NEW ALLIED SUCCESS IS LIKELY TO BE A TURNING POINT IN WORLD WAR

Importance of Advance East of Amiens Cannot Be Overestimated in the Eyes of Allied Military Critics.

Precipitate Retreat of Foe Indicated By Fact That He Is Blowing Up Ammunitions Dumps Back of the Line.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
London, Aug. 9.—The general feeling of the importance of the success of the new battle cannot be overestimated. It is regarded as likely to be the turning point of the present campaign and perhaps one of the crucial points of the whole war. Only a month ago the British were anxiously speculating on whether or not they could hold their lines in the face of the German offensive, which, the German people were told, would be the finish of the war.

The initiative has been taken from the enemy and in a month the allies have engaged in two important battles with considerable success. That the Americans have been a prominent factor in the present results, is stated in the Westminster Gazette, which further says that this is only what all the soldiers who have seen the American mettle tested, are saying,—that the American troops are equal to those of any in the world.

With the British Army in France, Aug. 9.—The Germans are blowing up their ammunition dumps in the battle area. This is considered as an indication of their preparation for a hasty retirement. The British casualty list from the beginning of the Anglo-French drive is but three-fifths of the number of prisoners taken up to three o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Allied airmen are blowing up many bridges over the Somme and the German retreat is being seriously embarrassed. British cavalry has taken many prisoners but the larger part of them have been taken by the Australians and Canadians. Enormous quantities of stores and ammunition are being abandoned by the Germans in their precipitate retreat.

Fourteen Thousand Prisoners
London, Aug. 9.—The French have advanced their battle line south of the Somme river, according to reports received here early today. British cavalry, tanks and armored cars, followed by infantry have advanced to within one mile of the Chaumont railway junction. Cavalry, tanks and armored cars have advanced ahead of the line running from Fraiseville to Thionvillers. The total number of prisoners captured is the largest in

YOUNG WOMEN ARE RESPONDING TO A CALL TO SERVICE

Many Register at Library and Pledge Themselves to Aid in Preserve Food During the Coming Months.

Many of the patriotic young women of Escanaba registered this afternoon at the public library between the hours of 2:00 and 5:00, for the purpose of helping to prevent garden products from being wasted, thereby helping to win the world war. These young women pledged themselves with these words: "I pledge my hands, my hands and my heart through food conservation, to help win the world war and world peace."

By the registration of many of the girls this afternoon they have helped in a great sense to keep up the patriotic spirit which Cleveland and Michigan have so many times been commended, and they, in the days which are to follow will help to feed the people of America, our allies, and our brave soldier boys, who are falling daily in the battle fields "over there" and thus helping to keep the "home fires burning."

VICTOR GROTH IN FRANCE

Mrs. Charles Groth, 308 Hale street has just received a card from her son Victor, which announces his safe arrival in France.

William Cowap of Oshkosh is spending his vacation in the city.

The present drive, being estimated at 10,000. From La Honnes the line runs southwest to Mericourt, southeast of Reuvers. The total maximum advance is reported to be eleven miles. It is believed that it will be impossible for the Germans to hold their Montdidier position. It is also believed that the advance on the Picy front will make Amiens secure from an attack by the enemy and effectually block the threat against Paris.

The advance in the center, along the Chemin des Dames road, is for a distance of about seven miles, while along the whole front, the average advance of the infantry is from five to six miles.

Fourteen thousand prisoners had, at late reports, been taken by the British in their attacks south of the Somme while guns too numerous to mention have also fallen into allied hands. The cavalry is still in pursuit of the enemy. Allied progress is continuing. The French have taken Fresnoy-en-Chaussée, while the British have reached positions east of La Quinielle and Vaux. The Germans are evacuating their positions in the Lys valley on the Flanders front. On the Lys front the British are holding Quentin, Malo, Loere and Kemmel. Above the Lys, north of Kemmel, the British carried out local operations in which they advanced their line 1,000 yards. German resistance was extremely vigorous north of the Somme and heavy fighting is in progress between Chappelle and Moyencourt.

