SINN FEIN NOW WAITING; HOPE AID OF ULSTER

Republican Leaders Do Not Think There Is Hope Without Them.

Speculation Rife as to Whether or Not Government Would Accept Part of Ireland.

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS)

DUBLIN, Ireland, Aug. 3.—The sole reason for the delay in the Sinn Fein return to the government proposed it is authoritatively stated, is the attempt being made to secure the cessation of Ulster's peace plans before returning the negotiations to Premier Lloyd George so he could move on a united Ireland.

Every effort is being made, including threats, it is declared, to induce Ulster to accept a share in the political body which it planned to make a small powerful Ireland and retain her own autonomy. So far these efforts, though backed up favorably by the government, have not been successful.

The negotiations for an arrangement with Ulster has not yet been abandoned, however, and it is still to be brought about, the government, it is pointed out, must consider whether they will accept the offer to counter outside of Ulster or remain the war.

Some of the Republican leaders express a view that there would be little hope of such an acceptance.

FAMILY DISPUTE AIRED IN JUDGE MC EWEN'S COURT

Man Charged With Making Threatening Remarks Is Found Not Guilty This Morning.

The charge of slander against F. H. Schilling, an Escanaba man, was dropped in Justice court this morning when he was found not guilty. Mrs. Delina Debowin was the complainant and her husband excused when it was claimed he made threats against her intended to do great bodily harm. It was decided in court this morning that both families were as much to blame as the other and it was decided to drop the case.

The climax in the suit was between three families living in the same house and continued for several weeks and involved the violation of mutual agreements made at the time the Schilling family first took rooms in the Debowin home. Testimony in the case showed that Schilling threatened to get even with the Debowin family for the trouble they had made and Schilling claimed that Mrs. Debowin stood outside her door with a knife and dared him to come in the yard.

The sum and substance of the whole trouble from all appearance was that the Schilling family living nearby in the building and the Debowin family living downstairs, owners of the house, could not agree on one single thing. The use of the hall upstairs, the backyard and everything on the property was hotly disputed by both families. Mr. and Mrs. Schilling stated that if they had been any place at all where they could have moved in they would have done so in order to avoid trouble.

WHEN IS A WORM NOT A WORM? IS PROBLEM TODAY

State Department of Health Reports No Danger From the Reptiles.

Worms Found in City Water Nothing But Common Horse Hair, G. C. Young Claims in Letter to Supt. Goddard

A good many of worms was received in Escanaba this morning when Parkman was informed that a letter, signed by Utilities, L. D. Goddard from the state department of health that the long hairy like reptiles found in the city water was nothing but a half snake or a common everyday horse hair. From the day the first reptile like creature was found and reported to the city health department Escanaba people have been worrying about the condition and since that time a number of other so called snakes have been found. We do not know how horse hair have gotten into the mains and then into the homes of Escanaba but it is a fact that the supposed snake found coming out of the water taps are simply common horse hairs.

Some said horse hairs. Several Escanaba people have remarked from the time the first hair was found that they were nothing but horse hairs, but this sounded as ridiculous that the idea was scoffed at. It seemed an impossibility that an ordinary horse hair could show the life these specimens showed. The letter from the health department explained in detail the examination that was made at that department after the snake was sent in.

The letter follows:

L. D. GODDARD,
Bundled Utilities,
Escanaba, Mich.
Dear Sir:

The specimen appeared to be worm which was sent to the laboratory for examination is what is known as a hair snake.

Horse hairs which have lived in water for a long time will assume this snake like motion due to the fact that the outside layer of the hair is insoluble and is not acted upon by bacteria, the inside is dissolved out. The irregular surface tension causes this motion.

A job-half will gradually break off and you will have several of these appearing at a water tap, they may lay in your hands for years and still have the power of motion.

Yours very truly,
Michigan Dept. of Health,
G. C. YOUNG
Director of Laboratories

Escanaba to Make Tremendous Effort to Make-Up for Defeat Handled Out Early in the Season

The Marquette baseball team will enter the office of City Clerk Carl Anderson today stating that they were eager to collect a bounty on a crow. Mr. Anderson made out the check for the youngsters and then demanded that they produce the crow. The boys proudly handed over a black looking creature almost as large as a crow but without the familiar looks of the corn eaters. The leader of the gang handed the bird to the clerk with one hand and reached for the check with the other. The young was amazed when the clerk said "Why that isn't a crow, that is a black bird and we do not give any bounty for black birds."

