German Correspondents Describe Attack on Fortress of Douaumont

THE WAR A YEAR AGO TODAY

March 1, 1915. Two German corps defeated at Przrasnyz. Osowetz bombarded by Germans. Turkish forces under Eesad Pasha massed on Asiatic side of Dardanelles. Norwegian steamer rammed off English coast. Premier Asquith announced allies would cut off Germany from all trade with rest of the world. Hamburg-American line officials in New York indicted for conspiring against U. S.

(By Associated Press) Paris, Feb. 29.—(delayed)—The situation around Verdun is now well in hand and entirely satisfactory from the French viewpoint according to military experts. That the northern part of the stronghold the chief effort of the Germans has been directed to the rescue of the Brandenburgers who are cooped up in the ruined casemates of Fort Douaumont. While it is realized that the Germans have not reached the limit of their offensive, it is stated that the German onslaught is waited with confidence.

Sapper Tells of Slaughter. Of the defeat of the Germans at Cote du Poivre, a wounded sapper, who is in a hospital here today said: "We were in the first French line trenches of the slopes of Cote du Poivre. The captain sent me forward to a small shelter in the open where an electric control led to a mine in the field. I crawled to it along a narrow tunnel and through a slit I looked out upon the battlefield, as through an opening in a theatre curtain. I saw the Germans march forward in good order. They thought the bombardment had devastated our trenches but they were unable to see that our men had held firm and were making fresh trenches and using shell craters. "The German," he continued, "were about 200 yards from my post when the trench machine guns opened fire. The Germans crouched and when the order to advance came they sprang forward singing "The Watch on the Rhine." They were over the mine at last. I touched the button. A mass of men in gray shot upwards. I saw many of them go bodily upwards as if speed up from the crater of a volcano. The attack was stopped. I crawled back to my trench and just as I emerged from the tunnel I felt a stinging sensation in my shoulder. When I recovered consciousness I was in an ambulance."

Germans Tell of Attack Berlin, March 1.—Correspondents from the Verdun front say that on February 22 the German troops gained an amount of ground only 10 square kilometers less than that taken by the French in the entire Champagne campaign last fall. The German attack was carefully planned and was preceded by a bombardment. When the troops charged they swept through the French barbed wire de-

Smokers of Great Britain are Going to Have Their Troubles

PROHIBITION ON IMPORTATION OF TOBACCO INTO THE BRITISH ISLES CAUSES ALARM—TWO YEARS' SUPPLY ON HAND BUT STIFF INCREASE IN PRICE IS EXPECTED.

By Chas. P. Stewart. United Press Staff Correspondent. London, March 1.—Smokers undoubtedly were the worst frightened class in England recently when the government announced last night the absolute prohibition of tobacco importation into the British Isles. The order reducing paper and other importations caused widespread interest, but were not terrifying. Tobacco users were genuinely scared. They recovered part of their courage when tobaccoists announced there was a two years' supply of the weed in Eng-

STATES WATCH PURE MILK ORDINANCE EFFECT IN GARY

Gary, Ind., March 1.—This city today took the lead in a crusade for the sale of pure milk when it started to enforce an ordinance which authorizes only the sale of pasteurized milk. It is a step that the state of Indiana itself was not able to take through its legislators and the outcome here is being watched throughout this and other states. The ordinance will force every dairyman in the city to provide a pasteurizing process.

BUY INSTRUMENT FOR THE H. S. ORCHESTRA

Proceeds of Entertainment of Monday Will be Devoted to Good Cause

The money derived by the presentation of the operetta, "The Gypsy Queen" Monday at the high school, will be used to purchase an instrument for the high school orchestra. It is the hope of the high school authorities to have a permanent orchestra here some time within the near future and instruments will be purchased from time to time. The money was used last year for the purchase of athletic suits and sweaters. In 1914, the money from the operetta was used to buy scenery for the high school stage.

The tickets for the operetta are out and it is expected there will be a large and enthusiastic audience present Monday night. Don't forget the time, 8 o'clock, the place, at the high school and the play "The Gypsy Queen" by the students.

W. VA. WOMAN WANTS TO KNOW ABOUT CHICK

Seeks Assurance That Four-Legged Chicken Was Exhibited Here

Miss Trove Kittinger, of Alderson, W. Va., has written to The Mirror to determine whether or not a four-legged chicken was exhibited at the Delta County Poultry show, here about two months ago. Miss Kittinger is evidently interested in animal freaks from a scientific standpoint and written assurances have been given here that a four-legged chicken really was exhibited at the poultry show here. The chick in question was not alive when on exhibition and is still being preserved in alcohol.

TEN PER CENT WAGE INCREASE AT THE CRAMP'S YARD

(By Associated Press) Philadelphia, March 1.—Increases in wages amounting to more than $30,000 a year and applying to between four and five thousand workers will go into effect on Monday at the Cramp shipyards. The increase is voluntary, and the proprietors of the yards announce they have orders ahead that will keep them busy for at least two years.

fenses and onto the first line trenches before the French troops could rally. The correspondents further state that the German losses were very small while the French lost heavily. The French line, they maintain, was broken on both sides of the road leading northward from Verdun.

