W. E. WELLS IS KILLED WHEN TRAIN STRIKES HIS AUTO AT CROSSING

ACCIDENT HAPPENED YESTERDAY AT WHITE FISH WHICH IS NEAR HIS HOME AT KALISPELL

WILLARD BURNS IS SERIOUSLY INJURED

Mr. Wells Was Well Known in This Section of the Country and His Death is a Shock

While crossing a railroad track at White Fish, Montana yesterday, Wesley E. Wells, formerly superintendent of the Escanaba & Lake Superior Railroad and Willard Burns, a relative who was with him, was so seriously injured that it is thought he will not live.

Details of the accident are lacking and will probably not be known for some time. All that has been learned is that the men were crossing the railroad track, when the car in which they were riding was struck by a train. Mr. Wells was so seriously injured that he lived but a short time. Mr. Burns was seriously injured and was taken to the hospital at Kalispell. It is claimed that he has but a small chance for recovery.

For the few years that Mr. Wells was superintendent of the Escanaba & Lake Superior railroad, and made his home at Wells, he won many friends among the people of Delta county, who will be greatly grieved at his untimely death. He was not more than 45 years of age and is survived by his wife and two sons, Halland aged 9 and Louis who is 16.

Mr. Wells went to Kalispell a few days ago to accept the general management of a big lumbering concern and he has been remarkably successful in his new position.

A telegram received this morning by W. Kates, who succeeded Mr. Wells as superintendent of the Escanaba & Lake Superior railroad stated that the funeral would be held in Kalispell, but the date would not be set until the relatives have been heard from.

Although Mr. Wells was born in the west he made his home in Michigan most of the time he was a boy and practically grew up in the lumbering business. For a number of years he was employed by Menominee and Marquette companies and the only time he was not actively engaged in lumbering was when he was in charge of the railroad.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Kates will leave this evening for Kalispell to attend the funeral services and will probably be joined by relatives from Menominee and Marquette.

A. B. Wells, the father of W. E. Wells, was informed of the accident at his home in Menominee and was able to leave last evening for Montana. A telegram received late this afternoon by C. W. Kates from Kalispell states that there is every indication that Mr. Burns, who was with Mr. Wells at the time of the accident will recover.

ONLY ONE OUT OF 342 STUDENTS GOES WRONG

Ninety High School Pupils Chose Teaching, 79 Bookkeeping and Journalism

A complete list of the vocations to which the pupils of the high school here aspire is furnished by Superintendent F. E. King.

Of 512 students but one has fixed upon journalism as his choice of the vocations. Think of it ninety want to be school teachers, seventy-nine bookkeepers and only one would "mould the plastic public mind." Mr. Webster (Noah not Daniel) says a journalist is an editor, one who contributes to a journal or newspaper.

He might have added that the average editor also contributes to church affairs, benefit concerts, checker tournaments and prize fights; also that he builds fires, keeps the sidewalk clean, tries to collect bills, dodges bricks and takes the curses of the entire community and does numerous other things that his dignity will not permit his enumerating.

The high school young man who picks out journalism among the thousand and one other vocations better take one more think. Better be a publisher or a politician. The terms journalist, publisher and politician are not synonymous, public opinion notwithstanding. A politician is a male who hasn't found journalism sufficiently remunerative. A publisher is a male, who, after starting as a journalist, enters politics and makes enough money to buy a newspaper of sufficient weight to keep him where he will keep on making money. Forget the journalism—be a publisher.

SCENE SHOWS WRECKAGE AFTER ZEPPELIN AIRSHIP EXPLOSION

The above photograph shows scene following the explosion and destruction of Germany's new army dirigible. Witnesses of the tragedy say that at least a dozen of those on the dirigible fell off before the wreckage reached the earth, their shrieks of pain or horror being heard above the roar of the motors, which were still running.

Rescuers hastened to the scene but the flaming ruins were so hot that nobody dared to approach to remove the two or three men still alive, whose moaning could be heard. These sounds ceased before the many willing hands of firemen and army pioneers could reach them.

Only Lieut. Baron Von Bleu, who had gone up as a guest of his friend, Lieut. Freyer, the commander of the dirigible, was conscious when he was extricated. He was in agony from burns on his head, face and legs, and hands and shrieked repeatedly while being carried away in an ambulance.

For Heaven's sake, kill me! Kill me!

After suffering terrible agony, he passed away in the hospital.

