ITALIANS ARE CLOSE TO TRIESTE; RUSSIANS HURL AUSTRIANS BACK

EMMANUEL'S TROOPS ADVANCE RAPIDLY THROUGH MOUNTAIN PASSES INTO AUSTRIA

ALLIES LOSE HEAVILY AT GALIPLI

PLOEKEN FALLS INTO HANDS OF THE ITALIAN FORCES—IS IMPORTANT CENTER

RUSS RETURN BLOW AT GERMAN FORCES

Western Front Lacking in Activity According to Reports—All Interest in Italy's Moves

(By Associated Press.)

London, June 11.—The British observers of the war, forming their opinion on the latest despatches from the Russian front believe that the Austro-German forces have been checked. The Russ have delivered a return blow and a hard one too. They have held the masses of Germans and Austrians and the Germans have been forced back at Zurawana according to the latest despatches, where they have suffered heavy losses. Thus for the moment Lemberg is safe. No where else have the Austrians or Germans made advances except in Bukovina.

News was received yesterday that Russian reinforcements were advancing at one point on the road to Robatyn, but it was hardly expected here that they would achieve such quick results. If the fight is decisive it is the first real clash since the start of the Austrian drive through Galicia.

The Italians are now less than 20 miles of Trieste. On the west the methodical advance of the French seems halted.

Italians Take Ploeken
Innsbruck, June 11. (By courier to Swiss frontier to Geneva)—Italian forces have captured Ploeken in Austrian territory, close to the frontier. The possession of this city is important as it endangers the Austrian communications. Ploeken is 15 miles south of the main road to Laibach and Innsbruck.

The same courier reported that announcements have been made by the Austrians that one of their submarines sank a British cruiser of the Liverpool class 30 miles off Ste. Jean Meduga in the Adriatic sea.

Austrians Lose Heavily
Geneva, June 11.—A despatch to the Tribune says:

"Italian forces began marching against Gorizia on the morning of June 8. When the first troops arrived near the city the Austrian artillery opened with a heavy fire. The Italians moved forward in large masses and their artillery soon opened great gaps in the Austrian defenses. The Austrians lost between eight and ten thousand men.

GERMAN REPORT
Berlin, June 11.—Despatches received here state that in the fighting on the Gallipoli peninsula at Avl Burnu during the night of June 5 and 6 cost the British and French troops 2,900 men, killed. The losses of the British and French during the past week have been enormous.

Italians Through Pass
Udine, June 11.—Italian forces today advanced through Predell pass on the Junction of the Laibach railway at Tarvis which lies 6 miles on the Austrian side of the frontier.

CROPS IN FINE SHAPE, SAYS FAYETTE FARMER

Despite the attacks of several light frosts during the past few weeks, farmers in this section are optimistic as to the character of the coming crops. From the statement of E. A. Laux, Fayette farmer, in the city yesterday afternoon, the crop outlook in that section is regarded as very bright. He says that farm crops of all kinds are looking exceptionally good at this time and that the frosts of the past few weeks have done no damage whatever. A young cherry orchard on the farm of Mr. Laux, of 400 trees, which will commence bearing this summer and he says they are as good as any orchard anywhere. And that is just another way of saying that this locality can produce as good fruit as anywhere.

ZEPPELINS ATTACK AND SINK BRITISH FISHING SMACKS IN NORTH SEA

SIX MORE CRAFT ADDED TO LIST OF UNDERWATER FIGHTER'S VICTIMS SINCE YESTERDAY.

GERMAN SUBMARINES CONTINUE ACTION

(By Associated Press.)

Maas Luis, Holland, June 11.—The British fishing smacks Welfare and Laurestina were attacked and sunk in the North Sea by two Zeppelins. The crew was picked up and landed at this port by Duth steamers.

Scot Steamer Sunk
Cardiff, June 11.—The Glasgow steamer Stackbarrow, 2800 tons was torpedoed without warning yesterday. The crew put off in small boats and were rescued by a passing steamer and landed here.

Russ Steamer Torpedoed
London, June 11.—The Russ bark Thomasina was torpedoed and sunk by a submarine off the southwest coast of Ireland. The crew is now at Queenstown. A submarine also sank the Russian steamer Dania of 1700 tons and the Swedish steamer Otogo, a small vessel. No lives are reported lost.

Believed Out of U. S.
Washington, June 11.—Lieut. Braslar and "certain officers and men" of the crew of the Prinz Eitel Friedrich, German commerce raider, who left the ship before she was formally interned and have not yet returned are believed to have left the country.

Find War Munitions
Naples, June 11.—The German Bayern which was interned here at the start of the war was unloaded today by the Italian government. Hidden under other Merchandise and not mentioned in the ships papers was a number of machine guns and field pieces. The German government has tried hard to secure possession of the cargo.

PLEADS OWN CASE IN HIGH STATE COURT

Lansing, June 11.—The rare spectacle of a life prisoner pleading his own case before the supreme court was enacted here today. George F. Hamilton, serving time in Marquette for assault with intent to commit murder, appeared before the court in answer to a habeas corpus writ, which he himself had asked for.

SENIOR CLASS ACCEPTS DELFT HOSPITALITY

Practically a full membership of the high school senior class were present at the Delft theatre to witness the showing of the "Italian," as the guests of Manager Jacobs. Later the class, teachers and Manager Jacobs adjourned to a local grill where they partook of refreshments. Several short talks, class yells and a general good time mingled to close the evening's event.

