12 CENTS PER WEEK

5,000 LOWER MICHIGAN HUNTERS TO SEEK THE UPPER PENINSULA DEER

LOWER STATE NIMRODS ARE CROSSING THE STRAITS OF MACKINAC BY THE HUNDREDS

DO LICENSES ISSUED BY CLERK THURS.

5,000 Upper Peninsula Sportmen Will be in the Woods and Some "Should Worry"

When the deer season opens next Monday it is expected that fully 5,000 hunters from lower Michigan will be camped in the Upper Peninsula and that the licenses issued in Delta county as a basis, it is safe to assume that 5,000 residents of the Upper Peninsula will be out with their rifles. The majority of the total of 15,000 hunters will be in the woods the opening day of the season.

Last year 1200 deer hunting licenses were issued in Delta county and it is probable that the number will be exceeded this year. Yesterday 200 permits to hunt deer were issued at the county clerk's office and today about 50 more were issued. Deputies throughout the county are issuing the licenses so that it will be impossible to arrive at a total until all have reported.

Inflow From Lower Michigan.

Speaking of the influx of hunters from lower Michigan Deputy Game Warden Leisner said: On Wednesday he crossed the Straits of Mackinac to the Upper Peninsula. Several hundred hunters have been in the upper peninsula for the past week and the next few days anywhere from five to six hundred hunters are expected to come into this section daily from lower Michigan, so that when the season opens it is safe to predict that more than 5,000 lower state nimrods will be after Upper Peninsula deer.

Big camps of hunters are in evidence everywhere and Dickinson county seems to have more than its share. Deer are plentiful this year in the county and not a few of the low state men will hunt in this county. In addition to the Michigan hunters hundreds of Illinois sportsmen will be in the woods and practically all of the eastern and middle west states will be there. The Michigan hunters will be their quota of hunters in this section.

The game wardens wish to issue a permit to work on alien hunters. It matters not how long a foreign born person has resided in this state. If he has declared his intention of becoming an American citizen he must secure a non-resident license which costs $25 for deer and $10 for small game.

GENERAL FELIX DIAZ IS SLIGHTLY WOUNDED IN FIGHT WITH A MEXICAN

WOUNDS RECEIVED BY MEXICAN GENERAL NOT SERIOUS—TWO WOUNDS IN BACK OF NECK

BEATEN OVER THE HEAD WITH A CANE

Assailant is Captured—Thought to be An Agent Sent by Huerta Government

(By Associated Press.) Washington, Nov. 7.—Gen. Diaz has been arrested. Later developments show that he was involved in a quarrel and that before he himself was wounded he shot Pedro Querrero, a young Mexican.

Havana, November 7.—General Felix Diaz, who was attacked and stabbed here late last night, recovered his composure after the wounds in his neck had been dressed. The wounds are not serious.

The attack on Diaz occurred while he was walking in the Malecon, a fashionable promenade. He was wounded behind the ear and in the neck, besides receiving several blows on the head from a cane.

General Diaz was removed to a hospital. His assailant was arrested. Cuban Government Warned of Plot.

General Felix Diaz made his escape from Mexico on Oct. 27, taking refuge on board the United States gun boat Wheeling at Vera Cruz. He was transferred to the battleship Louisiana and from there to the battleship Michigan, later being put aboard a steamer which reached Havana on Monday last.

As long ago as Oct. 15 the Cuban government was warned a band of Mexican conspirators was planning to kill General Diaz, who was then on his way from Europe to Mexico. The Cuban government took precautionary measures and Diaz was closely guarded when he landed at Havana on his homeward voyage. There were rumors of other plots against his life, when it was learned that he was to return to Havana.

A late Vera Cruz dispatch reported that Diaz had left behind him there alleged proof that an agent of the government was on his way to Vera Cruz with orders to take Diaz to Mexico City, dead or alive.

SUFFRAGISTS HAVE HOPE

Enfranchisement for Women May be Made Part of Liberal Program

(By Associated Press.) London, November 7.—Decided efforts are being made to induce the government to agree with the suffragists so that a measure for the enfranchisement of women can be made a part of the official program of the Liberals.

The suffragist leaders declare that the movement has obtained considerable headway. It is known, however, that the government will only compromise on the unqualified repudiation of the Women's Social Political Union and all its militant methods.

VETERAN LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEER EXPIRED AT THE NOON HOUR TODAY

JERRY E. DONOVAN DIES SUDDENLY AT HIS HOME ON SOUTH JENNIE STREET—ILL BUT SHORT TIME

OF A FAMILY OF LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEERS

Had Been an Engineer on the Peninsula Division of the North Western For Years

Just as the bells were tolling the noon hour Jerry E. Donovan, veteran engineer on the Peninsula division of the North Western railroad expired at his home, 601 South Jennie street.

The death of the veteran engineer came as a great surprise and shock to the members of his family and to his many friends. For the past three weeks he had been ailing and although he had not been working during that time it was not believed that his ailment was serious. Last night he grew suddenly worse and he was realized that the end was near. He gradually weakened until death claimed him at the noon hour.

Born in Montpelier, Vermont, in 1856, the deceased came to the middle west thirty-two years ago. For a year he was employed on the Galena division of the North Western railway and thirty-one years ago came to the Peninsula division. He had been a resident of Escanaba since that time.

