E. J. Carlson Paroled.

Edward J. Carlson, who was brought to this city recently by Sheriff Curson on a charge of embezzlement, pleaded guilty when arraigned this morning in court and Judge Flannigan placed him on parole, instructing him that the sum which he had stolen, about $725, must be returned in five years and that his parole will terminate upon his payment of the same.

Carlson was formerly the manager of the Wear-U-Well shoe company in this city and left during the spring. His accounts were to be short and he was located in Virginia, Minn. He consented to return to Escanaba without extradition.

SCHMIDT DECLARED SANE

New York, Oct. 21.—Four all-star experts, after examining "Father" Hans Schmidt, have declared that he is sane. SOME NEW BOOKS AT THE LIBRARY

Several splendid new sets of books have been placed on the shelves of the new Carnegie Library recently, as follows:

The complete works of Robert Louis Stevenson, including a biography, a volume of new letters, as much of "Weir of Hermlston" as he had finished when he died, and considerable miscellany which cannot be found in any other work in this country, besides his well known stories, essays and poems. This "Thistle Edition" contains everything that Stevenson is known to have written, and is therefore a great addition to any library which is so fortunate as to possess it.

"Great Debates in American History," is 14 volumes is proving very useful to debaters as well as to history students and general readers. These debates are classified according to subject; each volume containing debates on such subjects as finance, foreign relations, social and economic conditions, tariff, etc. It covers the field of American history, from the debates in the English Parliament on the Stamp Act to the debates in Congress during Taft's administration.

Nature lovers will be interested in a beautifully illustrated edition of Jno. Burrough's works in fifteen volumes which has just been purchased.

Thomas Bailey Aldrich's stories and poems are not as well known as they should be. He is a poet in prose as well as in verse and has infused much of the charm and picturesque phrases which characterize his poetry, into his stories and essays. This illustrated set of his works is in ten volumes, which includes Greenleaf's Life of Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

Stoddard's Lectures will need no introduction to the readers of Escanaba, nor will Mark Twain's works. Complete sets of both of these works are now ready for circulation.

VICTIMS OF AIRSHIP WERE BURIED TODAY

Six Sons of the Emperor are the Chief Mourners—Coffins Covered With Flowers

(By Associated Press.)

Berlin, Germany, Oct. 21.—Impressive joint funeral services were held today over the bodies of 23 of the victims of the Zeppelin airship disaster, of last Friday.

The ceremonies took place in the old garrison church near the imperial palace and was attended by the emperor, express, crown princess, Count Zeppelin and thousands of military men.

Attaches of all foreign legations were there in full uniform. The coffins were covered with flowers.

Seven of the bodies were buried in the cemetery adjoining the garrison church, while the other dead were taken to their homes in various parts of the country.

The six sons of the emperor acted as the chief mourners at the funeral. Emperor William showed unmistakable signs of deep grief during the ceremony and the empress was seen to resort to her handkerchief upon several occasions, to dry the tears that could not be kept back by her.

Several members of the ill fated party were personal friends of the royal family and their loss is keenly felt by them.

MEET WITH DELAYS AND STRONG CURRENTS

Earl Ellis and Mother Having Pleasant Trip Despite Danger of Paddling in Strong Currents

Mrs. H. J. Ellis and son, Earl, who left here several weeks ago, on a canoe trip to Greenville, Texas, are at present encamped at Asylum Point, waiting for the wind to subside and the lake to calm down before making break for the Fox River and the next day of their journey toward the Mississippi. They have been at Asylum Point since Sunday, Oct. 12.

The Oshkosh Northwestern comments on the trip thusly: "As soon as the lake calms down, they will point their canoe up river, through Lake Butte des Morts, up the Fox river to Portage and thence down the Wisconsin and Mississippi rivers to the mouth of the father of waters."

"They left Marquette (which is in Upper Michigan, on the shores of Lake Superior) on September 17. In their sixteen-foot canoe, carrying about 200 pounds of tent, bedding and provisions mother and son embarked on their long river journey in the wild Escanaba river at a point twenty miles from home. Reaching the city of Escanaba they started paddling through Green Bay, reaching at Marinette, Wis., Oconto, Wis., and Green Bay city. Since then they have been paddling up the Fox until the heavy sea rolling on Lake Winnebago halted them at Asylum point Sunday.

"I tell you we have had some strenuous paddling up this river," said ELLIS in telling of the journey, "and we are facing another hundred miles of hard work against the current. But I expect it will be easier when we get through Portage and start down stream."

"No, my mother had never done a great deal of paddling up to the time we started, and she was not in the best of health when we set out. But the outdoor exercise has helped her."

HOCKEY GAMES WITH TEAMS FROM CANADA

President Webb Notified That Ontario Will Recognize New American Association.

Houghton, Oct. 21.—Charles E. Webb, president of the American Amateur Hockey association, has returned to Houghton from an Eastern business trip in the interest of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad, for which he is general agent on the upper peninsula, and on this trip he had a conference with J. Ross Robertson, president of the Ontario Hockey association, and Francis H. Nelson, a member of the executive committee of that association.

As a result of the conference Mr. Webb is able to announce that the Ontario Hockey association, the leading amateur hockey organization of Canada, will recognize the new American association. This recognition will extend to the permission of games between American and O. H. A. teams and, very probably, to an international championship, between the championship of the two associations.

President Robertson assured President Webb that the O. H. A. had in the past objected to games with American teams because the O. H. A. had in each case to conduct an investigation of the amateur status of the teams. The difficulty is now obviated by the organization of an amateur association to regulate American hockey and to which the O. H. A. may refer any questions of amateur ethics.

Mr. Webb returned much impressed with Mr. Robertson and Mr. Nelson. The former is a wealthy newspaper owner. He devotes much of the time of a very busy life to the promotion of clean amateur sport in Canada. Mr. Nelson is sporting editor of the Toronto Globe and probably Canada's highest sporting authority. Both men are much impressed with the latest United States effort to put hockey on a sound basis as a sport of national scope.

The American Amateur Hockey association's executive committee is now at work on a draft of the official hockey rules. In general they follow the rules played for years in the copper country having the Quebec rules as a basis.