SCISSORS THRUSTS ARE FATAL TO WILSON MAN; BODY MASS OF WOUNDS

CHESTER RAYMOND, WILSON YOUNG MAN, ENDS LIFE IN SPECTACULAR SUICIDE ACT

ATTACKED BROTHER WITH BIG KNIFE

STABS SELF OVER HEART TWENTY TIMES WITH SCISSORS—CUTS WRIST AND THROAT WITH BUTCHER KNIFE

MOTHER WITNESSES SON'S INSANE DEED

Eludes Those Who Would Restrain Him and Dashes to Own Room Slitting Throat From Ear to Ear

Frenzied screams of a mad man, cutting and stabbing at his own body in an attempt at suicide with a pair of sewing scissors, woke the mother and members of the Raymond family at Wilson, shortly after midnight, Wednesday. The frightened persons clambering out of bed and into the room from which came the harrowing sounds were brought face to face with one of the most terrible tragedies ever enacted in this section.

What they saw caused their blood to turn to ice in their veins and their eyes to start with horror.

Standing in the center of the room was Chester Raymond, son and brother of those awakened. He was armed with a pair of sewing scissors, secured from his mother's work basket. Repeatedly he struck at his body, inflicting wounds to the number of twenty.

Mother Interfers

The mother, first to the scene, rushed to the side of the young man and succeeded in tearing the instruments from his grasp. Left a moment later when the woman rushed for help which was then coming in the shape of other members of the family, the dejected man escaped from the room and going to the kitchen secured a large butcher knife.

Cutting and slashing at his wrists and arms in an evident effort to sever the arteries there, he was found by a brother who tried to restrain his mad passion. As the brother went towards Raymond, he turned and menaced him with the keen weapon, inflicting several bad cuts on the brother's wrists and arms. Not being able to cope with the situation alone, the brother went to get more help.

Dashes Upstairs

While more assistance was coming, Raymond slipped upstairs, blood spurring from his numerous wounds, and marking his dash with sanguinary spots and streaks.

Once in the room, the insane man deliberately cut his throat three times each slash widening the wound until it reached from ear to ear, practically severing the head. The dead body, wallowing in its gore was found shortly afterwards by the father and others of the family who had gone out for help. Dr. Hutton of Powers was called but his services were not needed, death having followed the cutting.

Mother Collapses

The mother, overcome with the horror she had witnessed collapsed, but today is resigned to the situation. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon with burial at the village cemetery.

One of the oldest and most respected families in Menominee county, the tragedy to the Raymond family is felt keenly throughout the entire district. For some months past the young man has shown tendencies of eccentric nature, but has not been violent. The terrible tragedy has brought the sympathy of the community to the members of the family.

FEAR MONOPOLIES; REFUSE TO ENLIST

London, June 11.—"Am I going to join the army and allow monopolists to grab our food supplies and make it well nigh impossible for my dependents to exist? Is the question that young men ask who have held back from enlisting," declared A. J. Williams, organizer of the National Union of Railwaymen, before a labor conference at Cardiff. To break up the present monopolies, Williams moved resolutions addressed to the government, which were unanimously passed.

The government was called on to assume control of the wheat ships, fix the maximum prices of coal, fix coast shipping rates and control railway freights.

BRYAN PRAISES TONE OF U. S. NEWSPAPERS; AID WILSON, HE SAYS

FORMER SECRETARY SAYS IS GRATEFUL TO NOTE THAT AMERICAN PRESS HAS NOT COLORED AMERICAN NOTE.

SCORES JINGO EDITORS STRONGLY

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, June 11.—Former Secretary Bryan has issued a statement of what he characterizes as a "change of tone" in the American press regarding the American note to Germany.

"The jingo editor has been howling that the matter will be dealt with in great firmness, instead of awaiting for the missive, and colored it to his own purposes and commented upon it in that spirit. He has changed his tone."

"It is splendid to see the papers playing on the friendly and peace making side of the matter and it is grateful that the warring editors are supporting the president in his stand," he said in the statement.

AMERICAN YACHTS ON THE PACIFIC RACE TO HONOLULU

San Francisco, June 11.—A fleet of the fastest American yachts on the Pacific is due to sail out of San Francisco harbor tomorrow and race to Honolulu. A return race will run from Honolulu to San Francisco, starting one week after the last vessel reaches Hawaii.

For several days the waters outside the Golden Gate have been alive with craft of all sizes and rigs, making trial spins in preparation for the event. The larger yachts are to be handicapped according to the universal rules, so that the little fellows may have an even chance.

The first boat into Honolulu harbor will receive a trophy valued at $500, and the second a cup worth $250. There are $2000 worth of prizes.

One of the fastest entrants is the Hawaii, flying the pennant of Royal Hawaiian Yacht Club. C. E. Miller's sloop Athens, one of the first to pass through the Panama canal, also is entered. Other yachts are entered representing the San Francisco Yacht Club, the South Coast Yacht Club, and yachting associations on Puget Sound.

ESCANABA WILL MEET FAST MARINETTE TEAM IN TWO GAME SERIES

MARINETTE ATHLETIC CLUB SQUAD COMES HERE TOMORROW FOR FIRST OF TWO GAMES—BIG GAME SUNDAY

NEW LOCAL STAR UNCOVERED HERE

Wisconsin will invade Michigan tomorrow afternoon for the first of a two game series of the national pastime. The opponents of the Escanaba aggregation will be the fast Marinette Athletic club team, with A. L. Cullen, manager and peppery first sack guard. Cullen is a former big leaguer.

