CHAPTER XVI.

A Frightful Revelation.
on's ride back to the city was not forlorn he had ever taken.
flash of a hand he had been low-from the heights of ecstasy to of despair. A beautiful had been lived out, and the bit-of waking had come.

As His Face Turned, Holton Gasped.

Her mother named her Cynthia when she was three days old and said she hoped the little darling wouldn't grow up to fall in love and become a wife and mother.
The little darling didn't.
When she was a year old she hadn't smiled yet. When the doctor was appealed to as to what ailed her he replied:
"Her name gave her a shock and soured her disposition."

AN OLD MAID'S ADVICE

DEMURE AND QUAIN ARE MANY OF THE STRAIGHT LINED FROCKS

At one of the recent openings several of the smartest street frocks were fashioned of striped velours. This material would be especially appropriate to 1913, rendering its simplicity still more effective.
The required touch of brightness could be introduced in the broad girle and the trimming bands on the skirt and blouse. There is just a bit of fullness on the shoulders and at the waist-line. In size 36 this design may be copied with 5 yards of 42 inch velours.

To obtain either pattern illustrated fill out this coupon and enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin. Be sure to state number of pattern and size, measuring over the fullest part of the bust. Address Pattern Department, care of this paper.

HEAVY MEAT EATERS HAVE SLOW KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel Backachy or have Bladder trouble.—Take glass of Salts
No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

Worth Looking At.

A man who was something of a gourmet ordered a dinner for himself and his party which, from the menu, should have been very palatable, but apparently it was not so. Course succeeded course, and toward the end of the meal the host could restrain himself no longer. He called up the waiter and expostulated. "I ordered a good dinner, and we have waited patiently for some satisfactory dish. The soup was a failure, the fish was a disappointment, the entree uneatable, and I am sorry to tell you that during the whole dinner there has been nothing worth looking at." The waiter looked troubled for an instant, and then, brightening up, said, "If you wait a moment, sir, I will bring you the bill."

Make Your Feet Happy

What the Ford Has Done IT CAN DO AGAIN

While there are many things that I might tell you about what the FORD will do, I will take up the space by telling you what it has done.

Ford Takes Gas Power Age Trophy

The Gas Power Age trophy was captured by a Ford runabout owned and driven by A. L. Forde of Winnipeg, Man. Mr. Forde purchased his car in 1912. It had travelled 16,000 miles and had never been in a repair shop for an overhaul when it entered the 600-mile endurance road race in competition with twelve big cars. Notwithstanding the staunch little car finished with a perfect score. The course of the race lay near Winnipeg, Man. The first day out of the race it rained continually, and the cars were forced to go practically a hundred miles over roads that were rivers of mud.

Fords Are Choice of Geologists

Geologists have a habit of getting down to the rock bottom of any proposition. When the International Geological Congress visited Madoc, Ont., recently and from there made an overland trip of approximately 200 miles to study the formation of rocks, mountains and various other natural formations of interest to geologists, Fords were specified as the conveyances. It seems that every one of the geologists, and there were men from various parts of the world, were familiar with the reputation for dependability of the Ford. Five cars went through the trip in splendid condition and justified the confidence placed in them by the geologists.

Ford Wins Dunlop Trophy

For the third time in as many years a Ford captured the Dunlop trophy, a classic of Canadian motordom, in a spectacular twenty-five-mile grind on a circular track at Winnipeg, Man., Labor Day. The Ford finished the twenty-five miles in 26 minutes 41-45 seconds. Although this was slower than the time made by Billy Rogers in the two previous years, it was fast enough going for the Ford to win easily. Not content with winning the feature event of the day, Clark, with the Ford, went out against a field of five so-called higher-powered cars and captured a dash of one mile against time. The Ford's time for the mile was 1 minute 12.5 seconds. The Ford also took the open ten-mile race, doing the distance in 10 minutes and 19 seconds.

