GRAND JURY IS DRAWN IN HOUGHTON COUNTY TO INVESTIGATE RIOT

TWENTY-TWO REPRESENTATIVE CITIZENS DRAWN—SESSIONS TO BEGIN ON MONDAY NEXT

MOYER GIVES "NO VIOLENCE" PROMISE

Rifles Confiscated in Western Federation of Miners Headquarters—Strikers Parade Stopped

(By Associated Press.)
Calumet, Dec. 12.—All is quiet here today. The strikers were prevented from parading, the deputies fearing trouble. Six loaded rifles were confiscated in the Western Federation of Miners headquarters.

A grand jury consisting of twenty-two representative citizens of Houghton county was chosen yesterday afternoon and its sessions will begin next Monday.

The jury was drawn by the order of Circuit Judge O'Brien on the motion of Prosecuting Attorney Lucas, at the request of the county board of supervisors, to conduct an inquest into the disorders existing and continuing in Houghton county. The jury was drawn this morning by County Clerk Kaiser Sheriff Cruse and Justice William Fisher and Emil F. Prince.

The grand jury may command any citizen or resident of the county, any one within its borders, to attend its sessions and divulge any information they may possess bearing upon the matter under investigation. These persons are compelled to answer, excepting when they stand upon their constitutional right not to incriminate themselves.

Judge Exacts Promise from Moyer.

This afternoon Judge O'Brien, Sheriff Cruse and Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Nichols hurried to Laurium by automobile because of a rumor that two agitators in that village were about to be lynched. On their arrival they learned the rumor was false.

Judge O'Brien and Mr. Nichols visited various Western Federation of Miners headquarters on the trip, and at the Red Jacket headquarters, the center of the federation in the copper country, they met President Charles Moyer, Judge O'Brien exacted from Mr. Moyer a promise to urge his members not to commit further violence and received the latter's promise.

The judge addressed two hundred strikers in Dunn's hall and urged them to refrain from violence. At the conclusion of his remarks, President Moyer made the men present take an oath to this effect. The judge told the strikers that he would protect them from violence from the Citizens' Alliance or any other organizations. He also sounded a warning to the alliance.

In an interview during the day Judge O'Brien denied a report that he had taken action for contempt of court as a result of speeches made at recent alliance meetings, but said that he would investigate purported contemptuous utterances and if they appeared to him to show a disregard for the dignity and the authority of the court he would proceed to inflict punishment, dispassionately and without personal interest.

Referring to threats on his own life, said to have been made, the judge said he is a fatalist and that if he is to meet a violent death it will be beyond his power to prevent it.

The district tonight is quiet.

Man Who Shot Deputy Confesses.

Henry Koski, financial secretary of the South Range union, No. 196, Western Federation of Miners, confessed this morning to Sheriff Cruse that he had shot Deputy Sheriff Timothy Driscoll, who now lies between life and death at the Trimountain hospital. Koski goes back to the creation of the world for this reason. "The woman tempted me" was Adam's reason for the first sin. Koski says that his wife told him to shoot.

CAPT. SETUNSKY SAYS GUILTY TO ONE CHARGE

Admits Violation of the Navigation Laws in Sailing Tug at Time of the Disaster.

Marquette, Mich., Dec. 12.—Capt. Louis Setunsky of the tug E. H. Martin pleaded guilty to a violation of section 4438 of the navigation laws before the trial board here yesterday. Section 4438 of the laws applies to the limits of the license of mariners. Capt. Setunsky admitted that the Martin was a boat of heavier tonnage than his license permitted him to command. Capt. Donald McKinnon faced the trial board on charges of hiring a sailing master whose license he knew to be faulty that Friday morning at 9 o'clock.

Denies McKinnon Charges.

Capt. Setunsky at the hearing entered a vigorous denial to the charges of Capt. McKinnon that he was incompetent and that he showed poor seamanship at the time of the storm in which the Martin abandoned the crew of the barge Plymouth to its fate. At the conclusion of his testimony the board took the case under advisement.

"The Martin was in sinking condition when it left the dock with its consort," asserted Capt. Setunsky on the stand. "It would have been foolhardy, in my opinion, with the boat in such condition to attempt to transfer the crew of the Plymouth to the Martin, and such a course would have laid the crew of the Martin open to grave danger."

Anchor Was Not Good.

"If the Plymouth anchor had been as good as was represented to me, there should have been no difficulty in the boat riding out the storm in safety."

Affidavits from sailors on the tug telling of a conversation in which Capt. McKinnon is said to have praised the conduct and seamanship displayed by Capt. Setunsky during the storm, were introduced at the trial.

CORONER'S PHYSICIAN CONDUCTING INQUIRY AS THE RESULT OF DEATH OF MRS DONALD MACKAY

GAVE WRONG NAME AT THE HOSPITAL

Husband For Years President of the General Synod of the Reformed Church of America

(By Associated Press.)

New York, Dec. 12.—The coroner's physician is investigating the death of Mrs. Helen Mackay, the widow of Rev. Donald Mackay formerly president of the general synod of the Reformed church of America.

The woman died yesterday while under the influence of ether, on an operating table at a private hospital. When she entered the hospital she registered as Mrs. J. H. Stone of Boston. A scrap of paper in her hand bay solved the mystery and her identity became known. It is believed that she was suffering from an incurable disease and that she went to the hospital for examination. She demanded ether and died of heart failure. She was the daughter of the late J. Greer Smith, the former governor of Vermont.

She was very wealthy in her own right. Her husband died in Portland, Maine in 1908.