Eddie Schwartz will pitch for the hosts and Harry will be on the mound for the visitors. Alto Escanaba is confident of winning the game Sunday evening. The game will be given away on August 13 in a contest. The car will be given away during the time the Con T. Kennedy carnival is here.

WARDEN RECEIVES NEW GAME LAWS

Few Changes Made Recently Are Very Important; License Fees Are Increased.

Game Warden Herman Leisner has just received from the State Department of Conservation a digest of the important general game and fish laws of the state for 1921-22.

A few important changes have been made in the game laws for the coming season which will be of interest to the many local sportsmen in this locality. Numbered among the changes are the following:

The resident fee for hunting deer has been increased $1 making the present fee $2.50. The non-resident fee which was formerly $25. is now $50.

A law which has been recently passed prohibiting aliens from carrying fire arms of any sort will also bar them from the practice of hunting.

This also excluded persons who have only their first paper.

This season deer may be hunted from November 1 to November 30 inclusive.

Only one male deer is allowed a hunter.

Under a camp license which includes a party of four or less, the male deer is allowed to possess the one buck law which has not been successful in several states. It is hoped that the number of fatalities may be reduced.

The season for muskrat or fox hunting is open from October 15 to March 15 inclusive.

The squirrel season which has been closed for several years will be open from October 1 to Dec. 31 inclusive. Bonnets on all animals have been taken off, with the exception of the woodchuck and crane.

Boys Try to Pass Blackbird On City Clerk for a Crow

Several boys entered the office of City Clerk Carl Anderson today stating that they were eager to collect a bounty on a crow. Mr. Anderson made out the check for the youngsters and then demanded that they produce the crow. The boys proudly handed over a black looking creature almost as large as a crow but without the familiar looks of the corn eaters.

The leader of the gang handed the bird to the clerk with one hand and reached for the check with the other. The young was amazed when the clerk said "Why that isn't a crow, that is a black bird and we do not give any bounty for black birds."

The youngest not willing to let the 25 cents slip away so easily said, "I'm sorry it's a crow, because we heard him say, 'caw, caw, caw,' and then we shot him."

"Well my boy, the city clerk said I'm sorry but we can not do business with you today but we are sure the next time that you have a real crow before you shoot him for a bounty."

Letters to alumni in the peninsula have been sent by Miss Helen Pratt, secretary, requesting a large attendance and also urging that reservations be made early.

BIG CROWD HEARS

TALK ON IRELAND

Orators Explain Conditions and History of Ireland for the Past 700 Years.

More than 200 Escanaba people and visitors to the city at the Strand theatre last night were given an insight to the condition and history of Ireland for the past 700 years. Every one present was far better informed on the great international question after the open meeting last night than they ever were before.

Capt. Clifford, formerly of the Rainy River Division, and Professor Daniel Foley were the speakers at the meeting. Both took part in America's struggle in the World War. They explained in detail Ireland's fight for freedom and the problems facing that country at the present time.

Following the talk last evening a membership drive was started and practically every person in the hall signed up. The signers declared themselves as favoring the early recognition of the Irish Republic. This little band of local people now help to make up the one million of America's inhabitants who have pledged themselves not to patronize English in industry or buy English-made goods until Ireland is given the rights and freedom which the American soldiers fought for in the fields of France—the self-determination of smaller nations.

In eloquent terms Capt. Clifford and Prof. Foley explained step by step Ireland's official history. The bare facts uncolored by phoney press dispatches. The real conditions when explained by the two men came as a surprise to many, who for years have been reading the news of Ireland's struggle. Many special accounts, the and that makes history, were given in their true light or the arrangement of many.

In explaining the Sinn Fein organization the speakers said that its first members were students and statesmen and not murderers and hoodlums.

