DELFT TO SHOW BIG FILM NEXT WEEK

A photoplay very much out of the ordinary will be shown at the Delft Tuesday, June 29, after-noon and night. This is "Hypocrits," a drama written by Lois Weber (Mrs. Phillips Smalley), and produced under her sole direction. It is a highly dramatic story through which is woven a remarkable allegory, and one which has aroused a great deal of discussion. The theme is handled with the utmost delicacy and art, and is interpreted by a cast made up of well-known screen artists. Courtenay Foote does the finest work of his brilliant career as "Gabriel, the ascetic." He is supported by Herbert Standing, Myrtle Stedman, Adele Farrington, Dixie Carr and by Margaret Edwards in an exquisite impersonation of "the Spirit of Truth." The photography is remarkable and is a personal triumph for the two cameramen responsible for it.

A few days later came a message from Wellington, Kas., stating he had won and was coming home with the cup. On his return he was banqueted and feted by nearly every school and church society in the city, and at each repeated his supposed winning oration.

Then, today, when rumor began to spread that all was not right, Oberg was confronted and confessed that he bought the cup and had it engraved himself and that his story was a myth. Principal Law's resignation was refused and the boy did not receive his diploma.

ROBERT LANSING IS SECRETARY OF STATE; ACCEPTS POSITION

NEW HEAD OF STATE DEPARTMENT TAKES OVER REINS OF OFFICE TODAY UNDER OFFICIAL SANCTION

NEW SECRETARY IS ABLE STATESMAN

Bryan Wishes Lansing Success in Position he Occupied Previously--U. S. Notifies Foreign Nations

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, June 24.—The United States government today notified all the foreign governments of the appointment of Robert E. Lansing as secretary of state. Mr. Lansing took the oath of office today as the successor of William J. Bryan. The new secretary was in receipt of many congratulatory messages, one of them from former Secretary Bryan in which the Commoner expressed his gratification at the appointment and wished that success, both personal and official attend his office. Secretary Lansing received many of his friends, and as the day was diplomatic day at the office he was congratulated by many of the foreign representatives.

Appointment Gives Satisfaction. Few appointments in recent years have given such widespread satisfaction in the national capital. Mr. Lansing is a lifelong Democrat, but he had devoted his time to international law and diplomacy and is as popular with former Republican officials as with his colleagues. Members of the cabinet who talked with the president on the subject were unanimous in their recommendation that he should be appointed.

When congress reconvenes the nomination will go to the senate. No opposition to his confirmation is anticipated.

Is Not a Republican.

One of the peculiar circumstances in connection with Mr. Lansing's appointment is the fact that he personally has no political backing or influence. Succeeding William Jennings Bryan, foremost among the leaders of the Democratic party, a comparatively unknown quantity in the political

CHASED BY SUBMARINES; THREE WEEKS TO CROSS ATLANTIC FROM NORWAY

FORD RIVER RESIDENTS RETURNING FROM TRIP TO OLD COUNTRY TELL OF TERROR INSPIRED BY "SUBS"

A Ford River couple have felt the terror that the approach of a German submarine must impress upon the passengers aboard British or other ships crossing the war zone.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lorinson, just back from a trip to Norway covering the past several years tell of an experience with German submarines, British mines and the red tape of English military authority, which has occurred with the past four weeks.

From the time Mr. and Mrs. Lorinson left the coast of Norway until they arrived in this country a period of three weeks elapsed.

Held Up by Submarine. First it was interference by German submarines. When but 180 miles off the coast of Norway a German undersea craft bobbed its periscope up, took a look at the ship and went below. It later reappeared close to the vessel and women fainted when they saw the streak of foam nearby, and men passengers were thrown into confusion. However, the "sub" was evidently satisfied with the name painted in huge letters on the side of the ship and allowed her to proceed.

In Charge of British. Soon after this, as the ship approached the English coast she was taken in convoy by British cruisers and to an English port where she was held for a time. Leaving the British Islands a convoy went with her for 400 miles towards the United States.

When first taken under convoy, it is said, according to the Ford River residents, that this was done for the purpose of piloting the ship through the maze of British mine fields. The experiences carried enough excitement, stated Mr. Lorinson, to last for some time in the future.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Escanaba, Mich., June 22, 1915.

Present: Mayor MacKillican and Ald. Tolan, Noreus, Cuthbert, Swan, Hodson, Folio, Wood, Johnson and North-9.

Absent: Ald. Wickert, Stratton, Sheahan, Pryal and Smith-5.

The following communication was read:

Escanaba, Mich., June 17, 1915.

To the Hon. Mayor H. J. MacKillican and Members of the Common Council.

City, Gentlemen:

Regarding the proposed route for the new trunk sewer according to the plans prepared by the City Engineer, we recommend for your adoption the following changes:

According to the proposed plans, the sewer is to run down Birch Street to Second Street, and thence in an Easterly direction on Second Street to Norris Street; thence South to Fourth Street, thence Easterly to Sarah Street, and thence South to the disposal plant.

We would therefore recommend for your adoption the following changes in the proposed route:

South on Birch Street to Park Avenue, thence East on Park Avenue to Norris Street, thence directly South on Norris Street to the disposal plant.

This would do away with the tearing up Two Blocks of Improved pavement on Sarah Street, and further eliminating crossing Butcher's Creek at two different points.

