

BOOKS SWINDLE CASE NOW ON IN CHICAGO ATTRACTS ATTENTION

OVER SIXTY THOUSAND DOLLARS WAS PAID FOR BOOKS WORTH LESS THAN ONE THOUSAND

COURT ROOM LOOKS LIKE BOOK STORE

Purchaser Was Told That Books Could Be Sold For Nearly Half a Million

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Judge George A. Carpenter's room in the United States district court resembled a book store receiving a shipment of stock during the trial of a $75,000 suit brought by Harry M. Livingston, of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., against William Y. C. Humes and Herbert O. Tomlinson, former owners of the defunct Tomlinson-Humes company, de luxe book dealers, James P. Dunnett, former agent for the company, Edward J. McArdle, attorney for Humes and Samuel Warfield, all of Chicago. The trial opened Jan. 10.

Levingston, who alleged the defendants sold him for $61,000 a set of "Americana," consisting of 5,000 volumes, which he asserted really were worth not more than $1,000. He produced the books in court as evidence. Fifty packing cases were required to transport the sets from New York to Chicago, and these cases were piled in the courtroom where frequently various volumes were introduced by the complainant as evidence of the alleged swindle.

Levingston met Humes and Plunkett in New Orleans in May, 1911, he declared, when the transaction was arranged. He added that the set was described to him as second in value only to the famous Bancroft collection and that the sale was made on the condition that the defendants would provide purchasers who would be willing to pay as high as $300,000 for the collection.

BANDITS' BODIES ARE PROPERLY IDENTIFIED

Collector Cobb, of El Paso, Wires Department at Washington the Official Notice.

(By Associated Press) Washington, Jan. 19.—Port Collector Cobb wired the department here today that he had officially identified the bodies of Joseph Rodriguez and Miguel Baca-Valles, which was made by the request of the department, who wanted to be positive that they had been executed.

Bodies Are Displayed. Juarez, Jan. 19.—The body of Joseph Rodriguez and Miguel Baca-Valles, executed Villa leaders, were placed on exhibition here today, as evidence that the defacto government of Mexico is determined to exterminate the band of bandits who murdered eighteen mining men near Santa Ysabel, Chihuahua, eight days ago, and were put on board a train and sent to Chihuahua City. There, according to Mexican officials, they will be shown in public again as examples of what will happen to any one adopting the career of an outlaw in Mexico.

Rodriguez, who was captured by employees of the Badricora ranch, and executed by Carranza authorities at Madera ranch Thursday, was positively identified as the Villa leader who had been burning railroad bridges, looting mines and ranches and threatening the lives of foreigners ever since Villa was driven out of Sonora, following the series of defeats that began at Agua Prieta, Nov. 3, last.

MAN WHO USED GUN BOUND TO CIRCUIT

Steve Maslone Who Used Rifle During Argument Waives Examination and is Bound Over

Waiving preliminary examination when arraigned before Judge C. D. McEwen this morning, Steven Maslone was bound over to circuit court on the charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm. Maslone was represented by Attorney G. F. Johnson.

As a result of a quarrel over an axe at Jacob Robert's camp at Cooks mill yesterday, John Glassi lies at St. Francis hospital with an ugly bullet wound in his leg and Steve Maslone is in the county jail. Both of the men were brought to the city last night by Deputy Sheriff Paul Lemke of Garden.

At the hospital it was found that a bullet from a powerful 303 rifle in the hands of Maslone had inflicted the wound. Unless infection develops in the wound, however, it is expected that he will recover.

The sorry told the officers was that Glassi had been a trouble maker for some time and that he and Maslone had engaged in several disputes. At noon yesterday Maslone learned that Glassi had taken an axe belonging to the foreman. He demanded that (Continued on page Six)

The following communication was received today by the editor of the Mirror and is printed in full. TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY MIRROR:—

In your issue of January 15th, there was an article on the question of Local Option in Arizona, which amongst other things, seemed intended to convey the impression that if local option was adopted in Delta County, it would prevent the sale and use of wine for sacramental and religious purposes. Whatever may be the provisions of the Arizona law with respect to that subject, it is very certain that the Michigan law does not in any wise attempt to prevent the use of wine for such purposes.