Business in Escanaba and surrounding districts will be practically suspended Thursday morning to be given over to the cutting and pruning to be given under the auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary Club of Escanaba in honor of Lt. General John J. Pershing.

Business in Escanaba and those cities in the vicinity who appreciate good sports and who will enjoy a coating of paint will be at South Park tomorrow. The A. O. A. committee arrangements realizing that only a piping of the size of the one arranged for tomorrow a great success have been working for weeks and have spared no pains to make this event the one big get-together meeting of the whole year.

People from all parts of the country have expressed a desire to be there to help make the annual affair an outstanding success.

The committee after all the work in planning the picnic now look back with pride with pleasure that Delta County people put for a real day of fun will all be at South Park when the curtain rises on the afternoon's program. No class or denominational line will be followed tomorrow.

A. O. A. has extended just a hearty welcome to the general public to attend and enjoy themselves.

Dancing will be enjoyed in the afternoon and evening. Johnson's orchestra will furnish the musical numbers for the dance. The Ladies Auxiliary will furnish the refreshments at the picnic.

JUDGE LANDIS HAS SOMETHING TO SAY TODAY

Men May Be Cleared by Laws, But Still Must Prove Up in the Game.

Cook County Is Through With Base Ball Cases; Other Indictments Will Be

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS)
CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 3.—None of the American league who were acquitted last night of an alleged criminal conspiracy to throw the 1919 world series has any immediate prospect of returning to organized ball, according to a statement issued today by Judge K. M. Landis, national base ball commissioner.

Regardless of the verdict of the jury, said the statement, no player that throws a ball game, no player that would entertain proposals or promises to throw a ball game, no player that sits in a conference with a bunch of crooked players or gamblers where the ways and means of throwing games are discussed, and does not promptly tell his club about it, will never play professional baseball again.

"Just keep it in mind that regardless of the verdict of the series, baseball is entirely competent to protect itself against the corrupt inside and outside influences," was the final ending of the statement.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—The seven former White Sox players and two alleged gamblers, brought to trial in the baseball scandal case, were legally cleared of having any connection with the alleged conspiracy to throw the 1919 world series at Cincinnati, by being found not guilty on the first ballot.

The verdict clearing Weaver, Risberg, Feltch, Gandil, Jackson, Williams, Cicotte, Carl Zork of St. Louis, and David Zeller of Des Moines, was returned shortly before midnight amid a scene of wild cheering from 500 spectators which would have seemed more natural from the bleachers in a ball park than in the dignified courtroom of Judge Hugo Friend.

Judge Friend tried to restore order, but the pandemonium which broke loose despite the judge's request that no demonstration be given, when the verdict was read, was beyond control and chairs were overturned and fans thrown into the air as the spectators rushed to shake hands with the ball players.

As the ball players went in a body to shake the hands of the jurors, Judge Friend finally motioned his aides to let the demonstration go on and finally joined in with congratulations for the defendants and telling the jury it had returned a fair verdict.

While only nine of the 18 persons indicted in the baseball scandal were defendants, when the case ended, it is believed the base ball scandal has forever been struck from the boards as far as the courts of Cook county are concerned.

The case of Burns was dismissed and during the trial the cases of Sam and Louis Lewi of Kokomo, Indiana, were dropped. Abe Attell, Harold St. John, F. McMullen, Rachael Brown, of New York, J. J. Sullivan of Boston, and Ben Franklin of St. Louis, still are under indictment but it was reported at the state's attorney's office that their cases would be allowed to drop through the statutes of limitations.

All indictments remaining against the acquitted base ball players will be quashed, it was announced today by States Attorney Robert E. Crowe who said, "As far as I am concerned the cases are closed."

LADIES SECRET TO DARKEN GRAY HAIR

Bring Back its Color and Luster with Grandma's Sage Tea Recipe.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur, recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients in large bottles, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and lustrous and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requirement. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

APPLY SULPHUR TO HEAL UP YOUR SKIN

Broken Out Skin and Itching
Eczema Helped Over Night

For unsightly skin eruptions, rash or blottches on face, neck, arms or body, you do not have to wait for relief from torture or embarrassment, declares a noted skin specialist. Apply a little Menth-Sulphur and improvement shows next day.