The Escanaba management has unearthed a new luminary in the local baseball world in the person of Con McCauley, backstop and outer garden artist. The stocky lad may get into the game tomorrow or Sunday in the outfield. His main prerequisite, however, is ability to hammer the horsehide. Oshkosh was shut out by this same Marinette outfit which is touted as being "there" with the real baseball stuff. Both Saturday and Sunday's games at South Park will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

ROSE FESTIVAL AT PORTLAND
Portland, Ore., June 11.—Ten thousand and people, 200 floats, 50 marching organizations in brilliant uniforms, thirty bands participated in the fraternal military and industrial parade held in connection with the annual rose festival.

Tonight the festa will be brought to a close with an electrical pageant, in which 20 floats, showing the agricultural greatness of Oregon, will pass in review over the city's business streets.

It was estimated today that 125,000 visitors were in town during the celebration attending the rose festival, which began Wednesday.

MINNESOTA'S SETTLERS LAND
Bemidji, Minn., June 11.—In 1917 there will not be a single acre of northern Minnesota land available to the settler, state land officers said here today. There are now over 1,000,000 acres of this land available. At a recent delinquent tax sale, there was a demand for at least 40,000 acres although there was only 375 claims available. Drainage and boosting by the state department of immigration are believed to be the causes for the heavy demand.

BREAK BETWEEN VILLA AND ANGELES-REPORT

Galveston, June 11.—Reports of difficulties arising between Villa and general Angeles were received here today. Each accuses the other of cowardice in ordering a retreat in a recent fight. The rupture may result in open hostilities between the two factional leaders.

Escanaba school children are in their glory today. Thousands of the small folks crowded into South Park long before ten o'clock this morning in anticipation of the events of the day.

With an early morning promise of the weather man that bright and warm weather would be the order of the day, the success of the occasion was assured. A mass of animated humanity, small of size but lusty of lung and limb, were everywhere. Ribbons of all colors, banners of the various schools flaunted in the brisk breeze that was blowing lending added charm to the inspiring scene.

Bar School Leads
Up to a late hour this afternoon students of the Barr school, who have been consistently winning points in the contests of skill and speed, were leading the big field of near a thousand competitors in the number of points earned. Several firsts and enough seconds and third places to give them a comfortable advantage during the day's events.

Results this Morning
The following list of events was run off this morning, amid great enthusiasm and with a great deal of rivalry.

SEARS STRONG FOR THE CONSERVATORY PLAYERS

Says Company "Struck Twelve" Every Time He Heard Them—Will Appear on Opening Day and Evening of Chautauqua.

The noted chautauqua and lyceum lecturer, H. W. Sears, familiarly termed "Taffy" Sears by the chautauqua fraternity, made the following statement the other day concerning the Conservatory Players, who will appear afternoon and night on the opening day of the Escanaba Chautauqua:

"I had the very great pleasure of hearing the Conservatory Players for ten days in Pennsylvania this winter, and to say they pleased their audiences does not begin to express it. They struck twelve everywhere I heard them. I never met a more refined and a more genial bunch in my life. They give a sketch that surpasses anything I have ever seen or heard on the chautauqua platform. They will please any audience anywhere in the United States. They are perfect gentlemen and ladies and they will please you."

The Conservatory Players will appear in Escanaba afternoon and night on the opening day of the chautauqua.

CHICAGO'S MAYOR FAVORS BOXING

Chicago, June 11.—The long cherished dream of Chicago sportdom—boxing—has 225 pounds of solid muscled support in the person of William Hale Thompson, Chicago's new mayor. Himself a once athlete and lover of clean sports of all kinds, he makes no bones about stating his stand.

"I am for boxing, just the same as I am for anything that requires training and clean living," he said, when approached on the matter. "Boxing has been much abused, some of it deserved and some not, but at the bottom, the game is a fine one. I used to box after a fashion, and I must confess I still like to see an air of good, clean boys in a lively tilt.

"Of course, the game must be regulated. I think the laws govern it in New York and Wisconsin excellent and am much in favor of a similar one for Illinois.

"I am working for a greater Chicago. And I realize that Chicago could become one of the greatest boxing centers in the country if the game were allowed here, under proper regulation.

"Don't think for a minute that I stand for the 'low-brow' element of boxing, but boxing conducted in a clean manner is one of the grandest sports in the world and I'm for it."

MINERAL LAND LITIGATION IS FINALLY ENDED

A case involving the title to an undivided three sixths interest in a mining estate of 1,357 acres in Crystal Falls and Mastodon townships, of Iron county, in which the late Miss Vilna B. McDonald was the defendant, and F. I. Carpenter the plaintiff has been settled out of court, according to the Diamond Drill. The case has been in the U. S. courts for the past several years.

Lands included in the action are: a fee of the Carpenter mine operated by the Hollister company and the Neely property under lease to the Cleveland Cliffs company. The close of the action affirms Carpenter's title to the land in question.

