FIRST FLEET THROUGH GATUN LOCKS

The photograph shows the first fleet of boats, passing through the hige Gatun locks, at the Atlantic end of the Panama Canal. In this series of three locks, boats are raised from sea level to the surface of Gatun Lake, which is 85 feet above sea level. In this pi cture the fleet, composed of dredges, tugs, piledrivers, scows and launches, split into three separate tows, is passing through the middle lock. The man in the foreground, with his back to the camera, is Colonel Goethals, the "big man" of the Canal, who has been in charge of the work since 1907. This was the first time that the Colonel had an opportunity of seeing more than one boat pass through the locks. Probably the next fleet to pass through will be thefleet of American battleships, which will pass through the entire length of the canal.

With the blowing up of the Gamboa dike on October 10, water was let into Gulebra cut, thus connecting up the waterway for the entire length of the "Big Ditch." All that now remains to be done, is to dredge out the cut, remove the debris of the dike, and the canal will then be open to the world's traffic.

What the Ford Has Done

IT CAN DO AGAIN

While there are many things that I might tell you about what the FORD will do, I will take up the space by telling you what it has done.

Ford Takes Gas Power Age Trophy

The Gas Power Age trophy was captured by a Ford runabout owned and driven by A. L. Forde of Winnipeg, Man. Mr. Ford purchased his car in 1912. It had travelled 16,000 miles and had never been in a repair shop for an overhaul when it entered the 600-mile endurance road race in competition with twelve big cars. Notwithstanding, the staunch little car finished with a perfect score. The course of the race lay near Winnipey, Man. The first day out of the race it rained continually, and the cars were forced to do practically a hundred miles over roads that were rivers .of Particular honor is due the Ford because it was entered and driven by its owner, while practically every other car in the contest was entered by a motor car dealer or garage man and driven by an expert chauffeur,

Ford Wins Dunlop Trophy

For the third time in as many years a Ford captured the Dunlop trophy, a classic of Canadian motordom, in a spectacular twenty-five-miles grind or a circular track at Winnipeg, Man., Labor Day.

The Ford finished the twenty-five miles in 26 minutes 41 4-5 seconds. Although this was slower than the time made by Billy Rogers in the two previous years, it was fast enough going for the Ford to win easily.

Not content with winning the feature event of the day, Clark, with the Ford, went out against a field of five so-called higher-powered cars and captured a dash of one mile against time. The Ford's time for the mile was 1 minute 12-5 Seconds.

The Ford also took the open tenmile race, doing the distance in .10 minutes and 19 seconds.

Ford Wins Hard Race

Over mountainous roads a distance of 113 miles in the splendid time of three hours, fifty-seven and one-half minutes, went a Ford touring car, winning over a heavier car, and thus capturing a cash prize of $1,000.

The course was from Latrobe, Pa., to Bedford, Pa., and return. The race was the result of a friendly rivalry between the Ford dealers at Latrobe, Ross & Steel, and the dealer handling the high-priced, heavier car. The date of the contest was May 2nd.

But it should be remembered that the Ford's racing qualities are subordinated to its qualities of comfort and all-'round serviceability. It is primarily a car for all the people, and is not intended for the speed specialist.

Place Your Order Now!

You want a car next year-If you want a car that will be a pleasure and not an expense, the FORD is the ONLY car for you. Don't wait too long to place your order. Come and

It will be a help to your moral stature if you will spend two or three hours of the Lord's Day in religious meditation and social praise. Come, let us sing unto the Lord a new song.

For the past two years the Baptist people of the city have been occupied in raising money with which to errect a parsonage. The officers of the church have thought it not wise to begin to build until there was a sum of $1500 in sight. The work of securing this has progressed so far that it is confidently expected that the entire amount will be in sight by the coming spring when building operations will be started. This will greatly improve the Baptist property and enable them to make their work more efficient,

Wells Church

Along with the story of old Father Adam and the tree of temptation we have questions as to heredity and environment, How do Heredity and Environment affect our chances of heaven? We know that they make lots of difference to the life here on earth Some babes are blessed with most every opportunity for making a success of life, both physically and spiritually, while others are, hindered and handicapped from the very beginning.

Huntington Hardwick, a New England youth, who wor Harvard's strength test, showed more physical efficiency than John L. Sullivan, Jeffries. Sandow and other noted physical giants ever did in their prime, and the Crimson strong man only a few years ago took up athletics as a last resort to improve poor health. Hardwick recently passed Dr. Dudley Sargent's strength examination, with 1,296.2 points, over 300 more than Jack Johnson's best, and yet the Harvard marvel weighs but 174 pounds.

The latest physical wonder, while very muscular, is not overdeveloped, and Dr. Sargent, who has examined nearly every prominent strong man during the last decade, paid Hardwick the following tribute, "He has more real physical efficiency than any man I ever examined."

