LUMP SUM OF $500 FAVORED IN BONUS PLEA

Head of Service Organization Opposes Varied Sums.

"Would Not Be Paid For Time At So Much a Day Or Month," He Says.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
WASHINGTON, March 5.—Payment of a lump sum of $500 to each person who served in the military or naval forces of the United States was urged before the House ways and means committee today by Marvin Gates Sperry, national president of the Private Soldiers and Sailors Legion.

He opposed the proposition of representatives of other soldier organizations for adjusted compensation varying from $30 to $50 for each month of service and said the service of 4,000,000 young Americans never could be paid by "skipping miserly additional compensation bill pending before congress."

JUDGE WARNS ON INFLUENCE MADE BY STATE PAPERS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 5. Newspaper reports of the decisions of Judge Sessions in the Newberry election conspiracy trial were the subject of judicial comment today. Judge Sessions warned the jury for the third time in the trial not to be influenced in any manner by anything that occurs out of the courtroom, either by reading newspapers or by hearing comments.

Don't Read Accounts.
"In these days," continued Judge Sessions, "twelve men should not be restrained from reading newspapers, but you should restrain yourselves from reading accounts of the trial."

"In one newspaper this court has been quoted as expressing an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendants. This court has expressed no opinion as to that. In deciding motions it became necessary to determine certain questions. But you men are sole judges of the guilt or innocence and I call your attention to this matter again because it is possible that some injustice unwittingly may have been done to the government or defense."

This factor in the testimony opened the second day of the defense in the trial. The defense also reviewed testimony intended to impeach that offered by Frank H. Withey, who said that Clifford Sibben, secretary to Paul King, told him that "Newberry and his family were the sources of a barrel of money" for the 1918 campaign. Sibben denied this yesterday and further negative testimony was offered today.

NEGOTIATIONS ON RAIL WAGE OPEN IN WEEK

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
WASHINGTON, March 5.—Preliminary arrangements are being made by representatives of railroad unions and executives for the opening of negotiations on wages and working conditions early next week. Director General Hines has charge of the conference and plans to issue a call for the meeting for Tuesday or Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Final adjustment of financial and legal questions arising from government control of the railroads will require a "considerable time," Director General Hines said today. Only a small number of claims have been received, as yet, he said, but when all of those affecting questions of capital, expenditures, maintenance questions and claims from shippers on account of loss and damage or total represented by will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Germans Vote Power to Call Off Trials

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
BERLIN, March 5.—The German assembly has passed a supplementary bill relating to the trial of men accused of violations of laws of war. It would empower the supreme state's attorney to propose the discontinuance of any prosecution should be convinced there is no ground for the public accusation of any person. It also provides for resumption of proceedings against any person, even after acquittal, and for a rehearing of cases of persons convicted when sentences passed are clearly disproportionate to the offenses charged.

All Saints' Church, Gladstone, Burns to the Ground This Morning

Fire which is believed to have started from an overheated furnace this morning destroyed All Saints church in Gladstone, of which Father O. J. Bennett is pastor. The fire broke out in the basement at 8:30 o'clock and it was not until 3:30 this afternoon that the firemen were able to leave the scene. No estimate of the loss has been made and nothing was given for publication with regard to the amount of insurance carried on the building.

$5000 DAMAGE SUIT IS FILED AFTER ARREST

Member Of State Constabulary Is Made Defendant.

Maple Ridge Man Charges Arrest Wednesday Without a Warrant.

Suit for $5,000 damages against Anthony Haydon, member of the state constabulary police, was filed late yesterday at the county clerk's office by Attorney N. C. Spencer for William La Crosse, Maple Ridge township. The suit is the outcome of the arrest of La Crosse by Haydon late Wednesday and his being kept in the county jail over night.

The declaration of the suit asserts that by reason of being imprisoned the deponent was "deprived of the social enjoyment of his friends and subjected to great bodily harm and mental pain and distress and thereby was hindered and prevented from performing and transacting his lawful and customary business and occupation."

Arrested Wednesday.
La Crosse was arrested by the member of the state constabulary without a warrant, according to the man's attorney. La Crosse was scheduled to be given a hearing in Judge C. D. McEwen's court yesterday afternoon, but due to the inability of witnesses to arrive because they were on snow bound trains, the case was postponed for an indefinite period.

The declaration filed yesterday asserts that on March 3, the said Anthony Haydon came to the La Crosse home in Maple Ridge township and "without warrant or authority of law placed this deponent under arrest." The declaration further says that the said Anthony Haydon took this deponent from his home and compelled him to accompany him to Escanaba and there "confined him in the county jail all of the night and until 10 o'clock the following morning."