Section 14 of the Local Option act provides: "That nothing in this act shall be so construed as to prohibit the sale of wine for sacramental purposes, nor shall anything herein contained prohibit druggists or registered pharmacists from selling or furnishing pure alcohol for medicinal, art, scientific and mechanical purposes."

This provision of the Michigan law fully recognizes the right to use wine for religious purposes, and also to use pure alcohol for the arts and trades, and does not in any wise interfere with any legitimate use of wine or alcohol.

Will you kindly publish this statement in your paper, so that the public may know the facts with reference to this question? Executive Committee of the Delta County Local Option Association.

The test is part of a system of examination under which 1647 school children have been declared mentally defective. A child of 12, to be normal according to the Binet test, must, after hearing it once, repeat: "I saw in the street a pretty little dog. He had curly brown hair, short legs and a long tail."

Attorney Cuddy is probably one of the best read men in this county and is perfectly familiar with library work. He has always taken an interest in libraries and will prove an efficient worker on the board. Mr. Millar has long been identified with local affairs and needs no introduction to our readers.

BOOK SWINDLE CASE NOW ON IN CHICAGO

(Continued from Page One) praiser of book values, testified that his original valuation of the set of "Americana" purchased by Levingston was $928. Efforts of the defense counsel to shake his testimony were futile, and when he was quizzed on details Judge Carpenter interferred, explaining it was not to be expected a witness could give such information off-hand. Arguing for a directed verdict of not guilty, counsel for the defendants declared no representations as to the value of the books ever had been made to Levingston. They cited his testimony both on direct and cross-examination in which he said it was a very valuable collection and second only to the Bancroft collection. This, they maintained, did not constitute a conspiracy to defraud nor a misrepresentation. "When the books were sold to Mr. Levingston," the defense attorneys asserted at one time during the trial, "there were only 3,500 of them. Now there are said to be more than 5,000 Where did the extra ones come from? Are they the worthless ones."

NO SET RULE FOR MOURNING

Time for Wearing Garments That Denote Sadness is Largely Left to the Individual.

In Europe purple and all shades of violet are still mourning colors and are used by all chic women as a third mourning. Touches of purple with black or white are sometimes used, or all purple, or violet. The most elegant third mourning, however, is all purple or all violet, just as it is all black or white for the first, then black and white for the second. Even in third mourning, velvet, no matter of what color, is quite out of the fold for gowns or even for hats. And to the very last day of mourning feathers are tabooed.

As to the periods of mourning, the length of time varies in different countries from one to three years. The time of mourning, if it is sincere mourning, should be left entirely to the person bereaved. It is, however, safe to say one year of deep mourning for a husband or parent, a year of second mourning and a year of violet would fulfill the proprieties. Each period can be cut down to six months if a person is depressed or feels that a year and a half is sufficient. In Europe, now that there is so much sadness and almost no society, those who are in mourning go about quite as much as the few who are not sorrowing. Otherwise there would be no one to fill the few theaters open, or to keep the life of the cities in motion.

GOLD FOR INFECTED WOUNDS

Experiments by French Surgeons Have Demonstrated Its Value During the Recent War.

Injections of colloidal gold are being used in France with great success in the treatment of the infected wounds which have been so plentiful in the present war. According to a recent number of the Revue Scientifique MM. Cuneo and Rolland have thus treated a series of wounds in which the phenomena of infection persisted after surgical treatment. The gold was administered by the intravenous method (2 or 3 cubic centimeters) by intramuscular puncture (up to 50 cubic centimeters), or even by injections in the peripheral zone of the infected region.

The gold is said to give the best results in large traumatism of the limbs, with infection by anaerobic species (septic vibrios and especially perfringens). The effects of the treatment are less satisfactory in cases of pyogenic infection. In cases of wounds penetrating the abdomen, the authors have successfully employed colloidal gold as a preventive of the infection.

ON TRIAL

Novelized by Charles N. Lurie From the Great Play by Elmer Reizenstein

For a moment the light of returning hope burned in the eyes of Joan Trask. "I want you"—she began, but the memory of the bitter years, of the long succession of broken promises and vows, stretching back to the time when the man before her had taken upon himself the solemn obligation to "love, cherish and honor," clouded her face again.