Aquatic faus who have been looking forward to the consolidation of collegiate swimming interests in the east will be disappointed to learn that there is no hope of bringing together the various associations this season.

E. C. M. Richards of Yale. who has been busy all summer trying to bring to maturity his plan of establishing graded championships and so inducing all universities to take membership in the Intercollegiate league, confesses to failure.

"I found." he said, "general unwillingness among the teams not strong enough for the regular championship to compete for minor titles, and my scheme fell through. We will have to wait until better material is developed before we can think of an all embracing body."

A new clause will be inserted in the form of a baseball player's contract for prohibit a player from "writing" or selling the use of his name to newspapers or other publications during the playing senson. This is the result of the national commission's crusade against player-authors, which has received the indorsement of John Mc-Graw among others.

From all accounts Pittsburgh university is likely to be heard of in the swimming game this season. The Smoketown institution has gathered dlers of the district and will give them every opportunity to improve. Meets with clubs and rival colleges are already being negotiated for.

No event that could happen would give the powers that be in the Amateur Athletic union greater pleasure than the development in this country of a real "nine-three" sprinter. HOLTON THE NAVY

A Story of the Freeing of Cuba

By LAWRENCE PERRY Author of "Dan Merrithew," "Prince or Chauffeur," etc. Illustrations by Ellsworth Young

Chapter 1.-Lieutenant Holton is detached from his command in the navy at the outset of the Spanish-American war and assigned to important secret service duty.

Chapter 2 .- While dining at a Wash. ington hotel he detects a waiter in the act of robbing a beautiful young lady, who thanks him for his service and gives her name as Miss La Tossa, a Cuban patriot. Later he meets her mirror, by mail or carrier, can be at a ball. A secret service man warns Holton that the girl is a spy.

Walking to a point as nearly abreast of her as he could get, he began snapping the flag right and left, in the efort to attract her attention. If he could only get her now, and could deliver his message, there was no doubt that the New York could be recalled by a signal gun. So simple did this seem that he wondered why he had not thought of it before.

He swung his flag with fresh ardo. but it was as though he were signaling to Mars, so far as any arswer was concerned. Holton could see a launch leaving the Indiana for the Massachu etts. Everything was peaceful. From tern of the flarship was swinging to the fleet, and another, and another. Then two grim destroyers appeared.

It seemed an age, but it was not more than a few seconds, when a terrific roar shook the waters, and a burst of flame and gases rolled from a turret of one of the American ships.

Holton marked the course of the great thirteen-inch shell, saw the great, dark shape dart with lightning speed toward the Vizcaya, saw it hurle over the deck, ricochet on the water, and explode in the woods beyond. Then the earth shook with fearful noise. From all the American ships, and from those of the Spaniards, great guns vomited forth their messengers of death and destruction. The sky grew dark, and a yellowish pall settled upon the sea.

As Holton stood tense, following the combat as in a trance, he heard a tremendous explosion, and saw the Marie Theresa list sharply, and then saw her turn in toward the land, where she soon grounded. He could see men clinging to her decks.

It was clear that the American vessels were overhauling the enemy's ships, although Holton had understood that, as regards speed, our vessels were inferior. The discharge of guns was incessant. Almost directly beneath him he saw two Spanish destroyers disengage themselves from the larger vessels and swing about.

ing to the harbor; but, like a hawk, a the Spanish lines, borne by messes ong, rakish American craft, a converted yacht, pounced down upon them, letting fly with her machine guns and six-pounders as she came.

The torpedo boats fought back with all the venom of maddened serpents, but gallant Wainwright and the Gloucester were not to be denied, and, under the fury of his onset, the two destroyers succumbed like craft of cardboard, disabled and sinking within the course of what seemed to Holton a very few minutes.

He could see two or three of the larger Spanish vessels aground now, flames seething from hatchways, the men of the crew leaping into the sea. Liefboats from the American vessels were among them, attending to the work of rescue as diligently as, but a few moments before, they had set themselves to the task of dealing death to their foes.

Two or three faint cheers drifted shoreward, but for the most part there was silence. Boats manned by American sailors were about all the Spanish vessels, which, having left the harbor so proudly and so defiantly but a little while before, were now merely smoking, burning wrecks.

The cannonading had ceased; the mist was blowing away; the sun once more was smiling on the waters. Far down. Holton could see the Oregon. Texas and Brooklyn speeding after two flying remnants of Cervera's squadron and he heard the call of Wainwright's men below.

Thus gazing down, it was with difficulty that Holton realized that an epoch-making battle had just taken place under his eyes. It seemed all like a thrilling drama, and now everything, by comparison, was so still, so Casting his eyes to the left, he saw to his surprise the New York standing by and making signals to the fleet. As he found out later, she had gone to Siboney for a conference with Shafter. Now, attracted by the cannonading, she had made for her station with all possible speed.