Possessed of the true Irish wit, genial, every ready to aid a friend in distress his friends were a legion. He was a devout member of St. Patrick's church. He belonged to the local castle, Knights of Columbus, to the Catholic Order of Foresters and to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

He is survived by his wife and three daughters, Mrs. W. B. Bowen, nee Miss Charlotte Donovan and (Continued on page six)

HUERTA WILL RETIRE IF THE GREAT POWERS SUPPORT U. S. POLICY

PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT OF MEXICO WISHES TO AVOID APPEARANCE OF YIELDING TO PRESSURE

OFFICIAL WORD IS NOT FORTHCOMING

Personal Representative of President Wilson Arrives in Mexico City From Vera Cruz

(By Associated Press.) Mexico City—Provisional President Huerta's formal negative reply to the United States demand will set forth that the United States has no right, legal or otherwise, to demand his elimination and that he would have no legal rights to accede to the demands. The statement was given out through one of the Mexican government departments. It is said that Huerta will increase his army to 500,000.

Berlin, Germany, November 7.—The correspondent of the Frankfurt Gazette in Mexico City has telegraphed that General Huerta will retire from office if the great powers support the United States. He hopes by this action to avoid the appearance of yielding to American pressure.

Lind in Mexico City.

Mexico City—John Lind, the personal representative of President Wilson, arrived here today from Vera Cruz. The embassy was not informed of his coming and considerable surprise was expressed.

He was accompanied by Captain Burnside and Ensign Hill who are acting as his aides. He refused to talk but posed for the photographers.

BURNS IS IMPROVING

Thomas Burns of Escanaba Who Fell From Box Car is Getting Better

Thomas Burns of Escanaba, a brakeman on the C. & N. W. road, who was injured Monday afternoon and taken to the hospital following a fall from a box car on Ogden avenue, is improving daily in condition, says the Menominee Herald Leader.

It was at first thought that he suffered a fractured skull but such is not the case, although he has a pressure on the brain which detains his recovery to some extent. Not a bone was broken in the foot though it was thought to have been crushed.

Burns now recalls the accident and stated today that he stumbled on the box-car, in that manner being thrown to the pavement. The fact that his skull was not fractured is due to the heavy cap he wore at the time which protected his head when he fell, suffering only a dull blow.

JURY COULDN'T AGREE

Assault and Battery Case Before Judge McEwen Has Unsatisfactory Conclusion

The jury that heard the assault and battery case in Judge McEwen's court yesterday afternoon retired shortly after five o'clock and an hour later reported that an agreement could not be reached. They were then discharged. What disposition of the case will be made will not be determined upon. The statements of the witnesses for the prosecution and for the defense were directly in contradiction so that it was practically an impossibility for the jury to reach any agreement.

STREET CAR STRIKE IS SPREADING IN INDIANA

No Change in Situation at Indianapolis—Cards Tied up at Richmond, Ind.

(By Associated Press.) Indianapolis, Ind., November 7.—Governor Ralston is making every endeavor to effect a settlement between the strikers and the traction company. The recognition of the union seems to be the chief cause of contention. All efforts to start service have been abandoned.

Richmond—The street car strike has spread to this city. The service is tied up by the striking motormen who demand an increase in wages.

ARE DETERMINED TO WIN

Escanaba Eleven Goes to Norway Tomorrow—Drilled Hard During the Week

Tomorrow the Escanaba high school football team goes to Norway to meet the high school eleven of that town. Coach Bowles has drilled his squad hard during the week just ending and several new plays have been learned. The members of the eleven are determined to make up for last Saturday defeat at the hands of Manistique and if Norway wins tomorrow it will not be because the Escanaba warriors are lacking in determination.

DR. LAMBERT DEPLORES CONDITIONS THAT MADE SWANSON'S DEATH SURE

LOCAL PHYSICIAN WILL TAKE CONDITIONS IN AND ABOUT PESTHOUSE BEFORE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH

SURPRISED THAT PATIENT LIVED SO LONG

Criticizes Harshly the Management of the County Poor Farm—Says Dirt is Piled Under Beds

The following communication from Dr. O. B. Lambert with regard to the pesthouse and the county poor farm, needs no explanation.

EDITOR MIRROR: Allow me the opportunity to report further upon matters of interest to the people here.

The death at the pesthouse yesterday is a blot upon the county.

When I called yesterday, wonder to behold, we had a woman nurse to care for the patient. This was indeed noble when one considers what a hole it is for a woman to sleep in. I want to add too, that I am indebted to Dr. Kitchen for his timely aid. Dr. Kitchen did all in his power to help matters.

We had to use considerable antitoxin. This cost money and the amount used and needed incurs considerable expense, a condition that would have been minimized had the quarters been in a better condition to house the patient. The vital resistance force of a human being is greatly lessened by his environments be they unsanitary and it is a wonder to me that the patient lived as long as he did.

BIG SALE AND SUPPER TO SURPASS OTHERS

Ladies Aid Society of First Presbyterian Church Making Arrangements for Event

The annual sale and supper of the Ladies Aid Society of the First Presbyterian Church, will be given in the lecture room of that church, Wednesday evening Nov. 12, from 5.30 till eight o'clock. It will be a turkey supper and all the good things that go with it. The ladies are declaring that no event of the past will compare with the supper given this time. The fancy work department has been busy making plans for a big sale. Serviceable articles will be on sale—in fact every thing that will appeal to the patrons, aprons and towels, and suitable gifts for Xmas. No one should miss this supper nor the fancy work booth. Home made candies will also be for sale at reasonable prices. The ladies are pleased with the prospects of this annual event.

FEDERAL OFFICER IN CITY

Deputy Revenue Collector Coulter Has a Satisfactory Trip

A. S. Coulter of Charlevoix, deputy collector of internal revenue, has been in Delta county this week to investigate alleged sales of liquor by certain persons without the authority of a government license. Among other places visited was Fayette, Mr. Coulter having returned from that place yesterday. Mr. Coulter was extremely reticent as to the result of his trip to Fayette, but the smile which accompanied his statement that the trip had been very satisfactory leads us to assume that Uncle Sam, has been made richer by the price of a government license dating from the first of last July.

