TODAY ANNIVERSARY OF SARAJEVO TRAGEDY

Year Ago Arch Duke Ferdinand Was Killed by Serbian Student—Finds Teutons in Lead

(By Associated Press.)

The tide of battle is still going on in the Galician battlefield with the German-Austrian forces and the Russians the most prominent actors in the war drama.

At the same time the Germans are making another drive to push the Muscovites farther back, comes news of a Russian council of war, held at the front and presided over by the Emperor and participated in by Grand Duke Nicholas and other military experts and cabinet members. In Petrograd the recent retirement of the war minister is to be followed by other changes in the ministry, it is reported.

Following the report that Germany may begin another march towards Warsaw comes the report of string movements of German forces in south Poland. The latest Russ despatches mentions this but declares that up to date no success has attended the new move. It is likewise said that at Shavil and the Nahrew river regions and across the Niemen the Germans have been repulsed.

NEW REVOLT CRUSHED WHEN HUERTA IS HELD AT U. S.—MEXICAN LINE

GENERAL "VIC" GETS KNOCK-OUT IN PLANS FOR NEW REVOLUTION—CHARGED WITH BUYING ARMS AND MUNITIONS IN U. S.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, June 28.—Further inside details of a plot to restore the Huerta regime in Mexico, nipped in the bud yesterday by the United States, began to trickle out today while General Huerta and General Pascual Oroco, his aide ar under surveillance at El Paso. A score of Mexican and several Americans are in the plot it is said. The department of justice intends to sift the matter to the bottom to find the backers of the plot.

El Paso, Texas, June 28.—General Victoriano Huerta, once president of the Mexican republic, was seized yesterday morning by United States Cavalry officers, escorted by cavalrymen to Fort Bliss, charged with conspiracy to incite a revolution against a friendly country, and in the evening released on $15,000 bonds. General Pascual Oroco, once a military leader in Mexico, was taken into custody with General Huerta, similarly charged with violation of neutrality laws, and also released on a bond of $7500.

Seen Under Espionage

Huerta, who came to the United States from Spain several weeks ago, whether he exiled himself when unable to return to Mexico and regain control there, has been under surveillance from the time he left New York several days ago, ostensibly for San Francisco. After leaving Chicago westbound, reports began to reach here that he was bound for this city. The Mexican general denied the charges stating that he was on his way to Frisco in good faith to visit a daughter, Mrs. Fuentes.

GERHARDT TELLS OF U. S. ATTITUDE

Says United States Wants a Satisfactory Answer to the Lusitania Incident and Not War

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, June 28.—A favorable reply by Germany to the latest American note on the sinking of the Lusitania and the submarine warfare is indicated in today's despatch from Berlin. Despatches from Ambassador Gerard are of definite nature, yet the exact nature of the German reply is not divulged, and it did not let it be known as what the indication of trend of the German reply would be. However, it was of sufficient detail to put official circles in an optimistic mood. The despatch was communicated to President Wilson at his summer home at Cornish.

Ambassador Gerard based his observations on the effect of the visit of Meyer Gerhardt produced on the officials of the German government. Dr. Gerhardt was understood, by Gerard to have reported that public opinion in America was growing more and more favorable to Germany when the Lusitania was sunk, undoing all that had been done before. Dr. Meyer-Gerhardt made it plain that the United States did not want war but a satisfactory answer to the sinking of the Lusitania, and the allied demands.

FIFTEEN HOURS FROM CHICAGO TO ESCANABA

John E. Jackson Made the Trip Yesterday With a New Oldsmobile and Had No Difficulty.

The question of how long it ought to take to run from this city to Chicago or from Chicago to this city was settled by John E. Jackson yesterday when he came through with a new Oldsmobile in about 15 hours.

While Mr. Jackson was not trying to make a record, he did not waste any time on the road but drove steadily from 5:00 o'clock in the morning until he arrived in this city a little after 8:00 o'clock last night. A few stops were made for gasoline along the way.

Who will be the first autoist to cut that time to 12 hours or less?

FIVE WARRANTS WILL BE ISSUED TODAY FOR NORTH ESCANABA MEN

WHOLESALE ARRESTS TO FOLLOW RUPTION IN NORTH ESCANABA YESTERDAY—TWO FINED FOR ASSAULT—TWO BE ARRESTED FOR RESISTING OFFICER.

FAILED TO OBSERVE LIQUOR LAWS

Activity in the police courts of the city reached a high water mark today with the arrest and fining of two men on an assault and battery charge and the issuing of warrants for the arrest of seven more, all residents of North Escanaba. Of the seven warrants which will be issued this afternoon five are for alleged violations of the liquor laws, selling liquor without a license. All five of the men concerned in the coming warrant party are proprietors or managers of boarding houses catering to the foreign residents, largely Austrians. Two of the seven warrants are for resisting an officer.

The arrests of yesterday and the fining of John Kalarinskich and Joseph Boldin $25 and costs of $8.30 apiece today came as the climax of a determination to compel the keepers of such places to live within the law as regards selling of liquor. The hearings were held before Justice McEwen and the warrants issued from his office this afternoon, according to officers.

KELLOGG ENDORSES LOCAL INSTITUTION

Dr. J. H. Kellogg of Battle Creek, health expert and exponent of the curative powers of fresh air visited an Escanaba health institution yesterday during his stay here. He made a trip of inspection through the Escanaba Health Institute and pronounced the institution one of the best he has seen. It was stated by the Battle Creek M. D. that there are few cities the size of this in which the treatments offered can be duplicated. He was very much interested in the operation of a control table in use at the Health Institute and was much impressed with the completeness of things there.

