Russ Claim Successes

Petrograd, June 16.—On the Dnieper, Sunday we delivered a successful counter attack on the left bank of the Testinaitza and the Stry rivers. Here we made 1200 of the enemy prisoners, including 29 officers and seven machine guns. The same day the Germans attacked in the sector south of here, taking the village of Roguzhno. At dawn of the day following we delivered another attack and captured Roguzhno and Jouravkoff. We also secured a gun with equipment and the artillerymen. In the engagement the Germans hoisted a white flag and then opened fire on the Russ. They were bayoneted by our troops. Between Bedleter and Pruth in the region of Czernowicz we have withdrawn behind our front.

The first that was known of the order came when the Kaiser's statement was posted alongside the names of the twenty condemned to die.

(By Associated Press.)

London, June 16.—The inquiry into the sinking of the Lusitania was resumed today with the examination of Alfred Booth of the Cunard line. Questions as to why the Lusitania was economizing by using but 19 of her 25 boilers brought the answer that there was no difference between 21 and 25 knots as far as a submarine was concerned and that a speed of between 18 and 21 knots was believed to be safe as no vessel had been struck by a torpedo before while moving at that speed. Other questions of a technical nature were also asked.

Officials of the traction companies will select an arbitrator today it is announced. Leader Mahon may be named to represent the strikers. The selection of Mayor Thompson as arbitrator came after a 15 hour conference which ended yesterday afternoon.

The first surface car to run since the strike was declared was greeted with cheers while the first of the elevated lines to get into action bore great placards with the inscription "This is a union car."

Motorman Cope and Conductor Spencer, the one available conductor when the train was made up piloted the cars. When passengers boarded the car Spencer grinned at them and displayed his union pin.

Chicago, June 16.—The formal agreement of the prices was signed this afternoon. The company conceded in advance the agreement was for two years and the practice of hiring men for single trips during the rush hour will be discontinued. All other points at issue will be arbitrated. It is almost certain that Kickham Scanlon, of the Cook county bar, will be on the bench.

Simultaneously with this came another story that Meyer had been in the United States and had sailed on the same ship that carried Bernhardt to Copenhagen, traveling incognito. This is also being looked into.

FRIENDS FOOLED; TWO WEDDINGS HELD TODAY

GLADSTONE YOUNG PEOPLE LEAVE HOMES FOR WORK—FAIL TO SHOW UP—GET LICENSES

MARRIED HERE AT NOON; LEAVE CITY

Members of Family Waited Luncheon But Young People Failed to Return—Well Known in Gladstone

Cupid put over one of the best of his many sly tricks on parents and friends of stricken young people, today, when he directed the arrangements and completing of a double wedding and elopement in which four well known Gladstone young people are the principals.

Roy Druding, son of Gladstone parents and Miss Lena Bovin, also of the Upper Bay city came to Escanaba this morning. They were accompanied by two friends, Herbert MacDonald and Miss Hazel Druding. The quartet left their homes in Gladstone early, ostensibly for their places of employment. However, they failed to show up there and shortly before noon today a license was issued to Druding and Miss Bovin. Incidentally a license was also issued to MacDonald and Miss Druding.

Suspecting something of the sort, members of the Druding family investigated and discovered the issuance of the licenses. It is presumed that both young couples are now happily wed and the fact that have not yet returned to their homes is taken as an indication of an elopement.

Friends and members of the several families involved were surprised to learn of the marriages this afternoon when informed of it.

START ADVERTISING MANISTIQUE SERIES

Within the next day or so the city will be covered by an advertising campaign, promoted by the management of the local independent baseball organization, in an effort to get out a big crowd for Saturday and Sunday's contests with the fast Manistique crowd. CITY TO HAVE A FULL TIME HEALTH OFFICER; THIRD IN PENINSULA

CITY COUNCIL ACCEPTS RECOMMENDATION OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE DURING MEETING LAST NIGHT

SCHOOL BOARD WILL PAY PART SALARY

EIGHT HUNDRED DOLLARS OF YEARLY WAGES OF OFFICIAL BE PAID FROM SCHOOL TREASURY

CREDIT TO WOMAN'S CLUB FOR DECISION

Local Organization Have Fought Hard For The Plan and Are Pleased to See its Institution a Fact

(By Associated Press.)

The third full time health officer in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan will be located at Escanaba, according to a decision made during last night's council session. A report from the special committee, headed by Dr. Cuthbert was read and accepted after a bit of discussion and the recommendations carried in that report adopted by unanimous vote of the body.

With the adoption of the favorable report of the committee, applications for the position will be received by members of this special body, Aldermen Cuthbert, Noreus and Hodson, and consideration of an appointment be made in the near future, it is intimated.

Credit to Club

Incidentally, the adoption of the full time health plan here reflects back with considerable brightness upon the efforts of the Woman's Club. This organization has been exceptionally active in the promulgation of the plan and it is largely to their efforts that its consummation has been brought about. The club was the first and primal mover in the campaign which started several months ago, and its shoulder has been consistently behind the wheel ever since.