BOYS WILL HOLD UNION MEETING AT THE FIRST PRES. CHURCH SUNDAY

DELEGATES TO BOYS CONFERENCE AT SAGINAW WILL TELL OF THEIR EXPERIENCES AT RECENT GATHERING

A UNION SERVICE FOR ALL THE BOYS

District Attorney T. E. Strom Will Address Boys—Elaborate Program Arranged

The delegates to the Boy's Conference at Saginaw met at the home of Rev. P. B. Ferris last night to plan a union meeting for Sunday afternoon at the Presbyterian church.

The boys decided on the following program: Otis Youngquist was chosen to preside at the services on Sunday afternoon. Charles Stoll will read the scripture and Mr. P. A. Lint of the High School faculty was chosen to lead in prayer.

"Teddy" Baldwin will speak on "Our Reception at Saginaw."

Ray Buell's theme is "My Impressions of Saginaw."

"Saginaw's Estimate of the Boys Conference" will be the subject of Wesley Malloch's remarks.

Arthur Aronson, has been given, "the speakers as I saw them," and Leroy Mallman will have as his theme, "Deny Upton."

Pros. Atty. Strom was unanimously requested by the boys to speak for about fifteen minutes on the theme, "The Conservation of the boys of Escanaba" or a similar theme of his own choice. Mr. Strom has kindly consented to be present Sunday afternoon and to address the lads.

The boys have come home chuck full of enthusiasm and every one anxious to tell what he saw and experienced during those thrilling days when they mingled with eleven hundred of the cream of the young manhood of the lower Peninsula.

The delegates were anxious to impress everyone last night that this "boys' conference was not a "knee pants" affair but a group of eleven hundred young men, who were standing for the cleanest things in life and not ashamed of it. They were anxious to tell, too, that this crowd of fellows had an enthusiasm for the things that every red-blooded boy likes.

They want to tell the people of Escanaba all about it Sunday afternoon. And every one of them has a message. The people should encourage these future professional and business men of this city, by being present Sunday afternoon to hear what they have to tell.

This meeting is a union service and all the churches are invited to attend. The boys of the city are invited but the older people will be welcomed just as heartily.

The ushers have been chosen from the different churches, one from the Methodist, one from the Presbyterian and two from the Swedish Lutheran. The quartette choir of the church will furnish the music. Mrs. Morrell will preside at the organ.

This should be one of the finest gatherings of boys ever held in this city. It is open for every one and all that is asked is that you bring a free-will offering which will be used as a nucleus for the fund, which shall be used to defray the cost of the Boy's Conference to be given here next March. Be on time or you will not be able to get a place.

VILLA, FORMER BANDIT, HAS RISEN TO FAME AND POWER

General Francisco Villa, rebel leader, and his staff resign during their march towards Mexico City. Villa, who a few months ago was unknown, except as a dangerous bandit has now become one of the most powerful men in Mexico. He has risen in the rebel ranks with startling suddenness, and has led the Constitutional forces to victory after victory. Among his most brilliant feats was the capture and defense of Juarez, custom port and port of entry and one of the most important cities of Northern Mexico. Practically all of the Northern states are now in the hands of the rebels, and in the South the latter are meeting with success almost daily.

This photograph was taken after the Federals had been routed south of Juarez. While Villa and his staff obtained a brief respite from the forced marching, Federal artillery, battling with the main body of Villa's army, dropped an occasional shell near the encampment of the rebel general.

His First Lesson In Medical Practice

By THOMAS R. DEAN

Miss Elsie Tisdale was engaged to marry Mr. Bert Sawyer, a medical student. Mr. Sawyer was aware that Miss Tisdale was as sensitive as a bird. All she knew about physicians was when one of them came to the house, felt some one's pulse, asked about sundry symptoms and, taking out a square bit of paper, wrote certain hieroglyphics on it that an apothecary understood.

What Bertie, as she called him, was going through to acquire a medical education she had no idea. That he ate peanuts off the breast of a cadaver he was at work on in the dissecting room, that he used the top of a skull, inverted, for a tobacco box; that he frequently took a hand, a foot or some other member of the human body to his room to cut to pieces, she had not even a suspicion. She supposed that a medical school was like other schools—books, books, nothing but books, and nice, clean books at that—while genteel professors lectured on how to cure a stomach ache and when to give the baby paregoric.

Bert, aware of his innocence, was very careful not to disturb her notions of the medical profession by enlightening her. By an unfortunate contretemps he suddenly burst upon her in his true frightfulness. She had been visiting a friend in a neighboring city and was returning by rail. She had been in the car but a few minutes when she saw the back of a head that looked familiar. It was turned aside toward a man who sat beside its owner and displayed the profile of Mr. Bert Sawyer. Facing the two sat a figure done up in a big shawl.

Horrible to relate, the face of the figure was that of a skull. Mr. Sawyer and his friend Billy Peterson had learned where the skeleton of a human being could be bought cheap. They had gone for it, purchased it and were taking it home. There were but few persons in the car, and the conductor had good naturedly permitted them to seat it opposite themselves.

Just as Miss Tisdale got into the car, recognized her lover and caught sight of the grinning face with no nose and empty eye sockets the conductor came through the train and, passing the two medics, punched their tickets. "Fare, governor," said Mr. Sawyer, addressing the skeleton. "Produce your ticket or you'll be put off."

The skeleton continued to grin, the conductor smiled, and the men in the car seemed to think it all very funny. There were two women besides Elsie. One sitting in the next seat and one farther forward. Neither of them seemed to consider Mr. Sawyer's action a bit funny. As for Elsie, she was paralyzed with horror.