APPRECIATE HOSPITALITY

Knights of Columbus of This City Had Big Time at Gladstone on Columbus Day

That the local members of the knights of Columbus lodge who were fortunate enough to partake of the entertainment afforded by the Gladstone Knights, is made apparent by the following letter sent to James D. McDonald of that city:

At the regular meeting of Escanaba Council No. 649 a resolution was unanimously adopted conveying the thanks of Escanaba members to the Gladstone Brothers for their elaborate supper and entertainment furnished the Council on Columbus day evening and ask you to inform your committee in charge and all of your Gladstone members that all Brothers from Escanaba who were fortunate enough to be present were highly pleased and hope in the near future to be able to return the compliment.

Seventy-nine of the high school students answered "Take up bookkeeping."

"How much money have you in the bank?" was the second question, and one of those who had avowed his intention of being a bookkeeper answered, "I don't know." It is highly probable that the young man will change his ideas concerning his life's vocation before he enters into the bread and butter stage of life.

HE FLEW HIGH

By ALBERT L. FORD

"Mr. Wilson," said Billy Morehouse, standing meekly before a stern looking man with mutton chop whiskers and beetling brows, "I have come with your daughter Jennie's consent to ask you for her as my wife."

The gentleman looked at the young man before him, evidently framing a sentence to crush him. When it came it was like a bolt from heaven.

"You, a steeplejack, marry my daughter! Do you think me a fool? What kind of a business is yours anyway? You risk your life for $50, perhaps, and when you've done it once you do it again. You go up a spire in the presence of a gaping crowd. Do you suppose they would be watching you if it were not for the probability of seeing you tumble down and get mashed into a jelly? And what kind of a life would your wife lead? She would be in constant expectation of seeing your battered remains brought home in a wagon."

"Marry my daughter! No, sir." Billy hung his head and said nothing for a few moments. Then he looked up and asked:

"If I abandon the ancient and honorable steeplejack business for some other would you give your consent?"

"The occupation is ancient and not dishonorable," was the reply. "If you want my daughter—and she wants you or she wouldn't have sent you to me—you'll have to look up in the matter of an occupation. My son-in-law must fly higher than being a steeplejack. It's too late for you to study a profession, but you may yet make a business man of yourself. There are many occupations far more commendable than that of climbing steeples."

"It doesn't do for a man to waste his time learning to do things and then abandon them. Suppose I should become proficient in something as I am in climbing steeples and you should not be satisfied with it, and then I learned something else, and then—"

"You engage in something above steeplejacking and you may have Jennie, provided it pays you enough to support her."

"All right, Mr. Wilson. I'll try to fly higher than steeplejacking."

The last words were not heard by the elder man. He had no confidence in Billy's ability to make a living at anything except the line he had fallen into and felt perfectly safe in agreeing to give his daughter to him provided he could support her by a more acceptable occupation.

Six months passed, and Mr. Wilson heard nothing more of his would be climbing son-in-law. He kept an eye on his daughter and was reassured at not seeing any evidence of dissatisfaction on her part. He was congratulating himself that she had forgotten the steeplejack man when one day she said:

"Papa, I want you to take a walk with me this afternoon."

"A business man take a walk in the afternoon? What are you thinking of, sweetheart?"

"It's Saturday afternoon, and there's no need of your going to your office, for there is no one there."

The gentleman was persuaded, and the two sallied forth. Jennie suggested that they take a trolley ride into the country. This they did and finally found themselves in open ground. They strolled about for some time when suddenly Mr. Wilson, shading his eyes from the sun with his hands, said:

"What a big bird that is over there!"

"I think it's coming this way."

The bird did come that way, growing larger and larger as it neared them.

"Why, it's an aeroplane!" remarked Mr. Wilson.

"So it is!" chimed Jennie.

They watched it sailing along high up in the air, its two great wings extended, looking for all the world like a soaring eagle. It passed a thousand feet over their heads, turned and swooped downward like a seagull and a fish, passing not more than fifty feet above them.

"Hello, Jennie!" cried the aeronaut.

"Hello, Billy!" replied Jennie.

"What does this mean?" exclaimed the father, bridling.

Billy turned again and, passing with in ten yards of them, replied:

"Why, you told me, Mr. Wilson, that if I wanted Jennie I must fly higher than steeplejacking, and I'm doing it. There's no steeple higher than several hundred feet, and I've been up several thousand."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed the father.