FIVE BRIDES-TO-BE IN CHICAGO THEATRE BOX

Miss Ruth Stack of This City, One of Those Who Occupied "Bride's Box" at Benefit Performance

The Chicago Record-Herald of Thursday printed a likeness of Miss Ruth Stack of this city. Miss Stack with four other young ladies occupied the "bride's box" at a benefit performance in one of Chicago's theatres.

PETER OLSON

DR. LAMBERT DEPLORES CONDITIONS THAT MADE SWANSON'S DEATH SURE

(Continued from page one.) open about the pesthouse in a malodorous condition. Upon investigation I sighted an open-air horse carcass depository. Four dead horses in different degrees of nauseous decomposition. Upon investigation I find that the spot is a favorite depository for dead animals the year round. The spot lies within striking distance of the railroad and the winds carry the odors and likewise, various disease breeding particles for a great distance around. This certainly is a disease breeding zone, a condition that can and ought to be remedied at once. Whether or not it is within the confines of the city I do not know; that it exists is sufficient. I shall immediately take this matter up with the State Board of Health authorities. Your article of recent date stated that the patient who died yesterday in the pesthouse was the first in thirteen years. That is wrong. Upon good authority I am informed that a family of five was quartered there a little over two years ago, two dying. Also dates carried upon a table by former inmates prove the same thing. Two years ago a case escaped from there and died the result of exposure. Another thing I wish to call attention to is the lack of human feeling evinced by the management of the poor farm. To get wood, water or anything, any aid at all, I have had to quarrel with the manager and his wife. What the poor farm needs is a good shaking up. The management should be thrown out and a new management based upon humane principles installed. My attention was called to a tuberculosis case in the old institution. It was none of my business to look it up but out of curiosity I investigated. To tell of it would entail much space. Some doors to rooms were open and a glance revealed the dirt piled in a heap under the beds. This is no exaggeration. If the poor old human relicts were given a hearing, a protected hearing, the investigation would reveal a condition that for horror compares with the worst known to mankind, but the poor old people are afraid of their skins for it is a well-understood fact that an institution like that has its pets or favorites who will stand by the czar-like management. When I told a gathering of inmates that a change of management ought to be instituted and at once, some countenances beamed, others revealed tears of joy. Consider if you will the plight of the county's unfortunate. Indeed the much misconstrued Oslersization theory would be a boon to these people unless wise precautions are used in employing proper persons to look after the institution.

I have had trouble enough with the powers that be at this place and do not care to quarrel for a helping hand, a helping hand that required but little to do and little time at that. It makes no difference if the poor farm has no connection with the pest house, the taxpayers pay for service and as the necessities are there and accessible for immediate use there should be no reluctance shown to aid and no red-tape manifested. As it is, the handling of the case at the pest house was a hard one. With water, wood, bed clothing etc. right at hand the management of the poor farm was reluctant to shake a leg. They say they have nothing to do with the pest house, that may be but when they use it to store farm implements, I'm afraid their charge wont hold water. What is needed is a complete house-cleaning of discordant ideas and the installation of a better management. I hope you will give this matter consideration in your valued paper, the condition needs publicity and I'll get out on the street corners if necessary and tell the public what I know. "A man is a man for a" that" said the immortal Burns, and it is a God-given right that justice be given the unfortunate of this community, a right that can readily be adjusted through the agency of righteous men of the community. HOUSE HUNTING