HAWAIIAN FESTIVITIES AT THE EXPOSITION

San Francisco, June 11.—Former Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii and her royal suite are here today to participate in the Hawaiian festivities at the Panama-Pacific exposition in honor of the late King Kamahameha, mighty warrior. Kanaka is the popular language at the fair grounds. Sandwich Islanders, clad in coral trap rings, linger in palm-roofed arbors and vine-clad retreats, singing the plaintive melodies of the romantic tropics to the accompaniment of wiled ukuleles.

All visitors wore the beautiful wreaths woven by our dusky citizens of the Pacific Isles. The queen herself, who wrote Aloha, joined in the singing of the sad chorus. Hula-hula maidens made merry in the shadows of the Hawaiian pavilion as night fell.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—The yacht Lola narrowly escapes wreck in Leghorn harbor. Gordon Gregg, locum tenens for the British consul, is called upon by Hornby, the Lola's owner, and dines aboard with him and his friend Hynton Chater.

CHAPTER II—Gregg visits Capt. Jack Durnford of the marines aboard his vessel, and is surprised to learn that Durnford knows, but will not reveal, the mystery of the Lola.

CHAPTER III.

The House "Over the Water."

I had idled away a pleasant month up in Boston, and from there had gone north to the Lakes, and it was one hot evening in mid-August that I found myself again in London, crossing St. James' square from the Sports club.

"Why, Ollinto!" I exclaimed, surprised, as I halted. "You—in London—eh? Well, and how are you getting on?"

"Most excellently, signore," he answered in broken English, smiling. "But it is also pleasant for me to see my generous padrone again. What fortune it is that I should pass here at this very moment!"

"Where are you working?" I inquired. "At the Restaurant Milona, in Oxford street—only a small place, but we gain discreetly, so I must not complain. I live over in Lambeth, and am on my way home."

When we halted before the National gallery prior to parting, I made some inquiries regarding Armida, the black-eyed, good-looking housemaid whom he had married.

"Ah, signore!" he responded in a voice choked with emotion, dropping into Italian. "It is the one great sorrow of my life. I work hard from early morning until late at night, but what is the use when I see my poor wife gradually fading away before my very eyes? The doctor says that she cannot possibly live through the next winter. Ah! how delighted the poor girl would be if she could see the padrone again!"

"I felt sorry for him. Armida had been a good servant, and had served me well for nearly three years. Old Rosina, my housekeeper, had often regretted that she had been compelled to leave to attend to her aged mother. The latter, he told me, had died, and afterwards he had married her. He asked so wistfully that his wife might see me once more that, having nothing very particular to do that evening, and feeling a deep sympathy for the poor fellow in his trouble, I resolved to accompany him to his house and see whether I could not, in some slight manner, render him a little help.

"He thanked me profusely when I consented to go with him. "Ah, signor padrone!" he said gratefully, "she will be so delighted. It is so very good of you."

We hailed a hansom and drove across Westminster bridge to the address he gave—a gloomy back street off the York road, one of those narrow, grimy thoroughfares into which the sun never shines.

A low-looking, evil-faced fellow opened the door to us and growled acquaintance with Ollinto, who, striking a match, ascended the worn, carpetless stairs before me, apologizing for passing before me, and saying in Italian: "We live at the top, signore, because it is cheaper and the air is better."

"Quite right," I said. "Quite right. Go on." And I thought I heard my cab driving away.

It was a gloomy, forbidding, unlighted place into which I would certainly have hesitated to enter had not my companion been my trusted servant, but contrary to my expectations, the sitting-room we entered on the top floor was quite comfortably furnished, clean and respectable, even though traces of poverty were apparent. A cheap lamp was burning upon the table, but the apartment was unoccupied.

Fighting Tuberculosis. If there is one disease above other where medicines are futile and recovery depends upon leaving the body free to fight its own grim battle with death, it is tuberculosis. Good food, good air, sane wholesome living, are the specifics which science and common sense alike have discovered.

Ollinto, in surprise, passed into the adjoining room, returning a moment later, exclaiming: "Armida must have gone out to get something. Or perhaps she is with the people, a compositor and his wife, who live on the floor below. They are very good to her. I'll go and find her. Accommodate yourself with a chair, signore." And he drew the best chair forward for me, and dusted it with his handkerchief.

Ollinto returned in a few moments, saying that his wife had evidently gone to do some shopping in the Lower Marsh.

"I hope you are not pressed for time, signore?" he said apologetically. "But, of course, the poor girl does not know the surprise awaiting her. She will surely not be long."

"I have nothing to offer you, signor padrone," he said, with a laugh. "I did not expect a visitor, you know."

"No, no, Ollinto. I've only just had dinner. But tell me how you have fared since you left me. "I had many ups and downs before I found myself here in London. The sea did not suit me—neither did the work. I managed to work my way from Genoa to London. My first place was scullion in a restaurant in Tottenham Court road. Afterwards I went to the Milano, and I hope to get into one of the big hotels very soon—or perhaps the grill-room at the Carlton."

"I'll see what I can do for you," I said. "I know several hotel managers who might have a vacancy."

"Ah, signore!" he cried, filled with gratification. "If you only would! A word from you would secure me a good position. I can work, that you know—and I do work. I will work—for her sake."

"Yes," he said in a hoarse voice, his manner suddenly changing. "You have tonight shown me, signore, that you are my friend, and I will, in return, show you that I am yours."

"I don't understand," I said, feeling my handy Colt in my back pocket to make sure it was there.