"Jennie," reproachfully, "how could you bring your father out here on purpose to make a fool of him?"

"I didn't, papa. I brought you out here to show you that Billy has got the better of you. I want Billy, and Billy wants me. Now, do be a good, sensible papa and take Billy into your business and let us be happy."

"H'm! This was your doing. I know your tricks and your manners." Then to Billy, "Take that ungodly great bird back to where you got it and tomorrow morning come to my office."

Mr. Wilson was partly right. After his interview with Billy the two conspirators put their heads together and devised a scheme which Jennie, knowing her father's disposition, believed would be the best way to attack him. Any attempt to force him would have resulted in failure. It was the utter want of sense in the plan that conquered.

Billy is now running his father-in-law's business.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Use Grandmother's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Can Tell. Brush it Through Hair.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold. Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cents bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

IT'S EASY—IF YOU KNOW DR. EDWARDS' OLIVE TABLETS.

The secret of keeping young—is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle.

Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver. Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities. You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, Ohio.

The fleet of Cervera had been wiped out, and thus shorn of sea power, there was really little use in resistance on land.

It was on this day that Holton, with a long leave of absence, and many flattering official papers in his luggage, stood on the deck of a great transatlantic liner, looking down upon the crowd assembled on pier and bulkhead to wave farewell and Godspeed to friends and relatives who were hurrying to the continent to spend the last brilliant days of the waning summer away from the scenes of bloodshed and disease.

Close by his side, with her arm tightly locked in his, was a girl so radiant that she attracted the attention of everyone who passed the little group.

"And you, Thomas," he said, "will not be selfish. You will let my daughter come to me on the estate frequently."

"As frequently as she wishes," laughed Holton, "when I am doing my two years' sea service."

The father laughed and waved goodbye. But just before the ship sailed they made out his figure dashing to the end of the bulkhead.

"Father!" cried the girl, "what is it?"

Senor La Tossa held aloft an evening newspaper.

"Peace!" he cried. "Peace has been declared."

"She turned to Holton. 'Peace,' she smiled. Holton pressed her arm.

"Was there ever anything but peace anywhere in all the world?" he whispered.

(THE END.)

When a village of 150 inhabitants can boast of five widows, five old bachelors, six widowers and five old maids you may take it that that community is "going some."

Such was the case with the village of Grand View, and when a stranger would refer to the rival village of Spring Valley as having two butcher shops he was met with the reply:

"Yes, sir, I admit that she has, but where are her widows and widowers and old maids and old bachelors? She hasn't enough to count on two fingers. If you are looking for a home, sir, go no further than this, where business is always steady and real estate on the boom."

There was a flaw in the armor, though strangers did not get on to the fact. While these four classes of people were residents, there were no marriages between them.

The catch among the combined widowers and bachelors was Abraham Gunner. He was a bach. He was the wealthiest. He was popular.

All of a sudden Abraham received a drop letter at the postoffice. It was written by a woman who said she admired and loved him and hoped he would not judge her too harshly for her plain statement of fact.

He might never come to know the writer, but he could treasure it in his heart that one woman at least held him above all other men in the world.

Abraham scratched his ear and grinned.

"Who the devil can it be?" Abraham kept repeating to himself as he worked about the mill, but wondering and guessing didn't bring the solution.

That evening he didn't appear at the drug store to play checkers. He remained at home to read that letter over and over and try for a clue.

Of course no married woman had written him thus, and as he was forty years old and made no secret of his marriageable girls in town would pass him by.

"It's some one giving me a josh," was Abraham's conclusion as he quit speculating and went off to bed and to sleep.

On the third day thereafter he received another letter from the same person. It was also full of admiring terms. It was not likely they would ever meet, the unknown wrote, but she was strangely and strongly interested in his welfare.

As a bachelor, he must live a more or less lonely life.

As a husband, he would have a comrade and companionship.

As a boarder, as he had been for years and was yet, he knew nothing whatever of the comforts of a home.

It was hoped he would give the subject all due consideration and, in case he decided to enter the bonds of matrimony, might he take to the altar such a bride as a good man deserved.

"By thunder, but that's a darn good woman, whoever she is!" exclaimed Abraham as he read the letter.

After ten minutes he read it again and mused:

"Who can it be? Who can it be?"

"Say, old man, you must have heard some bad news," was the greeting he got from a dozen friends in the next three days.

