(By Associated Press)
MARION, O. Jan. 28.—Treasurer H. C. Ferrey, of Marion county, who reported Wednesday morning that he had been robbed of $1,000 by two bandits, who knocked him unconscious in his office in the court house, has been placed under arrest today and confessed to the theft of the money Saturday night.

When his story was reported to the police, they became suspicious of him and finally obtained his confession. He was placed under arrest today almost immediately after the arrival of a lawyer at his home. Ferrey, 45 years of age and the father of five children, said he had entered the country to cover his heavy expenses he suffered during his campaign. He said that he had heavily mortgaged two houses and his friends believe that his mind has become deranged with worry.

Ferrey in his confession claimed that he had scratched his face and hit himself on the head with a hammer after taking the money.

DON'T WORRY, FORD CAN GET ENOUGH MONEY

New York Papers Say
There Would Be No
Question About It.

In the Last Few Weeks Ford's Business Has Become the Business of Everyone in the State.

People in the upper peninsula, because of the recent project undertaken by the Ford Motor Company, are showing much more than passing interest in the rumors, denials and comments concerning recent happenings at the iron plant, especially with respect to a report that the Ford Company is attempting to negotiate a huge loan in New York.

That vague rumors of a pending Ford financial deal in Wall Street persist in New York banking circles despite denials from Detroit, is indicated in an article appearing in the financial section of The New York Times.

The outstanding feature in the New York report is that all bankers are unanimous in the opinion that whatever financial program the Ford interests may seek to adopt will not be successful.

Bankers Ready to Help

"Much mystery surrounds the Ford financing," says the Times.

Bankers employed as interested in the operation say that the whole matter is vague and indefinite, and reports from Detroit say that Ford interests there deny that they are contemplating any open market financing. Yet the rumors persist that the financing may be expected within a very short time; if not within the

PICKING JURY IS A BIG PROBLEM IN COAL MINE CASE

No One Can Serve Who Is Either Union Miner or an Operator; Farmers Are Accepted.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Jan. 28.—The picking of a jury in the case of twenty-one men, held off in connection with the killing of Alfred G. Avey, in the famous Matewan battle of last May is in progress at the circuit court in session in this city.

When the first man was examined as a juror he was asked if he was a member of the United Mine Workers of America. He replied in the affirmative. Judge Bailey asked if there were any objections to men workers and the counsel for the coal-mining side said he did object. So neither union miners nor coal operators can serve in the capacity of jurors.

It is expected that the examination of jurors will take considerable time and no doubt occupy the remainder of the week. Judge Bailey, therefore, ordered the witnesses in the case excused until Monday morning.

A farmer was examined today and was accepted on the jury. The next man called on the stand stated that he was a coal operator and was excused from serving by the objection of the defendant.

Several cases are pending in Milwaukee and this will be used as a test case.

FIGHT ON TO KEEP FEDERAL FORCE ON JOB

Internal Revenue Department More Fitted to Carry On Work.

Anti-Saloon League Calls Prohibition Enforcement Is Duty of Revenue Officials.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 25.—The folks of Wayne H. Wheeler, attorney and general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League of America, to prevent federal prohibition enforcement from being taken out of the hands of the internal revenue department and placed in the hands of the department of justice will require the backing of the Anti-Saloon League of Michigan, according to W. V. Wattman, state Lansing superintendent of the Michigan League.

"There is a lot of agitation in Indiana Congress to make the change," said Sept. Wattman, "but the contention of the Anti-Saloon League is that the matter could be better handled by the revenue department, as it is present for the reason that the revenue department already is organized to do just one function and the department of justice would have to have a new organization."

The revenue department, too, already has a law on hand for any other law violations and it is in position to know more about these violations, however, its sole function and main duty being that of collecting and spending money and making that department of justice officials will be heavily burdened with additional work.

Wattman added, "We are going to let them know our views and see if they will accept our suggestion that the revenue department should be left in charge of the enforcement of the禁酒法." These officials, which may take the end of enforcement, might be less likely to prohibit enforcement if placed under a different jurisdiction.

In Michigan the revenue department is assessing and collecting penalties, and Justice is an example of the amount of these penalties. A brief report of operations of Capt. F. M. Marston and Theodore J. McShane and C. W. Sack of the American State Police in the upper peninsula in recent days.