Abolish Three Offices

The determination to adopt the plan of a full time officer means the abolition of three city offices in force at the present time, that of city chemist, health officer and city physician. The combined salaries of these offices is the basis of the new officer's salary, amounting to $1200, which with the addition of $800 pledged by the school board gives a salary that is believed will be adequate for the position. In addition to the offer to pay $800 a year on the officer's salary, the school board also agrees to pay one-half the cost of office equipment.

An ordinance covering the various features of the idea was ordered drafted by the committee for that purpose. The duties of the official will be defined in the prospective measure.

Marquette Has Similar Office

Among the three cities in the peninsula, including Escanaba, in which the plan is in effect, Marquette is the only one outside of Escanaba in the eastern section. The third city is Ironwood. In both Ironwood and Marquette the idea has worked out to the greatest of advantage to the municipality in every way, and the institution of the plan here will be watched with the keenest of interest by local citizens.

Thus far but one formal application for the position has been filed with the city, that of Dr. Girard, whose candidacy for the office was recently supported by the Woman's club and by the Delta County medicals. A decision as to the incumbent for the office will be made in the near future it is believed.

NEW STRETCH COUNTY ROAD NOW COMPLETED

COUNTY ENGINEER MASON COMPLETES WORK ON GLADSTONE—MASONVILLE ROAD

REPAIR WORK ON OTHER COUNTY ROADS BE MADE

Engineer Predicts Banner Year for Road Building in Delta—Will Link Escanaba and Manistique

The road work between Gladstone and Masonville is now completed and the road building outfit has been moved to Ensign and the track is being laid to the top of the Whiteish hill, which is the end of the macadam road built last season.

From the top of the hill the road was finished for a distance of about a half mile and from that point to Ensign is three and one-half miles. It will probably take six weeks to build that stretch of road if the conditions are favorable.

The road building crew consists of 40 men and the outfit is equipped with its own commissary department and the men are furnished with their board at a reasonable figure.

Other road work, during the time this short stretch is being built will be mostly in repairing other county roads.

The road between this city and Hyde will be resurfaced and well rolled and there will be other repair work in different parts of the county.

Mason a Busy Man

County Engineer Mason keeps his automobile going from one job to the other and is pushing all work to the limit. He says this summer should be a banner one for road building in this county and that the weather is the only thing that will prevent several additional miles of macadam for Delta county.

The road work in Schoolcraft county is also said to be progressing in a satisfactory manner and it will not be a great while before there will be a macadam road from this city to Manistique.

WOULD LICENSE ELECTRICIANS

It is the intention of the city to compel all persons doing electrical work to first procure a license for that purpose, according to a statement from Ald. Swan. The aldermen discussed the matter at some length and it was apparent that if the ordinance being prepared at this time goes through, that an individual wiring his own property must get a permit first and then submit later to an inspection. Alderman Tolan blamed numerous fires on faulty wiring, which danger, he contends will be obviated by such a course.

Permission was granted St. Stephen's Woman's Guild to dispense ice cream and other refreshments at the park during the day of July Fourth.

City Purchases Alley on Michigan Avenue at Rear of Barras Property—Will Open Alley Shortly

(By Associated Press.)

A wide range of matters of general interest to the public were discussed and action taken on them during the meeting of the council last night. The city-dads went into an overtime session owing to the fact that they did not get started until a late hour.

Perhaps the greatest amount of discussion centered around the purchase of an alley at the rear of property owned by A. H. Barras on Michigan avenue, the cost of which is $300, and the disposition of a small piece of the plot thus purchased, to C. C. Royce for $40.

Alderman Swan presented the report of the street committee on the matter, stating that other members including the Mayor, and himself spent several hours in a rain storm consummating the deal whereby the alley will be opened. Some objection was raised because of the cost, but it was shown to be equitable. The disposition of the small plot to Mr. Royce also brought out some discussion as its relative value compared with the price of the alleyway. The piece is 10x30 feet in size. The proposed alley is to be twelve feet in width and it was also understood that Mr. Barras leave his fences in their present positions, giving a clearway of sixteen feet.

Borrows Funds on Credit

The city will borrow $1,000 on the general credit of the municipality and the Finance committee authorized to make the necessary transactions for the purpose. The cash will be used for the liquidating of certain notes of the city and for paying expenses. One-half of the loan is to be used for the taking up of the notes. Coming taxes are figured upon to care for the loan.

Auto Ordinance Through

Escanaba's new auto and vehicle ordinance, one of the most stringent of its kind in the peninsula will go into active operation twenty days from yesterday, the measure having been adopted on its final reading, with out any change whatever. One other ordinance, that relative to the filing of a complete invoice of all city property in the possession of department heads by the first day of February of each year, with the city clerk, was also passed on second consideration.

City Officials to Participate

City officials, councilmen, Mayor were given an invitation to participate in the annual St. Jean's Day celebration, to be held June 24 under the auspices of the Institut Jacques Cartier which was accepted.

Would License Electricians

It is the intention of the city to compel all persons doing electrical work to first procure a license for that purpose, according to a statement from Ald. Swan. The aldermen discussed the matter at some length and it was apparent that if the ordinance being prepared at this time goes through, that an individual wiring his own property must get a permit first and then submit later to an inspection. THE GOOD JUDGE HEARS OF CONVERTS

MEN line up for the Real Tobacco Chew because it's what they've been wanting right along whether they knew it or not.