"What makes you think so?"

"Why, your face is as long as a camel's, and you were going right past without speaking!"

It was almost a week before another letter came. Same handwriting—same womanly interest in his welfare.

"And has it ever occurred to you," was one of the paragraphs in the letter, "that a man situated as you are is selfish not to marry? It would relieve at least one woman from her cares and struggles. It would add one more household to the many."

"By John, but I'd propose to that woman in a holy minute if I knew who she was!" exclaimed Abraham, and when he reflected that he didn't know and had no way of finding out he wanted to kick over chairs and call his dog names.

Five hundred people a day called at the postoffice. How could they all be watched?

Abraham had no intimate man friend to go to with the letters.

He had a strong admiration and liking for the woman, no matter whether she was an old maid or a widow, but how was she to know it? How was he to find her and tell her so?

The old bach received a fourth letter and then a plan popped into his head. The postmistress had held her position for five years. She must know the handwriting of scores and scores of women. Why hadn't he thought of it before?

At midforenoon Abraham left his mill and walked to the postoffice and entered with firm step and handed one of the envelopes to the postmistress at the general delivery window and asked:

"Drat me, but it never occurred to me!"

"N-no."

"But, Mr. Gunner—"

"But he called and the date was set, and there was no postponement on account of the weather or anything else."

A FEW DEFT TOUCHES DISTINGUISH THE AUTUMN SUIT

It is very modish to button your cut-away coat loosely, with a single button, collar it with fur and saash or belt it with vivid silk or brocade. For those who prefer simplicity, however, the "single" button is sufficient.

Often the skirt accompanying these plain coats is tucked, double or triple, making up in a degree for the plain coat, and often coat and skirt are of contrasting materials, as in this instance.

A smart collar and a drop-shoulder redeem this design from severity and aid in bringing out the new lines required this season. Dark blue serge is combined with a three tiered skirt of white cloth.

The skirt has a two-piece foundation, two tunic sections, and may be made with or without the smartly shaped kindle.

To make the coat (7709) in size 36 it will require 2 1/4 yards of 42 inch material. The skirt (8002) in size 24 requires 4 1/2 yards of 42 inch material.

Racing in Ancient Rome.

Ancient Rome had its racing and its popular and well paid jockeys. Betting ran high, and the excitement of the people over the races and their favorite color frequently led to bloodshed. Caligula—he who made a consul of his horse—passed most of his time rioting with the charioteers. The circus was the place for the racing. The largest of them, the Circus Maximus, about 21,000 feet long, could accommodate 480,000 spectators. Seven times was it necessary to race round the spina, a low stone wall running down the center of the circus. The jockeys drove in a light chariot—usually four in each race—and wore close fitting tunics and leather caps of distinguishing colors. That the profession was a paying one we learn from ancient writers, money prizes and wages being paid. The jockey Crescens at the age of twenty-two had amassed a fortune, and Diocles, the king of jockeys, left to his son more than $1,000,000.

Beyond Words.

When Senator James Hamilton Lewis was practicing law in Seattle he had for a client an old lady who was afflicted with asthma. She came four times a year to have the colonel make out her pension papers. The colonel never failed to show a tender solicitude in her welfare and always received a wheezy but pleased response.

One morning when the colonel asked his question about her health the old lady turned to her granddaughter, who accompanied her, and motioned. The girl stood and stared. The old lady wigwagged frantically. The girl looked stolidly at her. The old lady wheezed and coughed and panted. The girl stared straight before her.

Finally the old lady burst out furiously:

"Drat you, Mary Louise! Didn't I tell you you would have to talk for me? Can't you see I can't say a word to save my life?"—Saturday Evening Post.

Ugly Buckingham Palace.

Buckingham palace provoked characteristic expressions of contempt from Mr. Creevy. "The new palace still remains the devil's own," he wrote in 1828. And in 1835, after he had been over it, he wrote: "Never was there such a specimen of wicked, vulgar profusion. It has cost a million of money, and there is not a fault that has not been committed in it. You may be sure there are rooms enough and large enough for the money, but for staircases, passages, etc., I observed that instead of being called Buckingham palace it should be the Brunswick hotel. The costly ornaments of the state-rooms exceed all belief in their bad taste and every species of infirmity. Raspberry colored pillars without end that quite turn you sick to look at, but the queen's papers for her own apartments far exceed everything else in their ugliness and vulgarity."—London Spectator.

