SUGGEST PLANS FOR REMEDY OF SHIPPING PLAN

Representative of Wisconsin Submits Report to House Committee.

Says That Emergency Fleet and Corporation Should Be Divided at Once.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Reorganization of the shipping board by dividing the emergency fleet corporation and the appointment of a board of experienced men to manage various lines of business for the management of the organization was indicated in a suggestion made on the United States shipping board by Martin Giffen of Wisconsin in the house committee investigating the work of the board today.

Mr. Giffen was executive secretary to John Larson Payne during his term as chairman of the board and in that manner acquainted himself with many of the workings of the organization.

The report which was submitted in the form of a suggestion was made of request of Representative Walsh who asked that action be taken at once to correct the inefficiency of the board and the corporation.

Separation Urged

Separation of the board from the rest of the wartime laws was voted on Monday by the house, which adopted the Volstead resolution for that purpose after two hours of debate.

The vote on adoption of the resolution was unanimous, 323 votes being recorded as favoring it, with none opposed. The house, before taking the final vote, accepted an amendment providing for inclusion of the lower food control act among the laws which the resolution would repeal.

Measure Goes to Senate.

The amendment which covers all provisions of the food control act except the section relating to rents in the District of Columbia, was offered by Representative Blaine, Republican of Indiana. It was carried, 179 to 137.

The resolution which now goes to the senate exempts from repeal only the trading with the enemy act, the war finance corporation act and its amendments and measures dealing with the issuance of Liberty and Victory bonds.

The resolution declares "any act of congress that by its terms is in force only during existence of a state of war and a limited time thereafter is construed and administered as if the present war terminated on the date when this resolution becomes effective."

THE WEATHER

For Escanaba and vicinity: Unsettled and colder weather tonight and Wednesday; probably snow; northwest gale diminishing tonight.

Weather Conditions: The disturbance of the interior has moved northward and is center this morning in the upper Lake region where it appears with greatly increased depth.

Within the last twenty-four hours it has been attended by precipitation in the central valley, region of the Great Lakes and North Atlantic states. Temperatures are low in the Mississippian valley and dip to the eastward thereof. Pressure is high in the mists west of the Rocky Mountains.

Unsettled and colder weather is indicated for this locality tonight and Wednesday, with probably snow.

Tax Payers Coming in Large Numbers

A steady stream of tax payers was seen at the city hall this morning following the opening of the city treasurer's office yesterday for the collection of the fall taxes.

People came in a responsive mood ready to make settlement with the collector. Many are abiding by the request made that they have the description of their property with them when they appear at the office. A

MacLean Nears Death, Report From City Says

The condition of R. E. MacLean, head of the I. Stephenson Lumber company and affiliated interests, is critical, says a report from Chicago this afternoon.

Charles McCauley, a business acquaintance, in a long-distance communication this afternoon with the Chicago hospital, learned that the condition of the local lumberman is worse today than it has been at any time since he was hurried to the Chicago institution for treatment. Following the amputation of Mr. MacLean's leg, his condition showed signs of improvement and recovery was predicted. A radical change has set in since then. His heart continues to get weaker as time goes on.

"It only appears to be a question of a few hours or days between him and death," the message this afternoon read.

Farmer Resolution Passed By Senate; Arguments Are Over

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The senate late on Monday passed the agricultural committee resolution directing revival of the war finance corporation as a measure of affording relief to farmers.

The second section of the resolution, which was introduced, would have directed extension of liberal credits to farmers by the federal reserve system. It was amended to make the availability of such a course only an expression of opinion of the congress.

BURGLARS ENTER HARDWARE STORE FOR FOURTH TIME

Either the Johnson Hardware company is a haven for thieves or it is the all the burglars who come to Escanaba. This was evidenced just right when the thieves broke into and robbed the hardware company of glass lights and some small articles which suggested a considerable value.

For the fourth time in the past few months, the same store was entered during the night, ransacked and burglarized.

An official of the store said this morning that the night entrance was made the same as it has the past four times. The intruder broke through the back window while it is close to a public area, darting into the store, then reset the hinges on the door leading to the main part of the store, and then took their loot and made a successful getaway.

"We have done all possible to guard against such robbery," the official said, "but can't help them from breaking into places and taking what ever happens to be available."