EXTEND COUNTY ROAD SYSTEM THROUGH THIS CITY AND GLADSTONE

PETITIONS NOW BEING CIRCULATED TO ASK COUNTY BOARD TO ACT ON MATTER

BETTER ROADS WOULD BE ASSURED

County Board Will be Asked to Put it up to Voters at Special or Regular Election

Petitions are being circulated throughout this city and Gladstone asking that the county board submit to the voters of the city at either special or regular election the matter of extending the county road system through Escanaba and Gladstone.

At the present time Escanaba and Gladstone pay about considerably more than one-half of the county's taxes, Escanaba's assessed valuation of over $4,000,000 being nearly one-half of the county valuation.

If the matter were submitted to the voters of the county by the board and met with the favor of the voters the county would assume the care of the county trunk lines from the city limits in Escanaba and Gladstone to the settled portions of the city.

The wisdom of the action is not to be disputed. The city limits of Escanaba extend in all directions, except east, for from two to three miles beyond the settled portion of the city and the city, already heavily burdened with taxes, cannot take care of those roads extending beyond the settled portions.

It is a well known fact that the highway approaches to all cities, that is that portion from the city limits to the point of settlement, are invariably the worst roads one will find in days of travel. The city is expending its time and money on the roads strictly within the city and those legally within, yet really without, are neglected.

An amendment to an act of 1909, passed by the legislature of 1913 provided for this contingency. It makes it possible for the county to accept the road from the city limits to the point of settlement, relieving the city of a tax burden and insuring better roads.

The Ford River road furnishes an excellent example of the incongruity of the road system as it relates to roads that properly county highways, that which lie within the city. The city limits reach to Potage creek. From that point to the Escanaba brewery, where Escanaba really has its beginning, the road is in deplorable shape. The city can't take care of it and the county is not obliged to, consequently the road is in bad shape. If the county roads are extended as proposed the county will assume charge of this and other county roads from the city limits to the settled portion. The increase of tax on the county will be so slight as to be scarcely noticeable and Escanaba and Gladstone will bear more than half of it.

CASE WILL ATTRACT ATTENTION OF STATE

Hearing on Injunction Sought by Manager Cobb of Orpheum Theatre Next Monday

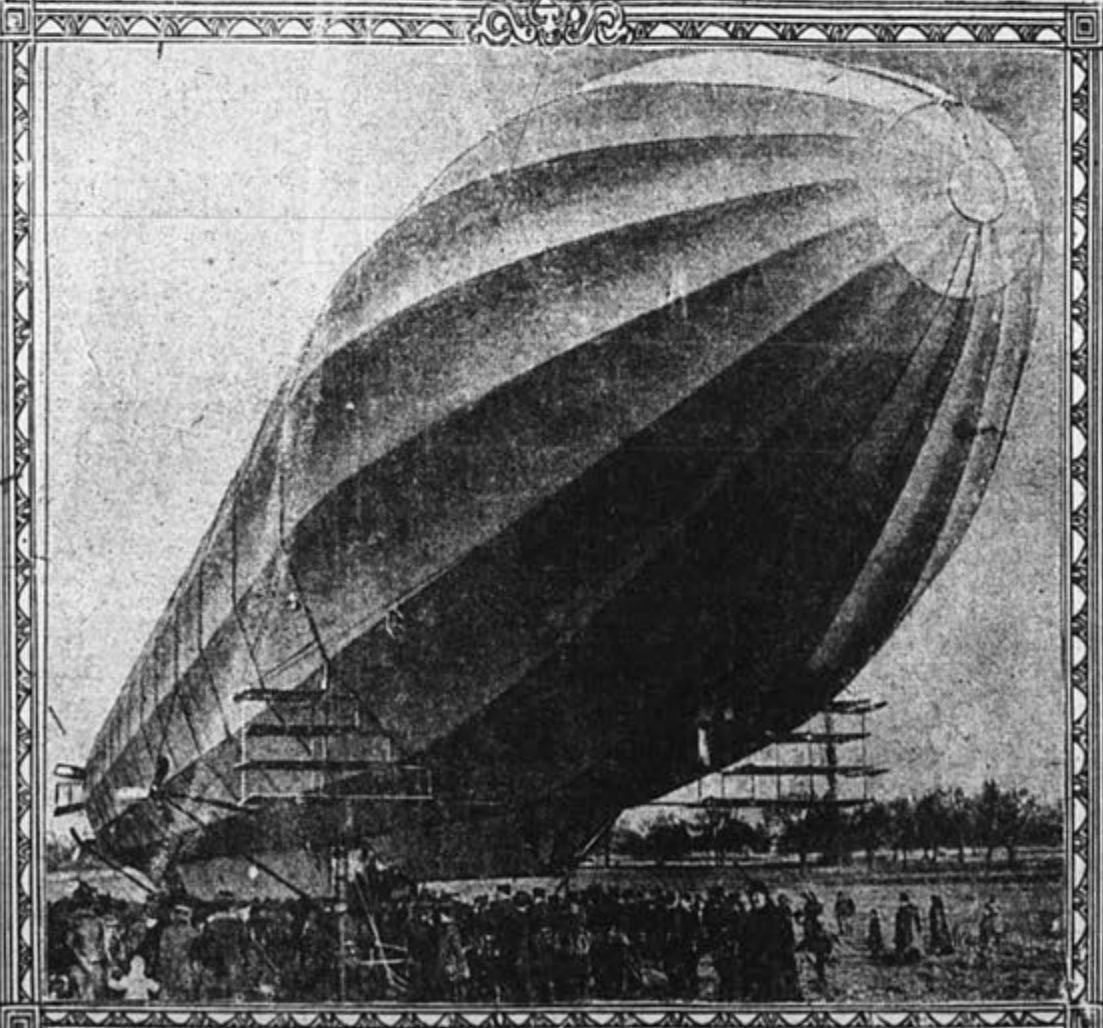

The injunction, which Manager Cobb of the Orpheum theatre seeks to have the circuit court grant through his attorney H. J. Rushton, restraining the state fire warden from prohibiting the showing of moving pictures at the Orpheum theatre will attract state wide attention and is regarded as of such importance that either Attorney General Grant Fellows or the assistant attorney general will appear in Escanaba to present the state's case.

As the request of Mr. Fellows the hearing of the case was set for Monday next.

GERMAN ARMY AIRSHIP WHICH EXPLODED.

