WELCOME EAGLES.

Members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles of Michigan! Escanaba welcomes you as her guests and extends to you the key of the city. Escanaba feels honored that she should have this opportunity of having as her guests, the great order of Eagles. She feels proud that you have chosen the metropolis of Upper Michigan as the meeting place for your 21st convention, the 1917-18 season. Perhaps, in your history, it is the first time you will have Escanaba as a possible hostess in any city in which you have held a convention.

The great order of which you visitors are members, like other fraternal organizations feels the great responsibility before it, a condition brought about by the entry of the United States into the world conflict. You have responded by offering your resources, members and assistance in any way possible to your country. Your grand lodge has invested an enormous amount of money in Liberty Bonds, and has recommended that the dues of members, of which there are a number enlisted in the service of their country, be paid by the local series during the war, and last but not least, you have the opportunity to give towards an insurance fund for the beneficiaries of members who are in service. Truly you are members of a great order and for this reason, if for no other, Escanaba is glad to have you as her guests. You are here and the key of the city has been extended to you. Stay as long as you like, and when the time again comes to depart, it is hoped you do so with regret.

ISAAC STEPHENSON WAS 88 YESTERDAY

President of I. Stephenson Company Celebrates Birthday at Home in Marinette, Monday.

Eighty-eight years old yesterday and as hale and hearty as he was in his younger days, former Senator Isaac Stephenson, the first known man in Wisconsin and upper Michigan, observed the occasion quietly. The Marinette Eagle Star says: "Former Senator Isaac Stephenson celebrated his eighty-eighth birthday today. He spent the day as usual, coming to his office this morning where flowers and telegrams and letters of congratulations awaited him. The later came from all parts of the country, from men with whom he has been associated in political and business life.

"The senator, nearing his ninetieth year, is still in vigorous health and enjoying life. He said this morning that he attributed his long life to what other people do, and regular habits. His appearance and his vigor certainly indicate that he has known how to live.

"Isaac Stephenson, former United States senator from Wisconsin, and reputed the wealthiest man in his state, was born on June 18, 1829, in York county, near the city of Frederick, N. B. His father was of Scotch-Irish extraction, his mother a native of England. His parents were extremely poor and young Stephenson was not able to acquire more than an elementary education before he had to assist his parents in supporting the family. "His career since that time has often been recounted in the press and commented on. Senator Stephenson said this morning, "barring accidents, I expect to live until I am one hundred."

"DEAR, Stop Your Dandruff by using Pompeian HAIR Massage."

"Dandruff has made your hair straggly, thin looking and lifeless. Your coat collar is always covered with ugly scales. Stop your Dandruff now. You can. Just look at my hair. The Dandruff is entirely gone and almost overnight Pompeian HAIR Massage made my hair attractive."
The success of Pompeian HAIR Massage is in its name—"Massage." It is a treatment, not merely a tonic. The massaging (rubbing) of the scalp wakes up the roots of the hair to new life. This massaging also opens the pores of the scalp to the wonderfully stimulating liquids in Pompeian HAIR Massage. Dandruff goes. Your hair will become and stay healthy, vigorous, attractive.
All that is needed is a little massaging once or twice a week. One application shows results. Your scalp will immediately feel clean and invigorated. In one month your Dandruff will be gone. Pompeian HAIR Massage is a clear amber liquid. Not oily. Not sticky. Very pleasant to use. "Greatest treatment for Dandruff in the world," says J. A. Y., Chicago, Ill., "and I speak from experience. My hair before I started using it had gone beyond the ordinary stages of Dandruff and was covered with scales which embarrassed me greatly. I have introduced Pompeian HAIR Massage to my friends."
Practically every user says— one bottle shows actual results. Get a 25c, 50c or $1 bottle at the stores and say the same.
Have your barber every now and then apply a careful Pompeian HAIR Massage. Used in over 30,000 of the best barber shops from Maine to California.
All that is needed is the reliable makers of the famous Pompeian MASSAGE Cream and Pompeian NIGHT Cream. Ad. 3f

I hope that the people who see "The Price She Paid," especially the women, will not regard it simply as an interesting story, an evening's entertainment, and overlook the message it carries to all women—and a good many men.