BRITISH STEAMER IS VICTIM OF TEUTONS' NEW SUBMARINE PLAN

THORNABY IS SENT TO THE BOTTOM AND EVERY ONE ON BOARD PERISHES

WHOLESALE ATTACK DID NOT MATERIALIZE

New Submarine Schedule Now in Effect—Germany Going Slowly

(By Associated Press) London, March 1.—The British steamer Thornaby, 2,800 tons, believed to be the first victim of the new German-Austrian submarine campaign on armed merchantmen, was sunk. The entire crew was either killed or drowned. The new submarine orders of the German and Austrian governments went into effect at midnight. The dispatch received here does not say whether or not the Thornaby was armed or whether or not it went down before midnight. The fact that the Thornaby is the only merchantman reported as sunk in today's news dispatches is taken to indicate that both Germany and Austria intend to determine precisely the attitude of the United States before they launch their new submarine campaign to its fullest extent.

SUIT CLUB HEAD GETS THREE YEARS SENTENCE

H. J. Weiss, Convicted of Conspiracy to Defraud, Must Go to Ionia

H. J. Weiss, alleged head of the Acme Suit & Club House, of Calumet which operated in several Upper Peninsula cities, including Escanaba who was charged with conspiracy to defraud, was found guilty yesterday by a jury in Houghton county circuit court and was sentenced last night by Judge O'Brien to serve from six months to three years in the state reformatory in Ionia. It is understood that the cases of the other alleged members of the suit club were nolle prossed on motion of the prosecuting attorney.

The sentence of Weiss marks the culmination of one of the most sensational cases where fraud was the charge that has been fought in the Upper Peninsula in years. Victims of the Acme Suit club's scheme may be found in practically every city north of the straits.

FIRE DESTROYS THE BEATON HOME, WELLS

Members of Family Return From Escanaba to Find House Mass of Flames

Returning to her home shortly after 10 o'clock last night, Mrs. Thomas Beaton of Wells saw her home in flames with the roof about to fall in. The house was a total loss, nothing remaining this morning but the smoldering ruins.

Members of the Beaton family were down town when the fire broke out and knew nothing about it until their return home. When the neighbors discovered the fire, they could do nothing to save the furniture. The members of the Wells fire department were called but turned their attention to keeping the flames from spreading. No cause can be discovered for the fire, except perhaps a defective fuse. The loss is only partially covered by insurance.

GOES TO HOSPITAL Charles Bellstrom, proprietor of the Northern Vulcanizing company, was taken to St. Francis hospital today for medical treatment.

TODAY'S ODDEST STORY

Lansing, Mich., March 1.—For 95 years John N. Bush of this city, has been a staunch member of a certain political party and he "hasn't scratched yet," but said today that after nearly a century of thinking it over, he's going to "scratch" at the next presidential election.

Absent Voters Not over Keen

City Clerk Linden Has Dozen Applications—Time Limit Expires Friday.

To date City Clerk Linden has received a dozen applications from persons entitled to vote at the general election here on April 3 under the provisions of the absent voters law. Two of those who have filed their applications are traveling men and the remainder are Escanaba young men who are attending school elsewhere. It is probable that not more than 15 persons will take advantage of the new act since no applications will be considered after March 3, or 30 days previous to the election.

DULUTH POLICE ARE SEARCHING THE SKIES

Duluth, Minn., March 1.—Following reports today that the mysterious aeroplane that has been hovering over Duluth and Superior was again seen last night, Commissioner Silberstein, head of the Duluth Safety division, announced that instructions will be given the police to be on the lookout for the air machine. The police will be directed to see "where the machine comes from and where it goes." That an aeroplane really is flying over the American head of the lakes during the early hours of the morning is admitted by police here and in Superior.

Three men were aboard the big plane today when it was plainly seen over Superior. A long rope with some heavy object on the end of it is hanging from the machine, eye witnesses say.

Seen at Other Points

Coudery.—The aeroplane claimed to have been seen at the head of the lakes has been seen here. It passed over here about two o'clock this morning. Both watchmen at local mills say they observed the craft. It carried red and green lights.

PRESIDENT WANTS A VOTE OF CONFIDENCE FOR ADMINISTRATION

TELLS LEADERS OF HOUSE THAT SITUATION IS EMBARRASSING TO HIM.

RESOLUTION MAY BE BROUGHT UP SOON

Recent German Assurances Not So Broad As Those Given Out Earlier.

(By Associated Press) Washington, D. C., March 1.—Germany's latest assurances on the conduct of its submarine policy, presented Monday to Secretary Lansing by Count von Bernstorff, are not so broad as the United States desires, but it has been indicated that no further steps will be taken until the administration is certain that its action will not embarrass congress. The assurances of Germany are not so complete as those originally given and it was indicated that the standing Lusitania agreement would not be finally accepted as satisfactory at this time.

Today President Wilson and the chairmen of the committees on military affairs in the House and Senate as well as the leaders in both houses held a conference at which President Wilson indicated that it was his desire that Congress give the administration a vote of confidence by voting down with a big majority one of the proposed resolutions warning Americans off armed belligerent vessels. He said that in foreign capitals the fact that the administration and congress could not agree on this point was being made capital of and that it greatly embarrassed his negotiations with Germany.

It is believed that a vote at this time would result in the overwhelming defeat of any of the resolutions and it is probable that the leaders will bring up one of them to show the world that congress and the President are not at odds.