Photograph of the Zeppelin L 11, the largest and newest of the German war ships, which exploded on October 17th, while flying about 600 feet above Johannsthal, Germany. The disaster was marked by three explosions in rapid succession, following which the giant air-craft fell to the ground in a blazing mass. Of the 28 officers and men on board at the time of the disaster, all met death, only one man being found alive when the spectators reached the wreck. He later died in the hospital.

The cause of the disaster is unknown, but a few of the German newspapers hint at the possibility that the destruction of the airship was not an accident. One paper urges that a hostile aviator dropped a spark onto the sailing air-craft. It was noticed that two aviators unfamiliar at the Johannsthal aerodrome were in the air at the time of the catastrophe. Many of the men killed in the disaster were members of the German Admiralty Board, and warm friends of the Kaiser.

Buy a FORD NOW!

This advertisement is to notify the people of Delta county that I have the agency for the FORD automobile. I have taken the FORD agency for the reason that I am sure that the FORD is the car that is best suited to the average needs of local people.

Buy a FORD

Because it is a better car, not because it is cheaper

In the ten years of its successful development the FORD has acquired a reputation absolutely unmatched in automobilism—and the guarantee of a financial responsibility that scarcely has its equal in the manufacturing world. The Ford Motor Company resembles in many respects a great banking house of world-wide reputation and absolute integrity. The world buys FORD cars with the same confidence and assurance that it buys bonds guaranteed by such a banking institution.

The Making of the FORD

The FORD factory in Detroit is acknowledged to be the most complete, compact, economically efficient and thoroughly equipped automobile plant in the world. It is imposing architecturally and is extensive. But largeness is of no significance—it is the use to which the space is put that tells. As the FORD factory site is sixty acres in extent, new buildings of uniform design are added as conditions demand. In the past year the floor space has been nearly doubled and the new season will probably see it still further enlarged.

Why You Should Buy Now

There is no better season of the year for automobiling than the fall months. The woods are beautiful and the roads are generally good; Besides if you do not place your order now it may be impossible for you to get a car next summer.

A Hundred People will want FORDS

It is estimated that at least 100 people will want FORDS in this county in 1914. Some of them will have to be disappointed. At the present time I can only see where I will get about 30 of these popular little cars.

COME AND SEE ME

I will have by the end of the week three cars for delivery and may be able to get a few more this year. Let me explain to you why the FORD is the car you want. Let me tell you the service you can and will get—and how little it will cost.

With the aid of the reserves Miss Kenney was finally arrested and several of the male sympathizers were also taken into custody. REAL ECONOMY IN BUYING OYSTERS

It is Said by Those Who Know That They are Cheaper and Better Than Meats

If sold by weight, oysters would cost about 22c per pound. According to a recent issue of the Farmers' Bulletin, published by the Department of Agriculture, the cost of foodstuffs to the consumer at market prices, when refuse and waste were considered, was: Chicken, 35.6c per pound; choice cuts of beef and lamb, 30 to 40c per pound. If sold by weight, opened oysters would cost about 22c per pound, but few people realize that about one-half the weight of meats is in the bones, gristle and waste. Oysters although costing much less by weight, have no bones or gristle to discard.

Thus oysters are not only a delicious luxury for the wealthy epicure, but are an economical and wholesome food for those of limited means. They furnish an agreeable change from the monotony of ordinary foods and answer the frequent question of the puzzled housewife. "What shall we next have to eat." They should not be regarded as a rare treat, but as a frequent and appetizing item of regular food supply.

Oysters are now caught by steamers, power boats and fast sailing vessels, delivered promptly at the shipping houses. They are thus not subject to the delays formerly experienced. They are handled and packed by the best methods in sterilized receptacles. They are kept cold by artificial refrigeration and by pure artificial ice. Oysters, either in shell or opened, are now shipped from the Atlantic Coast to the Pacific, arriving there in as perfect condition as when taken from the water. There is no place in the United States or British America where the railroads, penetrate in which oysters cannot be received in perfect condition.

WELLS PEOPLE HAVE MANY SOCIAL EVENTS

Birthday Parties and Afternoon Luncheons Take up the Time of the Clubs

While Wells is not a very large city the people are more than able to make up for its size in the number and variety of entertainment that is afforded.

Yesterday afternoon, the "Birthday Club" met at the home of Mrs. H. E. Robinson for luncheon and bridge. Of course the occasion was the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Robinson and the event was most enjoyable.

This afternoon Mrs. Phelps daughter Miss Phelps entertained 1:00 o'clock luncheon and cards. The home was decorated and another pleasant afternoon was spent by the Wells.

Wednesday evening Mr. August Blomstrom plan entertainment for the 500 club which is regular winter fixtures, with meetings. Escanaba has many Wells when it comes to an abundance of parties and entertainments.

PLAIDS

A Pleasing Change from Suits of Solid Color

As a smartly gowned young woman stepped on a Fifth avenue bus in the American metropolis a few days ago she disclosed a gay plaid stocking, which matched the smart dress of plaid and plain silk she was wearing. This is one of many details of attire carefully carried out by the up-to-date girl. Her low shoes were black patent leather, and her hat, a jaunty affair of black velvet with a patent leather band and bow.

The TARTAN AS IT Is WORN In 1913

The shops are offering a deal of fancy hosiery, which includes as a feature black or white stockings with an ankle embroidered around one stocking only, to be worn on the left leg. Gold, silver and even jeweled anklets are a fad of the moment for extremists. Fibre silk stockings are being worn by many women who like the dainty appearance of silk hosiery and yet who do not want to pay the high prices for good thread and shun silk hosiery. They come in black, white and colors, with the upper half of hosiery, which makes them doubly durable. The price is 50 cents per pair.