What the Ford Has Done IT CAN DO AGAIN

While there are many things that I might tell you about what the FORD will do, I will take up the space by telling you what it has done.

Ford Takes Gas Power Age Trophy

The Gas Power Age trophy was captured by a Ford runabout owned and driven by A. L. Forde of Winnipeg, Man. Mr. Forde purchased his car in 1912. It had travelled 16,000 miles and had never been in a repair shop for an overhaul when it entered the 600-mile endurance road race in competition with twelve big cars. Notwithstanding, the staunch little car finished with a perfect score. The course of the race lay near Winnipeg, Man. The first day out of the race it rained continually, and the cars were forced to do practically a hundred miles over roads that were rivers of mud.

Particular honor is due the Ford because it was entered and driven by its owner, while practically every other car in the contest was entered by a motor car dealer or garage man and driven by an expert chauffeur.

Fords Are Choice of Geologists

Geologists have a habit of getting down to the rock bottom of any proposition. When the International Geological Congress visited Madoc, Ont., recently and from there made an overland trip of approximately 200 miles to study the formation of rocks, mountains and various other natural formations of interest to geologists, Fords were specified as the conveyances.

It seems that every one of the geologists, and there were men from various parts of the world, were familiar with the reputation for dependability of the Ford.

Five cars went through the trip in splendid condition and justified the confidence placed in them by the geologists.

Ford Wins Dunlop Trophy

For the third time in as many years a Ford captured the Dunlop trophy, a classic of Canadian motordom, in a spectacular twenty-five-mile grind on a circular track at Winnipeg, Man., Labor Day.

The Ford finished the twenty-five miles in 28 minutes 41.45 seconds. Although this was slower than the time made by Billy Rogers in the two previous years, it was fast enough going for the Ford to win easily.

Not content with winning the feature event of the day, Clark, with the Ford, went out against a field of five so-called higher-powered cars and captured a dash of one mile against time. The Ford's time for the mile was 1 minute 12.5 seconds.

The Ford also took the open ten-mile race, doing the distance in 10 minutes and 19 seconds.

Ford Wins Hard Race

Over mountainous roads a distance of 113 miles in the splendid time of three hours, fifty-seven and one-half minutes, went a Ford touring car, winning over a heavier car, and thus capturing a cash prize of $1,000.

The course was from Latrobe, Pa., to Bedford, Pa., and return. The race was the result of a friendly rivalry between the Ford dealers at Latrobe, Ross & Steel, and the dealer handling the high-priced, heavier car. The date of the contest was May 2nd.

But it should be remembered that the Ford's racing qualities are subordinated to its qualities of comfort and all-round serviceability. It is primarily a car for all the people, and is not intended for the speed specialist.

LEARN CAUTION.

Learn caution in speech; there is no need of telling all you know to every casual acquaintance. Be patient and achieve the joy of enduring a few trials. We are all called upon to stand for a good deal in this life; if not in one way, then in another. How we do it is what counts in the long run. The average human being, and especially the woman, is not given any glittering chances to distinguish herself by deeds that shine. Just bear what comes bravely—and to do this you will need self-control, the mastery of moods, the ability to realize that there are lots of others in the world with you. If you don't conquer your sudden impulses and unreasonable whims they will conquer you in time, and you will find that life has grown stale and lacking in all interest. Lives are ruined, homes lost, friends antagonized, all through sudden ways of writing letters or bringing up unpleasant matters that could better rest. Let events decide your moves for you—in most matters few of us are masters of destiny. The wise men were not so wise but that they chose to follow the star in the east that led them across the desert.

No storm ever disturbs the sea more than a comparatively short distance beneath the surface. There is little effect of wind or waves 100 feet down. At 200 feet both practically cease to exist. At 500 feet light and all motion having its source on the surface vanish as forces affecting the still, dark depths. Since there are many parts of the Great lakes where the water is from 100 to 700 feet deep and a few spots where it reaches 900 or 1,000 feet, it is strange that the storms which sweep these inland seas should attain extreme force and often cause great havoc? The lakes present many stretches of open water much wider than certain channels and bays of the salt seas which are notorious for their tempests and giant waves. Lake storms may be nearly as dangerous as ocean gales of the most destructive kind, says the Cleveland Leader. "It depends upon the wind more than on the extent of the bodies of water affected. There is room for almost anything in the form of waves on Lake Superior or even on Lake Erie.