"Forget what I have said—all that I have told you tonight, sir," he said. "I have not explained the whole truth. You are in peril—in deadly peril!"

"How?" I exclaimed breathlessly, surprised at his extraordinary change of manner and his evident apprehension lest something should befall me.

"Wait, and you shall see," he whispered. "But first tell me, signore, that you will forgive me for the part I have played in this dastardly affair. I, like yourself, fell innocently into the hands of your enemies."

"My enemies! Who are they?" "They are unknown, and for the present must remain so. But if you doubt your peril, watch—and taking the rusty fire-tongs from the grate he carefully placed them on end in front of the deep old armchair in which I had sat, and then allowed them to fall against the edge of the seat, springing quickly back as he did so.

In an instant a bright blue flash shot through the place, and the iron fell aside, fused and twisted out of all recognition.

I stood aghast, utterly unable for the moment to sufficiently realize how narrowly I had escaped death.

"Look! See here, behind!" cried the Italian, directing my attention to the back legs of the chair, where, on bending with the lamp, I saw, to my surprise, that two wires were connected, and ran along the floor and out of the window, while concealed beneath the ragged carpet, in front of the chair, was a thin plate of steel, whereon my feet had rested.

Those who had so ingeniously enticed me to that gloomy house of death had connected up the overhead electric light main with that innocent looking chair, and from some unseen point had been able to switch on a current of sufficient voltage to kill fifty men.

I stood stock-still, not daring to move lest I might come into contact with some hidden wire, the slightest touch of which must bring instant death upon me.

"Your enemies prepared this terrible trap for you," declared the man who was once my trusted servant. "When I entered into the affair I was not aware that it was to be fatal. They gave me no inkling of their dastardly intention. But there is no time to admit of explanations now, signore."

In an instant a Bright Blue Flash Shot Through the Place.

added breathlessly, in a low, dramatic voice. "Say that you will not prejudice me," he pleaded earnestly.

"I will not prejudice you until I've heard your explanation," I said. "I certainly owe my life to you tonight."

"Then quick! Fly from this house this instant. If you are stopped, then use your revolver. Don't hesitate. In a moment they will be here upon you."

"But who are they, Ollinto? You must tell me," I cried in desperation. "Die! Go! Go!" he cried, pushing me violently towards the door. "Fly, or we shall both die—both of us! Run downstairs. I must make feat of dashing after you."

I turned, and seeing his desperate eagerness, precipitately fled, while he ran down behind me, uttering fierce imprecations in Italian, as though I had escaped him.

A man in the narrow dark passage attempted to trip me up as I ran, but I fired point blank at him, and gaining the door unlocked it, and an instant later found myself out in the street.

It was the narrowest escape from death that I had ever had in all my life—surely the strangest and most remarkable adventure. What, I wondered, did it mean?

Next morning I searched up and down Oxford street for the Restaurant Milano, but could not find it. I asked shopkeepers, postmen and policemen; I examined the London directory at the bar of the Oxford Music hall, and made every inquiry possible. But all was to no purpose. No one knew of such a place. There were restaurants in plenty in Oxford street, from the Frascati down to the humble coffee-shop, but nobody had ever heard of the "Milano."

I drove over to Lambeth and wandered through the maze of mean streets of the York road, yet for the life of me I could not decide into which house I had been taken. There were a dozen which seemed to me that they might be the identical house from which I had so narrowly escaped with my life.

Gradually it became impressed upon me that my ex-servant had somehow gained knowledge that I was in London, that he had watched my exit from the club, and that all his pitiful story regarding Armida was false. He was the envoy of my unknown enemies, who had so ingeniously and so relentlessly plotted my destruction. My unknown enemies had secured the services of Ollinto in their dastardly plot to kill me. With what motive?

"That day I did my business in the city with a distrust of everyone, not knowing whether I was not followed or whether those who sought my life were not plotting some other equally ingenious move whereby I might go innocently to my death. I endeavored to discover Ollinto by every possible means during those stifling days that followed. The heat of London was, to me, more oppressive than the fiery sunshine of the old-world Tuscany, and everyone who could be out of town had left for the country or the sea.

Defeated in every inquiry, and my business at last concluded in London, I went up to Dumfries on a duty visit which I performed to my uncle, Sir George Little. Each time I returned from abroad I was always a welcome guest at Greenlaw, and this occasion proved no exception, for the country houses of Dumfries are always gay in August in prospect of the shooting.

"Some new people have taken Ranoch castle. Rather nice they seem," remarked my aunt as we were sitting together at luncheon the day after my arrival. "Their name is Leithcourt, and they've asked me to drive you over there to tennis this afternoon."

"I'm not much of a player, you know, aunt. In Italy we don't believe in athletics. But if it's out of politeness, of course, I'll go."

"Very well," she said. "Then I'll order the victoria for three."

"There are several nice girls there, Gordon," remarked my uncle mischievously. "You have a good time, so don't think you are going to be bored."

"No fear of that," was my answer. And at three o'clock Sir George, his wife, and myself set out for that fine old historic castle that stands high on the Bognie. When we drove into the grounds we found a gay party in summer toilettes assembled on the ancient bowling green, now transformed into a modern tennis lawn.

tall, thin, gray-headed man, both came forward to greet us. They were a merry crowd. The Leithcourts were entertaining a large house party, and their hospitality was on a scale quite in keeping with the fine old place they rented.