We would further recommend that we purchase property located in N. E. 1/4 of S. W. 1/4 of Section 21, Township 29 N. Range 22 West, as our proposed site for the disposal plant, as in this way, it would save laying about one-half mile of thirty-six inch (36 in.) pipe which would lower the cost of the proposed sewer approximately Ten Thousand ($10,000) Dollars.

Trusting you will view this recommendation in the light intended, we remain,

Respectfully yours,

That all other printing bids be rejected for the reason that we can get it done cheaper, and because any quantity of stationery with the names of the heads of the different departments printed therein would be wasted whenever a change occurs.

GOLD DUST

—it actually works at hundreds of tasks daily

"Let the Gold Dust Twins do your work" is much more than a popular phrase. It is based on truth, an actuality, for Gold Dust really works.

The millions of women who use it for dishwashing and scrubbing know this. But Gold Dust should be used for cleaning and brightening everything. It is the only washing and cleaning powder needed in any home.

The small quantity required is quickly taken up by hot or cold, hard or soft water—forming a perfect cleaning solution. The valuable antiseptic cleaning agent it contains helps to make things sanitariously clean, as well as bright and new-looking.

STORM PAVES STREET WITH DIAMOND RINGS

(By Associated Press.)

Muskogee, Okla., June 24.—A rain and windstorm of unusual violence here Tuesday blew the front out of a jewelry store and sent 20 diamond rings rolling down a business street. Although the storm was at its height, a large crowd collected and began searching for the rings. The proprietor of the jewelry store and his clerks managed to recover many before the crowd arrived. Thirty steps, valued at $2,500 were not recovered, the jeweler said.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—The yacht Lola narrowly escapes wreck in Lagnhorn harbor. Gordon Gregg, locum tenens for the British consul, is called upon by Hornby, the Lola's owner, and dines aboard with him and his friend Hylton Chater. About the yacht he accidentally sees a room full of arms and ammunition and a torn photograph of a young girl. That night the consul's safe is robbed and the Lola puts suddenly to sea. The police find that Hornby is a fraud and the Lola's name a false one.

CHAPTER II—Gregg visits Capt. Jack Durnford of the marines aboard his vessel, and is surprised to learn that Durnford knows, but will not reveal, the mystery of the Lola. "It concerns a woman."

CHAPTER III—In London Gregg is trapped nearly to his death by a former servant, Ollinto, who repeats in time to save him, but not to give a reason for his treachery. Hylton Chater, who meets Muriel Lethcourt, who is strangely affected at mention of the Lola. Hornby reappears.

CHAPTER IV—Muriel introduces Hornby as Martin Woodroffe, her father's friend. Gregg finds that she is engaged to Woodroffe. Lethcourt's actions and connection with Woodroffe are mysterious. Gregg sees a copy of the torn photograph on the Lola and finds that the young girl is Muriel's friend. Woodroffe disappears.

CHAPTER V—Gregg discovers the body of a murdered woman in Rannoch wood. The body disappears and in its place is found the body of Ollinto, whom Gregg has not seen since the night of the London adventure. Gregg talks to the police but conceals his own knowledge of the woman.

CHAPTER VI—Muriel calls secretly on Gregg and tells him that she is certain that a woman as well as a man has been murdered. They search Rannoch wood together.

CHAPTER VII—Gregg and Muriel find the body of the woman in Rannoch wood and Gregg recognizes her as Armida, Ollinto's wife. Gregg tells the police, but when they go to the wood the body has disappeared. In London Gregg meets Ollinto, whom he had seen dead in Dumfriesshire, alive and well.

CHAPTER VIII—Falling to get any clue from Ollinto, Gregg traces the young girl of the torn photograph and finds that she is Elma Heath, niece of Baron Oberg, who has taken her to Abo, Finland, and that she holds a secret affecting Woodroffe.

CHAPTER IX—On his return to Stannan Gregg finds the Lethcourts fled after discussing Hylton Chater, who had called there. Chater, on recovery, searched the house for something hidden there, and took away with him Elma Heath's photograph, saying to a maid that the young lady was dead.

CHAPTER X.

I Show My Hand.

On my return to London next day I made inquiry at the admiralty and learned that the battleship Bulwark was lying at Palermo, therefore I telegraphed to Jack Durnford, and late the same afternoon his reply came at the Cecil:

Due in London twentieth. Dine with me at club that evening—Jack.

The twentieth! That meant nearly a month of inactivity. In that time I could cross to Abo, make inquiries there, and ascertain, perhaps, if Elma Heath were actually dead as Chater had declared.

Two facts struck me as remarkable: Baron Oberg was said to be Polish, while the dark-bearded proprietor of the restaurant in Westbourne Grove was also of the same nationality. Then I recollected that pretty little enameled cross that Mackenzie had found in Rannoch Wood, and it suddenly occurred to me that it might possibly be the miniature of one of the European orders of chivalry. In the club library at midnight I found a copy of Cappelletti's Storia degli Ordini Cavallereschi, the standard work on the subject, and on searching the illustrations I at length discovered a picture of it. It was a Russian order—the coveted Order of Saint Anne, bestowed by the czar only upon persons who have rendered eminent services to the state and to the sovereign. One fact was now certain, namely, that the owner of that tiny cross, the small replica of the fine decoration, must be a person of high official standing.

The autumn days were dull and rainy, and the streets were muddy and unpleasant, as they always are at the fall of the year. Compelled to remain inactive, I idled in the club with the recollection of that pictured face ever before me—the face of the unfortunate girl who wished her last message to be conveyed to Philip Hornby. What, I wondered, was her secret? What was really her fate?