An investigation disclosed near the entrance and through the building did not reveal any track of the men who committed the crime. Every effort is being made by local police to get some trace of those who may have been making a series of the night robberies.

Nothing is known which were left no material damage was done to the store. Some other articles of value were left untouched.

MEETING TO BE HELD THURSDAY

Community House Plan Will Be Laid Before Delegates of Clubs.

President of the Community House plan of Escanaba will meet in open court at the city hall Thursday evening according to a notice of invitation sent out today by H. H. Hughes, director of the Upper Peninsula Industrial Association and representative of the Michigan State Community Service commission.

No previous meeting held in the city later, representatives of seven organizations met and discussed the project after getting unanimous consent to allow in putting the plans over so that this city can have what the leaders declare is nearly equal to the welfare of the community.

The purpose of the meeting Thursday is to organize a Community Council which will be entrusted with the work of providing means whereby the project can be placed on a firm basis and receive the support of the several organizations of the city.

Informal Meeting

The invitation expressly states that in attending the meeting none of the delegates will be asked to speak officially for the association which they represent.

The meeting will be more in the nature of an informal gathering but will carry with it the underlying principle of getting on the project.

MRS. E. BARRAS DIES AFTER TWO YEARS' ailment

Following a prolonged illness which had its inception several years ago, Mrs. Frances Baras, 71, died last night in a Chicago hospital where she was taken after a rapid decline in health.

Mrs. Baras was an old and esteemed citizen of Escanaba having lived here for half a century. She was well known and held in the highest admiration during her long residence in this community.

Two years ago her health started to decline and since that time it has shown no improvement. About a year ago another turn for the worst was seen and from then until a week ago her condition had been critical.

She was taken from her home to Chicago where specialists were consulted. She died last night at 10:30.

The body will be shipped this evening and will arrive in Escanaba tomorrow morning when it will be taken for the entire sum to the Literary Digest Child Feeding Fund. In addition, all contributions and the donations will be printed in the daily papers of the city. For references please refer to the Escanaba National bank.

The deceased is survived by two sons A. C. Baras of Escanaba and John of South St. Paul, Minn., and one daughter, Miss Sarah Baras, whom the aged woman has made her home for many years.

Borah Would Have Naval Forces Cut For Great Powers

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—A resolution requesting the president to open negotiations with the governments of France, England and Great Britain for an agreement whereby the building of naval craft would be reduced fifty per cent in the next five years, was introduced by Senator Borah of Idaho to day.

The resolution would declare it to be the opinion of Congress that the United States would take such action if it could be arranged with the other three governments which are considered the only other great powers of the country today. Only these three countries require the attention of America in naval matters.

Street Fights in Capitals As New Government Starts

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS, Dec. 14.—It is reported that disturbances have broken out in the streets of Belgrade and Prague, the capitals of Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia after Communist government were attempted there.

Violent street fighting took place in Belgrade and Prague, the capitals of Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia, respectively, after Communists attempted to seize power in both countries.

Community House Would Aid In Bringing Better Feeling Between People of the City

EDITOR'S NOTE

The appended theme on A Community House for Escanaba is one of the five selected by the judges to be used in the educational campaign now being conducted in Escanaba. The essay was written by Wendell Lund, a member of the English III class of the high school. With the exception of being edited, the contents are as written by the student.

What is a community house? It is an institution where the people of Escanaba can come together.

ther it is for reading or playing games or for social life. Its purpose is to serve all men, rich and poor. It colors no man's coat. Whether you are a millionaire or a pauper, you can find a place in the community house. A building of this character has in view the keeping the public off the street and from undesirable associations. Such an institution keeps young men away from low-grade environments by substituting similar amusements and conduct them in the right way.

A community of any size, whether the population is fifty people or fifty thousand, should have a community house. Many cities all over the United States already have such institutions, and are now discussing the proposition.

Many people wonder why it is these cities improve so rapidly. If the causes are examined it will be found that the community house plays a large part in this.

Escanaba has a population of sixteen thousand and a community house would be a very successful enterprise in our city. Outside of Escanaba our name is not stainless, but much the other way. An enterprise of this character would help blot out this stain for it would show neighboring towns that although we have a few "tough" citizens, we also have many good citizens. But most important of all, the results of a community house would soon change our city, for it would put an incentive into the hearts of everyone of us prompting us to a desire for better city. And when the populace feels this way conditions soon change.