By LAURA R. TURNLEE

MacElliott returned from his vacation, and when he entered his bachelor home—a single room, which was all he needed—it seemed lonelier to him than ever. In a country hotel with women and children about him he had had an advantage. None of them belonged to him, but neither he nor they had anything to do all day long, and he could see as much of them as he liked. But now he was back again to the same desolation. "I've a mind to take a house," he said—"a small house, but a whole house. I'll have room to ask friends to come and stay with me. I can walk about in the rooms." So the next day he went house hunting. After visiting a number he came upon a cozy place just about big enough for him. But somehow his enthusiasm for housekeeping had been replaced by common sense. "No one can make a home without a woman in it," he muttered to himself. "My friends won't come to keep me company, and I wouldn't want them anyway." While he spoke he pushed the button at the front door. A moment before it was opened a young woman of prepossessing appearance came up the steps. An elderly woman appeared at the door, and MacElliott drew back. The lady who had just appeared said: "I understand that this house is to be furnished. Can I see it?" "Certainly." Supposing the two had come together to look at the house, the keeper of it led the way into the living room, a dainty little apartment, neatly furnished, and from there through the rooms on the first floor. On reaching the second floor she threw open the door of the best bedroom, remarking, "Any couple who couldn't be happy in this room couldn't be happy at all." MacElliott and the lady both looked very sober at this, for the keeper said it as if having mistaken them for a married couple. MacElliott looked at the ceiling, and the lady looked at the floor. "And here," continued the speaker, opening a door communicating with a smaller room, "is a convenient room for a child. The crib over in that corner will be left with the other furniture." Neither the gentleman nor the lady showed the expected appreciation for the child's room or the crib, but the conductor passed on to other chambers, expatiating on what they were for and how convenient they were. Finally passing down into the living room again, she was about to make an effort to rent the house when there was a ring at the doorbell, and she left them while she answered it. The lady stood looking down to the floor. It was very stupid of the keeper to go about talking to them as if they were married when they had not even met before. MacElliott thought it time to assure the lady that if she wanted the house he would not think of standing in her way. After an abem he did so. "Taking a house is only a passing fancy of mine," she replied. "I'm tired of boarding and would like a house, but I have no one to occupy it with me, and I doubt if I should improve my condition by housekeeping. True, it would give me occupation to take care of it, but I should have to take in a woman as a roomer for company, and I dislike having persons about in whom I have no interest. Besides, a woman would be no protection." "I am in the same fix," replied MacElliott. "I'm a bachelor, and if I should take a house it would soon be a sorry looking place, with no woman to look after it. Without constant scrubbing, brushing and putting things to rights any house will run down." "That's very true, but you could hire a housekeeper, some elderly person, whose presence wouldn't—wouldn't excite comment." "H'm! I would prefer one whose presence would excite comment." At this the lady's eyes dropped again to the floor. "How would it do for you to take the house and rent a room to some old man, whose presence would not cause comment? He would serve perhaps for protection." There was no reply to this, the lady keeping her eyes on the floor, but her features said very plainly, "I'd rather have a man about my own age." Meanwhile the keeper was showing another person through the house, and MacElliott, hearing them coming downstairs, said: "May I make bold to ask your address? I may be able to suggest a plan for you. I have a cousin who—" The lie was not spoken. The keeper was coming. The lady hurriedly gave her address in a low tone and passed out. MacElliott waited till the third party had gone, then made a bargain for the house. "When would you like possession?" asked the woman. "I don't know." "I take it your wife is much pleased with the house." "Very much pleased." MacElliott paid the rent on the house for three months, then one day called with the lady he had met there and made arrangements for its occupancy. The keeper still spoke of her as "your wife," but caused no embarrassment, because by this time the couple were engaged. Twelfth Century Football. In the twelfth-century football in England was a game for the streets. The chronicler of that period tells how after dinner the city youths "addressed themselves to football," and how the scholars of each school and the apprentices of particular trades would each have their peculiar ball. There were spectators, too, in those days—enthusiastic spectators. Fathers would come to watch their sons and "become as youthful as the youngest, their natural heat seeming to be revived at the sight of so much ability." In later years one recalls a famous ball game played in Hyde park. In 1654, then, "there was a burling of a great ball by fifty Cornish gentlemen on one side and fifty on the other. One party played in red caps, the other in white." And—here the historical value of the contest—Cromwell was a spectator and applauded the "great agility of body" displayed. Aldine Editions. The introduction of the sloping Roman letters which are known to everybody as Italics was made by Aldus Manutius of Venice in the latter part of the fifteenth century. He was the most famous printer of Italy and perhaps of the world. The books he printed, known as Aldine editions, are much sought after by collectors. His first volume in the new type was a Vergil published in 1501 at the price of about 2 shillings of our money. Aldus, in fact, was the pioneer of cheap literature. The Aldine mark is a dolphin twined about an anchor with the name "Aldus." If any reader, says Mr. J. A. Hill in the Imprint, finds a cartload of old books with this mark in his attic or lumber room, he is duly advised not to use them for lighting the fire. They would probably buy him a good annuity for the sake of his declining years. How Koreans Advertise. Although the Korean has stubbornly refused to adopt western ideas, he has always recognized the value of advertisement. When a Korean opens a new shop or has any particular wares he is anxious to dispose of or when a nobleman desires to convey a certain piece of intelligence to the people he seeks the services of the sandwich men. In the Hermit Kingdom, however, these men do not carry boards upon which the desired information is made known to all and sundry, but resort to the medium of picturesque flags, upon which the announcement is inscribed. Anything from one to a dozen flags may be requisitioned, and these are carried through the streets by boys and men, forming a picturesque moving advertisement.—Wide World Magazine. Say, Teacher! The keeper still spoke of her as "your wife," but caused no embarrassment, because by this time the couple were engaged. Edward Young's Tragedy. In Garrick's time the church had a decided leaning toward the stage. The great actor suffered a plague of stage struck clergymen. He read many of their plays and produced at least one. The Rev. Edward Young of Welwyn parish and of "Night Thoughts" fame wrote a tragedy of "The Two Brothers," which Garrick produced. Its reception was a tragedy. It "was only fit to make an icehouse of a theater." Young, however, had counted his chickens. He had promised £1,000, the expected proceeds of his author's rights, to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. And here he shone. Twelfth Century Football. In the twelfth-century football in England was a game for the streets. The chronicler of that period tells how after dinner the city youths "addressed themselves to football," and how the scholars of each school and the apprentices of particular trades would each have their peculiar ball. There were spectators, too, in those days—enthusiastic spectators. Fathers would come to watch their sons and "become as youthful as the youngest, their natural heat seeming to be revived at the sight of so much ability." In later years one recalls a famous ball game played in Hyde park. In 1654, then, "there was a burling of a great ball by fifty Cornish gentlemen on one side and fifty on the other. One party played in red caps, the other in white." And—here the historical value of the contest—Cromwell was a spectator and applauded the "great agility of body" displayed. Aldine Editions. The introduction of the sloping Roman letters which are known to everybody as Italics was made by Aldus Manutius of Venice in the latter part of the fifteenth century. He was the most famous printer of Italy and perhaps of the world. The books he printed, known as Aldine editions, are much sought after by collectors. His first volume in the new type was a Vergil published in 1501 at the price of about 2 shillings of our money. Aldus, in fact, was the pioneer of cheap literature. The Aldine mark is a dolphin twined about an anchor with the name "Aldus." If any reader, says Mr. J. A. Hill in the Imprint, finds a cartload of old books with this mark in his attic or lumber room, he is duly advised not to use them for lighting the fire. They would probably buy him a good annuity for the sake of his declining years. How Koreans Advertise. Although the Korean has stubbornly refused to adopt western ideas, he has always recognized the value of advertisement. When a Korean opens a new shop or has any particular wares he is anxious to dispose of or when a nobleman desires to convey a certain piece of intelligence to the people he seeks the services of the sandwich men. In the Hermit Kingdom, however, these men do not carry boards upon which the desired information is made known to all and sundry, but resort to the medium of picturesque flags, upon which the announcement is inscribed. Anything from one to a dozen flags may be requisitioned, and these are carried through the streets by boys and men, forming a picturesque moving advertisement.—Wide World Magazine. Say, Teacher! Any time you get it into your head that you know a few things just go up against some of the questions the average little schoolboy can ask you.—Florida Times-Union. Always Out. At this the lady's eyes dropped again to the floor. "How would it do for you to take the house and rent a room to some old man, whose presence would not cause comment? He would serve perhaps for protection." There was no reply to this, the lady keeping her eyes on the floor, but her features said very plainly, "I'd rather have a man about my own age." Meanwhile the keeper was showing another person through the house, and MacElliott, hearing them coming downstairs, said: "May I make bold to ask your address? I may be able to suggest a plan for you. I have a cousin who—" The lie was not spoken. The keeper was coming. The lady hurriedly gave her address in a low tone and passed out. MacElliott waited till the third party had gone, then made a bargain for the house. "When would you like possession?" asked the woman. "I don't know." "I take it your wife is much pleased with the house." "Very much pleased." MacElliott paid the rent on the house for three months, then one day called with the lady he had met there and made arrangements for its occupancy. The keeper still spoke of her as "your wife," but caused no embarrassment, because by this time the couple were engaged. Edward Young's Tragedy. In Garrick's time the church had a decided leaning toward the stage. The great actor suffered a plague of stage struck clergymen. He read many of their plays and produced at least one. The Rev. Edward Young of Welwyn parish and of "Night Thoughts" fame wrote a tragedy of "The Two Brothers," which Garrick produced. Its reception was a tragedy. It "was only fit to make an icehouse of a theater." Young, however, had counted his chickens. He had promised £1,000, the expected proceeds of his author's rights, to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. And here he shone. YALE-PRINCETON GAME ON NOV. 15