This latter question troubled me until I could bear it no longer. I felt that it was my duty to go to Finland and endeavor to learn something regarding this Baron Oberg and his niece.

Duty—the duty of a man who had learned strange facts and knew that a defenseless woman was a victim—called me. Therefore, with my passport properly vided and my papers all in order, I one night left Hull for Stockholm, whence on the following day I took the small steamer which plies across the Gulf of Bothnia to Korpo, and through the intricate channels and among those low-lying islands to the gray lethargic town of Abo.

It was not the first occasion on which I had trod Russian soil, and I knew too well the annoyances of the bureaucracy. Finland, however, is perhaps the most severely governed of any of the czar's dominions, and I had my first taste of its stern, relentless officialdom at the moment of landing on the half-deserted quay.

In the wooden Passport office the uniformed official, on examining my passport, discovered that at the Russian consulate general they had forgotten to date the visa which had been impressed with a rubber stamp. It was signed by the consul general, but the date was missing, whereupon the man shook his head and handed back the document curtly, saying in Russian, which I understood fairly well, although I spoke badly:

"This is not in order. It must be returned to London and dated before you can proceed."

"But it is not my fault," I protested. "It is the fault of the clerk at the consulate general."

"You should have examined it before leaving. You must send it to London, and return to Stockholm by tonight's boat."

"But this is outrageous!" I cried, as he had already taken the papers of a passenger behind me and was looking at them with unconcern.

"Enough!" he exclaimed, glaring at me. "You will return tonight, or if you choose to stay you will be arrested for landing without a passport."

"I shall not go back!" I declared defiantly. "Your consul general vised my passport, and I claim, under international law, to be allowed to proceed without hindrance."

"The steamer leaves at six o'clock," he remarked without looking up. "If you are in Abo after that remember it will be at your own risk."

"Yes," I said menacingly. "I shall recollect it." And I turned and went out of the little wooden office.

Six o'clock came. I heard the steam siren of the departing boat bound for Sweden, but I was determined to remain there at whatever cost, therefore I returned to the hotel, and at seven dined comfortably in company with a German who had been my fellow-passenger across from Stockholm.

At eight o'clock, however, just as we were idling over dessert, two gray-coated police officers entered and arrested me on the serious charge of landing without a passport.

I accompanied them to the police office, where I was ushered into the presence of the big, bristly Russian who held the town of Abo in terror, the chief of police. The officials which Russia sends into Finland are selected for their harsh discipline and hibernated bureaucracy, and this human machine in uniform was no exception. Had he been the minister of the interior himself, he could not have been more self-opinionated.

"Well?" he snapped, looking up at me as I was placed before him. "Your name is Gordon Gregg, English, from Stockholm. No passport, and decline to leave even though warned—eh?"

"I have a passport," I said firmly, producing it.

He looked at it, and pointing with his finger, said: "It has no date, and is therefore worthless."

"The fault is not mine, but that of a Russian official. If you wish it to be dated, you may send it to your consulate general in London."

"I shall not," he cried, glaring at me angrily. "And for your insult to the law, I shall commit you to prison for one month. Perhaps you will then learn Russian manners."

"Oh! so you will commit an Englishman to prison for a month, without trial—eh? That's very interesting! Perhaps if you attempt such a thing as that they may have something to say about it in Petersburg."

"You defy me!"

"Perhaps you will kindly tell me who you are?" I asked in as quiet a voice as I could command.

"With pleasure, I am Michael Boranski, chief of police of the province of Abo-Bjorneborg."

"Ah! Well, Michael Boranski," I said, reopening my pocketbook and taking out an open letter, "perhaps you will kindly glance at that. It is in Russian, so you can read it."

"You Will Return Tonight, or Be Arrested for Landing Without a Passport."

He snatched it from me with ill grace, but not without curiosity. And then, as he read the lines, his face changed and he went paler. Raising his head, he stood staring at me open-mouthed in amazement.

"I apologize to your excellency!" he gasped, blanched to the lips. "I most humbly apologize. I—I did not know. You told me nothing!"

"Perhaps you will now kindly give my passport a proper vise."

In an instant he gave it the proper vise, affixing the stamps.

"I trust, excellency," he said, bowing low as he handed it to me, "I trust that this affair will not trouble you further. I assure you I had no intention of insulting you."

He held the letter I had given him—secretly with trembling fingers. And Minister of the Imperial Household, Palace of Peterhof. The bearer of this is one Gordon Francis Gregg, British subject, whom it is our will and command that he shall be our guest during his journey through our dominion. And we hereby command all Governors of Provinces and minor officials to afford him all the facilities he requires and privileges and immunities as our guest.

Beneath was the sprawling signature of the ruler of one hundred and thirty millions of people, that signature that was all-powerful from the Gulf of Bothnia to the Pacific—"Nicholas."

The document was the one furnished to me a year before when, at the invitation of the Russian government, I had gone on a mission of inquiry into the state of the prisons in order to see, on behalf of the British public, whether things were as black as some writer had painted them.

Sight of it had changed the chief of police from a burly bully into a whining coward, for he saw that he had torn up the passport of a guest of the czar, and the consequence was most serious if I complained. He begged of me to pardon him, urging all manner of excuses, and humbling himself before me as well as before his two inferiors, who now regarded me with awe.