MIKE SELLS ALL HIS TIME FOR A YEAR FOR $30,000

St. Paul, Minn., March 1.—Mike Gibbons, probably middle-weight world title holder, has sold his entire time for one year. The agreement went into effect today. Mike gets $30,000 and agrees to enter into no bouts for one year, except those approved by the Capital City Athletic club, with which he made the contract. Mike agrees to fight three bouts during the year with fighters of his class, chosen by the club. In case Mike is knocked out or decisively beaten, the contract is automatically nullified.

MORNING PRESS NOW IN IRON BUSINESS

Ships Four Carloads of Iron to Havre From Stephenson Charcoal Iron Co.

The following appeared in this morning's issue of the Press "Four cars of pig iron from the furnace of the Stephenson Charcoal Iron Company at Wells, were shipped from that plant this week to Havre, France. The shipment made a total of 260 tons and will be forwarded to one of the belligerent powers now engaged in the European war, by the way of New Orleans.

"The present is the first foreign shipment of pig iron made from the Wells furnace and will form a part of a cargo of general merchandise that is being gathered at New Orleans for transfer to the vessel that will carry it."

Where the Press got its dope The Mirror is unable to ascertain. "Four cars, weighing 260 tons," billed for New Orleans, enroute to Havre France," appears on the face to be rather definite information. Superintendent Walker of Stephenson Charcoal company this morning assured a representative of The Mirror that the company had not shipped four carloads of iron on a foreign order; in fact that it hadn't filled a war order to date (directly at least.) Believing that the Press might have been a bit jumbled as to names and had inadvertently used the name of the Stephenson Charcoal Iron company when it meant the Gladstone plant of the Cleveland Cliffs company, the Mirror got into communication with that concern and was assured by the superintendent that there had been no war orders filled at that plant.

Truly the individual who gave the Press its information must have had a weird pipe dream.

Mrs. L. R. Raymond and son Carl returned to Marquette today after a visit with friends here for the past two weeks.

INTEREST IN TODAY'S PRIMARY SLIGHT AND VOTE WILL BE SMALL

VOTE CAST IN THE SEVEN WARDS WILL PROBABLY NOT BE IN EXCESS OF 500

LESS THAN 200 CAST AT NOO I

Interest Centers in Treasurer Contest and in Sixth Ward Battle

The interest in the primary election of today is not over keen. The vote is one of the lightest that has been polled in the city in some time when the polls close tonight at 8 o'clock the total vote on both the Non Partisan and Republican ballots will probably not exceed 500 if it goes that high.

In the sixth ward where the candidates seek the Republican nomination for alderman the vote is larger than any other ward in the city. The three candidates and their friends are working actively and it is expected that in that ward about 150 or 175 of the normal vote of something more than 400 will be out.

In the city as a whole the interest in today's primary centers wholly in the fight of W. H. Yockey and Thomas St. Jacques for the Republican nomination for city treasurer. Both candidates and their friends are making a strong effort to get out the vote in the various wards.

The contests of today lie wholly within the Republican party and in only the two instances mentioned. The vote on the Non Partisan tickets carries no particular interest since there is but one candidate for the various nominations.

Up to the noon hour less than 200 votes had been cast in the seven wards.

DON'T FEAR SPREAD OF SMALLPOX HERE

Single Case Exceedingly Mild One.

Dr. Carlson, city physician, is not alarmed over the presence of smallpox in this city. There is but one case in evidence at the present time that is an exceedingly mild one. The greatest precautions have been taken and the development of another case would be a surprise. Paul Wickert, who is the only sufferer from the disease, is getting along nicely and as yet has not been compelled to take to his bed.

Walter Johnson, of Lathrop, is visiting friends in this city. Mr. Lathrop has just returned from Milwaukee where he took the examination for first engineer's papers. He passed the examination successfully and has been granted his papers. He expects to be attached to the steamer Marida which is wintering at Godrich, Canada.

The evangelistic services being conducted by the Rev. W. J. C. Belch at the Wells Methodist church are proving to be a success as evidenced by the large number of people present at the services last night. The Rev. Mr. Belch gave an interesting sermon and more than 40 people were present. "The Unpardonable Sin" will be the subject of tonight's sermon and it is expected that a larger attendance will be noted.

A. D. PARKER HAS RETIRED AS R.R. HEAD

(By Associated Press.)

Denver Colo. March 1.—A. D. Parker retired as vice-president of the Colorado and Southern Railroad today, ending an active railroad career that began 33 years ago as a section hand. He also relinquished duties as president of the system's subsidiary lines in Texas. Mr. Parker was succeeded by E. S. Koller, who came to Denver from Omaha, March 1, 1915, to become general manager of the Colorado and Southern.

Throughout his active career Mr. Parker has been closely identified with the development of railroad business in the Rocky Mountain region. He was the son of an Episcopalian clergyman and was born at Wilmington, Del. July 26, 1859. After receiving degrees at Racine college, Racine, Wis., and the General Theological Seminary in New York, he came to Wyoming, where he rode the range as a "cowpuncher" for two years.

In 1883 he began his railroad career as a section hand with the Denver and Rio Grande railroad. He next went to the road's store department, thence to the auditor's office and in 1893, he became auditor of the old Denver, Union Pacific and Gulf railroad, and the Denver, Leadville and Gunnison lines. Upon the organization of the Colorado and Southern system in 1899 he became auditor.