Ford Wins Hard Race

Over mountainous roads a distance of 113 miles in the splendid time of three hours, fifty-seven and one-half minutes, went a Ford touring car, winning over a heavier car, and thus capturing a cash prize of $1,000. The course was from Latrobe, Pa., to Bedford, Pa., and return. The race was the result of a friendly rivalry between the Ford dealers at Latrobe, Ross & Steel, and the dealer handling the high-priced, heavier car. The date of the contest was May 2nd. But it should be remembered that the Ford's racing qualities are subordinated to its qualities of comfort and all-round serviceability. It is primarily a car for all the people, and is not intended for the speed specialist.

Place Your Order Now!

You want a car next year—If you want a car that will be a pleasure and not an expense, the FORD is the ONLY car for you. Don't wait too long to place your order. Come and see me now.

BEST OF HOBBIES.

Here's a man who specializes in Persian rugs by way of recreation. He can tell us, and will, if he gets the chance, the exact difference between the weave of one kind of rug that we wouldn't dare attempt either to spell or to pronounce and the weave of another kind that we shall have to place in the same category. He gets a lot of fun out of his hobby and takes great pride in his knowledge of the Persian rug situation. Another man is interested in rare editions of books, buys all he can and glazes over mere catalogues of them. If you don't care especially for rare editions don't let him turn the conversation in that direction; he will talk about his hobby by the hour. Another man collects bookplates, and is very enthusiastic over those he owns and very anxious to own more. Some effect pottery and there are still some who can go into raptures over a rare postage stamp. Hobbies are almost always good things, says the Ohio State Journal. They give a man a real interest in life, apart from what he takes in his regular pursuits, and these outside enthusiasms are restful and recreative. Of all the hobbies, to our mind, the study of nature is the best. To know the birds and the flowers, the trees and the butterflies and the grasses, to spend your spare time among them, to learn more and more about them—this is a wonderful, inspiring, glorious avocation.

There is a constant tendency to undermine belief in individual responsibility and this tendency must be combated. When a person commits an indefensible crime a lot of people rise up in excuse or palliation that the perpetrator is a victim of vicious surroundings, says the Omaha Bee. When we see human derelicts foundering around our tender heartedness, and compassion temper our pity with the thought that perhaps they inherit an evil strain or can trace their downfall to deficient schooling, pressure of poverty or the temptations of inadequate wages. These things doubtless exert an influence upon individual action, and yet notwithstanding all untoward circumstances, a fixed and definite responsibility rests upon each person for himself. Out of every thousand of the population, for example, it can be figured out in advance, with a near approach to precision, just how many will be married in the year.

The primrose of old was credited with a medicinal as well as a superstitious value. Even now in some country parts of England a decoration of primrose leaves is supposed to restore a falling memory, and in 1654, when Culpeper wrote his "London Dispensatory," the primrose was regarded as an almost universal panacea, curing "convulsions, falling sickness, palsies, etc." and strengthening "the brain, senses, and memory exceedingly." And even the healthy did not disdain to eat it, for primrose paste was once a popular Lancashire delicacy.

An operatic tenor has been sentenced in Saxony to jail for breach of contract with an opera company. This bold, practical assertion that there is no real difference between tenors and ordinary men will have all the force of a bombshell or a bolt from the blue in musical circles, where the superiority of tenors to all the usual rules for human conduct and affairs has been one of the fundamental beliefs.

LADIES! SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring back color, gloss and thickness with Grandma's recipe of Sage and Sulphur.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark, and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

REAPING BENEFIT

From the Experience of Escanaba People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Escanaba residents on the following subject will interest and benefit many of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had.

Mrs. M. Brown, 406 S. Jennie St., Escanaba, Mich., says: "About two years ago I began to have pains in the small of my back and when I worked hard, I was so lame that I could hardly straighten from a stooped position. In the morning, I was lame and sore. A friend advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a box from the Mead Drug Co. Soon after I began their use, the pain in my back disappeared. Recently I had a slight recurrence of the trouble, but used Doan's Kidney Pills and they put me in good shape. You may continue to use my name as a reference for Doan's Kidney Pills. Others of my family have taken them for backache and kidney trouble with good results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The Spider and the Bee.

