DENTISTS ON ROAD TO BIG DENTAL MEET

Thousands Assemble in Chicago for Rest Convention Tomorrow.

Nation-wide Mouth Hygiene Movement to Be Started for Benefit of School Children.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 27.—What is a dental hygienist? Answer: "She is a woman." The several thousand dentists from all over the United States and Canada who will meet here tomorrow to attend the fifty-seventh anniversary of the Chicago Dental Society will attempt to bring to a close here in the same category as that of the trained nurse.

Dr. C. N. Johnson of this city says: "Under the present laws of a large number of our states, in fact, a majority of them, no one but a licensed dentist can do even such a simple duty as to clean the teeth of school children. The purpose of the dental hygienist would be to give instruction by being the assistant to the dentist, just as the trained nurse is to the doctor."

A feature of the meeting here tomorrow will be the inauguration of a nationwide mouth hygiene movement which will have for its object the betterment of mouth conditions in the child by means of instruction in this subject in the schools. It is intended to incorporate in the teaching practical demonstrations in the proper use of the brush and other ways to clean the teeth and a study of the relation of healthy mouths to healthy bodies.

SEND MILK INSTEAD OF MONEY TO CHINA IS METHODIST PLAN

Sunday, February 6, Day Set for All Churches in Michigan to Collect Money for Famine Relief.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 27.—Bishop Theodore S. Henderson, head of the Methodist Episcopal church in Michigan, is considering the proposal of R. C. Reed of Howell, secretary of the Michigan Milk Producers' Association, that money raised by churches in Michigan for Chinese famine relief be used to purchase surplus condensed milk in warehouses throughout the state. Under the plan the milk would be shipped to China to relieve hunger. Such a course, Mr. Reed believes, would not only aid China, but the Michigan farmer as well.

On Sunday, February 6, all churches in Michigan will take collections at various services, the money to be used for famine relief in China. According to Mr. Reed and other prominent agriculturalists in the state, there is a decided surplus of condensed milk in the state for which no market can be found. It is proposed to use the funds collected to purchase this milk at a price below the market price. Mr. Reed has pointed out to Bishop Henderson that such a course would pave the way for a return of prosperity to the farmer, who now is said to be unable to dispose of his milk supply. Bishop Henderson, it is understood, may discuss the matter with church officials of all creeds in the state. It has been suggested the chief difficulty in carrying out such a program would be transporting milk from Michigan to the western coast for transshipment to China.

The idea broached by Mr. Reed is not an entirely new one. Illinois farmers having proposed to dispose of their surplus corn in this way.

LABORERS' IDLE

Investigation Shows Increasing Unemployment in Nearly All the Country's Industries.

An investigation made by International Labor Office reports that 30 per cent of the workers in the automobile industry are idle. Unemployment in the rubber industry amounts to 40 per cent of the total number of workers.

The minimum percentage of unemployed workers in the food and shoe industry and the leather industry amounts to 15 per cent. There is next to no unemployment in the textile industry and in the electrical industry.

Moreover, hotel and restaurant employees have returned to their homes from the summer resorts and are having great difficulty in securing work. It is reported that the business of recreation in the building industries has resulted in cutting down the number of workers required.

A large number of workers in the textile industry are also facing unemployment. The wool shiners in the Boston-Hingham region have returned to their homes to receive the bounty of $1600 to $8000 for the loss of labor from 38 to 45 per cent. There is considerable unemployment also in the building industry.

OPPOSES UNIONS OF CRAFTS

Later Council of Greater New York Practically Indorses the Principles of I. W. O. U.

The United Labor Council of Greater New York, known in recent years as the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, has adopted a program of industrial unionism and under the leadership of Frank M. Rowland, its president, has announced its opposition to craft unions.

The industrial and several major unions in the economic structure of the city, the council believes, should be organized into a single industrial union. The unions should abandon the industrial methods of organization and adopt the methods of the industrial union. With the present craft union system, the control of production is in the hands of the few, rather than the many. They would earn in the industry to be limited by a short term contract, and to be forbidden to serve as delegates to conventions or to accept of delegates to conventions or to accept of delegates to conventions or to accept of delegates to conventions.