"I will atone for the insult in any way your high excellency desires," declared the official. "I will serve your excellency in any way he may command."

His words suggested a brilliant idea. I had this man in my power; he feared me.

"Well," I said after some reluctance, "there is a little matter in which you might be of some assistance. If you will, I will reconsider my decision of complaining to Petersburg."

"And what is that, excellency?" he gasped eagerly.

"I desire to know the whereabouts of a young English lady named Elma Heath," I said, and I wrote down the name for him upon a piece of paper. "Age about twenty, and was at school at Chichester, in England. She is a niece of a certain Baron Oberg."

"Baron Oberg!" he repeated, looking at me rather strangely, I thought.

"Yes, as she is a foreigner she will be registered in your books. She is somewhere in your province, but where I do not know. Tell me where she is, and I will say nothing more about my passport," I added.

"Then your excellency wishes to see the young lady?" he said reflectively, with the paper in his hand.

"Yes."

"In that case, it being commanded by the emperor that I shall serve your excellency, I will have immediate inquiries made," was his answer. "When I discover her whereabouts, I will do myself the pleasure of calling at your excellency's hotel."

And I left the fellow, very satisfied that I had turned his officiousness and hatred of the English to very good account.

On the morning of the third day after my arrival at Abo, while sitting on the hotel veranda reading an old copy of the Paris Journal, many portions of which had been "blacked out" by the censor, the chief of police, in his dark green uniform, entered and saluted before me.

"Your excellency, may I be permitted to speak with you in private?"

"Certainly," I responded, rising and conducting him to my bedroom, where I closed the door, invited him to a seat, and myself sat upon the edge of the bed.

"I have made various inquiries," he said, "and I think I have found the lady your excellency is seeking. My information, however, must be furnished to you in strictest confidence," he added, "because there are reasons why I should withhold her whereabouts from you."

"What do you mean?" I inquired.

"What reasons?"

"Well—the lady is living in Finland in secret."

"Then she is alive!" I exclaimed quickly. "I thought she was dead."

"To the world she is dead," responded Michael Boranski, stroking his red beard. "For that reason the information I give you must be treated as confidential."

"Why should she be in hiding? She is guilty of no offense—is she?"

The man shrugged his shoulders, but did not reply.

"And this Baron Oberg? You tell me nothing of him," I said with dissatisfaction.

"How can I when I know nothing, excellency?" was his response.

I felt certain that the fellow was not speaking the truth, for I had noticed his surprise when I had first uttered the mysterious nobleman's name.

lady—the Mademoiselle Heath."

"But you have all foreigners registered in your books," I said. "The search was surely not a difficult one. I know your police methods in Russia too well," I laughed.

"I regret that much as I desire, I dare not appear to have any connection with your quest. But I will direct you. Indeed, I will give you a person to take you to her. If I could find the man, you might go today. Yet it is a long way, and you would not return before tomorrow."

"The roads are safe, I suppose? I don't mind driving in the night."

The official glanced at the clock, and rising exclaimed: "Very well, I will send for the man. If we find him, then the carriage will be at the eastern end of the quay in two hours."

"At noon, very well. I shall keep this appointment."

"And after seeing her, you will of course keep your promise of secrecy regarding our little misunderstanding?" he asked anxiously.

"I have already given my word," was the response; and the man bowed and left, much, I think, to the surprise of the hotel proprietor and his staff. It was an unusual thing for such a high official as the chief of police to visit one of their guests in person. If he desired to interview any of them, he commanded them to attend at his office, or they were escorted there by his gray-coated agents.

I think I must have waited half an hour on the quay when my attention was suddenly attracted by the rattle of wheels over the stones, and turning I saw an old closed carriage drawn by three horses abreast, with bells upon the harness, approaching me rapidly. When it drew up, the driver, a burly-looking, fair-headed Finn in a huge sheepskin overcoat, motioned me to enter, urging in broken Russian:

"Quickly, excellency—quickly—you must not be seen!"

And then the instant I was seated, and before I could close the door, the horses plunged forward and we were tearing at full gallop out of the town.

After five miles or so, the driver pulled up and descended to readjust his harness, whereupon I got out and asked him in the best Russian I could command:

"The chief of police has given you directions?" I asked.

"His high excellency has told me exactly what to do," was the man's answer, as he took out his huge wooden siper and filled it. "You wish to see the young lady?"

"Yes," I answered, "to first see her, and I do not know whether it will be necessary for me to make myself known to her. Where is she?"

"Beyond Nystad," was his vague answer with a wave of his big fat hand in the direction of the dark pine forest that stretched before us. "We shall be there about an hour after sundown."

The short day quickly drew to a close, the sun sank yellow and watery over the towering pines through which we went mile after mile, a dense, impenetrable forest wherein the wolves lurked in winter, often rendering the road dangerous. When night drew on we changed horses again at a small, dirty posthouse in the forest, at the edge of a lake, and then pushed for-

Here's the Big News

NIGGER HAIR is always good news for the pipe. It scores a clean "beat" over any other smoke in the press-room. Hustling, wide-awake printers and pressmen are good judges of type—and they know that NIGGER HAIR is the best type of rich, pleasing tobacco that ever went into a pipe.

NIGGER HAIR just suits the man who wants an all-day-long, year-round pipe-smoke, always mellow and comforting, sweet and satisfying.

