Chicken Dinner in 30 Minutes

CANS 40 TO 280 QUARTS OF FRUIT
OR VEGETABLES IN A DAY

Pays for Itself In Six Months

Hours Saved for Pleasure

No longer must you spend hours over a hot stove. With a Sechrist Pressure Cooker the Oatmeal or Cream of Wheat for breakfast may be thoroughly cooked in 15 to 20 minutes while you are setting the table. You may start the noon meal at 11:30 a.m., or the evening meal at 5:30 p.m. No stirring or basting, food cannot cook dry and burn, because all liquid is retained by the steam-tight cooker.

Many wholesome, highly nutritious foods such as navy beans, lima beans, cornstarch mush, etc., are not served regularly in many homes because of the time and fuel necessary to prepare them. With the Sechrist Pressure Cooker these delicious foods can be made part of the daily diet without trouble or bother and with little cost for fuel. A two-year-old hen that ordinarily took four hours and $1.00 fuel if cooked can be cooked as tender as young chicken with the Sechrist Cooker in 30 to 50 minutes. The Sechrist Pressure Cooker saves you hours of time—hours that you can use for pleasure, job work, etc. You can give yourself delicious, well-cooked meals and still have time for those things that make life pleasant.

Simple and Practical

The Sechrist Pressure Cooker requires little attention. If pressure should become excessive the safety valve opens. The escaping steam notifies the housewife to turn down the fire or close the draft.

The cooker is so simple to operate that it is being used in the domestic science departments of many high schools.

The body of the Sechrist Pressure Cooker is made of heavy rolled slate dimensions, metal that has been made hard and dense by running through incandescent rollers. The surface is smooth and easy to keep clean.

By accurate workmanship the cover is snugly fitted so that no rubber gasket is needed.

The Sechrist Pressure Cooker has straight sides and flat bottom, a shape desirable for holding insets without loss of space and convenient for canning.

Cans 40 to 280 Quarts a Day

During the last four years the pressure cooker has been demonstrated by hundreds of government Home Demonstration Agents at Canning Clubs. We have letters from scores of them endorsing it as the ideal utensil for canning.

Place fresh fruit in jars, pour over the syrup, put covers on houses and set the jars in the cooker. The steam pressure cooks thoroughly at the same time sterilizing jars, rubbers and caps. The fruit is unbroken by handling and it remains plump and beautiful. All the native flavor of the fruit is retained. This is the "cold pack method" so highly recommended by all canning experts.

Vegetables or meat may be canned in one-third the usual time if you use the Sechrist Pressure Cooker. The No. 4 family size cooker cans 40 quarts of vegetables, or 80 quarts of fruit in 10 hours of steady canning. The Sechrist Cook Book gives complete directions for canning and cooking.

The Investment

The fuel used by the Sechrist Pressure Cooker is insignificant. It saves fuel in three ways: (1) By cooking three or four foods in one vessel over one burner; (2) by using a very slow flame which is all that is needed after pressure is up; (3) by cooking in one-third the usual time.

In this average home $2 a month or $24 a year will be saved on the fuel bill.

At a recent test at the Denver University Dental School roasts of equal size (3½ pounds) were cooked in a Sechrist Pressure Cooker and a pot roast kettle. When done, the roast in the Pressure Cooker weighed one pound more than that in the pot roast kettle. Much of the latter roast had "cooked away."

Cheaper cuts of meat may be cooked tender in the cooker. The Sechrist Pressure Cooker will save over $3 a month on the meat bill in the average home or $36 a year.

The total average saving is $90 a year. This is 10 per cent interest on an investment of $600. If the cooker should cost you $600 it would pay.

From People Who Know

"Ever since I had the opportunity to try out the Sechrist Pressure Cooker, I have intended to write and tell you how much I thought of it. I like it better than any other pressure cooker that I have ever used, and I have used two other kinds for several years." Frances L. Brown, Manhattan, Kans.

"Last Sunday Mrs. Morse cooked a chuck roast in our Sechrist Pressure Cooker for which we paid 20 cents per pound, and it was just as tender and just as good as a rib roast, the price of which is now 30 cents per pound." G. R. Morse, Kansas City, Mo.

"We have been very much pleased with the Sechrist Pressure Cooker and feel it finds a ready place in every home." Lucia E. Madison, Head of Department of Home Economics, State College, New Mexico.

