STRATEGIC IMPORTANCE OF CARPATHIAN BATTLES SAID TO RIVAL THE DARDENELLES

GERMAN FLEET BOMBARDS RUSSIAN PORT OF LIBAU AND DOES CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE—BELIEVED GERMAN SUBMARINE SUNK BY FRENCH SHIP OFF DIEPPE—VIENNA SAYS RUSS BEATEN IN BUKOWINA—REPORT CURRENT IN HOLLAND THAT GERMANY WILL ABANDON GREAT BATTLE LINE IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM.

TWO MORE BRITISH SHIPS SUNK BY "SUBS"; FRENCH SHIP RAMS A GERMAN SUBMARINE

GERMAN AIRMEN ACTIVE IN YESTERDAY'S FIGHTING—RUSS RE-NEW BATTLES IN THE DUKLA PASS REGION.

(BULLETINS) Cardiff, Wales, March 31.—The Cardiff Echo declares that the British steamer Crown Castle has been torpedoed by a German submarine and sunk off the Cilly Islands. The Castle was engaged in the Transatlantic trade and was a ship of 2,000 net tons.

London, March 31.—The Ellerman line steamer, Flaminian of 2,218 tons net tonnage, and with a general cargo, was sunk off the Cilly Islands March 29, by German submarine, the U-28. The twenty-three members of the crew are said to have been saved.

(By Associated Press.) London, March 31.—The Libau correspondent of Reuters Telegraph company sends a message which says that as a result of two bombardments of the Russian port by a German fleet that three were killed and seven wounded and fifteen houses damaged. Telegraph wires were wrecked and the steamer Baltica, which was in port was damaged.

Resume Bombardment London, March 31.—A Reuters despatch from Constantinople to Berlin says that the allied fleet has resumed the bombardment of the outer forts of the Dardanelles.

Aviators Busy London, March 31.—Great activity by German airmen has been noticed during the past few days says a Reuters telegram, according to a Russian statement. The statement says: "Fifteen German aeroplanes flew over Asterlonka, Monday and dropped bombs, none of which struck the farm house at which they were aimed and which was being used as field headquarters. No one was injured."

Mountain Battles Important London, March 31.—The battle for the Carpathian passes now rivals the Dardanelles in political possibilities. Military experts say the movements are of such importance that the Teutonic allies are justified in taking every effort to stop them.

As a result of a sudden injection of the Muscovites in Hungary it is intimated that it might stir the Balkan states to action quicker than by any other means. On the west the Germans are said to be giving up plans of extending their battle lines in France and Belgium. A bombardment of Verdun is again under way, and Nieuport is still being bombarded.

Internally, England is still concerned with the labor situation.

BELIEVE SUBMARINE SUNK Paris, March 31.—A statement indicating that a German submarine may have been sunk by a French light cruiser was given out today as follows:

"Yesterday, a light French cruiser sighted a submarine maneuvering on the surface off Dieppe. The cruiser gave chase and forced the submarine to dive, firing at her periscope and turning in order to ram the vessel with her prow. The cruiser passed the submarine as the periscope

WILL USE DRASTIC MEANS TO PUT STOP TO ANNOYING WOMEN

Police Department Are Determined to Put a Stop Practicesses of Foreigners Following Women on Streets

One more annoyance of Escanaba women has been drawn into the dragnet of the local police department in the arrest last night of John Suaminen, a Finlander. Suaminen was arraigned this morning before Justice Glaser in police court and fined $15 and costs, which he paid.

Suaminen was apprehended last night after he had followed one local woman, whose name is being suppressed by the police, to her home, and then he alleged to have entered the home of another nearby. The police were notified and the man taken into custody shortly afterwards.

This arrest follows several others of the past few days in which the men were invariably foreigners, and the object of their attacks, women and which the department are emphatic in asserting must cease. The most drastic measures possible will be taken in the future, stated members of the force today, in the effort to stamp the evil out.

"Nothing Doing" Paris, March 31.—The French war office announced today as follows: "There is no change in the situation since the last communication."

RUSS RENEW ATTACK After a brief lull in the fighting for the Dukla pass, the Russ have brought up reinforcements and renewed the attack. In Vienna it is said the Russ are unable to regain the advantage and that they were defeated in Bukovina yesterday. A despatch to a Swiss newspaper says the Austrians have sustained heavy losses in past few days. It is estimated they lost 18,000 men Monday and that a Russian column is credited with destroying an entire column in an hour.

The report is being spread in Holland that Germany is contemplating the abandonment of her long battle line in France and Belgium in favor of a less extended front running west from Brussels and that the retirement of cavalry from Ypres has already begun. The fighting in Turkish Armenia, on the Black Sea continues and the Russ have captured the town of Artvin.

As a result of the fire aboard the French steamer Ia Souraine Paris police have arrested a passenger named Ray Swoboda, listed on the records as "an American subject." A Paris newspaper says the man is suspected of "having close connections with the enemy."

Say Germans Defeated A defeat of German forces in North Poland attended with unusually heavy losses is told in an unofficial despatch from Petrograd. This information says was the ef-

TWENTY RELATIVES IN WAR IS THE RECORD OF AN ESCANABA RESIDENT

Charles Mueller, Escanaba Brewer, has Relation Fighting on Both Sides in Present Conflict

The great war in Europe has torn the relatives of Charles Mueller, an Escanaba man, into two factions, he having relations on both the German and French side of the conflict. Twenty members of his family connections were enlisted men in either the German or French armies and have seen service since the start of the war.

Thus far, of that number two have sacrificed their lives for the fatherland. One relative was wounded twice and each time recovered at a base hospital and returned to the front. The last time he returned a stray bullet from the enemy's guns caught him and his last battle was fought.

Of the twenty, four are with the French and sixteen with the Germans.

SHERIFF IVERSON IS THE HOST AT GIANT ROLLER SKATE PARTY

INVITES ALL THE PEOPLE TO SKATE AROUND THE COURT HOUSE IF THEY STOP AT 8:30

"Rollers" From all Over the City Congregate There Last Night to Enjoy the Sport.

At last the roller skaters have found a place to skate and nearly 500 took advantage of it last night. The triangle around the court house is the place and from early in the evening until late at night the neighborhood sounds like a giant storm center.

Sheriff Iverson says he has no objections to offer as far as he is personally concerned and extends an invitation to all who are interested in the job and enjoy themselves. Last night there were several telephone calls at the sheriff's office from people living in the western part of the city asking that he send their children home not later than 8:30. As it is rather hard for the sheriff to pick out the ones wanted, he made a rule today that skating will have to stop promptly at 8:30.

