MAGGEMAN, W. Va., Sheriff John Hill of Boone county told the Associated Press that he had been advised by the telephone by Frank Kenny, leader of the miners and Fred Johnson, the secretary, to tell the miners of Boone to remain there until Monday and Kenny could reach the camp from Charleston.

Sheriff Hill added that he has sent W. C. Stewart, one of his deputies to deliver the message of his receipted message up to 10 o'clock.

MATT ADE WILL MEET YOUNG AT LEGION'S SHOW

Next Big Boxing Carnival On Sept. 22 During the Fair.

Lawrence Coughlin Will Meet Dory of Marinette in Six-Round Prelim; Jorgenson to Fight.

Tentative arrangements have been made by the boxing committee of the Escanaba Daily Post of the American Legion to match Matt Ade, weight 145 pounds, against "Jabber" Young, weight 145 pounds, in the semi-final. In the third boxing carnival to be put on by the local post which will be held on Thursday evening September 22, Escanaba Day, at the Northern State Fair, the bout will be the main attraction.

Plans are being made by the legion boxing committee to make the fight bigger and better than any ever held here or any other part of the upper peninsula. Although the contracts have not been returned as yet to the boxing committee, it is practically certain that these two men will appear on the legion's fight card for the semi-final. The Ade-Young bout will be an eight round affair.

Matt Ade hails from Milwaukee and is considered one of the fastest and hardest hitting fighters of his class in Wisconsin. Ade greatly impressed the local high fans here by his clever work and clean fighting in his short but snappy bout with New McCullard at the Coliseum on July Fourth.

"Jabber" Young comes from Marquette, but has made the state line city his home for only a short time. He fought out of Rhinelander for a number of years and has an enviable reputation in central and northern Wisconsin. He has met and won from some of the best acrobats in Wisconsin and it is thought he will give Matt Ade a good run for his money.

Coughlin-Dory

The first preliminary on the tentative lineup ofights and matches will be a six-round go between Lawrence Coughlin, of this city, and Frankie Dory of Marinette. Coughlin always has a good reputation as a fighter in these parts, but he only jumped into prominence recently when he made such a good showing against the heavyweight fighter with the Con T. Kennedy show and remained with him long enough to carry away the prize money. The carnival fighter was considerably heavier than Coughlin. Frankie Dory, of Marinette, is one of the favorites in the twin-city boxing circles. This bout promises to be one of the features of the fair as both men are well known and both are known to be clever fighters.

Jorgenson-Morgan

Another fight, a six round preliminary affair, that promises to be more than interesting to local and Gladstone fans, will be between Mel Jorgenson of Escanaba and Young Morgan of Gladstone. Both fighters are fast and have featured in a number of minor bouts in Escanaba and Gladstone in the past year or two, especially plain on Gladstone's side of the fight of life. He plans on winning by the K. O. route within the first three rounds.

There is a small possibility that a recent action taken by Governor Greenback might prevent the local legon post from putting on their next carnival on Sept. 22, but all the arrangements will be made for the fights and everything possible done to get permission to hold the scheduled fights.

Hundreds of people coming here for the fair will take in the big boxing carnival. It is believed.

Mrs. Fred Martens and children and Mrs. H. A. Miller and son left Thursday for Milwaukee after visiting at the Martens home on North Twelfth street.

MEDICAL SOCIETY A BENEFIT TO PUBLIC AS WELL AS TO MEMBERS, SAYS U.P. ORGANIZATION'S HEAD

MARQUETTE, Aug. 26.—The Upper Peninsula Medical Society is a group of organized medical men of the Upper Peninsula who probably originated in the mind of Dr. Stan Bell, superintendent of the Newberry state hospital. He collected money in the hospitals and to 100 members, declared Dr. R. A. Walker, member of the state board, and to members, retired president of the society, in his address which opened the twenty-fifth annual convention of setting up a program and calling a meeting. The meeting was held in Marquette at the Hotel Superior on Wednesday of the fair.

