INAUGURATION TO BE AFFAIR OF SIMPLICITY

President to Enter Upon His Task Without the Usual Display of Pomp and Parades.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 1.—Inauguration of President-elect Harding will mark the first swing of ceremonial toward simplicity since Thomas Jefferson took up Capitol Hill about one hundred and thirty-two years ago.

The ceremony of administering the oath will be as it was prescribed by George Washington. There will be no change in the other details, but Mr. Harding by his own decision will enter upon his great task without pomp and parade that have increasingly surrounded that solemn moment as the years went by.

Not until the day of Jefferson's inauguration (he will make the inaugural address) will the inaugural parade be held. The parade will be held on the day of the inauguration.

Jefferson's inauguration was held on the day of the inauguration. The parade will be held on the day of the inauguration.

Among things to be noted is that past NOT to be revived for Mr. Harding will be the gray coat, white tie and top hat. Mr. Harding will wear a simple suit and will proceed to the great entrance.

PROMOTION DENIED TO GEN. LIGGETT

CONGRESS PROBABLY WILL TAKE THE SAME ACTION IN CASES OF OTHER ARMY OFFICERS.

ITS ATTITUDE IS PECULIAR

Names of the Commanding Officers Who Led Our Troops Successfully in France Were Omitted From Nearly Every Government Report.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.
Washington, Mar. 1.—Hon. Henry Liggett, U. S. Army, who as a captain of commandant a military unit in the field in France, has been refused promotion in consequence of the rank of lieutenant general on the military list, reports Liggett will on the 20th of the month file a protest, and it is possible and probable that congress will be forced to take some action on the rank of lieutenant general before his days of retirement.

Other officers of the United States Army, some of whom fought in France and others who did high service in this country, also will be denied promotion while they are in the active service and when of course, promotion and the completion of it could. Among these officers in whom denial of promotion probably is to come are Maj. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, who like Liggett commanded a corps on the fighting line, Gen. Peyton C. March, chief of staff of the army, Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, whose foresight in virtually forcing preliminary education for young officers aided materially in the work of quick victory for the United States, Maj. Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, who prepared the draft laws and brought a big army of Mexicans into the field under what was called conscription, and did it without any of the troubles that were predicted; and Maj. Gen. Joseph T. Dickman, who commanded the first corps in the Argonne and later the army of occupation in Germany, a command which should have earned with it the rank of a full general of the forces.

Their Names Omitted From Reports.

From virtually every government report which deals with the successful operations of the American troops abroad the names of the commanding officers were omitted. In some cases this has looked almost like a conspiracy of suppression. Of course this charge is denied, but up to date no one has been able to determine just why it is that the men under whose direction advances were made and battles won, have not been able to get their names into those of the government reports which the people read.

The names of the commanding officers who served in this country, moreover, were omitted from the American people, apparently, then the names of those who served on the fighting line with the notable exceptions, of course, of Gen. John J. Pershing. It is known definitely that, being known to the American army officers of rank and deeds, while not being recorded for some reason, it is not clear why the rank has been denied, and their acts of fighting accomplished.

In the British and French histories of the war which thus far have appeared the names of the British, French, British, French, American and other men have been large. The British and French people know only all about the commanding deeds of the American officers in battle, and the general rank from which they rose. The American people alone, broadly, are in the dark.

There is unquestionably any reason why congress has declined to recommend that Hon. Henry Liggett be made a lieutenant general on the military list for the few days that he is to serve before retirement.

The reason has nothing to do with the undoubtedly high service of Hon. Henry Liggett in the field, but it has to do with the feeling in congress that if something is done for one man, something must be done for others, and that pressure will be brought to bear from localities throughout the United States to have something done for men who possibly may not deserve it. Congress, therefore, seems to be willing to deny rank to those who have earned it in order to avoid the possibility of being asked for reward for some men who perhaps do not deserve it.

Inquiry May Bring Promotions.

It is said that the senate is willing to go ahead with the promotions, and that the chief opposition is to be found in the house. It may be, and it seems probable that later in congress will undertake an investigation of the cases of a number of ranking officers of the American army who, after seemingly effective service in the field, suddenly were removed from their commands and sent back to the United States. If this investigation shall take place the chances are that all the facts concerning all the commanding officers will be learned and then promotion possibly will be made in accordance with the positive information which is developed.

These men and methods have changed for some reason or other. Congress could not do enough for the general officers of the war between the states. Today congress, at least so it seems, is trying to do as little as it can for the ranking officers of the conflict which by order of congress itself, it called on the Victory medals. "The Great War for Civilization."

JOHN GOT THE MAP—SAM LOST YAP

In view of the suggestion from Great Britain that the United States cancel the debt owed by that country to this, it is pertinent to take a glance at some of the material acquisitions realized by the British Empire as a result of the war.

The most important addition to British territory is German East Africa, 384,000 square miles in area, bordering on the Indian Ocean and extending from Rhodesia to British East Africa.

Of German Southwest Africa less is known because of limited exploration and development. The Colony comprises 322,000 square miles. The principal products are chiefly iron, steel, coal, copper, diamonds, copper, gold, uranium, iron and diamonds.

In addition, the British Empire has secured control of the German Islands in the South Pacific and the German Islands in the South Pacific, aggregating about 90,000 square miles and giving Great Britain an additional advantage in commercial shipping.

The United States has not asked that there shall be a pooling of assets. It has neither asked nor desired an interest in German East Africa or German Southwest Africa.

AGAINST CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Governor Osborn, in a letter to the Grand Rapids Herald, makes plain his attitude on capital punishment. He is against it, and hopes Michigan will not take a backward step into the butcher ranks.

He declares himself of the opinion, strongly, that pardons should never be given, or next to never, without the consent of court and prosecuting officers, although parole, wisely and honestly practiced meets his approval.