STREET CARS NO LONGER RUN IN DES MOINES, IOWA

Jitney Busses Made Impossible for Rail Cars to Make Expenses; Presents a Problem.

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 17.—Citizens of Des Moines the first western city to do without street car service for any considerable length of time have great faith that the immediate future will bring an acceptable solution to the transportation problem.

Meanwhile 105,000 persons are held in buses, private automobiles and walking. The present number of busses is slightly more than 100, operating on fourteen different lines and giving four to 20 minute service.

Cessation of street car service was ordered for midnight of Aug. 1 by Federal Judge James Martin J. Wade, pending necessary proceedings, said, for his bondholders, F. C. Chambers who was receiver for the company before service was ordered stopped, was re-appointed and is still acting as general manager and is the local representative with whom the city council and business men of the city are dealing in an effort to get service restored.

A. W. Harrie, Chicago chief owner of the company has announced that he is "there" with the company and is willing that it be sold at public auction.

Business men of Des Moines acting as unofficial negotiators in the dispute between the car company and the city, have proposed a solution that was taken to Chicago for consideration by Mr. Davis. The proposition involved a payment of fare and the elimination of busses from varieties and the arrangement by Mr. Harris of $20,000 to eliminate the car system and pay its immediate operating rights.

The company claims to have had $200,000 during June by operating on an informal basis in competition with city's buses.

When the street cars were operating on May 6 and 7 early birds there were only a few motor buses in operation. When the company obtained some permission to charge a fare regular bus service was established on a number of lines and in only a month before the street car service was suspended there were approximately 150 buses in operation.

I can get either of these cars today without waiting, then the family can enjoy the rest of the year in camping, fishing, hunting or anything we want to do. No need of waiting till spring; they are hard to get then, and like lots of other people, may be disappointed and not get any at all.

Tuberculosis figures are the lowest reported since 1919, but the disease is on the increase. The number of deaths from tuberculosis in 1920 was 33,169.

The infant mortality rate, 50 per 1,000, is also the lowest recorded, while the birth rate rose from 18.5 in the previous year to 21.1 and the death rate, 12.5, shows a decline of almost one-half.

HAWAIIANS WERE FLYING BEFORE PLANE INVENTED

Natives Used to Jump Off High Cliff With Plane Device.

Regular Game Was Made of It Over Hundred Years Ago and There Were Many Experts.

(By Associated Press). HONOLULU, Aug. 17.—Thrills of flying were enjoyed by Hawaiian natives before aviation was invented according to stories told by natives of today. Their ancestors, just their senior, resorted to jumping off cliffs into the sea in body boards.

They made a popular game called known as "lele-pau," jumping off the cliff. It was played up to a hundred years ago by natives who lived near groves of local plants, now hills rising overlooking the sea.

Details of the game have been informed by William D. Cooley, a tourist newspaper editor near an office of the House of Ali-Hawai (House of Chiefs). This is what he says of the vanished sport:

The game was played with some canoes built of light but stout sticks and overgrown with long palm leaves. Several of these affairs were made ready, the Hawaiian aviators took their seats and were pushed over towering cliffs at the game time. The aviator who remained longest in the air was the winner.

Often, their carelessness or carelessness a "plane" would come a nose dive almost to those of twentieth century airplanes. The only damage was the loss of the game.

Old Hawaiians say that their flying men were exceptionally skillful. The only means they had of guiding their crude appliances was to shift their weight to maintain balance as they descended down toward the sea.

A fleet of outrigger canoes would dash off to pick up the sport and return the planes.

Exceptionally daring Hawaiians often leaped off the thousand foot cliff on the mainland. It is said

FREIGHT RATE INTO GOTHAM IS EXCESSIVE

Costs as Must to Haul Train in City as to Carry 400 Miles.

Great Cost Is Explained by Of-ficial Who Says Delays in Unloading Partly to Blame.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Railroads entering New York paid a carload of freight ton miles for the same number they charge to haul it 400 miles or farther, a distance of about 400 miles, says J. J. Mantell of the Erie Railroad.

An explanation of this cost was given by Mr. Mantell recently to the temporary council of the New York Merchant's Association. He said that the great volume of freight-handling in the port of New York—90 per cent of the total import and export traffic of the United States—requires the maintenance by the port of a large amount of floating equipment, necessitating an investment of $15,000,000.