He Aims His Revolver at Trask and Fires.

"No," she said dully. "It's no use. It'll be just the same as ever." "I tell you it won't," he said. "What more do you want? I give you my word. I know that I've broken it before, but this time I'm in earnest."

There was solemnity in her tone as she said: "Gerald, if I do this it is the last time." It was with genuine relief that he exclaimed: "Good! We'll begin all over again!"

He kissed her. Oh, trusting heart of womanhood! She took his words at their face value and returned the kiss. But there was still something in her mind that was not stilled by the wild, glad beating of her heart.

"Gerald," she said, "you'll keep your word?" "I've said so," was his reply. "Then promise me that you'll break off with this woman."

"What woman?" "The one who called up." "Oh, pshaw!" he said. "There's nothing in that. You're wrong. You've misjudged this time."

Then, for the second time on this fateful night, the telephone bell rings. A moment more and Gerald Trask in his shirt sleeves stumbles into the dark room. With one hand he reaches for the telephone receiver, with the other he switches on the electric light.

His eyes are turned from the other two occupants of the room, and he does not know of their presence. Mrs. Trask cannot call to her husband, for she has but little breath left. Besides, her eyes are fixed in fascination on the revolver which Strickland has pointed at her. And Strickland, dazzled by the sudden glare of light, seems bewildered by the sight of the woman lying on the floor.

The voice of Trask breaks the silence. "Hello! Yes, this is Trask. Is that you, May?" The words galvanize Strickland into action. He rises from the crouching position he has assumed, aims his revolver at Trask and fires. The shot roars Joan, and she screams. The two sounds are almost merged, and they startle Trask, so that he drops the receiver and turns in time to see whence his fate has descended upon him. His last earthly utterance is: "Strickland!"

And with that Robert Strickland fires again. It is the end of earth for Gerald Trask, for the bullet lodges in his heart. From the rear of the room rushes in Stanley Glover, bearing in his hand a heavy stick. He dashes at Strickland, and the stick falls heavily on the slayer.

Other persons are astir with the affairs of the Trasks this night. It was but a few minutes after Mr. and Mrs. Trask had left the library. All was in darkness, but the quiet of the place was broken by a queer grating sound from the alcove in which stood the safe. It was metal moving upon metal, a sithering and scratching noise. To the nerves of Joan Trask, tensed and thrilled by her talk with her husband, all sensation is magnified, and she heard the sound. She moves toward it, entering the room. The figure of a man rises from before the safe, seizes a scarf from the library table and glides to where the hesitant figure of the woman stands. Before she can give voice to the words of inquiry on her lips he has sprung upon her, strangling her as he envelops her head in the scarf. He forces her to the floor, but as he does so another man enters the room at the rear.

It is Robert Strickland, come to the home of his "friend" for a purpose. In his hand is something bright and strange of shape. The man who is choking Mrs. Trask hears him and looks up, desisting from his terrible work. Joan is too far gone to scream, however. He has succeeded in his aim of silencing her. But as Strickland enters the room the stranger glides off to one side and leaves the newcomer looking down in bewilderment at the figure of Mrs. Trask on the floor.

upon the man who had invaded his friend's home at night and had shot him down. The fact of the shooting by Strickland was established by the testimony of Mrs. Trask. Trask lay in his grave, and Strickland had done the shooting. It was not denied. Had he not in open court protested against the continuance of the legal proceedings, which might send him to the electric chair, asking only that his little girl—his Doris—be spared the ordeal of the witness chair?

Throughout the appearance of Joan Trask on the witness stand her testimony had been followed with the closest attention by judge and jury, by counsel for both sides and by the throng in the courtroom. It made the deepest of impressions. Especially when the money was mentioned, $10,000 in cash, a large sum to the great majority of the audience, it was noticeable that Mrs. Trask's audience leaned forward in their chairs.

Here, it seemed to their minds, as the district attorney had asserted in his opening address to the jury, might be found sufficient motive for murder. Strickland's financial difficulties, settled so short a time before the shooting, if really settled at all; his eagerness to pay in cash; his possession of the combination to the safe; his dramatic appearance in the Trask home only a short time after he had seen Trask in his own home; the elusive accomplice, who had disappeared—all pointed, in the minds of the hearers of Mrs. Trask's testimony, to willful, deliberate murder, only to be expiated in the chair of death.