THE Scotchman may glory in fashion's revival of his tartan or feel jealous because manufacturers have invented other plaids than those of his own clan to satisfy the demands of style, but he must have. There are enough to go around. Their course, started in Paris, garment makers rejoiced to see here, and designers have many exceptionally attractive both of all plaid fabrics combination of plain material either. They come as one of welcome suggestions for valancing a winter wardrobe. There is an odd arrangement of drapery in two side panels of the skirt (No. 7945) to give the peg-top outline. A soft sash of plain satin charmeuse of a darker shade is tied at the side and finished with tassels. Instead of tassels, balls of soft silk can be used for sash ends. EMBROIDERED initials and monograms on personal or household linens are marks of good taste or its opposite, according as the letters and sizes are suited to the piece on which they appear. Even busy American women find some spare time occasionally to embroider napkins and tablecloths, or when not they will pay for having the work done. Script or square block letters are good styles to choose for table linen, to prefer putting the monogram five inches from either hem, in which case it will not show on the table top. For a round cloth the monogram may be stamped in the center or so that its upper edge will be two inches below the table. To mark napkins fold four times and place the letters diagonally in the middle of the outside quarter. If of extra size fold three times and mark in the middle. Pillowcases should be stamped in the

For a monogram on a square or oblong tablecloth crease one corner diagonally toward the center and on the crease place the letters as far from the corner of the table top as desired. Some

Practical Hints For the Housewife

ONE of many new uses for green peppers is to cook them as follows: Wash, halve and remove the seeds. Put them through a meat chopper or cut them up in small pieces with a knife. Put a piece of butter to melt in a frying pan, and add the peppers, with their juice, a cupful of stock and sliced onions. Simmer until tender. They are a delicious relish with meat.

Fish Cutlets

Make a paste of one pint of flaked cold cooked fish with a thick cream sauce, adding salt and a "pinch" of cayenne pepper. Put the paste smoothly in the bottom of a dish to get cold and firm. Mold it into cutlet form, dip in bread or cracker crumbs, then in egg and again in crumbs, and fry in hot fat until well browned. Serve very hot.

Apple Shortcake

Half a cupful butter, half a cupful lard, one cupful sugar, two eggs, two cupfuls flour, one cupful stewed apples, one level teaspoonful soda dissolved in the apples, one teaspoonful baking powder, one cupful seeded raisins, one teaspoonful each cinnamon and cloves. Bake in a moderate oven. The shortcake may be baked in individual portions like dumplings and served with cream.

INSTEAD of sewing or pinning ribbon bows on lingerie the clever French needlewoman has made a buttonhole loop of thread through which the ornamental ribbon is run and tied. It can be quickly removed when the garment goes to the laundry and as quickly replaced without a needle and thread.

A thin piece of whalebone or a corset steel can be slipped into a hem or pocket facing to prevent catching stitches through on the outside when sewing on hooks and eyes. Similarly one will find the corset steel useful to run under insertion when wanting to cut out the fabric beneath lace.

If a large hole is to be mended in stockings or ribbed underwear a quicker and neater piece of work will be accomplished by first sewing a piece of paper on the wrong side of the article, then cutting out a square, round or oblong hole, into which fit the same shaped piece of an old stocking and, lastly, darning it into place.

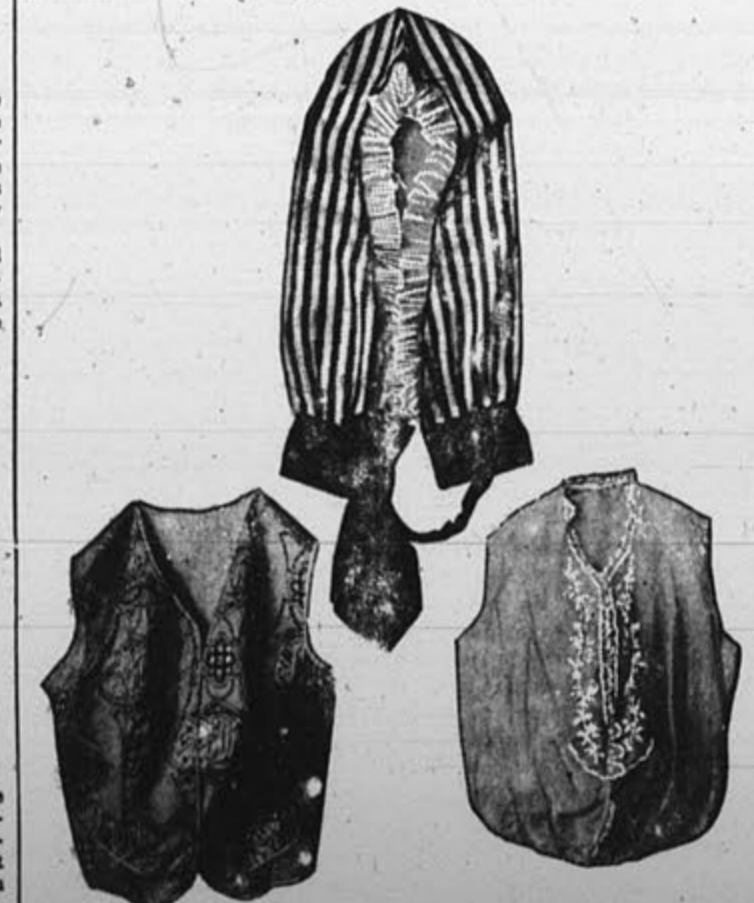

Patterns for designs shown on this page can be obtained from any agency for Ladies' Home Journal Patterns

Smart Adjuncts of Tailored Suits

Except for outer garments there is little regard paid to the thickness of fabrics for winter clothing nowadays. Film nets and laces used extravagantly in the summer for blouses, guimpes, vests, etc., are equally modish today. Whether as an adjunct of a waist or as a separate article it is still the purpose of dainty net frills and coatees to give a becoming feminine touch that French women will not do without. They frequently add a touch of fur or border a lace frill with it.

Three models of new accessories are shown from a fascinating stock in a representative New York shop. There is dainty hand embroidery on the guimpe, with a finish of valenciennes lace around the collarless neck and down the middle front. Such "trifles" as these are so expensive that many women prefer to make their own, even though it takes considerable time to do the handwork. The actual guimpe is simple to make. The guimpe illustrated, can be reproduced with the aid of pattern No. 3007. Fifteen cents.

The vest is of striped black and white silk with a white lace ruffle, and the waistcoat is one of the newest models with a finished back. The latter may be worn over a net guimpe.

ARIATIONS OF DRESS PROBLEM.