In 1905 Mr. Parker was made vice-president in charge of all departments this position carrying with it the presidency of the Fort Worth and Denver City and the Wichita Valley railroads, subsidiary lines in Texas. When the Colorado and Southern was taken over by the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy in 1910, Parker continued as vice-president. His decision to retire, announced in New York, Jan. 26 was due to a desire of long standing to quit active railroad work. Mr. Parker will make his future home in Philadelphia.

Reduction in the supply of building materials seems unlikely to be seriously felt, building operations having been for the most part suspended since the beginning of the war. Restrictions on the entry of timber, however, do promise to make the cost of firewood practically prohibitive in the near future.

The embargo on fruits has been the subject of considerable criticism, on the ground that such commodities are

Of furniture and furniture woods and veneers there is said to be some supply on hand but nothing like enough to last two years, as in the case of tobacco; and the prediction generally is made that furniture prices speedily will reach a prohibitive figure.

In part, the new regulations are made with a view to compelling economy by the English people. It is conceded, however, that the main purpose is to leave more room in ships touching at English ports for food-stuffs and munitions.

The entire British mercantile marine being, in one way or another, under government control at present, there will be no difficulty in enforcing the new orders.

INHERITS CHILDREN AND A GRANDMOTHER

Debts and a Bit of Cash Are Also Included in Peculiar Legacy.

(By Associated Press)

Cleveland, March 1.—Mrs. Minnie Link, 42, is administering perhaps the strangest legacy ever inherited by a woman. The legacy included five children, four girls and a boy, made orphans by the death of their father, Frank B. Baresch, a carpenter, a lot of debts, $2700 cash, and grandmother aged 82.

Mrs. Link, a neighbor woman, was Baresch's intended wife. So he left her all his worldly possessions, provided she furnish a home for his children "as long as a home shall be needed by them." He did not ask her if she would accept the legacy.

"All I can do now is to carry out his wishes," said Mrs. Link. "We were to have been married several months ago, but his illness prevented. There will not be much money left after the debts are paid. We'll probably have to sell the cottage that was his home. But I'm glad to accept the legacy of five blessed children. The grandmother can stay, too. We'll manage somehow."

The orphans are, Dorothy, 15, Francis 14, Lillian 10, Florence 8, and Jimmie, age 5. Their mother died over a year ago.

CHAPTER XII.

"I'll take my medicine."
As Cyrus Martin paced up and down the office he caught an exchange of gleeful glances between Peale and Rodney. That decided him.
"Andover soap!" he grunted. Then to Rodney in a more propitiatory tone he added, "Have a cigar?"
Rodney took one of his father's Havanas and threw away his own stub.
"Thanks," he said.
There was a pause.
"Have a cigar, young fellow?" said Mr. Martin to Peale next.
"Thanks," said Peale, surprised.
"Allow me," said Mr. Martin, lighting his cigar and then walking over to Rodney.
"Well, thinking things over, why should you and I fight?" he began.
"You started it, father," said Rodney.
"Quite true," said Martin, "and therefore I should be the one to call it off. Now, son, here's the idea: I'd rather have you with me than against me. The money doesn't matter much. In your way, while I don't indorse that kind of publicity, I suppose you boys have done some good advertising."
"Thank you, sir," chimed in Peale.
"Not at all," said Martin, then added to Rodney, "And if you're going to have a backer shouldn't it be better than the Andover soap people?"
Rodney's throat gave an involuntary cluck of pleasure.
"After all, blood is thicker than business. What do you suggest?" he said.
"Suppose I buy you out," Mr. Martin said, "including your trademark and good will?"
"Oh, you have our good will now, sir," put in Peale.
Rodney reflected:
"Buying us out might be expensive for you, father."
"Oh, I guess it won't take all the money I've got. What's your proposition?"
"What's yours?"
"How is the business—what are the assets and the liabilities?"
"How fortunate! It was only this morning that Mr. Peale roughly copied off the totals from our books," said Rodney.
"I try to keep up with every detail of the business," chirped Peale.
Rodney passed out the pink statement.
"There you are, father," he said.
"H'm, liabilities $133.13, assets $22,818," read Mr. Martin.
"And 9 cents," added Peale.
"That's a remarkably good showing," admitted Mr. Martin. "Well, I'll give you $50,000 for your business as it stands."
Rodney took a good hold of himself.
"But we don't want to give up our business," he protested. "I like business. I wish you'd made me go into it years ago, father."
"We wish to continue in our chosen profession," added Peale grandly.
"Well, suppose you take 25 per cent of the profits," suggested Mr. Martin.
"It's wonderful weather, isn't it," said Rodney; "these crisp, cold, bracing mornings?"
"Well, I hardly thought you'd grab at that," said Martin. "What will you take?"
Rodney rose to the occasion quickly.
"One hundred thousand dollars cash," he said; "you assume all the contracts and obligations of this company, give us 40 per cent of the profits, a contract for me at $20,000 a year, for Miss Grayson at $10,000—Peale coughed audibly behind him—"and another for Mr. Peale at the same figure."
Mr. Martin looked at the two men a moment, chewing his cigar.
"Done," he said finally. He could see, out of the corner of his eye, Peale and Rodney exchange looks and shake hands. Well, he had come down to buy them out.
"I congratulate you, father," Rodney said.
"You needn't," said Mr. Martin. "As a business proposition I don't think much of it, but I guess it'll show old John Clark he can't butt into my family affairs or get Ellery mixed up with my boy's business."
"Yes, father, we'd much rather have you than Ellery," asserted Rodney.
"Oh, much rather," echoed Peale.
This important deal was no sooner agreed on than Miss Burke came in inopportunely and conveyed to Rodney the information that the agent of the landlord wanted to see him at once.
"Yes," said Rodney. "You see, father, we're thinking of taking larger offices," he added. "Come, Peale. We'll be right back, father."
"Yes, father, we'll be right back," echoed Peale as they went out.
Mr. Martin stood there watching them proudly.
"Bully kid!" he said; then changing to a contemptuous tone, "Ellery Clark!"
Well, that was a load off his mind at any rate, he reflected contentedly. Of course he had bought a pig in a poke, more or less. You couldn't tell whether their books were carefully audited or not. If Mary Grayson kept them they were probably pretty straight. He was glad to have the boy back anyway. And there would be no more sandwich men parades.