Repair and remodeling work have started on the exposition building at the county fairgrounds where extensive changes are contemplated before the big show this fall. SUPERVISORS TO DISCUSS MATTER OF A SANITARIUM

Menominee Understood to Be Ready to Act Jointly with Delta County on Tuberculosis Treatment Project.

MEETING IS IN PROGRESS

Question Is Whether Delta County Is Willing to Proceed with But One Other County Along This Line.

Members of the Delta County Board of Supervisors went into session at the court house this morning for the purpose, primarily, of discussing matters in connection with the establishment of a joint tuberculosis sanitarium, which has been discussed from time to time for the past two years. The original intention was to have three counties co-operate in sustaining such an institution, some aid also being received from the state. Dickinson, Menominee and Delta counties were included in the original plans but it was learned today that Dickinson county has virtually decided to abandon any participation in the project and the proposition now is whether or not Delta county cares to proceed with Menominee county alone. It is understood that Menominee county is not averse to such a procedure and this is the feature of the situation which will probably be decided during the present session, possibly before night.

The project is now in the hands of a committee to which it was referred at the last meeting and the committee is now ready to report recommending some sort of action.

The allowing of regular bills will constitute the other business of the present session but the sanitarium project is the big business of the meeting.

JAMES J. COLBY WEDS ISHPERING LADY MAY 20TH.

Popular Naval Recruiting Officer Secures License in Escanaba and Marriage Is Performed in Laurium.

Just because he still possesses the old newspaper instinct of "putting things over" and because he had been told by close friends that he couldn't "get away with it" James J. Colby, naval recruiting officer for the upper peninsula, with headquarters at Ishpeming, has most cleverly deceived those same friends and has "put it over" to the extent that he desired. All this of course, has to do with a marriage in which Mr. Colby was most distinctly among those present.

When he went to Ishpeming in 1917 his predecessor introduced him to Miss Ethel E. Carne, whose brother had been shipped a short time before from the Ishpeming station. The friendship grew and flourished and finally burst into full flower with an engagement, which, however, was kept secret. Brother Colby wanted to show his friends that he could get married and keep it a secret also, so on May 15 he came to Escanaba, dropped into the Mirror office and explained that he knew the best place in the world to place a secret cold storage was in the ear of a newspaper man; that he wanted to get married and didn't want anyone to know it until he got ready to announce it himself.

"Well, he didn't misplace his confidence." The license was secured and County Clerk A. J. Pepin helped affairs along by pledging himself to secrecy. The result was that, armed with license, Mr. Colby went from here to Menominee, remained several days, then went on up to Laurium where on May 20, by previous arrangement he met Miss Carne. They were married there on that date and the matter has been kept a profound and absolute secret since then.

That's how hard it was to "put it over." Today Mr. Colby proposes to let his Ishpeming friends know of the marriage and query them as to what they think of the proposition of being frank with a newspaper.

Two Hundred Guns Reported to Have Been Captured Up to Noon Today in Rapid Advance of Allied Forces.

GERMAN GENERAL TAKEN Cavalry, Tanks, Infantry and Airmen Combine Activities Which It Is Impossible for Enemy to Withstand.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
London, Aug. 9.—British divisions on the Italian front carried out eight raids against Austrian positions Thursday night, between Asiago and Canove, capturing 315 prisoners.

London, Aug. 9.—More than 17,000 prisoners had been captured by the allies in the Somme drive up to noon today and 200 guns had been taken. It is also reported that one German divisional commander has been captured in the drive.

Cavalry patrols, accompanied by swift "whippet" tanks are reported by airmen to be far out ahead of the infantry. This afternoon enemy transport lorries were rolling along what is left of the few roads in the Somme valley. They afforded excellent targets for the airmen who played havoc with them and littered the roads with wreckage until the roads were of little or no account to the enemy in making his retirement.