It is possible that the question of official interference with fashions in dress will resolve itself into what the soldier-candidate called a local issue. Here and there properly constituted officers have used the strong arm of the law to regulate dress. For the most part municipal authorities have refrained from interfering. In Minnesota a strong effort is being made to popularize a so-called common-sense skirt. The Cincinnati chief of police, under strong pressure, says he believes women should settle matters of dress among themselves. In Kansas City a judge of the criminal court, in passing judgment upon modern extremes in dress, uttered this owlish bit of wisdom: "The women of today have only one idea in view—to dress in a manner that appeals to men. Hasn't it always been such?" Now comes another phase of the eternal problem. It concerns conditions that influence the judgment of the far east, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. An American dancer had planned to exhibit her skill and agility in Calcutta. Now it is stated that the engagement must be canceled. The reason given is a peculiar one. The police, it is said, will prohibit the dancer's appearance on the ground that her lack of drapery would endanger the prestige of English women among the natives.

Professor Curtis, astronomer at the Lick observatory, says that the constellation familiarly known as the Dipper, which aids the amateur in finding the place of the north star, is falling apart. In two hundred thousand years, he affirms, it will be no longer discernible, the stars composing it having moved so far in their respective paths as to lose their present relations to one another as viewed from the earth's place in space. For people who lack anything more pertinent to worry about, here is a promising theme. But there will be time before the trouble comes to save enough for the purchase of a pocket compass and thus avoid the danger of being lost in the woods.

St. Sepulchre's, the city church at the end of Holborn viaduct, whose churchyard is opened to the public, dates, as the name implies, from the time of the first crusade, says the London Chronicle. Of the present edifice, which has suffered sadly from "restorers," only the fine tower, one of London's landmarks, retains medieval masonry. From the top of this tower "rich Dodginton," the brother-in-law of Walsingham, threw himself to avoid a chancery lawsuit. "If I do break my neck," said Bacon to Queen Elizabeth, "I shall do it in a manner as Mr. Dodginton did it, who walked on the battlements of the church many days and took a survey where he should fall."

HOLTON OF THE NAVY

A Story of the Freeing of Cuba

By LAWRENCE PERRY

Author of "Dan Merrithew," "Prince of Chauffeurs," etc. Illustrations by Ellsworth Young

SYNOPSIS

Chapter 1.—Lieutenant Holton is detached from his command in the navy at the outset of the Spanish-American war and assigned to important secret service duty.

Chapter 2.—While dining at a Washington hotel he detects a waiter in the act of robbing a beautiful young lady, who thanks him for his service and gives her name as Miss La Tossa, a Cuban patriot. Later he meets her at a ball. A secret service man warns Holton that the girl is a spy.

Chapter 3.—Senor La Tossa chides his daughter for her failure to secure important information from Holton. She leaves for her home in Cuba. Holton is ordered to follow her.

Chapter 4.—They meet on the Tampa train. Miss La Tossa tells Holton she is a Cuban spy, and expresses doubt regarding the sincerity of the United States. Holton is ordered to remain in Tampa to guard the troop transports.

Chapter 5.—He receives orders to land Miss La Tossa, who is considered a dangerous spy, on Cuban soil. At sea he is overtaken by another warship, which takes Miss La Tossa aboard and Holton is ordered to return to Tampa.

Chapter 6.—He saves the transports from destruction at the hands of dynamiters and reports to Admiral Sampson for further duty.

Chapter 7.—Holton is sent to General Garcia's command in the guise of a newspaper correspondent to investigate Cuban plots against the American troops and to learn the plans of the Spanish navy. He detects a trusted Cuban leader in the work of fermenting trouble among the Cubans in the interests of the Spaniards.

CHAPTER VIII.

A Grim Announcement.

He men, who proved to be three gigantic negroes and a white man, stood in the blue drill uniform of a Spanish officer, with a little cockade in his felt hat, jerked Holton to his feet, and the lashings about his ankles and hurried him toward the trail.

Finally, as hints of dawn appeared overhead, the party arrived at a small clearing where were picketed some scores of horses, with their riders, evidently a contingent of Spanish cavalry.

There was a short conference, and then the gag was taken from Holton's mouth and he was lifted upon a pony. The cavalcade took up the trail which ran alongside the mountain, below the camp of Garcia, in the direction of Santiago.

As the sun rose, a halt was called in a little valley, and preparations were made for what Holton believed would be a stay of considerable duration.

It was then that for the first time a word was spoken directly to Holton. An officer—not the one who had figured in his capture, but the man in charge of the detachment—confronted the American as he sat on the ground, and, releasing his hands, placed a guard over him.

"You will have opportunity for two hours' rest," he said, bowing. "Then we shall proceed at once to Santiago."

"But why have I been captured?" protested Holton. "I am a non-combatant."

He produced his credentials as correspondent of the London Standard. The officer examined them carefully. Then he placed them in his pocket.

"I am convinced you are lying," he replied simply. "Our information concerning you is exceedingly accurate. For your sake I trust the papers may be found correct. For otherwise"—he shrugged his shoulders—"you are a spy."

A chill passed over Holton. He had not thought of that before. A spy! And in war time they had a summary way of dealing with such.

After a very meager breakfast, the men threw themselves upon the ground, chatting and smoking, and Holton did likewise. He felt in its fullness the relief of having his hands free and, in large measure, despite the guard standing over him and the men all about, he became possessed of a measure of freedom in his ability to meet this situation, the most dangerous that had ever confronted him.

Fearing, no doubt, the proximity of Garcia's men, the soldiers did not move until late afternoon, and then with great stealth, all talking in the ranks being rigidly silenced. Holton had had opportunity for several hours' sleep. He was thereby greatly refreshed, and, under reaction, his fears for himself were considerably lessened.

Dusk fell, and still the march continued. On through the night went the men, and without a stop until dawn, when camp was made in a clearing which had been cut where two of the mountain trails met and crossed. Here, as the heavens grew bright, fires were lighted, and a meal prepared, after which sentries were posted. Then the camp settled down for sleep.

Holton had no idea how many miles had been covered since his capture but felt it must be a great many. Stand ing up he could now see far away over the hills the twinkling lights of Santiago, and these he could not help viewing with dread.

At midnight the march was again taken up, and at dawn the force was within a few miles of the city. A squad was sent on ahead to report to General Linares, but came flying back in a few hours with messages to the effect that the soldiers were leaving for El Paso, and that the troops of the United States would shortly advance from Siboney.

There were other matters, too, in the papers brought by the messenger, and one of them seemed to concern Holton, the officer, while reading it, glanced at him with a troubled face. At length he came up to Holton and drew him to one side.

"I am sorry to inform you," he said, "that I have orders here to hang you at once."