The good point about a community house is that it is democratic. Rich and poor are all treated alike.

A community house is a medium between the employer and the employee. The community house in Rockford, Ill., has this as an aim. In this city each concern that wants it, can have the community house on a certain evening. The employer arranges for a program and various amusements at his expense. His employees come on the stated evening and everybody concerned with the institution from the lowest to the highest, play various games.

After they are through playing refreshments are served. The result is that the spirit of the employee is increased 100 per cent, and they return to work the next morning invigorated in body and soul. Thus the right relationship is established between employer and employee, production is increased, and any feeling of enmity between capital and labor is extinguished.

I realize that I am now a junior in high school. One more year and I will be out of school ready to face the world.

It is my duty to start to think of civic improvements which could be enacted in Escanaba. I feel that a community house is first among those I have many ideas concerning such a building and its management.

Such a building should be located as near as possible the center of the city. It is a good plan to have such an institution as near the main business section of the city as possible, however, not necessarily on the main street. There is a vacant lot on the corner of Ludington Street and eleventh street which could be used for this purpose.

The first story of the building could contain a large gymnasium, dressing rooms, a building alley, and a few billiard tables. The second story could all serve as office. It colors no man's coat.

This community house could be used for various amusements, pool, billiards, bowling, and the game could be played for half a ball, tickets, and baseball and other games. The boys especially could be kept off the streets and away from bad company. This is enough. Judge Lindsey supports the community house proposition.

In all a community house would be very valuable to a city, for it would teach the boys of the city to grow up as honest citizens instead of criminals.

It would be very easy to support it. Rich men in Escanaba would be willing to give large sums to such an institution. A general subscription among the citizens could also be taken for this worthy cause. Small amounts could also be charged for playing pool, billiards and for bowling. This would also help to support the community house.

This institution could be run very easily with a good management. This is very necessary. A board of directors composed of interested men would be very advisable. The building could have a secretary at its head. He could have one or two assistants to help him take care of his work and see that the rules and regulations of the place were lived up to.

In conclusion, let every one of us loyal supporters for all improvements in our city strive for an institution of this character to be built in our city. Let us adopt our slogan "A community house for Escanaba."

Large Masonic Home May Replace Beauty Spot in New York

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—Chicago may lose its art colony as the result of the recent sale of the Lambert Tree Studio Building to Medina Temple, which plans to hold the largest Masonic Temple in the world on the site.

The "Troy" studio building was erected by the late Lambert Tree as a home for artists, and about it has grown up an extensive art colony.

Many of the painters and sculptors in the studio building have lived there for fifteen to 25 years.

They are planning to remove to New York unless another suitable home can be found here for the colony.

Chicago's art center occupies a favored district on the near north side just above the loop district. At one end it runs above the warehouse district bordering the Chicago river and two blocks north reaches the opposite extreme, mingling with the brownstone mansions and tall apartment houses of the "Gold Coast."

On the east is Lake Michigan, with a bathing beach conveniently located in the hotel and in the near past vaca-

out and sell their product.

The sale of milk in the public stations is under the supervision of the city health department and every possible precaution is taken to keep the utensils and milk clean. Women are engaged to scrub out the booths and clean the tables on which the milk is measured.

Consumers who buy milk at the public stations save the cost of delivery, the cost of bottling milk and one middleman's profit. The producers who sell their milk at the public stations say they make just as much money as they would in delivering the product bottled to the consumers.

For several months milk has been selling at the stations for eleven cents per quart, while dairymen have been charging from 15 to 17 cents for the delivered product. During the past week the price at the stations was reduced to ten cents and dairymen were forced to cut their prices to 13 and 16 cents.

So successful have the visiting booths been that other so-called public milk stations have been opened in grocery stores in outlying sections of the city and milk is sold in bulk at these places at 10 and 11 cents for a short time in the morning. Persons who come late are forced to take the higher priced bottled milk.

The Dark Mirror

by
Louis Joseph Vance
*Author of "The False Face,"
"The Lone Wolf," Etc.*Illustrated by IRWIN MYERS.

Copyright, 1920, by the Author.