With the British Army in France, Aug. 9.—British cavalry and some infantry were signalled in the vicinity of Chaulnes this morning. When last heard from they were together operating back of Framerville and have progressed many kilometers beyond. They are continuing the cleaning up of the country as they go and have captured several villages in their onward sweep.

Canadian Cavalry Active
London, Aug. 9.—Canadian horse troop, acting with the French cavalry, have cut off a large number of the enemy on the Somme front. The Canadians have taken Beaufort, two and one half miles northwest of Rosieres while Australians are fighting further north along the Somme. Small parties of Germans are still in the vicinity of Rosieres but the British are all around them and their life as fighting men will be short.

PRUSSIAN MIND AT WORK.

The Germans are too much given to judging others by themselves. Their whole motive and action have been utterly materialistic. They started this war because they thought Germany would gain from it in a material way and everything they have done in the war has been in promotion of German gain and aggrandizement, says Charleston News and Courier.

The other lad I spoke of as having been chummy with was Philippe Pierre. He was about eighteen and came from Bordeaux. He was a very cheerful fellow and he and Murray and I used to be together a lot. He felt almost as bad about Murray as I did, and you could see that it changed him a great deal, too. But he was still cheerful most of the time.

CHAPTER XIII.

Limeys, Anzacs and Pollus.

One night, while we were expecting an attack, the word was passed down the line to have the wire cutters ready and to use bayonets only for the first part of the attack, for we were to try and take the first enemy trench by surprise. The first trench was only about eighty yards away. Our big guns opened up and at zero we climbed out and followed the curtain of fire too closely, it seemed to me.

But the barrage stopped too soon, as it does sometimes, and there were plenty of Turks left. We were half way across when they saw us, and they began banging away at us very hard. They pounded at us as we came on until we were given the order to retire, almost as we were on them—what was left of us.

As we turned and started back the Turks rushed out to counter-attack us, the first of them busy with bombs. Then I tripped over something and rolled around a while and then saw it was Philippe Pierre. His left leg was dangling, cloth and flesh and all shot away and the leg hanging to the rest of him by a shred. Two or three of our men who were on their way back to our trenches tripped over me as I tried to get up, and then a shell exploded near by and I thought I had got it sure, but it was only the rocks thrown up by the explosion.

Finally I was able to stand up. So I slung my rifle over one shoulder and got Philippe Pierre up on the other, with his body from the waist up hanging over my back, so that I could hold his wounded leg on, and started back. There was only one or two of our men left between the trenches. Our machine guns were at it hard and the Turks were firing and bombing at full speed.

I had not gone more than two or three paces when I came across another of our men, wounded in several places and groaning away at a great rate. Philippe Pierre was not saying a word, but the other chap did enough for the two of them. One wounded man was all I could manage, with my rifle and pack, over the rough ground and the barbed wire I had to go through. So I told this fellow, whose name I cannot remember—I never did know him very well—that I would come back for him, and went on. I almost fell several times, but managed to get through safely and rolled over our parapet with Philippe Pierre. They started the lad back in a stretcher right away. When I saw him again he gave me a little box as a souvenir, but I have lost it.

The Turks had not got very far with their counter-attack, because we were able to get our barrage going in time to check them. But they were still out in front of their trenches when I started back after the other garby. I was not exactly afraid as I crawled along searching for the other man, but I was very thirsty and nervous for fear our barrage would begin again or the machine guns cut loose. After what seemed a long time I came upon a wounded man, but he was not the one I was after. I thought about "a bird in the hand," etc., and was just starting to pick this chap up when a shell burst almost on us and knocked me two or three feet away. It is a wonder it did not kill both of us, but neither of us was hurt. I thought the fire would get heavier then, so I dragged the other chap into one of two holes made by the shell. Some pieces of the shell had stuck into the dirt in the hole and they were still hot. Also, there was a sort of gas there that hung around for several minutes, but it was not very bad.