This will apply to every one using the triangle. The sheriff says everyone ought to get enough skating by 8:30 and whether they do or not they will have to stop. Until that hour all are invited, with the understanding, of course that they conduct themselves decently and be careful about people using any portion of the walk who are walking.

ALL HOPE THAT ANY MAY BE ALIVE GIVEN UP—SPEND $20,000 TO RAISE VESSEL

(By Associated Press.) Washington, March 31.—An expenditure of $20,000 to bring the United States submarine F-4, which has lain at the bottom of Honolulu harbor since Thursday of last week, to the surface, has been authorized by Secretary Daniels today after a message was received from Rear Admiral Moore at Honolulu stating that the hawser attached to what is believed was the submarine, had parted and that the equipment there was altogether too light for the work to be done.

Cables Again Part Honolulu, March 31.—Cables attached to a heavy object, believed to have been the Submarine, F-4, parted yesterday and operations were stopped for the night. The spot where the cable parted was carefully marked and another attempt to get hold of the craft will be made today.

A huge submarine tube, designed and built by resident engineers will be completed tonight and put into immediate use.

Twenty-one coffins have been ordered and will be at the government station for receiving the bodies of the crew of the F-4 if brought to the surface.

Determined to Raise Craft Washington, March 31.—Secretary Daniels is determined today to raise the sunken submarine F-4 no matter what it may cost. He wanted to learn the cause of the disaster so that it will never happen again in the future.

In one of the display windows at Farrell & Lohmiller's jewelry store is a watch chain that was picked up on one of the battle fields of Russia and sent to Mr. Lohmiller by a friend that has recently returned from Europe.

The chain is of solid silver and composed of a number of great flat links. An Austrian "dollar" bearing the date of 1824 is attached, which shows that the chain is very old. It was undoubtedly dropped on the battle field by some soldier.

OUR SAFETY VALVES.

Americans are living at a fast pace, most of the time keyed up to a high tension. They give enormously of their nerve power for their business affairs.

The lance has been more or less ridiculed by military experts on the ground that it is out of date and cumbersome, but the weapon still has its advocates, who point out its value in shock tactics and in cavalry charges.

A set of rules to prevent husband or wife taking refuge in the divorce court or seeking happiness with a soul mate was offered in a sermon by Rev. C. W. Blodgett, pastor of the Clifton Methodist Episcopal church, says Cincinnati Enquirer.

There may be no psychological reason why smoking a cigarette in tense moments is a mark of magnificent contempt of danger and death, and yet the spectacle of the commander of the ill-fated Formidable standing on the bridge of his doomed vessel and calmly smoking as he awaited the final tragedy, will always impress the hearts of the British more than any amount of patriotic and eloquent speeches could have done.

In some ways—one at least—board-house managers are in luck. There has been no advance in the price of bread.

The skull is that of an old tribal chief of the Philippine Islands, who was murdered forty years ago by Guan, a Surlago chief, for stealing one of the latter's wives. Guan kept the skull as a trophy until his death, when it was placed upon Guan's grave as a tombstone.

Slaughter of Defenseless Prisoners After Jaffa Unrecognized as Act of Warfare.

No French victory was ever marked by more unbridled license than that which the victorious troops practiced at Jaffa. But what followed was worse. Although the prisoners of war were too numerous for the ordinary usage, yet they should have been treated according to the terms of quarter they had exacted.

A few Egyptians were sent home and the remainder of the prisoners, together with the 800 militia from El Achis, were marched to the beach and shot. Two eyewitnesses estimated it—one at 3,000, the other at 4,000.

"I have been severe with those of your troops who violated the laws of war," wrote the author of the deed to Djazair. All winter long he had been dealing as an Oriental with Orientals and this was but a piece of the same conduct.—The Life of Napoleon Bonaparte, William Milligan Sloane.

HE GUARDED LARGE AMOUNT

Man Who Carried Fortune Across Continent in Suit Cases, Dies in San Francisco.

With the death at the Alameda county infirmary of William Frederick Marshall, sixty-five years of age, said to be a relative of John Marshall, the discoverer of gold in California, there was brought to a close the life of a man who once carried $4,000,000 in bonds across the continent in suit cases.

Marshall, who for the past ten years had resided with Mrs. Mary C. Bowler, 1468 Eighth street, was commissioned by T. G. Crothers and R. D. Mitchell, the executors of the James G. Fair estate in California, in 1897, to bring the $4,000,000 in bonds from New York to San Francisco.

Accordingly on October 5 of that year Marshall left New York with the bonds in three suitcases, heavily armed, in a private drawing-room. He delivered the bonds to the executors in San Francisco without mishap on October 10. En route the train was held up and the passengers robbed of personal belongings in Utah by a gang of highwaymen, who fortunately overlooked the three suitcases.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Twenty out of every hundred women bread winners in New York city are adrift, that is, without homes.

Symmetry in the feminine form is the ideal of a new course to be instituted at the University of Pittsburgh. Among the 3,329 woman prisoners investigated by a government commission not one college student was found.

dozen or more ships are clearing week for Argentina and Brazil for ports on the west coast of America, via the canal.

South American goods are packed in American bottoms. Manu Molina, consul general of the Argentine republic in New York, is an official statement in which he asks for closer trade relations between the United States and Argentina.

FARMER'S WIFE EARNS AUTO

Helps Husband With Carpenter Work; He Sells His Wheat at $1.50.

Culver, Kan.—Last summer before D. H. Knott threshed his wheat he decided to hold the crop for a higher price. He built granaries and repaired others on his farm, but the work of harvesting and threshing made labor scarce and he finally secured his wife's services in assisting in the carpenter work and she make a good hand. When the work was completed and the threshing machine was ready for his attack, Mrs. Knott said: "Now, husband, what am I to get for my services?"

"Well, when wheat reaches a dollar and a half I will sell and we will have a motor car," was the answer.

The wheat is sold and Mr. Knott's bank account shows that he received a dollar and a half a bushel. Mrs. Knott is waiting for the auto.

SENDS JEWELS TO LAUNDRY

Detectives Get to Chinaman's Before Bundle With $1,000 in Diamonds.

San Francisco.—After planning $1,000 worth of diamonds to the inside of her nightgown to insure their safety, Mrs. Leo Shapirer sent the jewels and the gown to a Chinese laundry and almost succumbed to hysterics before they were recovered by the police.

With Detectives Grism and Howell, Mr. Shapirer hastened to the laundry, arriving there before the package of laundry. The diamonds were recovered.

Wound Makes Man See Green.