CONGRESSMAN SCOTT IN THE CITY TODAY

Congressman and Mrs. Frank D. Scott of Alpena arrived in the city yesterday to spend a few days here during "Good Health Week." The genial and smiling representative of this district in the national assembly is just back from the east and is here especially for the Good Health Week move. He is very much interested in the movement and believes it will be for the benefit of the community.

Congressman Scott says that business is picking up in the east and showing a more optimistic tone, at present that has been evidenced for some time past.

Discussing the Bryan resignation, Congressman Scott said that the former secretary did the proper thing in relinquishing the office.

SWIFTLY MOVING BELT WHIRLS MILLWRIGHT TO HIS DEATH EARLY TODAY

AUGUST MAVES LOSES LIFE TO DAY IN MASONVILLE MILL WHEN CLOTHING IS CAUGHT BY BELT

A FORMER RESIDENT OF ESCANABA

Body Crushed and Mangled by Terrible Whirling of Belt—Leaves Widow and Two Children

The third of a series of fatal accidents in this and Menominee counties and the second in Delta within the past few days occurred shortly after eight o'clock this morning at the Masonville Lumber Company's mill at Masonville.

The dead:—

August Maves, a former Escanaba resident, employed as millwright at the Masonville Mill.

Maves was killed almost instantly when parts of his clothing were caught in the swiftly revolving belt driving some of the mill machinery and near which he was working at the time. The body of the millwright (Maves being employed at the mill in that capacity) was instantly whirled from its feet and carried rapidly towards the ceiling supports and towards a big pulley upon which the belt ran. Under the terrific momentum of the belt he was hurled violently against the wood supports time and again, his body being mangled in a terrible manner, many of the bones being broken and the flesh bruised and cut. Fellow employes seeing the plight of Maves ran to his aid and shut off the machinery but not before life had been crushed out.

Watch Stops When Killed

The body was carefully taken from the belt and a hurry call for a physician sent out. A short time later Undertaker Allo of this city was notified and went to the scene of the accident, bringing the body back this afternoon. Examination of the body disclosed the fact that a watch, carried by the unfortunate man stopped as the body was whirled over the big pulley the shock smashing the works.

Mr. Maves leaves a family of widow and two sons, Paul aged 8 and Carl, seven, besides two brothers, William of Marquette and Albert of Hiramsville. Mrs. Glad Jackson of Wilson is a sister, an aged mother also survives. Mother and widow are prostrated at the terrible death of son and husband. Deceased has been a resident of the county for 15 years, he was 44 years of age.

Funeral on Anniversary

A sad and peculiar coincident is noted in the fact that funeral services will be held on the date of the 11th anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Maves, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Burial will be at Lakeview cemetery.

MILLS RELEASED FROM CUSTODY EARLY TODAY

John Mills, Garden resident who was arrested a week ago on a warrant charging complicity in the death of James Broady at the time Ian Seavey's place was destroyed by fire was released today when the charges against him were dismissed by the prosecutor.

It was said this afternoon that the case against Mills was known to be weak and that there was not enough facts to warrant bringing the case to trial. However, it has been hinted that there is something back of the detention of Mills here, and that the matter of the death of Broady and Mercier is not yet settled. Officials refuse to discuss the matter along this line. Atty Dotsch of counsel for Mills also declining to make a statement.

MATT DAHL BURIED AT LAKEVIEW TODAY

Funeral services for the late Matt Dahl, Escanaba killed Friday night when a load of lumber shifted forward on the rig which he was driving hurled him from his seat to the ground, were held this afternoon from the home of the family on Escanaba avenue. Rev. C. E. Schidt of the Swedish M. E. church officiated and burial was at Lakeview cemetery.

PROGRAM IS ANNOUNCED

Propheas Eradication.

"Within ten yeares your city will have been freed from the dangers of tubercular germs if proper sanitation and living methods are followed," was a prophecy made during his address of last night at the high school by Dr. Kellogg. He urged Escanaba to be the first city of the Upper Peninsula in this regard. The eminent Battle Creek physician went into the causes of tuberculosis among infants, adults and children of tender years. He told of the preventative measures that can be taken.

"Dust—common street dust—dust of the kind that is stirred up by the housewife's broom, kept in circulation by the same means and in settling lights upon everything, furniture, clothing and food," said Dr. Kellogg. He asserted that dust carried tubercular germs for obvious reasons.

Outside wells in cities and vaults were cited as other causes for spread of the disease. Alcohol—"booze"—cigarettes, these are all causes for tuberculosis, he asserted. He declared that alcohol lowers the resistance of the body to such an extent that it cannot successfully combat tuberculosis.

Clean Lives—Clean Blood
"Clean lives and clean blood," said Dr. Kellogg, "will fortify the body against the germs. Will make it able to successfully cope with the infection."

"Fresh air is the greatest cure for tubercular infection known," asserted the Battle Creek M. D. "Keep your windows open and live in the fresh air and you will not be infected" he admonished his audience.

That tuberculosis in its early stages can be cured in one's own home was one among other statements along the line of cures, made by Dr. Kellogg. He accompanied his lecture with graphic slides of subjects upon which he was discoursing.

Afternoon Lecture
During the afternoon address at the Delft theatre, Dr. Kellogg made the bald statement that ninety of every hundred persons in the theatre at that time were infected with tubercular germs. His address followed some what the general lines of the evening address at the high school, altho dealing more with the curative side of the "White Plague." Slides and motion pictures proved an interesting accompaniment to the address. A series of motion pictures of the living bacilli and germs in water and milk and their pernicious activity made a deep impression upon the large audience.

Advocates Compulsory Examination
Advocacy of a general examination of all persons, for tubercular tests, was revealed during the lectures of Dr. Kellogg here yesterday. He declared that within a short time the state would institute an "examination day" at which time every person can be examined for tubercular germs by local physicians, without cost. The date for the event, he stated, has not yet been set, but will come some time during the fall.