Because of its germ destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation. The moment you apply it healing begins. Only those who have had unsightly skin troubles can know the delight this Menth-Sulphur brings. Even fiery, itching eczema is dried right up.

Get a small jar from any druggist and use it like cold cream.

President Fording Stream

The specifications covering the new models, in motor construction Buick has adhered to the valve-in-head principle with which its name has been so prominently connected for twenty years.

The cylinder bore is .4 and .8 inches with stroke of 4 and 4.4 inches. The motor develops between 35 and 40 brake horse power and road tests have shown that the power will average up to 50 miles an hour with ease. Features of motor construction are the large three-bearing crankshaft and inch long connecting rods, extra long rods being provided to reduce vibration to a minimum. A circulating splash oiling system gives automatic lubrication throughout. Another important feature, which is standard equipment on all Buick cars, is the automatic carburetor heat control which, under varying conditions, are obtainable here.

The transmission is of the selective sliding gear type, three speeds forward and one reverse. The universal joint is of standard Buick construction, being virtually an integral part of the transmission and automatically lubricated from the transmission. The clutch is of the multiple disc dry plate type, built in exact accordance with the principles which have guided clutch construction in Buick since. All moving driving parts are enclosed.

WIRELESS HAS BECOME GREAT FAD IN STATE

In This District There Are Over 20,000 Receiving Stations; Licenses Number 2365.

DETROIT, Aug. 3—There are 2,365 licensed transmitting and receiving wireless stations in the eighth district comprising lower Michigan, Ohio, Western Michigan, most of Pennsylvania and western New York, according to S. W. Edwards, of Detroit, United States radio inspector for this district. In addition the stations which do not transmit messages number close to 20,000 these being known as receiving stations only and not requiring licenses.

There are 21 experimental stations, 18 commercial stations doing business between overland points, 18 technical school and training stations, and 26 special amateurs' licenses, the operators being permitted to exceed 200 meter wave lengths. Wireless equipment of 187 ships also falls under supervision of Mr. Edwards. In addition to the frequent inspection of equipment on ships and commercial stations the equipment of 1,067 amateur stations has been home.

Equipment has been gone over in the year and 211 applicants for professional operator's licenses have been examined, of whom about 60 per cent passed.

Radio business in the eighth district has developed to a point where additional technical help is absolutely necessary for efficient inspection. Mr. Edwards' annual report will point out.

His office is doing its best to combat abuses of the radio service, principally interference by amateurs with commercial interests and amateurs working "off-wavelengths" but finds the field he has developed to such an extent it is getting out of control.

While experiments in sending music by wireless and similar developments are interesting, Mr. Edwards points out they have about the same effect on commercial service that would follow the practice of telephone subscribers keeping their lines open for abnormal periods to hear far away concerts.

Miss Rose Bink returned Monday night from Milwaukee where she has been attending Marquette Conservatory of Music during the summer session. Miss Bink will return to Milwaukee in the fall to attend the conservatory and continue her studies at the Holy Angels Academy.

LACK OF DEMAND FOR COAL MAKES GREAT HARDSHIP

There Is No Market for Coal Is Reason Why Miners Are All Out of Work; Not Striking.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 3—Unemployment of 150,000 coal miners daily, with many thousand others idle much of the time, is reported by officers of the United Mine Workers of America, who assert the idleness is due to the lack of a market for coal. State officials here in touch with the coal trade, and the coal operators also maintain there is no market for coal, adding that a famine is threatened unless the household consumers buy in their winter supply now.

Indiana mines, which produce approximately 25,000,000 tons annually, are estimated by officials to have turned out about 10,000,000 tons for the last half of the year, with the average monthly production falling below 1,500 tons the last three months. More than half of the time lost this year is credited by the operators to have been due to "no market."

For the year as a whole, the coal production is said to be 65,000,000 tons behind the average of the last four years.

Hard coal production is said to be slightly higher than in the last several years.

Thousands of miners have not worked enough to be listed in the membership of the union, but the exact number has not been announced although the Indiana U. S. census shows 12,600.