That message is—stop coddling yourselves.

Mildred Gower, the character I play in "The Price She Paid," is no worse than the average young woman of today, and she brought all her troubles on her own head through this coddling of herself. And the cause of this condition with her, as with thousands upon thousands of women in real life, is the habit of fear.

We are afraid we are going to be poor, or hungry, or cold, or unfashionable, or unpopular. We create a whole host of possible discomforts, and then fly into a panic before them, when there is not the slightest danger. And then we sacrifice everything on the altar of this selfmade fear.

We are not healthy and strong, because we are in constant fear of being sickly and weak, and through shrinking from the temporary inconvenience caused by forming such healthy habits as early rising, moderate eating, and regular exercise, we slip into the lazy methods of life which cause half our illnesses.

When Mildred Gower, in "The Price She Paid," had almost despaired of achieving success as a singer, a man whose mother had been through the mill and had won great renown told her his mother's rules of life. They were:

A career means selfdenial. Not occasional, intermittent, but steady, constant, daily, hourly—a purpose that never relaxes.

A career means not only the routine, the patient, tedious work, the cutting out of time-wasting people and time-wasting pleasures. It means sacrifices beyond a character undisciplined and corrupted by conventional life.

The basis of a singing career is health and strength.

Diet and exercise, day in and day out, month after month, year after year. Frugal, uninteresting, monotonous food, nothing alcoholic, to drink, no cigarettes.

"A delicate voice" is the silly, shallow, misleading way of saying a delicate digestion, for sore throat always means indigestion, never means anything else.

Exercise. You must make your body strong, powerful.

Within my knowledge, six or eight young men and young women have started in on this system. Not one of the character to persist to success. This may suggest why, except two who are at the very top, all of the great singers are men and women whom nature has made powerful of body and of digestion—so powerful that their indiscretions only occasionally make them unreliable.

These are rules which could be adopted by every woman, with great benefit to herself, no matter whether she wants to be a singer or not. For health is the foundation of success in everything. The few exceptions to the statement that no great work ever was done by a sick man prove this rule. In these exceptions you will find that the genius never has reached his full possibilities because his strength failed.

But more important than all these things is the mental and spiritual result of such a regime. It brings to a woman something that is greater than mere success—which should, in fact, be the whole motive of success— independence of thought and action.

Women are taking their proper place in the world today because, by slow stages, they are beginning to understand that they have nothing to fear, that they can stand alone. They are no longer afraid to undertake tasks that have always been regarded as the work of men. The same realization that makes them clever lawyers, doctors, authors, artists and so on makes them better sweethearts.

Scene from the Great Selznick Picture at the Strand Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday. Clara Kimball Young's latest and biggest production.

wives and mothers than were their grandmothers.

This is what I mean when I say that there is more in "The Price She Paid" than a mere evening's entertainment. The story of Mildred Gower might be the story of any woman, and I hope that this story will not be looked upon simply as a delightful romance, but will be taken to heart by the women of America, and be an inspiration to reach out toward a stronger self-consciousness.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE DELFT TONIGHT.

Nance O'Neil in "The Final Payment" and a Fox comedy—make up the program for tonight. The story of the feature is lead in foreign atmosphere and gives the audience a varied scope on conditions and habits of foreign people in trying circumstances.

AT THE STRAND TONIGHT.

Charming Ethel Clayton who is one of the country's most popular motion picture stars, is seen in the stellar role of "Yankee Pluck," the newest World Picture. Brady-Made which will be shown at the Strand theatre tonight.