West Union, Ohio.—A great serpent 1,300 feet long, built of earth and stone as a symbol of the religion of ancient peoples, stands a few miles from here as the most interesting and important earthwork left by the mound builders of Ohio.

Situated in a rather secluded spot, supposedly selected by the mound builders for privacy in performing their ancient rites, the massive serpent stands on a high bank, its head to the east. The serpent's head rests on a low platform which probably was a platform for a sacred fire. The body of the serpent is composed of a series of rectangular blocks of earth and stone.

LABOR FLUCTUATION NATIONAL PROBLEM

No nation shows so great fluctuations in unemployment as the United States. There are no reliable statistics of agricultural labor in the United States. The number of unemployed has fluctuated between 1,500,000 in the previous year, in 1919 and 1917 and 4,000,000 in the winter of 1914-1915. The average for the years 1907 to 1918 has been 2,500,000. This is about one-fourth the total number of industrial workers.

BUREAU WANTS TO MAKE DETROIT THE CONVENTION CITY

Detroit Convention Bureau Sends Representatives to All Conventions in Attempt to Bring Meets There.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 27.—An effort to make Detroit the center convention city of the country, a plan it hopes until 1918 will be made during the coming two years by the Detroit Convention Bureau, E. H. Dixon the secretary, announced.

The Detroit bureau was the first of its kind to be established, the work starting here in 1910. Other cities adopted the plan and in 1916 Detroit lost its place as the leading convention city. Detroit now ranks third, with New York and Chicago leading.

Unique plans are being employed to bring conventions to Detroit. The bureau obtains in various ways the names of national conventions in other cities. When these conventions are held a representative of the local bureau goes to the convention and in

The Shadow of the Sheltering Pines
A New Romance of the Storm Country
By GRACE MILLER WHITE

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I—Lonely and almost friendless, Tony Devon, living in a canal boat, child of a wealthy father and a worn-out, discarded mother, wanders into a Salvation Army hall at Ithaca, N. Y. There she meets a young sailor, an army captain, Philip MacCauley.

CHAPTER II—Urbah Devon, Tony's father, returns to the boat from a protracted "green" and announces he has arranged for Tony to marry a worthless companion of his, Reginald Brown. Mrs. Devon objects, and Urbah beats her. She intimates there is a secret connected with Tony.

CHAPTER III—In clothes that Urbah has brought Tony finds a baby's picture with a notification of a reward for its return to a Doctor Pendelhaven. She goes to return the picture.

CHAPTER IV—With the Pendelhaven, a family of wealth, live Mrs. Curtis, a cousin, her son and daughter, Katherine Curtis and Reginald Brown. Katherine is deeply in love with Philip MacCauley.

CHAPTER V—Tommy returns the picture to Doctor John, and learns it belongs to his brother, Dr. Paul Pendelhaven. It is a portrait of Doctor Paul's child, who had been stolen in her infancy, and her loss has wrecked Doctor Paul's life. Doctor John goes with Tony to the canal boat and ministers to Mrs. Devon while she is unconscious.

CHAPTER VI—Returning to consciousness, Mrs. Devon is informed by Tony of her visitor. She is deeply moved, makes Tony swear she will never see or hear of Urbah's brutality, and disappears.

CHAPTER VII—Tony's personality and her loneliness appeal to Doctor John and he arranges to take her into his house as a companion to his invalid brother.

CHAPTER VIII—Tony's presence in the house has a good effect on Doctor Paul. He begins to take a new interest in life. Visiting the canal boat, Tony finds Reginald Brown there. He attempts to kiss her. Captain MacCauley appears and throws the man into the lake. Urbah Devon orders MacCauley off his boat.