Because New York's harbor piers were planned and built 40 or more years ago and were intended for the old type of sailing vessel or schooner, no sail-boats and lighters require from seven to eight days to make deliveries. During the war, from ten to eleven days were required.

An Interstate Commerce Commission lawyer once described the New York traffic conditions as "the糟粕 of the nation," as the pure spot of the nation.

STATE POLICE IN HARMONY WITH THE FEDERAL AGENTS

There Has Been No Friction Since New Department was Organized by the Governor.

LANSING, Aug. 17.—The perfect cooperation between the state police and federal agents, which has existed since the new state department of public safety became operative and which is to be developed to an even higher degree, will make possible almost a "fitter of the law" enforcement of the liquor laws in Michigan. In the opinion of James R. Davis, new appointed prohibition director for this state,

The limited force of the command of the federal officer, Mr. Davis believes, makes it essential that the state police do much of the interior work. This man is the Michigan federal appointment. This number could not be used to advantage on the front (over-road traffic) and even there the aid of local and state police is necessary to make anything like a thorough job of patrolling the 13,000 United States boundary.

AMERICAN SCHOOL IN CHINA FINDS CHINESE PREPARED

Efforts Are Being Made to Raise Large Sum to Help Plans Will Be Community Center.

(By Associated Press)

SHANGHAI, Aug. 17.—Plans were taking form thru the summer in Shanghai to open a campaign in the fall to raise $100,000 to begin work on the erection of the first building of a new American school. This first structure, consisting of a classroom building and a dormitory, and the ground will cost approximately $167,000 or about $230,000 in gold. Of the funds $167,000 required, $112,000 have been raised. The $100,000 having been given in a campaign for funds held in Shanghai last year and Gold $150,000 having been contributed by Mission Boards in the United States.

It has been planned to make the new school center of American community life in Shanghai. The site that has been selected is a tract of about 17 acres located admirably in the northern part of the city. In the school year just closed 218 pupils were enrolled and the facilities of the institution were taxed to the utmost to provide for all applicants. The school requires eight years of school work and four years of high school. A class of ten was graduated this year.

White under control of mission boards the School has always been open to Americans generally. A change to be made in connection with the new project is that the new institution will be governed by a board of managers of whom half will be appointed by the different missions and half by representatives of the business community.

From the makers of U.S. Royal Cords to the users of Fabric Tires

THE U.S. USCO TREAD

Here is the U.S. Usco Tread, with a long established standard of service among motorists who have an eye to value, as well as to price. While selling for less than the other tires in the U.S. Fabric line, the Usco has earned a reputation for quality and dependable economy which is not exceeded by any tire in its class.

Giving to the fabric tire user fresh, live tires. Being made now. Being shipped now.

IN all of modern merchandising, the biggest conundrum is the fabric tire situation.

Around 70% of all car owners use fabric tires.

Their instinct for quality is as strong and persistent as any one else's.

Why, then, are they offered such hodge-podge stocks of "discount tires," "odd lots," "seconds," "retreads" and other so-called bargains of uncertain origin?

Sooner or later the public always seeks out quality. As a matter of self-protection—if for no other reason. The out-and-out opinion in favor of U.S. Fabric Tires has spread more this year than it ever did.

People have gotten very close to the U.S. policy. Felt it. Benefited by it. And passed the word along.

It's a policy settled to one standard for all U.S. Tires. Whether fabrics or cords. Small sizes or large.

Giving to the fabric tire user fresh, live tires. Being made now. Being shipped now.

All the original U.S. vitality and service comes through when you buy a U.S. Fabric Tire.

GENERAL SMUT'S LETTER.

The publication of General Smuts' letter to Eamon De Valera will serve to clarify general understanding of the Irish situation even if the letter itself should prove to be without effect in promoting a settlement.

It is clear from the letter that the British government has gone further in meeting Irish demands than any other government ever went. It has gone further than all but a few Irishmen asked only a few years ago. The letter also reveals General Smuts' opinion that any agreement between Ulster and the rest of Ireland is impossible at this time. He evidently believes no matter what Ireland outside of Ulster does, Ulster will go its own way, and will be irrevocable if its wishes are crossed.