The present total membership is between 17,000 and 18,000.

as compared with more than 29,000 at the opening of the year. Union officials say the only strike or lockout situations are in Mingo county, W. Va., and the state of Washington.

Craig Littlejohn, Indiana state game inspector, declares the 69 mines in Indiana are working less than halftime and he says a fuel famine is not to be unexpected unless the domestic consumers begin storing the winter supply of coal now.

Improvement in the soft coal fields is expected with the approach of fall and several operators are planning to sink new shafts, either to open new mines or make more profitable

the operation of old mines. Announcement by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad that it would draw on the Indiana fields for practically all fuel for its system east of Abbedeen, S. D., and the Missouri river also is expected to be a boon for the coal industry in several Indiana counties.

The railroad recently acquired the Chicago, Texas, & Southern Railroad

as its coal carrier.

AGREEING UPON SILESIA

The next move in the settlement of the Silesian question will be a meeting of the Supreme Council which will undertake to divide the country between Poland and Germany, and it was because this important event was near at hand that the French and British governments recently found themselves in sharp disagreement.

France wished to send another division of troops to Silesia before the meeting of the council. Those who believe in putting the worst possible construction upon national motives in international affairs, reasoned that the French wanted more troops in Silesia in order to enforce an unjust demarcation of boundaries. France, they said, is the implacable enemy of Germany and will go to any length to prevent the Germans from acquiring more territory, population or resources of any kind. France is the ally of Poland and is bent upon strengthening Poland so as to cause it another enemy to Germany; therefore, France proposes to give the Germans the worse of the bargain and to plant troops in Silesia for the purpose of driving the Germans out of territory that is rightly theirs.

To all such critics Premier Briand replied that, since a final decision in the Silesian matter was desired by Great Britain, France wished to send troops to Silesia for the purpose of making the decision good whatever it might be. Against the idea that France proposed to use her troops to enforce an unjust decision whether her allies liked it or not, the premier pointed out that France could not take any such course without losing all of her friends and isolating herself from the world.

That clearly is the fact and ought to satisfy even those who think there is something sinister in the French desire for a stronger army in Silesia.

What differences there were behind the scenes between the British and the French governments the world is not likely to know for the present, but whenever they were they have been composed. The French troops are to go as France proposed and the confidence on the final settlement is to come at times Great Britain desired. The two governments are acting in harmony again and in the absence of evidence to the contrary the presumption is that they will act fairly toward both Germany and Poland.

GEORGIA LOOKS TO MICHIGAN

Considering the importance of the state, Michigan attracts relatively little attention in the nation at large. There is an occasional break in the even flow of Michigan affairs which goes to the national gaze this way, but generally speaking, the rest of the country is barely aware that Michigan is on the map except when the subject of automobiles or summer resorts comes up for discussion.

Ask any man east or west, north or south, and he will immediately admit that Michigan is a great state and then he will say, "nothing in Kansas." But recently the state of Georgia became aware that Michigan may repay attention. This fact was brought to the Georgian mind by the sale of $20,000,000 worth of Michigan bonds that went upon the market and disappeared into strong boxes like ice cream at a picnic. Georgians wanted to know how it happened that a state with about the same population as their own could sell bonds so readily when Georgia obligations are not popular.

The Atlanta Constitution thinks the answer lies in the fact that Michigan assesses property at full value and, therefore, maintains a relatively low tax rate, whereas Georgia assesses at a nominal two-thirds and suffers all of the well-known effect of local competition in beating down the valuation.

Since state bonds are exempt from taxation, the explanation does not seem to explain, but it may be that the business-like way in which Michigan manages the valuation problem insures confidence and it states which have valuation to local officials who are elected for the purpose of a wholesale dodging softer in the bond market, it is one more argument for honest assessment.

OPEN FOR DISCUSSION

The Japanese advisory council is reported to have approved the decision of the cabinet to take part in the Washington conference and it is further reported "on reliable authority" that Japan will insist that the questions of Yen and Shantung are to be treated as special problems involving entirely different footing from the question of giving them the question of armaments because, in the Japanese view, they are both controlled by the treaty of Versailles.