NIGGER HAIR

Long Cut Tobacco

This famous old tobacco was the favorite of our grandfathers. They called it NIGGER HAIR, because of the way it was cut, and so the brand got its name. Those long, curly strands make it a wonderful smoke.

We use mild Burley leaf in NIGGER HAIR—carefully aged and deliberately blended to delightful fragrance and sweetness. NIGGER HAIR is a big value because it is the product of a big tobacco organization.

INDIAN CROESUS IS FOUND

His Allotment in the Cushing Oil Field Is Worth Several Millions.

Tulsa, Okla.—Barney Thlocco, the missing and much wanted Indian, whose allotment in the Cushing oil field is worth several millions, has been found in Mexico by Ed Drury of Tulsa, Tex., formerly engaged in the oil business in Oklahoma.

Thlocco, according to Drury, was unaware until he told him that he is one of the richest men in Oklahoma and that the government and scores of oil producers have for months been moving heaven and earth to locate him.

According to Drury, Thlocco has been in Mexico several years, speaks Spanish fluently and apparently prefers the turbulent career of a Mexican citizen to the ease and abandonment of an American millionaire.

Queer Orchid Freaks.

An extraordinary collection of plants, many of them hitherto unknown, is to be exhibited in New York city by Harry J. Black, an American, who has spent years on Bolivia, Peru and Brazil, hunting orchids and other strange flora. The collection of orchids which he is bringing with him to the show is valued at $75,000. Among his other flowers, one specimen is so sensitive that it closes its petals in fright at a sharp noise. Others wilt into unconsciousness if anesthetics are applied to their leaves. A species of jatropha, from Colombia, secretes a poison, which it shoots through two fangs like a serpent's when touched, and the sting is deadly. Another stinging plant is covered with coarse hairs, and when one of them is snapped enough poison is discharged to kill a man.

"Good Health Week" every week in the year for the city. A better city, and a cleaner city—a more healthful place to live and a more cheerful one. This is the aim of Escanaba's city builders and should be impressed upon the minds of every citizen.

That more than six hours' sleep in 24 is only a habit, and a bad habit at that, is the contention of a Brooklyn physician, who comments on the alleged experience of an unnamed Harvard professor in successfully substituting a sort of trance state for the genuine article. During his professional life here of more than half a century the Brooklyn doctor declares that he has never slept more than six hours a day, has never made up for lost sleep, has gone entirely without sleep for two weeks at a time, continuing his labors just the same, with only such snatches of sleep as he could take while walking or driving on the road or in the street while visiting his patients. He holds that sleep is a function of the ego or the personality, rather than of the brain or body; that as a rule "one who sleeps the most works the least," and that "for continuous work the brain needs nutrition rather than sleep." All of which may be quite true in the doctor's case, but his experience is exceptional if not phenomenal.

A French editor visiting here thinks that feminism and the higher education of women form a menace to the United States. Uncle Sam, however, is too chivalrous to refuse American women anything they want, and holds the opinion that the freer and more intelligent the women, the freer and more intelligent will be the nation, whose mothers they are. And, so far, events have justified the American view.

According to all reports it is not pleasant to be a prisoner of war. But the soldiers should be reasonable and remember that the war came on so suddenly that none of the belligerents had time to fit up the detention camps with the luxurious appointments of an American prison. Besides, they are not criminals and so cannot expect a great deal of sympathy and consideration.

What bothers the average suburbanite is to know why a hen will leave a pan of perfectly good chicken feed and fly over the fence and scratch up the garden of the neighbor he owes money to.

One maxim says: "It is a dog's delight to bark and bite." Another that "A barking dog never bites." There is something wrong with these old-timers; they don't harmonize.

To crown the emperor of Japan was cost $2,000,000, although the job should be done much cheaper in this age of economy and efficiency.

How customs have changed! The old-time physician bled his patients in the arm. Just think of it—in the arm!

Somebody should teach the alarm clock also to start the day with a laugh instead of a malevolent snarl.

AVERAGE ESTATE OF ENGLISH RICH BEATS AMERICAN

Shown by Scrutiny of Given Number of Wills Taken Consecutively as Filed.

SOME CURIOUS FACTS SEEN

One Comparison of English and American Estates Showed $400,000 to $233,000—Women Figure Large—Many Rich Prelates—Unusual Wills.

London.—A study of the wills of Englishmen and Americans has been made by an official at Somerset house, where is located the principal registry for Great Britain. This official, while in New York last year, examined the wills of several hundred wealthy and prominent persons who had resided in that city, and thereby was enabled to get information of value to the British income tax office, which has been bothered by men who give away their fortune before they die, thus avoiding the inheritance tax.

The provision in the American law is similar to that in the English law in such cases. Money or other property given away "in contemplation of death" is subject to the tax. But this is difficult to prove, as was illustrated in the attempt made in New York to collect such a tax on a $1,000,000 gift by the late D. O. Mills to his daughter. It was shown by the executors, by a letter written by Mr. Mills, that it was his "usual Christmas gift," though it did not come out at the hearing how many previous gifts of the kind had been made by him.

The inheritance tax is very heavy in Britain. In the case of the late London banker, Charles J. Sofer-Whitburn, who left $7,400,000, the state collected, in duties, $1,185,000, notwithstanding that the property went to the son and other blood heirs. On some legacies the death tax is 25 per cent.