In that situation General Smuts advises De Valera and his followers to accept a dominion form of government like that enjoyed by the other self-governing members of the empire and he points out that since this is a form of freedom which is satisfactory to South Africa, Canada and Australia the people of those dominions will not be able to see that what is good enough for them will not be good enough for Ireland.

If Ireland accepts dominion government General Smuts believes the Irish will have the support of all the self-governing colonies in the maintenance of Irish rights and freedom but if dominion rule is rejected there will be a corresponding loss of sympathy and support within the empire. In this connection General Smuts reminds Ireland of the growing importance of the dominions through the imperial conference which is making them—if it has not already made them—co-ordinate parts of the empire.

General Smuts' position put in a few words, seems to be that through a dominion status Ireland will be able to work out a form of freedom which will be as satisfactory as freedom under a republic and more beneficial.

As to Ulster he can only point to his belief that if the rest of Ireland organizes as a dominion Ulster will, under pressure of common sense and self-interest, eventually come in. It is safe to say on this point that it will certainly be better to drag Ulster in willingly than to drag the Ulstermen in by the heels. Seized peace and content in Ireland undoubtedly involve something more than a change in the form of government. There is, as General Smuts points out the human problem to be solved.

WEAKENING A GOOD MEASURE.

After emerging from the Senate smiling and triumphant the fourth amendment got into trouble again when the "beer bill" reached the judiciary committee of the house. The senators had amended the bill so that any officer who violates the fourth amendment, prohibiting unreasonable searches and seizures, would be liable to punishment by fine or imprisonment. The judiciary committee has decided to change that provision so that it will apply only to private dwellings. If unreasonable searches and seizures are carried out elsewhere than in a man's home, apparently the fourth amendment will have to take care of itself under the proposed change in the Senate amendment.

Those who are in favor of drawing the fourth amendment wide while they provide the eighteenth amendment with a blistering array of teeth argue that it will be impossible to enforce the prohibition law against rum runners who cross the Canadian border unless officers are permitted to search persons and conveyances upon suspicion. But on the strength of that argument they leave owners of the law free to overrule any law abiding traveler anywhere in the United States and search his pockets and baggage at their own sweet will subject only to the restraint that arises from the traveler's right to pull his journey and begin a civil suit. That is, in behalf of travelers and others not in their homes, of course, no restraint at all in actual practice.

But it is clear that effective restraint is needed. It is not much worse to invade a home without warrant than it is to hold up a man pursuing his lawful way in public, and a public arrest may be very much more humiliating than a quiet visit from the officers to one's home.

If there is merit in the contention that smuggling across the border demands a relaxation of the Senate amendment it ought to be possible to frame a law which will meet the case without subjecting every traveler to the whims and suspicions of any federal officer. Crossing the border of one country into another is in itself an act which differentiates the traveler from the ordinary run of persons who travel. The tariff laws permit the examination of baggage in such circumstances without violating the spirit of the fourth amendment and upon the same principle smuggling can be provided for.

I took no part in the storm that raged round Mr. Tubbs. His face altered by a serpentine, barren smile he stood unmoved, while Miss Higgins, as became interested, excitedly exchanged glances and remarks, while Aunt Jane sashayed and sang. Mrs. Tubbs, while Mr. Shaw strove to make himself heard above the din, lay flat at last, satisfied to extricate from the trumpery a definite statement of terms. These were nothing less than half a percent of the treasure secured to him by a document, sealed and delivered into his own hand. To a suggestion that as he had discovered the all-important tombstones, as might some one else, he repaid with tranquility that he thought not, as he had taken precautions against such an eventuality in other words, as I was later to discover, the why Mr. Tubbs had contrived to false the boulder from its bed and push it over the cliff into the sea, afterward replacing the mass of stones upon the grave.

As to the entrance to the tunnel, it was apparent to me that Mr. Tubbs had not yet discovered it. Even if he had, I am certain that he would have been no more heroic than myself about exploring it, though there was no missing Peter to haunt his imagination. But with the grave as a starting point, there could be no question as to the ultimate discovery of the cave.

I was so eager myself to see ing whatever. Fourth, the bont is now pretty well-to-right, and as soon as we have a snazzy Bert and Magnus and I will set out in twice as good heart as before, having had the story that brought us here confirmed for the first time. So Tubbs and his tombstone can go to thunder!