Continues from Yesterday:

"No, Leoni, I already understand too well. You do not love me; and since you have found it difficult to escape me, you invent this cloak and bull yarn to spur my feelings. A mistaken kindness. No, matter; yet make your wish clear. I am to be. Here you think you are not my wife. So be it; I will believe that, but I can do so only at a price."

"Tell me what you mean."

"If I am to believe that you believe you are not Leoni, I must believe that you are actually deranged." He pondered gravely. "It is possible terror and suffering have so worked upon you—"

"Leoni!" she pleaded—"you can find out the truth if you'll take me to the nearest telephone—whether it's ten miles or fifty—now, tonight, in your motor car."

"It is too late. These good people hereabouts go early to their beds. Shall I disturb them for no purpose other than to humor a mad freak?"

"Then let me go—"

"Alone?"

"But I am afraid for you. Remember how I found you last night, in peril of your life. Shall I trust you again to run yourself into God knows what danger? You need not risk that of me, Leoni."

"What am I to do?" she cried, wringing her hands.

"Compose yourself. Go to your room, rest quietly for tonight. In the morning, possibly, you will feel better, or possibly you will see how futile it is to try to deceive me; you will want, perhaps, to tell me the truth."

"I have told you nothing else!"

"Then confess to the whole truth. You do not love me."

She was dumb.

A gust of rage shook him violently. Standing over her with her eyes in a

"Confess!"

blazing face he raised quivering arms as if tempted to strike her.

"Confess!"

"I can't," she said sadly. The statement was like a snap to him, its sharp simplicity rendering it the more stinging. He started, gaped, his arms fell, then rose to seize her shoulders.

"What did you say?" he demanded, his voice breaking. "You love me?"

She nodded with swimming eyes and the quivering mouth of a child. He tried to draw her to him, but she held back.

"No, Mario—please!"

"But you have just admitted that you still love me!"

She endured his gaze with an adorable bravery.

"I have always loved you—ever since Leoni loved you—and as well."

"Then you still insist—"

"I am to your wife. I have never seen you before tonight except—"

She stammered into silence. It was her humanly possible to render the situation more impossible than it was she could achieve by that rounding out the phrase that had died on her lips: "except in dreams."

"Except—"

"Please don't ask me. I can't tell you—not tonight. Tomorrow, perhaps, Mario; please be kind to me now, let me go."

His hands fell away from her shoulders. "Perhaps you are right," he said heavily. "If this goes on, I myself must go mad!"

Then it pitiful to me, be still more kind. Take me to New York tonight, take me to my aunt, Mrs. Knowbridge—"

"What?" His tone changed again, becoming thick with resentment and suspicion. "You are at that again? I've deceived you yourself; it is useless. I cannot comprehend your motive."

But I forgot, you are not yourself. You have not yet recovered, you need more rest. Go to your room, please. In the morning we will both be better able to continue this discussion—or you may have forgotten it, please God!"

She could not blame him and yet,

"Do you mean this, Mario? You refuse to give me a chance to prove to you—?"

"Absolutely."

"If not tonight, won't you promise to take me to New York tomorrow—?"

You will stay here until you come to your senses. I have a right to know the truth—and I will have it out of you if it takes a year—or a lifetime!"

He turned his back. She moved toward her door.

"Good night," she said. He made no answer. She went on.

Or a sudden, with a choking cry, he overtook and crushed her to him. "Oh, my dear one!" he cried in agony. "To think what you have suffered to bring you to this pass!"

She was able to withhold response, to rest passive in his hold.

"You love me?"

She made no answer. With a hand beneath her chin, he lifted her face to his, but her look disconcerted him; he hesitated.

"Please, Mario, not my lips—not again tonight—not till we understand each other better."

He let her go. She found herself on the threshold of the bedchamber. She looked back. To see him standing where she had left him, his arms slack, his head fallen forward, chin to chest; crushed by his vast disconsolation that wrenched his heart.

But what must be must.

III. THE CAPTIVE.

The key was on her side of the door; she was none the less a prisoner.

She knew, even as the door closed behind her, what she must do, and when. Her mind was made up to make good her escape before morning.

The more suggestion was appealing. She dared not dwell long upon the difficulties it presented lest resolution weaken. To her own knowledge of her whereabouts, she was lost completely—going on Mario's information ten miles from nowhere. But there was a road; a road must lead somewhere. She was young and strong enough to walk ten miles if she must further at a pinch. And the occasion was extreme; she dared not let herself be deterred by any obstacle or any danger, real or fanciful.