"Oh, he's all right," said the other medic. "He's no deadhead," and, slipping his own ticket in the band of his hat, he put the hat on the skeleton's head.

This caused a burst of laughter from the men in the car and a scowl from the women.

"Smoke, governor," said Bert, thrusting a cigar between the skeleton's toothless and gumless jawbones.

Another laugh from the men and a murmur of indignation from the women. The train rounding a curve, the skeleton lost its balance and fell against the arm of the seat.

"Sit up, governor," said Bert. "Don't be rolling around that way. The passengers will think you've been drinking."

"I smell his breath," said Billy—"gin and lemon peel."

The conductor was sitting at the end of the car, and one of the women called to him and told him that if he didn't stop that indecent behavior on the part of those young men she would report him for negligence of duty. At this the conductor went to the two medics and told them they had better roll their bony companion in his shawl and stop the fun. To this they acceded, and that ended the performance. Soon after the train rolled into the station the medics and the "governor" went out through the front end of the car, while Elsie left it at the rear. She held her handkerchief to her eyes to conceal her tears and to avoid being recognized by Bert, whom she intended never to meet again as her fiancé.

The next morning's mail brought him a note from her containing the few words:

"Our engagement is broken."

Sawyer looked at it sidewise and endwise, then shook it as if it were a toy puzzle. He could not understand it. Anyway something was wrong, and he went right over to the house to find out about it. Mrs. Tisdale came down with a suppressed smile and told him the cause of the break. Elsie had come home the day before heartbroken. She had supposed she was going to marry a gentleman and found that instead she was to marry a ghoul.

Bert was crushed. "You'd better drop the whole affair," said Mrs. Tisdale, "and let Elsie get over it by degrees."

"She'll never get over it," groaned Bert. "She'll have a horror of me so long as she lives."

The affair was a good lesson to Bert. He became a famous physician and never forgot that the doctors and the litly are two different peoples. As for Elsie, he was right in assuming that she would always have a horror of him. She married another.

CHIEF OF THE INSULAR BUREAU MAKES REPORT

March of Civilization Through Philippines and Porto Rico is Pictured.

(By Associated Press.) Washington, Dec. 12.—The march of civilization through the Philippines and Porto Rico, the principal American insular possessions, is pictured in the annual report of Brigadier General Frank H. McIntyre, chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs.

One most interesting feature deals with the effect upon the insular possessions of the new tariff act. For the Philippines the limitations upon the quantity of sugar and tobacco that may be exported to the United States has been removed. Another measure of relief to Philippine business permits exports to the United States by transshipment whereas the exporter had formerly been limited to direct shipments. Export duties upon Philippine products which deprived the American manufacturer of Manila hemp of a differential were abolished. The income tax provisions of the new tariff act were extended to the Philippines but with the proviso that it should be collected by Philippine officers and belong to the Philippine government.

General McIntyre regrets the failure of congress to enact a law permitting the use of foreign material to the amount of 50 per cent in Philippine products entitled to free admission to the United States. He says this would have given a much desired stimulus to the embroidery and lace industry in the islands, which through the schools is being developed.

Exports to the United States last year amounted to $19,848,885 and were 37 per cent of the total as compared with 43 per cent in 1912. Sugar shipments, which were the leading factor in this decline, show a falling off approximating $5,000,000 in value.

Steady and encouraging progress was made during the year in education; especially in the higher standard of instruction in English; in the better school buildings and grounds; in the sounder basis on which industrial instruction has been organized, in the further and very marked improvement in the American and Filipino personnel of the bureau; in the efficiency of the administrative side of the work and in the physical training of the pupils. Teachers from the United States have been almost, without exception, of excellent preparation and with the improvement in the quality of Filipino teachers, that of the Filipino teachers has kept pace. The latter have been assigned to positions of greater responsibility and now 115 are serving as supervising and assistant supervising teachers, which number does not include 21 Filipino industrial supervisors.

In view of the complete organization of the Philippine university with all of its colleges, the policy of sending Filipino students to the United States in large numbers for their undergraduate work is being discontinued and provision has been made for the appointment of a limited number of fellows, who have completed their undergraduate work to take two to four year postgraduate courses in Europe and America.

Athletics are being encouraged with favorable results, and in a far eastern Olympiad in Manila last February in which teams from China, Japan and the Philippines took part, the latter was victorious in every contest except baseball.

Porto Rican trade fell off last year $6,026,411 in imports and $601,848 in exports out of a total trade of $6,603,627. Although the sugar shipments were 16,000 greater than during the preceding year, reaching a total of 383,000 tons, the average price received, $16 less per ton, reduced the total value by $5,000,000.

Only 30.9 per cent of the 390,000 persons of school age in Porto Rico attended school but even at that the total enrollment was 161,785, compared with 44,861 at the close of the Spanish regime. In 1910 over 68 per cent of the electorate were illiterate.

Great progress was made on the irrigation system during the year and it is indefinitely established that the total cost of the project will not exceed $4,000,000.

This is said to be more remarkable because of the political disturbances in the republic during the year and the volume of foreign trade is continuing to expand. Popularity Counts. Michelangelo beckoned to Rembrandt.

"I see they've found another of your pictures, Remmy."

"The master sighed," he said, "and five the week before. Funny, isn't it?"

"That's where the boys who write, have the best of you daubers," said John Milton. "You don't hear of any 'Paradise Lost's being found in out-of-the-way places."

"Nor any 'Pilgrim's Progresses,'" added John Bunyan.

"Nor any 'Hamlets,'" put in Will Shakespeare."

Rembrandt smiled.