Expert Compares Chances of the Great Teams.

CONTEST WILL BE CLOSE.

Tommy Clark Figures Princeton Better In Back Field and Gives Yale Best of It in the Line and in the Kicking Department.

By TOMMY CLARK. Yale and Princeton hook up at New Haven, Conn., Nov. 15, and a battle royal will of course occur.

The Jersey Tigers cannot forget how deeply disappointed they were a year ago when, in the last few minutes and they were leading Yale 6 to 0, Pumpelly kicked a goal from the field and tied things up.

That was a sad day for Princeton, for the Jersey lads counted the game as already won when the vaunted toe expert of the Blues smashed their joyous smiles into miserable frowns.

Princeton has been working doggedly to turn the tables this year. The defeat by Dartmouth was a surprise, but it spurred the men to greater efforts in training and in developing the execution of their plays.

Yale out-classes Princeton in the kicking department, and this fact may determine the result, as all the colleges are playing very much of a kicking game this year. Pumpelly is the star kicker of the Elis. He has been on the sick list a great deal, but he is able to go into the game against Princeton the Jersey lads will have much to worry about when the Elis are within striking distance of their goal, owing to the long range of Pumpelly's drop kicks.

Ketcham of Yale will, of course, be an anchor in the line. He has been All American center for two years. Against him will be Swart of Princeton, who is not in Ketcham's class.

Hobey Baker, captain of Princeton, will be likely at any moment to pull off a sensational run through a broken field. The Yale ends must get down on him very quickly and very close in case of kicks, for once Hobey gets a good start running back a punt he is apt to go dangerously far.

The Yale line is good and is stronger than the back field. The many changes made in the lineup show that the coaches had not been entirely satisfied with past performances.

Princeton's backs size up better than those of the New Havenites. The Princeton team is faster than the Elis, and this fact will have its effect.

Princeton is better fixed on the ends than Yale, but outside of those positions the New Haven forwards are superior to their rivals. At quarterback Princeton has had no difficulty, of course, with Baker on the job, but at New Haven the coaches have been sorely put, trying one man and then another. Street at fullback is an abler line backer than any of the Yale men.

Taking the whole situation into consideration at each college, I think the teams are about evenly matched.

Johnny Mack, the Yale trainer, held the watch on the punts of Knowles and Gurnsey the other day. It showed that from the time the ball left the center's hands on the pass to the kicker to the time it was kicked forty-five yards down the field and caught by the receiver just seven seconds on an average were consumed.

A NEW FOOTBALL PLAY OF GLENN WARNER'S.

A new play based on the rule permitting one man of the side with the ball to be in motion toward his own goal line before the ellipsoid is put in play and devised by Glenn S. Warner, the Carlisle coach, is described as follows by D. L. Reeves:

"One of the Indian ends, usually the heavier, moves out far beyond his tackle, immediately giving the impression that the team is about to try a forward pass and that he is the man to whom the pass is to be made. When the player reaches the required distance from the tackle he stops an instant, looks at the center and immediately dashes toward his team, which is constructed as running in the direction of his own goal.

"Just before he reaches the tackle nearest him he slows up momentarily and shouts a word unintelligible to the opposition, but which the center interprets as the signal to put the ball in play. The end, being back of the ball when it is snapped, is, of course, on the side, and he immediately crashes into the opposing end or tackle, sometimes being able to 'hit' both and put them out of the play. Right on top of him rush two of the backs, and following immediately is the runner, who, if the play is worked perfectly, finds a splendid opening and little opposition.

"The Indians worked it repeatedly against the Quakers for good gains, and Warner expects to realize even more benefits from the play in future games, because it is a measure was in a crude state of experimentation when Carlisle met Pennsylvania."