To people who would shun infection a new caution is given. "Don't slide your hand along the baluster in going up or down stairs." In public buildings where the stairways are much used, the probability is that germs of various diseases will be left on the rail and that many of the people who take them off on their hands will get them into their systems. Of course everyone should wash his hands before eating. But even those who take this precaution would not want germs on their hands if they could avoid it. After all, however, it is impossible to go through life without taking chances. In the modern tall building people avoid climbing the stairs by traveling in the elevator. There are some old-fashioned folks, however, who dread elevators, and rather than ride in them would risk a fall down with the help of balusters.

A Russian lawyer says that American girls are worse than those in Russia. After recent strenuous efforts at equipping car pool institutions with all the comforts of home, including orchestras for dinner and baseball teams, this is really disheartening.

PREPARING FOR CORNELL AND PENN

Yost of Michigan Sifting Out Weak Players.

DARTMOUTH QUARTERBACKS

New England Institution Has Two Crackerjacks—McGhee Rivals Llewellyn—George Brooks Has Built Up a Strong Aggregation at University of Pennsylvania.

With the minor games out of the way Coach Yost at the University of Michigan can now turn his attention toward the development of the team which will meet Cornell and Pennsylvania. So far he has been experimenting, as he always does during the first few weeks of the season, and every man on the big squad who has shown any football ability, however slight, has been given a chance to make good.

Yost is sifting out the chaff from the wheat and has a pretty good line on the men who will be used in the important games, barring accidents. The shift of Pontius to fullback seems likely to be a permanent one, as the big tackle and end has shown better line plunging ability than any of his predecessors at the station. Weighing 195 pounds and reasonably fast, he hits the line like a bullet and generally manages to plow through for a substantial gain.

His one fault is a disposition to run high, and if he could be cured of this, habit he would be a second Bottles Thomson. Michigan's great plunging fullback last year. He can also pass the ball acceptably and has played the game long enough to have the necessary judgment in handling the pass, something that every player does not possess.

While the constant shifts in the line would indicate that Yost is not entirely satisfied with his forwards, it seems hardly possible that the three "M" men in the line, Musser, Allmendinger and Raynsford will be displaced by any of the green men trying for places, although two or three of the latter have displayed more than ordinary ability. However, Musser, Allmendinger and Raynsford have been through the fire in big games, and this alone predisposes the coach in their favor. In addition each has played good football this season.

Frank Cavanaugh, head coach of the Dartmouth football eleven, can boast of two quarterbacks this year between whom it is hard to make a decision. M. P. Ghee, Jr., and "Hank" Llewellyn have been punning such a close race that both are now considered first string men. Last year Llewellyn was the regular quarterback, but Ghee proved an able substitute and made a most favorable impression in several games. The latter has improved by leaps and bounds this season, and in all probability he will start the game against the Tigers. Ghee is heavier than a year ago, now weighing 152 pounds, although he hardly looks it on the field. Both men handle the team well and can be ranked among the best quarterbacks of the season.

GOLFER'S SWIFT DRIVE NEARLY BAGG BR'ER FOX.

The first fox of the season in lower New York state was seen in White Plains, and some of the wealthy residents on the country estates decided to pursue it with hounds. They nearly missed the opportunity of having a real hunt, however, for the fox came within an ace of being killed by a golf ball on the links of a nearby country club.

Ward Prince and Philip Van Rensselaer were playing golf, and nearing the sixth green, which is bordered on two sides by dense woods, a red fox started across the green. When he saw the two players and their caddies, about 125 yards away, he stopped for a moment.

Prince was in the act of taking a shot with his midiron, and the ball flew directly toward the fox about two feet above the ground. When the fox saw it coming he started off, but the ball just grazed his left hind leg. The fox limped for a moment, then recovered himself and dashed into the woods.

SIMPSON, PENN VETERAN. The Pennsylvania eleven, has worked wonders this season. Last year the Red and Blue team was beaten in quick succession by Swarthmore, Brown, Lafayette and Pennsylvania State. This year Swarthmore, Brown and Lafayette have been defeated. Revenge was not long delayed.

Simpson, Journey, Captain Young, Minds and Marshall are veterans that gave Brooks a good nucleus to work with in developing a strong outfit.

GLASS OF SALTS IF YOUR KIDNEYS HURT

Eat Less Meat If You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Trouble—Salts Fine for Kidneys.