"No," he answered; "I don't. All these discoveries seem to depend on present market values."

And pulling his big velour hat over his eyes he waved his hand and stalked away.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Professional Forger. Forging is generally quite an amateur affair in this country, but in India, where the professional forger flourishes, it is the business of a lifetime. A father, for instance, who thinks he detects in his son an aptitude for the occupation, apprentices him to one of his masters. He learns among other things, engraving, photography, paper-making, chemistry, so as to deal with colored inks, and above all, fine penmanship and delicate miniature painting. After several years' hard work he is pronounced proficient, and sets up in business for himself, generally commencing by counterfeiting government stamps.

Queer Taxes Abroad. There are some queer taxes imposed in some of the countries of the old world.

In Servia vanity is taxed, a 40 per cent tax on wigs, on rouge and on pads and bustles.

Bachelors are heavily taxed in several countries, but spinsters everywhere escape this impost.

Matrimony is taxed in China, and the older the bridegroom is than the bride the greater the tax levied on him.

In the wise Chinese theory that when an old man gets a young wife he necessarily a rich old man and one well able to stand a heavy tax.

In Italy salt is taxed. Matches are taxed in France. These things yield an enormous revenue, and the tax very little felt.

Germany taxes music. If you play the piano you must pay a tax, and you sing you are taxed again.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

Fair weather is now general throughout all portions of the country, except the Pacific coast, where considerable cloudiness prevails. It is colder than yesterday morning on the Atlantic coast, and freezing temperatures are reported from the Appalachian Mountains east to the coast over the eastern states as far south as Tennessee and North Carolina. Elsewhere over the country, temperatures are moderate for the season, and are above freezing throughout the Mississippi Valley and Lake region. In this vicinity, the weather will remain fair during the following 36 hours, with a change to slightly colder indicated tonight and Saturday.

1,250-Foot Ships in 1930.

At the first international congress of maritime navigation in Philadelphia it was predicted that in 1950 the twenty largest boats on the Atlantic will have an average length of 1,100 feet, with a beam of more than 100 feet, and a draught of nearly forty feet.

A forecast, however, made several years ago for 1923 materialized last year, and it may well be that this forecast for 1950 will find itself an actuality fifteen or twenty years sooner than the time prophesied.

Work being done to better docking facilities all over the world gives a slight indication of what may be expected. The plans for the new locks of Tilbury dock provide for ships of a length of 1,350 feet, a width of 130 feet and a draught of 39 feet. The Suez canal is to be deepened to 39 feet by 1915.

MILITIA IS ONLY 50,000 STRONG; DEFECTS ARE TOLD BY EXPERTS

Say National Guard as a Whole Is in Dire Need of Reforms.

Predict Preliminary Disaster Under Present Conditions In Time of War.

THE national guard is far below its paper strength, and war with Mexico or any other country might invite at least a preliminary disaster.

This is the view of experts. They say that if war with Mexico should last any time the national government would find that instead of having 150,000 trained men ready to move on Mexico "at the drop of the hat," as some members of congress have estimated, President Wilson would be lucky if he could muster 50,000 able bodied men.

Paper returns of the strength of the national guard are said to be very unreliable and contain many deficiencies. Poor rifle shooting, in which 65 per cent are said to have disqualified, is one of the glaring weaknesses. Large increases in field artillery are needed; also many thousands of recruits to fill the gaps.

The paper strength of the national guard on file at the war department is 9,142 commissioned officers and 112,710 enlisted men. The war department also has records of statements made by national guard officers to army inspecting officers as to their opinion on the number of their men who would respond to a call to arms in the service of the United States, and these opinions are that from 90 to 100 per cent would respond. These are mere conjectures, however, and the figures have yet to be proved.

Paper Strength Misleading.

When men physically unfit for war service—married men and those that would not volunteer because families are dependent on them—are taken into consideration it would make a large reduction in the paper strength. The official paper strength, as every one well versed in national guard affairs knows, does not truthfully represent the duty doing men of an organization. The figures are gathered at the annual inspections made in the armories, during which energetic, and frequently ridiculous, efforts are made to gather in the men for the annual counting.

With 50 or 70 per cent of the grand total of 121,852 members of the national guard found fit for duty, there would be a valuable skeleton organization to 1003, but a vast amount of progress is yet to be made before the condition can be considered satisfactory.

As to equipment, the greatest deficiency is lack of sufficient wagon, transportation, tentage and horses and mules. Wagons, however, are being provided as fast as possible, but the question of animals is still a problem.

Generally speaking, commendable progress has been made in instructing officers and men in important work, both theoretically and in the field, especially among the best state forces. Many officers of the army and selected men are on duty with the national guard as instructors.

Proportionate Combination.

In speaking of the probable proportion of the national guard to be combined with the regular army in case of war General Robert K. Evans, U. S. A., an authority on the condition of the national guard, says:

"Whenever an emergency has arisen in the past necessitating the calling out of large bodies of troops the American people, with their natural impatience, have insisted upon pushing troops at once to the front, without regard to the length of time that is required to prepare them properly for field service. Assuming that this impatience will manifest itself again, the regular army will be at once pushed to the front in whatever state of readiness it may be and all deficiencies in men, equipment and supplies will there be made good as fast as practicable.

"In the same way the organized militia will be sent to join the regular army after being reasonably, but not fully, equipped, and after arrival at the front its deficiencies will also be made good as rapidly as possible. The two forces—namely, the regular army and the organized militia—having come together, they will then be combined into a single force as homogeneous as possible. The war department has established the principle that the combination of regulars and militia in such cases shall be in the proportion of one regular to two militia. Whether this combination will take place in divisions, brigades, regiments or smaller units is not known.