The United States has denied with great emphasis that the Yen question is settled by the treaty, and neither this country nor China ever agreed that the question of Shantung was foreclosed by what happened at the peace conference, but if the Japanese claim that the two must be regarded as special problems, is at least an admission that there is something relating to both questions which can be discussed at Washington, and that is much to be preferred to a claim that there is nothing more to be said.

Don't worry over the dire prophecies of evil handed out by the reformers and the faddists. Cold weather will be coming soon and then most of these menaces to human future, bad happiness will suffer frost bite and wither away.

In thinking over the discussion regarding America's reasons for going to war, it is impossible to escape the conclusion that this country would be saved a great deal if its public men would eschew rhetoric.

There is an intimation that Belgium would like an invitation to the Washington conference. Belgium ought not to be obliged to ask twice.

Outwardly calm, I replied, "Yes it's too bad, but then who ever dreamed that Aunt Jane would go adventuring at this time of life? I thought nobody over the age of thirteen, and then boys, even won't, travel unchaperoned."

"Ah, but lads of thirteen couldn't well come such a distance on their own, you know," returned Apollo, with the kindest air of making allowance for the female intellect.

I hurriedly岔ed the subject. "I really can't imagine Aunt Jane on a desert island. What will she do if she meets a cannibal aborigine to eat her?"

"Oh, really, now," snarled the parson earnestly. "I'm quite sure there's no danger of that, don't you know? I believe there are no natives at all on the island, or else quite tame ones. I forgot which, and there are four of us shapes, with no end of resources and

I had seen Aunt Jane in hysterics before—she had them that day about the convict. I was not frightened, but I hurried after her—sheek and neck with Miss Browne. It was fifteen minutes before Aunt Jane came to, and then she would only moan. I bathed her head, and held her hand, and did all the regulation things under the baleful eye of Miss Browne, who steadfastly refused to go away, but sat glaring like a gorgon who sees her prey about to be snatched from her.

In the midst of my ministrations I awoke suddenly to a rhythmic heave and throb which pervaded the ship. Dropping Aunt Jane's hand I rushed on deck. There lay the various pieces of my baggage, and in the distance the boat with the two brown covers was skipping seaward over the ripples. As for the Hayes Smith, she was under way, and heading out of the harbor for the open sea.

I dashed off to the captain, who stood issuing orders in the voice of an exasperated foreman.

"Captain?" I cried. "Wait, turn around! You must put my aunt and me ashore."

He whirled round, showing a crimson angry face. "Turn around, is it turn around, I commanded. "Do you suppose I know about the harbor fort? I don't know your aunt's name, you can't tell without me asking. Now you can go along with the rest. That boat's supposed to be our set for Hayes Smith, and I expect I'll be on the boat, and probably that, after all, in that direction as, according to jump-overboard!"

"Then as you I happened to go to Esquimalt Island."

CHAPTER II

Apollo and Some Others.

The Hayes Smith's cabin freight had been hurried to cover the Harding-Brown expedition to Esquimalt Island, which lies about three hundred miles west of Panama and could be picked up by the freighter in her course. She was a little, dingy boat with such small accommodations that I cannot imagine where the majority of the passengers stored them clothes—my aunt and Mrs. Brown had a state-room between them the size of a packing-box, and somebody turned out and resigned another to me. I pretended these to dress for dinner. In the haste of my departure from San Francisco I had not brought a trunk so the best I was able to produce in the way of a cradle for Miss Higgins-Brown and her fellow-passengers was a cool little white gown which would slide at least by contrast with Miss Browne's severely utilitarian costume. While he became to my taste, which narrow-minded persons term red, but which has been known to cause the more discriminating to draw heavily on the dictionary for adjectives. My face is small and heart-shaped, with features strictly for use and not for ornament, but fortunately inconspicuous. As for myself, I think tawny quite the most red, though Aunt Jane calls them bare and I have even heard whispers of green.

Five minutes after the going signal I walked into the cabin. Miss Browne, Captain, Watkins, of the freighter, and half a dozen men were already at the table. I slid unobtrusively into the one vacant place forunately remote from the captain, who glared at me savagely, as though smitten by the recollection of my aunt's sins.

"Gentlemen," said Miss Browne in her tones, "Miss Virginia Harding."