"Suffers Humiliation."
By reason of the unlawful conduct of Mr. Haydon, continues the declaration, Mr. La Crosse "has suffered great humiliation, shame, loss of earnings and other expense and damage," and believes he is entitled to recover $5,000 from Haydon.

La Crosse declares he was put to the expense of $300 for retaining attorneys, railroad fare, hotel bills, witness fees and other expenses.
A man named Kangas made complaint to Haydon that La Crosse had stolen some logging equipment from him, with the result that Haydon caused the arrest of La Crosse and a warrant to issue on his arrival here. Haydon did not file a bonded today.

COLD WAVE IS SPREADING TO EAST, SOUTH

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
CHICAGO, March 5.—The cold wave which yesterday swept into the middle west proceeded by rain and sleet and accompanied by snow today spread eastward and southward, but left behind the game and driving snow that characterized its initial sweep from the mountain states.

Weather forecasts indicate the central western and Rocky Mountain states would have some relief from zero temperature tomorrow, with fair weather, but the zig-zag temperature reaching as far south as Mississippi and snow will still be in the upper Ohio Valley and Lake Region.

ARMY CAPTAIN MAKES APPEAL

Co-operation of Escanaba Sought to Obtain Recruits.

How the two million Americans scattered from French sea bases to roads back of the Meuse and Argonne were trained to assist the combat units in the front lines to defeat the German hordes was told today at the city hall by Capt. Thomas G. Wade who addressed a citizens' committee of Escanaba.

"The real beginning of the present day Army vocational training," said the captain, "was in the hastily organized plan to teach men to carry the war to a successful conclusion. You must understand," he said, "that the train was not intended to make men competent to leave the service and engage in civil occupations as trained specialists, but that since the armistice all of the facilities built up in this work and all the experience gained was preserved and perfected to make the peace time vocational training facilities of the present Army so efficient that now, when men receive a diploma of graduation in an Army course, they actually are competent to go into civil life and make high wages in their new vocations."

TRANS FAR OFF SCHEDULE

Normal Services Expected by Tomorrow, Says Official.

Railroad traffic in this section of the peninsula was at a standstill last night, the first time this winter that a storm so severely crippled the traffic on the roads. Passenger train No. 101, due to arrive here from the south at 4 o'clock this morning, did not get here until late this afternoon. Meanwhile, Train No. 121, northbound, was waiting at Powers to pull through.

So far as the North Western branch was concerned, passengers coming to Escanaba were scheduled to board train No. 217, northbound, which at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon was but one and one half hours late. There were indications, said C. E. Helmer, superintendent of the peninsula division, that train service would be back close to normal by tomorrow.

Few trains moved last night in any part of the peninsula. The North Western trains were practically tied up and the South Shore and Munising trains were annulled. The Soo Line train failed to arrive at Gladstone last night.

"People in Escanaba have no idea of the severity of the storm," said one railroad official this afternoon. "Railroad men were made to realize what it was when they attempted to pull through with their trains. It was the worst storm of the season."

THE HAGUE, March 5.—Holland's answer to the second allied note relative to the extradition or internment of former Emperor William will probably be handed to Premier Lloyd George by the Dutch minister in London this week.

Will Guard Kaiser.
Intimations have been given that the Netherlands government will express its willingness to guard the erstwhile monarch and prevent anything that might threaten the peace of Europe.

Night and day shifts are working on the Kaiser's new residence at Doorn and it is reported he will move there from Amerongen on May 12. A high fence about the house at Doorn is now near completion. A trainload of furniture arrived at Doorn from Berlin several months ago and recently five additional truck loads were received there.

Radically Remodelled.
The building has been radically remodelled, half of the first floor being prepared for Count Hohenzollern's occupancy, while one of the wings will be given over to the former empress.

While unprotected from high walls, the Door estate is now in reality a 200-acre cage that can be easily guarded and within which the Dutch government expects William of Hohenzollern to spend the rest of his days.

EXPECT ACTION ON BONUS IN 60 DAYS

Service Men Approve of Optional System Which Is Recommended.

Congressional action is expected within sixty days on the "soldier bonus" question as presented to congress by the American Legion, according to the report of Maj. John G. Emory, Michigan's member of the legion committee which conferred in Washington with the congressional committee on soldier legislation.

Escanaba service men, especially members of the American Legion post, express general satisfaction with the plan to give war veterans an option of one out of four bonus propositions, including land allotments, and in buying homes, vocational education and extra compensation. The general opinion is that to give a flat money bonus to everybody who served during the war, would end in cash being given to some who do not need it, while others who are in serious circumstances as a result of their services, would not receive enough help.