Dr. Walker touched upon the history of the organization, born in Marquette in August, 1896. He spoke in part, as follows:

Growth Constant

"During its first meeting, this by far the most important one in the history of the Upper Peninsula Medical Society. This occasion marks its twenty-fifth anniversary. More important perhaps than this, has been its constant growth and extending sphere of usefulness as a medical organization and a force for public good and welfare. Born here in Marquette, then as a city, as proportionally small, as was the initial number of the society's members, it has turned to the place of its birth to celebrate this, its silver anniversary. Many periodical migrations to other places in the upper peninsula have been made in the course of its existence.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—A full title to possession of all the rights, privileges, immunities, reputation and advantages specified for the United States under the Treaty of Versailles is realized in the treaty with Germany which was signed yesterday at Berlin.

The treaty is considered by state department officials as a full settlement which makes possible not only a resumption of diplomatic relations, but also a resumption of commercial intercourse.

There was indication today that efforts would be made by the administration to secure Senate ratification as soon as possible after Congress assembled in October.

Such commercial and supplemental treaties as may be found necessary can be negotiated thru the ordinary diplomatic channels. With the treaty signed and ready for signature, there was a general feeling of the importance of sealing the hands of the negotiators by a public peace declaration to carry until the Senate ratifies the treaty.

As great a sense of security has come from the fact of the conclusion of the peace of this more or less isolated region. The most natural and helpful relations have been established among its members.

The class of medical practitioners, surgeons and specialists included in the membership of the Upper Peninsula Medical Society has always been of the highest and most progressive kind. As a consequence, the character of the papers read at its meetings and the value of discussion thereafter have been so worthwhile that it has stimulated thought on the part of its members.

Benefit to Medics And People

As great a sense of security has come from the fact of the conclusion of the peace of this more or less isolated region. The most natural and helpful relations have been established among its members.

I take it, that it would be of interest if some of the facts relating to the earliest history of this society were presented now. I requested the information from Dr. H. J. Hennington, our secretary treasurer, whom I met in Gladstone. Both fighters are fast and have featured in a number of minor bouts in Escanaba and Gladstone in the past year or two, especially plain on Gladstone's side of the fight of life. He plans on winning by the K. O. route within the first three rounds.

There is a small possibility that a recent action taken by Governor Greenback might prevent the local legon post from putting on their next carnival on Sept. 22, but all the arrangements will be made for the fights and everything possible done to get permission to hold the scheduled fights.

History of Society

Dr. Hornbogen wrote as follows:

The Upper Peninsula Medical Society

When the Escanaba Girl Scouts go in camp at Sac Bay next week they begin their regular line of work and play they must have a safe place to tell their stories and be able to tell them to many little children. They must also learn to play three good games and be able to teach the games to little children. These requirements were made necessary due to the fact that most of the members of the Escanaba Girl Scouts will have charge of the rest room at the Northern State Fair next month and bodies looking after the rest room they will have to take care of and look after the little children who will be left in the rest room by their mothers. The Girl Scouts will tell the little children some of the stories they learned over at camp and teach them how to play the games.

muny. The hearing in the case of the three boys was continued thirty days. The three boys when arrested by the local officer were armed to the teeth. It was not announced whether a charge of carrying concealed weapons would be preferred against the boys or not.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Saxy of Hancock, accompanied by friends, started for Manistique where Mrs. Saxy will visit with her sister, Mrs. C. W. Dutton.

The Board of Public Works Turns Down Number Sewer Bids

A number of bids for the construction of one block of sewer south from Fifth avenue between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets have been rejected by the board of public works as all bids exceeded the estimate made on the work by about forty percent. Clerk Carl Anderson was ordered to revalue the bid for the job and the city engineer will also be allowed to submit a proposal for the work to be done by direct labor hired by the city.

MURDERER ENDS CAREER OF MAN OF WORLD FAME

Second Attempt Upon the Life of Mathias Erzberger Was Successful.

German Minister of Finance Rose From Lowly Life to Positions of Great Height.

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—Mathias Erzberger, vice premier and minister of finance of Germany was murdered today. The assassination occurred at Obersberg, where he was on his vacation with his family. Details are lacking.

Mathias Erzberger, German Vice Premier and Minister of Finance was shot and wounded on January 26, 1920 as he was leaving the criminal court building in Berlin after attending a hearing in a libel suit he had brought against Dr. Rath, Reichswehr minister of German War manufacture. His assailant gave himself up to the police a few days later.