Two of the men rose, the officers stared and shrank. Except for Miss Brown and the captain, I had received on coming aboard only the most hurried impression of my fellow-voyagers. I remembered them merely as a composite of looks and cork helmets, and astonished staring faces. But I felt right as the features of Miss Brown's blouse and minister atmosphere enveloped them all.

Being thus in the camp of the enemy, I sat down in silence and devoted myself to my song. The majority of my company did likewise—audibly. But presently I heard a voice at my left.

"Lady, what a jolly good sailor you seem to be—why your aunt's not!"

I looked up and saw Apollo sitting beside me. "Or rather, shall I say a young man?" who might have swiped out of an advertisement for a ready-made clothing house, so neat and his posturist was his beauty. He was very tall—I had to tilt my chin quite painfully to look up at him—and from the loose collar of his silk shirt his throat rose like a column. His skin was a beautiful, clear pink and white just tinged with tan-like a meringue that has been in the oven for two minutes exactly. He had a straight profile and his hair was stock and chestnut and wavy and he had clear sea-gray eyes. spirit of Mr. Tufts, and he lightened it by rising to propose a toast.

"Ladies and gentlemen, to her now unfortunately laid low by the pangs of infidelity—our friend and恒友 dear, Miss Harding!"

This was bewildering, for neither friend nor foe could Aunt Jane be called bony. Late in the light of Mr. Tufts's passing for classical allusion, I decided to translate it home and consider the family complimented. At the moment I sat stunned, but Miss Harding, with greater self-possession, majestically inclined her head and said:

"In the name of our absent friend, I thank you."

GIVE HOUSEWIFE A CHANCE IS PLEA

Methods of Lessening Their Loads Will Be Explained at Round Up.

Miss Arella B. Potts, assistant state leader of home demonstration agents, will be in charge of that department at the third annual upper peninsula farmers' round up, to be held at the upper peninsula experimental station at Chatham, August 11. Miss Potts will discuss the problems of a housewife relating to nutrition and the welfare of the family.

Mothers are engaged in a campaign to raise the standards of child life by proper feeding and living conditions," she declares. "There is no problem before the American people so important as the one of correct nourishment."

Hot Lunches in Schools

Miss Barbara Van Heulen, state leader of girls' club work, will talk on "Girls' Clubs in the Rural Schools." As an example of Miss Van Heulen's work, the girls' club of Fred county will give a hot lunch demonstration, showing how hot lunches may be served in the rural schools.

"Nutrition in the Home and School" will be the topic of a talk by Miss Hotel Dickinson, home demonstration agent of Dickinson county. She will show the necessity of co-operation with the mothers to enable them to perform their work to the best advantage.

Miss Jeanie Williams, home demonstration agent in Gogebic county, will demonstrate the proper methods of preserving chicken, meats and fish. She will also be in charge of an exhibition by the Gogebic, Dickinson, Houghton, and Chippewa home demonstration clubs.

Woman's Work Shop

One of the features of the women's program will be an address by Miss Ada V. Smith, home management specialist, whose topic will be, "Woman's Work Shop." Miss Smith will demonstrate the use of labor-saving devices for the home. Concerning her work, Miss Smith says:

"Let's make the kitchen a more convenient place in which mother can work. With a little planning we may find it will be possible to have the water piped into the house without great expense. It has been estimated that many farm women lift over a gallon of water each day."

"Perhaps we may have a gasoline engine to run a power washing machine, the churn and some of the other equipment in the home. It might not even cost as much as our yearly doctor bill, which may have come as a result of overwork especially from the heavy lifting."

"Let's add at least one labor-saving device to our home this year. Should it be nothing more or less than a good sharp knife, it might help to save a temper, and what adds more to a contented home than a pleasant disposition?"

The Northern Michigan Alumni association will hold its annual meeting on Aug. 11. The day before the round up at Chatham, Miss Hotel Dickinson, Chippewa county home demonstration agent, is in charge of the program.

WOMEN'S MEETING

The Brothers of America, North Stars and Ladysmith, large numbers of members were present, a social party and business function in the hall preceding the evening. The wife of the pastor presided.