Major Emory will make a formal report to the state headquarters of the legion on the happenings at Washington and all local posts will be informed of developments.

"Because the west, with its tracts of undeveloped land, and the east, with its industries, could not agree on the same mode of compensation, the committee thought it best to ask for several forms of compensation from which the service man could choose," said Maj. Emory upon his return from Washington.

"We were called in conference with Secretary of Interior Franklin Lane. He stated that he was in favor of our plan and felt that the opening of land to ex-service men would have several desirable features. It would increase production and would start men back on the farm. At the same time he believed that it would have a desired economic effect.

"We held a joint session with the congressional ways and means committee on interior development and found that they favored immediate enactment of our desires. I expect that we may be called to Washington soon on a similar conference when the bills will be enacted."

Made In America Dyes Are Popular

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—Medical research libraries in this country in their search for a tuberculosis specific or cure for any other disease, are no longer dependent upon German-made dyes. "Made in America" dyes are now being used. They give as good results as did imported dyes used before the war.

This announcement was made at the Henry Phipps Institute, where laboratory experiments developed that certain dyes localized themselves in tuberculous tissue. Efforts are being made to modify these dyes with other chemical agents that will kill the tuberculous germs.

Trypan red dyes have been found to give the best results. As many as 75 modifications of this dye have been used in experimentation. Other reds, some blues have also been used. The staining qualities act as guide to the localization.

Time For London to Grow Up, Comment

LONDON, March 5.—"It is time that London grew up," declares the London Evening News, a new convert to the idea that it is time for London authorities to consider seriously whether tall buildings would not be an improvement on an ever-widening ring of suburbs.

"Well built skyscraper flats and office buildings would be a boon to Londoners and there is no reason why we should not be as happy in them as New Yorkers are in theirs," adds the paper.

39 Disasters Call For Red Cross Aid

Thirty nine disasters, causing death to 650 persons, injury to 1,800 and property losses totalling $25,000,000 were reported to the American Red Cross and assistance requested during 1919, according to a report made public by National Red Cross Headquarters in Washington.

Fifty thousand persons were made homeless by these disasters, and it was among these homeless and injured that the American Red Cross did its effective work.

The most devastating disaster was the flood and tornado at Corpus Christi, Texas, in September in which 200 persons were killed and thousands made homeless.

The report stated that $420,000 was expended by the Red Cross in immediate relief work following these disasters. The emergencies included seven severe storms, two earthquakes, six floods, ten fires and explosions, three mine disasters, two race riots, a motor accident and five shipwrecks and marine disasters. Aid also was administered to hundreds who suffered from loss of crops in Montana.

During the race riots in Chicago in August 3,041 milk tickets were distributed and 9,772 families, with 32,696 individuals, were given assistance.

The disaster record shows that the Red Cross is better equipped than ever before to respond to the call for help from districts visited by catastrophes, the preparedness being one of the principal results of the inauguration of the extensive peace time program.

WHY CHILLY WEATHER BRINGS RHEUMATISM

Says skin pores are closed and uric acid remains in blood.

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity.

In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

CHARLES DUKET BODY ARRIVES HERE MONDAY

The body of Charles Duket, former resident of Escanaba who died in the west, will arrive on the 4:25 o'clock train Monday morning and will be taken to the Alto parlors where it will remain until Tuesday afternoon when funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. C. M. Merrill, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church. Burial will be in Lakeview cemetery.

Mrs. Duket, widow, and son Leonard were visiting here at the time of Mr. Duket's death. The body will be accompanied to this city by Mrs. C. J. Monroe, of Los Angeles, a daughter. Mrs. Robert McKnight, of this city, is a daughter. One other son, Neal Duket, of Dollar Bay, is expected to arrive here tonight.

Mr. Duket is known to old residents of Escanaba as the first man to place machinery in the mill at Wells. He was 62 years old when he died. He also built the first woodenware plant here and placed the machinery in the Birdseye Veneer plant when that was undergoing construction.

after being out of the game practically ten years.

Barrett's reputation years ago was that of a crackerjack in the game and he competed against such walkers as Dan O'Leary, Cowboy Smith, Charley Morris and Hageman. "Old Sport" Capana also was among those whom Barrett raced against.

Barrett's competitors in skating included McCullough, Barty, Thompson, Running and Nelson, Barrett walking while they skated.

It is interesting to note that while most spectators who have seen Egan skate believe the youngster will win easily, Barrett is no less confident.

Richie Bell Funeral Held This Morning

The funeral of Richie Bell, of Menominee, father of the Misses Pearl and Ruby Bell, was held at 8:30 o'clock this morning at St. John's church, Menominee, the Rev. Father Cleary officiating. Burial was in Riverside cemetery there. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pappin and George Bell of this city were among the Escanaban residents attending the funeral.