The man began talking to me, and he said it was an honor to lie on the field of battle with a leg shot off and dead men piled all about you, and some not dead but groaning. He told me I would soon be able to hear the groaning, though I had not said I minded it, or anything about it. Then he said again what an honor it was, and asked if I had a drink for him. I had not had any water all day, and I told him so, but he kept on asking for it all the same. Some of the Turkish bombers must have sneaked up pretty close to our lines, for when I looked out of the hole toward our lines, and a shell burst near them, I could see a Turk coming toward us. We played dead then, but I had my bayonet ready for him in case he had seen us and decided to come up to the hole. Evidently he had not, for when he got near the hole he steered to the side and went around.

The other garby was cheerful when he was not asking for water, but you could see he was going fast. So we sat there in the hole and he died. Shortly afterward the fire slackened a little and I got out and started toward our lines. But I remembered about the other wounded man I had passed when I was carrying Philippe Pierre, so I began hunting for him, and after a long time I found him. He was still alive. His chest was all smashed in and he was badly cut up around the neck and shoulders. I picked him up and started back, but ran into some barbed wire and had to go around. I was pretty tired by this time and awfully thirsty, and I thought if I did not rest a little bit I could never make it. I was so tired and nervous that I did not care much whether I did get back or not, and the wounded garby was groaning all the time.

I Picked Him Up and Started Back.

So when I thought the shells were coming pretty thick again I got into a shell hole and it was the same one I had left not long before. The dead garby was there just as I had left him.

The wounded one was bleeding all over, and my clothes were just soaked with blood from the three men, but most of all from him. There was some of my own blood on me, too, for when I was knocked down by the shell my nose bled and kept bleeding for a long time, but, of course, that was nothing compared to the bleeding of the others.

The worst of all was that he kept groaning for water, and it made me thirter than I had been, even. But there was not a drop of water anywhere and I knew there was no use searching any bodies for flasks. So we just had to stick it out. Pretty soon the wounded man quit groaning and was quiet, and I knew he was going to die too. It made me mad to think that I had not been of any use in carrying these two men around, but if I had gone on with either of them it would have been just the same—they would have died and probably I would have got it, too. When I figured it out this way I quit worrying about it, only I wished the fire would let up.

So the other man died, and there were two of them in the hole. I read the numbers on their identification disks when shells burst near enough so that I could see them, and after a while got back to our lines and rolled in. I could not remember the numbers or the names by that time, but a working party got them, along with others, so it was all right.

My clothes were a mess, as I have said, and I was so tired I thought I could sleep for a week, but I could not stand it in my clothes any longer. It was absolutely against regulations, but I took off all my clothes—the blood had soaked into the skin—and wrapped myself in nothing but air and went right to sleep. I did not sleep very well, but woke up every once in a while and thought I was in the hole again.

During the night they brought up water, but I was asleep and did not know it. They did not wake me, but two men saved by share, though usually in a case like that it was everybody for himself and let the last man go dry. You could not blame them, either, so I thought it was pretty decent of these two to save my share for me. I believe they must have had a hard time keeping the others off of it, to say nothing of themselves, for there really was not more than enough for one good drink all around. It tasted better than anything I have ever drunk. Go dry for 24 hours in the hottest weather you can find, do a night's work like that, and come to in the morning with a tin cup full of muddy water being handed to you, and you will know what I mean.

At Gaba Tepa there were steep little hills with quarries in between them, and most of the prisoners we took were caught in the quarries. We found lots of dead Turks under piles of rock, where our guns had battered the walls of the quarries down on them.

DRUGS EXCITE YOUR KIDNEYS, USE SALTS

If your Back is aching or Bladder bothers, drink lots of water and eat less meat.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salt which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 600 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no longer wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

OLD SHIPS SHOW WORKERS' SKILL FIFTY YEARS AGO

Splendid Workmanship of That Time Makes Possible the Re-Building of Vessels for Present Needs.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 9.—The splendid workmanship of shipbuilders of half a century ago today is making possible reconstruction of craft of those days.

One of these vessels, known fifty years ago as the passenger steamer Meteor, is being rebuilt into a coal carrier. It was the Meteor that in 1865 rammed the steamer Pewabic off Thunder Bay, Lake Huron, and sank it with heavy loss of life.