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night. To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

The Story of Van Speyck. In "Holland of the Dutch" Dometrus Boniger tells as one of Holland's heroic episodes the story of Van Speyck. "It was during the Belgian revolution, when General Chasse held possession of the citadel of Antwerp and a Dutch squadron held the scheldt and secured his communications with Holland. In February, 1831, during a heavy gale a Dutch gunboat went adrift and grounded near the river bank. The Belgians determined to secure what seemed an easy prize and boarded the boat. The young commander, Lieutenant Van Speyck; had only thirty-one men under him. There were several hundred Belgians, and resistance was really out of the question, but he refused to haul down his flag. He opened the door of his magazine, and as the assailants rushed to seize him he fired his pistol into the powder, and the ship was blown to pieces with nearly every one on board."

ATTORNEY, SUPPOSEDLY DROWNED, YET ALIVE?

W. L. Mason Known to Have Been in Chicago Twenty-Four Hours After His Death Was Reported

The suspicion that W. L. Mason, the former prosecuting attorney of Baraga county, was not drowned in Keweenaw bay, as the finding of his overturned canoe and the attorney's disappearance would indicate, has been partly confirmed.

Those who are interested in Mason's whereabouts have stated that Mason was alive twenty-four hours after he was supposed to have been drowned.

It has been learned that on the evening of September 10, after leaving his canoe Mason went to a camp near L'Anse, owned by "Bob" Doyle. He spent the night at Doyle's camp and early next morning went to the home of John Lyons, near Covington, where he remained through the day. In the evening, September 11, Lyons drove his guest to Sidnaw, where Mason boarded a train for Chicago.

Trail is Lost

Mason is known to have arrived in Chicago on September 12, but there the trail is lost and nothing has been learned of his movements since that date, though officers and others interested, some of them financially, have been looking for him and still confidently expect that he will be found alive and well if not happy.

NO DOGS IN WOODS FROM NOV. 10 TO 30

Even Partridge Hunters Can't Use Them During the Season for Deer

No dogs are to be allowed in the woods during the deer season. This was the mandate of State Game Warden Oates some time ago, and although many have raised the question "What about partridge and rabbit hunters?" the mandate stands. There can be no dogs in the woods, or tied up at a hunting camp, and neither can they be kept at a logging camp. Their presence in the woods will be regarded as prima facie evidence of violators of the law.

The partridge hunter can use dogs from Oct. 1 to Nov. 10. After that date he must "recover" his game himself. The rabbit hunter is hampered, too, the season being from Sept. 1 to March 1. While he has a much longer time in which he can use dogs, he

CREDITORS WILL MEET

Trustee in Bankruptcy Will be Appointed at Meeting to be Held Here Next Wednesday

The creditors of the defunct Sanitary Meat Market conducted by M. P. Foy, at Gladstone which closed its doors a few weeks ago, will hold a meeting at the city hall here at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, November 5. At this meeting a trustee will be appointed and it is not improbable that the shop will be reopened by the trustee. Chester Lynch is at present acting as caretaker of the property.

Canada cuts about 2 million cords of pulp wood annually, about half of which is exported for manufacture in the United States.

can't have them during the best time of the year for hunting—when the snow is light.

The ban on dogs is due to the fact that many hunters have taken dogs to the woods on the pretext of hunting partridge, but have used them for hunting deer. Now, whether the hunter has a deer license or not, if he is found from Nov. 10 to Nov. 30 with a dog in the woods he will be liable to arrest. The deer hunting season is from Nov. 10 to 30; the partridge season, Oct. 1 to Nov. 30 and for rabbits Sept. 1 to March 1.

Any Two Deer'll Do

Although there is a general impression that a hunter, although allowed to shoot two deer, must have one of the two a buck, there is no such provision in either the federal or state game laws.

There is also a general belief that porcupines should not be killed, but they are not protected by law. The custom has been to leave the porcupines for lost woodsmen, in order that they may have food, these animals being easily killed even if a person has no firearms.

Although the open season for deer is still nearly two weeks off the influx of the lower state hunters into the eastern counties of the upper peninsula has already started. Most of the men now coming in are those who own permanent camps, to which they are going with the purpose of getting them ready for the main parties that will come later on. The deputy game warden have been instructed to check up carefully on these early comers to see that they do not knock over any deer before the season opens.