Mayor MacKilligan introduced the speaker of the day, expressing the gratification of the city at his visit here. Rev. Brown pronounced the invocation and Rev. Hoard the benediction.

Additional features of yesterday's sessions was the musical numbers, during the afternoon by a double quartette of make voices, and in the evening a magnificent vocal number by Charles R. Price, and numbers by the orchestra. An organ prelude and postlude were also features of the afternoon meeting.

Much Interest Created
Escanaba and Delta county people are showing a range of interest that spells success for the undertaking of a health week here and gives promise of large and enthusiastic attendance during the remainder of the week's activities.

The Silent Hour.
One of the most valuable and effective methods of relaxation, recently tried for both children and mother, has been "the silent hour" immediately after luncheon. Each member of the family's privilege of reading, writing or sleeping is respected during this hour, in which children—after a few days' trial—readily co-operate.

Wonderful Cuban Caves.
The wonderful caves of Bellmar, Cuba, to the east of Havana, attract the attention of the ambitious tourist. They are on a plateau as level as a table top, which presents no signs of the existence of such caves. After descending into the earth, however, a picture unfolds itself. Then come many passages, and at last the great "Gothic temple," 250 feet long and 80 feet wide.

The BLACK BOX

by E. Phillips Oppenheim

SYNOPSIS.

Sanford Quest, master criminologist of the world, finds that in bringing to justice MacDougal, the murderer of Lord Ashleigh's daughter, he has but just begun a life-and-death struggle with a mysterious master criminal. In a hidden hut in Professor Ashleigh's garden he has seen an ape skeleton and a living creature, half monkey, half man, destroyed by fire. In big rooms have appeared black boxes containing notes, signed by a pair of armless hands. Laura and Lenora, his assistants, suspect Craig, the professor's servant, of a double murder. The black boxes continue to appear in uncanny fashion. Craig, trapped, escapes to England. Quest, Lenora and the professor follow him. Lord Ashleigh is murdered by the hands. Craig, captured, escapes to Port Said. Quest and his party follow, and beyond into the desert. They are captured by Mongars, escape with Craig as their captive, and turn him over to Inspector French in San Francisco. He escapes in a train wreck, outwits his pursuers, and starts back to New York.

A BOLT FROM THE BLUE.

CHAPTER XXXI.

There was a peculiar, almost foreboding silence about the camp that morning when Laura returned from her early ride. The only living person to be seen was the Chinaman, sitting on a stool in front of the wagon with a dish of potatoes between his knees. "Say, where's everyone?" Laura sang out, after she had looked into Lenora's tent and found it empty. The Chinaman looked up at her malevolently. "All gone," he announced. "Cows gone workee. Misesse gone hurry up find Mr. Quest." Laura hesitated, puzzled. Just then the professor came cantering in with a bundle of grass in his hand. He glanced down at the Chinaman. "Good morning, Miss Laura!" he said. "You don't seem to be getting on with our friend here," he added in an undertone. "Pshaw!" she answered. "Who cares what a chink thinks! The fellow's an idiot. I'm worried, professor. Lenora's gone out after Mr. Quest and the inspector. She wasn't fit to ride a horse. I can't make out why she's absent." The professor unslung some field-glasses from his shoulder and gazed steadily southward. "It is just possible," he said, softly, "that she may have received a warning of that."

CHAPTER XXXII.

The professor laid down his book and gazed with an amiable smile towards Quest and Lenora. "I fear," he remarked, dolefully,

"that my little treatise on the fauna of the northern Orinoco scarcely appeals to you, Mr. Quest." Quest, whose arm was in a sling, but who was otherwise none the worse for his recent adventure, pointed out of the tent. "Don't you believe it, professor," he begged. "I've been listening to every word. But say, Lenora, just look at Laura and French!" They all three peered anxiously out of the opening of the tent. Laura and the inspector were very slowly approaching the cook wagon. Laura was carrying a large bunch of wild flowers, one of which she was in the act of fastening in French's button-hole.

"That fellow French has got grit," Quest declared. "He sticks to it all the time. He'll win out with Laura in the end, you mark my words." "We've wired for them to meet Craig," Quest said, after a short silence. "I only hope they don't let him slip through their fingers. I haven't much faith in his promise to turn up at the professor's. Let's see what Laura and French have to say." "Can't see any sense in staying on here any longer," was French's immediate decision, "so long as you two invalids feel that you can stick the journey. Besides, we're using up these fellows' hospitality."

"They busied themselves for the next hour or two, making preparations. After their evening meal the two men walked with Lenora and Laura to their tent. "I think you girls had better go to bed," Quest suggested. "Try and get a long night's sleep." "That's all very well," French remarked, "but it's only eight o'clock. What about a stroll, Miss Laura, just up to the ridge?" Laura hesitated for a moment and glanced towards Lenora.

"Please go," the latter begged. "I really don't feel like going to sleep just yet." "I'll look after Lenora," Quest promised. "You have your walk. There's the professor sitting outside his tent. Wouldn't you like to take him with you?" Laura glanced indignantly at him as they strolled out, and Lenora laughed softly.

"How dared you suggest such a thing!" she murmured to Quest. "Do look at them. The inspector wants her to take his watch and she can't quite make up her mind about it. Why, Laura's getting positively frivolous." When the inspector returned Quest handed him a telegram: "To Inspector French, Alguaz, N. M.: Very sorry, Craig gave us slip after leaving depot. Nice disappeared from address given. No clues at present. When are you returning? French swore softly for a moment. Then he dropped into a chair.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

"This," he declared, "is our unlucky evening." The woman who had just laid the cloth for a homely evening meal smiled across at the girl who stood at the window. "It's all ready now directly your uncle comes home," she announced. Mrs. Malony came to the girl's side. "Your poor uncle looks as though a little peace would do him good," she remarked. "The girl sighed. "If only I could do something for him!" she murmured. "He's in some kind of trouble, I think," Mrs. Malony observed. "He is not what you might call a communicative person, but it's easy to see that he is far from being happy in himself. You'll ring when you're ready, Miss Mary?" The door was suddenly opened and Craig entered.