Holton stepped back as though he had been struck in the face. "Hang me at once!" he cried. "Those are my orders, signed by the commander-in-chief of this province. But there must be some mistake," Holton went on. "I am not a spy; but even if I were I certainly have done nothing to justify an act so unfair, inhuman and outrageous."

"I do not see how any mistake could have been made," came back the answer. "Here you see the warrant signed by Muller, the general's aide."

"Then General Linares did not sign that warrant!"

"No. It reads General Linares' orders," and is then signed by Muller."

"But surely—" Holton began. "There is no time for argument, my brother. We are ordered to Guaimas and have no time to waste with you. I am sorry, but—" the fellow shrugged his shoulders and pointed to the order.

Holton's mind worked like lightning. The men were engaged in breaking camp and the one who had been guarding Holton had turned aside at the officer's approach, and now, with his back toward the two, was extracting a clip of bullets from his Mauser. Behind Holton was an apparently impenetrable jungle of mangia.

The muscles of his body grew tense, and then with all the skill and all the sureness of direction of the champion middleweight boxer at Annapolis, he sent his fist swiftly and silently into the officer's jaw. Without a sound the man crumpled to the ground. Holton stepped back into the thicket, was blocked a few feet from the trail, but exerting all his power, forced his way into the depths of the jungle.

During a full minute silence reigned in the camp. It was all of that period before the prostrate officer, hidden by the long grass, was discovered by Holton's guard. Then his outcry sounded through the clearing, and in another instant loud commands were being uttered and bullets were being cut through the mangia on all sides of the fugitive American. Then followed the crashing of bodies through the maze of underbrush.

As he worked his way along a little lane, apparently formed by nature or by the deer that used to inhabit that section, opened before him, continuing for a clear quarter of a mile. This he took with the speed of one of the former denizens of the jungle, never letting up until he had traversed its length and had broken once more into the bushes.

The shouts had grown more distant, and Holton knew that no one else had stumbled upon the trail, or at least that was his belief until he heard behind him the sound of footsteps pattering down the clearing. He paused, curious to see if it were not one of the scouts who had located his hidden alleyway and found his suspicions true. As the big negro dashed to the end of the lane, Holton worked his way to the opening through which he had just come and waited, tense for the encounter. The man located the prostrate officer and with a hoarse cry started fresh on Holton's trail.

It was the last sound he made for some time, for, as he burst through, the American's fist, launched with bone-shattering force, landed just two inches above his chin and down he went, like a stricken animal.

Holton, with a prayer of thanksgiving, leaned over the huddled figure and was rejoiced to find that the fellow had a revolver and a belt filled with bullets, in addition to a hunting-knife. All these things Holton appropriated, and then leaving the negro where he lay, pursued his way into the forest.

He had marked his direction before starting upon his flight, his intention being to make the hills over Santiago bay, ascertain the location of Cervera's fleet, watch for any signs that might give him a hint as to the intentions of the Spanish admiral, and then make for a point where he might signal Sampson's flagship.

He had no thought of getting clear away until he had made a strong effort to perform the mission upon which he had been dispatched.

After walking all day with infrequent halts in the torrid heat, making perhaps ten or twelve miles, he came near sunset to a tall grove of palms. One of these he climbed and at length was able to locate his position in a general way.

It may have been fever working in his blood, although he felt well, but through his mind ran something, not a voice, more an impulse, which kept suggesting to him to turn to the left. Finally, staggering and stumbling, half asleep, he obeyed the inward injunction, and in this way proceeded until at last he fell into a heap, dead asleep.

When he awoke he was shivering. He realized his weakness but could not understand it, being usually a man of undeviating health, until it occurred to him that he had not eaten anything for nearly twenty-four hours.

But he had nothing with him to eat, and he did not dare discharge his pistol at the birds flying all about for fear of calling attention to his position in the jungle.

So he arose, tightened his belt as he had read Indians used to do when pressed by hunger, and worked his way on, still holding to the left.

Continuing thus he stumbled suddenly upon a clearing, which apparently a large number of soldiers had left not many hours before. There were remains of a fire and, better still, scattered upon the ground were bits of hardtack, a whole pineapple and an abandoned kettle with some boiled rice remaining in it.

Despite the suggestions of the proximity of the Spaniards, Holton sat down and ate the most satisfactory meal of his life.

Having eaten, he retired a little distance and lay back in the shadows. The sun warmed him, and the stiffness caused by the damp of the night left him. If, as he had feared, fever had been in his blood, it had gone now and this inspired him wonderfully.

He was about to descend when the flash of something below caught his eye almost beneath his feet. He looked closely and caught the flash again, followed by another flash, then by several. A flash in this jungle meant polished metal of some sort, and metal of any sort here meant only one thing—soldiers.

He strained his eyes downward and then caught glimpses of a trail, partially hidden from his view by bushes. On the side of the trail nearest to the eastward the land fell sharply away into a wide valley, the opposite sides of which were bush and tree-covered hills just as on his side.

And now as he looked, the situation dawned clear upon him. For he could see men moving, falling back along the trail, and eventually debouching into bushes on either side.