A correspondent of Countryside was sitting one day upon an English moor, watching a large leather spider as it crouched expectant in its web. Suddenly he saw the spider firmly grip the web with its feet and shake it with all its might. After awhile it repeated the operation, and soon the reason became apparent. Whenever a bee flew near the web the spider gave this warning signal. It did not want any such visitor. If a bee happened to get entangled in the web the spider at once cut that part and so rid itself of its unwelcome guest. That any creature can weave a web more intricate than a fisherman's net and, moreover, that it should possess the instinct or reasoning power to put the web in the best place and there patiently await its prey suggests that the border line between instinct and reason is far from distinct.

Canals of Venice as Sewers.

One by one the illusions of life are shattered. Who has not heard of the gondoliers of Venice, the sweet singers whose voices are wafted across the waters as they guide their graceful craft through the canals of the streetless city? "I used to think how poetical it was," said a returned traveler, "but I found the real reason for their singing was a very practical one. Venice has absolutely no sanitary regulations, and the little canals are just so many sewers into which is dumped all the garbage from the houses. There is no system of plumbing, and the refuse is simply thrown from the windows, so unless you let the householder know you are passing by you are apt to get a douche of dirty water or garbage."—New York Tribune.

Took It Good Naturedly.

Four-year-old Tom was expressing his sorrow and anger at the act of a neighbor who had drowned four "beautiful little kittens." "She might have given them to me," said the boy. "Never mind, Tom," said grandfather; "we have lovely kittens of our own. We have a nice little boy kitten." "That's me," said Tom proudly. "And a lovely little girl kitten." "That's sister Ella," said Tom, pointing his spoon at his sister. "And the dearest old cat in California!" "That's grandma," said the youth exultantly. Grandma glowered for a second of time, and then she burst out laughing. —Los Angeles Times.