At Gladstone, Marston and Sack had three men arrested. It appears they were in receipt of $1000 gifts to manufacture liquor, against the law in the revenue department's view. It was impossible to ascertain what the sum was in addition to the $1000.

If the matter of transfer is referred before Congress there may be danger that the Volstead act may be dropped, or that it might be so used, should the new Congress be unable to accomplish it, during the debate, content to leave the Volstead act standing, and to drop it, if no agreement would be reached on the purpose of the constitutional amendment establishing prohibition in the United States.

Counsel Wheeler has sent out a statement to the various state leagues defining his position and his reasons for opposing the proposed change, and there is, no doubt, but he will have the support of every state in his fight.

The court in Michigan has upheld the right of states to hold elections off in their state.

In the United States there are now times as many women churchmen as men.

NO STONE has been left unturned to bring our prices down to rock bottom. In many instances we are selling far below present replacement cost, based on what the average one-store merchant pays for his merchandise. Not solely because we have short lines to close out, but because our buying power of 312 stores enables us to replace many lines at prices far below what our competitors have to pay for their merchandise. This saving we pass on to our patrons. Hence the prices we quote are doubly attractive and will remain so.

We thank you for your patronage. Come to us for service, we will give you the most in your money. We do not believe in price cutting, nor do we resort to indulge in sensational advertising.

Our intention is to impress upon the home merchant who is trying to establish new prices based upon our replacement costs and prices to you that we are equal to every emergency, ready and determined to keep faith with our patrons and give them the benefit of our buying power and organized efforts. We take your reputation in our written word and assure you that you can shop here with absolute confidence that you are paying the right price.

During these abnormal times many unscrupulous merchants, in order to get from under their load, resort to misleading statements and deceptive methods, which prostitute advertising and ruin the sense of confidence among the buying public. PENNEY COMPANY and be sure that your confidence will never be abused.

We invite you to our store that you may share in the tremendous savings offered, knowing that you will not be disappointed.

"On one point there is unanimity of opinion. That is that whatever financing may be undertaken by Mr. Ford or his company will be highly successful. Bankers and bond men feel that a public offering of Ford securities will go very well, and it is to be expected that Mr. Ford would have no difficulty in arranging bank loans.

Denied at Detroit.

A story in the Detroit Free Press relative to the Ford loan rumors reads:

"Denial that the Ford Motor Company was to appeal to the investment market for capital appears to have come from Boston. A banker there who in the past has handled some of the Ford financial affairs, is said to have been the man who circulated the idea of consolidating all the power which the Ford company has in banks throughout the country into a definite security offering. This idea, according to reports, met with the approval of some of Mr. Ford's assistants, and the Boston banker, on his own initiative, started inquiry among bankers in other cities to find out how they would feel regarding the plan. Many of the answers which he received are said to have been favorable. But the according to some of the bankers is as far as the matter has gone."

Leading Executives Out

Within a space of about two years eight executives who played an important part in the creation of the largest industry have left. In nearly every case the resignations came as a surprise to the public and the reasons were not given in detail.

"One of the first to leave the company was James Couzens, president of Detroit. He not only had been actively engaged with the Ford organization, but was a stockholder. Since his resignation his holdings have been purchased by the Ford, father and son, as have those of others previously connected with the concern.

Mr. Couzens was followed by the withdrawal of C. Howard Wills, chief engineer of the company, who is credited in motor circles with the designing of much of the Ford motor. John R. Lee, another high executive, and Norval Hawkins, who had charge of sales promotion. Wills and Lee since have formed a motor company which is starting production.

The latest resignations preceding the action of Dean Marquis were those of Frank L. Klingensmith, general manager of the plant, C. H. Brownell, advertising manager, and Warren C. Anderson, director of the Ford company's European branches.

The Shadow of the Sheltering Pines

A New Romance of the Storm Country

GRACE MILLER WHITE

SYNOPSIS:

CHAPTER I. Lonely and almost friendless, Tomibell Devon, living on a canal boat child of a lone sailor and a worn-out, discouraged mother, wanders into a Salvation army hall at Utica, N. Y. There she meets a young Salvation army captain, Philip Macaulay.

CHAPTER II. Utiah Devon, Tony's father, returns to the boat from a protracted "spur" and announces he has arranged for Tony to marry a worthless companion of his, Reginald Brown. Mrs. Devon objects, and Utiah beats her. She indicates there is a secret connected with Tomibell.