EAST VERSUS WEST IN PENN-MICHIGAN GAME.

This Notable Football Contest to Occur at Ann Arbor Nov. 15.

Pennsylvania and Michigan are preparing for their annual gridiron clash, and the westerners are out for revenge. Last year they had the Penn team on the run and looked for an easy victory, but Marshall, the speedy quarterback of the Quakers, broke away for fifty yards and scored. This seemed to put new life in his teammates, and they cut loose for fair, winning the game in the last quarter.

This year the Wolverines are going to lay for Marshall and are especially afraid of the forward pass that he and Captain Patterson are so successful with. Captain Patterson at center is the biggest factor in the Michigan defense and is expected to star.

Nerve of a Doctor.

"I believe," said Dr. John M. Kitchener, "I was the first physician in northern Indiana to make use of chloroform. I was a young fellow not much past twenty-one years old, the link hardly dry on my sheepskin, when a man came into my office to have an aching tooth pulled out.

"I had a small bottle of chloroform, and with the hardihood of youth I made up my mind to use it. He readily went under the influence of the new anesthetic. I pulled manfully and the grinder came out. I waited, but the patient did not return to consciousness. I was badly frightened, and, hastily seizing a bucket with about two gallons of water in it, I poured it over him. Gasping he came out from the influence of the chloroform. Then he wanted to know what I meant by giving him such a soaking.

"Mustering all my professional sang froid, I calmly replied, 'That, sir, is a part of the treatment,' and he went away, greatly to my relief, entirely satisfied."—Indianapolis News.

AN UNPAID DEBT

By MANTON HENDERSON

The outing season was over, and the outers were returning to town. Expecting an aunt whom I was to meet and see through the city to her home, I went to the station to meet her. I didn't meet my aunt. She had delayed her coming, but I met with an adventure.

Those waiting for the train were roped off to inspect those who left it and to pounce on those we expected when they came along. Among the last was a young lady whose face the moment she saw me broke into a smile, and, advancing to the rope, she dropped a suit case she was carrying and, clasping my hand, put up her lips to be kissed. She was a stranger to me.

I defy any man, be his intentions the most scrupulous, to have a pretty girl put up her mouth to be kissed to draw back. Why, it would be an insult to the girl. At any rate, I kissed the young lady, fervently since I was about it, and awaited developments. I confess I wondered should my aunt come along what she would think of the proceeding. Then I was afraid she would come along and bring about an explanation before an explanation was called for.

"I'm so glad you've come," said the girl. "Did you get the telegram? I'm tired out carrying this suit case." And, taking it up, she handed it to me. "Have you got a carriage? You have changed ever so much."

Now, if she had stopped for an answer to the first of these questions I would have been in honor bound to explain. But she didn't, and, taking the suit case from her, letting her do all the talking, upon which she seemed bent, I escorted her to the street, called a carriage and, my conscience prompting me to go no further, stood still. She looked at me with wonder in her big brown eyes and said:

"Why, what are you waiting for?" This rattled me, and I got into the carriage and shut the door.

"Where to, sir?" called the driver. I hesitated a moment, got out the word "Number," hesitated again, and the girl supplied the information. Then we rattled away, I feeling as though I had been committing a forgery and, expecting an arrest at any moment. Unfortunately the girl subsided from her loquacity, and I felt bound to say something. I thought it a good time to confess—that is, if I could pump up the courage to do so.

"I feel it my duty to tell you"—I began.

"Oh, heavens! What is it? Any one dead?"

"This rattled me again. I hadn't the sand to go on in the vein I had started. I switched off.

"Oh, no," I said, "not that at all. What I was going to say is that for a few days I shall be loaded down to the guards with work and shall not be able to show you the same attention as if"

"Dear me, how you frightened me! I know Uncle Ben is quite ill, and I feared you were going to tell me that the poor old man had gone."

"Not at all, not at all. I assure you I had no such intention." I mopped my face with my handkerchief.

All the while the carriage was bowling toward the address given the cabman, and I was thinking of that "day of wrath" when I should meet those who would uncover my unintended deception and make me an object of contempt.

"Do you know," said my companion, turning to look at me with her face, her lips dangerously near mine, "that had I not been looking for you I wouldn't have known you."

"You, too, are changed," I replied, and a method of saving myself flashed into my brain. Why shouldn't I pretend to have made a mistake as well as she? Splendid idea! Now was the time. So I continued, this time with perfect confidence: "But, Lou, the change is for the better. You were pretty when I saw you last. Now you are beautiful."

"I'm glad you continue to call me by my first name," she replied. "I was afraid you would 'Miss' me."

Great heavens, rattled again! I had accidentally struck her name. Instead of wondering that I didn't call her Alice or Evelyn or some name other than her own, thus bringing out the double blunder, she was glad I did it. The carriage swerved to the curb. I was lost. In a moment persons would be running out to meet the girl and give me away. Miserable me, what should I do? Oh, for a little more time!

"Before we alight," she said, "I wish to say something. You won't feel hurt, will you?" "Certainly not! Go on." "Please don't see me to the door. They don't know anything about this meeting, and I don't care at present to have them know."

Opening of the Panama Canal--Birdseye View of the First Gatun Lock.

There are three pairs of locks at Gatun. The first pair are 1,000 feet long and 110 feet wide. The second pair have the same dimensions, and these four locks raise or lower a ship fifty-five feet. The third pair raise or lower a ship the remaining thirty feet or from the level of Gatun lake. The tug in the foreground is in the first lock.

ered, and devil a saint was he. Conscience with safety vanished.

"Mayn't I have a parting kiss?" I whispered. We drew back away from the window, and—it was very sweet if it was a rascally proceeding on my part. I have often wondered who she was and who was the fellow I owe reparation to for two kisses that belonged to him.