"It is not thought that a large proportion of militia could with safety be combined with fewer regulars. In fact, considering the many deficiencies as a fighting force that inherently belong to a citizen soldiery when first put into the field, it is believed that two militia to one regular is the extreme proportion that can be adopted with a reasonable prospect of securing a fairly effective force, and that the proportion of one to one would be much safer."

Predicts Calamity.

As to the plans for national defense and the proper proportion of all arms of the service General Albert L. Mills, U. S. A., says:

"The army war college and the division of militia affairs have organized the militia into twelve divisions. In infantry, field artillery, cavalry and other arms each has a definite function to perform in campaigns that cannot be performed by any other arm. Long experience of all nations of the world has shown the approximate proportions in which the different arms should exist relative to the others.

"An examination of the composition of the twelve divisions of the organized militia shows a great variation in these proportions in the different divisions, no two being alike, and that not a single one is complete, nor is there any immediate prospect of a single complete division, with the exception of the Sixth New York. Here rapid progress is being made, and the complete division is believed to be within sight.

"In all other cases the deficiency is in one or more, usually several, of the arms classed as auxiliary to the infantry. The deficiency is especially apparent in the field artillery. The division of militia affairs is bending every effort to create the missing troops, but is meeting with only slight success.

"A Relative Excess of Infantry."

"If the present so called and unbalanced divisions are ever pitted against equal forces adequately provided with field artillery we are foredoomed to defeat. The preventive now in time of peace is either to create the necessary field artillery units or convert the relative excess of infantry into this arm. What has been said of field artillery applies to all other arms, but in a lesser degree, with possibly the exception of sanitary troops.

"I do not want to be regarded as taking the stand that we have too much infantry in the militia, for there never can be too much of this arm of the national defense. But in modern days there has been such a development of scientific appliances used in warfare that no single arm, be it ever so numerous, is sufficient in itself. Team work is what wins nowadays. My contention is that there is too much infantry relative to the other arms or too little of the other arms relative to the infantry.

"The cheapest and quickest way of correcting the trouble lies in a conversion of sufficient infantry into the other arms to properly balance the twelve divisions."

The Situation Summarized.

The following table shows the actual number of companies, troops and batteries, etc., of the different arms of the militia on Jan. 1, 1912, the number required to organize fifteen infantry divisions and the number of units other than infantry companies that yet remain to be organized in the militia in order that a proper divisional organization may be had:

| Arm of service. | Number. | Actual need. | Number. |
|----------------------------------|---------|--------------|---------|
| Infantry (companies)..... | 1,624 | 1,620 | 4 |
| Cavalry (troops)..... | 73 | 108 | 35 |
| Field artillery (batteries)..... | 57 | 108 | 51 |
| Engineers (companies)..... | 22 | 45 | 23 |
| Signal troops (companies)..... | 27 | 30 | 3 |
| Ambulance companies..... | 11 | 60 | 49 |
| Field hospitals..... | 13 | 60 | 47 |

There is little or no practical change in the figures to be made for the table this year. The tables for the annual inspection of 1913 will show that the national guard in the aggregate has twelve officers and 1,034 men less than it had at the inspection of 1912.

General Evans bears out the statement of General Mills concerning the deficiency in field artillery. He says, "An enormous increase in field artillery is necessary to render effective the already existing infantry, and by counting upon our relatively large amount of infantry only for national defense we are leaning on a broken reed until we properly support it with field artillery."

West and the Boy. The Charleston Simon, the well-known New York specialist, told at a dinner the other night a story about James Russell Lowell. "It seems," said Dr. Simon, "that a woman friend had asked the famous poet to write in her autograph album. So Lowell wrote: 'What is so rare as a day in June?' 'Some time later the poet had occasion to call at the woman's house. While waiting he picked up the album and glanced through it. Great was his surprise when he came to his own writing and found scrawled beneath it in a schoolboy hand 'A Chinaman with whiskers.'"

WITH THE PASSING OF MAN

Writer is Looking Somewhat to the Future, but the Times Seem to Warrant It.