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"Look across the road," he begged. "Tell me if there is a man in a blue serge suit and a bowler hat, smoking a cigar, looking across here." Mrs. Malony and the girl both obeyed. The girl was the first to speak. "Yes," she answered. "He's looking straight at these windows." Craig groaned and sank down upon a chair. "Leave us, if you please, Mrs. Malony," he ordered. "I'll ring when I'm ready." The landlady left the room silently. The girl came over to her uncle and threw her arm around his neck. He patted her head, felt in his pockets and drew out a little paper bag, from which he shook a bunch of violets.

"How kind you are to me!" she exclaimed. "You think of everything!" He sighed. "If I had had you for a little longer, Mary," he said, "perhaps I should have been a better man. Go to the window, please, and tell me if that man is still there." She crossed the room with light footsteps. Presently she returned. "He is just crossing the street," she announced. "I think that he seems to be coming here." Craig took the girl for a minute into his arms. "Good-by, dear," he said. "I want you to take this paper and keep it carefully. You will be cared for always, but I must go."

"But where must you go?" she asked, bewildered. "I have an appointment at Professor Ashleigh's," he told her. "I cannot tell you anything more than that. Good-by." He kissed her for a moment passionately. Then suddenly he tore himself away. She heard him run lightly down the stairs. Some instinct led her to the back window. She saw him emerge from the house and pass down one condition only of my bequest, and I beg my niece to fervently respect it. It is that she never of her own consent or knowledge speak to anyone of the name of Ashleigh, or associate with any of that name.

JOHN CRAIG.
The man folded up the paper. "I'll take care of this," he said. "It's yours, right enough. We'll just need to borrow it for a time. Go and get your hat and coat on for me. I shall not be here." "I shall not be," the girl objected. "My uncle told me, if anything happened to him, that I was to remain here."

"And remain here she shall, as long as she likes," Mrs. Malony insisted. "I've given my promise, too, to look after her, and Mr. Craig knows that I am an honest woman."

"You may be that," the man replied, "but it's just as well for you both to understand this. I'm from the police and what I say goes. No harm will come to the girl, Mrs. Malony, and she shall come back here, but for the present she is going to accompany me to headquarters. If you make any trouble, I only have to blow my whistle and I can fill your house with policemen."

"I'll go," the girl whispered. In silence she put on her hat and coat, in silence she drove with him to the police station, where she was shown at once into the inspector's office. The man who had brought her whistled for a moment or two with his chief and handed him the paper. Inspector French read it and whistled softly. He took up the telephone by his side.

"Say, you've something of a find here," he remarked to the plain-clothes man. "Put me through to Mr. Quest, please," he added, speaking into the receiver.

The two men whispered together. The girl stole from her place and turned over rapidly the pages of a directory which was on the round table before her. She found the "A's" quickly. Her eye fell upon the name of Ashleigh. She repeated the address to herself and glanced around. The two men were still whispering. For the moment she was forgotten. She stole on tiptoe across the room, ran down the stone steps and hastened into the street.

CHAPTER XXXIV.
The professor, who was comfortably seated in Quest's favorite easy chair, glanced at his watch and shook his head. "I am afraid, my friend," he said, "that Craig's nerve has failed him. A voluntary surrender was perhaps too much to hope for." Quest smoked for a moment in silence.

His servant entered bearing a note. "This was left a few minutes ago, sir," he announced, "by a messenger boy. There was no answer required." The man retired. Quest unfolded the sheet of paper. His expression suddenly changed. "Listen!" he exclaimed. To Sanford Quest: Gather your people in Professor Ashleigh's library at ten o'clock to-night. I will be there and tell you my whole story. JOHN CRAIG.

The professor sat for a moment speechless. "Then he meant it, after all!" he exclaimed at last. "Seems like it," Quest admitted. "I'll just telephone to French."

The professor rose to his feet, knocked the ash from his cigar, struggled into his coat and took up his hat. Then he waited until Quest had completed his conversation. The latter's face had grown grave and puzzled. It was obvious that he was receiving information of some importance. He put down the instrument at last with a curt word of farewell.

The professor moved towards the door. "If only this may prove to be the end!" he sighed. Quest spent the next hour or so in restless deliberations. There were still many things which puzzled him. At about a quarter past nine Lenora and Laura arrived, dressed for their expedition.

"I'm afraid we are in for a bad thunderstorm, girls," Quest remarked. Laura laughed. "Who cares? The automobile's there, Mr. Quest."

"Let's go, then," he replied. They descended into the street and drove to the professor's house in silence. Even Laura was feeling the strain of these last hours of anxiety. On the way they picked up French and a plain-clothes man and the whole party arrived at their destination just as the storm broke. The professor met them in the hall. He, too, seemed to have lost to some extent his customary equanimity.

"Come this way, my friends," he invited. "If Craig keeps his word, he will be here now within a few minutes. This way." They followed him into the library. Chairs were arranged around the table in the middle of the room and they all sat down. The professor took out his watch. It was five minutes to ten.

"In a few minutes," he continued solemnly, "this weight is to be lifted from the minds of all of us. I have come to the conclusion that on this occasion Craig will keep his word. I am not sure, mind but I believe that he is in the house at this present moment. I have heard movements in the room which belonged to him. I have not interfered. I have been content to wait."

"He has at least not tried escape," Quest remarked. "French here brought news of him. He has been living with his niece very quietly, but without any particular attempt at concealment or any signs of wishing to leave the city."