Wagner Worship.

"There is no such worship of national genius in America as prevails abroad," said a recently returned tourist. "In Germany, for instance, at the opera the scale of prices varies according to the composer. Wagner, of course, commanding the top notch admission. But the most peculiar feature of this musical adoration is that it affects the toilets as well. With the elaborate gowning of a New York audience in mind, I approached our landlady as to the propriety of appearing at the opera in such a makeshift costume as my tourist wardrobe afforded. 'It depends entirely upon the composer you intend to hear, fraufräulein,' was her astonishing reply. 'For some your present attire would be perfectly proper, but if it is the great Wagner you are to hear'—She broke off, but an expressive shrug of the shoulders told plainer than words that it would be an affront to his ashes to appear in anything but the most stunning and up to date evening gown."—New York Tribune.

A Long Life and a Broad One.

An English doctor recently said that ambition to live to a great old age isn't a good one and doubted whether constant efforts to lengthen the average life are for the good of the race. He apparently favors a short life and a merry one. Perhaps it isn't long life that makes the world happy, but broad life. Thirty full, energetic years may be better than sixty years of commonplace drudgery. But why not sixty full, energetic years? Who knows what the world loses when a man dies at thirty? So much has been accomplished by men who have reached sixty and even seventy and eighty that it seems good policy to keep all persons on earth as long as possible. The man who honestly disapproves efforts to prolong life is a rarity and it is lucky for the world that he is.—Savannah News.

When Thanks Were Given.
Many years ago a noted chief of the tribe of Chippewa Indians while hunting wounded a deer and followed it for miles. The chase was long and very severe, and the Indian was in the last stages of exhaustion from fatigue and lack of food and water when he found himself on the top of a wonderful mountain, at the foot of which nestled a beautiful lake crystal clear. From the surface of the lake trout leaped, and upon the shore lay the deer he had hunted. Here were food, water, fish and fuel for cooking.

Raising his hand and facing the setting sun, the exhausted chief exclaimed, "Iah-pem-ing," which in the Chippewa tongue means "heaven" or "the place on high."

The story was remembered, and the name given by the Indian was adopted by the white settlers when the present city of Ishpeming, Mich., was formed. —Ladies' Home Journal.

Inexperienced.
In a boarding house for bachelors Amanda, a typical "mammy," looked after the guests' comfort in true southern style, so well that one of the men thought he would take her away with him in the summer in the capacity of housekeeper. Toward spring he would lay her in the hall one day and said: "Mandy, do you like the country?" Mandy reckoned she did. "Would you like to go away with me this summer and keep house for me?"

Mandy was sure she would. "Suppose I get a bungalow. Do you think you could take care of it nicely by yourself?"

Mandy gasped and rolled her eyes. "Deed, no, massa! Reckon you all better get somebody else; I don't know nothin' about takin' care of any animals." —Harper's Magazine.

SAGE TEA PUTS LIFE AND COLOR IN HAIR

Don't Stay Gray! Sage Tea and Sulphur Darkens Hair So Naturally that Nobody Can Tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin, have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—and dandruff gone, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur tonight, and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove it.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for colomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system.

They do that which dangerous colomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, gripping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without gripping, pain or disagreeable effects of any kind.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, you will know them by their olive color.

Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, Ohio.

SALTS IF BACKACHE AND KIDNEYS HURT

Drink Lots of Water and Stop Eating Meat for a While if Your Bladder Troubles You.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region, it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

DRAPERIES ON EVENING WRAPS PICTURESQUE AND VAGUE

Almost shapeless as are many of the afternoon and evening mantles their effect is extremely smart and becoming when worn by the woman who knows how to wear them. The most supple of the new fabrics are used for these wraps—duvetyns, velours de laine, satin brocades and lames being among the most effective. Trimmings are of stenciling, applique and fur.

One of the most stunning effects is brought about by appliqueing a black or colored velvet figure to a plain satin or velour. When these designs, conventionalized fuchsias, roses, etc.—are applied on a fabric like camel's hair cloth, in one of the new reds or yellows, the effect is splendid. On smooth silks and satins they stand out bolder, but are quite as smart. Trimmings of Opening of the Panama Canal---Tug Gatun Wait Water to Rise.

This picture shows the tug Gatun, the first ship in the Panama canal, at the sea level entrance of the canal. The tug had entered the first lock, the gates of which were closed a few moments later. This is the tug Gatun twenty-seven and a half feet to the level of the second lock. A good idea of the size of the canal is gained by comparing its walls with the height of one of the spectators.

Fans in the Eighteenth Century. A letter in the London Spectator dated May, 1711, gives a most interesting description of an academy where they could be drilled in the proper use of their fans and initiated into the mysteries of "the angry flutter, the best flutter, the timorous flutter, the fused flutter, the merry flutter and amorous flutter." In the eighteenth century at dancing assemblies in London, Bath and other places of fashionable resort gentlemen chose their partners by "lottery of the fan." The fans all the ladies present were placed in a hat, whence each gentleman had the chance of selecting one, the lady to whom it belonged becoming his allotted partner for the evening. Of course such a custom entailed a great study of fans on the part of the gentlemen. Boswell, Steele and Pope found something to say about the fan, and Guy, enlarging upon the efforts of his predecessors, wrote a long poem in praise of the fan, attributing its invention to Venus.