English Rich Men Richer. The first point of interest developed by the inquiry is that the average rich Englishman is richer than the average rich American. This is shown by adding up the fortunes of any 100 consecutive British wills and comparing the total with that of any 100 consecutive American wills, excluding from each list the men worth $1,100,000 or over. The difference is almost 100 per cent in favor of the Englishman. Thirty English fortunes on the list totaled $12,000,000, an average of $400,000, while thirty New York fortunes totaled $7,000,000, an average of $233,000 each. The names on each list were taken just as they came, one after another.

Nor is Britain wanting in men of vast individual fortune. There was the case of Charles Morrison, ninety-one, formerly a haberdasher, who left $4,000,000. He was a comparatively unknown Londoner. Alfred Belt, the South African diamond merchant, left more than $4,000,000; Sir E. P. Wills left $13,000,000; Cecil Rhodes, another British South African, more than $100,000,000. Sir Julius Wernher's estate was appraised at over $25,000,000. He, too, made his money in the South African diamond fields, as did Henry Isaac Barnato, who left $12,500,000. Sir J. H. Schroeder left over $10,000,000.

Average of Noblemen. The estate of the late Lord Strathcona, high commissioner for Canada, was sworn provisionally at $28,000,000. The duke of Sutherland left unsettled personal property, outside of his landed estates, exceeding $1,100,000. The duke of Pile left over $5,000,000. The duke of Westminster left more than that in unvested property. The duke of Argyll left more than $1,000,000. The duke of Bedford and the duke of Portland own London properties in excess of $20,000,000 each.

It is estimated that $500,000 would be a fair average value of an English nobleman's estate. The duke of Abercorn died possessed of $1,900,000; Earl Spencer $3,210,000; Lord Lister $330,000; Viscount Gage $855,000 in unvested property; Lord Furness, the steamship man, $5,000,000; Baron de Worms $990,000; Lord Ashburnham's estate was appraised at $1,250,000; Lord Hertford left $185,000, the earl of Crawford left $2,180,000; Lord Handel $3,250,000; Lord Ashbourne $460,000; Sir Tatton Sykes $1,446,000; Sir Richard Powell Cooper $3,000,000, earl of Ancaster $750,000.

Women Figure Large. The women of the English nobility, though they do not share in the entailed estates of their husbands, nevertheless accumulate considerable property. The dowager duchess of Northumberland left $350,000. Lady Meux had over $1,000,000, dowager countess of Shrewsbury $500,000, countess of Winterton $165,000, dowager duchess of Newcastle $120,000. The duchess of Sutherland's estate was appraised at $2,350,000. Lady Ashley, daughter of Earl Shaftesbury, had $140,000.

Many English women outside of the nobility have large fortunes. Miss Emily Matilda Easton of Durham owner of coal mines, died worth $1,200,000. She bequeathed $57,500 to her companion, Emily Parker, and $15,000 to her gardener. Other employees were remembered. The remainder of her property went to nephews and nieces.

Mrs. Henrietta Rylands of Manchester left $17,200,000. Mrs. Ada Hannah Lewis, widow of "Sam" Lewis, the money lender, $5,555,000; Mrs. Alexandra Ralli, widow of Peter Pandell Ralli of Hyde Park place, London, $5,655,000; Mrs. Ellen Morrison Johnson of Bournemouth, widow of Rev. John Farbrain Johnson, $1,400,000. Mrs. Johnson directed that her funeral be "conducted liberally and regardless of expense." Most of her property was devised to charity.

Some Unusual Wills. Miss Henrietta Hertz left $435,000 for art galleries and schools and for research in the "problems, theories and history of the philosophers of western and eastern civilizations in ancient and modern times, and more especially in the nonutilitarian theories of the phenomena of life in relation to eternity."

A Spanish lady living in Paris, with property in Britain, said in her will: "As to my sisters, nieces, nephew, brother-in-law and cousin, nothing; nothing shall come to them from me but a bag of sand to rub themselves with; none deserves even a good-by."

Miss Amanda Cooper left $250,000 to King George.

Mrs. Charlotte Dudfield, who left $255,000, directed that her maid, when dead, be buried alongside of her.

Among the relics bequeathed by George Somes of Bath were the cap and collar worn by King Charles I at his execution. They descended to Somes from his ancestor, Bishop Hamilton, who was present at the beheading.

Archdeacon Thomas Colley directed that his skeleton be prepared for keeping and preserved by his son.

Lady Meux left $15,000 to Lord George Cholmondeley ("Chumley") on condition that he marries a lady in society.

Henry S. Sherry, a Watford lawyer, said in his will: "I have got a dread of being put under ground. I implore my executors to see that my body is put in a catacomb and not buried."

Punch Artist a Croesus. Henry Silver, who from 1857 to 1870 was an artist on Punch, left nearly $6,000,000. A widower, without children, he left 2,500,000 francs to his wife's relatives in France, $1,000,000 each to his two executors and $1,000,000 to a friend, A. G. Watson.

James Coates, thread manufacturer, who died possessed of nearly $10,000,000, was the Andrew Carnegie of Scotland. He was a bachelor and left no will, so none of his money went to charity, but in his lifetime he sprinkled the Highlands with libraries.

Archibald Coates, a cousin of James Coates, left an estate of nearly $7,000,000. He made a will, but made no public bequests.

Many Rich Prelates. Many high prelates have died rich. The estate of John Wordsworth, lord bishop of Salisbury, was appraised at $167,000, most of which he left to his widow in trust for his children.