DAMAGE DONE TO CONSULATE 10,000 FRANCS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS) BERNE, March 6.—It is estimated that the damage done to the United States consulate at Zurich by the explosion of a bomb will amount to 10,000 francs, but Consul General Teena and his family have returned to the building. The president of the Zurich government visited Mr. Teena today and expressed regrets of the authorities over the incident.

FATHER OF WINNINGER BROTHERS DIES IN WAUSAU

APPLETON—Franz Winninger, 71 years old, father of Joseph Winninger, manager of Appleton theatre, died this morning at his home in Wausau after a brief illness. Death was caused by paralysis. The decedent lived in Appleton for several months about 20 years ago.

He is survived by his widow; one daughter, Mrs. Theresa Miller, Cudahy, Wis., five sons, Frank, John, Joseph, Adolph and Charles. All the boys are interested in the theatrical business.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at St. Mary church in Wausau. Joseph Winninger will leave tomorrow to attend the services. He visited his father last week after he was stricken with paralysis.

The plain tailored undergarments may really be much daintier than those that are lace and ribbon trimmed because excellent workmanship may go into their fashioning and each garment be made individual by the handwork that is employed in its trimming features.

CHAPTER X.

For a full minute Claire Bradford and I stood there observing each other. Even before a word was spoken I think we both sensed our mutual distrust. As I studied her, I was trying to conjecture what could have been the motive so impelling that she had dared to come even within prison walls to see me. Had Barbara sent her? I doubted it. I was sure that more than likely her visit was to plead with me to keep silent about her part in the tragedy. I was certain she was going to ask me to pledge my word to tell no one of her second visit to the Gaston apartment.

Yet as I studied her weak, beautiful face, so like Barbara's and yet so different, with its sensuous mouth and roving, brilliant eyes, I still was wondering how it was possible for a girl of her refinement and social position to have become enmeshed with such common criminals as the two employees of the Granddeck. Wick and the telephone girl.

"To what am I indebted for the honor of this visit," I asked at length, adding with some sarcasm, "from my sister?"

Never for a second had I imagined that other than a selfish motive could have brought her thither, and the conversation that followed was all the more surprising to me on that account.

"I had to say I was your sister," she answered quickly. "I wanted to be sure of seeing you and I did not wish anyone to recognize me. You know, I believe, who I am?"

"You are Barbara's sister," I replied. "That's why I came," she cried, "for Barbara's sake. I have come to plead with you for her."

"To plead—with me—for her," I echoed in astonishment. "Yes," she cried passionately. "She's young. She's little more than a child. She did not realize what she was doing. You must not let anyone know you even know her. You must never, never tell."

"Never tell what?" I answered non-committally. She answered with a convulsive sob. I thought for a little that she was going to break down completely. Her manner and the pallor of her face attracted the attention of the keeper who was in the room with us, and he started forward as if expecting her to fall in a faint. Resolutely she pulled herself together and went on in calmer tones.

"Oh, I know all about it. I know that she is completely fascinated by you. I know that she has been meeting you in the park. I know that she has lunched with you at the Astor." She hesitated and her face crimsoned—"I know that she has even visited you in your rooms late at night. Oh, please, please, I beg of you, if there is a spark of manhood in you, do not take advantage of a silly girl's weakness. Please help me protect my little sister's name; promise—you will, won't you?"

"Why should I?" I replied carelessly, repressing my desire to leap at once to Barbara's defense and explain how pure and honorable her conduct had been and how lofty the motive that had governed her actions. Tempted though I was to defend her, I realized that this might be an opportunity to learn something of Claire Bradford's associates, and I determined to make the most of it. How else could she know of all my meetings with Barbara unless she was in league with the persons who had been having me shadowed? How the knowledge that Barbara had been in my apartment could have come to her was a mystery beyond me. I would have sworn that that was a secret sacred to our two selves.

"Listen to me," she commanded, speaking in low tones, "Barbara is my baby sister, innocent of the ways of the world. I must save her from herself, and her heedlessness. Never, never, if I can help it, shall she suffer the agony and shame and disgrace that I have known. Years ago I, just as she is now, became infatuated with a man far below me in the social scale. He, too, was a criminal."

I sniffed indignantly at the "he, too," but she paid no attention. "I ran away from school and married him and learned too late that he had a wife and child already. All my life, ever since, that terrible thing has followed me. It's like a specter ever rising to confront me. Even if I have to kill you, I am going to save my little sister from following in my steps."

