send him away. A large St. Louis school for abnormal children will probably receive poor Dick.

Paper Raises Fund.

A local paper has undertaken a campaign to raise $700 to pay the expenses of the boy at the St. Louis school for a year. More than $100 has already been pledged. The lad's parents, who confess their inability to manage him, have given their consent to the exile plan.

Mrs. Boyd, who three weeks ago offered to take the lad to her home, has twice been ejected because of the presence of the lad in the flat. The first landlord objected and compelled her to move two weeks ago. Following the lad's escapade on Sunday, the second landlord objected, and the Boyds were compelled to move again.

Breaks Good Spell.

Under the guardianship of Mrs. Boyd, the boy kept quiet for two weeks. Last Sunday his guardian allowed him to go home to see his mother.

Before he was caught by the chief of police in the act of robbing the chief's home he had made three thefts and had taken two companions into cigar and candy stores to teach them the game.

The boy has been taken by the police sixty times. Twice he sneaked into St. Luke's hospital and, undressing, went to bed. He was not found until next morning, when detectives after an all night search located him fast asleep.

Boy is Cunning.

Richard's career of crime started a year ago, when he began entering the homes of neighbors and taking clothes and other valuables. Since then he has grown in proficiency. His cunning is remarkable and his ability to explain embarrassing situations would do credit to an accomplished criminal.

He calls himself Bad Dick, and proudly shows his friends papers containing accounts of his escapades.

WILL USE CONVICTS IN HIGHWAY WORK

Wisconsin Will Try the Plan at First in the North, the Governor Announces.

Appleton, Wis., Sept. 19.—Convict labor from the state prison will be used on the roads of Wisconsin early next year, and possibly late this season, according to Governor McGovern. In speaking today of prison labor, the governor said that the commission is now working on the problem and, while it is possible that some of the prisoners might be liberated this fall for road purposes, in all probability the move would not take place until spring.

The men will be sent to the northern part of the state, the governor being of the opinion that the fright it might give to unprotected women and children to have unguarded prisoners working in their midst might be too much, and he thinks it best to first place the men in a more unsettled region of the north and gradually work them into other districts.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE PRIZE GUESSERS MADE

Between Two and Three Thousand Guesses Registered at the Various Booths

The guessing contests at the fair attracted their full share of attention and practically every merchant who offered a prize to the best guesser reports that between two and three thousand guesses were registered.

The Fair Savings Bank store offered $10 in trade to the person who guessed nearest the number of oats in a jar shown and $5 to the second nearest. Mrs. P. Kallin of 214 Stephenson avenue guessed 10,300 and there by won the prize, the jar containing 10,291. Paul Cholette guessed 10,250 and won the second prize.

Peter Olson offered a Mackinac jacket to the champion guesser and J. R. Frances of 112 North Norris street is announced as the winner.

The Escanaba Steam laundry offered a cash prize of $10 to the person guessing nearest the number of collars washed in the laundry during the month of July. Charles Girard guessed 13,999 and won the prize. The actual number of collars laundered was 13,951.

CASKET NEARLY NINE FEET LONG

Coffin Made for "Big Louie" is the Largest Ever Turned Out by Factory.

Undertaker Crawford of Hancock received from Chicago yesterday morning the casket in which the remains of "Big Louie" Mollanen will be laid to rest this afternoon. The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock, with services at the Finnish Lutheran church. The body will be interred in Lakeside cemetery. The funeral will attract people from all parts of the copper country.

The casket was made to special order and is said to be the largest ever turned out. When the telegram giving the measurements was received, the factory thought a mistake had been made and wired Mr. Crawford for a confirmation. The outside measurements are 8 feet, 10 1/2 inches in length, 3 feet, 2 inches in width and 22 inches in depth. The casket is black, has four handles on each side and weighs close to 300 pounds. This is double the weight of the average casket.

A large crowd was attracted to the morgue yesterday morning when the casket arrived. It was taken into the chapel, in which the remains had been kept since the autopsy. It required eight men to lift the body into the coffin.

It is doubtful if even those who had known "Big Louie" for several years were acquainted with the young giant's actual size. Information pro-

FAIR OF 1913 NOW HISTORY

 Many Exhibits Sold

During the progress of the fair a large number of the articles on exhibition were transferred by purchase. Especially was this so in the fine arts department where fancy work, rugs, pictures, etc., that caught the eye of visitors, were bought. In this department there were over two thousand entries so that those in charge more than had their hands full today in seeing that each article was returned to the exhibitor or to the purchaser.

Visitors Were Tired

The crowd attending last night was not so large as was expected. Those who had visited the fair grounds practically every day since the opening were weary and as a consequence those that did go to the grounds last evening did not tarry long and shortly before ten o'clock the merchants began dismantling their booths.

Band Contributed to Success

The Escanaba Military band contributed in no small measure to the success of the fair. The concerts each day were hugely enjoyed and loudly praised. It was an extremely difficult matter to convince visitors that the band had been organized less than two months and the fact speaks volumes for Leader Salmon and the members of the band. J. A. Allo, who gave all his time and attention to the band is likewise deserving of much credit. The Gladstone band, appearing on two days of the fair, likewise received much deserved praise. The organization is one of which Gladstone will be proud, despite the fact that this band too is yet in its infancy.