The Meteor continued in the passenger service until 1872 when it was seriously damaged by fire and foundered in River Rouge. It remained there, an abandoned hulk, for many years, finally being raised and used to carry coal for the Detroit water works. When reconstructed the Meteor will carry coal between Detroit and Toledo and be re-named the Nelson Bloom.

Another old vessel that the demand for tonnage will bring to life again is the steamer Italia, 307 feet long. The Italia foundered in a storm a number of years ago. It was raised and towed to a Detroit river shipyard. Later it was swept by fire, and has since been the subject of litigation. Reconstruction work will be started as soon as title to the hull is cleared up.

There are several other similar cases involving vessels regarded as worth rebuilding, despite the fact that they took their initial plunge into the water many decades ago.

LADIES! LOOK YOUNG, DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Use the Old-time Sage Tea and Sulphur and Nobody Will know.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and luxuriant, and you appear years younger. "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

- Jerry Goodwill. Flora King. David LaCrosse. Albert LaForrest. W. H. Little. Henry Marsenger. Dona Marsenger. Arthur Nadon. Jos. Paviak. Sigurd Skoog. Medard Vlau. Clyde Vlau. Emery Reno. Joseph Barron. Elois Therrian. Adolphus Brunette.

ESCANABA MAN DESCRIBES LIFE

was imprisoned. They have a guide who takes you through for one franc in French money, which amounts to about eighteen cents in our money. If one could go all through, it would take more than a day but there are parts of it that are condemned. The tunnels leading from it are miles long and so dark that a person fifteen feet from you with a strong light could not be seen. There are three and four levels in it just like a mine, with only one entrance to the castle, but many in which, if you should get lost, to get out of.

The civilians raise mushrooms in many parts of these caves. Some people also have wine stored in them. Teams can be driven in these tunnels and you can see great numbers of wells cemented, on the sides of the road. Dates carved in the walls almost so moss covered that they are unnoticeable, from 1653.

"The French people sure do all they can for us and we all can realize what this war means to them. Speaking to a French soldier recently who could speak some English, he told me how, when war first broke out, some went out into battle without rifles and had to wait until some one was picked off before they could take action. Then, too, they were lucky if they could find ammunition as many only had but little of that.

"I was on this sector where it had happened, for more than two months, and the Germans who came over sure got what they were looking for while we stayed there. The company had been there more than three months, but I was attached to it later. I am at present with the Iowa National Guards and find them to be a fine lot of young men. I have not been lucky enough to come in combat with the Germans in battle but was near at hand one day while on guard, and after being relieved I helped to carry in a few wounded prisoners. They came over in a quiet raid early one morning and I don't believe any returned alive out of about sixty. Their intentions were to go over and capture a few prisoners but they sure were out of luck. Some were quite sure and only had a little experience, while some were quite old.

"You sure will beat it to safety when they open up a barrage, for some dug out until it is all over with that is, if not on a post where one cannot go. The miniewiffers shrapnel, and high explosives have power enough to put thoughts of what you did in your younger days and still, when it is all over and you come out alright, you think, 'well I've got another chance.'

"The Americans always go forward and its their great desire to do our bit. I tried to get into the railroad service over here but was unable to for some reason or other. We are at present in a livelier sector but still back far enough from the lines that we sleep in tents, of course unknown to the Germans, as their guns can reach us.

"It is nothing to see airplanes flying both night and day. Really I could sit down and write three or four sheets this morning but I must get ready for inspection to vet, as the French say, so hoping you are all well, as I can assure you I have been since my arrival, 'Over There,' and I will try in the near future to write oftener, I remain,

"Your sincere brother,

THE THEATRES AT THE DELFT.

Ever bewitching Mable Normand is the star of the new Goldwyn photoplay, "Joan of Plattsburg," to be seen at the Delft again tonight.