And the ones who saw it first like to get together and watch the movement grow. That's why so much is heard about it.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!!
W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED. RIGHT-CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.

DUTCH ISLAND VANTAGE POINT FOR WITNESSING GERMAN AIRCRAFT MOVES

Rottumeroog, Netherlands, June 16.—At no other place in Europe is there better opportunity than on this island of observing the beginning and the end of the German airship and aeroplane expeditions which have recently become so frequent to the English coast. Rottumeroog is the last and most easterly of the long string of low lying sandy islands skirting the north coast of Holland and then continuing along the German coast. From its lookout station, in charge of the Dutch military authorities, may be seen day after day flights of German "Tauben" or "Doves" as the flying machines are called, coming out of or going into the mouth of the Ems and from Borkum, the first of the German islands, or even passing on their way to or from the island fortress of Helligoland or Wilhelmshaven. Sometimes a Zeppelin, or perhaps a squadron of these dreadnaughts of the air, will skirt the coast high up in the clouds just outside of Dutch territorial waters, bent on attacking British war and merchant ships if opportunity offers in the North Sea. There are, however, not many people to observe the passage of the air flotillas, for, outside the detachment of Dutch troops stationed here for the period of the war for the purpose of protecting Dutch soil from violation by any of the belligerents, the only inhabitants of the islands are the coastguard and his family. Visitors—and especially foreigners—are not welcome and, in fact, have been forbidden to land since the establishment of martial law in the Dutch coastal regions.

At the Delft Theatre Saturday July 3

a great flood. Sea birds usually avail themselves of the island as a breeding place and many hundreds of thousands of their eggs are sent annually to the mainland for consumption. This year, however, many of the birds have deserted the place, having been frightened away by the booming of the cannon at target practice on the island of Borkum or by the unaccustomed sight of the aerial war machines with the uncanny whirr of their propellers.

SUSAN CHRISTOPH WILL APPEAR IN A RECITAL

Escanaba Singer, Who Has Won Praises of the Southland, to Return to City in Near Future.

Escanabans who have watched the progress of Miss Susan Christoph, "Escanaba's nightingale," in her vocal work during the past year, during which time she has been a student under a prominent instructor at Louisville, Ky., will be greatly interested to learn that Miss Christoph will soon return to Escanaba, to appear in recital here.

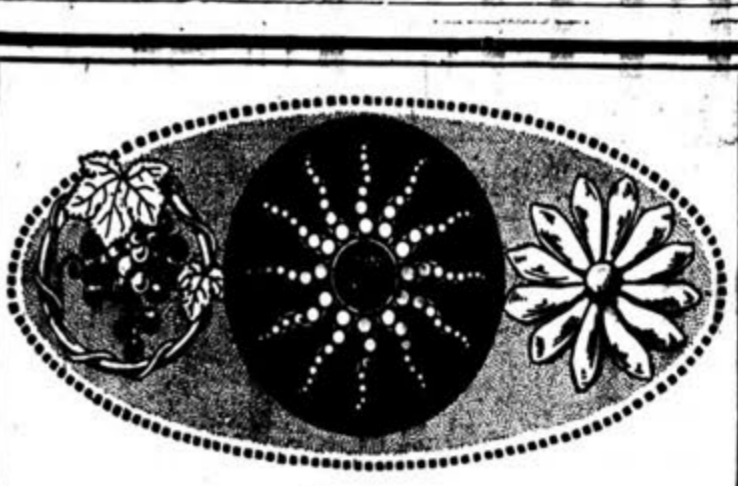

Those who were present during the recital of last fall given by Miss Christoph and who listened to the wonderful coloratura soprano of the dark-haired, dark-eyed little Escanaba singer, will be more than pleased with the announcement that a recital is now being planned in which Miss Christoph will appear. Miss Christoph's work the past year has still more firmly established her in the hearts of Louisville music lovers.

RAT PROOFING IS ONLY MEANS OF ERADICATING THE PLAGUE, SAYS BLUE

(By Associated Press.)
San Francisco, June 16.—"In more than three thousand years that plague has been known, it has been attributed variously to evil spirits, divine wrath, errors of diet, noxious winds, and astronomical phenomena, but today the recognition of plague as a rodent disease has insured its eradication from cities and urban communities," said Dr. Rupert Blue, Surgeon-General of the United States Public Health Service in an address before the American Society of Tropical Medicine here Tuesday.

Measures Difficult
Speaking upon the subject of "Plague Preventive Measures, Their Development and Present Status," Dr. Blue pointed out that "In any event anti-plague measures are difficult and expensive, but they pay not only from health but from commercial standpoints."