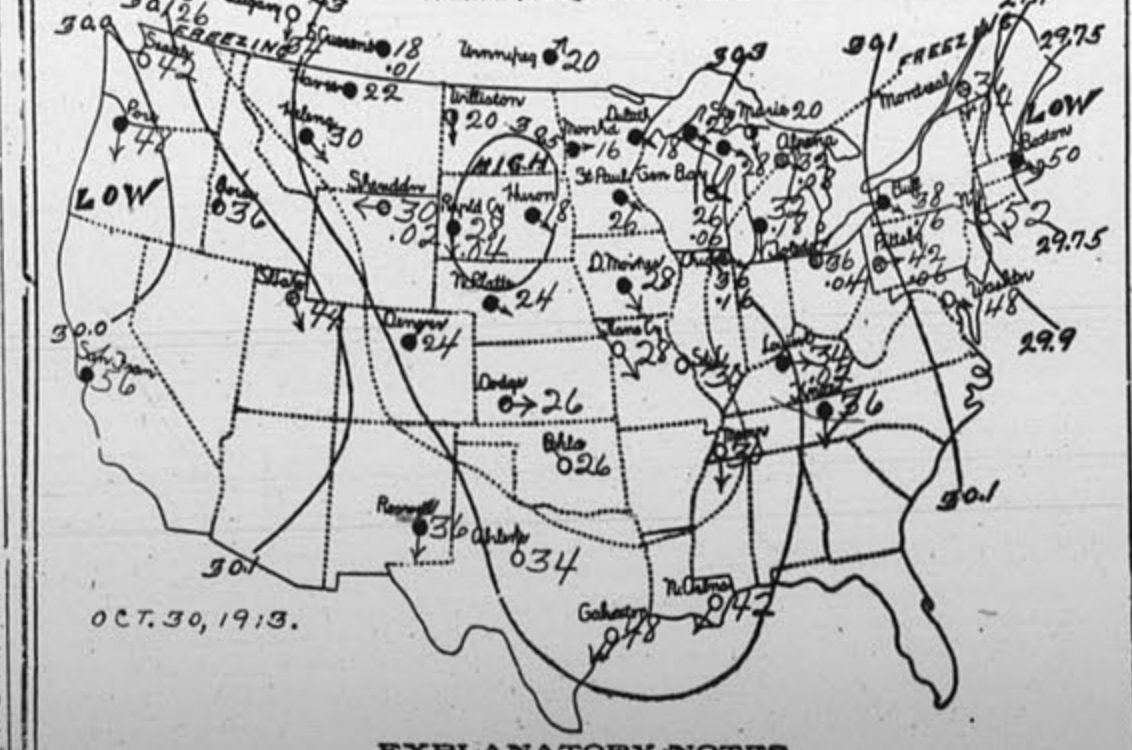

Sad Awakening.

"I shall never marry," said the young man with a pointed beard. "Because you are an artist?" "Yes, I painted a picture of the girl to whom I was engaged. She said that if that was the way I thought she looked it was better for us to part." —Washington Star.

William Zane, formerly in the employ of the I. Stephenson company and wanted here for check forging was arrested yesterday at Iron Mountain. Of Zane's activities the Iron Mountain Gazette says:

The local police landed a man yesterday by the name of William Zane. Zane is a rather smooth article and is said to have forged several checks on the I. Stephenson Company. Zane is a man about 22 years of age and is a very clever young fellow. He is being held until the sheriff comes from Escanaba.

WOLF PACKS FEARED IN NORTHERN MICHIGAN

Kill Hundreds of Sheep and Night Travel is Unsafe

Channing, Mich., Oct. 30.—Wolves and coyotes in the timber west of Witch Lake, Dickinson county, where a considerable settlement has sprung up in the last few years, have so increased in numbers that depredations committed by them at farms and ranches are of almost nightly occurrence. It is estimated that sixty sheep at the Dykes and Hickman ranch on the Fence river have been killed by wolves this season. Scores of deer have been destroyed.

Travel at night is considered unsafe. The growing numbers of the wolves is considered especially remarkable because several trappers are striving to exterminate them. Rolland Ames, one of these men, has killed four bears and eighteen wolves since the first of June, receiving therefor in bounties and pelts a sum approximating $600.

People living in the Witch Lake country are talking of organizing a wolf drive, such as is conducted in the west.

special relations, arranging tours and particularly for promoting Ford fellowship. The growth of a number of these little clubs has been so great that there has been talk in some quarters of forming a national organization with a club in every town. With every Ford owner eligible to such an organization it could start off with approximately 200,000 members as there are approximately that many Fords in use in this country at the present time with the number growing daily.

ORIGIN OF WORD "PICNIC"

Years and years ago, when such outings were being planned, it was customary to have a list passed among those who were to furnish the things to eat and drink, and each one picked out the thing she was willing to supply. It was then "nick'd" off the list. This form of making and signifying your choice became known as pick and nick which soon changed into picnic, and in due time the word picnic was applied to the entertainment, which without golden grain belt beers is a dry affair at the best, F. ESCANABA PREPARING TO CELEBRATE THE NIGHT OF FROLIC AND SPOOKS

as anything else, and thus for a long time halloween was an international thanksgiving holiday.

Was Never Legalized

Unlike other holidays, Halloween has no formal edict of a governor or president to make it legal. It did have such a legal standing under the Druids who invoked Saman, the lord of death to call together the wicked souls in animals and punish them.

The Romans, too, soon after the conquest of England, adopted the feast of Saman idea and made Oct. 31 a legal holiday for the worship of Pomona, goddess of apples and nuts. This was where the apple ducking idea, familiar to the old folks back on the farm, had its origin. Of course, no stiff necked pagan Roman ever ducked for apples, but the small boys of merry England took up the idea as a sort of joke on the Roman holiday.

