LITTLE OLD NYAWK.
Consideration of a Great Lakes-to-the-Sea deep water route by the International Joint Commission has had at least one result to date—it has brought into the open the position of New York toward the proposition. New York does not want the benefits of the Great Lakes district to enjoy the benefits of direct ocean commerce.

Overlooking the fact, no longer questioned, that the power developed by improving the St. Lawrence waterway would much more than bear the total expense of the enterprise, these Eastern opponents continually harp on the vast expense involved. They pass over, too, in silence the important saving of coal effected by the introduction of several million horsepower not hitherto available, an economy which, in view of the experience of the last three winters, should make a strong appeal to the people of every part of the country.

On the positive side, they call attention to the existence of the great New York Barge Canal, completed at a cost approaching $175,000,000, which they say should supply the commercial outlet of the cities of the Great Lakes district are seeking. Surely the performance of the Barge Canal ought to be its own best argument.
If New Yorkers saw their canal barges absorbing the traffic of the Great Lakes they would not waste time in debate. As a matter of fact, the few scattered barges give little reinforcement to the New York contention.

Out of it all comes only the suspicion that the people who are contending so loudly for economy and utilization of existing waterways would be quite content to maintain the status quo. They do not object to idle waterways so long as these contribute to the freight traffic of the railroads, and they have no special objection to the expensive rehandling of goods and the congestion of ports provided these hindrances to commerce enhance the revenues of New York cities.

And as a corollary of this unpleasant hypothesis there appears this probability—if the Atlantic Ocean by way of the St. Lawrence River there existed a natural navigable waterway, these New Yorkers who now so oppose the use of the people's money would as strongly advocate an appropriation to obstruct this natural northern channel. One may assume this because the proposed improvement will pay for itself and yet New York opposes. The great central purpose evidently in New York minds is to have the traffic of the Great Lakes contribute as much as possible to the wealth and prosperity of the people of New York.

We thought so. After reading of A. V. Dalrymple with the title of "major," we proceeded to ask the Associated Press to find out how he happened to get the title. They didn't find out. All they know is he is a veteran of the Spanish-American war and for a number of years has been connected with the intelligence department of the Army. It all serves to remind us of the little ditty—
"Every little soldier has a title all his own."

We "kidded" a girl who said she bought a new skirt for a substantial sum and said "That's all," and she got peeved because we thought she meant that was going to be the style.

It is claimed that people are losing their minds through fooling with outboard boards, but that seems to take it for granted that those people have minds.

It is promised that the Mexican election shall be honest, and the ballots of those whom the government permits to vote will be fairly counted.

It is claimed that the "white color men" can't afford to get married. But very few of the girls have been known to refuse a pair of jumpers.

March comes in like a lion! Bring on the lamb.

Grand Rapids—The Kent County Farm bureau will make a start this season as a buying organization of farm supplies. The county organization does not plan to distribute direct to the members, but will operate through the local co-operative associations.

Muskegon—Christ Larsen, of Muskegon Heights, killed himself with a revolver after he had been taken from his bed and propped up in a chair in order that he "might breathe better." Larsen had been ill with influenza for two weeks and had been despondent. He leaves a widow and three children.

Mason—An attempted jail delivery at night was frustrated by Hugh Sibley, sheriff. As he looked up for the night, he was struck on the head with an iron bar by Edward Wood, but managed to overcome the prisoners, grabbed the bar and drove the men to their cells when help arrived. A crude steel key to unlock a rear door was found. It took 16 stitches to close the sheriff's wounds.

Lansing—Hiram W. Johnson, United States senator from California, was the third presidential candidate who has qualified to have his name placed on the presidential preference ballot to be voted on in this state April 5. The other two presidential candidates already qualified for the April preferential vote are William G. Simpson, Republican, and Eugene V. Debs, Socialist.

Saginaw—Following charges of Birch Run Township residents, through which most of the Saginaw County end of the Dixie Highway extends, that concrete had cracked a month after it had been laid, the committee will include other Saginaw highways in its investigation. This road is costing about $30,000 a mile and laxity in the supervision of its construction is charged.