Erzberger avoided a storm of Germany in July 1920, more than a year before the murder, by proposing a resolution in the German Reichstag in favor of peace, which was voted down, and for parliamentarian reform. Chemnitz, Dr. Behmann, Berlin, declared, the former was unsuccessful and Dr. Rath, Reichswehr minister, blamed Erzberger's peace proposal for the moral collapse of the German people. The former's power to conclude a peace of his own accord, which he had at the time of his fall, and invited him to do so if he liked. He declined this offer and instead he denied it to the public. He said, "If our political life is again in decent health and normal," he asserted that Erzberger's fortune had been made during his stay by his political and parliamentary position.

Erzberger accepted the challenge and initiated an immediate trial. The trial was perfunctory and seemed to go off without a hitch. The defense was weak and the prosecution was strong. The accused was found guilty of the murder of his political and parliamentary position.

The banks of the city of Escanaba, recognizing the importance of the special election to be held in the city next Monday, August 29, have decided to observe the day as a legal holiday and will not be open for business. A TREMENDOUS TASK

When the prohibition law went into force the country took up the task of enforcing it with a strong but not very well defined idea that the task would be difficult and expensive. As the nature of the difficulty becomes clearer it also becomes more impressive. Enforcing prohibition is not going to be a mere matter of suppressing the furtive bootlegger dealing in small quantities of home-distilled "hooch."

On the one hand the government must deprive a good many millions of Americans of what they have made up their minds to drink; on the other hand, undertake the suppression of an organized traffic which reaches all the way to Europe and deals in millions of dollars and millions of gallons.

The New York Herald recently threw a vivid light on this aspect of prohibition enforcement by sending a correspondent to the Bahama Islands. In Nassau the community and the local government are getting rich on the liquor traffic. Large corporations stocked with American and foreign liquors have built warehouses and are engaged in extensive operations as importers and exporters. The government collects duties on liquor from other West Indian islands and from Great Britain, and the dealers merely sit in their offices and sell their goods for cash.

Negligently Bahama asks where the liquor goes to, but one of the concerns nevertheless has a branch office in New York. Motorboats and "mystery ships" call and buy liquor by the thousand cases. Then they depart and the whole of the vast coast line of the United States invites them. Ten thousand cases of whisky a week leave the Bahamas, according to the Herald correspondent, and the official record of the customs office indicate that the assertion is at least an approximation to fact.

If one town in one little group of islands is doing a business like that what is to be expected in the whole of the West Indies, Mexico, and Canada? Detroit knows full well that the business is now being organized in a similar manner and on a large scale across the Detroit river.

The United States is rich enough and powerful enough to guard its own shores if it sets about the task, but it is evident from the facts that are now developing that only a beginning has been made.

MODERN FRONT YARDS

It is given to few groups of public servants to bring greater pleasure and positive well-being to American urban dwellers than to the members of the Association of Park Superintendents, now in annual convention in Detroit.

The rise of a multitude of important cities within the last half century and the consequent herding of humans into compressed living quarters has brought to the fore the civic necessity for the creation of open-air spaces wherein the masses may stretch their legs and get a glimpse at least of the nature that man made wall deny.

The city park is the modern substitute for the front yard of other and more spacious days. In rural districts and in villages the exigencies of land values have not operated to remove the lawns and old-fashioned gardens. But our cities, with their tenements and apartments and small houses on scant lots, have no room for the carefully-tended expanse of green between house and sidewalk that our fathers knew.

So, the city park superintendents have the burdens and the privilege of planning and laying out and making attractive the community front yards of our towns. And in the measure of their intelligence and sense of public duty the people are being fitted.

The profession of park superintendent is comparatively new, but it has attracted men of good taste and sincere ideals of service. It is the leaders of this profession who are the guests of Detroit this week.

HONEST JACK FALSTAFF

Just what Maurice Casenave meant when he spoke of Sir John Falstaff as the greatest figure in the English speaking world, and said that more men like him are needed now is difficult to say, but he might have been slyly poking at what appears to him to be American hypocrisy.

Sir John was not a person of good character. He drank entirely too much and he kept bad company. His language was shocking and he was not above highway robbery. He was a monstrous braggart and an arrant coward. But broadly and generally speaking Sir John did not pretend to be any better than he was. He might have dissembled his vices for a purpose but ordinarily he drank, cursed and misbehaved himself only and publicly. The sensual life was the life he preferred and he never left anybody in doubt about it.