"I had that girl brought to my office," French remarked, "barely an hour ago, but she slipped away while we were talking. Say, what's that?" They all rose quickly to their feet. In a momentary lull of the storm they could hear distinctly a girl's shrill calling from outside, followed by the clamor of angry voices.

"Geel! I bet that's the girl," French exclaimed. "She'd been looking up the professor's address in a directory."

They all hurried out into the hall. The plainclothes man whom they had left on guard was standing there with his hand upon Craig's collar. The girl, sobbing bitterly, was clinging to his arm. Craig was making desperate efforts to escape. Directly he saw the little party issue from the library, however, the strength seemed to pass from his limbs. He remained in the clutches of his captor, limp and helpless.

"I caught the girl trying to make her way into the house," the latter explained. "She called out and this man came running downstairs, right into my arms."

"It is quite all right," the professor said, in a dignified tone. "You may release them both. Craig was on his way to keep an appointment here at ten o'clock. Quest, will you and the inspector bring him in? Let us resume our places at the table."

The little procession made its way down the hall. The girl was still clinging to her uncle. "What are they going to do to you, these people?" she sobbed. "They sha'n't hurt you. They sha'n't!" (Continued on Page Four)

COLLEGE MAN'S VACATION.

That a college education does not necessarily mean preparation for what used to be styled the "learned professions" is, of course, well understood. It has been a long time, indeed, since that was the meaning, says Providence Journal. Is not the oldest living graduate of the present time as likely to be a retired manufacturer or merchant as a lawyer, doctor, educator or clergyman? The legend rather sticks to the colleges, nevertheless; so that statistics showing what men go to college for nowadays and vocations they pursue are apt to be surprising as well as informing. An examination of this matter, just made by a Yale professor, covering the occupation of 18,000 living graduates, shows that the drift away from the old professions has been greatly accelerated within the last ten years. Of the increase in the student body in that period by far the larger percentage has turned its back on the so-called professions, and has prepared for industrial, engineering, commercial and scientific occupations. Ten years ago, for example, there were four times as many Yale lawyers as engineers; but since then the engineers have increased 135 per cent., the lawyers only 24 per cent.

Holland, where art has always found a hospitable home, if one may judge by the multiplicity of pictures in which Dutch windmills, wooden shoes and dikes are the chief features, is finding it necessary to treat the artist with unusual rigidity owing to the exactions of war. It is said that really fine paintings are selling as low as $20 apiece. Some dealers have been forced out of business and are seeking to make a livelihood in other ways. The harvest reaped from tourist trade has dwindled to nothing. Even the government has withdrawn its annual fixed credit at the disposal of art museums for the purchase of pictures. The artists have organized for mutual aid and are doing what they can to believe the more needy members of their craft.

Glass, of which England is threatened with a scarcity through the closing of Belgian sources of supply, used at one time to be made by a most aristocratic set of workmen. A French law passed under Louis IX allowed none but men of noble birth to set up glass-blowing establishments, or even to work therein. For many centuries this was the only industry which noblemen could engage in without losing caste. The art of glass making came to England originally from France, and in early days in this country the workmen styled themselves "gentlemen glass blowers."

"Of course not, dear," she said, soothingly. "Your uncle has come of his own free will to answer a few questions, only I think it would be better if you would let me—"

Lenora never finished her sentence. They had reached the entrance now to the library. The professor was standing in the doorway with extended hand, motioning them to take their places at the table. Then, with no form of warning, the room seemed suddenly filled with a blaze of blue light. It came at first in a thin flash from the window to the table, became immediately multiplied a thousand times, played round the table, in sparks, which suddenly expanded to sheets of leaping, curling flame. The roar of thunder shook the very foundations of the house—and then silence. For several seconds not one of them seemed to have the power of speech. An amazing thing had happened. The oak table in the middle of the room was a charred fragment, the chairs were every one blackened remnants.

"A thunderbolt!" French gasped at last.

Quest was the first to cross the room. From the table to the outside window was one charred, black line which had burnt its way through the carpet. He threw open the window. The wire whose course he had followed ended here with a little lump of queer substance. He broke it off from the end of the wire, which was absolutely brittle and natureless, and brought it into the room.

"What is it?" Lenora faltered.

"Say, what have you got there?" French echoed.

Quest examined the strange-looking lump of metal steadily. The most curious thing about it seemed to be that it was absolutely sound and showed no signs of damage. He turned to the professor.

"I think you are the only one who will be able to appreciate this, professor," he remarked. "Look! It is a fragment of opotam—a distinct and wonderful specimen of opotam."

Everyone looked puzzled.

"But what," Lenora inquired, "is opotam?"

"It is a new metal," Quest explained, gravely, "towards which scientists have been directing a great deal of attention lately. It has the power of collecting all the electricity from the air around us. There are a dozen people, at the present moment, conducting experiments with it for the purpose of cheapening electric lights. If we had been in the room ten seconds sooner—"

He paused significantly. Then he swung round on his heel. Craig, a now pitiful object, his hands nervously twitching, his face ghastly, was covering in the background.

"Your last little effort, Craig?" he demanded, sternly.

Craig made no reply. The professor, who had disappeared for a moment, came back to them.

"There is a smaller room across the hall," he said, "which will do for our purpose."

Craig suddenly turned and faced them.

"I have changed my mind," he said. "I have nothing to tell you. Do what you will with me. Take me to the Tomb, deal with me any way you choose, but I have nothing to say."

Scene in "Everywoman" which will appear at the Deft Saturday July 3

Quest pointed a threatening finger at him.

"Your last voluntary word, perhaps," he said, "but science is still your master, Craig. Science has brought many criminals to their doom. It shall take its turn with you. Bring him along, French, to my study. There is a way of dealing with him."