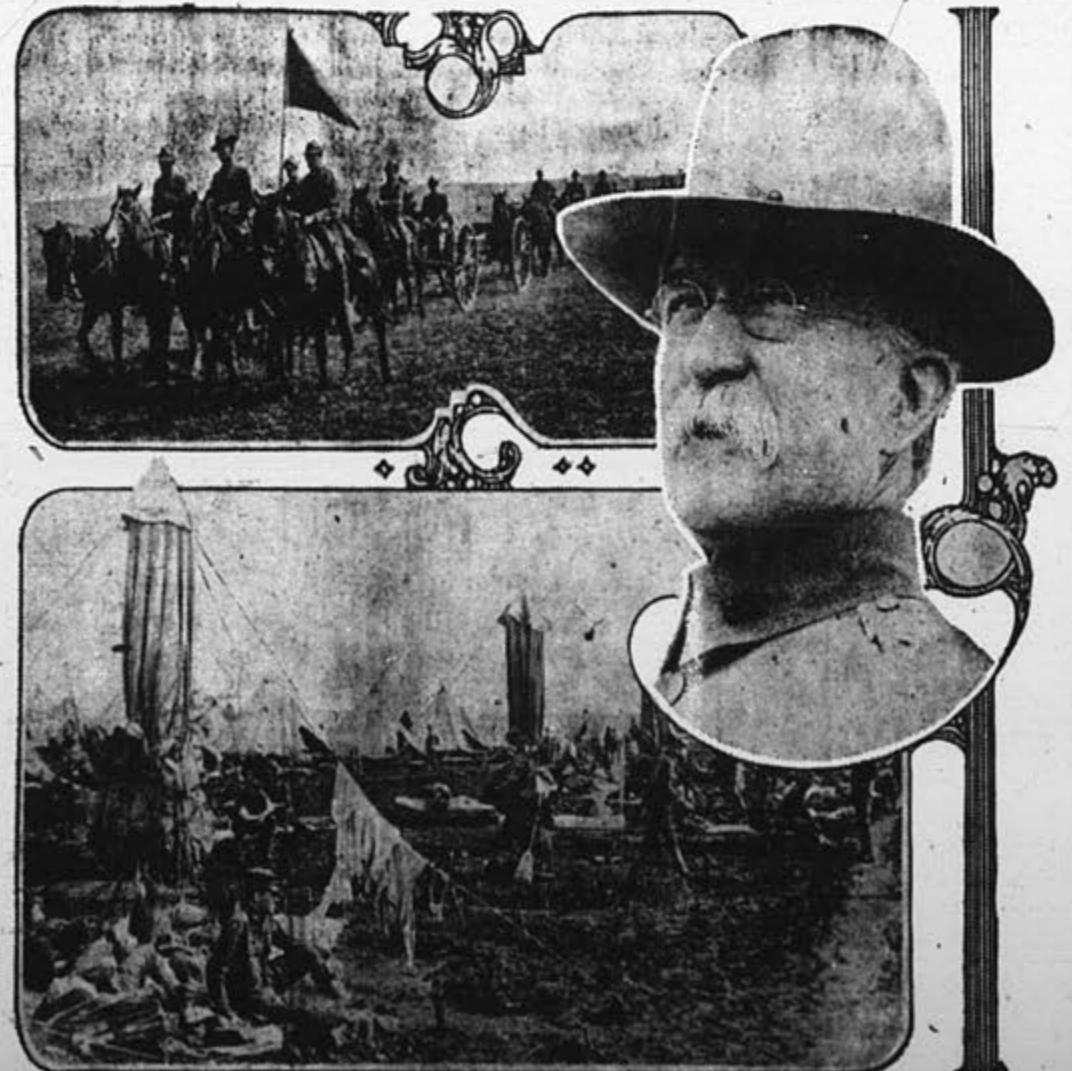

Man: A once useful animal, who lived on the earth for the purpose of enabling woman to reach her present exalted position. Strange as it may seem, it is doubtful if without him woman could be what she is at present. Man was employed on railroads, in mines and at the head of primitive states. He was also used in the army and waited upon the table in palm rooms. Some of the rarest and crudest works of art, poetry and drama were fashioned by man before woman came to her own. It is said he was possessed at one time of a strange illusion that he was necessary. Since man has gone out, his place in evolution is well recognized, it being thought that without him our present financial system would not be what it is. Aside from this, however, no permanent use has been discovered for man. He appears to have been a parasite, was filled up to the gap between the old regime and the new. At one time man was thought to be immortal, but this view was held almost entirely by himself—Life.

Rand Gold Industry.

The economic value of the South African gold industry and the consequences to the world at large, should a strike ever close the mines for any length of time, are difficult to estimate. Last year, according to the London Chronicle, almost 35,000,000 pounds sterling worth of gold was taken out of the mines of the "Witwatersrand." A large part of this vast sum remained in the country to be used to pay the wages of the 23,000 Europeans employed in the mines and of the almost 200,000 natives.

The recent industrial upheaval in the "Rand" has called more attention to the "Rand" that supplied the whole world with the greater part of its gold, because the money centers of Europe openly feared that even a temporary suspension of work in South Africa would paralyze the world's finances. But, fortunately, this has been averted by the speedy termination of the strike.

INSTRUCTION IN AGRICULTURE:

Relatively few people realize as yet how the demand for instructors in agriculture has increased in the past few years. It is far beyond the supply. The assertion is made that within less than two years the number of institutions offering agricultural courses increased from 863 to 2,575, or at the rate of 76 a month, says the Manchester Union. And this does not include the vast number of elementary and rural schools in which some instruction in agriculture has been introduced. Twenty-two states require more or less of it, and 19 states are endeavoring to obtain teachers by making an examination in agriculture one of the prerequisites for obtaining a teacher's certificate. There must have been a great change in public sentiment with reference to the importance of instruction in agriculture to have brought about this state of things. The correspondence schools have been quick to realize it, however, and while it might seem that agriculture would be about the last thing to be taught or learned by correspondence, there must be some good results to explain the popularity which these courses in agriculture have attained. Not only are they to be found in the schedules of several private correspondence schools, but they have been adopted by no fewer than 25 state institutions.

Men familiar with the meat supply and demand of the country say that relief from the present high prices will not come until each small farmer raises at least two steers per annum for the market. The practical problem is how to get farmers started and started right on this phase of agriculture. Obviously, there must be a first investment, says the Minneapolis Journal. Farmers will not rush into this without some assurance of success. The problem of feeding must be attended to before anything else. The problem of general care of cattle is the next. Fortunately, there are associations among the farmers and farseeing men among the railroad managers who have anticipated both. They are furnishing the farmer the light by which success is well nigh certain. It remains, as far as Minnesota is concerned, only to convince the farmer that he ought to start operations.