Take the case of Utah. The legislature there has recently repealed Utah's infamous "shotgun execution" law and will hereafter execute condemned criminals.

At the last "shotgun execution" 75 men applied for the job. Only five were chosen and were paid $70 each for sending a bullet into a human heart.

That shooting set the state to thinking. Some citizens argued that such a large list of ready shooters indicated a growing desire to take human life, legally, and for a price, of course, but killing, just the same.

Utah decided to call a halt before the state was crowded with men overly anxious to take human life at $70 per shot.

CHAPTER XI.—Enright from a well-studied plan to force the hand of the Cavendishes.

Enright's local mind had no loophole. He intended to play the game absolutely safe, in fact, at least, as he was personally concerned.

Westcott rose to his feet and began following the trail up the mountain. He was not wearing a flashlight.

While walking west from the East which would enable him to develop the claim, Westcott had thought it best to discontinue work, and hide as best he could.

Enright lowered his feet to the floor, a puzzled look on his face, his teeth clenched on his cigar.

Westcott's purpose in visiting the La Roche mine was a rather vague one. He thought that naturally he would find it there.

Enright's grip on himself again and slowly left his cigar, leaving back and staring out the window. His hand gripped the situation coldly.

FIFTY CENTURIES AGO

About five thousand years ago men first began to cover to the thatch nature gave to protect heads. Then no thought was wasted on style and quality.

Today a good hat like the Gordon represents much thought and many operations by skilled artisans. The selection, assorting and blending of the fine furs that form the body of that hat—the forming of the hat from the first crude shaping on through the knitting, reaping, dyeing, blocking, curling, finishing, trimming—each process requiring expert care.

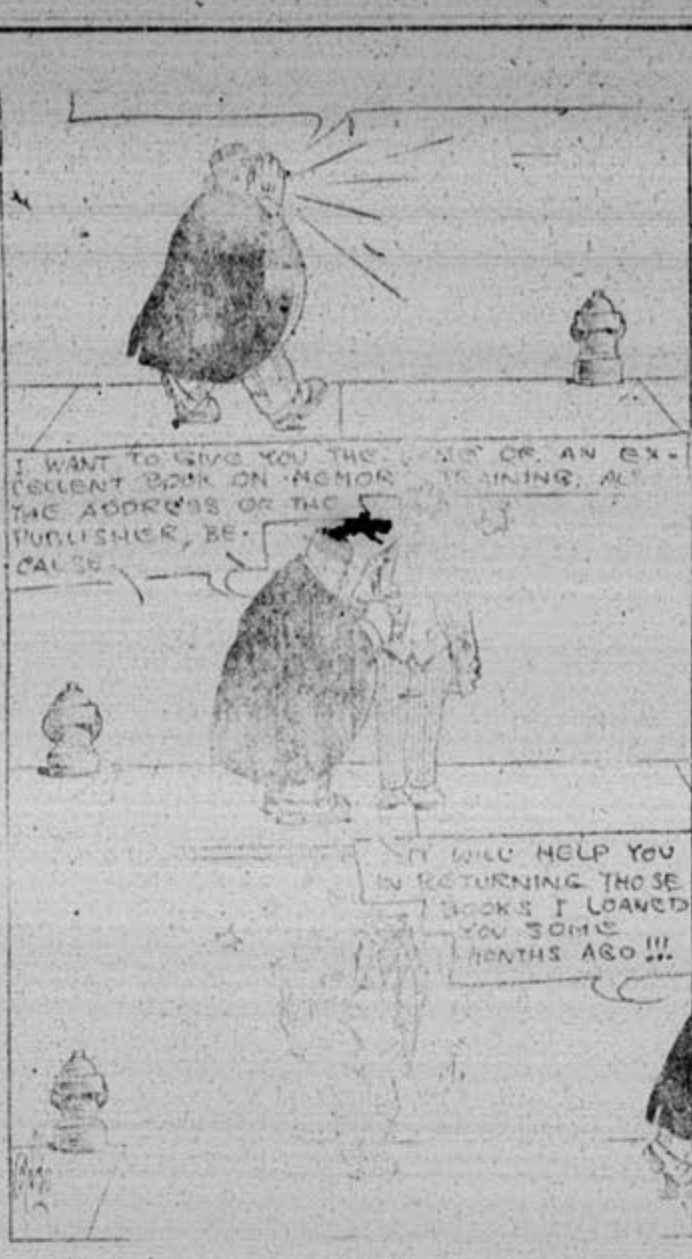

Yes, indeed! The small amount you pay for a Gordon gets you the accumulated experience of fifty centuries.

Some corking new ideas are shown in the Gordon models this season.

AFTER FORTY YEARS IN BUSINESS BOOZE GIVES WAY TO HATS

Building at the Northwest Corner of Ludington and Charlotte Finally Comes Dry.

The saloon license were being removed this morning from the building at the corner of Ludington and Charlotte streets as soon as the interior can be refitted. Miss Edna Gordin has opened a military shop and women's furnishing goods store. This morning wood glass work, including in front of the photograph, was in place when every corner of that street in Ludington was occupied by a saloon and every one of the saloons was a good time for the owner. It was never dreamed by many of the men of Ludington that the saloon and whiskey would be carried out of the city, but the famous corner would now be a military store.

The fixtures were of the finest mahogany and most of the paneling was of the finest mahogany.

Boston Man Wants Japan Butterflies

TORONTO, Mar. 1.—The Vancouver Chamber of Commerce has received a request from a Boston importer to be supplied with some exports of Japanese butterflies so that he may secure not only the complete butterfly, "dried and in perfect condition," but also the collectors and entomologists, but a few shipments of the kind from but a single source to be good to gold and for gold point.