Quest felt his forehead and found it damp. There were dark rims under his eyes. Before him was Craig, with a little band around his forehead and the mirror where they could all see it. The professor stood a little in the background. Lenora and French were side by side, gazing with distended eyes at the blank mirror, and Lenora was doing her best to soothe the terrified girl. Twice Quest's teeth came together and once he almost reeled.

"It's the fight of his life," he muttered at last, "but I've got him."

Almost as he spoke they could see Craig's resistance begin to weaken. The tenseness of his form relaxed. Quest's will was triumphing. Slowly in the mirror they saw a little picture creeping from the outline into definite form, a picture of the professor's library. Craig himself was there with mortar and trowel, and a black box in his hand.

"It's coming!" Lenora moaned.

Quest stood perfectly tense. The picture suddenly flashed into brilliant clearness. They saw Craig's features with almost lifelike detail. From the corner of that room where the professor was standing, came a smothered groan. It was a terrifying, a paralyzing moment. Even the silence seemed charged with awful things. Then suddenly, without any warning, the picture faded completely away. A cry, which was almost a howl of anger, broke from Quest's lips. Craig had fallen sideways from his chair. There was an ominous change in his face. Something seemed to have passed from the atmosphere of the room, some tense and nameless quality. Quest moved forward and laid his hand on Craig's heart. The girl was on her knees, screaming.

"I caught the girl trying to make her way into the house."

"Take her away," Quest whispered to Lenora.

"What about him?" French demanded, as Lenora led the girl from the room.

"He fought too hard," Quest said, gravely. "He is dead. Professor—"

They all looked around. The spot where he had been standing was empty. The professor had gone.

GRAY HAIR BECOMES DARK, THICK, GLOSSY

Look Years Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also, ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

SOME SPICY SPORT CHATS

Old Time Heavyweight Pugilists Are Envious of Jess Willard.

HE IS GATHERING SHEKELS.

New Title Holder Now Making a Fortune—How Long Will Federal League Last?—Wallace as an Umpire—Other Comment.

It must make the past heavyweight champions toss in their beds at night to think of the bets they overlooked in the way of garnering the many millions. Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, Tommy Burns, Jim Jeffries and all down the line the glove artists must envy Jess Willard for the easy way he is raking in the shekels. Ring warriors of the yesteryear all worked hard for their money, if encounters of the manly art can be called work. But look at Jess. He is touring the country with a wild west show and is said to be reaping a harvest, not at stopping would be challengers for his title, but by throwing the lasso, giving exhibitions of his former western life when he was but just an ordinary forty dollar a month cowboy.

Jim Corbett, after he had attained the pinnacle of the pugilistic world might have toured the country giving exhibitions of running up checks on an adding machine or balancing pass books, for he was a bank clerk. Fitzsimmons, a blacksmith, might have worked the gullible public in many ways, but none of these occupations would have proved as beneficial as the one which Willard is following, for he is gaining in health and strength.

Just how long the Federal league will last is one of the puzzles that is confronting fans and club owners in organized baseball.

The losses incurred by the new league this season are so enormous that it must be keeping some one decidedly busy making both ends meet. In Baltimore the situation is really desperate and it would not be at all surprising if the club were taken away from that city and placed elsewhere in the hope of cutting down the losses. So weak is the attendance in Baltimore now that the club is losing money hand over fist. This same condition exists in Newark and Buffalo, while Brooklyn is not breaking even and the clubs in St. Louis and Kansas City are among the losers. Chicago is not doing more than breaking even. Just where all the money is coming from to square these losses is a mystery. Angels are not so plentiful now as they used to be.

Bobby Wallace gives promise of becoming a competent umpire as he was a ball player. With this year's experience he is expected to be one of the stars of the American league staff. He is working with Billy Evans, and under his guidance is advancing rapidly. Wallace, of course, has had an advantage over the average fellow who breaks into the big league in that he will have the assistance of all the players. It seems to be an understanding among the players not to object to anything that Wallace may do, in this way giving him confidence and helping to establish him as a real umpire.

TRUST a tobacco lover to tell his friends as soon as he has become acquainted with the Real Tobacco Chew. Not only real tobacco, but the best of real tobacco. A little chew lasts a long time—it's chuck full of the good tobacco taste.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!!
W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED, RIGHT-CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

(Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.)

BELTED JACKET SUIT IN SHEPHERD'S CHECK.

The belted effect, which gives the fullness the effect of being taken in with side pleats, is the pronounced feature of the coat which forms a part of this shepherd's check costume. A white cloth collar stitched with black braid finishes the V-shaped neck, and the sleeves have two seams. The skirt is one of the new high-waisted circular models, trimmed down the front with a row of buttons. Heavy silk covers the buttons, which appear very attractively also upon the front and sleeves of the coat. The entire costume requires 4 1/2 yards 54-inch material, with 1/2 yard cloth for the collar.

In cutting a tailored coat the slightest inaccuracy means disaster. By referring to the cutting guide it will be noticed that the front of the coat, placed on a lengthwise thread of the material, is so carefully placed that the neck line rests directly against the selvedge of the check, while the lower edge of the front is removed about 1/8 of an inch. As slight as the difference may seem, it affects the line of the coat in front, therefore the pattern should be laid with mathematical precision on the material. To the right of the front is placed the underfacing.

Then along the lengthwise fold of the check is laid the back, and to the left of the back the collars and belt. If the home dressmaker prefers the shawl collar cut off edges of square collar and underfacing on single small "o" perforations. The open neck and round collar without revers is gained by cutting out neck edge of front and cutting off upper edge of underfacing on double "oo" perforations. The length of the jacket can be regulated according to the fancy of the wearer, single "o" perforations being provided for such regulation.

The pattern is an excellent one for the heavier linen materials that are used for tailored models. The pockets may be omitted or their presence may be emphasized by stitchings of braid.