Archbishop Benson of Canterbury left $175,000; Archbishop Tait of Canterbury, $175,000; Archbishop Magee of York, $105,000; Archbishop Thomson of York, $223,000; Bishop Gott of Truro, $413,000; Bishop Walsham Howe, $361,000; Bishop Tubnell, $329,000; Bishop Johnson of Colchester, $273,000; Bishop Durnford of Chichester, $188,000; Bishop Thorold of Winchester, $146,000; Bishop Lightfoot of Durham, $123,000; Bishop Creighton of London, $118,000.

Actors Who Left Fortunes. Many English actors left fair fortunes. For instance: Sir Henry Irving left $103,000; George Grossmith, $98,000; Wilson Barrett, $154,000; "Fred Leslie" (Frederick Hobson), $81,000; Sir Augustus Harris, $118,000; John Lawrence Toole, $400,000; "Dan Leno" (G. W. Galvin), $55,000; W. R. A. Stirling, $77,000; Edwin Terry, $220,000.

Tom Loates, jockey, who died at forty-two, left $71,000. E. C. Mitchell ("Capt. Coe"), veteran sporting writer, left $32,000 to be given to his son on condition that the son signed a pledge never to gamble.

Fully Prepared. "How is this, Herr Zwetsche?" You have got your room full of olivanders and other tropical plants, and a telephone, I see. "You see I have been asked to compose a poem on spring, that is why I have had a telephone laid on the public park to enable me to listen to the singing of the birds."—Der Floh

SEES THE REVIVAL OF CANAL TRAFFIC

(By Associated Press.)

London, June 24.—The war has brought about a revival of canal traffic throughout Great Britain, and the canal companies are doing better than they have done in many years. This is due mainly to the congestion of the railways and at the ports.

Practically the only limit to the traffic available to the canal companies is set by the shortage of labor and barges. Most of the younger bargemen joined either the army or navy early in the war, and the canals, like the railways, are frequently compelled to refuse traffic because they cannot find men to handle it.

DECLARES LEPROSY IS NOT CONTAGIOUS

(By Associated Press.)

San Francisco, June 23.—Horror of leprosy is an inheritance from the middle ages and is not justified by the facts, said Dr. Houslass W. Montgomery of San Francisco, in a paper presented this morning before the Sixty-Sixth Annual Session of the American Medical Association. The repulsive appearance of leprosy and the fear of its extreme contagion due to misunderstanding of the nature of leprosy as mentioned in the Bible have created a belief in the public mind that leprosy is extremely contagious. This belief, says Dr. Montgomery, is not founded on fact. Leprosy is very slightly contagious and is a slowly progressive disease, much less dangerous to the community or to the individual than such highly contagious and many other diseases.

The growing economic and industrial importance of public health work was emphasized by several speakers. Sick-list insurance was advocated by Dr. E. S. Warren of the United States Health Service as a means of overcoming the handicap of poverty among many sufferers. Dr. Warren showed that disease is more prevalent among low paid workers than among better paid and that fully one-half of the wage-earning families of the United States do not have an income sufficient to maintain a healthy standard of living. A governmental system of sickness insurance for working people would increase their economic independence as well as their physical condition, he said.

Goodyear Fortified Tires Cost Users $5,000,000 Less

Our last price reduction—made February 1st—will save Goodyear users about five million dollars this year. And that was our third reduction in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

And we shall spend $100,000 on research this year to find more improvements still.

They Are Yours

These extras belong to you. They mean less rim-cuts, less blowouts, less loose treads. They mean more rubber, more fabric, more mileage, less trouble. Most tire users know that, so Goodyear tires far outsell any other. Prove it yourself this summer. It will bring you tire contentment.

Any dealer, if you ask him, will supply you Goodyear tires.

Yet Note This Yet Goodyear Fortified Tires embody many extras. Five are costly features found in no other tire. The rest are found in few. If we omitted those extras, we could save on this year's probable output $1,635,000. We could add that to our profits, yet Goodyear tires would look as good as now.

This year's improvements alone will cost us $500,000 this year. All to give you ex-

IF HAIR IS TURNING GRAY, USE SAGE TEA

Don't Look Old! Try Grandmother's recipe to darken and beautify faded, lifeless hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

A Greater Moral Than Any Stage Document Ever Conceived

HYPOCRITES is a real wonder production.

INSTITUT CARTIER IN CELEBRATION

(Continued from page one) came the members of the Institut Jacques Cartier, with over a hundred men in line. At the head of the column of marchers the American flag was sung to the breeze. At the head of the second division of marchers the tri-color of France waved. Bringing up the rear were two carriages in which were seated off-

cers of the Institut.

Cuddy in Address Directly following the parade to the grounds, a basket picnic was enjoyed, a large crowd consisting of families of members of the French order and their friends participating.

The feature of the afternoon was the address of Atty. Jos. E. Cuddy. Mr. Cuddy drew upon the history of the French people for his inspiration. He told of their explorations in this country, and praised the indefatigable zeal of Fr. Marquette and LaSalle and others of the great Frenchmen who were among the first in this country of the north.

The contribution that France made to the cause of the Colonies during the great struggle for independence, and how French people in America have upheld the principles of this republic was dwelt upon at length. Atty. Cuddy declared that the principles of democracy for which America stands today has also been the principles upon which the citizens of French extraction have leaned. The speaker was roundly applauded.