In this production Miss Clayton appears in the role of a patriotic young Yankee girl who is in love with a rising young military officer. This officer has perfected a new army aeroplane and the Japanese government is very anxious to secure the plans of the machine. The manner in which Miss Clayton frustrates the plans and efforts of an attaché of the Japanese Embassy is thrilling and delightful.

This is an extremely pleasing play with plenty of punch and plenty of thrills. Montagu Love is seen with Miss Clayton in the powerful role of the intriguing Jap.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG.

Clara Kimball Young's third Selznick Pictures production, "The Price She Paid," from David Graham Phillips' novel, will be the feature at the Strand theatre Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

This photoplay, directed by Charles Gildyn, promises to be the most popular offering this favorite screen star has yet given to the public, as the story is one which will enlist the sympathies of everyone, for the reason that the problem of Mildred Gower, the leading character, touches the lives of thousands of women. Miss Young never has had a part which afforded greater opportunity for the display of her remarkable beauty.

Lots 6 to 12 inclusive Block (7), Lots 1 to 26 inclusive Block (8), Lots 1 to 33 inclusive Block (11) of the Wells Addition to the City of Escanaba and Lots 1 to 20 inclusive Block (1), Lots 1 to 20 inclusive Block (2), Lots 1 to 20 inclusive Block (3), Lots 1 to 20 inclusive Block (7), and Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20 of Block (8) of the Cochrane Addition to the City of Escanaba.

And specifications, plats and diagrams and estimates of costs have been filed by the Board of Public Works in the City Clerk's office and are open to public examination. That the Common Council has designated as the district to be assessed for said improvement all the lands, lots and parcels of land fronting and abutting upon said proposed improvement, the same to be assessed according to the benefits derived therefrom.

COUNTY AGENT TELLS HOW HE CAN HELP FARMERS OF COUNTY

the farm; (2), preparation of the seed bed for the different crops; (3), care of the growing crops as to proper method of tillage, control of diseases, etc.; (4), harvesting the crop, and proper storage of the same; (5), he will test the soil for acidity wherever desired, and if it is found to be sour, a sample will be sent to the experiment station of the Michigan Agricultural College and the exact amount of lime per acre to make the soil sweet will be determined.

Arrangement has already been made with the Chemical Plant at Wells, whereby the farmers can get lime there by hauling it away, or can have it shipped to points in the county in carload lots for the price of loading it on the car and freight charges; (6), he will also assist in every way possible to find a market for the produce.

In regard to livestock, advice and help can be given, (1) in figuring out ration for different breeds of livestock through the winter especially, in regard to dairy cows giving milk, (2) in helping the farmers to keep milk records of his herd, and to test the milk occasionally to determine the per cent of butter fat, (3) by helping some farmers to sell, and others to buy, cows, (4) by organizing a breeder's association, whereby pure bred sires can be secured at a minimum cost.

Several other ways in which the agent can be of service are: helping the farmers secure credit, seed, labor, etc., and meeting with them in the granges to talk over and discuss those things in which that particular community is especially interested.

In a sort of summary of the situation, it will be readily discerned that in order to get the most benefit from the work, there is need of much cooperation between the farmers themselves and between them and the agent, and that considerable organization in the county is necessary by which we can work to the best advantage.

R. P. MASON, County Engineer.

I hope that the people who see "The Price She Paid," especially the women, will not regard it simply as an interesting story, an evening's entertainment, and overlook the message it carries to all women—and a good many men.

That message is—stop coddling yourselves.

Mildred Gower, the character I play in "The Price She Paid" was no worse than the average young woman of today, and she brought all her troubles on her own head through this coddling of herself. And the cause of this condition with her, as with thousands upon thousands of women in real life, is the habit of fear.

We are afraid we are going to be poor, or hungry, or cold, or unattractive, or unpopular. We create a whole host of possible discomforts, and then fly into a panic before them, when there is not the slightest danger. And then we sacrifice everything on the altar of this selfmade fear.