YOUNGSTERS MUSTN'T OVERSTEP THE LIMIT

Chief Iverson Says Destruction of Property and the Like Will Not be Tolerated Tonight

If you don't want your boy to spend the night in custody of the police, you had better make sure he is a good boy Halloween night. This annual event, when the goblins come round and the big pumpkin plays its best part each year, is always made a gala occasion by the younger people and invariably there are some of them who insist upon playing pranks upon Old Man Jones or Old Man Smith that require subsequent fiscal attention.

All of that will not be this year if Chief of Police Iverson can prevent it and the lads who delight in breaking fences, mixing up gates, removing storm doors, marking windows and making lives of their neighbors miserable will have to pay the penalty if apprehended.

The authorities will not throw any obstacles in the way of the young people who desire to have a good time legitimately. Throwing beans and peas, playing innocent larks upon each

Tip to the Parents.

"Parents will do well to caution their children," declared the chief today, "against damaging property, as we will have several special policemen on duty and will arrest offenders where destruction or defacing is found. This is going to work embarrassment where arrests are made, for it will be necessary for the offenders to spend the night in jail pending their hearing the following morning."

Where Cato Was Remembered.

In 1788 the little settlement around Fort Schuyler, New York, aspired to the dignity of a village charter and the question of a new name arose. A number of the citizens met in Bagg's tavern to discuss the matter, and it was decided to draw lots for the name, each person present to deposit in a hat a slip of paper with his choice written thereon. The first name drawn out was to be the one accepted. Thirteen slips were deposited, and the first one drawn forth chanced to be that written by Erastus Clark, a man of scholarly interests, as was illustrated by his choice. He had done honor to his favorite Roman, Cato, by inscribing on his slip the name of Cato's adoption in Africa. Thus was Ufien, N. Y., named.—Ladies' Home Journal.

"My wish is that my drawings, my prints, my engravings, my books—in a word, these things of art which have been the joy of my life—shall not be consigned to the cold tomb of a museum and subjected to the stupid glance of the careless passerby. Women Who Do Not Count.

The female of the species in Montenegro is chiefly a beast of burden. Her status is low on account of her sex. It matters not that she bears men; she does not bear the rifle and is not therefore a fighting unit. She is, in fact, introduced to the world with an apology. A man will announce the birth of a daughter to his friends with the words, "Comrades, excuse me—a girl." Until thirty years ago the population was only counted as so many "rifles"—that is to say, supposing one of the walled villages to contain 200 men, each with his "handjar" and rifle; 200 women, 300 children, with forty lusty boys, of whom thirty were able to shoot and had guns, and, say, sixty old men and women, then that place would be said to have 250 inhabitants, non-fighters going uncounted.—"Peeps at Many Lands."

Bermuda.

Bermuda enjoys the distinction of being the only British colony mentioned in Shakespeare. And his way of spelling it—the "still vexed Bermoothes"—is more correct and grammatical than that used today. Bermuda is a principal or cluster of 300 small islands—very small, seeing that all told they do not aggregate more than nineteen square miles. Bermuda is less than 600 miles from the coast of the United States. The exceptional mildness and salubrity of its climate have made it during recent years a favorite winter resort with well to do Americans. According to statistics, these visitors number some 30,000 a year. Mark Twain was a regular winter resident of Bermuda.

An Absolute Vacuum.

Q.—When a bottle of milk is emptied it contains air; when the air is pumped out there is a vacuum. My friends cannot tell what is in the bottle. Can you explain?

A.—But the air cannot be entirely pumped out. Humans so far have not secured an absolute vacuum. If they could, then the bottle by some is supposed to contain ether. But the existence of ether has not been proved. And then the bottle might contain three or four septillions free electrons, all beyond human research to discover.—Edgar Lucien Larklin in New York American.

His Selection.

"She told me to kiss her on either cheek."
"And you?"
"I hesitated a long time between them."—Lehigh Burr.

Ignorance.

"Pa, what's a contretemps?"
"I don't know. I've never learned the names of all these automobile parts."—Judge.

To Do Your Trading

We can save you money on anything you may buy at this store. We sell right because we buy right. Did you ever stop to figure that when you pay 5c for an article we sell for 4c, or 10c for one we sell at 8c; or 25c for one we sell for 20c, you are paying 25 per cent more than our price. This does not appear much on the items mentioned, but on your aggregate purchase it means you pay $125 for what you could buy here for $100. In many lines the difference is still greater.