Altogether he was in a quite mellow mood. Mary Grayson opened the door and came in. From the look on her face she was glad to see him and extraordinarily relieved too. Alas for the soap king! He did not realize how short his satisfaction was to be.
"Why, Mr. Martin?" cried Mary happily.
"Hello, Miss Grayson!" he said.
"It's mighty good to see you again."
"Oh, Mr. Martin," responded Mary, "I'm so glad Rodney finally sent for you!"
"Sent for me?" repeated Mr. Martin in surprise.
"Have you talked to him?"
"Oh, yes. He's just gone out for a minute to the agent of the landlord."
"Oh, then he told you about that too?"
"Yes, he told me. Why not?" asked Mr. Martin, puzzled.
"Oh, I'm so glad you've settled with him. You have settled, haven't you?"
"Yes, sure!"
"Oh, good! Isn't it wonderful for him?"
The relief in Mary's voice was genuine, absolutely, as Ambrose Peale would have said. Poor Mary had had a trying day. There had been that dreadful man Jones to begin with, Rodney's $2,500 check must have gone through the clearing house in double quick time, Mary had thought, as the advertising fund appeared again. The fact was, it seemed that he had gone to the bank to get it certified and was furious to find that there were no funds there of the 13 Soap company to meet it with. He roared loudly about the sheriff. Unless the check was made good at his office in an hour he would have the sheriff round and sell them out, cover up their billboards and send them all to jail.
Mary didn't know much about sheriffs, and they sounded terrifying. She had heard about the law's delay, but the law sounded swift and terrible as interpreted by the late Jones. She couldn't laugh about it and chaff about a cell with a sunny exposure, as Ambrose Peale did. That awful countless too! A woman swindler who had tried to get into them for $5,000. And the electric agent threatening to turn off the light from all their beautiful signs if he wasn't paid at once. How unreasonable people were! How could you pay them when you hadn't any money? And now, last of all, the rent agent making a fuss. No wonder Mary had begged Rodney to send for his father and give in. She was sure old Mr. Martin would help Rodney if he was sent for. Very naturally Mary thought on seeing Cyrus Martin smoking his cigar there contentedly that he had come in answer to Rodney's summons. She went on, sighing:
"Well, suppose you take 25 per cent of the profits," suggested Mr. Martin.
"It's wonderful weather, isn't it," said Rodney; "these crisp, cold, bracing mornings?"
"Well, I hardly thought you'd grab at that," said Martin. "What will you take?"
Rodney rose to the occasion quickly.
"One hundred thousand dollars cash," he said; "you assume all the contracts and obligations of this company, give us 40 per cent of the profits, a contract for me at $20,000 a year, for Miss Grayson at $10,000—Peale coughed audibly behind him—"and another for Mr. Peale at the same figure."

Well, that was a load off his mind at any rate, he reflected contentedly. Of course he had bought a pig in a poke, more or less. You couldn't tell whether their books were carefully audited or not. If Mary Grayson kept them

"Just think, without you he couldn't have lasted out the day."
"Couldn't what?" ejaculated the astonished soap king; then, recovering himself swiftly, he added, "Quite so. Quite so. Oh, by the way, in our negotiations the one thing Rodney didn't go into fully was the nature of the assets."
"The assets!" laughed Mary gayly. "They must have amused you. Why, we haven't any."
"Ha, ha! Haven't any?" echoed Mr. Martin, trying to laugh with her.
"But everything's all right now," went on Mary sweetly.
"Oh, yes! Great, great!" said Mr. Martin. "By the way, there was a report on the street today that the Andover Soap people were going to make a deal with Rodney—build him a factory?"
"Oh, there's nothing in that," said Mary innocently.
"Are you sure? As I got here I thought I saw Ellery Clark."
"Oh, that wasn't business. He just got getting you to back him," cried Mary.
"At last! So that was his scheme all the time, was it? He didn't go into business on the level, but just for my benefit? And you were helping him. Well, he can thank you again for having failed."
"It's all my fault," cried Mary, breaking down.
"Yes, it was from the start. You got up the plan of my pretending to put him out of the house—a mighty silly idea."
"Oh, but I tell you you must help him," pleaded Mary.
"Help him yourself. You've got $5,000."
"But I gave it to him," cried Mary.
"My son took money from you?"
"He didn't know. I pretended it was