Leather sports hats are among the leading members of Military Land. Tam crowns of black velvet upon straw foundations are lovely and fashionable.

Over Six Million Dead is Toll of War in Europe, According to A Review First Published Today

One year ago today the Austrian Archduke, Francis Ferdinand, and his wife were shot and killed in the little Bosnian town of Serajevo by Garvilo Prinzip. It was the act of Prinzip, a poor student, which ultimately resulted in ten nations going to war. These nations are, on one hand, Great Britain, France, Russia, Serbia, Japan, Belgium, Italy and Montenegro, and on the other Germany, Austria and Turkey. The war to date, according to conservative estimates compiled from the best available reports, has caused a loss to the various belligerents of more than six million men, dead, wounded and prisoners, and more than five hundred ships. Of these about 120 were war vessels.

The outstanding results on land are these:

The greater portion of Belgium is under the control of Germany.

Germany has been driven from the Far East.

A part of the Dardanelles is in the possession of the Allied troops.

Portions of France and Russia are in the possession of German troops.

A strip of Alsace has been taken from Germany.

On the continent of Africa parts of territorial possessions have been lost by both sides.

Various island possessions of Germany have been taken by the forces of the Allies.

Italian troops are in possession of a strip of Austrian territory.

The outstanding results at sea are these:

German and Austrian mercantile shipping has been driven from all the open seas.

German and Austrian war vessels having a total displacement of approximately 257,000 tons have been destroyed.

War vessels of the Allied nations having a total displacement of approximately 192,000 tons have been sent to the bottom.

The greater portions of the German and Allied fleets in the North Sea remain intact.

Except for communication through Holland and the Scandinavian nations Germany is cut off from the rest of the world.

Efforts on the part of the Germans to place the British Isles in a similar predicament has resulted in the sinking by submarines of hundreds of vessels flying the flags of the Allied and neutral nations.

The sinking in this manner of the Cunard liner Lusitania with the loss of more than one hundred American lives precipitated a request upon the part of the United States that such practices insofar as they may menace Americans, be stopped.

SHAMPOO FOR SMALL CHILD

Proper Materials and Efficient Method Are the Vital Points to Be Considered.

Many an overburdened mother has gladly turned over the task of shampooing the youngsters to the elder sister, who really deserves the title of the family beauty doctor. Not only is this a relief to the mother, but it is an excellent thing for the children, as few mothers have either the knowledge or the time properly to shampoo two or three bobbing little heads. Great harm is done the hair by slovenly or too strenuous shampooing. In the one case, harsh alkalis or uncleanly soaps remain in the hair, and in the other too drastic substances are employed for cleansing the hair of oil and dust.

The beauty doctor takes the rebellious little patient to the bathroom, throws a combing cape of Turkish toweling over the bare shoulders, and folds another small Turkish towel on the edge of the stationary washstand for the patient to rest her chin on.

In a bowl close at hand she has ready the yolk of one egg, beaten thoroughly, with one pint of warm rain water and an ounce of rosemary spirits. The egg will remove dandruff and cut the excessive oil in the hair. Rosemary leaves behind a pleasant perfume. Dipping both hands into the shampoo mixture, she works it into the scalp, rubbing thoroughly with the finger tips. When the scalp is saturated and the dandruff is loosened, she has the patient rest her chin on the folded towel, and the rinsing begins. The hair is not washed its full length, but the shampoo, as it is washed down, cleanses the hair.

A rubber tube, which can be adjusted to any pipe, and which has a perforated spray nozzle, is useful for rinsing, and warm, not hot nor cold, water should be used. The right hand directs the flow of the water, and the left is held at the base of the brain or on the forehead to prevent the water from running down the back or into the eyes.

Soft, warm towels are used for patting the hair dry. It should never be rubbed violently. Then it is fanned. Drying in the sun makes the hair lighter in tint, but this often induces headaches.

The beauty doctor understands scalp massage, and knows that the mere rotary movement of the finger tips over the scalp is not sufficient, but the scalp must be loosened from the skull, because if the scalp fits too tightly to the skull the hair cannot grow.

If You Wear Lace-Front Corsets, Then You Should Wear

Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets

The thin double rust-proof boning used in Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets is ideal for lace-front styles. Most lace-front models have so much boning, etc., at the front that they are boxy and clumsy. Warner's thin double boning lightens the weight and gives added flexibility. It will not set nor break.

The new models shape perfectly in lines of current fashions and fit with a comfort you will appreciate. The patented protector beneath the lacings is one feature alone that distinguishes them for health and comfort.

We will appreciate the opportunity to show these Warner models to you, because we know that you will like them, and we want you to know the correct service that we offer.

HEART IS ON RIGHT SIDE

Chicago Man's Stomach Also Leans to Right—Says He Is Progressing Backward.

Chicago.—Out at the County hospital is a man who was born turned around forty-three years ago and has been progressing backward ever since, according to his own interesting theory.

"I figure I must be living now in the year 1872, and if I hang on another ten years I'll have to watch out or I'll walk into the battle of Gettysburg," he said.

Charles Schuppel is the proud possessor of a rare organic transposition, which the medical profession mysteriously term situs inversus. His heart is on the right side, his liver on the left, his spleen on the right and his stomach farther over to the right than it should be.

Dr. H. H. Slominski, who has had charge of Mr. Schuppel, said the occurrence of a complete transposition of all the organs was rare in medical history.

"No one knows the cause of such a condition, which is natal," he added.

DOLLAR DEFLECTS A BULLET

Indian's Life Saved When Coin Turns Aside Syrian's Shot in Oregon Town.