A very interesting case is reported of a soldier, in a recent engagement, being shot in the forehead, the bullet passing out of the back of his head without killing or even stunning him. He remarked "Everything seems green all round me," and when in the hospital tent he still persisted that he saw everything green. This case appears to favor the cerebral theory of color vision of Dr. Eldridge-Green, the shock to the brain having altered the discriminatory apparatus so that impulses caused by green rays had a preponderating influence.—Scientific American.

MISS THE VISION OF THE VALLEY

Too Many Are Late in Seeing the Way Out From Darkness to the Light That Is Triumphant.

A CAMPING party from the East stepped from a belated train late one August afternoon at the station of a bleak little frontier town at the edge of the Black Hills, and looked anxiously at the shadows already lying long across the one street.

"Well, here's one day lost," grumbled a member of the party. "It will be night before everything is loaded and ready, and we can't start off in the dark."

"Why not?" asked the guide. "Couldn't find the way."

"I know the way," returned the guide simply. "We'll start at eight."

Night was swallowing the last dregs of daylight when eight o'clock came, and apprehension was lined into every face as the party climbed into the wagon and plunged into the dark mouth of the canyon, which opened abruptly into the town. The road hugged the canyon wall on one side; on the other rushed a noisy little mountain brook, its chatter softening gradually into a quiet murmur as the canyon road wound up the hillside, leaving it far behind in the depths below.

Dense darkness separated the travelers each from each. Stones dislodged by the scrambling hoofs of the horses slid down into the canyon, measuring the narrow margin between safety and destruction. Hand gripped hand, and breath came short.

"It's like the valley of the shadow of death!" a voice shuddered out into the darkness.

The guide, directing his team in front, sensed an unspoken fear.

"Just look up," he called hearteningly over his shoulder.

A wedge of brilliant star-strewn sky seemed swung into the abyss, forcing the canyon walls apart and stretching a luminous canopy from crag to crag. The darkness transformed the valley, in the uplook, into a vision of glory. Up and up wound the road, nearer and nearer to that ever-widening arch of star-shot brightness, till the travelers at last stood safe upon the shining hillcrest, the dark hours of trembling bewilderment over and joy beyond.

They looked back silently, as far as the starlight revealed it, over the road up which they had come.

"I wouldn't have missed it for the world," one of the party finally broke the spell. "It would have been a tragedy to lose an experience like that."

And in that brief sentence she unconsciously summed up the one real tragedy of life—to miss the vision of the valley. The valley itself is not a tragedy to thinking people. For while men can still "just look up," and looking, realize that ahead lie fairer lands, to which they are surely bound, they are safe. It is "where there is no vision the people perish."

The road toward those fairer lands is the common, everyday road of hourly living. It lies inevitably through the valleys, often through envying night. To travel it means weariness, bruises and trembling feet, groping hands, poignant pain, and a back lock through a vista of disappointments and apparent failures.

But there is a way out. Centuries ago, on the day that we call Easter, a light broke into the darkened valleys, and the way shone forth for all who will "just look up." Now, since that Easter, we climb, not as slaves who endure because there is no escape, but with joy triumphant. For the assurance is ours that we shall thus rise with him into the light.

And so he bids us on this Easter day to accept our valleys, for they lead out into life; not alone beyond, but now. The alighting stones cannot plunge us over the brink, nor the threatening rocks crash down and crush out our lives. We have his word that because he lives we shall live also. Our feet are set securely upon the road, and we shall climb in safety up the vision-brightened way to the goal.

It is into our night-dark valleys that the vision comes, for sunshine blots it out. The valley is by day a smiling thing, tempting to loitering among its trees and flowers, and to dreaming beside its slinging brooks. So completely does it satisfy the senses that it may even become a lotus vale of forgetfulness, to lure the traveler from his sturdy purpose and beguile him into indifference to the way that leads to the plains of God. But presently night overtakes him. Then he rouses. With the shadows chill and heavy on his heart, he at last looks up and, beholding the star, begins his climb up toward the morning. Gethsemane and Golgotha lie along the way, but Easter breaks beyond. The vision has glorified the vale.

And still Easter does not mean to us all that it should. It is a day of somewhat selfish rejoicing. We quicken to the new life of the spring, we make our heartsides gay with fresh blossoms; our hearts echo the glad message of the bells. It is our joy, our peace, our brightness, our Easter.

But it was very different on that first Easter. If you will think back a moment you will recall the word of the angel to the women at the sepulcher—"He is risen—go tell his disciples." Now, as then, there are many to whom Easter has not come. They are dead to life, back there in the valley—little children defrauded of their birthright of joy; women exploited for gain; youth drawn into evil by the lure of false brightness. "That ye might have life" is the purpose of the Christ in his resurrection; and yet in that death valley they know nothing of life and light, they who are also a part of that all-inclusive "ye."

Before we can make our Easter truly his Easter we must first hearken to his message: "Go down into the valley and carry the vision to those who perish there. Make your joy their joy; your life their life; your safety their safety. Lead them up with you, into the light."

Original Etymology.

In her language, Nancy Allison was inclined to be what her brother called "fushing." One summer she took an automobile trip through New England. On her return she was giving an enthusiastic description of one fine old town to her family.

"It was perfectly charming! Such wonderful doorways and the quaintest old inn!" She paused, searching for a word. "It was—unique!"

Brother Ned had been listening gravely to the rhapsody.

"Unique," he said, quietly. "That's a fine word. Let's see. 'Una,' one; 'Equus,' horse. 'One-horse' town. Good!" and without waiting for anyone to criticize his interpretation of the word, he promptly took his departure.—Youth's Companion.

CELEBRATION IN GREEK COUNTRIES

Intense Fervor and Devotion Shown in Easter Ceremonies—Places of Pilgrimage Numerous.

IN all the Greek orthodox countries—Russia, Roumania, Greece, Bulgaria, Serbia, Montenegro, and a large part of Austria-Hungary—Easter is celebrated with great fervor and devotion. The Easter kiss is a well-known incident of these celebrations. A curious story is told of Czar Nicholas II and the Easter kiss. On leaving his apartments one Easter morning he kissed the guard outside with the usual salutation, "Christ is risen," to which the response is, "He is truly risen." But the man answered, coolly, "He is not risen." The emperor was aghast, and shouted, furiously, "He is risen!" But the man, with the utmost composure, repeated his denial. He was a Jew! Only the emperor's sense of humor saved him.

Russia, as the premier Greek Orthodox nation, is very much in evidence in the Holy Land, and of late years has asserted her supremacy in the Christendom of the Orient in many ways—not only by generous contributions in magnificent buildings and financially, but also politically in strengthening the position of the Greek church. Especially at Easter it is interesting to observe the contrasts which take on a certain political hue between Latins, Greeks, Protestants and Gregorians (Armenians).