CHAPTER IX—With the dr. a captive Devon insists that she shall marry Brown. On her persistent refusal he beats her brutally. Doctor John enters the cabin, unmasks the boat and orders to have Urbah taken into the canal through the canal window. The man believes Tony has committed suicide. MacCauley disagrees by day and Tony acknowledges she returns to the boat. The girl returns to the Pendelhaven home.

she had not yet recovered from the shock of the night's events. She was sitting there, her face pale as death, her hands clasped in prayer. He had been paralyzed by the bleeding eyes and the memory that the body of the girl who was somewhere beneath the broad surface of Lake Cayuga.

Tommy heard him stomp on the soft grass, and he saw the stony pond opening a path through the willows. Then he withdrew her arm and stretched down on the floor.

When she got up she was in Dr. Paul's medicine. Moments by minutes she became more and more conscious. She opened her eyes, and she saw she was lying on a cot in the room, and she carried the medicine to her lips. When she slipped on the cot she saw that the cot was not a cot, but a bed. She was lying on a bed in a room, and she saw that the room was not a room, but a hospital. She was lying on a bed in a hospital, and she saw that the hospital was not a hospital, but a home.

Between whispering tones he began to tell her the dreadful tale. As she went on that the day the doctor's face grew much sweeter.

"Somebody's tried to poison him," he cried, taking a long breath. "My God, who could be so damnable as that? Come, let me get the stuff."

Together they stole back to Tommy's room and Dr. John carried away the medicine with him, leaving Tony with a caution not to speak of the matter to his brother.

Putting on his clothes, John went outside and made a tour of the house. It wasn't difficult to find the place where the man had fallen, but there was no sign of him anywhere.

Tommy did not sleep at all that night. But very early in the morning she arose and slipped into Dr. Paul's room and put back the medicine Dr. John had given her.

During the morning Dr. John Pendelhaven softly entered her room. He came forward, his hands outstretched, his face white and very grave.

"Darling little girl," he whispered, with much emotion. "You have saved my brother's life. The villain, whoever he was, put the rankest kind of poison in it. He must have gotten it from some doctor, for no druggist would have sold it to him."

"My brother's dead," replied Tony gently, with an expression of awe. "It was a long tumble he took."

"No; he got away! I've hunted the place over for him. Would you know him again if you saw him?"

"Sure," replied Tony, nodding, but she said no more. To tell him who the man was would mean to break the solemn oath she had made on the Christ to her mother.

A timid knock brought the conversation to a close. Mrs. Curtis was at the threshold when Pendelhaven opened the door.

"I've been looking the house over for you, John," she began. "Boy's got a headache." He said for you not to bother to come to him, but to give me something to make him sleep.

"Is he drunk?" demanded Pendelhaven.

Mrs. Curtis began to cry.

"John, how unkind!" she sniffled from the haven of her handkerchief. "The moment the child complains everybody accuses him of drinking. No, of course, he isn't drunk."

For many days Reginald Curtis tossed fitfully in bed, tortured by the thought that he would never cease being haunted by Tony Devon's spirit. He dared not get up, for he was covered with bruises from his fall, and added to his misery, he imagined every time the door opened he was going to be arrested. But no such thing happened, and one afternoon when Dr. John was gone and his mother and Katherine were shopping downtown, he crawled out of bed and made his way softly from the house.

WAR TALK DYING AWAY IN JAPAN'S BIG NEWSPAPERS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

TOYKO, Japan (By Mail)—While isolated quotations from speeches of statement, it is of course not to be printed occasionally to prove apparently belligerent feelings on the part of Japan toward the United States there can be no doubt but that the people of Japan do not wish for war. Nor are they even vitally interested in the issues which are supposed to make for war. This does not mean that it is at all impossible to irritate and insult Japanese national pride that Japan may feel driven into a fight, preferring even to be beaten to accepting insult without protest. But even though a few politicians anxious to make a case against the government may be found in Japan who make statements which appear very warlike, it seems apparent that, instead of interest and indignation against the United States in the matter of Japanese immigration to the U. S. increasing, the public is beginning to tire of the matter.