"Rat-proofing," said Dr. Blue, "is the best and most permanent anti-plague measure, but it is not practically adapted to most places outside the United States. In the United States and its possessions the thoroughness of enforcement of this measure is responsible in large part for the continued freedom of San Francisco and the Bay Cities from the infection, for the decline and cessation of the infection in Porto Rico, for the continued practical freedom of the Philippine islands from plague, and for the practical eradication of the disease from New Orleans." The address reviewed the history of plague preventive measures and considered the legal and technical necessities for the destruction of rodents, their exclusion from human habitations, and permanent methods of preventing the recurrence of the disease.

LEARN HOW TO SWIM

In a Series of Ten Articles, Famous Expert Louis De B. Handley of the N. Y. A. C., Gives Advice to Beginners and Veterans.

Article No. 2.—The Trudgeon Stroke

Photos copyright by American Press Association.

THE TRUDGEON STROKE.

Upper illustration shows position of the swimmer at the end of the top arm drive. Legs are fully opened and ready to snap together, performing scissor kick. Underside is about to "catch" six inches below water.

Illustration on left shows arm action in trudgeon, crawl and trudgeon crawl. Left arm is pushing to full reach under water, with slight downward slant, so that hand will be six or eight inches below the surface when ready for "catch." Right arm is completing its drive near the thigh.

Illustration on right shows head twisted (not raised) to breathe in, upper arm pointing under the body in its drive, comfortably extended, undersides recovering above water with elbows raised.

By LOUIS DE B. HANDLEY. Copyright, 1915, by American Press Association.

IN the first article of this series it was shown how the nonswimmer could best master the rudiments of watermanship through the side stroke or the elementary crawl, and time has now come for him to select one of the advanced free style types and learn it.

He has the choice of the trudgeon, crawl and trudgeon-crawl, and we will speak today of the first named, leaving the other two for later treatment.

Broadly speaking, the trudgeon is a double overarm stroke, with a single kick to each complete drive of the two arms. Many advocate it for long distance swimming, and there is no doubt that it will prove eminently satisfactory for all round use, whether in competition or in pleasure bathing.

It is restful, yet speedy. The swimmer lies at ease on the water, without the least strain on any part of his body, the movements of arms and legs require very little exertion, and practically no resistance is offered in recovery, so that every ounce of expended energy is fully utilized.

Probably the best proof which can be adduced of the value of the trudgeon is the work done by its devotees in tests of aquatic endurance. Charles Durbin of Philadelphia used it in crossing Delaware bay in 1912 when he established the obtaining American long distance record of 10 1/2 miles in 14 hours 15 minutes, across tide, a performance equal to the English channel swim both in length and in difficulty of course.

Alfred Brown of New York, our national professional swimming champion, who was the first to reach Sandy Hook from the Battery, in New York bay, and to span the Panama canal, also showed it from start to finish in these tests, and so did George Meahan, the Boston amateur, in creating last summer a new record of 7 hours 15 minutes for the Battery to Sandy Hook route.

One need hardly point out that a stroke which enables its exponents to swim fast and continuously for so many hours without ill effect may be adopted confidently for every day purposes even by people of middle age and children.

For the rest the trudgeon is more easy to learn than the awkward and complicated breast stroke, provided the proper preliminary course is followed. It will come quite naturally to those who have been taught to swim by means of the side stroke or elementary crawl, for the action is very similar.

The first care in approaching the trudgeon should be to learn how to breathe for it. The balance of the body depends largely upon knowing how and when to inhale and exhale, and without balance good swimming is impossible.

The correct way to breathe in using the trudgeon is to inhale through the mouth during the drive of the top arm and exhale underwater while the same arm recovers, preferably through the nostrils.

There are several exercises by which this artificial mode of respiration may be practiced and acquired. For instance, the pupil can stand on bottom in waist deep water, lean over until his face is submerged, expel the air from his lungs through the nose, then twist (not lift) the head toward the shoulder he holds uppermost in swimming, until the mouth is above the surface, take a deep breath and face down once more to again empty the lungs underwater, continuing the same process at intervals.

This identical exercise may be taken while stretched out flat on the water, either supported by floating device or hanging on to something, and not a few instructors also recommend pushing off face down from the side of a pool and exhaling the while, then twisting the head, as told, to breathe deeply.

These methods will be found excellent, but should facilities for employing them not be at one's disposal it is possible to obtain the wanted results by going through the respiratory action at home in a washing bowl. The object is simply to get used to taking breath above the surface and exhaling under water.

When this is accomplished the candidate is ready to bury the face and assume the position required by the modern strokes—nearly horizontal, with shoulders a little higher than feet, but whole body forming a straight line, as in standing erect on tiptoe.

The arm movements of the trudgeon should vary slightly in accordance with the characteristics of the individual on such points as length of reach and extension of arms in driving. All strain on the muscles must be avoided, so it will be obvious that while a swimmer with supple shoulders and limber joints may seek a long reach and drive with straight arm another whose shoulders and joints are stiffer, less free, will do better by shortening the stroke and carrying the elbow comfortably bent in pulling.

The leg drive used with the trudgeon is called a scissor kick and consists of a slow opening of the legs—front and back, as in walking, not lateral—and a quick, vigorous closing of them. The top leg is brought forward a little, almost straight, and toes pointing back, the under leg is bent nearly to kneeling position, but not quite; then the two are snapped together so that knees and feet brush. The kick is introduced at the end of the top arm drive—that is, the legs float apart, relaxed, as this arm is about to complete its pull, and whip together just as it finishes at the thigh.