"It's up to me, and nobody else, to get out of this. Please go."
from a friend. It made him awfully jealous, too," blubbered Mary.
"Well, you got him in, now you can get him out," declared the soap king.
"But your bet," asked Mary—"you bet $30,000 with John Clark. You don't want to lose that, do you?"
"Well, if Ellery's trying to borrow money from Rodney it looks like an even break. And anyhow I'd lose the bet twice over rather than have my own son think he could make a fool of his father."
"But he is a good business man," pleaded Mary bravely. "He'd make you proud of him. If he could keep on a little longer I know he'd succeed. If you'll just help him he'll make money, you'll see he will."
"Of course, you want him to make money," said Mr. Martin brutally. "You're thinking of that percentage contract with me."
"I'm not—oh I'm not," cried Mary. "I can't see him fail. I don't want you to pay me. I'll try to give you back what you've given me."
"By George, I believe you really are in love with him, Mary."
"Yes, I am—now," admitted Mary proudly. "But that doesn't matter. We've got to save him—save his business."
"I won't give him a nickel. Goodbye!"
"But you can't go like this," Mary cried. "He'll be disgraced. He's in debt—in danger."
"Let him get out of it himself, then," said this Roman father. "It'll do him good. I've been a sentimental fool. I've made it all too easy for him."
"But that's your fault, too," persisted Mary.
"Yes, it is, and I don't propose to repeat the error. He's lied to me all the way through. We'll let him face the truth now. We'll see what he's made of."

Mary just sat and looked at him quite limply, letting her hands fall idle in her lap. What could she do? To make matters worse she could hear the rumble of men's voices outside as Rodney and Peale tried to soothe the rent agent's righteous indignation. Rodney and Peale came back, trying to look cheerful, but really quite crestfallen, as Mary could see very well.
"Well, we're going to move," said Rodney.
"Yes, nice chap, that fellow," said Peale.
"Well, Mary, have you heard about our deal?" asked Rodney next.
"The deal's off," Mr. Martin interrupted brusquely.
"Yes, off," repeated Mr. Martin brusquely. "Because you took me for a bigger fool than I am. My own son can't do that to me. I've found out now that you're broke."
"Oh, Mr. Martin!" protested Mary, crying.
But Mr. Martin stopped her.
"And all the time you were lying to me about the Andover Soap people and the factory they were going to put up. You thought you could make a fool of me—get the best of me, did you? Well, you can't. I'm finished with you and your 13 Soap. You're a smart Alec. You're a complete fake."
"I guess you're right," said Rodney.
"Ah," said Mr. Martin.
"I did try to be smart," Rodney said. "I was stuck on myself. I thought business was a cinch. But you're right. I have been a fake. This whole thing never seemed real. It was just fun—like a game. But I've waked up, and now it's serious. I tried to get the best of you, but I'll take my licking. I don't want any charity. I know what's coming to me, and I'll take my medicine."
His father looked him over curiously.
"Well, maybe I've said a little too much," he said, relenting a little.
"No; it's all true," said Rodney.
"But, see here, I don't want you disgraced," said his father. "I—" "You told me never to come back to you for a nickel," said Rodney bravely, "and I won't."
"Now, see here," began Martin.
"Please, father," Rodney went on. "It's up to me, and nobody else, to get out of this. Please go."
He held out his hand.
"Goodbye, son," he said gently and went out.
"Oh, Rodney, Rodney!" cried Mary when the office door had closed on the old man's back.

Does The Hague convention commit its signers to international arbitration? Which of the present belligerent powers were parties to it?

The first Hague convention or agreement was made in 1864, and all the powers now at war were parties to and signed it. The preamble to the agreement reads as follows: "Animated by a strong desire to concert for the maintenance of the general peace; resolved to second by their best efforts the friendly settlement of international disputes, recognizing the solidarity which unites the members of the society of civilized nations; desirous of extending the empire of law and of strengthening the appreciation of international justice; convinced that the permanent institution of a court of arbitration, accessible to all, in the midst of the independent powers, will contribute effectively to this result; having regard to the advantages attending the general and regular organization of arbitration procedure; sharing the opinion of the august initiator of the international peace conference that it is expedient to record in an international agreement the principles of justice and equity in every direction every day. Would it be possible to tell me something on the Jamaica hurricane of 1903?

On Aug. 11 and 12, 1903, Jamaica was visited by one of the most destructive storms in the history of the island. Port Antonio was almost completely laid waste, and Kingston was badly damaged. Five steamers of the United Fruit company were driven ashore at Port Antonio, five vessels were wrecked in Kingston harbor, and scores of small schooners were lost on the north coast. The loss of life was estimated at fifty and the damage to property at about $10,000,000.

Please tell us why the law establishing national banks did not permit them to lend money on real estate.

National banks were not permitted to lend on real estate because it is a fixed form of investment, and a commercial bank's loans should be for short time and for such purposes as will return the money to the bank in a limited period. Nearly all a bank's liabilities (its deposits) are payable on demand, and therefore its assets should be as nearly as possible payable on demand, or within a short time. Country banks can loan on real estate to a limited extent under the new law.

How did England obtain possession of Egypt?

English control of Egypt may be said to have begun when, in 1875, Stephen Cave and Colonel Stokes were sent to that country to inquire into its poor financial condition. In November, 1876, Goshen and Joubert's mission on behalf of the British and French bondholders resulted in the dual control, one British official to superintend the revenue and a French the expenditure.