If the question of prohibition had been up in his day he would have gone to the polls along with Nym, Bardolph and Pistol, and if there had been votes for women, Mistress Quickly and her friend Doll, also, and he would have voted the whole crowd in the negative. Then, if the amendment had passed, all six of them would have broken the law at every opportunity, but they would not have been in the situation of a great many Americans who voted for the prohibition law with every outward show of virtue and now lock the doors while they attend to the family brewing down cellar.

The Ohio State Journal inquires whether the world is sport man. From this angle it would look as if nobody had been very mad about sport since the country began to forget about that little job which some Chicago baseball players pulled off in Cincinnati.

A good line by how any newspaper stands on certain public questions can be discovered by noting whether it attributes the authorship of the invitation to the armament conference to the President or to Secretary Hughes.

What Women Talk About

by Mrs. R. J. Adams

DO OPPOSITES MAKE MOST SUCCESSFUL MARRIAGES?

The question has often been raised, whether a man and woman of opposite dispositions, whose natures complement each other, make a more successful marriage than two people whose natures are similar and interests the same.

A case in point is that of the mother and father of Irene Newton, the famous scientist who discovered the paroxysm of gravity.

When Newton's father decided to marry, he sought out a woman whose traits of character and mind were just opposite to his own; whatever abilities he lacked, were to be found fully developed in her, and vice versa.

The result, history tells us, was Irene Newton—one of the greatest scientists of the age. So perhaps

For twenty hours this food is baked—one reason you like it—another reason why it digests so easily.

One of the important things in connection with any cereal food is to have it thoroughly baked or cooked. For baking or cooking changes the starch of the grains.

Grape-Nuts is the longest baked of all cereal foods. It is scientifically baked at carefully regulated temperatures for 20 hours. This is one of the reasons why Grape-Nuts digests so easily; why it agrees with many people who cannot take any other form of cereal without producing fermentation.

A goodly part of Grape-Nuts is converted into dextrose, ready to be immediately assimilated by the system, and yield strength and energy. A further portion has partially undergone this change, while there remains sufficient unchanged cereal to strengthen the digestive organs. It is then in a condition to meet the various requirements of the digestive system.

If you want to eat a most strengthening and nourishing food, and one that will digest more readily, go to your grocer today and get a package of Grape-Nuts. Eat it with stewed fruit or as a cereal with milk or cream; or make it into an appetizing pudding.

Every member of the family will enjoy its delicious flavor and wholesomeness.

southall team were requested to meet at the high school this afternoon to make plans for a preliminary schedule of workouts.

Coach Loucks, the man who is expected to pilot the Eskys, eleven to the 1921 championship pennant will not arrive in Escanaba from Ann Arbor until the latter part of next week but light drills will be given the prospective members of the team daily so as to put them in shape for the harder grind after the coach arrives. It is believed that at least 30 Eskys football players will turn out this afternoon.

Mrs. Joseph Clairmont and Mr. Edmund Barlow have returned from a visit to Canada.

OMAHA INDIANS MEET IN YEARLY "POW-WOW" SOON

Twelve Hundred Met This Year to Renew the Customs of Their Fathers.

The last of the reunions participated in by Omahas and Indians of visiting tribes from Kansas and Oklahoma, was the most elaborate ever.

MACY, Aug. 26.—When the sun set one Sunday evening recently over more than 200 tipis and 1,200 Omaha Indians, it marked the conclusion of the annual "pow-wow" and ceremonies of the Omaha tribe that yearly have brought hundreds of Indians and families in this city to renew, with test vigor to be sure, the customs and dances of their forefathers.

The tract of forty acres upon which this annual ceremony has been conducted since the stamping-ground and seat of government of the Omaha nation has been planted into town lots and one block reserved for the erection of a $10,000 school building.

The last of the reunions participated in by Omahas and Indians of visiting tribes from Kansas and Oklahoma, was the most elaborate ever.

The reunion, which in former days held in the way of re-enacting the habits of old, but it was not devoid of its sowsow—Charles A. Parker, one of the most prominent members of his tribe, succumbing to death after participating in the tribal dance.