Protestant religious activity in Jerusalem, which at one time was largely English, has of late years been much strengthened by the influx of German colonists, especially Suiabians. Away from the ecclesiastical ceremonial the pilgrim in Easter time seeks the traditional places where our Lord spent his last days and nights. Of these Gethsemane is the principal goal, and here the difference in creed among the many visitors is obliterated by an earnest and quiet devotion which is unexpectedly free from the emotional.

Another figure has a prominent place in Easter celebrations in Jerusalem; that of Moses, whose liberation of the Jewish people from the yoke of Egypt is commemorated in the ancient Hebrew paschal feast. But it is not the Passover celebrated by the various Jewish colonies of Palestine—the older Spanish-speaking, the Turkish-speaking people from Bokhara and other central Asiatic regions, the Arabic-speaking Jews from Yemen, and the Polish, Russian and German Jews of Yiddish tongue. It is not the Jewish Passover that is the most remarkable celebration in honor of the great leader and the Exodus.

There is a very little known Mohammedan celebration which, though no longer so general as formerly, is still a most interesting one. To the Mohammedan, it must be remembered, Jerusalem is a holy city, like Mecca and Medina, and there is a saying among Arabs, "Syria is the blessed country, Palestine the holy land, and Jerusalem, the holy city, is the holy of holies."

The tradition is that Ommi Selma, wife of the prophet, heard these words one day from Mohammed. "He who makes the pilgrimage from Jerusalem to Mecca will obtain forgiveness of sins, past and future, and will earn paradise."

There is a pilgrimage at Easter time which does not go quite as far from Jerusalem as Mecca, but whose goal is the burial place of Moses—Nebi Musa—between the city and the Dead Sea. Although, according to Christian and Hebrew belief, the Lord buried Moses, and his grave is hidden from posterity, the Mohammedans regard a certain ruined sanctuary, some three or four hours' distance from Jerusalem, as covering the remains of the prophet.

In cosmopolitan charm Easter in Constantinople almost equals that in Jerusalem. The capital of the Turkish empire is, of course, in itself highly cosmopolitan, and there is no other city in the world where so many languages are heard in the streets, not by foreigners but by the variegated native population. The background here is not Jewish and Mohammedan, as in Jerusalem, but Mohammedan and Christian, with a strong tinge of Spanish Jewry.

Of the native Christians the Greeks predominate, but there has always been a very numerous Armenian element in Constantinople. The magnificent Greek Orthodox ceremonial well reflects the towering strength of that church in the Levant, which for centuries, under the absolute rule of the Ottoman sultans, acted in the capacity of imperial overseer of the Christian peoples under Turkish sway. Until the comparatively recent rise of the Balkan nationalities—Roumanian, Serbian, Bulgarian, Montenegrin—Greek was the language of all cultured people of orthodox faith outside of Russia and Austria-Hungary. And Greek intellectual, social and political control

Recent events have once more shown the force of the people of Greek speech. Through the breaking away of the Bulgarian church and the erection of a Bulgarian exarchate, Greek in religion, but Bulgarian in speech and political aims, it had been temporarily weakened.

MAY CALL THEM "LANGLEYS"

Move to Honor the Memory of the First Man Who Dreamed of Aviation.

The reading world has become familiar with the word "Taube," and understands that it stands for a German aeroplane. Men read every day of flying machines that are called a "Wright," a "Curtiss," a "Bleriot," a "Farman," a "Bristol," a "Morane-Saulnier" and other names fastened to a plane by a builder or an aviator who has succeeded in fashioning a model differing from some other model.

No flying machine is called a "Langley," in commemoration of the creative and original service to aviation rendered by the late Prof. Samuel Pierpont Langley of Washington. Two citizens of the capital have joined in the suggestion—perhaps it might even be called a movement—to have the generic name "Langley" applied to flying machines that are heavier than air.

The suggestion seems to have been brought forward first by Col. Archibald Hopkins of Washington, and Frank Warren Hackett has seconded the motion, suggesting that perhaps the commander in chief of the army and navy, upon this subject being brought to his attention, might favor Colonel Hopkins' proposal and give directions that henceforth the government airships shall be called "Langleys." Mr. Hackett has written that "the unselfish devotion of the late Samuel Pierpont Langley to the solution of the problem of aerial flight—to the discovery of the principle—has been admitted and admired by all well informed Americans and that our country ought to enjoy the honor that would attach to the coming into use of this term."

The Anthony and Northern is virtually owned by Byers. It is unique in that it is a railroad built and operated without a cent of bonded indebtedness, and it is paying dividends.

FINDS LOST WATCH AT FIRE

Fireman Answering Alarm Discovers Stolen Timepiece in Window of Burning Store.

Milwaukee.—It was an alarm clock all right. At least Fireman C. A. Flynn thinks so.

Flynn, a member of truck company No. 6, recently dolled up to enjoy his day off. After prinking he reached for his watch and the watch was gone. Somebody had stolen it from his home.

All week Flynn moped about the engine house, blue as a soubrette when the company "busts" on the road.

One day an alarm came in from a second-hand store. Flynn was first man off the ladder truck. Ax in hand, he started in when a watch in the window caught his eye.

Now Flynn is wearing his watch again and Arthur Langbecker, aged twenty-seven, is awaiting trial on a charge of theft.

Self-Lighting Cigars.

The German military authorities and the German postal authorities have authorized the transmission by parcel post to soldiers in the field of cigars equipped with a special chemical preparation that enables the smoker to light them without the aid of matches.

The chemical preparation is applied to the end of cigars, and is ignited by rubbing it against a hard substance, like the ordinary match, but it cannot ignite automatically. The chemicals used, it is said, do not affect the flavor of the cigar.

THE WIDE-AWAKE JEWELERS

CONSIDER THE LILIES

HE cashier was alone. He drew a pencil and scratch pad from his pocket and figured rapidly. Yes, he could do it easily. Just a turn of the combination and the safe was open. His tip on certain stocks came from a man with inside knowledge, and to take the money from the bank would just be borrowing it. The stocks were scheduled to make a wild plunge upward within the next few days and then he could sell, replace the money he had taken from the safe before it was missed and have enough ahead to justify several of his intended moves toward social advancement. Why, it was all just the simplest thing in the world to accomplish! All the time he argued with himself he was not quite easy in his conscience, but his thought of the confidential position of the friend who had given him the tip made the outcome seem a certainty—an end that would surely justify the means. He pulled the blind, unlocked the safe, concealed the money he needed on his person, carefully covering his tracks. Then he locked the safe and quietly let himself into the balmy April air.