Having told her story of the shooting itself, Mrs. Trask was retained in the witness chair to tell of the subsequent happenings in her home on the fatal night and to undergo cross examination by the attorney for the defense. A few minutes after the shooting the police arrived, she said, but her husband was dead by that time. He died instantly, the doctor said.

"Now, Mrs. Trask, did you observe the safe before the police arrived?" asked District Attorney Gray. "Yes; the safe was opened." "Did you notice if any of the contents were missing?"

"Yes, sir; the $10,000 were gone." "That's all, Mrs. Trask." And Mr. Gray turned to David Arbuttle, chief counsel for the defense, with, "You may cross examine the witness."

Then the district attorney, his militant air giving way to a relaxation that told of relief and satisfaction with his witness, settled back in his chair to watch the proceedings closely. He was a faithful prosecuting officer, intent on safeguarding the rights of his client, "the people of the state of New York." It was now the turn of the defense.

"Mrs. Trask," said Arbuttle, rising, "did you recognize your assailant, the man who opened the safe?" "No," replied the witness. "He came upon me so quickly. And the room was in total darkness."

"Are you sure that no one but Mr. Trask knew the combination of the safe?" "Was there a momentary pause by the witness? Did it enter her mind for a brief fraction of a second that the question and answer would be marked 'important' in the minds of the jury?"

The answer came, "Mr. Strickland knew it." "I move to strike out the answer as not responsive," said Arbuttle. With that the district attorney sprang to his feet. The point made by Arbuttle was too important to be permitted to go unchallenged to the jury. "I—your honor!" he exclaimed.

In the cold, quiet manner which marked him throughout the case Judge Dinsmore made his ruling. "The motion is denied." "I respectfully except," said Arbuttle, and he turned again to the witness. "Mrs. Trask, did any words pass between Strickland and your assailant?"

"I can't be sure. There was a ringing in my ears. He almost strangled me." "But to the best of your knowledge they did not speak to each other?" "I can't say one way or the other."

Dropping this line of questioning and taking up another, Arbuttle asked the witness: "Mrs. Trask, do you know who 'May' is?" Up to this point the manner of the witness had been calm. She had suffered much in the months which had intervened between the killing of her husband and the trial of his assailant, and the first fire of her grief and shock had burned down. With the loving kindness of a good woman she had forgiven the offenses of the erring husband who lay in the grave. He had wronged and insulted her grievously, and no effort of the will could erase the memory of his wrongdoing, but he was dead now, and she was not a woman to carry even justified anger beyond the grave.

But now—The simple question of the attorney aroused her. Her lips tightened and her eyes flashed as she answered with emphasis: "NO, SIR, I DO NOT." This ended her testimony. Both Gray and Arbuttle signified that she was not to be questioned further, and she stepped down from the stand. At this point there was a slight hitch in the trial of Robert Strickland. District Attorney Gray called for Dr. Morgan, but he was not at hand.

Explaining to Judge Dinsmore that Dr. Morgan was the physician who examined Mr. Trask's body and that Dr. Morgan had said he might be detained, the district attorney asked and obtained permission to call Stanley Glover to the witness stand. From a waiting room entered, in response to a call from an attendant, the dapper young man who had been the private secretary of Gerald Trask. He had been present on the fatal night, and he was conversant with all or nearly all of the details of the case. It was he who had taken the money from Trask for deposit in the safe whence it had been removed.

HAVE COMPLETED BIG BORE

Baghtche Tunnel on the Bagdad Railroad, of Immense Importance, is Finished.

Undoubtedly the most important event in railroad construction in Turkey to date is the recent completion of the large tunnel on the Bagdad railroad, piercing the Amanus mountains on the border between Asia Minor and Syria. It is known as the Baghtche tunnel.

With the completion of the Baghtche tunnel the most serious difficulties connected with the construction of the Bagdad railroad have been overcome, and the work of connecting up many of the isolated stretches of track may be expected to be completed with reasonable rapidity, despite the war in which Turkey is engaged.