At present the government is sitting tight, desiring that all matters connected with the California question be let alone, at least until such time as some definite outcome of the present Washington negotiations is at hand. The foreign office merely lets it be known that these negotiations are making satisfactory progress. It is evident that it now feels that the matter has reached the point where the State Department at Washington must feel that it is necessary to submit to that body such provisions which have been arranged upon between Ambassador Shidehara and the officials of the State Department. If it is deemed fairly certain that the Senate will agree to these arrangements, the whole matter will be considered as practically settled. If, on the other hand, it is decided that there is a fair chance of the Senate's turning down the proposal, it will not be submitted at all, but Japan's pride be exposed to further humiliation in the Senate.

Keeping the public quite in the dark, not anything like as great a task as it was a couple of months ago. The great limitations of the franchise of itself operate towards killing general interest in matters political, and the newspapers which stirred up most of the row are seeking other subjects, only reverting to the California issue often enough to keep it from being forgotten entirely.

UNCLE SAM, M. D., EXPLAINS HOW TO STOP BLEEDING

By U. S. Public Health Service

Bleeding from the arteries is indicated by bright red blood that comes in spurts. Have the patient lie down with his head low. Apply pressure directly to the bleeding part or above the wound (between the wound and the heart) with the thumb and fingers. They substitute for this a tourniquet, or compress and bind it firmly.

A tourniquet (an instrument which forms a band around arm or leg) can be made by twisting a bandage or handkerchief until it is ropelike, or a piece of rubber tubing, or suspenders can be used. Insert a stick under the loop and twist the loop tight.

If a tourniquet is kept in place an hour it should be loosened cautiously to permit the circulation of the blood in the injured part. If no further bleeding occurs, the tourniquet should be allowed to remain loose, but it should be quickly tightened should the bleeding recommence. If the limb is badly crushed, put the pressure higher up than the injured spot.

In all kinds of bleeding keep the patient warm. Never wash away the blood-clots, bind them up. To wash them away would start the bleeding afresh. If the bleeding is from any of the blood vessels of the leg, raise the leg by putting a pillow, box, valise, or some other object under it; or if from a blood vessel in the arm, elevate the arm as much as possible by using a sling. This will not only help to check the hemorrhage, but will tend to relieve the pain caused by the wound.

As stimulants increase the action of the heart, they should never be given until the bleeding has stopped, unless the patient becomes so weak that it is necessary to give them to prevent him from dying.

When the bleeding has stopped, give hot drinks, as coffee, tea, or milk.

Leakage of the Heart
Q. I am writing in regard to my son, 18 years old, who has a leakage of the heart, caused two years ago from an influenza. He is apparently in good health, other ways would like to know if it can be cured, and where we could find a good heart specialist.

A. Leakage of the heart is, of course, a serious condition, but if the patient is properly cared for, it need not necessarily cause undue alarm. Everything depends on the manner in which the heart carries on its work despite the leakage. This is spoken of by physicians as "the establishment of compensation." If your boy is now up and about, and apparently in good health, it means that good compensation has been established. All that is necessary now is to make sure that the compensation is not overtaxed. He must not be allowed to overexert himself. His occupation should be looked into to see that it does not overtax his strength. He should avoid violent physical exercise, especially running, hill climbing and stair climbing. Excitement should be avoided. He should pay attention to his bowels. By careful attention to these details in his mode of living, your son may, perhaps, go through life without ever having any further trouble with his heart.

Joseph Medill School of Journalism will Open Next Month.

Courses in Every Branch of the Newspaper Business From Keeping Books to Reporting.

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 27.—Experience newspaper men of Chicago are co-operating with Northwestern University in establishing the Joseph Medill School of Journalism, which is to begin its session at the Northwestern University School of Commerce, Feb. 7. Instruction in the newspaper courses in the University collegiate departments at Evanston will not begin until September.