CHAPTER III. In clothes that Utiah has brought Tony under a baby's picture with a notation of a reward for its return to Doctor Pendlehaven, she goes to return the picture.

CHAPTER IV. With the Pendlehaven family of wealth, Mrs. Curtis, a cousin, son and daughter, Katherine Curtis and Reginald Brown, Katherine is deeply in love with Philip Macaulay.

CHAPTER V. Tomibell returns the picture to Doctor John, and learns it belongs to his brother, Dr. Paul Pendlehaven. It is a portrait of Doctor Paul's child who had been stolen in her infancy, and her loss had wrecked Doctor Paul's life. Doctor John goes with Tony to the canal boat and volunteers to Mrs. Devon while she is unconscious.

CHAPTER VI. Returning to consciousness, Mrs. Devon is informed by Tony of her secret. She is deeply mortified, makes Tony swear she will never tell of Devon's mentality, and disappears.

CHAPTER VII. Tony's personality and her kindness appeal to Doctor John, and he attempts to take her into his house as a companion to his invalid brother.

CHAPTER VIII. Tony's presence is the focus of a good deal of Doctor John's time. He begins to show a new interest in life. Putting the canal boat, Tomibell, Reginald, thrown there, he attempts to kiss her. Captain Macaulay appears and throws the man into the lake. Utiah Devon orders Macaulay off his boat.

CHAPTER IX. With the girl captive, Devon insists that she shall marry him. On her persistent refusal, he beats her brutally, throws her into the cabin, unmakes the boat, and starts to leave. Macaulay follows in his canoe. He takes the girl into the canoe through the cabin window. The men believe Tony has committed suicide. Macaulay declares he loves her. Tony acknowledges she returns to him. The girl returns to the Pendlehaven home.

The boy nodded and answered again. "I sure did, but, but."

"But what?" cried Devon.

"I put the stuff in the medicine all right, but something happened." Reginald's voice was low and wavering as he finished the statement.

"What happened?" repeated Devon hotly. "Don't you like a good fool and look at it if you've swallowed a live cat."

"I was going to slip back from the window sill to the roof," faltered Reginald, "but Tony's shot rose up before me and showed me down off the ledge and down to the ground."

Utiah's eyes almost protruded from his head. Then a slow smile ran around his lips.

"Haha!" he snorted huskily. "It's you, fool! There ain't such things as ghosts."

"Now there is, though," insisted Reginald, "in a ghostly moment. 'I've seen one!' I've seen Tony, I say, and many a time she's come too close to my eyes. I could have touched her if she could have been touched. The fall made my skin. I've been in bed ever since."

"And your cousin's still alive, eh?" Utiah voice had a sour in it.

"Still alive," muttered Reginald.

"What you going to do about it now?" demanded Devon. "Try it again?"

Brown shook his head.

"No, not yet. Wait," he muttered. "Not just yet. I can't."

"You got to get a lot of money some way," Devon came in with a

"I've got to get out of this country, or I'll be hooked to jail if those Syracuse folks find me. You'd better be getting home and back to bed. Best take a stiff swing, too, to settle your nerves."

He watched the tall thin boy walk slowly away in deep meditation. Then he laughed and went below to the cabin.

Almost a week after Tammie's futile attempt to poison his Cousin Paul, Tony Devon was sitting in her room, reading, when a servant appeared and told her some one wanted to see her. Utiah. Her heart bounded with delight, for she was sure Tony had come again and had sent for her. She rushed to the glass, caught Utiah's face, pushed back a few strands and went downstairs to the drawing room.

As she stepped inside, she came to a sudden, terrified halt. Her father was seated in a large chair and his eyes, red and swollen, were centered upon her. Then he snuffed that wicked smile that always widened his thick lips when he had succeeded in some evil thing.

"Hello, Tony," he chuckled. "You've made a fine nest for yourself, hah?"

Tony only stared at him. Utiah supported by his sudden appearance.

"I came to talk to you, Ed," he said, the wheels coming into his tones that always augured bad for the person addressed. "Sit down."

Tammie sat, not because he told her to, but because she couldn't stand on her trembling legs.

"You don't appear to be very tickled to see your old dad," he threw at her, a crown wrinkling his face. "Get up and come over here." His wicked eyes seemed to be swallowing her whole. In fact Devon could not make himself believe this beautiful creature was the Tony who, he thought, had been drowned in the lake. He felt a new sensation within him as his gaze took in every line of the lovely figure.