Lansing—Buying and selling of seeds and grain and selling of wool for the farmers of the state on a co-operation cost basis has been started by the Michigan State Farm bureau. The offer of the Michigan Crop Improvement association, founded by the Michigan Agricultural college, to turn over its business machinery as the nucleus of the new farm bureau seed and grain department has been accepted.

Detroit—The Rev. Thomas G. Sykes, for 10 years pastor of the exclusive Grosse Pointe Protestant Church, has announced his resignation to become effective at once. Dr. Sykes has entered the real estate business because he says he was unable to support his family on his salary as a clergyman. The Grosse Pointe congregation has long been considered one of the wealthiest in America. It is of no special denomination and is known as the Grosse Pointe Protestant Association. Dr. Sykes says he must take provision for declining years.

Considering recent events, it would seem to be a good principle that members of the President's cabinet, like children, should be seen and not heard.

The people who claim the newspapers are subsidized, are usually the same ones who haven't been able to get some personal favor for themselves.

If the Reds are suffering in prison, it is not probably because of their strong desire to go to work.

THEATRES

At The Strand.
Peggy Hyland in "Miss Adventure," a tomboy whom the whole village loved, shows at the Strand today and tomorrow.

A mutiny on the schooner Fremont, on its way to San Francisco, results in the mortal injury of Basil Cavanaugh, a wealthy widower, who is travelling with his four-year-old daughter, Jane. Before dying he entrusts the child to the care of a fourteen-year-old cabin boy, Dickie Hamilton, with instruction to deliver her and a letter to Edward J. Cass at the Cass National Bank, San Francisco, and gain a liberal reward. A few days later the schooner meets a small fish-smuggler, and exchanges of contraband goods are made.

Dickie, who has secreted Jane in a keg, watches his little charge lowered into the smaller boat. Later, as he steers his craft, Bog the smuggler hears a sobbing voice from the keg, and rips off the hoops to discover Jane and the letter, which Dickie has tied around her neck.

Bog sees a chance to get the reward, but on arriving at the pier revenue officers arrest him, and Captain Barth (who, with his young son Albert, happens to be near) is so touched by the plight of Jane that he gains permission to adopt her.

Fourteen years later Jane, full of mischief, is the tomboy of a west coast fishing village.

Bog, who has been in prison, escapes and seeks Barth, who refuses to help him. Albert intercepts the smuggler and learns his former connection with Jane; and on the promise of Albert's assistance, Bog consents to do the other's bidding.

FEATURE AT DELFT.
The great Nazimova in "The Brat" plays two days at the Delft, commencing today.

"The Brat" will show Nazimova for the first time in her brilliant career in the part of an American girl, Latin and other foreign types had been considered Nazimova's metier; but she is said to amaze even her warmest admirers by her remarkable impersonation of the nameless waif of the streets around whom the dramatic action of "The Brat" revolves.

The vicissitudes and final triumph of "the brat," a child-woman whose life has been one charitable institution after another until she lands in the chorus, form the theme of Nazimova's version of Maude Fulton's play. How the brat loses her job because she is too shabby to compete with the other girls; how she is later insulted and then taken to the Night Court on a trumped up charge; and how she is noticed by an author who takes her home to study her as the type for his new novel are the beginnings of a romance that has a distinctly original flavor and is pungent with wit and satire.

Charles Bryant, who has been Nazimova's leading man in every one of her great screen vehicles save "The Red Lantern," again plays opposite the brilliant Russian star in the role of MacMillan Forrester, the author.

Hasking is Arrested.
Because of the failure of Capt. James Hasking, newly appointed head of the local Salvation Army corps, to heed the warning of Officer Peter Monson and of the city health officer, to refrain from the use of a sewer at the Salvation Army barracks, a warrant was issued by Judge Glaser yesterday. Complaint was made because the sewer was frozen.