It was past midnight when he stole silently out of his home for a little walk, being unable to sleep. The moonlight held the world in its thrall, bathing the spring flowers in its silvery light, but the cashier was oblivious to its beauty as he wandered aimlessly down first one street and then another, until his attention was arrested by the sound of a glad hosanna from a nearby church—the final choir rehearsal for Easter music. Scarcely realizing what he did the troubled man slipped into the vestibule of the big church, drawn by the lights, the music and the hunger for human companionship which gnawed his troubled heart. As he stood undecided what he should do the joyous anthem ended, the choir filed into the vestry room and the old sexton turned out all save the chancel lights. The cashier slipped quietly into the church and sank wearily into a seat, his eyes fixed on the lily-laden altar.

Easter lilies were everywhere. Great banks of them covered the altar, and from every nook and corner they gleamed white in the dim chancel lights. They were like a prayer—a mother's prayer for her children—pure, and clean, and white. Their delicate fragrance was pleasant to his senses, but above all else it was their whiteness which riveted his thought. He could not get away from it. Suddenly he buried his face in his hands to shut the lilies away from his sight, while he went over the argument he had used to himself when he had taken the money from the safe. But, strangely, in the midst of his effort at justification, the whiteness and purity of the Easter lilies surged through his brain.

Yes, He Could Do It Easily. Then out of the stillness a sound was made. It was the sound of a voice—the voice of his mother.

"Consider the lilies," it pleaded softly. The cashier sprang to his feet and looked about him wildly. There was no one in the big lily-laden church except himself—himself—and the voice. "Consider the lilies," came the advice to him once more.

The voice was unmistakable. Although his mother had been dead for these twenty years, he could never forget the gentleness of her voice. But that was not all. The admonition had a familiar ring which was not of the voice alone, nor yet of some long-forgotten reading. The words were borne in upon his senses now as in that long-ago yester-year, when, as a little lad, he had sat in the living room of his home listening to his father's heartbroken confession to his mother that he had failed in business. It was Easter then as now. On the broad casement of the low French stood clutching the seat. window stood a row of exquisite white lilies. His mother had turned from his stricken father to regard them, and over her face had come that tender, confident smile the little lad had so loved. "Consider the lilies," she had told the man, "they tell not, neither do they spin, yet Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." And his father had taken her into his arms with a great sob, while the little lad had looked on, understanding only that his mother had somehow helped his father over a great crisis.

And now in the crisis of his own life, when temptation had mastered him, he sat alone in a lily-laden church and lo! the voice of his mother bade him "consider the lilies." Whence had it come? From the heart of an Easter lily? Or had it come into the house of God with him with a ray of moonlight? Or, was the voice in his brain alone—born of memories? He could not tell, and it did not matter. When he had laid her away twenty years ago he had not laid away the influence that had been hers all through his young life, her faith in him, her smile, nor the memory of a certain day when he had been graduated from college and had promised her that he would seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness through all the days that he should live. And he had kept his promise—until tonight, when the greed of gold became the dominating motive of his life; tonight, when the thirst for luxury had conquered him.

The cashier stood clutching the seat of the pew in front of him, his eyes fixed on the lily-banked altar. Then he squared his shoulders even as he had seen his father do in that long-ago year. And when the first soft flush of Easter day crept across the eastern sky the money was safe in the bank again. For the cashier kept faith with his mother.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK, THICK, GLOSSY

Look Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also, ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous remedy because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; in the morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

WOMEN OF LILLE ARE HAPPY

So Says German Officer Who Spends Hours Off Duty Watching Them on Streets.

Vienna.—A German officer stationed at Lille, France, writes an interesting letter to the Prague Daily News, in which he speaks of conditions in that city, and becomes quite enthusiastic over the pretty girls and their elegance of attire.

"When I first entered Lille," he says, "I was amazed at the devastation wrought by our shells. Street after street of ruined houses met my gaze, but, nevertheless, the inhabitants are happy and gay.

"I marvel at the elegance of the women of Lille. In the Rue Nationale there is every afternoon a regular parade of women the like of which I have never seen. Low shoes appear to be the fashion—shoes of a golden bronze, with marvelous stockings. "For hours I sit in the cafe of the Restaurant de Strassbourg and watch these elegant women. They are gay and happy, despite the fact that the roar of cannon is constantly heard, and their demeanor is such as if there was no such thing as a dreadful and horrible war right in their midst."

Fatalities Among the Wounded.
A report to the army commission, made by the director of the medical department at the ministry of war in France, discloses the wonderful results achieved by modern surgery.

The wounded, between September 15 and November 30, numbered 500,000, approximately. Fifty-four and one-half per cent of them returned to the firing line. Twenty-four and one-half per cent were sent out on furlough during convalescence and have since returned to the front. Seventeen per cent are still in hospital, to complete their recovery. One and forty-eight hundredths per cent are unfit for further service. Two and forty-eight hundredths per cent died from the effects of their injuries.

The mortality would probably fall as low as one per cent if the wounded could be received from the battle lines with less delay and there were enough professional surgeons to treat them all.

SONGBIRDS OF GREAT VALUE

Rarest Varieties Command Large Sums When They Are Offered for Sale to fanciers.

The recent international bird show has provided some astonishing facts and figures regarding the value of songbirds. There are nearly one hundred classes of canaries. That they can be Norwich or Lancashire, Border or Yorkshire variegated, lizard, unfledged, clear, cross-bred, created, self or foul conveys very little to the average mind but leaves one marveling at the variety of chirping little creatures whose feathers are every conceivable shade of yellow.

One marvels also at the variety of birds that could be kept as pets. Finches, linnets, redpoles, tomtits, robins, wrens, stonechats, babblers and long-tailed, short-tailed, wag-tailed and crested varieties of all of them in every size, from the minute humming bird to the plump scarlet cockatoo, all vie for that popularity which up to the present has been the monopoly of the canary.

And these little birds are all quite cheap. A few dollars will buy most of them, but on the other hand $2,500 would be asked for a gorgeous crimson bird of paradise, or $5,000 for the canary-bullfinch "White Rose," the most expensive songbird in the world.

THURSDAY—"HIS LAST DOLLAR" in Four Parts

THE GOOD JUDGE'S FRIENDS ARE SPREADING THE NEWS NOW

A MAN never forgets his first introduction to the little chew that satisfies. Let him get the comfort of the Real Tobacco Chew and it's good-bye to the big wad for all time. More than that, he's glad to share the discovery with his friends.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—cut fine, short shred—seasoned and sweetened just enough, cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

Take a very small chew—less than one-quarter the old size. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just nibble on it until you find the strength chew that suits you. Tuck it away. Then let it rest. See how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies without grinding, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

It is a ready chew, cut fine and short shred so that you won't have to grind on it with your teeth. Grinding on ordinary candied tobacco makes you spit too much.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up with molasses and flavor. Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste in "Right-Cut."