"Come over here," he said once more, "and tell me how you got out of the lake that night. Did you swim ashore?"

Tammie shook her head.

"I'm not going to tell you anything," she murmured almost inaudibly.

"Well, it's up to you, then," he snapped Utiah. "When I get you back to the 'Dirty Mary' I know ways which bring out of you what I want to know. So, get your things and come along home."

Tammie felt as if the bottoms had fallen out of the world. Then a boy's smile and a boy's words. "Utiah, little Tony, is always at hand, for God is good," seemed to strike both her vision and hearing.

Tony believed every word. Phillip Macaulay uttered. He couldn't speak an untruth if he tried. If he had said, Salvation was at hand, then she could be saved at that moment.

"I'm busy here, daddy," she managed to say. "I'm doing some nursing, so I can't get away just now."

"You'll come just the same," replied Devon, getting to his feet.

"Divine Love is everywhere," dashed through Tony's mind as she too struggled up. She dared not scream, and even if she did, there was no one in the house who would help her. Mrs. Curtis and her daughter would be delighted to have her gone and Dr. John was out among his patients.

"She seemed to be no escape for her now. She dared not appeal to the weak, sick man upstairs.

Thinking of him made her burn out:

"Did you send that awful Brown fellow here to put poison in Dr. Paul's medicine?"

Utiah glared at her, went white and put his hand on a chair to steady himself.

"I don't know nothin' about any man or any poison," he growled.

"You'd better be comin' along now," "Twas the man you said I had to link up with. He used to come to the 'Dirty Mary,'" explained Tammie, seeing her words had frightened her father. "I let you sent him here."

"Keep your slack shut," growled Devon, just as the door opened, and Mrs. Curtis entered. Tony whirled and faced her, although she didn't have the courage to utter a word.

The woman looked from the girl's agitated face to Devon, questioning him.

"And your cousin's still alive, eh?" Utiah voice had a sour in it.

"Still alive," muttered Reginald.

"What you going to do about it now?" demanded Devon. "Try it again?"

Brown shook his head.

"No, not yet. Wait," he muttered. "Not just yet. I can't."

Tammie had heard the words and knew they were true. If she could get upstairs with Doctor Paul and then lock the door, no one could dare enter her.

Devon saw swift intelligence light up her face. He didn't intend to allow her out of his sight. He caught at Utiah roughly as Mrs. Curtis barred the door to the room.

"Let me alone," she cried. "Let me alone."

Utiah snatched her hands, and Mrs. Curtis barred her fingers in the dark stairs. As Tammie cried out again, the door suddenly opened, and John Pen-

BOURBONS NEVER LEARN

In accordance with their usual custom some of the most noted of the sovereigns from King Henry VII to Henry VIII, and during the period of the Puritan movement, it was the custom of the Puritans to punish the importers of rum as being a personal sin of God, without ever being a tax. Of course it was true that rum was a great inducer of profligacy and immorality, but to the Puritans rum was innocent, but to the sober men, an invader of a party of reformers in a moral purity which shall be published.
It is true that the Puritans were not interested in the importation of rum, but the sober citizens of the time should have been more concerned about the effects of rum than the Puritans, who had no objection to the sale of rum, but to its use.

The Democratic Party has agreed to the Rum Control Commission's foreign imports. It has been agreed upon that the majority of the Democrats will sign an agreement with the Republicans to end the present foreign imports of rum.

Republicans have insisted in the past and they will insist in the future that the Senate and Senate should be amalgamated and that there should be a tariff bill which will be duly voted upon to the effect so that the American producer will have an equal opportunity with his foreign competitor in his home market.

With the introduction of equality measures by the Republicans President Wilson argued for free trade and based his argument upon the assumption that American producers must enter into full competition with their foreign competitors if we were to have free trade.

From the American viewpoint free trade would receive equality if it would put the American producer at a disadvantage because of the higher standards of living, the higher wages, and the higher costs of production obtaining in this country.

The American producer ought not to be placed on an absolute equality with the foreign producer who is going to work longer hours, wear poorer clothing, eat cheaper food, and live in less desirable quarters than those desired by the American.

Relative equality can be secured by imposing upon the importation of the foreign product a tax which shall represent approximately the difference in American and foreign standards.
With such duties imposed and enough to equality established, it will then be possible to call upon the American producer to enter into a contest of value with his foreign rival.