"I can, can I?" cried Mr. Tubbs. "Say, are you a human hybrid, to talk that cool before a man's own face? Say, I'll—"

But Cuthbert Vane broke in.

"Three rosy cheeks, old boy?" he cried to the Scuteman enthusiastically. "Always did think that chap a frightful brawler, don't you know? We'll stand by old Shaw, won't we, Magnus?" Which comradely outbreak showed the excess of the beautiful youth's emotions, for usually he turned a large cold shoulder on the captain, though managing in some mysterious manner to be perfectly frank with him. Perhaps you have to be born at High Stanton manor or its equivalent to possess the art of regaling people to immense degrees without seeming to adulterate even the gentlest chow.

But unfortunately the effort of the Honorable Cuthbert's cordiality was lost, so far as the object of it was concerned, because of the surprising fact, only now remarked by any one that Captain Magnus had disappeared.

Magus, Miss Higgins-Browne strolled up and down the beach. She demanded of Mr. Shaw, of Cuthbert Vane, of Captain Magnus, each and severally, that Mr. Tubbs be compelled to disgorge his secret. You see that she could not have stormed from a region of rocks and thumb-screws. But there were no rocks and thumb-screws on the island. Of course we could have invented various instruments of torture—but I could have developed some ingenuity that was myself—but too fatality well. Mr. Tubbs knew the exact products of those without whom he had to do. With perfect boldness he could strut about the camp, sure that no weapons were there. Words would be brought to bear upon him, but he would not even be turned away from the general board to baffle on coconuts in solitude.

Long ago Mr. Shaw had left the gold to Violet and with a semi-shrug had turned his back and stood looking out over the cove, stroking his chin reflectively. Miss Brownie's eloquence had risen to amazing flights, and she likewise had Mr. Tubbs inexorably mixed with Annulus and Sappho; when the Scotchman brooded upon her ruthlessly.

or violet in exaltation, mingled with Aunt Jane's sobs. I waited to see that an ear of Mr. Tubbs was cocked attentively in that direction. He had indeed erred in the very wantonness of triumph, for a single glance would have kept Aunt Jane loyal and vocal of excuses for him in the face of any treachery. Not even Violet could have clapped the lid on the upswelling fountain of sentiment in Aunt Jane's heart.

Only the cold, contumacious eye of H. H. himself had congealed that tepid flow.

The morning wore on with ever-increasing heat, and as nothing happened I began to find my watchful waiting dull. Crude, worn out—perhaps by some private nocturnal pig hunt, slept heavily where the drip of the spring over the boughs of old hickories cooled the air. It began to occur whether it would not be well to take a walk with Cuthbert Vane and discover the tombstones all over again. I know nothing, of course, of Mr. Tubbs' drastic measures with the celebrated landmark. As to Cuthbert's interrupted friendship, I depended on the vast excitement of discovering the cave to distract his mind, if not the time. Perhaps you have to be born at High Stanton manor or its equivalent to possess the art of regaling people to immense degrees without seeming to adulterate even the gentlest chow.

But meanwhile the cave drew me like a magnet. I jealousy desired to be the first to see it, to snatch from Mr. Tubbs the honor of discovery. And I wanted to know about poor Peter and the doubts that he had gone back to fetch.

But, Alfred, Captain Magnus had forsaken the post of duty and departed on an unknown errand. Could I ask Cuthbert Vane to do it, too? And then I said a smile that was half proud. I might ask him—but he would refuse me. In Cuthbert's simple code, certain things were "done," certain others not. Among the latter was to fall in standing by a friend. And just now Cuthbert was standing by Dagobert Shaw. Therefore rods and hooks and creased smiles were vain. In Cuthbert's quiet, easy mannered, thick-set way he could turn his back calmly on the face of love and follow the harsh call of duty even to death. It would not occur to him not to do, and he never would suspect himself of being a hero—that would be quite the neatest part of it.