Somehow the platonic lover has almost drifted out of fiction. Novelists do not seem to need him and, indeed, he was always rather an inanimate figure. One wondered, as with the flies in amber, how he came to be there, says the New York Telegraph. Perhaps he was a sort of "property man" of the Victorian novel and that was about all that could be said for him. Some characteristics of English fiction as it was years ago have risen in another form in the American novel of the day. The platonic lover, however, is not likely to turn up, because some American writer has just described him as being "always a quiet chap who saves his money." There is no room for a man of that sort, even in the capacious, many-sided American novel of the present time.

In making the chicken a party of its own adulation by inducing it to eat enough sand to increase its weight, the dishonest poultry dealer has arrived at the point of perfection in his art beyond which nothing is conceivable. Morally such a man would be quite capable of letting the chicken be sent to jail for the offense.

Striking Example of Brutal Tackle In Gridiron Game.

THIS photo shows how laxity of game officials and overzealousness on the part of players result in injury to gridiron stars. At the right you notice Guyon, the great Carlisle Indian back, smashed to the ground by a Dartmouth forward by an actual grip on Guyon's face. That is an indefensible mode of tackling—too high and really brutal. A team guilty of such an offense should be penalized fifteen or twenty yards. Of course football is not a ladies' game, but there is no use in making it resemble an execution party in a Mexican revolution.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a glass of Salts to flush Kidneys if Bladder bothers you—Drink lots of water

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation. The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders. Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

Gunboat Smith's Victory Over Langford Big Surprise.

RACING PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Plan Four Days' Meets at New York Tracks—Golf as Cure For Insanity. Rube Waddell Reported Dying of Tuberculosis—Soccer Team in Olympic Games.

If nothing else, Gunboat Smith's victory over Sam Langford should put an end to the strange notion that negro heavyweights are immune to the assaults of time. The idea has been singularly hard to down. Its existence has caused the white hope situation to be completely misunderstood.

One glance at Langford's squat figure when he landed here from Australia should have been enough to convince any one that he was physically incapable of putting up a real fight. Yet he was expected to wade through the white hopes with the same ease as he did before he left these shores.

There were many rumors to the effect that Langford would not overexert himself to win. However, from all accounts of the bout there was no evidence that he was not trying his best. Apparently the bout was a duplicate of the recent Langford-Jennette affair, in which Langford was outpointed because he was too slow to avoid rapid left hand work.

But until Langford is knocked cold there are many who will refuse to believe that he can be beaten. Bouts between blacks and whites invariably stir up rumors of rearrangements, and that there are many prevalent concerning the recent affair is not at all surprising.

What Langford had to gain by losing to Jennette and Smith is not apparent. There was not enough betting to amount to anything. From now on the Boston negro will cease to be a drawing card. In fact, his income will be seriously curtailed if not cut off altogether. Until it can be shown where Langford profited by his poor work it is unfair to Smith to place any credence in wild rumors.

The stewards of the Jockey club are working hard to rehabilitate racing on a clean basis. With that end in view sportsmen of highest standing are importing stallions and mares to improve the breed not only for the turf, but for the remount service of the United States government. The donations of thoroughbred stallions and horses to Uncle Sam by patrons of the turf have already had good results as is apparent in the quality of the chargers representing the government service in the jumping contests at the New York horse show.

Plans are now being considered for at least four days a week of racing on New York courses next year. The stewards realize that with that number of days the tracks will be able to attract horses from all parts of the country and hold them there. This year racing was held only three days a week. This was not worth while to owners of big strings, and as a result many of the notable horses were shipped to Canada, where they were able to race seven days before they were asked to move to another track.

around the four holes, plus one more, making nine in all. Dave Honeyman, the Forest Hill professional, holds the record for nine holes, 34.

During the winter the other five holes will be laid out. Doctors at the hospital have decided that the out of door exercise obtained by the patients through golf is highly beneficial, thus the decision to have nine holes, which, in time, probably will be extended further.

Glen Warner, the athletic coach who made the Carlisle football team famous, attributes the success of the Redskins to early outdoor life and the fact that every man at the Indian training school is developed for all around work. "At Carlisle," says Warner, "they have only about 250 boys over seventeen years old to choose the team from. Compare that with the big student bodies at Dartmouth, Cornell, Harvard, Northwestern, Princeton, University of Kansas, University of Michigan, University of Pennsylvania and Yale. This speaks something for the preponderance of athletic ability in the Indian."

Warner always puts all the available material on the field when practice begins, and the men are taught all the fundamentals. He plays no favorites. Every man must go through the mill, and before he is finally selected for a place on the team he is played in practically every position. That, says Warner, is why the Indians are so successful. The men can be changed around to play in any position. Guyon and Calao, the stars of the back field in the game against Dartmouth, played as tackles last year.

In spite of his own confident belief that he was suffering only from a slight attack of bronchitis, Rube Waddell, well known as a baseball pitcher, left Minneapolis to begin a battle with tuberculosis at his sister's home in San Antonio, Tex. A short time ago a story was current that he and fallen a victim to the white plague but he scoffed at the idea and said he was suffering from a severe cold. Since then he has been growing steadily weaker and has been in bed for several days at his home in Minneapolis. His physician said that Waddell's chances for recovery are slight.

The United States will be represented at the Olympic games in Berlin 1916 by an American soccer football team as a result of an agreement reached between the Amateur Athletic Union and the United States of America Football Association at the annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union.

REV. BEACH RECEIVES ADVANCE XMAS PRESENT

Rev. King D. Beach, pastor of the first Methodist Episcopal church, has received an advance Christmas present which he particularly values. Mr. Beach's father has been a Methodist preacher, a member of the same conference of which his son is now a member, for many years. A year ago he retired from the active ministry, and a few days ago sent his son two large boxes of books from his library. Mr. Beach values them not merely for their intrinsic worth, which is considerable, but he treasures them for that they represent in the life and work of his father.