CHAMBER STATE BUREAU NOT TO INJURE FARMERS

New Program Will Provide
Two Departments; Agriculture, Conservation.

Not the Purpose of Amalgamation to Abolish State
Boards; Accomplishing
Important Work.

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 28.—It appears that the legislative program of the state farm bureau, as a result in neglect of certain phases of work, the bureau has issued a statement declaring it is not the intention to abolish agriculture, accomplishments important work such as fish and game management and protection.

The program carried out by the legislature, would provide for two departments of state government, one dealing with agriculture and the second with conservation. The program is drafted, according to Bureau officials, with the idea of eliminating certain state boards whose work is said to overlap those of others. The bureau's statement follows:

"It is not the purpose of the proposed amalgamation of some sixteen old state boards, commissions and bureaus, now overlapping and conflicting in many instances to abolish agriculture accomplishing important work such as fish and game propagation and protection."

In this instance it should be reminded that there are two boards of the state now engaged in such activity.
They are the board of fish commissioner and the fish game and division of the public domain commission. It is proposed to incorporate the two, with the exception of the forestry division, into one distinguished department that would control all matters pertaining to natural resources, forestry and wild life. Forest fire prevention would be a function of the forestry division.

The incongruity of the present system must be apparent when it is considered the board of fish commissioner deals with propagation of fish, for example, turning the fish when they reach an appropriate age, over to the fish game and the division of the public domain commission and making instructions, the auditor general, the comptroller, a member of the board of governors of the University of Michigan and a member of the state board of agriculture responsible for their welfare and future.

Tore Pay On U.S.
Ships; British
Desert in Here

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Large numbers of English seamen are deserting their ships in American ports and joining American vessels because of the higher pay they receive from American shipowners.

One seaman stated before whom one of the deserters was arraigned, called the seaman a "scoundrel" and said it was unfair to Britain's mercantile service.

The man in question was fined 2 lbs.
and costs and his wages were impounded.

THE BLUE LAWS

Long reign of Sunday Blue Laws
In England

From the period of Henry VI in 1428 to 1552 A. D. England suffered from very long period of Sunday legislation. It was about the time when the Puritan movement was beginning to make headway and when strict observance of the Sabbath was a matter that concerned the governing body of the church and state as well.

The严格执行 of the laws of Henry VI against violating the Sabbath is strikingly illustrated by one of the statutes during his time. One of these prohibited workmen from claiming wages for work done on Sunday.

Not only would a workman expose himself to fine and imprisonment for claiming wages for work done on the Sabbath, but for the actual work itself. A workman once entered the shop of a shoemaker on a Sunday to have his shoes repaired. When the work was completed he refused to pay claiming that the work was done on a Sunday and it was an invasion of his rights to do so.

In 1546 Edward VI ordered the people to go to church on Sunday.

An exemption was made for farmers whose usual work it was thought could not be postponed. Most selling was prohibited during the hours of worship, but after church the shopkeepers were permitted to keep their shops open as it was then necessary.

In July the Puritans began to be known by that name throughout

England and a high type of intelligence is demanded each year and that is responsible for the increase in the number of violations. Only 12 men were killed in the last year as a result of falls from windows.

According to Mr. Roseler there is a romance about window washing that keeps men in the trade from reaching old age. Once a window washer in says a window cleaner, he receives an advance in the profession, he gets window washing is rated by insurance companies as one of the most hazardous of pursuits. It ranks with steel rolling, coal mining and a single jack. Liability insurance companies charge a rate of 10.31 per cent of a man's wages weekly to insure him for one week, a ceiling of 100 per cent for ordinary workers is only about one-tenth of one per cent.

An experienced window washer can earn $100 weekly, but

AMERICANS IN FOREIGN LANDS ASK TO BE EXEMPT OF TAX

Americans of Philippines Send Resolutions to Congress Protesting Payment of Income Tax.

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 25.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—The board of directors of the American Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines recently has adopted a resolution which is to be forwarded to the United States congress, protesting against the application of the federal income tax law to Americans residing abroad and paying taxes in the Philippines or foreign countries. The resolution demands of congress that the revenue act of 1913 be so amended as to exempt from taxation the income derived from sources without the United States by non-resident citizens.