"Well, it was over. What would happen now? The harbor forts were still to be subdued, and it was out of the question that Sampson would attempt to rush them this day. No. Holton could see that the army still had its part to play, and that, as a consequence, his work was far from com-

- His duty was perfectly clear; and while he was able to drag one foot after another, its stern behests were to be obeyed. His place was at Garcia's headquarters-the sooner he took it the better.

A flag of truce was wandering over the hillside, and in answer to Holton's query an officer told him that General Shafter was sending in word to Toral that, now the fleet was destroyed, he had better surrender and have done with further bloodshed. So everyone waited until the truce party returned from its mission.

They had not made, it was learned, great progress with the Spanish commander. He was quite content with the situation, he said, and, moreover, he had good information that the men from the United States were not doing very well in this climate. In a word, he thought it advisable to oppose to the utmost extremity the advance of the Americans. A reply similar in its nature had been sent to Admiral Sampson, who, as though in spite, dropped a few shells into the city, and then desisted in order to give Toral time for the thirteen-inch messengers to sing home.

The destruction of Cervera's fleet was regarded as having simplified the task that, lay before the Americans, but no one knew exactly what the developments would be. The general surmise was that Toral would eventually surrender, and if that was the case there was disinclination on the part of the brigade commanders to shed unnecessary blood.

In the morning Holton was awakened by a bombardment which continued for half-an hour. The men in the trenches got into action with their Krags and the Spaniards responded The result was a spirited session, which ended as abruptly as it began.

gers from Shafter sent to inquire of Toral if he had not yet changed his mind about holding out.

As Holton could see no special reason why the Spaniard should have changed his mind, he was inclined to regard the truce business as a joke, a sentiment which most of the officers shared with him. Toward noon he made his way along the lines, and, eventually, he located the Cuban contingent.

Garcia was seated in front of his tent with General Castillo. He remembered Holton and greeted him pleasantly. Yet he appeared to have something on his mind, and after welcoming the navy man he turned to his brother general and continued a conversation which the officer's arrival had evidently interrupted. Holton not wishing to appear as an intruder, moved to one side. The soldiers were sullen and regard-

Queen Esther Circle of First M. E Church Entertained by Queen Esther Circle

The Queen Esther Circle of the First M. E. church this afternoon entertained the "Mothers' Jewels" in the basement of the church.

The party began at three o'clock and terminated just in time for the ers visited in the city yesterday at evening meal. Shortly before three the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude o'clock the mothers began arriving with their little ones and at 3:30] Mrs. C. G. Huss and son of Bark o'clock fully fifty proud mothers with River left for their home this morning as many smiling, happy bables, were having visited in the city for the past assembled. The little ones enjoyed games, that is those who are ald enough did and those that have not reached the game age sat around on the floor, cooed, gurgled and smiled at those who were. The babies busy the mothers themselves proceeded to enjoy themselves with grownup games and at five o'clock a luncheon for the mothers and another fer the babes was served. It was easily one of the most delightful parties ever given in the church and the members of the Queen Esther Circle proved themselves most capable hostesses.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

The stormy condition noted over middle sections of the country yesterday morning, have for the most part been replaced by rising pressure and generally fair weather, the low pressure areas having passed eastward to the Atlantic states and Appalachian Mountains, over which section rains occurred since yesterday morning or are now in progress. Cooler weather overspread the Lake region and Ohio Valley, temperatures near freezing occurring over Upper Michigan last night. The principal barometric disturbance this morning appears over eastern South Dakota; it is causing rains in the Dakotas, followed by snow and much colder weather to the northwest. Unsettled weather is again indicated for most of the following 36 hours in this vicinity, probably resulting in rain or snow late tonight or Sun day. The winds will be moderate variable, but will become north and cause

This defense brought forth a sweeping statement from Mr. Burke. who implied that with the single exception of Governor Ferris he would gory as Mr. Wood and went on to say that it will be but a few days before a state-wide campaign will be made

While Mr. Burke had made eight dis tinctive propositions upon which the debate was to hinge, he mentioned but three. One was that Senator Wood had held up legislation; the second, that he had refused to aid the national prohibition resolution, and, third, that he was aligned with the liquor element, Mr. Burke failed to sustain his charges by direct proof, but sought to do so argumentatively.

Senator Wood, in his talk stated twelve friends at a theatre party at that the Pray bill was held up in the the Orpheum last evening in honor liquor committee but three legislative of Miss Charron of Crystal Falls and days, from Saturday until Wednesday, Miss Florence Mulligan of Columbus, while many other measures of like importance were held up more than a month without protest being made. As to the proposition that Governor Ferris had interceded on behalf of the bill, as charged by Mr. Burke here a few weeks ago, Senator Wood read at telegram from the governor, who etated emphatically that he had interceded for no bill in that committee during the entire legislative proceedings.

> Burke Condemned in New Jersey. Mr. Wood impeached the character of Superintendent Burke by reading a resolution which was unanimously passed by the New Jersey legislature concerning Burke's prestige: Mr. Burke had charged three members of