Merchants Deserve Praise

The merchants of Escanaba and the manufacturers in this vicinity deserve unlimited praise for the part they took in making the exhibition the grand success it was. They entered into the spirit of the affair with a zeal that could not but mean success with a large "S". The various booths never looked better and displays were never more attractive.

They Made The Fair

To the raisers of farm and garden produce in Delta county belongs the lion's share of the credit for the week's exhibition. Practically every farmer in the county was represented through an exhibit of some kind and it was the exhibits that made the fair. They cooperated with those in charge in every possible way and the fair authorities are duly grateful, and George Cobb in charge of exhibits.

The Fair Officials

President Strom, Sec. Peterson, in fact the head of every department and every director cannot be praised too loudly nor too long. They labored almost night and day for weeks to make of the fair a success and their reward lies in the indisputable fact that the Northern Michigan State fair of 1913 was the greatest of great successes.

Miss Dora Themel, a well known and greatly esteemed school teacher of this city and Herman Brukhardt of Lathrop were united in marriage at four o'clock this afternoon in the German Lutheran church by Rev. William Peters, the pastor.

A number of the friends of the couple witnessed the ceremony. Mr. Brukhardt is employed as a telegraph operator at Lathrop and the young people will make their home there.

SOLO A REAL TREAT

Trombone Selection by Gene Brouillard Delighted Concert Audience at Fair

The program given by the band yesterday afternoon and last evening was a particularly fine one and standing out clearly on the program was the trombone solos "Asleep in the Deep" played by Gene Brouillard.

The selection, one with which every one is familiar, was rendered in such tone and with such feeling as only the most finished musician can give and the solo met with a most enthusiastic reception. Mr. Brouillard has located permanently in Escanaba, coming here from southern California.

"FINE FEATHERS" BOUND TO PROVE BIG TREAT

Production at Peterson Tomorrow Night One of the Greatest Successes of a Decade

"Fine Feathers" comes to the Peterson opera house tomorrow night and Escanaba theatergoers will doubtless take advantage of the big treat to be offered them.

The production is one of the acknowledged successes of the past decade. Eugene Walters, author of "Paid in Full," "The Easiest Way," "The Wolf" and "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," is responsible for "Fine Feathers" and those who have witnessed any of the above productions may know what to expect tomorrow night—a gripping drama of everyday life dealt with in a masterful manner. "Fine Feathers" is bound to be the season's big theatrical treat and those who miss it will probably never cease to regret it.

TRIAL IS POSTPONED

Speed Hearing on Monday—Grant Stephenson Added to the List of Speeders

The trial of William Sauers, who is charged with violating the city speed ordinance which was to have taken place before Judge McEwen this morning, has been postponed until Monday owing to the illness of Attorney Jennings, attorney for the defense.

Motorcycle Cop Carney added another to his list yesterday afternoon when he made information against Grant Stephenson for speeding.

When Gas Was Used for Street Lights.

The first street to be illuminated by gas was the Golden lane, in London, when the new method of lighting was first used 196 years ago on August 16, 1807. Pall Mall was lighted by gas in 1809, and between 1813 and 1820 the system was installed throughout London. Gas lighting was introduced in New York in 1823, and in Paris in 1819. The first experiments with illuminating gas were made in 1792 by Mr. Murdoch, in Cornwall, England. In 1833 the Lyceum theater, in London, was lighted with gas, and in the following year a Manchester mill adopted the system. The cost of illuminating gas continued high until kerosene and electricity forced a gradual reduction. In 1860 the price per thousand cubic feet ranged from $1.50 in Pittsburgh, to $7. Philadelphia had the lowest rate of any big city, except Pittsburgh, $2.15. In New York and Boston the rate was $2.50, and a $3 rate prevailed in Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit, Milwaukee and most of the middle western cities. In Maine, upper New York and Canada, the rates ranged even higher, as high as $7.

Parents Too Humble.

The municipality of Wiesbaden, Germany, has dismissed its police chief for the reason that he maintained relations "not responding to the dignity of his high position" with persons belonging to the "lowest social classes."

The "lowest social class" of people with whom the luckless official was associating happens to be his own nearest relatives.

According to the decree of the municipal council, a man who comes from very humble origin ought to stop seeing or receiving in his house his father and mother unless he prefers to run the chance of losing his job for not keeping up the "dignity" imposed by his high position.

The chief has appealed to the authorities in Berlin.

Crack English Team Winning over American Team.

The crowd watching the professionals four ball golf match at Baltuerol Links, Short Hill, N. J., when Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, the marvelous English golf champions, won over Alex Smith and George Low the American team.

For a while it looked as though the crack English team would not play. The eternal money question arose and it is said they declined to play until properly compensated. The promoters claimed that Vardon and Ray demanded too much money, and the latter took the position that they stood in the same light as any other high class professionals and were entitled to adequate compensation. Judging from the fact that they played, their demands must have been complied with.