Eve of All Saints.

The Catholics gave the night its name of All Hallows' eve, or Hallowmass, and the occasion still is observed as the vigil of Hallowmass, or All Saints' day. Some places it is made the time for decorating graves.

Although Halloween has long since ceased to be a celebration of any particular event, the idea of "spookiness" clings to it even in the effete celebrations about the modern dinner tables.

To be sure, the night in certain secluded portions of Ireland is known even now as the Oldhahe of Shamhna, or the vigil of Saman. In equally secluded parts of Scotland and Wales it is made into something of a serious frolic when bonfires are built and pebbles be found out of place the next morning it is a sure sign that the person who laid it there will die during the ensuing year.

Among the superstitious people of the north of Europe the saying is that if two children of opposite sexes are born in the same village on Hallowe'en they will be partners for life.

SHERIFF CURRAN MADE THE ARREST

In yesterday's issue of The Mirror it was stated that Patrolman McCauley had arrested the sneak thief who entered the Ludington hotel and carried off a suit case belonging to a traveling man. Sheriff T. J. Curran made the arrest.

Bear Baiting in Olden Days.

So popular was bull baiting in olden days in England that riots followed the attempt to suppress it in the large towns. Bear baiting was more popular still, if that could be. In various places, Liverpool, especially, it made part of the festivities at the election of the mayor, being held before his worship started for church. Ladies commonly attended in great numbers. There was a famous bear at Liverpool which showed such grand sport in 1782 that certain fair admirers presented it with a garland, decked it with ribbons and carried it to the theater, where a special entertainment had been "commanded," which bruin sat out in the front of their box. But of gossip about bull and bear baiting there is no end. Enthusiastic lovers of Shakespeare read with interest the petition of the royal bear warden, addressed to Queen Elizabeth in 1595, complaining that his licensed performances had been neglected of late because every one went to the theater.

Power of a Song.

Mme. Marchesi, speaking of the power of song, said: "I was singing at Edinburgh, where I have very good friends in the head master of a big public school and his wife, and it was arranged that I should have supper with them after the concert. One of my songs was Landon Ronald's 'Peace and Rest,' the idea of which is two lovers not separated by death, but lying together in the same tomb. When I came to supper with my friends my host said to me: 'Ah, Mme. Marchesi, that song you sang, "Peace and Rest," had a great effect upon me. I never thought before of my wife and I being separated by death—I did not wonder at this, for he is a most happy man, full of joy of life—but since I heard you sing that song I have been thinking hard, and tomorrow I am going to buy a family vault.' I scarcely knew whether to laugh or to cry, but in the end we all laughed. And surely this would be hard to beat for an example of 'what a song can do.'"

Perjury Penalties.

Perjury, besides being one of the oldest of offenses in the catalogue of crime, has always been very severely punished. In the days of the Roman empire any one who committed perjury was thrown from a precipice, while the Greeks branded their false swearers. It is interesting to note that when the latter embraced the Christian religion the punishment was altered to that of having the tongue cut out, a sort of punishment which was considered to fit the crime in the early centuries. In the middle ages some countries adopted the system of giving the perjurer the punishment for the crime he falsely accused another of. Thus if he swore a neighbor had committed murder and the charge was disproved the perjurer would be sentenced to death, and the other penalties of the penal code were exacted for the particular crime alleged.

The Stone Age.

The stone age still exists among some of the islanders of the south Pacific and the Eskimos of the extreme north as well as in a few other spots here and there on earth. The progress of early culture in Europe seems to have been from the south and east toward the north and west, so that the emergence of the different peoples from their age of stone was accomplished much earlier in southern and eastern Europe than in the north and west. But, while the stone age of different areas is thus not necessarily synchronous, it seems to be true of all European areas that this is the earliest condition in which man has appeared upon them. This holds for all other areas as well, evidences of the stone age having been fully established in India, China, Japan, Africa and the Americas.