Common mistakes in performing the scissor kick are opening the legs too wide, drawing up the thighs in recovery; separating the knees laterally, and making the negative movements swiftly.

If the opening of the scissor is excessive or the thighs are drawn up in recovering a rather large resisting surface is presented to the water, and this offsets the benefit derived from the drive, so that part of the applied energy goes for naught. Separating the knees sideways also makes the kick less effective, because the forward kick is obtained from the pressure of the legs upon the wedge of water between them, and if they don't close near enough the two forces fall to combine, and the resulting impetus is greatly reduced. In opening the legs too rapidly a check is placed on the body, for the movement is one of resistance.

In swimming the trudgeon—or any stroke for the matter of that—one should aim at keeping the entire body from head to feet on the straight line of advance. This means that the head should not be raised or bent in breathing, but only twisted sideways from the neck; that the shoulders should not sway from side to side, but roll back and forth, as on an axle; that there should be no bending at the waist at any time.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—The yacht Lola narrowly escapes wreck in Leghorn harbor. Gordon Gregg, locum tenens for the British consul, is called upon by Hornby, the Lola's owner, and dines aboard with him and his friend Hyton Chater. Aboard the yacht he accidentally sees a room full of arms and ammunition and a torn photograph of a young girl. That night the consul's safe is robbed and the Lola is put suddenly to sea. The police find that Hornby is a fraud and the Lola's name a false one.

CHAPTER II—Gregg visits Capt. Jack Durnford of the marines aboard his vessel, and is surprised to learn that Durnford knows, but will not reveal, the mystery of the Lola. "It concerns a woman."

CHAPTER III—In London Gregg is trapped nearly to his death by a former servant, Olinto, who repents in time to save him, but not to give a reason for his treachery. Visiting in Dumfries Gregg meets Muriel Leithcourt, who is strangely affected at mention of the Lola. Hornby appears.

CHAPTER IV—Muriel introduces Hornby as her father's friend, her father's friend. Gregg finds that she is engaged to Woodroffe. Leithcourt's actions and connection with Woodroffe are mysterious. Gregg sees a copy of the torn photograph on the Lola and finds that the young girl is Muriel's friend. Woodroffe disappears.

CHAPTER V.

Contains Certain Confidences.

As I dashed forward to the gap in the boundary wall of the wood, I nearly stumbled over a form lying across the narrow path.

So dark was it beneath the trees that at first I could not plainly make out what it was until I leapt and my hands touched the garments of a woman. Her hat had fallen off, for I felt it beneath my feet, while the cloak was a thick woolen one.

Was she dead, I wondered? That cry—that single word of reproach—sounded in my ears, and it seemed plain that she had been struck down ruthlessly after an exchange of angry words.

I felt in my pocket for my vest, but unfortunately my box was empty. Yet just at that moment my strained ears caught a sound—the sound of someone moving stealthily among the fallen leaves. Seizing my gun, I demanded who was there.

There was, however, no response. The instant I spoke the movement ceased.

It seemed evident that a tragedy had occurred, and that the victim at my feet was a woman. But who?

Of a sudden, while I stood hesitating, blaming myself for being without matches, I heard the movement receding—escaping from the spot. I sprang through the gap, straining my eyes into the gloom, and as I did so could just distinguish a dark figure receding quickly beneath the wall of the wood.

In an instant I dashed after it. Down the steep hill to the Scarwater I followed the fugitive, crossing the old footbridge near Penpont, and then up a wild winding glen towards the Cairnmore of Deugh. For a couple of miles or more I was close behind, until, at a turn in the dark wooded glen where it branched in two directions, I lost all trace of the person who flew from me. Whoever it was they had very cleverly gone into hiding in the undergrowth of one or other of the two glens—which, I could not decide.

I stood out of breath, the perspiration pouring from me, undecided how to act.

Was it Leithcourt whom I had surprised?

That idea somehow became impressed upon me, and I suddenly resolved to go boldly across to Rannoch and ascertain for myself. Therefore, with the excuse that I was belated on my walk home, I turned back down the glen, and half an hour afterward entered the great well-lighted hall of the castle where the guests, ready dressed, were assembling prior to dinner.

I was welcomed warmly, and just then Leithcourt himself joined his guests, ready dressed in his dinner jacket, having just descended from his room.

"Hullo, Gregg!" he exclaimed heartily, holding out his hand. "Had a long day of it, evidently. Good sport with Carmichael—eh?"

"Very fair," I said. "I remained longer with him than I ought to have done, and have got belated on my way home, so looked in for a refresher."

"Quite right," he laughed merrily. "You're always welcome, you know. I'd have been annoyed if I knew you had passed without coming in."

And Muriel, a pretty figure in a low-cut gown of turquoise chiffon, standing behind her father, smiled secretly at me. I smiled at her in return, but it was a strange smile, I fear, for with the knowledge of that additional mystery lying in me—the mystery of the woman lying unconscious or perhaps dead, up in the wood—held me stupefied.