She was too desperately in love.

She could hear Mario in the living room, pacing to and fro; she could picture to herself the man in the torment of his solicitude for her, fretting by mystification and the feeling of frustration. She imagined that he dashes through life with those unmentionable interests in his falls; the temptation to go out to him and comfort him was all but stronger than her instinct for self-preservation.

What did it matter whether Priscilla Maine survived or perished, so that he were not made unhappy?

After all, what did she care whether he loved her by this name or by that, so that he loved her?

Leoni was to meet Carnahan's confession but confirmed Priscilla's statement of her death. No harm would be done to any living soul if she took his love for Leoni and made it her own; Mario himself would not be worse off; for the dead could have loved him no better than the living did and would, and all his Suspicion over his daughter's disappearance from her home, the girl's father a clerk for the Northern Pacific railway at Butte, engaged a detective.

GIRL BETTER; MONK TO DIE

CHICAGO—May Zembsk, the jolliest girl who spent seventeen of her hundred years in physical and mental darkness, is recovering today from an operation performed yesterday in which the thyroid of a monkey was grafted into her neck. The operation was performed in the expectation that it would cause the girl to attain normal physical and mental development.

Balaboo, the monkey who surrendered his thyroid gland, is not standing the operation so well and it is feared that the monkey population may be depleted because of his sacrifice to science.

She was too desperately in love. She could hear Mario in the living room, pacing to and fro; she could picture to herself the man in the torment of his solicitude for her, fretting by mystification and the feeling of frustration. She imagined that he dashes through life with those unmentionable interests in his falls; the temptation to go out to him and comfort him was all but stronger than her instinct for self-preservation.

What did it matter whether Priscilla Maine survived or perished, so that he were not made unhappy?

After all, what did she care whether he loved her by this name or by that, so that he loved her?

Leoni was to meet Carnahan's confession but confirmed Priscilla's statement of her death. No harm would be done to any living soul if she took his love for Leoni and made it her own; Mario himself would not be worse off; for the dead could have loved him no better than the living did and would, and all his

Vast Quantities Xmas Goods to Europe

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Christmas cheer for the peoples of the war-torn nations of Europe, refugees in the Near East and American soldiers abroad is going forward through this port in greater volume than ever before. Post Office officials here estimate that the volume of the 1920 Christmas traffic will approach twice the amount of previous years.

Thousands of packages have already been received here from all parts of the country and postal officials prepared for an unprecedented rush during the first two weeks of December. The bulk of the mail officials is being sent to Germany and Poland and comprises principally foodstuffs and clothing. Italy and the Balkan states will also receive large shipments with smaller amounts going to France, Britain, Norway, Sweden, Belgium and the Latin American countries.

In addition to the Christmas packages going direct by air post and the express, various American relief organizations are planning to bring something of the season's spirit to many thousands of destitute children. The Near East Relief has made elaborate Christmas plans for the refugees youngsters in the Near East and the Red Cross has planned cheer for children in the various districts in which it is operating.

The volume of soldier mail this year has materially decreased over recent years because of the withdrawal of the American forces from Europe. The several thousand "doughboys" still on the Rhine will be well remembered at the Army Transport Service in Hoboken. Soldiers serving in the Canal Zone, Hawaii, the Philippines and Alaska will also be remembered. Some of the vessels bearing gifts for these men sailed during November.

Men of the Navy, wherever stationed, will also be the recipient of Christmas gifts from home and the Navy Department has made special arrangements to give each man the maximum opportunity for a "merry Christmas."

Cooperating with the Junior Red Cross, secretary Daniels of the Navy Department has ordered a vessel to take Christmas gifts for thousands of Okinawa children. This action was taken upon recommendation of Admiral Andrews, in charge of American vessels stationed in the Adriatic. Two thousand pairs of shoes and stockings, thousands of cans of condensed milk, hundreds of bars of chocolate and toys from Red Cross were given to destitute children in northern Italy and in Yugoslavia.

WELL LIGHTED STREETS

One of the signs of modern progress is a good system of street lighting adequate for the size and wealth of the place. Many people who stay at home do not realize how many improvements have been made in lighting
during recent years and how many cities and towns are making their outdoor with bright lights.