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Organized Baseball Begins to Feel Strength of Feds.

INTERNATIONAL IS WEAK.

Class A Circuit Received Terrific Blow From New Organization—Federals Have Also Lost a Fortune—Other Notes.

The suave expression indicative of supreme confidence and disdain of rivals assumed by the organized baseball forces must be maintained now with serious difficulty. However short the Federal league may fall of major league pretensions and whatever handicaps they face in the way of money losses and weak circuit, they still are able to sink the forty-two centimeter shell into the vitals of the octopus with astonishing frequency and accuracy.

Results speak for themselves. The wounds resulting in the wrecking of the International league, the downfall of the Farrell regime in the New York Yankees, the crippling of the five Sopers baseball industries and the paralyzing of all minor league activity were enough to prove the point.

Now comes the Brooklyn National league club and throws itself on the mercy of the Brooklyn public by offering $100,000 worth of preferred stock for sale to anybody in blocks of $100 each—or larger.

The conditions of this deal, which makes the stock redeemable in three years, are equivalent to a $100,000 loan at 8 per cent per annum. In other words, the Brooklyn club seems cramped for the wherewithal to do business.

The scheme is the first attempt of an established major league club to float stock in this manner and is taken by some persons to indicate weakness.

The failure of the "war fund" to appear and the helplessness of the O. B. forces to assist the minor leagues in distress, are indications that most of the octopus' strength is "front."

The Feds have lost heavily, too. But after all it isn't the heaviness of the losses that counts. It's the relative ability of the sufferers to stand the losses and survive.

The winner is hard to pick. Certainly organized baseball is no longer over confident. If the Fed circuit were a little more reasonably arranged the independents would be given a genuine chance to force themselves down the throats of the opposition.

Marty O'Toole, who a few years ago gained considerable prominence because the Pittsburgh club paid St. Paul $22,500 for his release, has drifted back into the minors. O'Toole never made good in fast company, principally because he never managed to get himself in good shape. If he was not ailing one way or another his arm went bad, and the result was that he failed to make good for either the Pirates or Giants, with which team he finished the last season, being loaned to McGraw by Pittsburgh.

O'Toole will pitch for the Columbus team of the American Association next season. It was in this circuit that he made the remarkable record which caused him to be sold for the highest figure ever paid for a minor leaguer.

Eddie Collins is impressing the scribes who are at the Chicago White Sox training camp with the interest he is displaying in his work. Collins is of the type that sticks on the job every minute. There is a certain inspiration always present, and it is having excellent effect on the morale of the squad, says one writer.

For the first time since Comiskey revived the White Sox in 1900 there is no fight on for the second base position. Collins has this cinched. He knows the fact. But that is not keeping him from hustling just as if he suspected somebody of trying to beat him out.

There is a shrewd suspicion in the camp that Collins was in fair shape when he reported. However, he is among the few who do not get out of condition. Others of the same category are Tommy Leach and Rabbit Maranville. They take on very little weight during the off season.

Joe Birmingham, manager of the Naps, thinks Counle Mack made a wise move when he secured Nap Lajoie to plug up the infield gap left by the sale of Eddie Collins. Birmingham declared recently that Lajoie is still a premier ball player, despite his age. "He had a little trouble with his legs last year," said Birmingham. "But, playing between Barry and McInnis this will never be noticed. Larry will be hitting above .300 this year, too, or I miss my guess."

UMPIRE AS DRAWING CARD.

Ryan Goes Back to Texas League Because He is Popular. Did you ever hear of a league hiring an umpire as a drawing card? Well, that's what happened to Gerald Ryan, who used to guess them in the A. A. Gerald used to play ball in the Texas league long ago and made quite a rep. This season he's going back to the Texas league as chief umpire at the highest salary the league ever paid—because they figure Gerald is so well known he'll draw them in.

HERE'S A RACE NOT OF BASEBALL.

Johnny Evers watches with peculiar interest the work of Frank Schulte, his old teammate, for he and Frank are competitors in a race, or, rather, an endurance contest. "Of the old Cub machine Frank Schulte and myself are all that are left in big league baseball," writes Evers, "and Frank has to go some to beat me out. "I don't mean by this that I think Frank is slowing up or going back in any way, because I don't, but I just take this means of challenging him to a race for the honor of being the last member of the greatest baseball machine of all time to pass out from under the big tent."

TRAINING TRIPS ARE BIG FEATURE

Regarded as Prerequisite For Conditioning Ball Players.

THEY ARE QUITE EXPENSIVE

In Old Days Teams' Preliminary Work Was Carried Out on Home Grounds. Clubs Pick Up Some Money in Exhibition Games.

The clubs of the major leagues are now in the south on their annual training trips, which have become a distinct feature of the baseball season. The spring training trip, as at present conducted, is one of the big prerequisites of the ballplayer, who forgets about it, however, when he comes to demand a big increase in his salary. In the old days training trips were unknown. Every team got in its preliminary work as well as it could on its home grounds.

The Boston club, which is situated where the spring climate is apt to be most severe, used to train in a gymnasium all through March, and the players frequently had to go out to the grounds and shovel the snow off the diamond before their first exhibition game with the Harvard university team. Can you imagine the pampered athlete of the present day having a snow shovel thrust into his lily white hands and being told to go out and

When the Giant rookies left the Grand Central station, in New York, for Marlin, Tex., Manager Johnny McGraw was optimistic concerning the outlook for his team this season and just as active as any of the youngsters. He stated that he considered his recruits a most promising lot and that he would pick up several good ones from the number. Photo shows McGraw in the motorman's box pulling the lever as the train was leaving the Grand Central station.

hurl the beautiful off the plot where he was to show his skill in the afternoon?

The expense of a training trip for the ball clubs is very large, but it has become a necessity, and the cost is willingly paid. Some years ago the National league voted at its annual meeting to do away with southern trips, requiring every team to get into shape on its own grounds. This legislation had been passed, when its execution was blocked by Barney Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh club, who had a long term lease on his training camp at Hot Springs, Ark. Mr. Dreyfuss showed that he must pay the rent for these grounds for a number of years and that therefore he should be allowed to send his team down there for its spring training.

The point was yielded, and as none of the other clubs wanted the Pirates to get a start in the race through superior condition in the early season all decided to send their teams south, and the proposed rule was abandoned. Since that time there has never been any thought of forcing teams to train at home.