The musical ceremony, attended by the entire representation, was held after the offering of the sacrifices had been made in his tent for four days, the period of state in the ceremonial.

The final celebration began Aug. 11 and closed a week later. The Indians brought their entire families, horses, dogs, pigs, and chickens, the latter two for bating for the tribal feasts.

The venison, which in former days was the choice of the tribal meals, no longer runs wild for the Omaha's arrows.

Together with their household, the Indians brought their collection of ancient ornaments, beaded, feathered or decked with porcupine quills, handed down in his tribe for many generations.

The midnight dance of the moon was revived, apparently leaving its mysterious and enigmatic flavors of old.

The robes they were smoked one night with all the attendant ceremony, the Indians in full native costume.

Tuesday evening at sunset the Indians played a "ball game," which was followed by the big feast and the presentation of gifts. Four horses and a beautiful Indian blanket, shawls, feed sacks, silk and other ornaments and wearing apparel were given away.

Murderer Ends Life of World-Fame Man

Herzberger was for many years leader of the German Center party and one of the leading figures in German public life after Germany's defeat in the war. His peace move of 1917 had made him the storm center of attack by reactionaries; but when Germany's military power collapsed he was made Minister Without Portfolio in the cabinet of Prince Maximilian.

As a member of the German Ambulance delegation he conducted negotiations with Marshal Foch and later headed the Majority Socialists in a movement to form a new ministry and sign the Peace Treaty. His attitude throughout the armistice negotiations with the Germans was that of a man who was against him the indignation of German military authorities and in June, 1919, it was reported that his residence had been fired upon by a Berlin mob. A plot had to have been formed by members of the officer corps at Potsdam to prevent him from being assassinated.

Born in Bittenbach, September 26, 1875, Herzberger was the son of a poor tailor. He became a schoolmaster, obtained a university education, studied international law, and political economy, wrote several books on political and economic subjects and became a brilliant speaker and painter. He was elected to the Reichstag in 1912 as member of the Center (Catholic) party, as representative of small towns and became one of the leaders of a small liberal wing of the party. He is said to have been a Pantheist during the early part of the war and to have engaged actively in spreading German propaganda. He was accused of having recommended the use by German troops of the flame thrower. Later he declared Germany's U-boat war had failed and advocated its abandonment. Some time prior to the armistice he published a book in which he outlined a plan for a League of Nations.

Erzberger was elected member of the National Assembly from Wittenberg in January, 1919, and in June became Vice-Premier and Minister of Finance. In the latter office he formulated the vast income tax and capital levy plan which he declared was necessary to enable Germany to pay her indemnities to the Entente and to rehabilitate herself financially. It was claimed that his levy on German capital would greatly reduce the huge fortunes of German war profiteers and industrial leaders.

SECOND FORUM
MEETING WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

Discussion Program Made by the Members at the Group Meetings Has Been Decided Upon.

The Second Forum Meeting last night at the Elk Temple was a great success in every way. It was said that this was the largest crowd that had attended any meeting during the organization work.

J. P. Norton opened the discussion of the subject on the Proposed City Manager Charter Form of Government in a very clear, logical manner. He impressed upon the members gathered there the great possibility that the New Chamber might accomplish this co-operation. Following this the speaker gave a very clear outline of the advantages of the proposed charter form of government over that of the old regime. After Mr. Norton's opening remarks, there was a general discussion from the floor. Then a motion was made and carried unanimously that the amendment of this meeting should be carried to the board of directors, that the special committee on the Proposed Charter, which meets this afternoon at Organization Headquarters, consider the matter.

The Chamber of Commerce October 1st gave a very fine touch to the general great deal of the meeting. The good fellowship displayed under the direction of J. A. Stromberg, chairman of the committee gave the audience a very agreeable surprise by serving light refreshments of Coffeewandsches and sausages. Mr. C. M. Thatcher led the community singing in a very enthusiastic manner and with feeling, in fact that it was taken up on the platform in a rather impulsive way. A fine spirit of comradeship and a good time was spent from beginning to end.

The Forum Program as adopted by a body of 100 voters was actually worked out from the suggestions made by the members of the Chamber of Commerce in the group meetings or received by mail as follows:

Formal Discussion Program

Park and Park grounds—Program valuable to be gained by the community toward their park, and supervised playgrounds, giving consideration to the need of a park in the West End and the possibilities of the unused water front for park development.