In these signs of heavy taxation
and demands for improvements, no one will want to slow in moving on having more lights than its competitors are using. Still it does not pay to have your home taken a dark and dingy look. Bright lights give it a wide awake appearance, and set one apart from advertising a commodity.

It is a good idea for a city to send out a committee and in a while to visit other places in the evenings, and see if their home town is keeping up with the game. Points lighted streets should increase community, and have often proved an invitation to crime.

WRAPPING PAPER

The thousands of Escanaba men
plan of the cost of wrapping paper.
When stock that used to cost four and five cents a pound has advanced to four times that figure, a considerable charge is added to everyone's cost of living.

If everyone who carries light a scrapped paper would fold the paper and deliver it in small bundles in the pack man along with old newspapers which would be done to release this burden. When people pay a high price to have articles wrapped, and at the same time burn up quantities of this material, their sense of thrift is poorly developed. Also many pack men are wrapped in paper that could just as well be carried home without covering.

Costs Only $4.40 to Have Name Changed
in Cleveland; Let's Go

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND, Dec. 14.—It only costs $4.40 to have one's name changed in private court here, and it's not a difficult court proceeding. It costs $1 to advertise the fact, according to the law. 10 cents is charged as a filing fee and other court costs are about 32 cents.

And so far as known, the Cuyahoga county probate court has never refused a request.

"Why should the court object?" asks E. N. Fairbanks, a deputy. "Most people have mighty good reasons for changing up their ancestral names."

Reasons given vary greatly. A girl
by the name of Kira asked to change to Murphy.

"It stands as odd to have people calling Miss 'Kira,'" she stated in her petition.

Another woman changed from Bugg
to Farley and one from Snack to Zee der.

A large number of the petitioners say their original names were derived from them in business. Many desire a change because their names are hard to pronounce and spell and that there are too many similar ones
in Cleveland.

Often entire families, petitioning to have their names changed, particularly foreign-speaking people who have children in school.

Married men seldom take their wives' name, according to the records.

Lumber Market Is Still Quiet, Says a Prominent Writer

The lumber market on the whole remains quiet but here and there an increase in the volume of business is to be noted. The hardwood trade has been exceptionally quiet for some weeks, but now there is to be noted a tendency to increase purchases on the part of large industrial consumers.
For example, the manufacturers of vehicles and farm implements are taking more hardwood lumber than for some time. This lumber is generally dried several years before use and the primary reason that it is being purchased now is that the buyers are able to secure the lumber at prices which they deem will justify them in carrying the stock, and this buying is reper pound. It is not only every baking is a waste—

That's a big saving—but that isn't all. You save when you buy Calumet and you save when you use it.

It is reasonable in cost and possesses more than the ordinary leavening strength. You pay less and less. Yet get the most in purity, dependability and wholesomeness.

In every way—it is the best way to keep down baking costs. That's what has made it the world's favorite baking powder—has kept the favorite of millions of housewives for more than thirty years.

Interest Keen in Election Today of Mine Men of Nation

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 14.—Interest among miners of this section in the electoral and national election of officials of the United Mine Workers of America, which was held today, centered in the election of the vice president.
The contest between John L. Lewis, of the southern pine field, and in the southern hardwood field. "We will discontinue operations for an indefinite period until such time as conditions will permit us at least to break even or make a legitimate profit," the president of lumber on hand is 25 percent under normal," however, the stock we have is well assured."

More and more interest in the lumber market is being shown by individual owners of coal yards and operators of lumber yards. Buying is largely restricted to filling up holes in stocks, but there is an increasing tendency to buy lumber for at least a part of 1921 requirements. Stocks in the hands of retailers are low, exceptionally so in some cases, but no great increase in purchasing is expected until after the first of the year.

Apart from the presidency and vice presidency, candidates for other officials. For Secretary and Treasurer

The may caught selling bees in the future, at least the man who is brought before Judge R. C. Flannigan, will have to pay the penalty by serving a term in jail if the court finds him guilty.

After sentencing two upper pen-sula men to four months each in jail
today the judge said to them:

"This court will do its duty," said
Judge Flannigan to the lower law violators. "I am going to send you men to jail. We have found that there are trials." The day may come when we find that jail sentences are too little. Then the person who violates the liquor law will do so with the knowledge that if convicted he will serve a term in state prison.