One set of the books is a complete edition of the religious writings of John Wesley, the founder of Methodism. Another is a file of the "Conference Minutes" going back to 1853, each year the members of the Detroit conference of this church which includes the eastern part of Michigan and all the upper peninsula, gather for their annual conference, which is held the last part of September, and holds for a week. The business of this conference, and the reports of each pastor for the church which he has been serving are all printed in the "Conference Minutes," so it is possible in this file of "Minutes" which Mr. Beach was given, to trace with accuracy the history of Methodism in this state, and also to trace the development of any local church.

Strawberries.

A great many people are under the impression that the strawberry is of European origin. As a matter of fact, it is derived from the Chilean berry, which is native to the Pacific coast.

MARINETTE MAN STARTS CRUSADE

George Powers of Marinette introduced Anti-Tango Resolution at State Meeting of Knights of Columbus.

It was a Marinette man who actually started the crusade of the Knights of Columbus of Wisconsin against the tango and the "animal dances." George Powers, who represented the Marinette Council in the meeting in Milwaukee, to the lecturers of the various councils of the state, introduced the resolution that was adopted.

Mr. Powers threw the meeting almost into an uproar by his resolution. It was discussed for nearly two hours and at the end of the discussion the resolution published in the Eagle was adopted and the order is now committed against all the late dance movements. Only one member spoke against the resolution and his contention was that all round dances, including the waltz, two-step and red-wa were bad, if the dancers wanted to make them so.

Most of the lecturers admitted that they had not seen the tango danced and could not speak from personal observation but were against it just the same. After the meeting quite a delegation of the visitors attended the vaudeville program at the Majestic and there saw the tango with all its variations presented on the stage. Their impression of it was a decidedly unfavorable one, admitted Mr. Powers.

The Rhino of Pompeii.

Animal stories are somewhat rare in archaeology, but these pictures will help to tell a story which has been occupying the serious attention of German antiquaries. Before the Berlin Society of the History of Art, Dr. Harry David recently announced his discovery of a "rhino" in the Naples museum, in the shape of the bas-relief of a rhinoceros said to have been found at Pompeii.

The doctor triumphantly pointed out that the bas-relief was really a copy of a drawing by Durer in the British museum, and that, therefore, the Italians had been deceived. The Italian authorities, however, retorted by stating that the bas-relief did not appear in any official catalogue, and that, as a matter of fact, the "rhino" was really the result of a book by a German writer!

THEATRICAL TYRANNY.

It Appears to Be Carried to the Extremes in Paris.

Your Parisian theater goer is the most patient of men. He submits almost joyously to all sorts of outrages and exactions. Once in the theater, he is a mere sheep for the shearing, so soon he is of overcoat and stick at the vestiaire, retaining only his hat and with it the remnants of his manhood, for not the fiercest attendant—and some of these ladies are mustached like dragons—could dare to divorce a Frenchman from his hat, be it chapeau clique or haut de forme or piebald casquette.

Having paid his obols—anything from half a franc to a franc—he is handed over to the care of another formidable dame, l'ouvreuse, who expects a substantial reward for showing him to the wrong seat. But the tyranny of the ouvreuses is nothing to that of the entractes. When that comes you understand why the Frenchman clings to his hat. He has now leisure enough to stroll around to his favorite cafe or take a taxi to his home to see how his children are, if he lives anywhere within a four mile radius. No one ever seems to complain.

At last, touched presumably by this meek subservience on the part of the audience, several managers promise their clients a little harmless diversion during the entractes. This diversion is to take the form of a series of riddles projected on a screen in front of the curtain, on which the spectators may exercise what intelligence author and actors have left them. Very kind and thoughtful of you, good managers! But there is a simpler way to gratify your clients—shorten the entracte-Exchange.

The Mind Reader.

"Mind reading? Nonsense!" said Hawkins contemptuously. "Nothing in it! I'll give you $10, Jimmerson, if you'll read my mind right now. What am I thinking?"

"Why," said Jimmerson, eyeing Hawkins keenly, "you are thinking that mind reading is perfect nonsense, that there is absolutely nothing in it, and that therefore your $10 is perfectly safe."

"By Jove!" cried Hawkins, paying up like a gentleman. "That's wonderful, Jimmerson! You got it exactly how the dickens do you do it?"

Quiet Poet.

His readers of many years have hardly made up their minds as to whether they ought to congratulate Mr. Robert Bridges on being made poet laureate. Official recognition is usually accorded only to people and things long dead, or better dead, and when the government "discovers" a man, you may generally presume that he is done for. We heard of an energetic citizen who woke one morning and found himself a knight. He at once left England and never returned.

Without frivolity, however, one may be glad that, for once, a public honor has come to a man who deserves it. Other poets, alive today, have spoken louder—we may even say sworn louder than Mr. Bridges. Others have founded more "movements," talked more, been more vigorous as propagandists. No one has been, without emphasis, a truer poet than he.

And though the laureateship can add nothing to the honor in which many Englishmen hold Mr. Bridges, it is pleasant to think that he, by accepting the post, has made it an honor once again.—London Mirror.

Patent Error in Last Night's Mirror Caused Ludicrous Statement

An error in punctuation in the article on the Big Brother movement last night's issue of The Mirror gave one paragraph of the article a rather ludicrous turn. "Yet at the same time there is a cloud hanging over the jurisdiction of a kindly under Big Brother etc." Thus the article read. The error is patent. A period after the word "by" would have conveyed the sense of the article as was meant to be conveyed.