City Beautification—Stimulate interest in a cleanup of both public and private property and City beautification in general.

Housing—Dishes in the Forum the need of more houses and possible plans of reducing the housing shortage.

Street Car Service—Urge maintenance of the Street Railways and the operation of the line to St. Joseph's Cemetery.

Good Roads—Present the advantages to be gained by having a system of good roads leading into Escanaba.

Fire Protection—In a series of meetings discuss the necessity of extending the water main. In these sections of the city as at present supplied especially North Escanaba, in order to provide the proper fire protection to homes and those factories in the outskirts of the city.

Taxation—Consider ways and means of securing a more equitable and adequate method of taxation, safe guarding care and efficient expenditure of such funds.

Citizen's Corp. and Law Observance—Create interest in a movement to teach the principles of good citizenship in the community as one means of bringing about the proper law observance.

Public Market—Foster interest in a public market place where farmers may sell their produce.

INVESTIGATION
INTO ACCIDENT
WILL BE MADE

Wreck of ZR-2 Will Be Subject of Inquiry,
Starting Tomorrow.

Two More Bodies Are Taken
From Wreckage; Swift
Current Makes Work
Very Dangerous.

(By Associated Press)

LUGL, England, Aug. 26—Two bodies were recovered this afternoon from the wreck of the ZR-2, one was identified as that of Albert Loftin an American mechanic who was on the ship at the time of the accident. The other was that of Flight Lieutenant of the British crew.

Work on salvaging the wreckage of the ill-fated ship from the waters of the Humber was resume again at day light when powerful cranes were used to lift the ship to the surface. It was believed here today that when the twisted frame work of the dirigible was raised it would be possible to recover many of the bodies of men who were imprisoned when the ship collapsed and caught on fire.

The work of lifting the wreckage is a hard task for in addition to the great weight of the frame work and driving machinery, the swift current of the river has already begun to cover the wreckage with mud.

The divers who went down to inspect the ruins found the current so strong that their work was attended by great danger and finally they declined to take any further chances in the water.

The divers said that they thought some of the bodies of the victims may have been dislodged by the current and washed out to sea. Official inquiry into the cause of the disaster will begin tomorrow morning at Hull, where the ZR-2 was stationed. The United States will be represented by a naval attache who will sit with the court. There seems to be a general agreement today that the accident was caused by the collapse of the longitudinal girder in the center of the ship, but it was expected that experts would be able to determine with some degree of accuracy the reason for the tragedy when they have recovered the metal parts of the giant dirigible.

HUNTERS PEED
AT LAW CHANGES

Don't Like 10-Day "Lap" of Deer and Bird Seasons;

Many Protests.

Many upper peninsula sportsmen are up in arms over the changes in the game laws advancing the pheasant season from the month of October to the period between October 15 and November 29. Incidentally the deer season is from November 16 to 30, there is a ten-day "lap" from November 10 to 20.

This the sportsmen claim will increase the number of specimens in the woods to such an extent that the birds especially will be practically destroyed. They point out that, in case of cold weather, such as is like to come during the last ten days, the birds become so sluggish that they can almost be knocked over with a club.

The probable increase in the number of hunters, and the carrying in the woods to such an extent that the birds especially will be practically destroyed. They point out that, in case of cold weather, such as is like to come during the last ten days, the birds become so sluggish that they can almost be knocked over with a club.

So much attention was attracted by the passage of the buck law that the overlapping season has been given ample notice until recently. It is believed, in some quarters, to be an attempt to placate opposition to the buck law on the part of southern Michigan sportsmen and legislators.

Other interesting provisions are contained in the digest of the game laws issued by the department of conservation, copies of which have been received by County Clerk Albert Peppin, Hunting Partridge on waterfowl from automobiles, power boats or aircraft is prohibited and carrying of loaded guns in automobiles also is illegal. The male deer is the legal kill, although not less than four persons camping together and holding deer licenses may secure a permit to kill one male deer for use in camp.

Any person over 17 years of age must secure from the department of conservation, a license to hunt or trap any bird or animal found in the state except beaver.