Pendleton, Ore.—A silver dollar in his shirt pocket saved the life of Joe Hays, an Indian, who was shot by George Ackley, a Syrian. Hays and Patrick Isadore, another Indian, went to the restaurant of Ackley and ordered hot tamales. There followed a quarrel with Ackley, who claims that Hays was holding him while Isadore was trying to knife him. Ackley drew a revolver and fired. The bullet struck the Indian squarely over the heart, but was flattened and stopped by the silver dollar.

WOMAN DIRECTED "THE HYPOCRITES" TO REAL SUCCESS

The New York Sun, commenting upon the great film production, "The Hypocrites" which comes to this city tomorrow evening at the Delft theatre, says:

"The success won by 'The Hypocrites' at the Longacre Theatre is doubly a woman's triumph, since two women, Margaret Edwards as the principal actress and Lois Weber as the producing director, are responsible for the film's excellence. Many are inclined to attribute the quickly won popularity of this allegory in pictorial form to the fact that it em-

PARASITES CAUSE OF CANCER SAYS PACKARD

(By Associated Press.)
Chicago, June 28.—Entrance of a parasite or fungus growth is a cause of cancer, according to the opinion of Dr. Horace Packard of Boston University, who discussed "The Cancer Question" before the Surgical and Gynecological Society of the American Institute of Homeopathy here today. Dr. Packard emphasized his belief that the possible cause of cancer is dietary and argued that demineralized foods form factor in the disease's development. The human family is underfed in mineral food salts, he said.

"A momentous fact," he added, "is that the flour mills and the rice mills of the civilized world are busy eliminating every particle of iron, phosphorus, sodium, potassium, silica, calcium, chlorine, magnesium and sulphur, (mineral salts) from our staple food supply and sending out food material rich in heat units but pitifully meagre in energizing and immunizing material."

"In a single flour mill of the middle West, approximately one million tons of wheat are milled each year. Of this about 550 thousand tons go to the human family as refined flour (wheat starch) and 450 thousand tons of the by-products bearing the energizing, immunizing food salts go mainly to feed domestic animals."

PLAY IS NECESSARY TO MENTAL ACTIVITY

(By Associated Press.)
Chicago, June 28.—Recreation has become a matter of public concern, said Dr. Anson Cameron of Chicago, contending in an address before the American Institute of Homeopathy here today that "in the past the attitude toward recreation in America has been that of the Puritan to whom joy is danger."

Dr. Cameron was speaking before the Bureau of Pedagogy of the Institute, discussing the "Effect of Play on Mental Development and Education."

The merry pill chasers of Capt. Olmsted's crew yesterday afternoon put over the big wallop on the visiting Green Bay aggregation of would-be pastimers to the tune of 7-0. The whitewash brush was applied freely and without restraint in every session, the Bay crew being held to four hits by Garland of the locals. Smith, hurling for the Bay team was touched so frequently that an average of one blow a frame was garnered off his delivery.

Escanaba failed to count in the first, but put two across in the second, two in the third and one each in the fourth and fifth frames, clean hits being responsible for the larger number of counters. The seventh session added the final tally Hoffman slipping over.

First class support back of Garland assisted in the general clean-up work, but one boot being made during Sunday's contest at South Park. The visitors blew up four times, at costly crises in the play.

day's contest at South Park. The visitors blew up four times, at costly crises in the play.

Saturday's Game a Runaway
While the game of yesterday was a cleaner and faster article than that of the day before neither scrap measured up to the class of ball played a week ago by Escanaba's opponents. Saturday's game was won without effort 11-2, the tallies of the visitors apparently being the result of a feeling of generosity on the part of Olmsted's men, while they hit and ran bases at will, touching Bader's offerings for five blows.

The fast Marquette crowd is to be the attraction here July 3, 4, and 5, and this series promises local fans some of the real article of ball, a sample of which was witnessed last week.

Buick Valve-in-Head Six-Cylinder Touring Car, Model D-45

Regardless of the car you buy or the price you pay, nowhere can you get greater value

More enduring than chrome vanadium steel, more wonderful than the finest workmanship, is the idea that can dominate an industry. In this day when more Buicks are being built than ever before it is interesting to remember that the distinguishing characteristic of the Buick, the valve-in-head motor, has existed as an idea for twenty-five years and been built into Buick cars for thirteen years. From 1903 to 1907 the Buick Valve-in-Head was a two cylinder engine. From 1908 to 1914 four cylinders dominated the field and the Buick Valve-in-Head Four dominated other types. The Buick Valve-in-Head Six was first put on the market in 1913. Fours were also continued—but the Valve-in-head Six had stirred the imagination of the car-buying public. The demand from the start outpaced the production. This demand has become so overwhelming that now—for 1916—the

1916 SIXES Exclusively

Four gives way to Sixes. Two chassis, both Sixes, with roadster, touring car, coupe, sedan bodies. The Six has been made standard because in the Six the Valve-in-Head idea has its greatest opportunity for service. Also since the first appearance of the Buick Six there has risen an insistent demand for smaller Buick Sixes. The Six is a natural, logical efficient form for the Valve-in-Head type. Never before has the Valve-in-Head idea had such adequate materialization. This year the Buick factory is arranged for Sixes exclusively. The production will be large. Demand necessitates a steady stream of Buick trains leaving the factory during the season. And the Power, Economy, Dependability and Comfort of 1916 Buick Sixes justify this demand more than ever. Study the specifications and you'll see why.

YOU who know, know tire values from experience; but note also the specifications in this cross section. The same relative values apply in all sizes of Firestone tires. For instance, in the 30 x 3 inch, you pay only 40 cents more for the more mileage values represented in these extras. And only a trifle more in proportion for the larger sizes. Less material and lower grades are traps to make sales on prices. The Firestone organization, the largest in the world specializing on tires, can make and market tires and tubes at a lower cost to you, the user, than any one else in the industry.