The resolution says: "Under term of law no congress income taxes were ever imposed upon all residents in the Philippines, Americans, Filipinos and aliens; and in accordance with American principles and traditions, such taxes seemed not to be in the best interest, not to the insular government, and the revenue act of 1913 in some cases for the revenues of the several states are imposed upon American citizens residing in the United States, but not on Filipinos and others who are residing, although the United States make the protection of the United States and the Filipinos are the same as Americans and enjoy the same rights as American citizens. Other nations, as for example Great Britain, do not tax the income of their citizens or subjects residing abroad.

Americans of the Philippines propose to come into the local government as their neighbors and are then required to pay to the United States additional taxes from which their neighbors are exempt. To the extent of such additional taxes, Americans are at a disadvantage in competition with others for business.

This handicap operates not only upon the interests of American citizens in the Philippines, but also to the detriment of American shipping and commerce, whose maintenance and development depend in great part upon the freedom and representation afforded to American citizens overseas, because competition for the world trade, our merchants and carriers can afford to rely upon alien representatives or to enjoy representation by our own citizens only at a cost four times that borne by competitors, and the natural tendency of the present policy of taxation is to eliminate Americans established in business abroad or to induce their emigration.

DR. HILL LEAVES FOR IRON RIVER

Dr. J. R. Hill of the state board of health left this morning for Iron River town where he will spend a few days looking over the sanitary conditions of that city. He says he expects to be back in Escanaba some time next week to see how his orders have been carried out by Dr. Defect, of the city health department.

Last night Dr. Defect had another conference with the state representative in regard to stamping out the small pox epidemic and both men said that they were well satisfied with the conditions in Escanaba but there must be no slackers in the vaccination army.

L. K. Edwards has received a letter from Dearborn that the price of the Ford tractor has been reduced to $165 which is $165 less than the price last

L. K. Edwards

Every time any so-called reform is suggested, there is much shaking of the knees among certain people who hold public office. They don't want conditions changed, lost, they're left out in the cold. Now it is quite possible that after county government shall have been reorganized, there will be just as much work to be done as before, and hence need for just as many workers in any given county. What we propose is to change the system and methods so that better results can be reached with less cost to the taxpayer and more satisfaction to the county officials and employees. This is not an attack of any set of so-called politicians, but an effort to change the system by what they work to furnish a better place to machinery if a county works.

Instead of being new, the idea is as old as the notion of home rule in California, too old. We are told that the better systems there is so satisfactory, the state could think of nothing else to copy. They call it a "lame duck."

GROVE RETURNS FROM WISCONSIN LIQUOR TRIALS

Federal agent says he is mighty glad to get back in Michigan and put off Wisconsin.

MADISON, Jan. 28.—"I'm glad to get back and I hope I have soon my last of Wisconsin for a long time to come," said Lou J. Grove, prohibition enforcement chief, who arrived in Marquette from LaCrosse last evening after attending federal court as a witness in Hurley liquor cases.

Grove's face developed a broad smile when he was asked about the effort made at LaCrosse by the shot of iron county, Wis., to arrest him as a warrant charging murder.

Sheriff Morris knew well enough when he came to LaCrosse that he could not arrest me, while I was a witness in federal court," Grove said.
"If he did not know it then he certainly does now, because Judge Sanduski waited no words in testifying he was on the wrong track."

The warrant was given on the word of District Attorney Foster of Iron county. When Judge Sanduski read it he announced the special to the court room and not only told me to get back to Hurley, people not also that if he was not careful he and Mr. Foster would be up to jail. The sheriff doesn't

Knew facts of Case

Grove was somewhat surprised that District Attorney Foster made no attempt to have a warrant served at LaCrosse. A few days after the Hurley automobile and road October Foster, who was soon to step into the district attorney's office, had left for Marion, Ill., visited Marquette and called on Grove. He disclosed his case in detail and did not want anyone to interfere with the doing of his job.

After federal trial for the shooting of John M. Chapman.

That he should attempt to do so soon after his unsuccessful attempt at extracting Grove and the other men for trial in Wisconsin, and more particularly that he should try to serve the warrant while Grove was a witness in federal court, was surprising to the group chief.

Where is Filton?

"Harold Lee Filton," was the first question Grove asked when he reached Marquette. "They were sure he'd be by hand on his way to LaCrosse."

Grove said that a breakfast working on the South Shore train between Loring and Marquette declared he as Filton on the train Wednesday and does not give much credit to report however.