Matt Fillion in Address One of the features of the afternoon and one in which a great deal of enthusiasm was aroused was the address in French by Matt Fillion, prominent Escanaba business man and a member of the society. Mr. Fillion is an eloquent speaker and the applause of the big crowd testified to the impression his remarks made upon them.

LANSING SEC. OF STATE

(Continued from page one) world has been ushered into the premiership of the cabinet. This very fact, indeed, commended itself to the president's advisers as a reason for the appointment of a man of Mr. Lansing's experience and ability, the argument being advanced that at so critical a time in the nation's history the people of the United States wished all political considerations subordinated.

TURKS IN NEW SUCCESS

(Continued from page one) New Drive at Warsaw London, June 24.—A despatch from Amsterdam to the Central News Bureau says that the Germans are making another drive at Warsaw in an attempt to capture the city. In anticipation of the move the Teutonic forces are being transferred to the Bjura river district.

Italians Continue Successes Rome, June 24.—An official report given out today says:

"During the nights of June 20 and 22 and the next day following, the enemy made three desperate attacks on Friekofel. All of these attacks were repulsed with success by the fire of our artillery and by the effective use of hand grenades. When they retired the enemy left 800 dead upon the fields.

Reports British Gains Paris, June 24.—An official note today gives the details of land operations on the Dardanelles between June 1 and June 8 and recites that as a result of the attacks by the British and French that gains of large size were made on a front of a mile in length. The report says that 500 prisoners were taken.

Austrians Are Repulsed Verona, June 24.—According to reliable information reaching here the Austrians are receiving large reinforcements along the Italian front but are constantly being repulsed with heavy losses.

Harry St. Louis, brother of the bride was best man and Miss Dorothy Fillion was maid of honor.

Only members of the family and close personal friends attended the ceremony after which a dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Moritz will leave this evening for a trip to points in the east.

MIDSHIPMAN TELLS OF WITNESSING THE THEFT OF PAPERS Annapolis, Md., June 24.—Direct testimony of a highly damaging character was given Tuesday against Ralph McK. Nelson of Peekskill, N. Y., who stood third in the class that graduated from the naval academy last month, and who has been recommended for dismissal by Supt. Fullam for alleged cheating in an examination.

Nelson was accused of having stolen papers other than those referred to in the original charge by Midshipman James E. Waddell of Peoria, Ill., who was called as a witness today before the court of inquiry which is investigating irregularities in examination papers.

The witness said that on one occasion, when he and Nelson had surreptitiously entered the department of marine engineering to look at the private card index containing the marks they had got in their studies, he saw Nelson take from a desk some sheets on which were problems to be worked out in turbine engines.

NOTES OF THE SEWING ROOM Proper Way to Cut Out Lining of Blouse—Repairing Glove—When Threading Silk.

When cutting out the lining of a blouse yoke be sure to cut it the same way of the material as the outside, otherwise it will be unsatisfactory and will not fit.

Using a warm iron when cutting out a garment will do away with pins on tissue paper patterns. Lay the paper on the material and press lightly with the warm iron. The pattern clings to the cloth.

Quite the newest way of making a casing to run ribbon through is by making a wide cat stitch or feather stitch on the outside of the article to be used and through this run the ribbon. It holds as well as the old-fashioned way.

If a glove splits at the thumb or near a seam a sure and permanent way to repair it is to buttonhole the kid on either side of the split, then sew the buttonholed edges together. The result will be a new, firm seam that will never tear again. When buttonholing be sure to take a good hold of the kid, otherwise the stitches will pull out from the kid.

Always thread silk into a needle by putting the end of the silk that exists before it is unwound from the spool in the eye first. If the silk is put in from the end you break or cut, it untwists more easily than if it is threaded from the other end. Clip all bastings to be removed at five or six inch intervals. They can then be pulled out without wrinkling the fabric.

Net for Little Girls. Some lovely afternoon frocks for little girls are made of white wash net. The fabric is simple, yet is light and delicate enough to have a certain "party" air loved by children. One frock prettily developed in white net is made with a three-strapped skirt, a single rose fastened on each shoulder. The bodice is made of a ruffle like those on the skirts, gathered in about the waist line to form a full little paphum, and the sleeves, too, are narrow ruffles of net. It is all very simple but very pretty.

FEAR POTATOES BE A SHORT CROP THIS YEAR

Ishpeming, June 24.—It is likely that there will soon be a marked advance in the price of potatoes that have been carried over from last season. The continued wet and cold weather of the past several weeks has put back the new crop considerably, and new potatoes will not be in the market until later than usual. Meanwhile heavy demands are being made on the old stock, and it is growing less. Any changes in prices will be toward higher levels.

The outlook for the crop in this vicinity varies according to the nature of the ground that has been planted. Farmers who till the lowlands between here and Eagle Mills do not expect to have any potatoes at all. Seed that was planted three weeks ago has not yet sent shoots above the ground. One farmer yesterday said that the seed he planted for early harvesting had only commenced to sprout, when by this time of the year the shoots should be eight or ten inches above the ground.

Experienced potato growers fear that if there is much more rain before the plants have sprouted all of the seed potatoes rot before they have time to germinate. Some of the potatoes which were planted about six weeks ago on the high lands are just commencing to grow above the ground and it will be several weeks before they will be ready for digging.

CITY HALL QUARTERS ARE BEING REPAIRED

Workmen were engaged today in plastering up the broken ceilings and walls in the city and in other places where such repairs were necessary on the city property. Work on the restoration will be begun as soon as the plasterers are through.