"Where is Gaston Maurice now?" I asked. "Have you seen him recently?" She gasped and shuddered, looking at me incredulously.

"You," she breathed excitedly, "who are you? How do you know his name?" "Never mind how I know it," I replied. "What I want to know is where he is now? When did you see him last?"

"Not for years—not since long before my father's death—not since the marriage was annulled." "Nor heard from him," I persisted. "No, nor heard from him," she hesitated, "unless—"

"Unless what?" I insisted, as she stopped abruptly. "I can't tell you," she said firmly. "I don't know. They must have come from him, from someone that knew—the letters."

"What letters? Tell me about them." "I can't tell what I don't know. I haven't the least idea where Gaston Maurice is. I had hoped he was dead in the war. Yet he can't be. I have had anonymous letters threatening me. They must have come from him or from someone whom he told of our marriage? How else could they know?"

Her distress was so real and her manner so convincing that I decided that she must be telling the truth. "Well," said I, "if you cannot tell me where to find Gaston Maurice, there is one thing that you can tell me."

"What is that?" "Why did you visit my apartment late last night? Why did you put that revolver in my dresser?"

"Revolver," she queried in a puzzled tone, "what revolver?" "The revolver with which Miss Lutan was killed."

She eyed me in shocked surprise. "Why do you say this to me? I never saw the revolver." "You cannot deny that you were in my apartment last night."

"But the revolver," she protested. "I saw the other one this morning. They look alike."

"But how did you know which sister it was?" "You didn't seem to get along well enough in your talk for it to be Barbara," he answered with another grin. It had not been my intention to reveal even to him Claire Bradford's second visit to my apartment, but I saw how foolish it would be of me to attempt to deceive or to withhold any information from such a shrewd observer.

Without reserve and with the utmost detail I proceeded to relate everything that had happened since I had seen him the afternoon before. I told of my discovery of the secret panel in my room and of the blind passageway into which it apparently led; of Barbara's having made the perilous journey over the window ledge to inspect my find, of the screams we had heard, followed by the shot, of how Barbara had fled back by the way she came, and I had run downstairs and with Wick had discovered the body. I told him every detail so far as I could remember it, winding up with my catching Claire Bradford leaving my apartment, just before my arrest and the finding of the revolver.

"You don't think the detectives themselves planted the gun on you?" he asked. "I've heard of them doing things like that." He spoke with such an air of innocence that I had to smile. I doubt if there were many tricks of detectives that Gorman did not know all about.

"They had no opportunity whatever. Neither of them had been near the dresser before, and I was watching their every moment."

"Well, who did hide the revolver there, if they didn't?" "I don't know."

"I was with him every moment after we discovered the body." "Maybe it was Claire Bradford?" I shook my head.

"I thought at first it might have been she, but I'm convinced since talking with her that it was not. She's either entirely innocent or else the most wonderful actress in the world."

"I think we can leave her out of it," ventured Gorman. "That leaves only Wick."

Gorman shook his head positively. "No, Wick didn't do it. He's a bad one all right, and he has done time, but he's only a tool."

"Wick has done time!" I exclaimed. "How did you find that out? What have you learned about him?"

Gorman grinned at my eager questioning. "I don't know much about him yet, but I'm sure he's an ex-con. While you were in court this morning," he explained, "I went up to the Granddeck to take a look at things for myself. Wick showed me through the Lutan apartment, thinking I was from the coroner's office. I spotted him at once. A crook that has done time is always sure to give himself away."

"How?" I asked. "Well," said Gorman judicially, "men's businesses leave their marks on them. A clergyman don't have to be wearing a high vest for you to spot him, and nobody ever took a dancing teacher for a pugilist. A man that has looked at as many crooks as I have knows them by instinct, and then there's little ways you can tell. As I was going up to the apartment with Wick he just naturally fell into step with me, showing he had been used to marching with other prisoners. He talks, too, without moving his lips. That's a sure sign. They learn that in prison so they can talk without the guards knowing it."

"That's so," I cried. "It struck me that there was something funny about the way Wick talked, but I couldn't have told just what it was."

"Wick's a crook, all right, but I think he comes from somewhere upstate or maybe out West, but he hasn't intelligence enough to be anything more than a runner for the crooks."

"What's your theory?" I asked. "I don't know, but I think he's a crook."

"If you didn't, who did?" "It must have been Mr. Wick."

"There you go, jumping at conclusions. Why not Claire Bradford?" "Why do you mention her? Do you suspect her?"

"If she didn't do it, why did she come down here to see you?" "How did you know she was here?" "I was watching you all the time you were talking to her."

"But how did you know who she was?" "I saw the other one this morning. They look alike."