The new tunnel is three miles in length—by far the longest in Turkey. While the tunnel is not as long as many found in the Alps, it is claimed that the engineering difficulties encountered in boring the Baghtche tunnel have been as great as those encountered elsewhere. For several hundred yards the engineers were confronted with a rock of practically pure quartz, which was so hard that it was necessary to have recourse to boring machines of special construction. The tunnel is on a grade and emerges at one end 197 feet above the level of the entrance, after having reached at one point a level of 246 feet above that of the entrance. The railroad leading to the tunnel passes over eight steel bridges and through nine small tunnels.—Scientific American.

NEWEST FORM BRAKE IDEA

Invention That is Considered an Improvement Over the Type Now in Common Use.

This invention is in the form of an improvement in that type of brake shoes for railroad rolling stock in which a body or wear portion is cast upon a comparatively thin back formed of steel or other wrought metal, and serving as a re-enforcement for the body. The invention relates to the particular construction of the re-enforcement and its connection with the wear block or brake shoe in such manner that it cannot become disconnected from the latter.—From the Scientific American.

EASIER TO HANDLE BAGGAGE

Railroads Also Save Large Amounts by the Use of Electric Carriers on Platforms.

Streams of perspiring men hauling hand trucks piled high with baggage once blocked the platforms of the stations. The electric baggage carrier has solved the problem of the old "baggage smasher." It does the work that formerly required four times as much labor and twice as many men.

A recent traffic report shows the electric truck has saved the railroads 66 per cent in the cost of transferring baggage and freight. Under the old method of hand truck operation the cost per ton of handling freight at railroad terminals and steamship piers was 25 cents, while the cost per ton for performing the same work with electrically propelled baggage trucks is but 10 1/2 cents.

The controller in these modern trucks is enclosed, and an automatic cutoff switch minimizes accidents. One handle is used as controller lever and the other handle for steering. When the operator removes his foot from the brake pedal the cutoff switch cuts off the power.

Air Brake Device.

An invention, described in the Scientific American, provides means under control of the engineer for retaining the air pressure in the brake cylinder of the cars of the train while the auxiliary reservoirs thereunder are being recharged, thereby securing greater safety in handling trains on grades, and also securing greater economy in the use of air and dispensing with the services of the train hands or brakemen for the purpose.

Convicted by Small Things.

The character of covetousness is what a man generally acquires more through some niggardliness or ill grace in little and inconsiderable things, than in expenses of any consequence. A very few pounds a year would ease that man of the scandal of avarice.—Pope.

The "Ohio Buckeye" is a particular kind of buckeye, and Ohio is popularly known as "The Buckeye State." The Ohio buckeye has the botanical name of aesculus glabra; it is a large tree, with strong-smelling bark, small obscure flowers, and prickly fruit, containing the seed. WITH THE WOMEN OF TODAY
—Edited By MISS IRENE G. MCGUIRE—

Where ever a true woman comes, home is always around her. The stars may be over her head, the glow worms in the night-cold grass may be the fire at her foot; but home is where she is. —Ruskin.

WINTER GOOD THINGS.

One need not deny herself these days, because of the season, of many good things which years ago were only in the autumn markets. With such easy transportation we have tomatoes, fresh and ripe, green peppers and fruits of all kinds from the southern clime.

Sherry's Salad Dressing.—Take three-quarters of a cupful of olive oil, a fourth of a cupful of vinegar, two tablespoonfuls each of green pepper and red pepper, chopped; a small Spanish onion, also chopped; a tablespoonful each of powdered sugar and chopped parsley, a teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of cayenne pepper. Shake in a pint mason jar for five minutes, then stand an hour before using. Serve on head lettuce.

Prune Salad.—Wash, soak and steam one pound of prunes until tender. Do not sweeten them. When cold remove the stones and fill the cavities with chopped walnuts. Arrange on leaves of lettuce (five prunes are sufficient for one serving), sprinkle with lemon juice and place a spoonful of mayonnaise on top of each. Serve very cold.