What is the age of the emperor of Austria, and how long has he reigned? I think that I have read that he is the oldest king or emperor in the world.

Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria was born Aug. 18, 1830, so was eighty-five years old on Aug. 18 last. He was crowned emperor of Austria in 1848, when eighteen years old, and has reigned as such for sixty-seven years. When what is called the dual constitution was adopted in 1867 he became king of Hungary. The emperor is the oldest monarch now reigning in the world.

When Texas was an independent nation, where and what was its capital? Some argue that it was Houston, others San Antonio, while others say it was a city now obsolete.

San Antonio was the capital of the old state or province of Texas while it belonged to Mexico, but not after it was annexed to the United States. Its two capitals have been Houston, 1836 to 1839, and Austin since 1839.

Easy & Practical Home Dress Making Lessons

Prepared Especially For This Newspaper by Pictorial Review

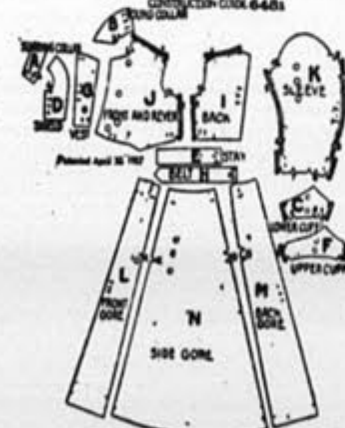

One Piece Frock In Men's Wear Serge.

Men's wear serge is used for this design, although one cannot conceive of any limitations for it as far as materials are concerned. The belt is of contrasting material and the revers and collar are trimmed with narrow sautache braid. In medium size the dress requires 4 1/2 yards 54-inch material.

The underfacing of the front edge of the waist is the initial step in the construction of the dress. Next, close shoulder seam as notched and form tuck, creasing on slot perforations in front and back. Place single "T" on double "oo" perforations at lower edge of front and tuck. Close under-arm seam as notched.

Now adjust the vest underneath the front, bringing single large "P" and double small "oo" perforations in vest and in front together; stitch the right side edge and finish the left side edge for closing.

Face the collar and sew to neck edge, after stitching on the braid.

Next, pleat the sleeve. Close seam as notched, leaving extensions free; turn under extensions on slot perforations. Sew sleeve in armhole as notched.

For the skirt, turn under edges of front and back gores on slot perforations, lap on side gore to small "o" perforations, notches even; stitch as illustrated, leaving edges to left of center-front free above single large "O" perforation in front gore for placket. Adjust skirt to position. Adjust the belt to position. Embroidered medallions may be added to the revers most effectively.

Although fashioned of men's wear serge, this modish one-piece frock has practically no limitations as regards materials. It is trimmed with braid. Pictorial Review Costume No. 6481. Sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50 inches bust. Price, 15 cents.

JOHN PATTERSON DEAD

Resident of Gladstone for 14 Years Passed Away at Advanced Age of 81

John Patterson passed away Thursday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. E. Neff on Wisconsin avenue, Gladstone. He had been ailing for the past several years but had not been seriously ill for more than ten days. Death was due to a complication of nervous disorders and by the advanced age of which he had attained.

The funeral services were conducted Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Neff home on Wisconsin avenue. Rev. F. M. Field officiated. Mr. and Mrs. T. Hellmann, Miss Mildred Hellmann, Raymond Hellmann, all of Minneapolis, C. M. Patterson of Kaukauna, Wis., and Mrs. T. Oliver of Green Bay were in the city for the services.

John Patterson, whose family is well known in this section, was born at St. Martin, Canada, July 11, 1834, between which dates was lived a long and honorable life. A few months more would have made him eighty-two years of age.

For the past fourteen years, he has lived with his daughter in Gladstone, where he has received the kindly attention from loving hands and the patient, tender care which have served to cheer and brighten the twilight years of his life.

The surviving relatives of the deceased are confined practically to his children of whom there are five, three daughters and two sons. They are Mrs. A. E. Neff of Gladstone at whose home he died; Mrs. Stella Cleaves of Seattle, Washington; Mrs. Hellmann of Minneapolis, Minn.; C. M. Patterson of Kaukauna, Wis., and Grant Patterson of Iron River, Michigan.

OUR PUBLIC FORUM

J. S. Cullinan ON CITIZENSHIP.

Mr. J. S. Cullinan, President of the Texas Economic League, in inviting the people to study and discuss citizenship and to give special attention to the problems of government, said in part: "Before we can intelligently study so important a subject as citizenship we must first define it. What is citizenship? Who is the best American citizen? Search the statute books for a definition of citizenship and unless one is a member of the legal profession we immediately become entangled in a labyrinth of confusing and oftentimes contradictory laws, seeking to promote or restrain most every form of human activity, much of them good, some of them bad and others indifferent. But laws come and go; the Constitution is permanent. The preamble of our Federal Constitution states that our government is organized to give its citizens liberty and happiness. Read the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States and one cannot escape the conclusion that the best American citizen is he who is most free, patriotic, just, happy and active and who hands down to posterity a civilization more capable than he found it. The spirit of our country is freedom and no man can become a true American citizen unless he is free.