Tea was served on the lawn by the footmen, and, tired of the game, I found myself with Muriel Leithcourt, a bright, dark-eyed girl with tightly-bound hair, and wearing a cotton blouse and flannel tennis skirt.

"I know Italy slightly," she said. "I was in Florence and Naples with mother last season."

"We are awfully glad to be up here," my pretty companion was saying. "We had such a busy season in London." And then she went on to describe the court ball, and two or three of the most notable functions about which I had read in my English paper beside the Mediterranean.

She attracted me on account of her bright vivacity, quick wit and keen sense of humor, her gossip interested me, and as the golden sunset flooded the handsome old room I sat listening to her, inwardly admiring her innate grace and handsome countenance.

I had no idea who or what her father was—whether a wealthy manufacturer, like so many who take expensive shortcuts and give big entertainments in order to edge their way into society by its back door, or whether he was a gentleman of means and of good family. I rather guessed the latter, from his gentlemanly bearing and polished manner. His appearance, tall and erect, was that of a retired officer, and his clean-cut face was one of marked distinction.

was telling my pretty companion something of my own life, how, because I loved Italy so well, I lived in Tuscany in preference to living in England, and how each year I came home for a month or two to visit my relations and to keep in touch with things.

Suddenly she said: "I was once in Leghorn for a few hours. We were yachting in the Mediterranean. I love the sea—and yachting is such awfully good fun, if you only get decent weather."

The mention of yachting brought back to my mind the visit of the Lola and its mysterious sequel.

"Your father has a yacht, then?" I remarked, with a little concern as I could.

"Yes. The Iris. My uncle is cruising on her up the Norwegian Fjords. For us it is a change to be here, because we are so often afloat."

"So you must have made many long voyages, and seen many odd corners of the world, Miss Leithcourt?" I remarked, my interest in her increasing, for she seemed so extremely intelligent and well informed.

"Oh, yes. We've been to Mexico, and to Panama, besides Morocco, Egypt and the west coast of Africa."

"And you've actually landed at Leghorn!" I remarked.

"Yes, but we didn't stay there more than an hour—to send a telegram. I think it was. Father said there was nothing to see there. He and I went ashore, and I must say I was rather disappointed."

Human life is the same everywhere. If we could but get at the truth, we should find that all the tragedy and comedy of Shakespeare have been reproduced in this little village. GOOD WORDS FOR THE SPARROW.

At one time it looked as if the common sparrow had "no friends at all," though he has contrived to prosper and increase his tribe in the face of all opposition. Just now, however, the sparrow is finding some defenders. There is a law in Michigan which provides for a bounty of two cents a head for sparrows during the months of December, January and February. Some of the women's clubs in that state are petitioning the legislature to repeal the law on the ground that the birds are useful as insect destroyers. Some recent investigations of the biological survey have shown up the sparrow in a more favorable light. In a report based on observations during the years 1911 and 1912 it is estimated that one brood of young sparrows can destroy at least 2,000 alfalfa weevil in a day. Further favorable testimony is given by Prof. R. J. De Loach of the Georgia agricultural experiment station. Professor De Loach says that in 1905, at Statesboro, Ga., he witnessed the spectacle of about 1,000 sparrows attacking a field of German millet which had been invaded by several million of the army worm caterpillars. "In about forty-eight hours these little birds had completely cleaned the millet patch of the worms, to the relief of the owners of the adjoining farms."

In the last five years the caving in of mines has caused the death of over 7,000 men in the United States. During the same period it is estimated 3,500 were killed through lack of proper safety appliances. To this list of deaths must be added many thousands whose health has been wrecked through bad ventilation, the use of improved explosives and like causes. These are among the sacrifices exacted by industry in times of peace. The horror of war impresses us because it is dramatized and condensed into a comparatively brief period of time, but the horrors of peace we accept with the indifference of familiarity, and yet in their unbroken continuance and cumulative effect they far outmeasure war's tax upon humanity.

Iceland, now demanding independence, was uninhabited until the middle of the ninth century. It was first discovered by a little company of Irish monks, who had fled their own land to escape the ravages of the pagan Norsemen. They built themselves a home in the new land, and seemingly intended to stay there, when, after a few years, the Norsemen also discovered Iceland and the monks fled back to Ireland. Not a few Irish and Scotch emigrants, however, found their way to Iceland in later times.

To bring up a child right you will have to bring up its parents right. A stream doesn't rise above its source. Many parents go waddling through the world as if they did not amount to much, but they do—they determine the character of their child. Sometimes a child rises above its origin, but that comes because it has fallen into environment that helps it upward and onward. The greatest circumstance in education is environment. Some parents don't seem to care a snap for it.—Ohio State Journal.

Doctor Montessori, the famous educator, says she can make children adore the multiplication tables. Those who know the vast chasm yawning between juvenility and mathematics are curiously watching to see how she is going to square it out.

GERARD PRESENTS NOTE

Principles Not Altered

With regard to the sinking of the steamer Falaba, by which an American citizen lost his life, the government of the United States is surprised to find the Imperial German government is contending that an effort on part of a merchantman to escape capture and secure assistance, alters the obligation of the officer seeking to make the capture in respect of the safety of the lives of those on board the merchantman, although the vessel had ceased her attempt to escape when torpedoed. These are not circumstances. They have been in the minds of Statesmen and of international jurists throughout the development of Naval warfare, and the Government of the United States does not understand that they have ever been held to alter the principles of humanity upon which it has insisted. Nothing but actual, forcible resistance or continued efforts to escape by flight, when ordered to stop for the purpose of a visit on the part of the merchantman, has ever been held to forfeit the lives of her passengers or crew. The Government of the United States, however, does not understand that the Imperial German government is seeking in this case to relieve itself of liability, but only intends to set forth the circumstances which led the commander of the submarine to allow himself to be hurried into the course which he took.