And yet I knew poor Cuthbert was an exploded superstition, an anachronism, part of a vanishing order of things, and that the ideal which was replacing him was a bullet-plated monstrosity. Mr. Tubbs was engaged on liberal terms to find the treasure. He has not found the slightest clue to its present whereabouts. Mr. Tubbs, on the contrary, Miss Higgins and myself as the joint leaders of the Harding Browne expedition, are inclined to think no more than the reward which is due me. We suggest, therefore, a simple way out of the difficulty. Mr. Tubbs was standing by Dagobert Shaw. Therefore rods and hooks and creased smiles were vain. In Cuthbert's quiet, easy mannered, thick-set way he could turn his back calmly on the face of love and follow the harsh call of duty even to death. It would not occur to him not to do, and he never would suspect himself of being a hero—that would be quite the neatest part of it.

Having offered this remarkable suggestion, Miss Higgins folded her arms and waited for its fair fruit.

It did not elicit the enthusiastic response of Mr. Tubbs. "Well, well," he responded. "We think of our captain, H. H. that itself, O' course, has given me his lair in the financial centers of the country. I named a stiff price of fifty thousand dollars. I won't let him have it for less."

And yet I knew poor Cuthbert was an exploded superstition, an anachronism, part of a vanishing order of things, and that the ideal which was replacing him was a bullet-plated monstrosity.

But that's just the little way of a man used to handle large affairs—nothing else is it. I do assure you. The Captain himself used to say, "There's hell, H. H.—you'd think he'd eat the pain, H. H. will swing right round and fair force the profits on the other party. H. H. is thicker than soap to handle him right." Can I say without hard feelings that just now H. H. was not handled right? Instead of being jested with, as he looked for, he was took up short, and even then which he might have expected to show confidence—here Mr. Tubbs cast a reproachful eye at Aunt Jane—run off with the notion that he meant just what he said. All he'd done for this expedition, his loyalty and faith to same, was forgotten, and he was thought of as a self-seeker and Voracious Sharp!

The pain of these recollections damned the torrent of Mr. Tubbs' speech. "Oh, Mr. Tubbs!" breathed Aunt Jane heartbrokenly, and of course a tear trickled gently down her nose, following the path of many previous tears which had already left their staining traces.

Mr. Tubbs managed in some impossible fashion to roll one eye tenderly at Aunt Jane, while keeping the other fastened steadily on the remainder of his audience.

Early Advance Arrivals Women's Autumn Suits

This is a quite notable occasion, for it brings the first peep at the New-Tailored Woman for 1921-22.

And she is definitely a different woman from the tailored lady of the past.

Silks no longer stiff and formal. She has a delightful new graciousness that is wonderfully becoming. The old hard lines have disappeared and instead there is a suppleness of effect that diffuses youthfulness and athletic vigor, without any loss of alluring femininity.

The New Collection of Women's Suits is not at all extensive. Quite the contrary. Indispensable that they should become common; for they are one of a major individual possession for the next few weeks at least of those women who secure them within the next few days.

DAVIS-HARMON

One of the prettiest weddings of the season and one of the most simple in its every detail was that performed last evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Dr. H. Davis, 1012 Seventh avenue south, when Miss Louise Speckley Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Davis, of this city, and Alrah Reed Harmon of Memphis, Tenn., were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed in the presence of the family and close friends, Rev. Dr. Charles M. Brown, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Hamilton, Ohio, officiated.

The bride wore a charming gown of white muslin lace over silver cloth and wore a radiant lace veil and head-dress. She carried several orchids and 18 roses of the valley.

Mr. H. L. French, of Niagara Falls, a sister of the bride, who was matron of honor, wore a gown of orchid green over silver and silver lace. On her arm she carried a bouquet of roses and sweet peas. Miss Helen Brevoort of Detroit, a life long friend and godmother of the bride, was the maid of honor. She was attired in a gown of orchid pink over silver cloth. The bride's mother, Mrs. Helen Brevoort, of Chicago, and Margaret Volland, of this city, whose church was packed with the music arc visiting her now. Mr. and Mrs. Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Root, of Chicago, the flower girls and carried basketfuls of roses and violets.

Rev. Robert and Edward French, son of the bride, was the deacon who ring bearer. E. L. French was the best man. The bridal chorus was directed by Mrs. Robert McLean and Mrs. M. Fernstrom.

The bride of last night is the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Davis. She is a graduate of the Escanaba High School, attended Northwestern University and the state normal school at Ypsilanti. Her training was completed at Goldsmith College. The education is connected with an automobile concern of Memphis, where the newly married couple will make their home following the wedding trip to points east.