The role in which she appears in this new production is that of Joan, the charter orphan of an asylum which is run as a blind by a band of enemy spies, near a great military concentration camp at Plattsburg, N. Y. Her own name, together with the story of Joan of Arc which has come to her in a picture book left at the asylum by a friendly neighbor, leads her to believe that she may be inspired and intended to save her country like the Maid of Orleans.

This belief is strengthened when she hears mysterious voices over her head. Those voices really are those of the spies who are decoding wireless messages in the room above her. It so happened that Joan has fallen in love with Lane, a dashing young captain of the camp nearby. Lane has been delegated to guard Ingleton, an inventor who has just perfected a device so important that it is likely to end the war and prevent all other wars in future. The spies are after this device; and to get it they plan to get Lane out of the way.

Thus it comes about that Joan hears the spies plotting Lane's death. So she goes to Lane and tells him what the "voices" have revealed to her. At first he thinks she is out of her mind; but when some of her prophecies begin to come true he makes an investigation.

A succession of thrilling scenes ensue in which the soldiers come into direct conflict with the spies, and a real romance developed between little Joan and her soldier boy.

AT THE STRAND.

Smash! Smash! The thunderous blows of a sledge hammer boomed on the jail doors of Matherville, Illinois, while a frightened and madden old man, whiskey-soaked and sodden, cowered within the wooden prison and awaited the lynching party that he thought had come to run him out of town.

With the swinging rhythm that accompanied his strokes on the anvil, young Bill Hartwell, the village smith, swung on the heavy wooden door, while a mob of men, women and children gathered indignantly about him to watch the proceedings. Several of those attempted to put an end to young Hartwell's lawless activities. The flame of murder in his eyes, and the deadly menace of the hammer in his hands made quick end to the interference.

The old man was shortly released. Reverently his son brought home the weak, old, sodden, despised creature shunned by all but himself.

Then the red mob wrath gathered in "Old Hartwell's Cub," which will be shown at the Strand Theatre Saturday. With bitter resentment and determined indignation, the people of Matherville swept down on the smithy. Met by the fearless young blacksmith at his doorway, the mob halted. Pierce denunciation of their persecution was headed on the people by the Reverend David Lane, who arrived at that moment.

The blacksmith and the minister became friends and young Hartwell met Mary Lane, the minister's daughter, whose heart was given to one who possessed neither character nor conscience. How Mary Lane traveled through the woman's path of tears and disillusionment to the garden of happiness is told in this heart-gripping, pulse-throbbing Triangle romance "Old Hartwell's Cub." William Desmond hammers the anvil and Mary Warren is pretty Mary Lane in this picture. Walt Whitman, Edwin Brady, Eugene Burr and Graham Pette are also in the distinguished cast.

BAKER URGES SPEEDY ADOPTION OF BILL TO EXTEND DRAFT AGES

Says it is Essential to Provide Enough Men to Fill Out The Ranks in Conformity With Present Plans.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—The enlarged war program extension bill was explained to the senate military committee behind closed doors today by secretary of War Baker. He urged the adoption of the "man power" bill extending the draft age from 18 to 45, as speedily as possible, as being absolutely essential to providing the number of men necessary to bring the war to a satisfactory conclusion. After completing his statement Secretary Baker was questioned by the sub-committee investigating the airplane situation.

He also said that the suspension, yesterday, of the army and navy voluntary enlistment period, did not apply to men who had taken action prior to the issuance of the order. Prompt enactment of the draft extension bill, so that Sept. 5 may be fixed as registration day, was urged by Secretary Baker. He stated that without this extension, it would be necessary to invade the ranks of deferred classes to meet the demand for men.

C., Aug. 9.—American Consul Poole at Moscow has informed the state department that Nicolai Lenine, Bolsheviki Premier, recently declared before a gathering of soviets in Moscow, that a state of war existed between Russia and the entente. Foreign Minister Tchirnin says that the premier's statement needs not be considered as a declaration of war but rather a declaration of a state of defense on the part of Russia, similar to that which exists between Russia and Germany during the early days of the war.