We are not healthy and strong, because we are in constant fear of being sickly and weak, and through shrinking from the temporary inconvenience caused by forming such healthy habits as early rising, moderate eating, and regular exercise, we slip into the lazy methods of life which cause half our illnesses. When Mildred Gower, in "The Price She Paid," had almost despaired of achieving success as a singer, a man whose mother had been through the mill and had won great renown told her his mother's rules of life. They were:

A career means selfdenial. Not occasional, intermittent, but steady, constant, daily, hourly—a purpose that never relaxes.

A career means not only the routine, the patient, tedious work, the cutting out of time-wasting people and time-wasting pleasures. It means sacrifices beyond a character undisciplined and corrupted by conventional life.

The basis of a singing career is health and strength.

Diet and exercise, day in and day out, month after month, year after year. Frugal, uninteresting, monotonous food, nothing alcoholic to drink, no cigarettes.

"A delicate voice" is the silly, shallow, misleading way of saying a delicate digestion, for sore throat always means indigestion, never means anything else.

Exercise. You must make your body strong, powerful.

Within my knowledge, six or eight young men and young women have started in on this system. Not one of the character to persist to success. This may suggest why, except two who are at the very top, all of the great singers are men and women whom nature has made powerful of body and of digestion—so powerful that their indiscretions only occasionally make them unreliable.

These are rules—which could be adopted by every woman, with great benefit to herself, no matter whether she wants to be a singer or not. For health is the foundation of success in everything. The few exceptions to the statement that no great work ever was done by a sick man prove the rule. In these exceptions you will find that the genius never has reached his full possibilities because his strength failed.

But more important than all these things is the mental and spiritual result of such a regime. It brings to a woman something that is greater than mere success—which should, in fact, be the whole motive of success— independence of thought and action.

Women are taking their proper place in the world today because, by slow stages, they are beginning to understand that they have nothing to fear, that they can stand alone. They are no longer afraid to undertake tasks that have always been regarded as the work of men. The same realization that makes them clever lawyers, doctors, authors, artists and so on makes them better sweethearts, wives and mothers than were their grandmothers.

This is what I mean when I say that there is more in "The Price She Paid" than a mere evening's entertainment. The story of Mildred Gower might be the story of any woman, and I hope that this story will not be looked upon simply as a delightful romance, but will be taken to heart by the women of America, and be an inspiration to reach out toward a stronger self-consciousness.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE DELFT TONIGHT.

Nance O'Neil in "The Final Payment" and a Fox comedy make up the program for tonight. The story of the feature is lead in foreign atmosphere and gives the audience a varied scope on conditions and habits of foreign people in trying circumstances.

AT THE STRAND TONIGHT.

Charming Ethel Clayton who is one of the country's most popular motion picture stars, is seen in the stellar role of "Yankee Pluck" the newest World Picture Brady-made which will be shown at the Strand theatre tonight.

In this production Miss Clayton appears in the role of a patriotic young Yankee girl who is in love with a rising young military officer. This officer has perfected a new army aeroplane and the Japanese government is very anxious to secure the plans of the machine. The manner in which Miss Clayton frustrates the plans and efforts of an attache of the Japanese Embassy is thrilling and delightful.

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG.

Clara Kimball Young's third Selznick Pictures production, "The Price She Paid," from David Graham Phillips' novel, will be the feature at the Strand theatre Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

This photoplay, directed by Charles Giblyn, promises to be the most popular offering this favorite screen star has yet given to the public, as the story is one which will enlist the sympathies of everyone, for the reason that the problem of Mildred Gower, the leading character, touches the lives of thousands of women. Miss Young never has had a part which afforded greater opportunity for the display of her remarkable beauty.

the farm; (2), preparation of the seed bed for the different crops; (3), care of the growing crops as to proper method of tillage, control of diseases, etc.; (4), harvesting the crop, and proper storage of the same; (5), he will test the soil for acidity wherever desired, and if it is found to be sour, a sample will be sent to the experiment station of the Michigan Agricultural College and the exact amount of lime per acre to make the soil sweet will be determined.