I had suspected Leithcourt because of his constant trysts at that spot, but I had at least proved that my suspicions were entirely without foundation. He could not have gone home and dressed in the time, for I had taken the nearest route to the castle while the fugitive would be compelled to make a wide detour.

I only remained a few minutes, then went forth into the darkness again, utterly undecided how to act. My first impulse was to return to the woman's aid, for she might not be dead after all.

And yet when I recollected that hoarse cry that rang out in the darkness, I knew too well that she had been struck fatally. It was this latter conviction that prevented me from turning back to the wood. You will perhaps blame me, but the fact is I feared that if I went there suspicion might fall upon me, now that the real culprit had so ingeniously escaped.

Whether or not I acted rightly in remaining away from the place, I leave it to you to judge in the light of the amazing truth which afterwards transpired.

I decided to walk straight back to my uncle's, and dinner was over before I had had my tub and dressed. Next day the body would surely be found; then the whole countryside would be filled with horror and surprise. Was it possible that Leithcourt, that calm, well-groomed, distinguished looking man, held any knowledge of the ghastly truth? No. His manner as he stood in the hall chatting gaily with me was surely not that of a man with a guilty secret. I became firmly convinced that although the tragedy affected him very closely, and that it had occurred at the spot which he had each day visited for some mysterious purpose, yet up to the present he was in ignorance of what had transpired.

But who was the woman? Was she young or old?

A thousand times I regretted bitterly that I had no matches with me so that I might examine her features. Was the victim that sweet-faced young girl whose photograph had been so ruthlessly cast from its frame and destroyed? The theory was a weird one, but was it the truth? I retired to my room that night full of fevered apprehension. Had I acted rightly in not returning to that lonely spot on the brow of the hill, or had I done as a man should do in keeping the tragic secret to myself?

At six I shaved, descended, and went out with the dogs for a short walk; but on returning I heard of nothing unusual, and was compelled to remain inactive until near midday.

I was crossing the stable yard where I had gone to order the carriage for my aunt, when an English groom, suddenly emerging from the harness room, touched his cap, saying:

"Have you 'eard, sir, of the awful affair up yonder?"

"Of what?" I asked quickly.

"Well, sir, there seems to have been a murder last night up in Rannoch wood," said the man quickly. "Holden, the gardener, has just come back from that village and says that Mr. Leithcourt's under gamekeeper as he was going home at five this morning came upon a dead body."

"Call Holden. I'd like to know all he's heard," I said. And presently, when the gardener emerged from the grapehouse, I sought of him all the particulars he had gathered.

"I don't know very much, sir," was the man's reply. "I went into the inn for a glass of beer at eleven, as I always do, and heard them talking about it. A young man was murdered last night up in Rannoch wood."

"The body was that of a man?" I asked, trying to conceal my utter bewilderment.

"Yes—about thirty, they say. The police have taken him to the mortuary at Dumfries, and the detectives are up there now looking at the spot, they say."

A man! And yet the body I found was that of a woman—that I could swear.

After lunch I took the dogcart and drove alone into Dumfries.

The police constable on duty at the town mortuary took me up a narrow alley, unlocked a door, and I found myself in the cold, gloomy chamber of death. From a small dingy window above the light fell upon an object lying upon a large slab of gray stone and covered with a soiled sheet.

The policeman lifted the end of the sheet, revealing to me a white, hard-set face, with closed eyes and dropped jaw. I started back as my eyes fell upon the dead countenance. I was entirely unprepared for such a revelation. The truth staggered me.

"The victim was the man who had acted as my friend—the Italian waiter, Olinto."

I advanced and peered into the thin inanimate features, scarce able to realize the actual fact. But my eyes had not deceived me. Though death distorts the facial expression of every man, I had no difficulty in identifying him.

"You recognize him, sir?" remarked the officer. "Who is he? Our people are very anxious to know, for up to the present moment they haven't succeeded in establishing his identity."

"I will see your inspector," I answered with as much calmness as I could muster. "Where has the poor fellow been wounded?"

"Through the heart," responded the constable, as turning the sheet farther down he showed me the small knife wound which had penetrated the victim's jacket and vest full in the chest.

"This is the weapon," he added, taking from a shelf close by a long, thin

POPULATION INCREASES FASTER THAN FOOD SUPPLY, SAYS PROFESSOR

Chicago, June 16.—There is grave danger that a famine will descend upon the United States some time in the near future, according to Professor John M. Coulter, head of the department of botany of Chicago University. Population here, said the professor, is increasing twenty times faster than the food supply.

"We ought to have enough foodstuffs in this country to feed the world," said Prof. Coulter. "Instead, we soon shall not have enough to feed ourselves. This growing discrepancy between food production and population is the basis of the high cost of living."

"Four remedies present themselves to prevent famine in the United States. First we should develop scientific methods of soil cultivation. We must manipulate the soil properly, and farm intensively, as the Europeans do. By scientific treatment of the soil, crops can be increased 200 per cent in the United States."