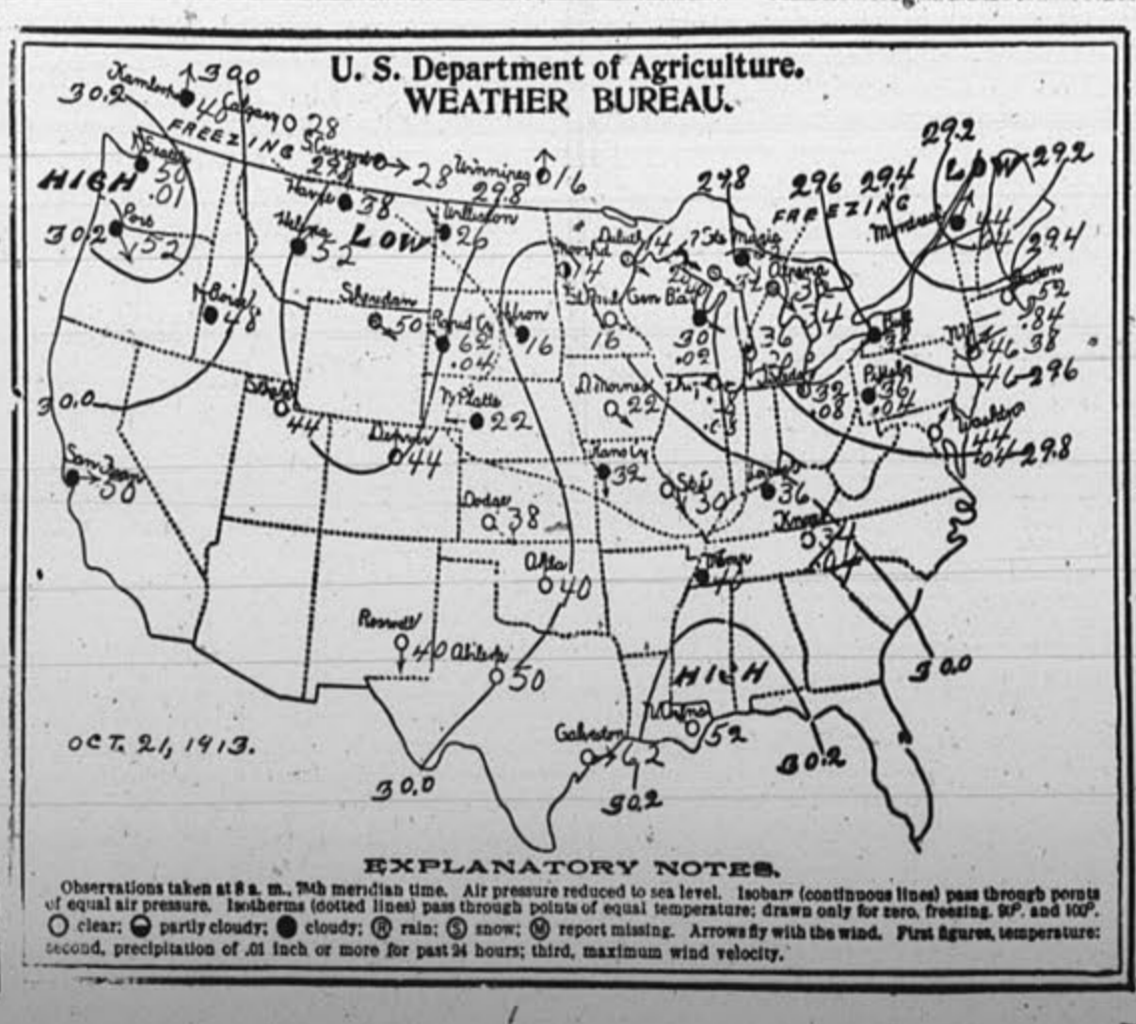

Holton's heart beat quickly. He remembered what the Spaniards had said of Americans marching from the direction of Siboney, and he knew that the "right before his eyes" the Spaniards were arranging an ambush for them.

But what could he do? Almost any moment a detachment of Spanish soldiers might come upon him. His slightest movement would tend to attract the attention of some of them.

Holton's heart beat quickly. He remembered what the Spaniards had said of Americans marching from the direction of Siboney, and he knew that the "right before his eyes" the Spaniards were arranging an ambush for them.

But what could he do? Almost any moment a detachment of Spanish soldiers might come upon him. His slightest movement would tend to attract the attention of some of them.

What was happening? Suddenly from the distance there came what sounded to Holton like the clatter of steel on steel. He at once recognized it as the sound a scabbard makes when it strikes against a spur.

Hastily he looked down at the Spanish position, but not a sign of a soldier could he see. The trail was deserted, the surroundings were as quiet, as peaceful as the heart of a jungle. It was too quiet, Holton thought.

Suddenly the situation dawned clear—his countrymen were walking into a deadly trap! And he was powerless to help them.

Then, as though a voice had whispered in his ear, he started up. Was he helpless? Yes, if he was considering himself. If fear of consequences to him personally were to be weighed, he was perfectly helpless. But not otherwise. Providence could not have smiled more benignly upon the American than in placing him just where he was—provided he justified the providential processes with the nerve of a hero.

He rolled half on his side, loosened his revolver in its holster, and then drew it out. No more sounds came from the trail, and yet, somehow, there was the impression of movement down there, a subconscious feeling of the approach of men.

Holton, his eyes strained ahead, his ears alert for the slightest sound, started convulsively as a campaign hat appeared for an instant through a rift in the high grasses on the valley side of the trail.

Then, hatching himself rigidly upon the ground, he pointed his pistol in the direction of the Spaniards beneath him, and pulled the trigger. The sharp report of the forty-four tore through the dead stillness with nerve-racking violence. It clattered across the valley in a hundred echoes. And then, as though both nature and man had been shocked into inaction, there followed a few seconds of pulseless silence.

Again Holton's pistol rang out. This time, from the direction of the hidden advancing forces, there came several short, sharp commands. As Holton lay hidden, thankful that the Spaniards had evidently attributed the shots to some overzealous soldier on their own side, he saw two Cubans steal along the trail and behind them a gigantic young sergeant in the uniform of a Rough Rider.

Close behind him were four men. They were picking their way stealthily. There was no question that Holton's shots had the desired effect. Then, as he looked, several long lance-like lines of flame darted out of the bushes in which the Spaniards lay. The valley resounded with a racking uproar. He saw the big Rough Rider sergeant stop short with a look of surprise upon his face, saw his jaws set grimly, saw him advance a step, and then heave forward on his face, blocking the trail with his body.

The bushes beneath Holton were now darting sheets of flame and the gases from the smokeless powder drifted upward and into his nostrils.

From the American side he heard a crashing as the main body rushed up into action or deployed into the grass to the eastward of the trail and then suddenly out of the thicket came the roar of the Krag. Holton thrilled with pride as he noticed that the aim of the Americans was low and that the shooting discipline was excellent.

The firing was incessant and Holton, whose activity with his revolver had brought a volley or two in his direction, now ceased firing and began to work his way into the valley. He was gone far when the advance swept upon him.

"Hello, Bud," cried a tall-faced sergeant from a distance. "What're you doin' here?"

Holton smiled and was a little wince when a red light shined before his eyes and he found his hand to his forehead, for he thought a red-hot brand had been clamped upon it. The light came darker.

And as he lay there in his eyes closed, blood streamed from his cheeks and coagulating on the Rough Riders' uniforms from across the valley, companies revolved around the end of the hidden company of the Spaniards later at it, and to catch up with their hands.