Date Charlotte.—Stone a half-pound of dates. To a cupful and a half of water add three tablespoonfuls of honey, the juice of an orange and a heaping tablespoonful of gelatin; add the dates, simmer until the dates are soft, pour into a ring mold and set away in a cool place. Turn out and fill the center with sweetened whipped cream.

Date Loaf.—Sift three cupfuls of flour, a half-teaspoonful of salt into a warm basin, add a cupful of chopped dates and half a cupful of sultana raisins. Warm half a cupful of milk, add a half-cupful of butter, cool and add one compressed yeast which has been softened in a little warm water. Pour into the flour, add two beaten eggs, knead lightly and allow to rise one hour. Knead again and put into a buttered tin. Allow it to rise for half an hour. Bake in a moderate oven one hour.

One greatly admired feature of Doucet's gowns this year is the "up-and-down" hem, that is a hem that is so irregular in line as to look like points, and faced in a contrasting color. Doucet also makes use of the famous dolman sleeves on cloaks, and a collar of fur so high as to completely hide the head of the wearer if she should so desire.

Both Doucet and Jeanne Lanvin, as well as a number of other houses have featured the use of soutache braid on frocks and suits, and Lanvin is showing some chic models with a collar wrapped around the neck like a muffler.

Governor Says That Then The Women Will be Able to Feed Their Husbands

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 19.—"At the rate we're going, it will be a hundred years before the rural schools in Michigan are properly ventilated," said Gov. Ferris at the vocational conference of the Women's league at the University of Michigan Friday.

"Yet we are spending $100,000 in an educational campaign to drive out tuberculosis and its consequences pale into insignificance beside those of the black plague.

"Women are no more righteous than men. They fail to give heed to the divine of the right of the babe unborn. There are crimes worse than first degree murder.

"If the mothers of this country would demand that their daughters have as clean husbands as they demand their sons' wives should be, the problem of the black plague would solve itself. It's up to you women. We men will meet your standard, your demands, but we can't put a law on our statute books to compel you to do your duty."

"No girl should be allowed to get married who is unable to support a husband—every wife should be able to become a wage earner. There is no reason why any woman with red blood in her veins should not fit herself to earn a living, but I demand that she should have before her always the vision of a home. We pay women less than we do men because we think we can. But the system is all wrong."

"The majority of married women are living in a kind of feudalism because they can't square themselves with the world on a commercial basis." Dr. Earl Barnes, of Philadelphia told the same conference a few minutes later.

EMPEROR WILLIAM

Amsterdam says that according to information received there from Sofia, the allied troops which landed at Chalerson reembarbed after a short inspection of the city.

"Among the wild rumors as to the intentions of the allies," the message continues, "is the statement that they intend to advance to Athens whence King Constantine, his court, and the government will retire in conformity with the King's desire to maintain armed neutrality." The Sofia dispatches the question what former premier Venizelos will do in that event; whether he will proclaim a republic and whether the army will side with him.

These reports have occasioned undisguised alarm at the Bulgarian capital.

Atty. A. H. Ryall has been requested by the Michigan State Tax Association to address the next meeting of the Association to be held at Grand Rapids on March 1st, and 2nd, on the subject of "Taxation of Timber Lands." This Association is made up of Representatives or many of the largest tax payers and business interests of the State.

These meetings are largely attended and the Association has been very active in its efforts to improve the tax conditions throughout the State and much of the recent Legislation has been adopted came about through its active work at recent sessions of the Legislature.

The question of the taxation of timber lands in this State is becoming a serious one, and it is believed that the matter will receive considerable attention at the next session of the Legislature, and therefore the discussion of the matter is very timely.

REVEL IN COSTLY JEWELRY

New York Women Participate in Prosperity That Has Come to the Great Metropolis.

While her sisters in London, Paris, Berlin and Petrograd are discarding their jewels, giving the gold to the common treasury and selling the gems to swell relief funds and keep the wolf from the door, the New York lady is daily acquiring an increased penchant for the finest jewelry that the world produces. Prosperity is once more smiling on New York, particularly in the financial district, and consequently the great jewelry houses are benefiting thereby, says the Wall Street Journal. Any of the leading Fifth avenue diamond merchants will tell one that hundreds of prominent Wall street folk visit their showrooms weekly to buy of the best, and the best is never too good for them to tender to their womenfolk.