"Second, we must plant on every acre the crop which will give the maximum yield in that section. Stop planting wheat in corn land and don't try to raise potatoes in swamps. Too many farmers plant their crops without knowledge of what their land is suited for."

"We must, in the third place, develop drought resisting crops. This is the work of the professional botanist, and is to be accomplished through experiment."

"Then, at last, we must produce disease resisting crops, for plants, like animals, are subject to ills of the flesh. This, too, is the work of the botanist. If these suggestions are carried out with reasonable thoroughness, the high cost of living will vanish, as concerns foodstuffs."

ENGLISH SOCIETY IS PLACING MORE DEMOCRATIC; WAR CITED AS CAUSE

London, June 16.—The war is exercising a decidedly democratic influence on the manners, customs and habits of English folk who are commonly regarded as belonging to the big "E" section of society. Before the war it was considered most undignified for anybody with any pretensions to gentility to be seen carrying a parcel in public. But now even dukes and duchesses, to say nothing of "honorable" and untitled respectabilities, may be seen openly and unshamefully carrying parcels in Piccadilly or Regent street with an air which implies the proud consciousness that they are setting a good example.

They are, in fact, responding to an appeal to shoppers which has been issued by the home office through its distributing trade committee. The shoppers were requested:

To shop early; not to expect immediate service; to carry home parcels; to give more time for the execution of orders.

The reason for this appeal is that so many shop assistants have abandoned service behind the counter to serve their country in the field, that all the big shops are short handed and have had to take on a lot of untrained help.

Was She Dead? I Wondered.

Florentine misericordia, with a hint of yellow ivory, the most deadly and fatal of all the daggers of the middle ages. It was still blood-stained, but as I took the deadly thing in my hand I saw that its blade was beautifully damascened, a most elegant specimen of a medieval arm. Yet surely none but an Italian would use such a weapon, or would aim so truly as to penetrate the heart. And yet the person struck down was a woman and not a man!

BELIEVING WRONG FOREVER.

Because a man has committed a wrong, perhaps even a crime, it is not necessary to condemn him to never-ending distrust, or to stamp him with the brand of Cain. Many times it happens that a wrong is committed in extraordinary circumstances and bitterly regretted soon afterward. Experience teaches its own terrible lessons and perhaps a man's first fall would be his last if only the world would leave him alone and forget. But because the world scents sensation and thrives upon it, it remembers forever, and the man who goes wrong rarely has the chance to completely retrieve the past. He may make the effort and brave discouragement and hard experience and perhaps appear to make some headway in his fight to regain his lost footing, but, generally speaking, there is always someone who never forgets, someone who by a word undoes the patient work of years and breathes renewed life into the specter of the past. The soul that has been wounded with its own knife-thrust never forgets, but it is one thing for a man to remember his own misdoings and the lessons they teach, and quite another thing for someone else to bring them to light as horrible examples to others.

A naturalist states that a moth—and for that matter many other insects—will fly toward a flame for the same reason that a plant seeks the light. Insects, it seems, move in the direction of the light rays that fall upon them. But the light must be of considerable intensity to produce a marked result. Toward a feeble glare the insect would move but leisurely, but in the case of a concentrated light like the flame of a candle or lamp the insect travels with great rapidity to its death.

Says the Boston Globe: "The trustees of the Horatio N. Slater estate report a shrinkage of $3,784,954 during the year, owing to the depreciation in stocks and bonds. This loss, however, is all on paper, and with the end of the war and returning industrial activity should disappear. The incident illustrates, however, what has happened to every important estate that holds securities." Not only to important estates, but to others, and to institutions of various kinds, and to nearly all individuals with funds invested in securities.

When a woman opens her remarks with the assertion that of course she's always very careful what she says about anybody, we notice that all the other women prick up their ears and look eagerly expectant.

Astronomers are watching a comet that has just appeared and has a tail 3,000,000 miles long. Comets are supposed to precede war, but the fuss in Europe came on so suddenly that apparently all the stage could not be set.

We are preparing to make $12,000,000 worth of dyestuff we use annually and for which we have depended on Europe. Uncle Sam does not realize what he can do until he has to do it.

Last year's comets did not wear tails, but this year's most notable visitant is reported to have two. Being a comet is becoming increasingly expensive.

Though it is now possible to hear music 3,000 miles away, one's jewels cannot be gazed at from such a distance, so what is the use?

ITALIAN MEDIC SAYS HAS SERUM METHOD FOR IMMUNIZATION

Says Can Determine Tuberculosis Infection in Humans by Serum Method.

Seattle, Wash., June 16.—Dr. Enrico Castell, special delegate from the faculty of medicine of Genoa, Italy, and his colleagues at the University of Genoa. He stated that by this test he was able to determine the amount of tuberculosis infection, the degree of immunity against the disease, how much tuberculosis matter must be introduced into the body to obtain complete immunity, and how long this immunity will last.

He predicted that in less than fifty years time immunity from tuberculosis would be as thoroughly accomplished as in the case of smallpox.

What's Doing in Theatre World

Bijou to Show Big Feature.

One of the most interesting films shown in the city for some time will be that of "The Butterfly," with How-ard Easterbrook featured. The film will be shown Friday, June 18.