INTERNATIONAL FILM S.O.
CAPT MARSHALL FIELD III

CHICAGO—Captain Marshall Field III, Lieutenant Harper Moulton and Sergeant Paul D. Hurd were in the war together. Recently Field applied for a million-dollar insurance policy through his former buddies, who, since the war, have become insurance agents. If Captain Field dodges autos and street cars as well as he did German shells, he will soon be paying between $20,000 and $31,000 per year premium.

The Misses Katherine and Anna Russell have returned from a visit of two weeks at Ford River.

William Caven, So., 86 years of age, sustained a stroke of paralysis at the home of his son, William Caven, 504 South Campbell street, this morning and at a late hour this afternoon it was said that but little hope for his recovery was entertained.

Good Way to Clear Land.
In the novel method of clearing land adopted by a Minnesota farmer, the underground roots are burned away, freeing the stump above ground for use as firewood. At one side of each stump an excavation is made in the ground, and from this a hole is bored through the roots to a stovepipe set upright in the ground on the other side. When a fire is kindled in the excavation, the draft set up through the roots and the pipe causes the roots to be slowly consumed, until the stump may be toppled over quite unharmed.

Seventh Son Of A Seventh Son Makes Candidate Forecast

WASHINGTON, Mar. 1.—The next president of the United States will come from the ranks of the great middle class and his name is not now even mentioned as a potential candidate, predicts Thomas Pyronski, a seventh son of a seventh son now serving in the new, democratic, peace-time Army.

Private Pyronski has something of a prophet's reputation with his "buddies" and a few of his predictions have been:

- (1) Passage of the Volstead Enforcement Act.
- (2) Allied trading with the co-operative of Soviet Russia.

Pyronski also foretold the election of Ira Munson as a member of the borough council of Wattsburg, Penna., last November.

Ancient Greek Writing.
Athenaeus says that when the ancient Gauls worshiped they turned to the right, imitating the apparent motion of the heavens. This is confirmed by Pliny, and instructions to this effect have been found in the classical works of Plautus and Homer. When the Greeks first learned the art of writing they adopted the alternate system, in imitation of the ox plowing a field, though the practice may have had its origin in the dances of the priests of Apollo who danced before the altars.

SCHOOL GIRLS' HOBBIES WILD

Boys Not Only Ones Hit By Crazes; Females Curious.

LONDON.—One hears much of the curious pranks and hobbies of school boys, but rarely of school girls, and yet the latter are every bit as prone to mad crazes and bits of eccentricity as the former.

Fake Fainting Spell.

In the same school there was once quite an epidemic of fainting. Hardly a lesson passed without some girl or other suddenly collapsing on the floor in a presumed state of unconsciousness.

Utterly at a loss to account for these extraordinary seizures, the head mistress at last sent for a doctor, when it was discovered they were all "fakes."

The girls had been reading a serial story in which the heroine had very gracefully fainted at a peculiarly critical moment and this had imbued them with the desire to imitate her; hence they had "tried it in school."

In another girls' school there has recently been quite a mania for imitating obsolete boys' customs, derived from perusing such books as "Tom Brown's School Days" and "St. Winifreds."

Jewelry Craze Starts.

Of course, they did not mean to hurt her, but only to "panic" her, as one of them put it when found out. Unfortunately, however, they were a bit too zealous, with the result that their victim got a bad burn on one of her eyes. With the cessation of the war, love of jewelry at once manifested itself again, and girls began to turn up in class with their fingers smothered in rings.

There was a great run on slave bracelets, worn not only on the arms, but on anklets, and in one school in the suburbs of London certain of the older girls shocked the authorities by developing perfectly mad craze for highly ornamental garters.

This had to be put down, and the mistresses were congratulating themselves on having effectually suppressed so wicked a hobby when, to their utmost consternation, they found themselves confronted with a new peril.

Some of the students had smuggled some dye into the premises, and at least seven of them came down to breakfast one morning with their naturally unobtrusive colored locks transformed into the most arresting and glaring masses of futurist orange and red.