Lusitania Not Armed

"Your excellency's note, in discussing the loss of American lives resulting from the sinking of the steamship Lusitania, adverts at some length to certain information which the Imperial German government has received with regard to the character and outfit of that vessel, and your excellency expresses the fear that this information may not have been brought to the attention of the Government of the United States. It is stated in the note that the Lusitania was undoubtedly equipped with masked guns, supplied with trained gunners and special ammunition, transporting troops from Canada, carrying a cargo not permitted under the laws of the United States to a vessel also carrying passengers, and serving, in virtual effect, as an auxiliary to the naval forces of Great Britain. Fortunately these are matters concerning which the government of the United States is in a position to give the Imperial German government official information. Of the facts alleged in your Excellency's note, if true, the government of the United States would have been bound to take official cognizance in performing its recognized duty as a neutral power and in enforcing its national laws. It was its duty to see to it that the Lusitania was not armed for offensive action, that she was not serving as a transport, that she did not carry a cargo prohibited by the statutes of the United States and that if in fact she was a naval vessel of Great Britain, she should not receive clearances as a merchantman; and it performed that duty and enforced its statutes with scrupulous vigilance through its regularly constituted officials. It is able, therefore, to assure the Imperial German government that it has been misinformed.

"If the Imperial German government should deem itself to be in possession of convincing evidence that the officials of the government of the United States did not perform these duties with thoroughness, the Government of the United States sincerely hopes that it will submit that evidence for consideration.

"Whatever may be the contentions of the Imperial German government regarding the carriage of contraband of war on board the Lusitania or regarding the explosion of that material by the torpedo, it need only be said that in the view of this government, these contentions are irrelevant to the question of legality of the methods used by the German naval authorities in sinking the vessel.

Humanity Involved

"But the sinking of passenger ships involves principles of humanity which throw into the background any special circumstances of detail that may be thought to affect the cases, the principles of which lift it, as the Imperial German government will no doubt be quick to recognize and acknowledge, out of the class of ordinary subjects of diplomatic discussion or of international controversy. Whatever be the other facts regarding the Lusitania, the principal fact is that a great steamer, primarily and chiefly a conveyance for passengers, and carrying more than a thousand souls who had no part or lot in the conduct of war, was torpedoed and sunk without so much as a challenge or a warning, and that men, women and children were sent to their death in circumstances unparalleled in modern warfare. The fact that more than 100 American citizens were among those who perished, made it the duty of the government of the United States to speak of these things and once more with solemn emphasis, to call the attention of Imperial German government to the grave responsibility which the Government of the United States conceives that it has incurred in this tragic occurrence, and to the indisputable principle upon which that responsibility rests.

Rights of Person Demanded

"The Government of the United States is contending for something much greater than mere rights of property or privileges of commerce. It is contending for nothing less high and sacred than the rights of humanity, which every government honors itself in respecting and which no government is justified in resigning on behalf of those under its care and authority. Only her actual resistance to capture or refusal to stop when ordered to do so for purpose of visit could have afforded the commander of the submarine any justification for so much as putting the lives of those on board the ship in jeopardy. This principle, the Government of the United States understands the explicit instructions issued on August 3, 1914, by the Imperial German admiralty to its commanders at sea to have recognized and embodied, as do the naval codes of all other nations, and upon it every traveler and seaman has a right to depend. It is upon this principle of humanity as well as upon the law founded upon this principle that the United States must stand.

"The government of the United States is happy to observe that your excellency's note closes with the intimation that the Imperial German Government is willing now, as before, to accept the good offices of the United States in an attempt to come to an understanding with the Government of Great Britain by which the character and conditions of the war upon these may be changed. The government of the United States would consider it a privilege thus to serve its friends and the world. It stands ready at any time to convey to either Government any intimation or suggestion the other may be willing to have it convey and cordially invites the Imperial German Government to make use of its services in this way at its convenience. The whole world is concerned in anything that may bring about even a partial accommodation of interests or in any way mitigate the terrors of the present distressing conflict.
Looks For Vindication
"In the meantime, whatever arrangement may happily be made between the parties to the war, and whatever may be in the opinion of the Imperial German Government have been the provocation or the circumstantial justification for the past acts of its commanders at sea, the Government of the United States confidently looks to see the justice and humanity of the Government of Germany vindicated in all cases where Americans have been wronged on their rights as neutrals invaded.
"The Government of the United States, therefore, very earnestly and very solemnly renounces presentations of its note transmitted to the Imperial German Government on the fifteenth of May, and relies in these representations upon the principles of humanity, the universally recognized understanding of the international law, and the ancient friendship of the German nation.
Admit No War Zone
"The Government of the United States cannot admit that the proclamation of a war zone from which neutral ships have been warned to keep away may be made to operate as in any degree an abbreviation of the rights either of American shipmasters or of American citizens bound on lawful errands as passengers on merchant ships of belligerent nationality. It does not understand the Imperial German Government to question those rights. It understands it, also to accept as established beyond question, the principle that lives of non-combatants can not lawfully or rightfully be put in jeopardy by the capture or destruction of any unresisting merchantman, and to recognize the obligation to take sufficient precautions to ascertain whether a suspected merchantman is in fact of belligerent nationality or is in fact carrying contraband of war under a neutral flag. The Government of the United States therefore deems it reasonable to expect that the Imperial German Government will adopt the measures necessary to put these principles into practice in respect of safe guarding of American lives and American ships and asks for assurances that this will be done.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY WILL MAKE GASOLINE "HORSE" THIS FALL