His Compliment.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

The low pressure area that covered the west yesterday morning, now overlies the middle portion of the country, but is most pronounced over the upper Mississippi Valley. It has developed in energy with eastward movement and caused general rains over northwestern and middle-northern sections, from the northern Pacific states east to the upper Lakes, and indicates increasing winds with further eastward progress. Elsewhere over the country, the weather has remained fair during the past 24 hours, and temperatures have for the most part risen; but rising pressure with falling temperature are reported in the rear of the storm area. Rain and colder tonight, and rain or snow and colder Saturday, are indicated in this vicinity. The winds will be brisk to high southwest this afternoon and tonight, shifting to northwest Saturday.

Origin of Vaudeville Turns.

We are indebted to John Chinaman for the modern vaudeville "turn." There were theaters in China when our ancestors were wandering about dressed in skins and blue paint, and the actors in those faroff times were just as anxious to please their patrons as the modern "artist" is to get the applause which gladdens his heart and—more important still—sends his salary up. The play over, each member of the troupe came forward to receive the applause to which he thought he was entitled, and one of them hit on the "bright idea of performing some simple trick to prolong the enthusiasm of the spectators. His example was speedily followed, and these tricks soon became obligatory. One actor would produce a cat or a monkey from a hat; another would imitate an animal or "swallow" an object which he afterward found in his boot. Each tried to surpass the other, and feats of strength and dexterity were soon added to these simple tricks.—Pearson's Weekly.

Not a Complete Surprise.

When William R. Hearst bought the old New York Journal one of his managing editors, Julius Chambers, invited Hearst to dinner with him.

They went to a downtown French restaurant. Chambers had ordered the dinner, which was a good one, and Hearst and he had a pleasant time. Along toward the close of the meal Chambers said: "Now, Mr. Hearst, I am going to give you a treat. I have ordered something you probably never have eaten or seen."

Chambers nodded to the waiter, who brought in some French artichokes. "You see," explained Chambers, "these are a great delicacy. You pull off the leaves and dip the ends in the sauce and eat the ends only."

Hearst smiled a little and followed directions. As they progressed Chambers said complacently: "Pretty good, eh? I don't suppose you ever saw an artichoke before."

"Well," Hearst replied, "I can't go so far as that. You see, Chambers, we had 400 acres of them growing the last time I was out at our California ranch."—Saturday Evening Post.

Painting Pictures on the Floor.

Albert Moore, the great artist whose works may be seen in the Tate and other public galleries, scorned the ordinary poses of the painter. He preferred his easel to an easel and painted all his great pictures, so dainty and charming, on the floor. His tubes of paint and his brushes and other accessories of his art were scattered about him, and he lay flat on his stomach, seldom remaining in one position five minutes at a time.

The celebrated painter of "Christ Leaving the Pterorium" and the "Illustrator of Milton and Dante, that strange genius, Gustave Dore, had the same habit. The floor was his easel whenever possible, and, as he was a stout, heavy man, he seldom rose to an upright position except for his meals, and not always then.—London Telegraph.

Good Advice.

A Cornell well wisher suggests the Coach Courtney be called in to lead the football team the successful Cornell rowing stroke.

Musical Epigrams.

Walter Damrosch, the noted musician, answered at a luncheon a toast on music. Mr. Damrosch was in good vein, and the following are by no means the best of the epigrams that illuminated his remarks:

"Some pianists play from note, some from ear and some from spite."
"A drinking song need not necessarily have a rest in every bar."
"Composers are musicians with memories."

Funeral arrangements will not be made until the arrival of the daughters from Omaha.

DEER IN NAT'L POLE YARD

Dogs Chase Young Buck Through Potato Patch—Deer Was Gaining

A small buck deer ran madly through the potato patch adjoining the National Pole company's yards, which are within the city limits, early last week, with two or three dogs in full chase. The deer dashed out of the woods into the potato patch and into the woods again. To those who saw the chase it looked as though the fleet footed animal was outdistancing its pursuers.

At eleven o'clock this morning the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Grenfell, 211 Rose street, Miss E. A. Guyer of Fairfield, Pa., and David S. Buckley of this city, were united in marriage by the Rev. King D. Beal, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church.

Mr. and Mrs. Grenfell attended the couple who will go to housekeeping here in a few days.

The bride came to Escanaba from her home in Fairfield last evening. Mr. Buckley is the foreman at the S. Woodward here and is deservedly held in the highest esteem.

MARTINDALE SWAMPED BY REQUESTS FOR AUTO TAGS

Lansing, Mich., November 7.—Thousands of applications for 1914 automobile licenses are being received at the office of Secretary of State Martindale and it is necessary for the clerks to work overtime in order to handle the increased business.

Saturday, the first day that applications for next year's licenses would be received, the state department turned over to the state treasurer $8,205.20 in auto license fees. In computing these fees, which are based on 50 cents a horsepower, according to the new law, fractional parts of horsepower are not considered.

350 DEER LICENSES ARE ISSUED TODAY

County Clerk's Office Force Kept Busy Doling out Licenses Today

Three hundred and fifty deer licenses were issued at the county clerk's office up to four o'clock this afternoon. It is expected that in the neighborhood of 500 will be issued tomorrow; this in addition to those issued by the deputies throughout the county.

Miss Bell Quinn is visiting with friends and relatives at Marquette.

Good for the Teeth.
Carbonate of soda is good to use occasionally as a tooth powder, as it prevents decay. A mixture of fine salt and weak vinegar water will cleanse yellow teeth, as will also a paste made of pulverized pumice stone and peroxide of hydrogen lightly rubbed on the teeth. To prevent decay between the teeth draw dental floss through them every day. This will save you suffering and reduce your dentist bills.

HUNTING PARTY HELD

Eighteen Lower Michigan Hunters Arrived in Escanaba Last Evening

A large hunting party arrived in this city last evening, eighteen hunters in all. Ten of the party are from Petoskey and eight from Battle Creek. There are five women in the party. They will make Escanaba their headquarters during the deer hunting season.