The southern training trip, though useful and necessary, has become a big expense to the clubs. A few years ago most, if not all, of the expenses of the trip were returned through the proceeds of exhibition games played through the southern cities. But the profit from these games has dwindled to almost nothing, mainly through the fact that the big league managers considered such games solely as training stunts, which, indeed, they were, and often did not risk their best players in March competition in the south. If the weather was unfavorable.

It is impossible to force a manager, who is looking ahead to the championship season, to play all his stars in exhibition games. One of the main reasons that he is in the south is to get a line on his recruits, and the best way to get a line on them is to play them in exhibition contests. The southern fans, however, have become wise to this policy and they do not turn out in large numbers to the exhibition games with the big leaguers.

The result is that the expenses of the training trip now fall almost entirely on the clubs, with almost no return revenue.

SHUGRUE TO STUDY LAW.

Jersey City Lightweight Anxious to Become Member of the Bar.

Professional boxers, as a rule, have one ambition in life, and that is to become champion of their respective classes. That is the one thought they have in mind from the time they don the first pair of boxing gloves, but such is not the case with Joe Shugrue, New Jersey's sensational lightweight. Unlike other stars of the roped arena who have accumulated fortunes in the ring, Shugrue's aim in life is to become a successful member of the bar after he retires from the boxing game. It is the intention of Freddie Welsh, on the other hand, to become a noted physical culture expert, such as William Muldoon or Bill Brown.

Other noted boxers have been successful in other branches of business. Packer McFarland has proved his ability to make a name for himself in the business world already, being a bank director, with large interests in several qualifications absolutely essential for a man to become one of the most successful boxers in the world, and it is the opinion of his legal friends that a fellow like Shugrue also would make a good lawyer. Shugrue has been having trouble with his eyes of late and may be forced to retire.

CHAPTER XVIII. I Traverse the Night.

THE next day I was very busy, preparing for the journey by motor to the small station down the line where I was to meet Mrs. Titus and her sons. It seemed to me that every one who knew anything whatever about the arrangements went out of his way to fill my already rattled brain with advice.

Just before leaving the castle for the ferry trip across the river that evening I was considerably surprised to have at least a dozen brand new trunks delivered at my landing stage. It is needless to say that they turned out to be the property of Mrs. Titus, expressed by grande vitesse from some vague city in the north of Germany. They all bore the name "Smart, J. S. A.," painted in large white letters on each end, and I was given to understand that they belonged to my own dear mother, who at that moment, I am convinced, was sitting down to luncheon in the Adirondacks, provided her habits were as regular as I remembered them to be.

I set forth with Britton at 9 o'clock in a drizzling rain. At half past 11 o'clock we were skidding over the cobblestones of the darkest streets I have ever known, careening like a drunken sailor, but not half as surely, headed for the Staatsbahnhof, to which we had been directed by an object in a raincoat who must have been a policeman, but who looked more like a hydrant. It was pouring pitchforks.

"Britton," said I wearily, "have you ever seen anything like it?"
"Once before, sir," said he. "Niagara falls, sir."

At half past 12 the train from Munich drew up at the station, panted awhile in evident disdain and then moved on. A single passenger alighted—a man with a lasso viol. There was no sign of the Tituses!

We made a careful and extensive search of the station, the platform and even the surrounding neighborhood, but it was quite evident that they had not left the train. Here was a pretty pass! Britton, however, had the rather preposterous idea that they might be another train a little later on. It did not seem at all likely, but we made inquiries of the station agent. To my surprise—and to Britton's infernal British delight—there was a fast train with connections from the north, arriving in half an hour. It was, however, late, owing to the storm.

Just ten minutes before the obliging guard came in and roused us from a mild sleep.
"The train is coming, mein Herr," "Thank goodness!"
"But I neglected to mention that it is an express and never stops here—"
My right hand was still in a bandage, but it was so nearly healed that I could have used it without discomfort—note my ability to drive a motorcar—and it was with the greatest difficulty that I restrained a mad impulse to strike that guard full upon the nose, from which the raindrops coursed in an interrupted descent from the visor of his cap.

The shrill, childish whistle of the locomotive reached us at that instant. A look of wonder sprang into the eyes of the guard.

"It—it is going to stop, mein Herr!" he cried. "It has never stopped before!" He rushed out upon the platform in a great state of agitation, and we trailed along behind him, even more excited than he.

A conductor stepped down from the last coach but one and prepared to assist a passenger to alight. I hastened up to him.

"Permit me," I said, elbowing him aside.

A portly lady squeezed through the vestibule and felt her way carefully down the steps. Behind her was a smallish, bewhiskered man, trying to raise an umbrella inside the narrow corridor, a perfectly impossible feat.

She came down into my arms with the firmness of one who is accustomed

Many Recoveries From Lung Trouble

Eckman's Alternative has restored to health many sufferers from lung trouble. Read what it did in this case:
"Wilmington, Del.,
"In January, 1908, I was taken with hemorrhages of the lungs. My physician, a leading practitioner, said that it was lung trouble. I got very weak. C. A. Lippincott, of Lippincott's Department Store, Wilmington, Del., recommended Eckman's Alternative that had done great good. I began taking it at once. I continued faithfully, using no other remedy, and finally noticed the clearing of the lungs. I now have no trouble with my lungs. I firmly believe Eckman's Alternative saved my life." (Anonymous.)
"SAS, SULLIES,
"Eckman's Alternative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and up-building the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Small size, 25¢ regular size, 50¢. Sold by all drug stores. Write for booklet of recoveries.

to such attentions, and then wheedled instantly upon the fiddle individual on the steps above.

"Quick! My hat! Heaven preserve us, how it rains!" she cried in a deep, wheezy voice and—in German.

"Moth"—I began insinuatingly, but the sacred word died unfinished on my lips. The next instant I was scurrying down the platform to where I saw Britton standing.

"Have you seen them?" I shouted wildly.

"No, sir. Not a sign, sir. Ah, see!" He pointed excitedly down the platform.

"No!" I rapped out. "By no possible stretch of the imagination can that be Mrs. Titus. Come, we must ask the conductor. That woman? Good Lord, Britton, she waddles!"

The large lady and the smallest man passed us on the way to shelter, the latter holding an umbrella over her hat with one hand and juggling a heavy hamper in the other. They were both exclaiming in German. The station guard and the conductor were bowing and scraping in their wake, both carrying boxes and bundles.

No one else had descended from the train. I grabbed the conductor by the arm.

"Any one else getting off here?" I demanded in English and at once repeated it in German.