Must Enforce Law

The prohibition law must be enforced as the law for protection of person and property. It is the duty of the court to enforce this and all laws, and you may rest assured that that duty will be performed.

"It's hard for you men to jail
any time, especially just before Christmas, hard on you, hard on your wives and children, and hard on me. I wish it were after Christmas. I cannot give you short sentences a thirty day sentence would be a fate."

"During the time you are in jail
your families may need money. I do not doubt that every one of you come here this morning prepared to pay a good stiff fine. The court doesn't want your money; give it to your families to use while you are in jail."

I realize that a man upon whom the liquor habit has its hold will do almost anything for a drink. Therefore the case of a man who risks to an irresistible appetite and purchases a bottle of beer is far different from that of the man who kills it."

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—The natural resources of Palestine are greater than those of Southern California and are able to support decently about 4,000,000 people, Harry Thomas Cory, former director-general of foreign relations for the American Red Cross, declared in a report to the Zionist Organization of America made public here today.

Mr. Cory, a California engineer, went to Palestine recently at the invitation of Justice Brandeis, honorary president of the international and American Zionist Organization. He had just investigated the Nile River irrigation projects in Egypt.

Mr. Cory said his findings after a short survey of the Holy Land were in complete accord with those of Sir William Wilcox, head of the Nile projects commission of the Egyptian government and Professor R. H. Forbes of the University of Nebraska and an American student of desert irrigation.

The western slope of Palestine is naturally better than the Southern California region in and about Los Angeles, which has made possible that city's enormously rapid development," Mr. Cory said. "The configuration is strikingly similar, and I was therefore not surprised to learn that it was planned to irrigate 150,000 acres of this coastal land in relatively small units, largely by pumps.

The soil of western Palestine is better in all essential particulars more fertile and more favorable for intensive development. In the lower regions there is no danger from frost. Nowhere in Southern California is there a frost-proof area.

The greater quantity and better distribution of the rainfall renders "dry farming" easier and safer in Palestine regions.

The valley of the Jordan is an entirely different matter as to climatic conditions, and many other features.
However, Sir William, Professor Forbes and I are in complete agreement as to the feasibility of irrigating at least 500,000 acres there. Sir William and I are entirely satisfied that the ability to economically develop 50, 000 horsepower in hydro-electric plants.

The 500,000 acres are much more comparable to the irrigated lands in the Imperial Valley, the southeastern corner of California overlapping into Mexico.

The future of Palestine is entirely dependent upon the human element.
In that regard I was greatly surprised and impressed by the fact that probably the Zionists will be able to secure very quickly ownership of over half the land in that country. Further, the land which can be secured is apparently typical of the region as a whole.

Quartet from Great Lakes Tomorrow to Be the Best of Season

The Great Lakes string quartet which will give a concert tomorrow in the auditorium of the high school made little introduction in a large number of Escanaba people.

The Great Lakes quartet has been touring the country about a year and a half and during that time has established a reputation which has made it popular in almost every large city. Musical critics writing for metropolitan newspapers and magazines have been most enthusiastic concerning the achievements of the quartet.

Not long ago the quartet appeared in the Blackstone Theatre, Chicago. Following the concert A. T. Irvin, hard critic for the Chicago Tribune, said:

"The exceptional quality of their playing is beautiful, being uncommonly soft and pure, yet not lacking in power, incisiveness and brilliancy when these are desirable. The average tonal quality is, however, exceptionally exhilarating and infectious, concerning the pleasure of the pleasure of the music itself."

The Great Lakes quartet will give a program of chamber music tomorrow evening. Its program for last year also consisted entirely of chamber music but next selection will be played this time. The program includes solo duets and trios as well as several numbers by the quartet.

Tonight evening's concert is based upon one of the most popular courses of the community entertainment course and the demand for seats undoubtedly will be great.

North Dakota Tries to Endure Failures

PARIS, N. D., Dec. 14—Farmers of western North Dakota who have had their five successive crop failures are making a brave fight against poverty. Mrs. Myrtle B. Cole, home demonstration leader of the state agricultural college here reports that their fortune has been ameliorated by the weather which has been unusually mild and winters have been followed by bumper crops.

They are grateful to the good crop last year because the winter has been a mild one and they say that herefore mild winters have been followed by bumper crops.