The story relates how a hunchback, in revenge against a woman who had repulsed him, lures her step-daughter to the stage and assists her to become a dancer. The girl, whose name is Elaine, has two lovers for one of whom, John Butler, she forms a sincere attachment. Her step-mother, goes to see her dance, and the hunchback, still enraged at her murders the woman.

The hunchback goes mad and is killed by falling from a cliff. Butler, Elaine's lover, is accused of killing him, but Elaine clears him of the charge by proving that the hunchback was the murderer of her step-mother. Elaine and Butler find that their mutual love will make them happy in marriage.

MENOMINEE HAS JACK-THU-GUGGER

Menominee, June 16.—As two Menominee school teachers were walking home Monday night, a man—think of it, my dear!—sprang from a dark corner near the intersection of State St. and Ogden Ave.

But panic failed to ensue. Who ever heard of a schoolteacher who would run from a man? The two ladies brandished their umbrellas and charged! The mere man fled. The police were called, but found nobody. The place is near the court house grounds, where a few nights ago two girls were mysteriously attacked by a man. And now Menominee has a full-fledged "Jack the Huggger" scare.

NORWAY RESTRICT BRANDY IMPORTATION

Christiania, June 16.—An alcohol commission which was appointed by parliament three years ago to investigate certain conditions and recommend reforms, has just issued majority and minority reports. The commission consisted of nine members. The majority report, which is signed by six members, advises against the prohibition of the import and manufacture of brandy spirits, but would have the sale of spirits subjected to the same rigid laws which are now in force in Sweden, in accordance with what is known as the Bratske system. The sale of distilled liquors, according to this system, is subjected to the most rigid limitations. The majority report also favors the Swedish system for the sale of beer, according to which beer below two and a quarter per cent alcohol by weight is sold free of restrictions.

There are two minority reports. One is signed by two members and recommends prohibition by local veto, the "Semiag" place of dispensing liquors, to be allowed to import and sell spirits. The third member of the minority recommends total prohibition, or, that the prohibition of distilled spirits be decided by referendum.

The Norwegian government sent a commission to the United States two years ago to study prohibition and other conditions affecting the liquor business in the United States.

Delma Groleau of Isabella was in the city yesterday on business. James Flanagan, who has been in the city for the past two months, left last week for his home at Antigo, Wis.

POWERS YOUNG MAN IN FATAL CANOE ACCIDENT

Melvin Bradner of Menominee County Village Sees Chum Drown When Canoe Capsizes.

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 16.—Arthur H. Rowe, junior literary student of the University of Michigan, from Orange, N. J., was drowned at Case Lake when the canoe capsized in which he and Melvin Bradner, of Powers, Mich., were making a trip from Lakeland.

The youths were just entering the lake when the accident occurred. A strong wind and a rapid current lost them the control of their craft and a moment later both boys were in the water.

Rowe was an expert swimmer. Bradner, with less skill in the water, clung to the canoe. The boys had called to one another, assuring each other of their lack of danger. But Rowe suddenly disappeared and was not seen again.

Bradner encountered difficulty in getting anyone in the vicinity to help him search for the body. County officials went out with grappling irons late in the day.

This is the first student drowning of the summer.

PANAMA TO SLAUGHTER OWN BEEF FOR ITS USE

Panama, June 16.—The beef consumed in the Panama canal zone is to be from cattle slaughtered here, instead of dressed beef from the United States. It has been ascertained that a saving of from 10 to 20 per cent can thus be made. The canal supply department has already begun killing local cattle, in order to test the quality of meat obtainable, and it has further arranged to purchase cattle in other parts of Central America, and even South America, and bring them to the isthmus for final fattening and slaughter.

A cattle buyer, assigned to visit the neighboring countries, will have his purchases brought to the canal and inspected by a veterinary surgeon to prevent the introduction of diseased cattle. The latter official is already on his way to the isthmus.

FRENCH CIVILIANS GET RICH ON TRADE OF THE SOLDIERS

Dunkirk, France, June 16.—British officers and soldiers from the devastated countryside which now constitutes the battered front between their army and that of the Germans, frequently express surprise that some steps have not been taken to remove the civilian population from the immediate area of fighting. The clearing out of civilians, they declare, would simplify military operations, and reduce the opportunity for successful spying by the Germans.

The Coffee Drug

Do you know what it is?

It's caffeine—a poisonous and powerful nerve irritant—about 2-2 grains to the cup of coffee.

Listen to what physicians say:

"Coffee and tea are poisonous drugs. The caffeine they contain is of the same nature as uric acid. They impair digestion and produce various disorders of the nerves."

"A large percentage of cases of headache, nervousness, sleeplessness and indigestion can be traced directly to coffee."

If you haven't suspected coffee as the cause of headaches, biliousness, heart-flutter or sleeplessness, suppose you test the matter by a change to the pure food-drink, Instant Postum.

There's no caffeine nor any harmful substance in this delicious beverage—just the nourishing elements of wheat, roasted with a bit of wholesome molasses—with a snappy flavour similar to that of mild, high-grade Java.

The sure, easy way out of coffee troubles is to shift to