Courses in advertising, psychology, history and economics, already given in the School of Commerce have been grouped in the curriculum of the new School of Journalism, and in addition are five courses of technical newspaper work, including news reporting, news, editorial writing, newspaper management and newspaper law.

Besides the instruction in journalism itself, various educational courses are to be offered to the students of the new school.

The part-time classes in journalism will continue during the semester which closes May 28.

Dean Hellman has been making a survey of the Chicago field and has discovered there are 600 publications, daily, weekly, monthly and trade papers here. It also has a very large number of foreign language newspapers. Many of these publications, he said, will be represented among the students of the Joseph Medill school.

While the basis of part-time courses is four years of work at the end of which time, on the passing of final examinations, diplomas will be given students who already have college degrees or who wish to "brush up" in one or another line of work will be permitted to register and to select their courses.

Entrance requirements for this semester have not been rigid, except for some of the more advanced work, but because Dean Hellman explained, it is desirable to make the courses fit the needs of the student rather than to attempt to fit the student to the few courses that are possible in the inception of the project.

PROPOSED CHANGE IN COUNTY HOME RULE EXPLAINED

LEGISLATURE MUST FIRST GIVE CONSENT AFTER WHICH VOTE OF PEOPLE WOULD DECIDE ISSUE.

PRESENT SYSTEM TENDS TO PROMOTE NEEDLESS WASTE

General Demand For Reduction Of Government Expenditures Has Brought Question To The Foreground.

The Detroit and Wayne county point of view regarding proposed re-organization of county government in Michigan has been presented to the supervisors of Ottawa county in a letter from W. P. Lovett, a member of the Wayne county committee.

Meeting some of the objections of record, Mr. Lovett says that at least five steps must be taken to get results in this program. The letter follows:

Detroit, Michigan.

To the Honorable, the Board of Supervisors of Ottawa County, Michigan.

EVER HOPEFUL.
In looking out for summer board. You never spy exactly what you can afford. But still you try.

HER MALADY.
She read the matrimonial news. You say she was insane? She was looking for a millionaire. She had money on the brain.

DEFINED.
Grandpa, what's a "back of all trades"? Generally, a fellow who can produce everything except results.

THE MERRY WHIRL.
Daughter, you should not be so often constantly with a young man unless you are engaged to him, or expect to become engaged. How old-fashioned you are, ma. That's my dancing partner.

SAD.
She froze him with her glance. And then his cheeks began to burn. Next sad, unhappy circumstance. She roasted him with a stare.

WHAT DISTRICTS IN STATE ARE TO HAVE MORE IN CONGRESS

Speculation Has Arisen by Act of Congress Giving Michigan Two Additional Congressmen.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 27.—Action of the lower house of congress in giving Michigan two additional congressmen has caused speculation during the past few days as to what districts in the state would be reapportioned.

The First and Thirtieth congressional districts, comprising the city of Detroit and the Sixth district, containing Pontiac, Lansing and other municipalities, have experienced the greatest growth since the 1910 census and it is natural to suppose, according to those expressing opinions, that these districts will be the ones reapportioned.

What steps will be taken to bring about reapportionment are undecided, as yet. The state legislature has the power to carry out the task, although it might be accomplished by congressional action.

Another suggestion that has been voiced is to leave the thirteen districts in the state as they are and to elect two new congressmen at large. This is a precedent for such a step, Congressman Patrick Kelley having been elected at large several years ago when the Thirtieth representative in the house was given to Michigan. Later this method was changed and the Thirtieth district was added.

PHILIPPINE COAL.
Signs of industrial expansion in the Philippine islands are seen in the recent formation of a company which is developing the Cebu coal mines as well as those in Mindanao. It is expected that within a comparatively short time the output of these two islands will be sufficient to supply the needs of the whole archipelago as regards good steam coal. The Mindanao product, which comes from what is known as the Sibugay coal field, is asserted on the one hand to be superior to any other Philippine coal or any coal imported into the islands; while on the other hand it is said to be liable to deterioration if used promiscuously.