Commercial Heads to Argue Daylight Plan

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS) BAY CITY, Mich., Mar. 1.—Arguments for an alleged "daylight saving" are expected to occupy a large part of the sessions here March 5 and 6, of the convention of state commercial secretaries.

A special committee, headed by Ray Brundage, of Kalamazoo, has canvassed the situation in many parts of the state and reports that virtually every community is in favor of adopting the plan.

BEG YOUR PARDON. In writing up a justice court trial at Justice McEvens court last Friday, the name of William Fillion was given as the defendant. This was an error. The defendant was J. E. Fillion who is not in any way related to William Fillion, who is employed at the plant of the Escanaba Veneer Co.

Magnesium and Aluminum. Magnesium and aluminum are such alike in many respects and quite different in others. Magnesium is one-third lighter than aluminum, and at the same time denser, harder and tougher. Atmospheric influence is about the same on magnesium and aluminum; but, while alkalis such as ammonia or soda, attack aluminum considerably, magnesium is not affected as much. Magnesium is worked into objects, having sharp edges, screws, etc., more readily and with better results. It takes a high polish, is readily hammered and rolled, and can be swaged or pressed like tin into any shape.

PARTNERSHIP IS DISSOLVED

Matt Fillion Buys Stock of A. J. Young and Ben Young.

By the purchase of the stock owned by A. J. Young, Matt Fillion became the owner of the Young & Fillion company, the deal having been closed last Saturday afternoon. To those who have watched the advancement of this company in a business way the advantages of coordinated team work has been exemplified to the hundredth power.

Big Escanaba Booster.

A. J. Young, who is retiring, has made this city his home practically all of his life. He has seen the town grow from a small village to a metropolitan city and every bit of the time he has been one of the greatest boosters for the betterment of all civic conditions.

Mr. Young has not decided as yet what he will do. It is probable that he will take a long rest, which he deserves, for he has had little time to play since he was a boy. Those who have learned of his retirement from the company hope nothing will arise that will induce him to make his home in any other city.

Matt Fillion, who has purchased the stock of Mr. Young and who will continue the business along the same lines that has made it a success, has all these qualities one thinks of when a self made man is mentioned. He started in life with but little chance for education and with no backing to get in any business.

May Remain Here. Ben F. Young who has been with the firm for years and held the position of advertising manager also sold his stock in the company. He has not decided what he will do as yet but says he likes Escanaba too much to leave it, which one would take to mean that he has something in sight.

32ND TO INVITE FRENCH OFFICER

General Mangin To Be Division Guest At Reunion.

The first annual reunion of the Thirty-Second division, composed of men principally from Wisconsin and Michigan, will be held in Milwaukee Sept. 19, 20 and 21, it was announced following a meeting of the executive committee held in the Cream City yesterday.

Arrangements have been made to obtain the presence of General Joseph Mangin, commander of the Tenth French Army who also directed the operations of the "Red Arrow" division at the battle of Juvigny.

It is planned to make the general the joint guest of the division and the City of Milwaukee. In addition to General Mangin, other men of prominence will be invited.

Col. E. G. Heckel, Detroit, formerly lieutenant colonel of the 33rd Michigan regiment when the organization served on the border; Col. Guy M. Wilson, Flint, former major of the 33rd Michigan on the border, and Col. Howard M. Grube, of Detroit, commander of the old 31st Michigan, were the Michigan men in attendance.

Any soldier who ever belonged to the division prior to April 8, 1919, is eligible to membership regardless of whether he served throughout the war with the division. It is also planned to make the nearest of kin of all of those men in the division who were killed during the war honorary members.

First Platinum Ingot. The first veritable platinum ingot was made by a French chemist, Cabaneu, in 1783. Charles III of Spain had called him to Madrid and created a special chair of mineralogy, physics and chemistry for him. In his laboratory he found the secret of rendering the new metal malleable, and this is the way he revealed the fact to one of his patrons: "Three months later, at the home of the count of Aranda, there appeared upon a table an ingot some 10 centimeters cube (about four inches), with a beautiful metallic luster; it was malleable platinum."