For a mile and a half it who had marched into the mated a deadly surprise, Spaniards, sent them flying from three successive barrages, in utter rout, they with the American movements back on the trenches before.

But Holton did not win triumph of Guaimas. Lon thin blue line had swept on ley he lay as he had fallen flying over him and terrible rattling about, seeking for which death alone makes p them.

SALTS IF BACKACHE AND KIDNEYS HURT Drink Lots of Water and Stop Eating Meat for a While if Your Bladder Troubles You. When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region, it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach gours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. Either consult a good reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

SHERIFF NEEDS BUT ONE EYE TO LOCATE JURORS Went on a Hunt Yesterday With Bad Optic But he Found the Jurors Sheriff Curran was looking for jurors yesterday and despite the fact that he was temporarily blinded in one eye he found them. "I'm looking for ten jurors" Tim explained to a friend yesterday as he walked up Ludington street with one hand covering a badly inflamed optic, "and they are hard enough to find when you've got two eyes working but with only one in commission, it's some job." Despite the handicap, however, Curran rustled around and in a short time corralled the following: Charles Lightfoot, William Ackley, Gladstone; Earnest B. Fosterling, Edward Curran, Maple Ridge; Stephen Hault, Charles Olmsted, Garden; T. W. McDonough, Samuel Rodgers, Frank Scanlon, Leon Ephraim and Bert Blake of Escanaba. Tim was hunting Sunday and in dodging a branch managed to scrape off some of its bark with his left eye. Last evening he visited Dr. Elliot who removed from the eyeball the truant bark. The eyeball was slightly lacerated but is expected to give the sheriff no further trouble.

HOT TIME IN PADDED CELL AT COUNTY JAIL Inmate Who Had Been Seeing Red Devils Gets a Taste of the Fire and Smoke The padded cell in the county jail was the scene of a small conflagration at an early hour this morning and although the damage was slight the excitement was great, an individual, who has been seeing little red devils and the like, furnishing most of the excitement and incidentally the cause for it. Those who "inmate" the padded cell at the county jail are not allowed matches but the man, who until this morning enjoyed the privilege of battering his drink clouded cranium against the padded walls of the cell, in some way secured a match and either by intent or by accident fired the excelsior filled lining of his boudoir. Excelsior burns rapidly, entirely too rapidly when ones activities are confined to a six by twelve steel cage with trimmings of the burning excelsior. The inmate, upon discovering that his quarters were getting warmer each second, promptly forgot the tailed snakes, the horn-tailed spiders, the swallow tailed sea devils and yelled "FIRE." Sheriff Curran responded and swung open the doors of the cage just in time to avoid a cremation. A fire alarm was sent in and Companies Nos. 1 and 2 responded. The chemical extinguishers were used and the fire extinguished but not without considerable difficulty. "The nearest we come to an experience of any sort was when we ran out of provisions Monday. We didn't have anything to eat from Monday until Tuesday noon. We couldn't make Oshkosh as soon as we expected and our provisions became exhausted. So I had to walk to town for a fresh supply."

Not a New Idea

Several of the trunk-line railways are just beginning to agitate the "SAFETY FIRST" idea.

The Safety First idea was adopted by the First National Bank back in 1871, the year it was founded.

If, at times, this may seem a conservative institution it is SAFETY born of long experience through days of reconstruction, of development, panics and prosperity.

No depositor in the First National Bank ever lost a penny. No depositor ever will. With us, it is not only Safety First—but SAFETY ALWAYS.

LOOK FOR BIG RUSH IN THE PARCEL POST

Postmaster Coburn Making Effort to Handle Big Christmas Business—May Break Records

Postmaster Coburn is making every effort to have the post office well organized in anticipation of an extraordinary Christmas rush.

It is expected that the parcel post department will be literally swamped with business as soon as the holiday rush opens. The postmaster says that business as well as the general public have scarcely awakened to the possibilities of the parcel post, despite the strenuous growth of business. It is used for many curious purposes, as the sending of laundry.

When asked about the proposed change of books and printed matter from third to parcel post the answer was given that already books are a favorite gift, and the reduction of the rate will mean a great increase in this business. It undoubtedly means that additional room will be necessary to handle the new business.

With the coming of the harvest season, many queer packages are sent every day from farmers who wish to remember their city friends and relatives. Dressed chickens, apples and fruit have been sent.

Inquiries at the stores lead merchants to believe that the holiday shopping will be done early this year and only a few weeks remain before the display windows will be filled with attractive articles, things that are going to catch the eye and pull on the purse strings.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get At the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way when the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles. If you have a bad taste in your mouth, tongue coated, appetite poor, lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested food, you should take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edward's Olive Tablets are purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without gripping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief, so you can eat what you like. At 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, Ohio.

PRETTY WEDDING AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

Miss Anna Murray Becomes the Bride of Warren Bartley—South on Wedding Trip

A pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at seven o'clock in St. Patrick's church when Miss Anna Murray and Warren Bartley, both of this city were made one.

Father Feldhaus performed the ceremony in the presence of a large number of the friends and relatives of the young people. The bride was attended by Miss Anna Shieles and the bridegroom by William Murray.

Immediately after the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Harvey, with whom the bride had made her home. Decorations in the fall colors with chrysanthemums and carnations predominating in the color scheme made the scene pretty and most appropriate. Covers were laid for thirty.

Accompanied by a shower of rice the happy young people left on the 11 o'clock train for Chicago, Milwaukee and Baraboo. They expect to return in about two weeks and will be at home at 624 South Georgia street, after November 15.

The bride has been a life long resident of this city. Comely and of that personality which makes and keeps friends she is highly popular. Mr. Bartley is employed as a brakeman on the Chicago and North Western railway. He has been a resident of Escanaba since a child. Industrious and of genial mien, he has friends here without number.

AUTOMATIC INSURANCE FOR EMPLOYES OF CITY

Finance Committee Finds no Necessity of Insuring With Private Corporation

At a recent meeting of the city council the board of public works asked permission to insure its employees a private corporation and the matter was referred to the finance committee. The passage of the employer's liability and workmen's compensation act by the members of the board to believe that the city must pay over its cost for injuries to employees. Such is apparently not the case. The law provides for a tax from which shall be paid the injury and death claims county and city employees, provided automatic insurance for the city county employees.

The finance committee will tonight advise against insuring the city employees in a private corporation.