Turning a moment from documents of State perhaps the best authority on citizenship, and one universally accepted by the public, is Webster's International Dictionary, which defines a citizen as 'A member of a State; a person, native or naturalized, of either sex, who owes allegiance to government and is entitled to reciprocal protection from it.' Further: 'A citizen as such is entitled to the protection of life, liberty and property at home and abroad.' "We now have before us the authoritative definition of citizenship by both government and society and in order that the most humble citizen may feel perfectly free to enter into a study and discussion of this subject I will briefly outline my conception of what citizenship involves, for the work of the Texas Economic League will be in vain if the most lowly citizen does not feel free to give serious thought and expression to his obligation to government and his responsibility to his fellow men.

"Applied to able-bodied adult males, with whom I take it we will have chiefly to do, a citizen's duty, in return for the rights, privileges and protection outlined above, would seem to be: First, to expend sufficient labor in production, or auxiliary occupations, viz., manufacture, transportation and distribution, to support himself and his family in comfort. Second, conform to all laws framed in the interest of society under the Constitution. Third, contribute his just proportion to the maintenance of government in personal time, payment of taxes or, if need be, bearing arms in the defense of the nation.

"In reaching the above conclusions I have assumed that under our system of government citizens are owners in common and are entitled to the rights and benefits of government during the term of their natural lives and for such period only."

Lime Treatment in Tuberculosis

In the May 25, 1912, issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association appeared this statement concerning calcium (lime) medication in the treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption):

"Under the systematic, continued and persistent regime of calcium assimilation, Van Gieson has seen a number of his patients improve, undergo an exudation or partial consolidation in the lung, which then resolving would appear to contribute to the walling off and closing of the lesions. Hand in hand with this course of events, the sputum clears up of tubercle bacilli, which finally disappear, and the patients are discharged with healed pulmonary tuberculosis."

Ethical medical journals seldom speak so positively about a remedial agent, yet this testimony coincides with that from many consumptives, who have secured like results through the use of Eckman's Alternative.

Since calcium is a constituent of this remedy for pulmonary tuberculosis and allied throat and bronchial affections, its healing power may in some measure be attributed to the manner in which this element is so combined with other ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person and it does not irritate the stomach.

Eckman's Alternative contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so it is safe to try. If your druggist is out of it, ask him to order, or send direct to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia.

Seeming Inconsistencies. Explosives go in innocent guise.

... the terrific agent in high-explosive shells. Without nitrogen there could be no explosive at all, yet this inert gas is the chief constituent in the very air we breathe.

FOR FROST BITES

Instant relief is at hand for those who suffer at this season with frost bites and chilblains if they will get from any druggist a small bottle of Minard's liniment. It frees you from all foot troubles. For nothing you have ever used is as good for tired, aching, sore feet. It is wonderfully antiseptic, absolutely pure, easy and clean to use—does not stain and is penetrating and helpful.

You Need a "Real" Corset

DURING the past few seasons styles have permitted more or less freedom in the wear of the corset. It has not been thought necessary by many women to wear the well boned models of the distant past.

This has, however, been carried to extremes, and we know of many instances today where women with a charming figure two or three years ago are now almost shapeless.

Fashions this season demand the corsetted figure, and even if your own figure has not begun to lose its graceful lines through improper corsetting, you will be on the safe side for the future by selecting a real corset.

By a "real" corset we mean a corset that will actually support your figure but will not bind. We have an admirable stock for you to select from, but particularly recommend the new models of "Buckeye" is the popular name of certain American exogenous trees and shrubs of the genus Aesculus and the family Sapindaceae. The "Ohio Buckeye" is a particular kind of buckeye, and Ohio is popularly known as "The Buckeye State." The Ohio buckeye has the botanical name of aesculus glabra; it is a large tree, with strong smelling bark, small obscure flowers, and prickly fruit containing the seed. The horse-chestnut (aesculus hippocastanum) is a near relative of the same genus.

 From Sproness, Orkney, Scotland, County Clerk Albert J. Pepin has received a letter asking that a copy of the citizenship papers of one Thomas Leith be forwarded to that address. Mr. Leith, who received his naturalization papers in this county, has recently made his home in Oregon. Some time ago he went to Scotland to visit with relatives and when he wished to return home he found that he must submit his naturalization papers, or a copy, to secure the necessary passport. AT THE DELFT

Alma Clayton is a butterfly type of girl, who is engaged to a sort of gilded youth, Neil Webster. Alma goes with Neil to a banquet, where she hears a distinguished criminal lawyer make an eloquent speech. She is very enthusiastic over Mayne Burroughs, the lawyer, and after a short acquaintance marries him.

The rejected suitor, Neil, meets Alma after her marriage and tells her that he is "cured" from his infatuation but that he is ready to respond to any call for help. Alma gets in a quarrel with Wayne and he leaves her his mansion to live in, while he goes to his club. Alma sends for Neil, and the young man tries to induce her to elope.

A burglar named Jim Sims breaks into the Burroughs house and starts to loot Wayne's room. Then he sees the picture of Wayne and recognizes it as that of the lawyer who has befriended him. He puts the silver back on the table. Then Sims hears voices and steals down to the parlor, where he finds Neil urging Alma to elope. He makes the woman tie the man securely in a chair. Then he marches her upstairs and shows her Wayne's portrait. He tells of his regard for Wayne and persuades the woman of her mistake in listening to Neil.