Only it Will be Able to Do The Work of Six Ordinary Farm Horses Under all Conditions

PRICE TO BE ABOUT TWO HUNDRED

The Ford Motor Company will place on the market next fall a motor tractor for farm usage which it hopes to list at $200. It may be a little more, but the company expects that it will be $200.

During the last three or four months, severe tests were made in a secluded spot with the first tractor and these trials gave the utmost satisfaction to the officials. The tests were made under all kinds of soil and weather conditions, in hard ground and deep mud. Just as with the Ford passenger cars, the principal aim of the company was to bring out a tractor, the price of which would be within the reach of almost any man of moderate means.

All the details are not yet available, but the tractor will have much of the familiar Ford car appearance. It will have the same motor, front axle and radiator, but a much stronger and shorter frame. Above the motor, supported by strong arms, will be carried two large water tanks. The rear wheels will be twelve inches wide and with flanges and spikes padded. The weight now is 1,600 pounds, but it is expected that this will be reduced to 1,500 pounds. The tractor will be able to do easily the work of six horses, and it is expected that it will revolutionize farming methods, just as the assenger car has so changed traveling on the road.

CITRUS GROWERS DISCUSS TRANSPORTATION PROBLEMS
Orlando, Fla., June 11.—The annual meeting of the State Citrus Growers Association was held here today. Transportation on problems and community marketing were the principal topics for discussion.

LIVERPOOL FACES A SHIPPING LOSS

Manchester, England, June 11.—Owing to pressure to secure discharging facilities at Liverpool, several cotton firms have been approached by owners of shipping arriving in Liverpool to divert their boats to Manchester. A trial was made last week with the Norman Monarch from New Orleans with 5,368 bales for Liverpool and 4,773 bales for Manchester, the steamer coming up the canal direct and discharging the whole of the cargo here. Liverpool authorities now fear this arrangement will be so advantageous that other shippers will follow suit and use Manchester more freely thereby reducing Liverpool's income from dock dues, wharfage and ship stores.

GERMAN WORKMAN SETS LABOR RECORD

Amsterdam, June 11.—A workman employed in the manufacture of ammunition for the German army at Dusseldorf has achieved the record of an average 17-hour day. He put in 450 hours during the past month, or a daily average of 17 hours for 26 days. This is probably a world's record. The man's wages were about 18 cents an hour, and his total earnings for the month reached $87.50. His normal piece-time wage is slightly under $2 a day of ten hours.

CITIZENS OF NATIONS AT WAR INVOLVED IN NUMEROUS LAWSUITS

Berlin, June 11.—Numerous legal actions against citizens of countries at war with Germany continue to occupy the attention of the local courts, notwithstanding that the war now is almost ten months old. Many of the suits are for rent on offices contracted for long before hostilities commenced, or on other contracts that, quite naturally, have not been carried out, but occasionally a humorous action bobs up.

Thus, in Berlin recently, suit was brought against George Devillers, a French major of reserves, by his one-time servant girl in Schoenberg, a Berlin suburb. She alleges that Major Devillers was so in error as to the probable length of hostilities that he gave her 200 marks and told her to make a visit to her family and then come back into his service—which he estimated would be within a few weeks.

Patently the maid has waited ten months, seeking no other position in the meantime. At last she is tired of further delay, and asks the court to award her 312 marks from the major, on the ground that he has paid her no wages, yet has retained her in his service, and thus kept her from earning money elsewhere.

OLD CORRESPONDENCE OF KING GEORGE III BE SOLD AT AUCTION

London, June 11.—A remarkable collection of autograph letters and papers, including over a hundred personal letters written by King George III, is to be placed on the auction block here next month, owing to the disposal of the Chislehurst estates of the ancient Marsham-Townshend family. The old mansion of Frogna is widely known as the residence of Thomas Townshend, who held cabinet rank at the time when England was just emerging from the revolutionary war with the American colonies, now the United States. Townshend was in daily touch with the king and the leading men of the time, and his correspondence is full of references to the American situation.

The letters sent to him by George III give many evidences of the strong personal character which the king took small pains to conceal. In one letter, for example, the king indicates his views as to recognizing the independence of the United States. He writes:

"Mr. Townshend may send the messenger to Paris with the draft of the preliminary articles and the despatches as soon as they are ready without waiting for my seeing the letter. He cannot be surprised at my not being over anxious for the perusal of them, as parliament, having to my astonishment come into the ideas of granting separation to North America has disabled me from longer defending the just rights of this kingdom. But I certainly disclaim thinking myself answerable for any evils that may arise from the adoption of this measure, not conviction, has made me subscribe to it."

Malden, Mass., is to have a preacher for chief of police.

St. Louis is chasing out fake charity organizations and solicitors.