He shook himself loose, dropped the bags in the shelter of the station house, doffed his cap to the imperious backs of his late passengers, and scuttled back to the car. A moment later the train was under way.

"Can you not see for yourself?" he shouted from the steps as he passed me by.

Once more I swooped down upon the guard. He was stuffing the large German lady into a small, lopsided carriage, the driver of which was taking off his cap and putting it on again after the manner of a mechanical toy.

"Go away," hissed the guard angrily. "This is the mayor and the mayoress. Stand aside! Can't you see?"

"When does the next train get in?" I asked for the third time. He was still bowing after the departing hack.

"Ach, Gott!" he gasped. Collecting his thoughts, he said: "There is no train until 9 o'clock in the morning. Nine, mein Herr."

"Ach, Gott!" groaned I. "Are you sure?"

"Jah! You can go home now and go to bed, sir. There will be no train until 9, and I will not be on duty then Good night."

"I dare say we'd better be starting 'ome, sir," said Britton timidly. "Some things as gone wrong with the plans, I fear. They did not come, sir."

"Do you think I am blind?" I roared.

"Not at all, sir," he said in haste, taking a step or two backward.

By the time we succeeded in starting the engine after cranking for nearly half an hour I was so consumed by wrath over the scurvy trick Mrs. Titus had played upon us that I swore she should not enter my castle if I could prevent it. Moreover, I would take fiendish delight in dumping her car foundered luggage into the Danube. We then had trouble with the lamps. At last we were off, Britton at the wheel. I shall not describe that diabolical trip home. It is only necessary to say that we first lost our way and went ten or twelve kilometers in the wrong direction; then we had a blowout and no quick detachable rim. Subsequently something went wrong with the mud-caked machinery, and my unfortunate valet had to lie on his back in a puddle for half an hour. Eventually we sneaked into the garage with our trem-bling car and quarreled unavailingly with the men who had to wash her.

"Good heavens, Britton!" I exclaimed suddenly.

He looked at me in astonishment. I admit that the ejaculation must have sounded weak and effeminate to him after what had gone before.

"What is it, sir?" he asked at once resuming his status as a servant after a splendid hiatus of five hours or more in which he had enjoyed all of the by-products of equality.

"Poopendyke!" I exclaimed, against "I have just thought of him. The poor devil has been waiting for us three miles up the river since midnight. What do you think of that?"

"No such luck, sir," said he grumpily. "Lock! You heartless man! What do you mean by that?"

"I beg pardon, sir. I mean to say I could sit in the front seat and twiddle my thumbs at the elements, and twist Mr. Poopendyke to keep out of the rain."

What a scene for a farce!

We retraced our steps to the garage where Britton went to the telephone. I stood in the doorway of the building staring gloomily, hollow eyed at the well, at nothing, now that I stop to think of it. The manager of the place, an amiable, jocund descendant of Lazarus, approached me.

"Quite a storm last night, Mr. Schmarck," he said, rubbing his hands on an oil rag. I gruffly agreed with him in a monosyllable. "But it is lovely today, sir. Heavenly, sir."

"Heavenly?" I gasped.

"Ah, but look at the glorious sun!" he cried, waving the oil rag in all directions at once.

The sun! Upon my word, the sun was shining fiercely. I hadn't noticed it before.

"Well, I'm—dashed!" I said, with a silly grin.

"The moon will shine tonight, Mr. Schmarck"—he began insinuatingly.

"Smart, if you please!" I snapped.

"Ah," he sighed, rolling his eyes. "It is fine to be in love."

"A full minute passed before I grasped the meaning of that soft answer, and then it was too late. He had gone about his business without waiting to see whether my wrath had been turned away. I had been joy riding!

The excitement in Britton's usually imperturbable countenance as he came running up to me from the telephone closet prepared me in a way for the startling news that was to come.

"Has anything serious happened?" I cried, my heart sinking a little lower.

"I had Mr. Poopendyke himself on the wire, sir. What do you think, sir?"

A premonition: "She—she has arrived!" I demanded dully.

He nodded. "She 'as, sir. Mrs.—your mother, sir, is in your midst."

The proximity of the inquisitive manager explains this extraordinary remark on the part of my valet. We both gazed at the manager, and he had the delicacy to move away. "She arrived by a special train at 12 last night, sir."

I was speechless. The brilliant sunshine seemed to be turning into somber night before my eyes. Everything was going black.

"She's asleep, he says, and doesn't want to be disturbed till noon, so he says he can't say anything more just now over the telephone because he's afraid of waking 'er." (Britton drops them when excited.)

"He doesn't have to shout so loud that he can be heard on the top floor," said I, still a trifle dazed.

"She 'appens to be sleeping in your bed, sir, he says."

"In my bed? Good heavens, Britton, what's to become of me?"

"Don't take it so 'ard, sir," he made haste to say. "Blatchford 'as fixed a place for you on the couch in your study, sir. It's all very snug, sir."

"But, Britton," I said in horror, "suppose that I should have come home last night. Don't you see?"

"I dare say she 'ad the door locked, sir," he said.

"By special train," I mumbled. A light broke in upon my reviving intellect.

"Why, it was the train that went through at a mile a minute while we were in the coffee house. No wonder we didn't meet her!"

"I shudder to think of what would 'ave 'appened if we had, sir," said he, meaning no doubt to placate me. "Mr. Poopendyke says the countess 'as been up all night worrying about you, sir. She has been distracted. She wanted 'im to go out and search for you at 4 o'clock this morning, but he says he assured 'er you'd turn up all right. He says Mrs.—the elderly lady, begging your pardon, sir—thought she was doing for the best when she took a special. She wanted to save us all the trouble she could. He says she was very much distressed by our failure to 'ave some one meet her with a launch when she got here last night, sir. As it was, she didn't reach the castle until nearly 1, and she looked like a drowned rat when she got there, being hex—exposed to a beastly rain-storm. See wot I mean? She went to bed in a dreadful state, he says, but he thinks she'll be more pleasant before the day is over."

"I burst into a fit of laughter. "Hurrah!" I shouted exultantly. "Well, by Jove, I don't feel half as bad as I did five minutes ago. Come, let us be Gun Has No Recoil.

An officer of the United States navy has invented a gun that fires a six-pound projectile without recoil. This gun, because of the absence of recoil, is well adapted to use on aeroplanes or dirigibles. The gun has both ends open to the atmosphere. The shell has the projectile fitted into one end, and in the other end is a mass of birdshot. The shot is of sufficient weight to furnish the required reaction when the projectile is discharged from the other end of the gun. When the gun is fired the projectile is thrown from the muzzle at a high velocity while the shot is discharged from the breech at low velocity.