Workmen More Active.
The efficiency of the workman has been increasing lately. It is a fact that after the war the average product of the laborer was generally held greatly declined and was not higher over then half that of before the war but government statistics show that the old figure is rapidly being reached and increased efficiency is noted in the industries generally.

More Rigid Laws
Asked by Kramer

"I wish," said Robert, also of Wash- ington, attorney for the Anti-Saloon League of America, "that state legis- lature should accomplish the task of the legislature by applying the principle of Federal inspection to put them out of business. He also declared Federal search and seizure warrants may be issued by state marshals for the purpose of the police; upon proper showing, and that officers may be held to the Federal grand jury for those warrants, that any citizen may apply for such warrants, and that in a state where complaint is made to the Federal revenue department that a person is manufacturing or selling intoxicating liquor the Federal is immediately placed upon the tax roll for double the amount of the regular li- quor tax and an added penalty, and must prove his innocence to have his name removed. He advised the use of all methods.

Prof. J. Woodworth, state drug and food commissioner, suggested that as the bootleggers and blind piggers seem to be entering on an organized fight in the courts, that the matter of enforcement should be taken from his department and placed in the hands of the attorney general, with the state police to help him.

W. V. Wellman, superintendent of the Michigan Anti-Saloon League, explained the purpose of the meeting as a desire to organize public sentiment toward making tax enforcement popu- lar. A. C. Graham of Detroit, Federal prohibition director for Michigan, gave data to show that a lack of public cooperation is responsible for the dif- ficulty found in enforcing the law in Michigan.

Major H. E. Marsh of the state po- lice, Assistant Attorney General James A. Graham, Prosecutor O. L. South of Genoa county, Sheriff A. C. Jack of Washburn county and Walter O. Foster, attorney for the state Anti-Saloon League, also were on the program.

"I was sent here by the state board of health to investigate the local con- dition and find that so far Dr. De- net has been carrying on the right kind of a campaign," he said.
"There are still some things in the way of prevention and protection," he said, "which I have outlined to Dr. De-net and which he will put into prac- tice.

Escanaba ought to remember to get the law in Escanaba for several days during a "flu" epidemic, and those who are familiar with the fact, that he always has a plan ready and used to it that his orders will be fully carried out in every respect.

He will leave tonight or tomorrow.

Don Silver has said he is counting on a long stay in town for Dr. De- net, progressing along the campaign as outlined by him today.

Superintendent W. F. Olds of the public schools, who was visited today by Dr. Hill and Dr. De-net, said that he was going to carry out the lines laid down by the department of health to the letter. He said, "Regardless of what I believe, or what anyone else may believe, or against vaccination, there is a very plainly written law on the subject, which is so clear that no one can mistake its meaning, and I am going to use every means in my power to conform to the law and carry out the orders of authorized agents of the state and city."

Mr. Olds says he has already infor- med all of the teachers as to the law and he expects them to inform him in seeing that it is enforced. There are still a few teachers who have failed for some reason or other to be vaccinated. These teachers will have up- on Monday to do so, or will have to re- main in quarantine for several days.

"I am not worrying about my teach- ing forces," said Mr. Olds. "The at- tention is given every one of them will be on hand Monday morning to prevent a vaccination certificate to the health officer when he makes his call."

Morgan Discharged

They took their property and had been driven from their garage on January 25.

Peter Beltmeester, the bachelor neighbor who has a farm in a secluded dis- trict between the Danforth and Well township roads, identified both Mor- gan and Hanson and declared that they brought the tires to his house and set them in his barn and later came out with a large automobile and took them away.

William Fawcett testified that on January 26, which is the day, it is al- leged, the tires were removed from the Beltmeester place, Theodore Olson best roved his car in the evening and after going it for a few hours returned it to him.

Beltmeester stated in his testimony that when Hanson and Morgan called for the tires, they met with them a tall man, but he was not able to iden- tify him. He said that both Morgan and Hanson had been to his home on several occasions and he recog- nized them by sight very well.