Out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Brewer, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. E. L. French and sons, Niagara Falls, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. C. V. D. RECITAL WAS SUCCESS

One of the most pleasing musical recitals to be given in Escanaba in many years was the organ recital at St. Ann's church last night. The Royal Neighbors of America, Cleveland Camp will hold its regular meeting at the Elks temple at 8 o'clock. A large attendance is desired.

GENERAL DELIVERY RULING IS HARD ON CLANDESTINE LOVERS

MEXICAN LAW
GIVES LABOR
PROFIT SHARE

Net Earnings Will Be Shared After Interest Is Taken Off.

Mexican Newspapers Are Opposed to the New Law and Are Siding With the Manufacturers.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 16.—A law recently passed and unratified in the state of Vera Cruz to permit workmen to share in the profits of any industry in that state has met with much protest and threat is made that if there is any attempt to carry it into effect a general paralysis of industry will result.

The law calls for the establishment of a commission of seven, three employers and three workers, in each municipality in the state which, at least once annually, shall call for the books of all industrial concerns, and after a careful audit, shall divide the share of the laborers. The workmen are to receive not less than 10 per cent of the total net profits. No maximum is stated.

The chairman is to be named by the president of the municipality, if his election cannot be mutually agreed upon by the two classes, nor the workmen. It is pointed out by those who oppose the law that this will almost always result in the naming of a workman chairman, as virtually all the manufacturers or importers are laborers.

The profits to be divided according to the law will be understood to be the net earnings realized in the business after taking into consideration the interest and the amortization of the capital invested. The interest will not exceed six per cent per annum and the amortization will be adjusted according to the nature of the capital not more than one-tenth of percent of the capital of the industrial estate.

One of the principal objections made to the law is that it is retroactive to January 1, 1921. An elaborate system of embargoes is being provided so that the employees fail to comply with the orders of the commission or are discovered attempting to evade any of its provisions. Goods and property may be sold at public auction to recover payment.

Mexican newspapers almost as units are opposed to the law and are supporting the industries in their attempt to have federal action taken against it. Committees representing various chambers of commerce have conferred with President Obregon who is now considering if relief measures are possible. Legislatures in other states have given indications that similar laws are contemplated there.

Rifle Stolen From
Kennedy Wild West
Show Monday Night

Officers of Clotland Post of the American Legion announced this morning that they will give away two complimentary tickets that will entitle the holders to any and all the shows at the carnival grounds to the persons that give any information that will lead to the recovery of the 22 calibre repeating rifle that was stolen from the Con T. Kennedy wild west show on Monday night. It is believed that some boys made away with the gun and that possibly he had been seen by someone else, so if you want a couple of free tickets to the shows and know who went south with the gun you can tip it up with the legion officers.

All the guns used by the wild west performers are the best made and it means a lot to lose a gun like to one of the Minutemen night. Every effort will be made by the police and the Legion men to find the person who has stolen the gun.

Uncle Sam is determined that postal service will not be used as a go-between or secret channel of communication by persons who try to cover up clandestine correspondence by receiving their mail via "general delivery."

The situation of John O'Meara post master here has been called to the provision of the postal regulations which prohibits general delivery service on regular local or rural mail routes.

Strict enforcement of this rule will be a severe blow to Cupid, in many instances, post offices employ say. It directly affects the young girl who has been slipping up to the general delivery window and carrying mail from an absent admirer who is in bad with her father or mother or both.

Likewise, if it is a most unpopular rule with the married woman or man who likes to carry on intimate correspondence with a "third party" with out the knowledge of Friend Husband or Friend Wife. It is said that every community has its friendly post offices in which the mail plays an important part and which could not exist if the general delivery window at the post office is closed to persons having permanent residence in a community where mail carrier service is available.

Postmasters have been told that the ruling must be enforced—that general delivery clerks and others in postoffices have been instructed to handle mail which should be delivered by carrier. It is pointed out that carriers frequently deliver mail once or twice a day to a resident who is also having mail sent to him "general delivery." This is a duplication of work which the postal department seeks to stop.

It will be hard times for many who will be losers who have no moral or legal right to carry on their affairs. The only way they can hedge the rule will be to rent private boxes at the postoffice. This they can do if they are not minors.