Many European workers in gold and silver, whose art is famous in Europe, and who could not have been bribed to work in this country a couple of years ago, have come to these shores seeking work which cannot be found in Europe.

The great De Beers syndicate in London has prevented an influx of gems on the market by purchasing privately the collections of jewelry offered by prominent women in the European centers, and this has undoubtedly held up the price for diamonds. Many great American jewelers sent over representatives to Europe soon after the war broke out in the hope that they could pick up quantities of gems cheaply, but they came back empty handed owing to the activities of the De Beers syndicate.

Jewelers expect the demand for their wares to increase as the country grows in prosperity, and a business that was at the lowest possible ebb a little over a year ago now has glided possibilities.

MAY YET BE KING OF SERBIA

Possibility That Happening, Put Forth as Romance, May Be Turned Into Reality.

It is an interesting coincidence that "The Lost Prince," Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's romance based on an ancient legend of Serbia, should have appeared at a moment when the actual lost prince in question is said to be living in New York.

The legend, which Mrs. Burnett was told some years ago by a Serbian friend, referred to the old Serbian dynastic house of Lazar, and it predicted the eventual return to power, after many tribulations, of the long-exiled heir of this house.

The present head of the dynasty is Prince Lazarovich-Hrebellanovich, who has now for some years been living in this country and whose wife, formerly Eleanor Calhoun of California, the actress, has published a volume of reminiscences entitled "Pleasures and Palaces."

At this time of momentous change for Serbia it is quite within the range of possibilities that the old legend should come true and that the hero of Mrs. Burnett's romance, in the person of Prince Lazarovich's son Doushan, should win his throne in fact as well as in fiction.

Rather Disappointing.

The conversation having turned to keen disappointments, Charles M. Molten, former head of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, recalled an incident along that line.

Some time ago an elderly woman heard that a friend who lived in a distant city was very ill, and decided that it was her duty to go and see her. The next day she made the trip and was met at the door by the invalid.

"Well, Mary," greeted the visitor, entering the house and removing her wraps. "How are you getting along?"
"Very well, indeed, Martha," answered the other. "In fact, I am nearly well now."

"Nearly well!" exclaimed the caller in a disappointed voice. "And after me coming all this way to see you, too!"—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Electric Steel Production.

Electric steel appears to be making much progress in Germany. A report for 1914 shows the total production of crucible and electric steel to have been 184,400 tons and the electric product was nearly 90,000 tons—only 5,500 less than the output of crucible steel. And more electric furnaces were expected. Of the 20 plans producing electric steel eight were making high grade material to supplant crucible steel and 12 employed the electric furnace to melt ferro-manganese. The induction furnace was most used of the various types.

Resourceful.

Since the cold weather has set in along the Osonzo, it is reported in Berlin that General Cadorna, the Italian commander, has ordered set up to serve as heaters in the trenches large numbers of the chestnut and peanut roasting machines which had been relegated to idleness when their professional operators were called to the colors.

Mental Dyspeptics.

"Reading maketh a full man," quoted the philosopher.
"No doubt that's true," replied the cynic, "but the result is not always satisfactory."
"Why not?"

"I've met a great many people in my time who were crammed full of undigested literature."

Is Life Worth Living

It Depends Upon the Liver.

Wrong living is the cause of most physical ills and generally stomach and liver are first to suffer.

Coffee drinking is a very common cause of digestive disorder, but it usually takes the user some time to fully realize it. Fact is—some people drink coffee with seeming impunity, but when disturbances of the digestive organs result in headache, biliousness, irritability and other common symptoms of caffeine poisoning it's time for the coffee drinker to look to his morning beverage for the true cause.

For any coffee drinker who finds that his health is wrong, but don't know just why, it's a good idea to quit the coffee and use

POSTUM

—the pure food-drink

Made of wheat and a small amount of molasses, Postum has a rich, snappy flavour much like that of mild Java coffee yet contains no caffeine (the drug in coffee) nor other harmful element.

There are two forms of Postum. The original Postum Cereal must be boiled; Instant Postum is soluble in boiling water and can be made in the cup at table. Both kinds are equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

A change from coffee to Postum is a good move toward right living.