Arrangement has already been made with the Chemical Plant at Wells, whereby the farmers can get lime there by hauling it away, or can have it shipped to points in the county in carload lots for the price of loading it on the car and freight charges; (6), he will also assist in every way possible to find a market for the produce.

In regard to livestock, advice and help can be given, (1) in figuring out ration for different breeds of livestock through the winter especially, in regard to dairy cows giving milk, (2) in helping the farmers to keep milk records of his herd, and to test the milk occasionally to determine the per cent of butter fat, (3) by helping some farmers to sell, and others to buy, cows, (4) by organizing a breeder's association, whereby pure bred sires can be secured at a minimum cost.

Several other ways in which the agent can be of service are: helping the farmers secure credit, seed, labor, etc., and meeting with them in the granges to talk over and discuss those things in which that particular community is especially interested.

In a sort of summary of the situation, it will be readily discerned that in order to get the most benefit from the work, there is need of much cooperation between the farmers themselves and between them and the agent, and that considerable organization in the county is necessary before we can work to the best advantage.

Toward this end, the agent wishes to express his willingness to visit any farm or talk before any grange or gathering of farmers when requested to do so, and to help in any way, shape or manner that he can, to promote the agricultural interests of the county. The suggestions that have been presented will serve only as a skeleton outline of what can be done, and it is hoped that all the farmers, or any one interested along these lines, will feel free to write or talk with the agent on any question or problem that may arise in connection with this office.

MAN--HIS CLOTHES
Some men are well-dressed; others are badly-dressed. You may jump to the conclusion that the well-dressed man spends more money for clothes than the badly-dressed man. Likelier than not the reverse is true. It is largely a matter of selection. The well-dressed man knows clothes—and where to buy them.
The well-dressed man chooses stylish, tasteful, becoming clothes—clothes that inspire his pride and prompt him to take good care of them.
The badly-dressed man chooses at random and without judgment. He feels no special interest in his clothes—doesn't even keep or wear them properly.
Therefore, the untidy man usually spends more for his clothes than the spruce and span man.

If he should meet death at any time while with the colors, the face of the policy will be paid to his dependents or beneficiaries.

"There, in a nutshell, is our opportunity. Shall we seize it or let it pass? Are you, as an individual, willing to sacrifice the price of two five-cent cigars each month in the interest of our common country, and for the splendor of our fraternity?"
"Our order is twenty years old. Times without number, in the years that have passed since its inception, our most representative members have declared from the public platform, in convention, and through the columns of the magazine, that we, as a fraternity, would stand ready to make any sacrifice demanded of us, as Americans, should need arise. The time for that sacrifice has come. The call is insistent. Can we fail to heed it? The service that is asked of us is a small one. Indeed, we should feel the giving so slight a sum as that required of us to be a privilege and not a sacrifice. It is an opportunity for those of us who cannot serve actively to 'do their bit.'" commented the decorating committee by saying that the decorations and plan carried out was the most sensible he had ever seen in this city.

"Our city is proud to have you with us and I am sure that I may safely say that no time or money will be spared to entertain you while you are both the people and the administrators of the people and the administration." With this he closed.

The next speaker was State President H. J. Lemke who was introduced by President Folio who voiced the wish of all of the members of the Escanaba aerie in that the presidency of the state order remain just as it was and that State President Lemke be re-elected for the ensuing year.
In opening his address, State President Lemke thanked the previous speakers for their words of welcome and told the members that while business and pleasure must be intermingled with each other, they were here for business. In brief he said, "Resolutions must be passed that would put the Eagles in the front and make it the foremost of any of similar organizations, and above all, we must pass a resolution recommending fraternal insurance. This will make a new lodge
